~YOUR INHERITANCE~

God has built a new home for every person that wants to occupy its residence in heaven. In fact, Jesus refers to it as a mansion. The price of this new eternal home is to accept God's invitation to surrender your life to Jesus Christ, God's Son, and place your daily living with Him committing your trust, your entire life, into the hands that can do more for you than anyone else.

This new home is only for those who will take ownership on God's terms and accept this wonderful inheritance not made by human hands but fashioned by the hands of God, built as a special dwelling place for those that will serve His interest and be committed to live according to the scriptures.

Yet many Americans are committing acts of prostitution with worldly and sinful ways offered by the devil and some aren't close enough to God to realize it. They believe just being a good person is good enough. Not understanding that to live a life of unfaithfulness to God's instructions from His word simply because they ignore it and choose to invest their time in other things. They miss the God that gives them their daily breath.

This grieves the heart of God for He does not wish to reject His people. But God will remain true to His word and sinfulness will be dealt with and there will be a great cost for those who disobey His word. In Ezekiel, chapter 46, the Bible speaks of an inheritance that lasts forever for those that will choose to be servants of God. But many squander this for their own personal interest to live life as they have chosen when God offers a far better future that has been provided. What will you inherit at the end of life?

ASK THE MOTOR MEDICS[®]

Automotive Advice from the Under The Hood[®] Show

Dear Motor Medics,

Guys I've listened to the show for years and I feel I'm well versed in the basics of auto repair so when I was told I had killed my car because of something I had done dozens of times in the past on other vehicles I was concerned. I purchased a used 2010 Toyota Prius Hybrid for the fuel savings and the technology. After a few weeks of driving the battery failed in my driveway and I could not get it started. I figured I would just give it a quick charge then drive to the store to pick up a new battery and that's where it all went bad. I connected my charger for a few hours and then tried to start it, but it would still not run. I then installed a new battery and the car powered on but would not move. I had it towed to the dealer and they inspected it then called me to say that charging the car caused a failure in two of the vehicle computers. They did not tell me why, but I had no choice, so I just fixed it. How can this be?

Thank you,
Chris in Berkley California

Dear Chris,

Chargers can put out 20 volts or more without a load so when connected to a totally dead battery that voltage can destroy the computers. Always verify the proper charging procedure before charging your car to avoid this kind of damage.

Take care,
the Motor Medics

Dear Motor Medics,

I'm all shook up literally. I can't seem to get my car to stop vibrating at all speeds. The problem seems to be worse when I am less than 30mph, but I feel it all the time. Sometimes at low speeds the steering wheel even shakes left to right. The vibration started a few months back and seems to be about the same. My tires are about two years old and have 20k miles on them and appear to be in good shape with no excessive wear. My mechanic said the front-end components all look very good and that my tires are properly balanced. Do you have any thoughts?

Thank you,
Juanita in Sioux Falls South Dakota

Dear Juanita,

It sounds like you may not have a tire balance issue but rather a tire belt issue. You can balance a square tire, really you can, but it will only be smooth on the tire machine. What I'm saying is even if the weight of the tire is balanced out the tread can be irregularly shaped causing a hop or side to side movement when in contact with the road. With the vehicle on the shops hoist ask them to observe the tread of the tire and see if it stays steady as the tire rotates. If it has a lot of movement up and down or side to side, you may have a broken belt which is causing the shaking you are experiencing.

Take care,
the Motor Medics

Dear Motor Medics,

I have a 2014 Ford F350 with the diesel engine 6.7 four-wheel drive and I have been having a lot of issues with my DEF, Diesel Exhaust Fluid System. I purchased the truck new and have been very happy with it but this system has been the cause of a lot of trouble. I had the complete system replaced three times under warranty and had to wait for parts for it for over two weeks due to backorders and now that it is out of warranty they tell me I need another complete system at a cost of over $3k and it is also on backorder possibly for a month. This is a work truck so I cannot wait for parts, but the dash says reduced power and I can't drive it very fast. Is there a way around the system until it can get fixed and do I have to repair it?

Thank you,
Randy in Saint Jo Missouri

Dear Randy,

The Diesel Emissions have started to become problematic on many makes and models. They are awfully expensive to fix and, in some cases, restrict fuel economy and cause drivers to park their vehicles while they wait to be fixed. There is no legal way around the problem right now. Removing or bypassing the systems is against federal law. In the case of one that has less than 100k miles make sure to check with the dealer for extended warranty coverage of the parts as well.

Take care,
the Motor Medics

Dear Motor Medics,

I just purchased a first car for my 16-year-old daughter. She had her heart set on a 2001 VW Beetle. I have listened to your radio show and heard you talk about a used car pre-purchase inspection to make sure you don't get a car needing a lot of expensive repairs and you saved me a lot of cash. We looked at four of these cars and the first one had rust which was a safety issue and the next two had never had a timing belt change at 120k miles and the owners were not willing to drop the price to help us with the $1k belt change cost. The last one was perfect only needing a belt and the owner helped us with the cost of replacing it. It does have a weird clunk in the back every time we come to a stop at about 20 mph it goes thump. It will not do it unless we have been over 65mph first though.

Thank you,
Ben in Waterloo Iowa

Dear Ben,

Great job on the used car inspection. They often reveal cost saving problems. As for the clunk in the back we may have an idea. Some of these cars had an automatic rear spoiler which only deploys at higher road speeds. In town you would not have it deploy but over 60 you should and when you slow to under 30 it retracts and with age, they can become quite noisy.

Take care,
the Motor Medics
