~ Dangerous Living ~

God loves every person but not every person loves God. Sin is eternally dangerous to every person, and God has made the way- the only way- to save men and women from hell at the end of their lives.

While God loves everyone, not everyone really loves God. God gave Jesus, His Son, as the one that made eternal life available for all that will accept it on God's terms.

The main reason people reject God's offer is because people do not really want to change. Many people love their lifestyles. They don't want to change how they are living and continue to eat, drink and be merry.

Actually, most like the darker side of life, the pleasures of the flesh. They are more concerned with going to parties and spending their money on themselves. They determine what is important or right and wrong.

God does not ever send people to hell. Rather, people set themselves up by the lifestyles they choose to live.

ASK THE MOTORMEDICS®

Automotive Advice from the Under The Hood® Show

Dear Motor Medics,

I have a 2020 Ram 1500 with a 5.7 engine, and it has an exhaust leak. This is the second time this has happened. During the warranty period it started leaking and the dealership took care of the problem at no charge. This time my mechanic found that both sides were leaking where last time it was only the passenger side. I was not prepared for how expensive the repair was quoted for and as the job progressed it became more expensive as bolts broke off and had to be drilled and welded to get them extracted. The extra work added four hundred dollars to the bill. I felt like it was a little unfair since they looked at it and told me what it should cost. Is this common to have these manifolds warp and fail so often and what do you think about the added cost?

Thank you,
Mike in Canton South Dakota

Dear Mike,

These manifolds are very common to fail and fail again. They have failed so often that we regularly see these manifolds out of stock, and we must wait to get ahold of them. Repeat failures are common and more so when the vehicle is used for towing or driven hard. Once they fail if left leaking the bolts will become increasingly harder to remove. It is very important to fix them as soon as possible and bolts that don't come out easily are not the mechanics fault.

Take care,
the Motor Medics

Dear Motor Medics,

Hi guys, I'm having issues with my tail lamps. One side of my 2009 Chevy Tahoe has no brake, tail, or back up light while the other side has no taillight. I do have working license plate lights. I have checked all the fuses that I can find using my owner's manual and found no blown fuses. I tried using YouTube and found no help. Do you have any ideas about how to fix these lights?

Thank you,
Barry in Michigan

Dear Barry,

Checking any electrical issue is a simple matter of do you have power at the light and good ground or not. If you don't, we start at the fuses and if they are good, we move to the light and work our way back until we find where the power has been lost. The most common issue on this model vehicle is either a broken wire in the taillight harness near the light or corrosion at the connector. The taillight harnesses are readily available at most parts stores and are fairly easy to install. If there is any signs of corrosion or burnt sockets they should be replaced. If the lights still don't work, then work your way back down the lighting harness towards the front. Usually when we are working on these, we find a wire that has been corroded where it was chaffed which caused a failure. We then splice the wire with a waterproof connector.

Take care,
the Motor Medics

Dear Motor Medics,

I have a 2014 Ford F-150 and the headlights feel poor to me. I have gone the route of brighter Led headlight bulbs and even installed a off road light bar to help. Adding these lights has only got me one thing. Well, two things, two tickets. People started flashing their lights at me all the time and I started flashing them back because I didn't have my high beams on. I got one ticket for the off-road light bar and one for flashing a police officer. Is there anything I can do to get better lights?

Thank you,
Jack, in Cleveland Ohio

Dear Jack,

Headlights are a bit of a sore spot for us because of the ever-growing number of non-road legal lights being used. We drive to work every day and see no less than ten vehicles that have blinding non legal lights not to mention the ones who just don't feel they have to dim their factory lights. Two cars headed for each other at speeds over 65 MPH both blinding each other is not smart. Changing bulbs to LED in a standard housing is not legal and will blind others so are the off-road light bars. To get better light and keep everyone safe look into companies like Morimoto who offer DOT Legal headlight housings. Yes, they cost good money, but you will see much better and not cause safety issues with other drivers. These lights often are better than some very high-end cars. Those cheap Amazon units tend to be poor.

Take care,
the Motor Medics

Dear Motor Medics,

I have a 2014 Toyota Prius that has been giving me issues lately. Sometimes it will die going down the road and display a Hybrid System Failure warning on the dash and other times it will fail to start. It seems like the colder it is outside the more it fails to start. It does nothing when the power button is pushed but all the lights come on normally and the light says ready on the dash. I have taken it into a shop twice, but it always starts for them. They had me replace the 12-volt battery in the back hatch area because it was low but that made no difference. Do you have any ideas of what may be wrong?

Thank you,
Chris, in Vermont

Dear Chris,

What you are describing could be caused by many things but one of the most common issues is a dying high voltage battery. The high voltage battery is responsible for powering the electric drive motor and for starting the car. The car is not equipped with a regular type of starter. As you drive the car this battery pack is constantly being discharged and recharged and only has so many cycles in its life. A shop should be able to test the voltage with a scanner. Many independent shops can also replace the battery if necessary.

Take care,
