THE JOY OF MINISTRY

Mission Week provides thousands of hours of service

The back-to-school bash served 96 children from the community, providing them with everything from clothing and shoes to backpacks, along with a hot meal for the entire family. On different days, participants cut trees, spent time with people in an adult care facility, and sent out hundreds of meals to people in the community.

Gabe Coleman was part of a group that helped at a Feeding America volunteer center in Elizabethtown and took on some pretty hefty projects during the week.

"My group was one of the two boys' groups that went around and did more physical labor," he said. "We painted the basement at the United Methodist Church... We cut down some trees and trimmed bushes and low hanging limbs."

At Feeding America, Coleman said they were able to pack Rx boxes. The boxes are provided to doctors who ask patients a question about food security, and if they

The honor goes to an Adair County resident. Lacy Paige Parnell, the daughter of Kendall and Tonya Parnell of Monticello, earned the title of 2023 Miss Adair County Fair. Destiny Faith Ann Hall, the daughter of Robert and Salena Quackenbush of Calhoun, is the first runner-up; and Emma Claire Skaggs, the daughter of Lori and Brian Alexander of Caneyville is the second runner-up.

"We are out there farming all day, and we don't have a lot of interaction with people like you do when you have a public job, so that's been a fun part of it," she said. She has even met new people, some through messaging, because of the project.

People have reached out to thank her for the fresh produce and she has particularly enjoyed hearing from elderly people who once grew their own garden but are no longer able to. Others are growing their own produce, too, and bringing their overflow of items while taking a few other items they are short in.

The produce stand is located at 7594 Hwy 55 South Rd., Columbia.

A white three-tiered display stand filled with yellow bananas. The stand is made of metal and has three horizontal trays. Each tray is filled with several ripe, yellow bananas. The stand is positioned outdoors on a grassy area, and a black metal fence is visible in the background.

A close-up photograph showing a patch of green grass growing from a light-colored, sandy or silty soil. The grass blades are thin and green, while the soil is a pale, yellowish-brown color. The image is slightly out of focus, with a dark horizontal line visible at the very bottom edge.

McQueary named division director at Ky. Fish and Wildlife

Jeremy McQueary was recently named director of the law enforcement division at the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife.

McQueary, an Adair County native, is a 16-year veteran of the department, all within the law enforcement division. He began his career with Kentucky Fish and Wildlife in 2007 and graduated from the agency's Academy Class 14 in 2008 as class valedictorian. He is the first graduate of the academy to move up the ranks to eventually be named a colonel in the Cabinet.

McQueary started his enforcement career in District 4, which includes Adair, Barren, Cumberland, Edmonson, Grayson, Green, Hardin, Hart, Larue, Marion, Metcalfe, Monroe, Nelson, Taylor and Washington counties. He assisted within the training section of the law enforcement division throughout his career.

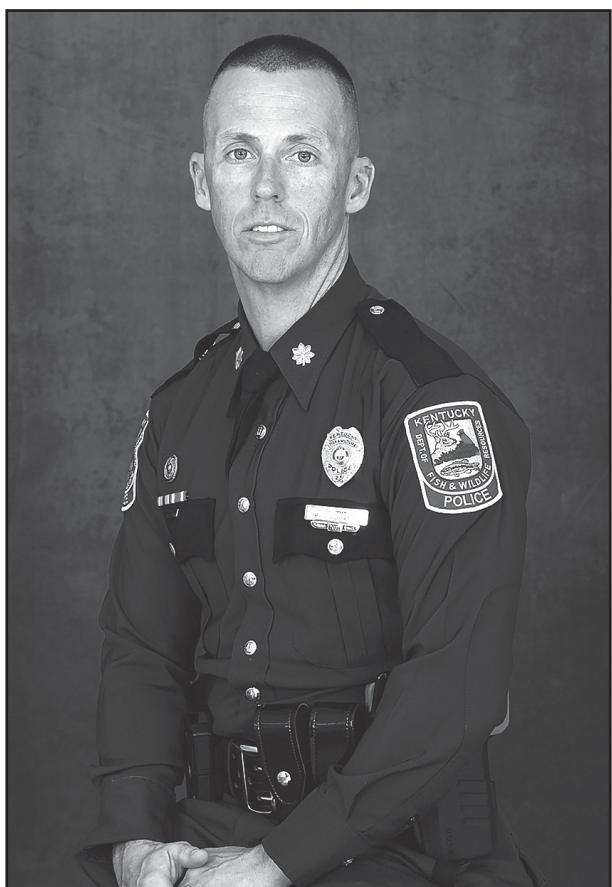

Prior to joining the department, McQueary began his law enforcement career as a Kentucky State Park Ranger stationed at Lake Cumberland in 2005. He graduated in Class 371 from the Department of Criminal Justice Training in 2006 as class valedictorian.

McQueary is an Adair County High School graduate and attended Lindsey Wilson College where he played baseball for four years and holds a bachelor's degree under a contract major emphasized in biology, business and journalism.

He and his wife Carly have four children, Luxy, Lemmy, Ava and Creek, and a lab in training, Jude. He's an avid hunter, angler, a traditional archer and enjoys endurance sports.

Gold enters Class of 2027 plebe summer at U.S. Naval Academy

Jonathan Gold, a graduate of Adair County High School, was inducted into the Naval Academy Class of 2027 on June 29, marking the beginning of six challenging weeks of basic midshipman training during Plebe Summer.

Approximately 1,200 candidates are selected each year for the Academy's "plebe" or freshman class, and each student is required to participate in Plebe Summer. During this time, plebes have no access to television, movies, the internet, or music and restricted access to cell phones. They are only permitted to make three calls during the six weeks of Plebe Summer.

The pressure and rigor of Plebe Summer is carefully designed to help plebes prepare for their first academic year at the Naval Academy and the four years or challenge that awaits them.

Jonathan Gold

As the summer progresses, the new midshipmen rapidly assimilate basic skills in seamanship, navigation, damage control, sailing, and handling yard patrol craft. Plebes also learn infantry drill and how to shoot 9 mm pistols and M-16 rifles.

Other daily training sessions involve moral, mental, physical, and professional development and team-building skills. Activities include swimming, martial arts, basic rock climbing, and obstacle, endurance, and confidence courses designed to develop physical, mental, and team-building skills. Forty hours are devoted to the instruction of infantry drill and five formal parades.

Founded in 1845, the U.S. Naval Academy is a four-year service academy that prepares midshipmen morally, mentally, and physically to be professional officers in the naval service.

Why women really shop

Women tend to have a reputation of being shopaholics, but post-pandemic shopping habits have exposed the truths that men have spent centuries covering up.

Women learn early on to be the shoppers in the family because it's a survival instinct, not because of a love for shopping.

You think women want to shop? Then explain the popularity of pick-up and delivery services of the day! No, women have always shopped because someone has to do the shopping and women want to prevent men from doing the shopping.

Maybe men can actually go to the store now and pick up that specific item a woman requests. He can do it now, however, because we have the technological capability of snapping a photo of said item and sending it with him.

Yes, there is a difference in all-purpose flour and self-rising flour.

Yes, when you want olive oil that means you do not want canola oil.

I know it's politically incorrect these days to compare genders and generalize on the shortcomings of one of those genders, and my apologies to the men who have mastered the art of shopping and don't fit into the scenario being described here. Some of us women have common ground on this issue, however, and we understand why we just go ahead and do the shopping.

It's not just what we shop for, it's how we shop.

I for one would never miss it if I never again stepped foot in the big box store for groceries. When I go, I make a list a mile long and spend hundreds of dollars. My goal is to not have to return for a few more weeks.

My husband, on the other hand, will decide he needs an item and head to town and get said item. He can repeat that method the next day, and the next. On some days, he will go more than once.

If he does the grocery shopping, you won't find many green items, but there will be plenty of ice cream. He is an amazing cook, though, so I'm certainly not going to complain about those grocery choices. He is working on making meals with less breads and carbs, and adding more fresh vegetables, but I can tell it's a struggle. I think it came as a shock to him the day I lovingly explained, "you know there are other side dishes than ones made with potatoes, right?"

While we may shop differently at my house, I have to admit, there are times when I enjoy hitting the stores with my guy.

The day may be more about Rural King and Lowe's and less about Ulta and women's clothing, but I do have him hooked on Hobby Lobby. I may outlast him in there, but he enjoys spending time looking around, so you know he is a keeper!

The Joy of Ministry

Mission Week provides thousands of hours of service

identify a problem the doctors can “prescribe” a box of food that also includes information about additional food resources. Coleman is not new to Missions Week, saying he believes this was his eighth or ninth year to participate. The week has been held annually since 2012 and was the first project for J.O.Y. Ministries. “Mission Week is a chance to be able to really work hands-on with the people in our community and give back to the community because there’s a lot of things the community has done for me,” he said. “It’s just a great chance to give back and to really shine God’s light into our community and to minister to people.”

While the students are learning to serve others, there’s a network of adults who are there to serve and lead the students throughout the week.

“These are some of the people who helped prepare food for our group: Columbia Baptist, Church of Good News, Trinity Church. Glens Fork Church of Nazarene, Ashton Nixon’s Bible Study, Columbia United Methodist and Kim and Greg Dykes,” Peck said. “It’s only possible because, obviously God, and the community that we serve. Our community is so interwoven in what we do.”

Mission Week is actually the third week of summer camps and non-stop activity for the organization’s volunteers. J.O.Y. Ministries hosts two weeks of day camps for elementary and middle school students prior to Mission Week. They are able to fund the program with support from a grant from Kosair for Kids.

J.O.Y. Ministries’ first mission when the organization was formed was to provide Mission Week but later expanded into offering a food pantry, clothing closet, emergency men’s homeless shelter, women’s homeless shelter and a women’s transitional unit. The organization is currently building a crisis resource center on Burkesville St.

Crisis Center fundraiser continues

A new Crisis Resource Center is under construction and J.O.Y. Ministries continues its fundraising effort to pay for the project.

To date, $325,000 has been raised and another $75,000 is needed.

“We would love for the community to help us raise the last $75,000,” said Hannah Peck, vice president of J.O.Y. Ministries.

Donations may be made online at joy-ministries.org, they may be mailed to P. O. Box 114, Columbia, Ky. 42728, or they may be dropped by the J.O.Y. Ministries office at 116 Public Sq., in the alley by the Columbian Theater.

Meeting will feature textiles in Adair

Early settlers in the Adair County area had no access to store-bought clothing. What they used was made by hand at home.

Some grew flax from which linen was made, some grew cotton, some raised sheep for wool. It was a rare thing for cloth to be imported across the mountains or down the Ohio into this area before the early 1820s.

Even then most families relied upon home-made cloth. The textile industry here was slow to grow but did exist.

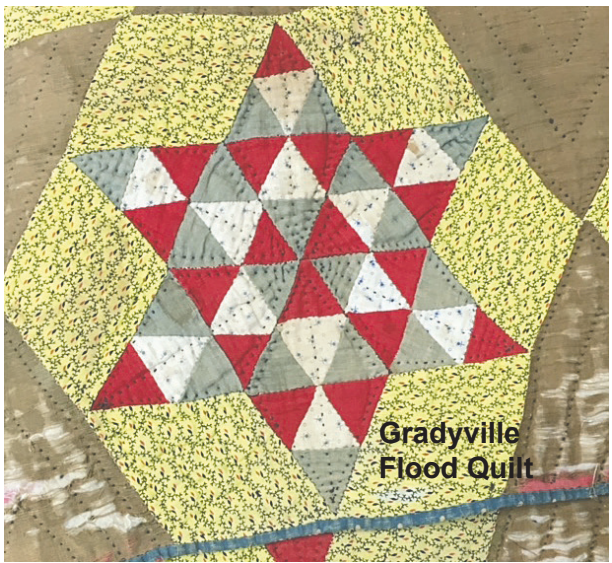

Weaving and quilting were cottage industries that flourished here. Quilting continued into the recent past as a necessity and today is more an art form than a need for comfort.

Most families have or have had treasured textile heirlooms and keepsakes such as quilts, embroidery work, clothing and more. The Adair Genealogy and History Research Center has collected some items in this category and enjoy the comments by those who view them here.

Learn more about early and recent textiles at the next meeting of the Adair County Genealogical Society. This will be an informal meeting with discussion and show-and-tell on Monday, Aug. 7 at 5 p.m. at the Adair Genealogy and History Research Center. Sponsored by the Adair County Genealogical Society and the Adair Genealogy and History Research Center of the Adair County Public Library. For more information email adairgenealogy@gmail.com or call 270-380-1024.
