~ Completely Sufficient ~

Those that want to honor God should excel in everything and lead the way in faith, in speech, in knowledge, having a genuine concern and love for others and to excel especially with a giving heart. Those who sow sparingly will also reap the same way.

But if you will sow generously into the works of God, blessings will come to you as you bless others. But don't give because you have to. God loves a cheerful giver and God delights in those whose heart is in their giving.

God is more than able to bless in fullness no matter the circumstances or regardless of the need. For God is completely sufficient and can provide abundance for every good work. He provides the seed and then the produce and he can multiply seed for more sowing.

God can increase your resources and increase your harvest in righteousness. God will show His goodness, kindness and love that you may be enriched in every way. So that you then may be more generous and always give thanksgiving to God.

Let your act of ministry glorify God by your obedience to the gospel of Jesus Christ. For God is generous to provide to those who are generous to give to the advancing of His kingdom.

ASK THE MOTORMEDICS®

Automotive Advice from the Under The Hood® Show

Dear Motor Medics,

During a recent episode of Under The Hood you were talking about intake gaskets and the failure of them. I have one of those cars that have had them fail twice in an eight-year period. The car is a 2004 Pontiac Grand Prix with a non-supercharged engine. What is it that causes them to fail? I heard you address fixing them but not why they go out.

Thank you,
Sandra in Madison Wisconsin

Dear Sandra,

Many cars have intake gaskets fail after they have been in use for several years, but we tend to see more failures on the v6 non-supercharged General Motors engines in our shop. Now with that said it is important to note that I have friends down south where the climate shifts are not as extreme, and they rarely see this issue. Because we see a greater failure in our cold climate, we must think that it is the cold weather that causes the intake, heads, and the block, to contract and expand at different rates due to their different metal content and this causes extreme wear on the gaskets. This constant movement eventually breaks down the gasket and allows coolant and oil to start to move beyond the block. Combine this with coolant that is not maintained regularly, and the wear can be increased even more so. The best preventative is using the best set of gaskets you can find and regular cooling system service.

Take care,
the Motor Medics

Dear Motor Medics,

How often should I have my brakes checked? I have a 2004 Honda Accord Sedan and as far as I can remember I have never had the brakes replaced. They seem to be working good as far as I can tell but I don't want them to suddenly fail. Do they do that? Suddenly fail without warning. I am one of those drivers that change my oil regularly at the quick lube but never do any preventative maintenance. I just wait for it to break and fix it then to save money. So far, my luck has been good, not even a tune up yet in 80,000 miles knock on wood.

Thank you,
Mark in Bennington Vermont

Dear Mark,

Brakes are nothing to play around with and they should be inspected regularly. In your owner's manual there is a severe service interval for checking these things and it should be followed. If you don't know the condition of your brakes, you need to find out so you can prevent that sudden failure or at the very least an expensive repair. There is much more to the system than just pads, there are hoses and other hardware, and regular maintenance is an important part of keeping repair costs down and safety up. Now aside from the brakes... No other maintenance, not even a tune up? I have two important words that could possibly cost you a bundle in the future. Timing Belt, check it out!

Take care,
the Motor Medics
