~Retreating Believers~

It seems like now in America we have a people of culture and diversity, a generation that is seeing things that once we considered shameful and gross sin. Much differently today those very things are celebrated as the new tolerance and freedom of expression.

This reminds me of the words in the Bible when the prophet Jeremiah wept and warned the people of the pending judgement and destruction that they were bringing on themselves where Jeremiah said that the people were not ashamed for their actions nor could they even blush.

This generation is becoming so familiar with sin that they think it is funny and exciting. Sin has become common place in all levels of life and with all forms of culture.

A second thought: we have a generation that has been taken captive by sin's masterful grip and its hold seems to be tightening daily. This generation has set their own standards doing what they believe is right in their own way of thinking.

Each day now our culture continues to slip into the darkness of sin's master. Satan is tightening his hold on society until he will squeeze the life right out of it. Many will quietly fall into an eternal abyss.

Only those who will still choose to reach out their hand to Christ and call upon Him have any hope at all. You can't have it both ways yet many think they can.

ASK THE MOTORMEDICS[®]

Automotive Advice from the Under The Hood[®] Show

Dear Motor Medics,

I purchased a 2007 Honda Odyssey van with 80,000 miles and I thought I got a great deal. The used vehicle inspection only had one suggestion, new tires. I took the van to a tire store and they quoted me $2400.00 to replace the tires and I thought I was going to die on the spot. I thought they were out of line when they said I had special PAX tires, so I left the store and was told the same at another. What is this PAX thing and who would ever be willing to pay so much for minivan tires? Can I get rid of them and install regular tires?

Thank you,
Fred in McCook Nebraska

Dear Fred,

Surprise! It feels like they should yell this when you go to get these replaced. Yes they're expensive but they are very different from other tires and that's why they are. These tires were installed on some 05-09 Honda Odyssey, 06-08 Nissan Quest, 06-08 Acura RL, and 05-09 Toyota Sienna vans and some others. The tire is a run flat design allowing you to travel with no air for a limited time. They require special equipment to repair or replace and not every tire store has the equipment. To change to a regular tire requires changing the wheel as well making it very expensive. Either way it will be a jolt to the wallet. Check the internet for more information and options on these tires.

Take care,
the Motor Medics

Dear Motor Medics,

I have a very bad smell when I turn on the blower in my car. It smells like a dirty refrigerator. I must run the system for a few minutes with the windows down before I can stand to sit in the car. This started last year and has progressively become worse. It does not matter if it is set to heat or Air Conditioning. What could this be and how can I get rid of the smell?

Thank you,
Terry in Enid Oklahoma

Dear Terry,

The smell you have is likely exactly what you are describing, the smell of a dirty refrigerator. As you drive with the A/C on water forms on the evaporator inside of the air box and when it is saturated runs out of the box through a tube. You can see this water condensation running on the ground if everything is working correctly. If you don't or have wet carpet you need to have the tube cleaned. When you shut the vehicle off the water can start to mildew like a refrigerator and start to smell. Some vehicles get so bad that they need to be cleaned professionally with a system that introduces an antibacterial cleaner into the intake of the system to clean it up. Check with your local shop to see if they can check the system for proper drainage and if they recommend performing this service to take care of the smell issue you have.

Take care,
the Motor Medics

Dear Motor Medics,

I am on the fence about installing a replacement engine in my Silverado truck or just selling it to a yard for scrap. I have owned it for ten years and really like it and if the engine would not have failed, I would not even think of getting a different vehicle. I have already spent a lot of money on repairs the past two years including a new transmission and brakes and tires to name just a few. When should you keep a vehicle verses scraping one?

Thank you,
Peter in Park Rapids MN

Dear Peter,

We advise people on this subject carefully. In the end it is your decision but here is what we have to offer. First you need to look at the value of your vehicle assuming it had a good running engine. What are those vehicles selling for? Once that is established find out what it will cost to repair yours with a new or low mileage used engine and do some math. Selling a vehicle for scrap is one of the lowest prices you will get and often you can put a used engine in and recover the cost of the engine plus a decent amount for the vehicle when running correctly. You have already put a lot into it, so you know the vehicle well. If your cost to fix it is comparable to buying another similar model vehicle, you are likely better off than buying someone else's problem.

Take care,
the Motor Medics

Dear Motor Medics,

I am a diehard Chevy fan just like my father and his before him and it's time for a new truck and I'm really looking hard at a Dodge diesel truck like my neighbor has. I feel like I am being disloyal to Chevy if I purchase a Dodge, but I really like the towing capacity and the looks of the new ones compared to past models. Being a guy who has never owned one I am concerned about the reliability of them and the service I will get. How do I find out accurate information about them?

Thank you,
Joe in Salina Kansas

Dear Joe,

The tale of Ford VS Chevy VS Dodge and now Toyota and other trucks goes back as far as trucks themselves. Like most of the things we make up our minds about, we need to look, do the research on our own, and make our decisions based on facts. Too many times people hear someone give their opinion about something and take it as fact when often the person the information is coming from does not own the item and may never have had any contact with it. All the trucks offered today by the big manufacturers seem to be decent as judged by what we see hands on in our own shop. Get on the internet and read the forums written by actual consumers of the product and see what they have to say about actual use of them.

Take care,
the Motor Medics
