~ Accidental Christians ~

The world is full of them, people who follow some or many of the ways of God. People who are at times very obedient and respectful to God's word and do a lot of the things the Bible says to be doing. Most consider themselves followers of God.

They almost accidentally seem to be Christians, exhibiting many of the attributes of what most of the world considers Christians to be, and they respect the Bible. They try to be good people and they even help Christian causes in different forms. These folks even pray at times. A lot of these people would never intentionally try to dishonor God but would show respect even too many of God's ways, it would seem, because of their good deeds.

Yet God's word points out the greater importance of having a born-again experience. Each person has to have a personal relationship with Jesus. They must repent of their sins and live accordingly, not just a part of God's word, but to do their very best to obey, serve and live it out daily. Not just now and then.

There are many that truly believe they are Christians yet without any real knowledge of God or a real commitment to God first. But only as it serves them in a humanistic form of believing right and wrong, good or evil, and accepting much of what they believe over what the reality of God's word is.

ASK THE MOTOR MEDICS®

Automotive Advice from the Under The Hood® Show

Dear Motor Medics,

I took my 2012 GMC Yukon into my local mechanic because the brake pedal had become lower to the floor over a weeks' time. Eventually it ended up on the floor and the red brake warning light came on and the ABS warning light. After they looked it over, I was told that every brake line on the vehicle made of steel needs to be replaced due to the rust. The total cost of replacing all these brake lines is over 2000 and I also need front and rear brakes which will add another 600 or so. Is this a common failure? The vehicle has absolutely no rust anywhere on it and I can't understand why the brake lines rusted so badly.

Thank you,
Jerry in Trent South Dakota

Dear Jerry,

This is a very common problem on many cars and trucks. More so with GM vehicles, at least in our area of the country. The metals used to make the brake lines have been reacting in a bad way to the new chemicals on the roads to treat ice in the winter months. This reaction has caused brake lines to be completely rusted away to the point of failure while other body parts are not nearly as affected. The line sets are not too spendy but the labor to install them is intense, taking an entire day. It is a safety concern and should not be patched. Do it right.

Take care,
the Motor Medics

Dear Motor Medics,

I have a 2015 Jeep Patriot that my daughter uses to drive back and forth to school with. The vehicle has 70k miles on it and seems to be in great shape other than a transmission hot warning light that comes on only when the vehicle has been driving on the highway for more than 30 minutes. If she slows down or stops for a few minutes the light goes off until she gets going again for a few miles. We assume since there are no other issues aside from the light that it must be a false light. What do you think?

Thank you,
Patricia in Branson Mo.

Dear Patricia,

Stop driving this on the highway until you get this sorted out. Based on what we see in our shop alone our suspicion is that it is getting hot and if it is there is damage being done each time. What we see is that the transmission cooler becomes restricted either due to clutch material from the transmission normal wear or a internal failure in the cooler. When this happens, the cooler can no longer keep the fluid cool when the loads are high such as on the highway. The side effect of the excessive heat is transmission damage which will result in a complete rebuild or replacement with a certified used unit and a new cooler. Have your mechanic verify the actual temperature of the transmission after it has been in the highway and make repairs.

Take care,
the Motor Medics

Dear Motor Medics,

My name is Clarence I live in Entiat WA, and I listen to your Under The Hood show on podcast. I am rebuilding a 2.0 Liter engine out of a 1976 VW bus. This engine is a solid lifter engine and I've heard I need to use a Zink additive to protect the engine but is there anything other than good oil that will help extend the life of my rebuild? It's an air-cooled engine so it does run a little hotter than your normal car engine. Thanks for the show, I enjoy it very much. I recently found it on radio and I'm 1/2 way through the archived podcasts and look forward to my drive to work every day to be able to listen to the show

Thank you,
Clarence in Entiat Washington

Dear Clarence,

Those old VW engines were fun to work on. We still get a fair amount of email and calls about them. You are right on track with the zinc additive or the ZDDP replacement additive. All engines can benefit from the high-pressure wear protection that the ZDDP additive provides but in the case of older engines without roller camshafts like the ones found in this VW and older hot rods and collector cars it is a must or parts like the camshaft will wear quickly and can destroy the engine. The additive found at parts stores and a good quality oil should help it to last.

Take care,
the Motor Medics

Dear Motor Medics,

Hello gents. I've been listening to your Under The Hood radio show podcast down here in Australia for a few months now and figured I've got nothing to lose by contacting you. I have a 1997 BMW E36 323i with 172.000km imported from England. My problem is I have no hot air from the heater. Only ambient temperature or ice-cold air conditioning. Can you help me? It gets mighty cold down here. Thanks heaps guys!

Thank you,
Jason in Werribee Victoria Australia

Dear Jason,

Thanks for listening down there! For some reason we here in the states don't always think about how cold it gets in Australia but we're sure you do with no heat. Even though you have a BMW, and the steering wheel is on the other side of the dash, the problem you have is relative to all cars. You need to have hot water running through the heater core and air directed through it without bypassing so that it warms the interior. Our first step is to verify the engine thermostat keeps the engine at proper temp and if not, you must fix that first. Second, make sure the air door opens and closes in the dash. This can take a little you tube research to find and check. Third, the core needs to be clean. You can try to flush it with a garden hose both directions several times and if that helps, it indicates you have a restricted core.

Take care,
the Motor Medics
