~ Not Challenged ~

Christianity will never make lasting progress among the lost population of our nation except through the influence of spirit-led revival.

Revival will not come by adding another program to the church's agenda. Revival will not show up because of a carefully crafted ministry outreach event or by building a new addition to the church building.

As long as prayer is neglected and the devil is not challenged- as long as sin is allowed to go unchecked and God's word is not enforced through serious prayer, fasting and obedience- then revival will fall short.

You see when Jesus shows up everything changes. When God is allowed to be God among the followers of Jesus, life's outlook begins to change.

When Jesus comes, everything changes; when there is a deep enough need in a person's heart, Jesus shows up and does what He knows is the Father's will in a matter.

Backslidden Christians cannot make a real spiritual difference in the world until they get the worldliness out of their own lives. Today's American church needs a revival of repentance and restoration.

ASK THE MOTOR MEDICS®

Automotive Advice from the Under The Hood® Show

Dear Motor Medics,

The water has been coming and coming around here lately and I have been trying to detour around the flooded areas but after watching others drive through the water, I figured it was ok so I started driving my car through the same areas thinking that if they could get through in a car, I should be able to as well safely. Well after driving through water just barely above the bottom of my bumper my car died just as I got to the other side, and it just clicks when I try to start it. I have taken it to a shop who say the engine is destroyed and must be replaced. How can all these other cars drive right through in deeper water than I did, and they are fine but when I drove through shallower water I need a new engine?

Thank you,
Mike in Redwood Falls Minnesota

Dear Mike,

No amount of standing water is safe. You just don't know what's waiting under it. Even if the car in front of you makes it through you just don't know. Cars are all different. Some have air intakes which draw their air from below the bumper up into the engine and others have them very high. If you have a car with a low air intake, then what you have essentially is a high horsepower shop vac. It only takes a partial cup of water to hydro lock an engine and destroy it.

Take care,
the Motor Medics

Dear Motor Medics,

I have a 2016 Honda Odyssey van with the touring package. Over the past few years, we have had to recharge the air conditioning system each spring and this past year it was both spring and late summer. At a couple hundred dollars a shot we decided to find the cause of the leak which had not been easy to spot until it had become so large. Our mechanic says there are rock holes in the lines going to the rear of the van where they are exposed. The cost is more than $2000 to install new lines. Is there any other way to repair it? They say they can install a rear block off kit but we have kids and must have the rear air working.

Thank you,
Jeff in Nebraska City

Dear Jeff,

You have options with this one and so does anyone with a rear ac line set leaking as long as you can access the damage part of the line set and there is some good material on each side of the damaged area. We use ac line repair kits in our shop as do many others. We cut out the damaged section and install fitting on the good portion of the line set then connect them with ac hose. This has been a permanent repair for us many times and usually saves the customer hundreds if not more on a rear ac line repair. Ask around.

Take care,
the Motor Medics

Dear Motor Medics,

I have a 1999 Ram 1500 truck with a V8 engine. The truck started to make a squealing noise after I would start the engine and let it run for about 30 seconds. The noise is always there and sounds more like a whistle than a squeal. I tried two different shops but neither one has found the cause. It does it with the belts removed form the front but does go away if you take off the engine oil cap while its running. They can't seem to find the cause of why that would happen. Do you have any ideas? It's a clean old truck with only 90k miles on it.

Thank you,
Herbert in Sioux City Iowa

Dear Herbert,

Sounds to us like it is a case of failed intake manifold gaskets. Even if the truck does not leak coolant or leak on the top of the intake it can still pull air from underneath. This can lead to oil usage and a noise caused by extra suction inside of the engine due to the intake ports being open to the crankcase. If there is internal suction with the PCV valve removed, then you can bet that there is an intake leak. It would need to be torn down for further inspection. Talk to your local shop about this and see if they agree. If it is leaky intake gaskets, make sure to flush the coolant and replace the thermostat while doing the job.

Take care,
the Motor Medics

Dear Motor Medics,

I have a 2014 GMC Acadia with a 3.6 engine. The vehicle has 95k miles on it and has always run great and has been well maintained. We take it in for oil changes every time the light says its due and we have it looked over at that time. It started making a noise about 200 miles ago and the check engine light then started flashing as we drove, and it has become underpowered. We stopped at a local auto parts store, and it had several misfire codes and a crank/cam correlation error. What do these things mean and is it expensive to repair?

Thank you,
Clark in Williamsport PA.

Dear Clark,

You have a problem here Clark. The codes you have combined with the noise and the flashing check engine light almost always lead us to failure of the engine timing system or what are called timing chains. They will become loose over time and jump teeth, so the cam and crank shafts are no longer in sync which causes misfire, noise and engine damage. The most important thing is to stop driving the vehicle immediately and seek help from a qualified repair shop. If the timing has not jumped too far it can be repaired with new timing components. It's not cheap but it is cheaper than a new vehicle. The cause of almost all failures of this type is lack of oil changes. These like 3mo or 3k miles.

Take care,
the Motor Medics
