Answer: Cooled

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

7		3	4
6		3	5				9	4
								1
				7
8		4	2					3
3							6
				3	2
			6	1				8
		8			9	7

Level: Intermediate

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

~ The Days of Nero are Here ~

Nero was a Roman emperor around 54 A.D. Nero was a self-centered and even ruthless individual at times, especially against Christians. Nero was what some might consider a demonically-driven individual that hated anyone who would challenge his rulership. Nero even became so possessed by darkness in his life that he went as far as to set a good part of Rome on fire and then blame its destruction on the Christian people. He did this to turn the population against the Christians to attack and destroy them.

Today, Nero has returned. When things go wrong, it is blamed on Christians. Christians are called narrowminded. Christians are told that they are intolerant and are haters because their beliefs go against what others want to do. So again, Nero attacks and puts the blame for social problems on the Christians, and their persecution continues to grow as bad situations are made worse.

More and more, the Christian today is being marginalized to the place where their voice will no longer be tolerated- and the Christian will change their views or else pay the price for not doing so. Now some may think it is all not that bad, but look at where we've come from in the last 25 years. Consider what the next 25 hold for this world if it continues at this pace.

ASK THE MOTOR MEDICS®

Automotive Advice from the Under The Hood® Show

Dear Motor Medics,

I have a 2013 Chevy Van and I keep getting moisture on the driver's side floor. I don't know where it's coming from. I thought if you could lead me in the right direction maybe it wouldn't be so costly. I read your column in the Vandalia leader from Vandalia Mo.

Thank you,
Bert in Curryville Missouri

Dear Bert,

To find water leaks it takes some time, and here is one way we do it. Begin by mixing up some very sudsy dish soap in a water bucket. Next start the car and turn the blower to the vent position (Not A/C) and set the blower on high. Close all the windows and doors then pour the mixture around any spot that is joined together like window trim, door seals, bolts that are exposed, etc. If you see air bubbles coming out, then you know you have a leak. A few bubbles around door handles are normal but door seals are not. Once you find the leak it will have to be addressed according to where it is. These vehicles have come to us with leaking windshields and door seals as well. If your vehicle has a sunroof you will want to make sure the drains for the roof are clear of obstructions. The drains are located close to the front edge of the door and on the rear edge of the doors and run from the roof to under the car.

Take care,
the Motor Medics

Dear Motor Medics,

I am ready to purchase a set of new tires for my all-wheel drive car and have thought about purchasing two sets, one for winter and one for summer. I live in an area that does not see a huge snowfall amount each year, but we can get our share of slippery roads and ice. What should I be looking for if I go this route and are there any things you would suggest?

Thank you,
Kate in Oklahoma City

Dear Kate,

On an all-wheel drive car a good set of all-season tires perform very well but many people like yourself want the very best traction they can get so they go with a second set of tires. This requires one of two things, either removing and remounting and balancing the tires every season or a second set of wheels. Both ways have their pros and cons, but we prefer a second set of wheels for the ease of changing and less chance of damage to a tire. There is a one-time cost involved in the wheels though, but sometimes less expensive alternatives can be found for the winter months. You may even go with some fancy after-market units for summer. For driving on ice and snow many manufactures offer a specialized tire that is purpose made and is best used just in the winter months as they wear faster on dry pavement. Ask your tire dealer which is best for you.

Take care,
the Motor Medics

Dear Motor Medics,

My 2004 Tahoe leaks enough oil on the ground that I could start my own refinery. I have had it into my local shop, and they tell me its leaking from the rear main seal and the front seal and timing cover and oil pan and valve covers too. I think that is almost every seal. It also leaks transmission fluid from the front seal and transmission pan. The Tahoe only has 110k miles on her and no rust and basically runs perfect but leaks. I am thinking of replacing the engine to stop the leaks even at 7k dollars its much cheaper than another used vehicle. What are your thoughts.

Thank you,
Joan in Cannon City Colorado

Dear Joan,

We can't stand oil leaks on a good running vehicle but there is no need to jump at a new engine just yet. If it runs great give it a once over checking compression and leak down and if it passes you could pull it and the transmission and reseal everything much cheaper than replacing the engine. While re-sealing, we suggest a new timing chain, valve seals, and drives side valve cover as these are all high failure items. If you can get the oil leaks to all stop you can turn this back into a vehicle that could possibly give you many more years of life from it saving you a lot of money VS replacing the engine in a vehicle with fairly low mileage.

Take care,
the Motor Medics

Dear Motor Medics,

I drive a 2013 Chevy Camaro Rear wheel drive. I wish they made it with AWD like the Dodge Challengers option. This is my only car and since I moved from Texas to Minneapolis two years ago I have been stuck, literally in the snow because its my only car many times. Sometimes I have not even been able to get out of my parking space at work and one time had to leave the car there and take an UBER to my home. I cannot afford to purchase another car at this time, so I need to do something to get better traction. I talked to one tire store who told me that I can by the wide snow tires for over $200 each for the rear but they suggest all four and they say that they do not think it will do much good though. What can I do to help with the traction?

Thank you,
Sharon in Minneapolis Minnesota

Dear Sharon,

Driving a Camaro or another performance vehicle like a Mustang or a Challenger without all-wheel drive can prove to be a tricky situation. We have a Camaro for our Under The Hood radio show as a show car. We have found that not just snow tires but also the narrowest wheels available for the car to match a narrow tire turned our car into a very capable snow machine. Talk with a tire store about both wheels and tires for more traction.

Take care,
the Motor Medics
