Look up in downtown Buffalo

to find vacation rental lofts

By Joy Beamer joyb@buffaloreflex.com

he Lofts on Maple are open for rent to experience a get-a-way close to home or accommodate the wedding venues' guests, tourists, friends or family.

Thomas and Kelli Mathews bought the old Maple Street Grill property in August 2021 and wrapped up renovations on the first two lofts in February 2022. The long climb to the second floor leads to beautiful spaces accommodating four people each. Vacationers can rent the lofts together or separately.

Reviewers are commenting, including the following:

This is the absolute best place to stay! The unit is beautiful! Bed and pillows are soft and comfortable. If you want somewhere quiet... this is it! I stayed during the winter storm, my car got plowed in, the owners were extremely helpful and shoveled my car out. You don't get that from just anyone. The snacks were perfect after a long day at work. I highly recommend here, and will be staying in the future!

Christy February 2022

My husband and I loved our stay at the Lofts on Maple (unit 1)! It is beautifully decorated and has everything you could need for a night's stay. There was even a couple of different breakfast options for us in the morning along with some other snacks and water in the fridge! All of our communication with Kelli and Thomas was polite and effective. Would highly recommended for anyone staying in Buffalo!

ElizabethDecember 2021

The couple and volunteer family and friends helped in the renovation work. After several months of clean-up, restoration and interior design, the space is shaping up. The rental studios will leave a good impression on all who visit Buffalo. The Mathews did most of the work themselves and hired professionals for electrical and plumbing.

The couple wants to shop locally as much as possible. Joe's Hardware was vital in keeping them stocked with items they needed for the renovation. Kelli said they would send a photo of what they required to fit and that Joe's would have it ready. Even the paint supply shortage was not a problem because Joe's kept stocked with all their needed supplies.

It took four strong men to move this bank door into position. The door was found when renovating, which led to the original bank building next door, now OakStar Bank.

They wanted a pull-out couch in the first suite to accommodate two more visitors. A short walk across the street to Chapman's Furniture enabled them to shop local and Chapman's deliver. Delivery of large items is no small task. If anyone has moved a sofa sleeper, knowing the extreme weight and awkwardness of moving is exasperating even for the strong and young. Yet, Chapman's came through and carried the couch up the steep, long staircase up to the lofts.

for professional photographers and many graduating seniors are adding this wall to their collection.

The couple rents the spaces on Airbnb with a clear warning that accessibility is limited because of the stairs and there is no elevator. However, the unique climb lends itself to the feeling you've entered an enchanted get-away from the hustle and bustle of life

As they finished the second room, they needed another couch. So, yet again, Chapman's hoisted up the second couch to finish the second room. That's hard-core shopping local and service.

Both spaces have a queensize bed and the sofa sleepers accommodate four people. Children are welcomed, too. Each room has a large television and WiFi with Netflix. In addition, each space has a kitchenette providing a Keurig, microwave, mini-refrigerator with coffee, tea and snacks. Each suite is self-contained and secure or a family can rent both spaces. Entry to the units is keyless.

the space. Many doors have the original crank window above the doors for fresh air and circulation. A mural is painted on the south wall brick that reads BUFFA-LO, MISSOURI. The words appear as if painted on the walls in the past, lending a historical feel to the space.

Original baseboards and fixtures are used when possible. The owners considered updates and renovations carefully at each planning stage.

The second studio is pastel pink and white creating a light and airy feel. They discovered the room was initially pink and wanted to keep the original theme. Many of the fixtures in this room are original.

The bathroom boasts a huge tub for soaking and restoring the soul. The glass block window allows the morning light to drift in and makes a relaxing space for a morning bubble bath.

The third space will be renovated next and will hold eight overnight guests. The larger area is more like an apartment. Although it is now covered in dust and work is in progress, it is easy to imagine the kitchen and living space and the bedrooms fitting in with the rest of The Lofts on Maple.

Many want to know what is going in on the bottom floor. Easy answer: The Mathews don't know yet. They don't want to act hastily and want to plan something that would enhance the downtown and be profitable.

Kelli tells us that she has some bookings into November 2022 and receives inquiries frequently. They've been open a month and believe they've found their niche.

While Thomas works at Walmart and BOSS Detailing, Kelli is a stay-at-homemom with five children aged three to 21. The lofts and the renovations are a family affair. They all work together and spend many nights above the downtown square. All the children love the project, help with the work and are excited about the business.

The couple loves to rent spaces like The Lofts on Maple as they vacation. So when she saw that the building was for sale, they fell in love with the building and started to plan on making a dream come true. They thought the space above the old restaurant would make for a unique vacation experience in rural Missouri. With a shortage of hotel space for the wedding industry in Buffalo, they felt clients would naturally seek an Airbnb property.

The spaces can be used for bridal showers, the weekend for wedding parties, overnight stays, or a romantic get-a-way for couples. Photographers rent the area by the hour because the decor and original walls lend themselves to unique photos. Regional photographers rent out the space for photoshoots.

The tub has been used for boudoir shots for brides to their fiancee. Baby photos and senior photographs have been taken in the lofts too.

Studio rentals are available during the day when the rooms are not rented out. To book, call 417-733-4238 or message the owners on Facebook.

Kelli's favorite part is making the bookings and working with the clients. She has the gift of hospitality and is a natural encourager. She might have been an interior designer if she had not been a home school mother. Kelli has an excellent eye for details and impactful spaces.

When she saw the bold skylight in the upstairs of the building, she claimed that space for her office immediately. The skylight brightens the room even on a cloudy day. There is no light fixture added in her office.

The next project is to finish the outside. They painted the awning copper last fall and planned to finish painting and clean up the alley behind the property. After that, the outside of the building will look fresh and match the splendor of the studios above.

Later in the year, the couple plans to host an open house so that local people can view the real estate. They are happy to show the lofts to anyone who wants to see them. Anyone can inquire by sending a note on Facebook Messenger or by calling 417-733-4238.

The light from the tall windows only enhances the original fixtures and molding to Suite 1. They found the pink walls and wanted to keep them close to the original. The owners matched the paint and accessories to the actual color when the renovation started.

The queen bed and pull-out couch will accommodate up to four guests.

(Excerpt from "A Concise History of South Benton Township by Thelma "Tess" Kurtz)

ong before the white explorers and trappers discovered the Ozarks, there were roving tribes of Indians fishing the clear sparkling streams, hunting the wooded hills for wild game and waterfowl, and camping in villages or caves along the Niangua and Osage Rivers.

According to Otto E. Rayborn, historian, there were 15 different tribes living in the Ozarks during the period between 1541 and 1831. Two of the tribes were called legal landowners.

The Osage, who claimed ownership of all the Ozarks between the Missouri River on the north and the Arkansas River on the south, and the Cherokees who claimed all the southern Ozarks from the Arkansas River on the north to the Gulf of Mexico and eastward to the Carolinas and Georgia.

The Cherokees were forcibly removed from their eastern claims and the Trail of Tears crossed our area in 1838. According to the "Heritage of the Cherokee" by Mark Miller, the trail ended at a sheltered valley near the Illinois River at what is now Tahlequah, Okla., where they have reconstructed a 17th century village called Tsa La Gi (Trail of Tears). They were escorted by Federal troops armed with guns and bayonets while their belongings were hauled by government-employed wag-

Their belongings were lost, stolen or discarded along the way. Hundreds died along the trail, but there were no accounts of conflict between Indians and settlers along the way. It is interesting to note the Yunger

River (now known as Niangua) was referred to by the Cherokees as Ne-on-guah which translates to mean "I won't go."

The Osage Indians were described by early settlers as the tallest of all the Indians, between six and seven feet. They were handsome, fearless, athletic and very proud. This description would fit the Osage chieftain who, dressed in tribal regalia, attended the dedication of the Ha Ha Tonka State Park on June 10, 1979. He made a speech at that time and said, "The land you dedicate today is Osage land. It was purchased from a country having no right to sell it (France) which had taken it from a country having no right to give it (Spain), and no treaty nor sale had ever been made with the rightful owners, the Osage."

According to Dr. Clark Chapman in his book "Indian and Archaeology of Missouri," there were three tribes of the Osage Nation living along the Niangua and Osage Rivers (1803). They were: The Great Osage (500 warriors), the Little Osage (250 warriors), and the Arkansas band (600 warriors) led by Chief Big Foot and ranging into Arkansas. These Indians lived in villages, farmed land and were less warlike than many others.

Many artifacts have been plowed up where Indian villages once stood and crops were planted. Indian names still identify rivers, parks, mans townsites and areas

Today after countless scout groups, school groups, conservationists, visitors hiking along trails and over a century and a half has passed, there are still arrowheads to be found.

Free Rabies Vaccination Clinic coming in June

Coffee with a Cop serves up hot coffee on April 13

In June, Chris Twitchel, Buffalo police chief, is planning a free rabies vaccination clinic and microchip event for animals.

In Buffalo, animals must register with the city during June each year. The vaccination clinic will make registration easy during the four-hour program. In addition, free vaccines will be offered to animals and microchipping to help promote responsible pet ownership.

Twitchel wants to provide everything he can to give people the opportunity to take care of their animals. He has started lining up donations and the program costs will not be the city's responsibility.

Currently, there is an animal nuisance in the city with stray animals in almost every neighborhood and owners who are not taking care of the animals; after the first warning to the pet owner, tickets for ordinance violations are written to control strays. Steps are underway to control the problem.

More details will follow in the newspaper from Twitchel as the event draws nearer.

Donut Race

String donuts, enough for one for each player, on a long rope and attach between two trees or two people holding the ends. The competitors' race to see who can eat and swallow their donut first. Even if a person loses, they still win a donut.

Pillowcase Races

Try a pillowcase instead because households may not have potato sacks to play a favorite family game. Also, Easter egg hunt races can use up energy from all the candy the children will find hidden in the eggs.

Easter Egg Walk

Instead of the walking race with an egg on a spoon, try a plastic plate instead and watch the race get wild.

Rain, Rain, Go Away

Buy disposable shower caps and cheap shaving cream. Pair contestants up. Then, one will wear the shower cap and apply shaving cream all over their head. Next, separate the pairs giving the uncapped player a bowl of popcorn or Cheetos and toss on the cap of shaving cream. The one with the most on the cap wins.

Easter Egg Skyscrapers

After the egg hunt is over, opened and treats eaten, have a race to see which child can stack the half shells on top of each other to the highest point before it falls over. You may want to set a time on this one.

Fiction

"Gwendy's Final Task" by Stephen King. When Gwendy Peterson was twelve, a mysterious stranger named Richard Farris gave her a mysterious box for safekeeping. It offered treats and vintage coins, but it was dangerous. Pushing any of its seven colored buttons promised death and destruction. Years later, she's a successful novelist and a rising political star and evil forces seek to possess the button box.

"Along the Rio Grande" by Tracy Peterson. Recently widowed Susanna Jenkins has decided to follow her family to San Marcial, New Mexico, for a fresh start and to aid in her family's sudden change in fortune. They are tasked with managing her uncle's new Grand Hotel, and it takes all her patience to try to help her

"Woman on Fire" by Lisa Barr. After talking her way into a job with Dan Mansfield, the leading investigative reporter in Chicago, rising young journalist Jules Roth is given an unusual—and very secret—assignment. To locate Ernst Engel's famous work, "Woman of Fire" that was stolen by Nazis years earlier. World-renowned shoe designer Ellis Baum wants this portrait of a beautiful, mysterious woman for deeply personal reasons, and has enlisted Dan's help to find it. But Jules doesn't have much time; the famous designer is dying.

"The Darkest Place" by Phillip Margolin. Robin Lockwood is an increasingly prominent defense attorney in the Portland community. A Yale graduate and former MMA fighter, she's becoming known for her string of innovative and successful defense strategies. As a favor to a judge, Robin takes on the pro bono defense of a reprehensible defendant charged with even more reprehensible crimes. But what she doesn't know-what she can't know-is wish I had a nickel for every time I heard a Dallas Countian say, "There's nuthin' to do here." I call it -- 'BULL.'

EnJOYable JOURNEY

Nuthin' to do! — I beg your pardon.

While Buffalo does not offer as much as a large Missouri city, there is a significant event or program every month on the calendar. By following along with the news in the Buffalo Reflex, we cover and announce most of the events. Dallas County offers much more than it did a decade ago.

There is a cooperative spirit among the businesses, city and county government and the school. This spirit is a substantial motivator to the community pulling together to try new things, opening new companies and instilling community pride.

Let's look at how citizens can attend, be involved as a participant or become a leader.

Events

- The Buffalo Downtown Association sponsors the annual Buffalo Art Walk and Craft Fair, free and open to the public, on May 7. Artists and crafters can participate for a small fee for a booth space.
- The Mom Prom is a fundraiser that raises funds for school supplies for the Dallas County R-1 students. The Beau Fournier Memorial Fund provides every student's school supply needs.
- The Dallas County Fair happens yearly at the end of June. There are several days of opportunities for the agriculture families to shine as children show their animals and compete for the top listing.

- The Louisburg Picnic, also known as The Old Settler's Reunion, enjoys a big crowd every year. Attendees worldwide come home to enjoy fish sandwiches and old-fashioned carnival.
- Old Home Place Concert Series offers up well-known coffee house/folk singers in a live performance at Maple and Main coffee house each month.
- SWMO Celtic Festival is one of the region's best Celtic festivals and Highland Game events held each September.
- Hillbilly and Hot Rods have been a weekend on the square throwback event. Eagle Machine organizes the event several times throughout the warm season and car enthusiasts attend from across the region.
- HarFest is a new fall event that celebrates Dallas County's people and heritage sponsored by New Hope Baptist Church.
- The Dallas County Alumni holds the Dallas County pageants for all ages of young women and sponsors class reunions each year.
- Holiday Open Houses is an event that happens the first Friday of Nov. to kick off holiday shopping and shop local first.
- The Christmas Parade sponsored by the Buffalo Area Chamber of Commerce brings the community together to celebrate the holiday season.

- Urbana also assembles a Christmas parade and various community events.
- There are year around sporting events to watch at all area schools.

How many rural towns can claim an ax-throwing venue, Axtreme? Buffalo Bowl has leagues and open bowl. In addition, student sporting leagues are organized by the YMCA, city and private clubs throughout the year.

The YMCA and Iron Knights Gym offers exercise classes and equipment to strengthen and improve health. In addition, the walking trails, swimming pool, multiple playgrounds for children, frisbee golf, a pickle-ball court, skateboard park and ball fields are available to keep the family busy all the time.

Agriculture enthusiasts enjoy the Kropf Feed toy museum inside the feed store featuring tractors and farm implements, all brands—most years.

Those who like a slower pace can use Dallas County Library and read and research their interests. Genealogists can go to the Buffalo Head Prairie Historical Park and use the library for family research.

Shopping

Boutiques, collectives, flea markets, Amish/Mennonite retail stores, agriculture stores, various styles of restaurants, grocery and discount stores make it hard to need to go out of town for general shopping.

The wedding industry is booming in Buffalo, with multiple venues to accommodate all sizes of weddings and similar events. AirBnB's are popping up also to enhance accommodations for this wedding industry growth. With plush accommodations, there is more reason to invite friends and family to experience rural life in Dallas County.

Organizations

The school offers a club or sport for every interest. Teenagers have no excuse to be bored with the wide variety of sponsored clubs.

Adults have the opportunity to join many civic organizations, including the Buffalo Garden Club, Kiwanis, Rotary, DIVAS, Buffalo Area Chamber of Commerce, Buffalo Downtown Association, Habitat for Humanity, Buffalo and Urbana Saddle Clubs, Dallas County Cattlemen, Long Lane and Louisburg Lions Clubs, Dallas County Shriners, Sheriff's posse, Gideon Camp and the Dallas County Historical Society, Volunteer opportunities abound, from reading to elementary students at school to working at New to You Resale Shop or the Engles Resale Shop.

The Montgomery Senior Center serves meals during the week and prepares the food for Meals on Wheels. In addition, a variety of activities are planned each week and special occasion events for seniors.

Veterans can participate in several organizations, including the DAV, VFW, American Legion and AMVETS. In addition, each year, the town honors the veterans with a parade and the schools hold special assemblies.

Churches are established throughout the county in almost every denomination. Many churches have the doors open throughout the week serving their community and worshin

Yep, there is nuthin' to do in Dallas County—if nuthin' means everything under the sun.

Why am I getting this Reflex in the mail

thought I would write this column to welcome and inform any new readers that received this partial copy of the Reflex in your mailbox and to remind our subscribers and weekly readers that we strive to make your community newspaper something you appreciate and look forward to weekly,

One long time subscriber once told me that she always went to her mailbox on Wednesdays to get her copy of the Reflex, even in the snow and rain. Other mail on other inclement days could wait until the weather cleared up, but not on Wednesdays. We love to hear such positive comments, but we also welcome criticism. That is an indication that there are things we can improve

Another subscriber told us that she reads "every word" from the front of the newspaper to the last page except the sports section. And then I know readers who get the paper for their favorite part you guessed it — the sports section. In my opinion, no one covers high school sports, or any sporting event, like our former editor and longtime sports enthusiast, Paul Campbell. We're so fortunate he chose to only semi-retire and continue his superior job of sports commentary. He may be getting older (just like all of us) but he isn't getting rusty. If anything, he still shines like he just came off the assembly line.

For those of you who like the behind the scenes in the special features, Andrew Jenkins, our copy editor, is also ace number one. That young man is an expert at proofreading. If you ever find a mistake in the paper, I'm sure it's my fault because he combs articles and page layout with a fine-tooth comb. He is also our go-to man for editorial composition questions. He has a Masters of Arts degree in journalism from the University of Missouri, and he really knows his stuff. I rely heavily upon him to fill up the paper with interesting content from outside sources.

Every week when the paper comes out, we like to bring some "Joy" into your life. Joy Beamer has been a substantial part of the Reflex for nearly 30 years. She has performed every aspect of the community newspaper business from customer service to layout to ad building to writing features. There have been many readers who have told me they were so glad she finally stepped out from behind the office's clerical desk and into covering the happenings of Buffalo and Dallas County, because she does it with empathy and integrity.

duties of office manager and Kim Gronniger retired, we needed someone to greet our customers in the front office and on the phone. Of course that is not all Jessica Climer does at the Reflex, but whatever she does, she does it with the utmost pleasant attitude. Jessica adds a little sunshine to everybody's day, and she feels a special duty to offer the best customer service she can.

Our advertising manager Monica Stewart will assist businesses and individuals with advertising needs. She can help you determine an advertising plan that will fit your advertising budget. Discussing with Monica your best approach to draw new customers or how advertising in the paper can boost business, she can share with you tactics that have worked well for others. Hard copy advertising in small communities is still beneficial and a good way to appeal to a target audience.

Local wedding venues trade ownership during the pandemic

ara Rigger and her family are becoming the new wedding moguls for Dallas County. In March 2020, Rigger and her family purchased Timber Line Barn from Chad and Nichole Bryan, the start of COVID-19 and the nationwide business shutdown. Unfortunately, the first wedding was not until May 2020, but they finished the first year out with 35 marriages.

The Bryans offered the industrial venue to Rigger for a second wedding venue last year. Rigger felt it was not good timing in 2021, but the couple said yes with confidence in 2022. So the Rigger family decided to take the leap and purchase the Market 116 Industrial Wedding Venue and the Gathering Place.

The Bryans changed the first Market 116 storefront to an event meeting space after the store moved to the old Woods building. The Gathering Room serves smaller events, parties, showers and small gatherings, seating up to 125 people. The Gathering Place sits on the square where the original Market 116 opened before moving to the Woods building. The three wedding/event spaces are available for all sizes of weddings and gatherings.

The most significant change the public will see is the name change to the downtown wedding venue. The new name is The James Industrial Wedding Venue.

The big question around town is why "The James?" Hearts will melt after reading this heartwarming story.

James Junior Rigger is Tara's grandfather, who is 95 years old. He is a respected icon in his hometown, West Plains.

His life has many twists and turns. First, he lost his mother to the childbirth of his last brother. Also, his father died suddenly, leaving the 14-year-old to care for his younger brothers. After about a year, social services found out about the situation and came and placed the boys in separate homes.

At 15, he left to find his way in the world, working odd jobs along the way. He grew up through the depression and the war had begun in Europe.

He knew if he joined the army, he would have food and shelter. Also, the army had to be easier than trying to live independently with odd jobs at a young age. He was not afraid of work,

James Rigger has lived a humble life and leads his family in values and heart. Picture in the frame is James and wife, Phyllis Rigger on their wedding day, July 28, 1947. They were married for 66 years when Phyllis passed away in 2013.

but stability was looking pretty good. So to become a World War II veteran, James changed his last name and lied about his birthday to join in the war. He deployed and fought, landing on the beach in Germany. Later, he served in the Office of Strategic Services (OSS), where confidential information is still under wraps. He came home and of Sammie McCleary and the Mom Prom fundraiser for school supplies for the Beau Fournier Memorial Fund. She said she was grateful for these new friends. They are already planning next year's Mom Prom switching it up to use The James in 2023.

The couple wanted to move out of Greene County and switch gears to a smaller community. Then, she read that Timberline Barn was on the market. Tingling with anticipation, she contacted the Bryans and negotiations began to develop.

Previously, Tara was a massage therapist for 15 years. Her body started to break down from giving multiple deep tissue massages and she was looking for an exit plan. Tara wanted to cultivate the needs of her family while praying for a new career path. The wedding barn was the answer she had been waiting on. Then when keys changed hands on March 20, 2020, COVID-19 restrictions started hitting the nation and the shutdown began.

In May 2020, the first wedding occurred after the shutdown lifted. During the pandemic, the wedding parties became smaller, and most were careful to protect the elderly and high-risk family members. In addition, they made sure to talk with each couple to work with them during the craziness of 2020. Despite the rough start, they hosted 35 weddings in 2020. In 2021 the barn hosted 72 weddings. Thus far, in 2022, 63 weddings are booked for Timber Line Barn Wedding Venue.

Since the purchase of Timber Line Barn, they added a pergola, benches, an arbor, a new entry sign, landscaping and a lot of maintenance. Chad Bryan had explained about areas in the barn that needed maintenance work for the structure. Tara wanted to make these improvements and upgrades to improve couples' wedding experience on their special day.

One change to Timber Line was taking out the honeymoon suite to transform the space into the bridal suite to help brides prepare in a larger area.

The Gathering Room is a contemporary, open space with a welcoming room and natural lights suited for all types of uses. Clients share what they need and want for their event. Tara will set up the space and help design the flow. The room is a blank slate and clients decorate any way they want.

Both spaces have parking just a few steps from the door. In addition, evening events enjoy having parking throughout the downtown area.

The family keeps busy year-round between giving tours, practices, weddings, and cleaning up. In 2020, they sacrificed a lot while building their wedding business. They have help from Melissa Barker, who supports the efforts and cleans the venues.

Tara hopes to have time with the family, enjoy life, and become a part of community events and friendships. They love the outdoors and Buffalo is close to many outdoor recreation accesses.

They are excited to have booked six weddings since taking over The James a few short weeks ago. In addition, the Buffalo and Half Way proms will be at The James.

For additional information, go online to ww.timberlinebarnweddings. com or jamesweddingvenue.com for details about the venue to inquire about date availability. Also, search the venue names on Facebook for more photos or message the owners.

There are no hidden fees. The event is transparent with all charges known upfront, all-inclusive, clean-

Buffalo Art Walk and Craft Fair applications are available online

pplications for the 2022 Buffalo Art Walk and Craft Fair are available online, on the Buffalo Art Walk and Craft Fair Facebook page.

This year's event is scheduled for Saturday, May 7, on the Buffalo square. The theme of the 2022 art walk is "Show Me Buffalo!" The goal is to celebrate all things Buffalo and Dallas County, promoting pride in both the area's history and future trajectory.

The art walk committee is seeking artisans, such as those who create paintings, pottery, fabric arts and photographs, to apply.

The committee also is seeking storytellers who can relate tales about historical happenings in Buffalo and Dallas County. History and folklore all would be topics of interest. People are encouraged to tell their stories live during the event, or for those who would prefer another option, they could record their stories beforehand. Home videos that show Buffalo and Dallas County sights from yesteryear also are sought, to be displayed at the event. For more information, contact Carrie Hulsey, art walk committee chairwoman, at thehavenmaternityhome@thehavenofrestministries.com

Thus far, vendors who have filled out applications to attend include a variety of art forms and crafts, including resin, earrings, T-shirts, wood signs, key chains, woodworking, paintings, sewn items, crocheted items, vinyl items, tumblers, quilts, jewelry and beaded roses, upcycle crafts, freshies, loom knitting crafts, children's activities, sugar scrubs, hats, bags, garden crafts, leather, wind chimes, gun racks, soaps, bath bombs, lotion bars, lip balms, candles and polymer clay jewelry.

Food vendors include those with sweets, carnival and fair foods, bake sale items, shaved ice, shakes, cotton candy, caramel apples, nachos and pickles.

Dance Sensations students also are scheduled to perform at the event.

For more information, contact Carrie Hulsey, art walk committee chairwoman, at thehavenmaternityhome@ thehavenofrestministries.com or 417-414-3003.

2022 Buffalo Art Walk Exhibition and Gallery will be expanded

The 2022 Buffalo Art Walk on May 7 at the square will feature an Art Exhibition and Gallery area again this year. Instead of only paintings, drawings and photography, the exhibition area has been expanded for 2022. This will be an area where artists who do not want to have a vendor space can exhibit a few paintings, drawings, photographs, pottery pieces, wood carvings, fiber art pieces, woven pieces (due to display space, nothing really large) and creative jewelry pieces. Exhibitors may enter up to three pieces of art.

Artwork in the exhibition area may be any medium, including oil on canvas, watercolors, chalk, pencil, pen and ink, as well as photography. Exhibitors will have about 3 to 5 feet of display space.

Photography must be matted, framed or unframed, and at least 8-by-10-inches. Photos may be color, black and white, or digitally enhanced (describe what was done and the process).

Artwork will not be hung, but will be displayed on easels. Exhibition organizer Deanna Akers Stuckey has a source to borrow easels, but exhibitors are encouraged to use their own, if they have them. There will be table easels for displaying smaller artwork and photography.

Artwork cannot display prices, but business cards or other contact information is allowed. Artwork must be the work of the artist but does not have to be new.

To keep this a quality exhibit, the committee reserves the right to accept or reject artwork. Remember, this is a public exhibit and families with small children will be viewing the art, so the choice of the subject matter should be G-rated.

For those who have more artwork, they are welcome to fill out an application for a vendor booth. The goal of this exhibition is to let the public know how talented the artists are in this community.

Artwork can be brought to Buffalo City Hall on Friday, May 6, during business hours. If these times are not convenient, let Stuckey know at 417-345-6358. Stuckey plans to set up the display Friday, May 6.

Anyone who plans to participate should let Stuckey know what they plan to bring. This will help her decide how to arrange the exhibit and to make information display cards. She can be reached at 417-345-6358.

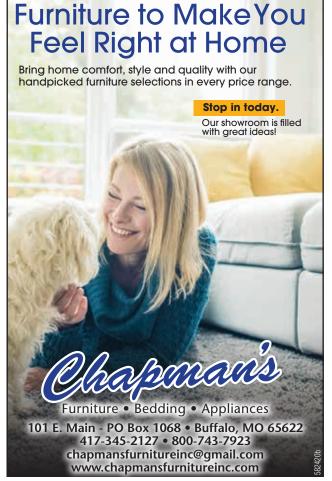

Stuckey encourages readers to pass this exhibition information along to area artists or send her the names and addresses for area artists, so she can send them information. For more information, she can be reached at 417-345-6358 or dstuckev000@centurytel.net. She can also be reached by private message on Facebook at Deanna Akers Stuckey.

Lindley Creek hits the trail with a new Spaghetti Western music video

Dallas County Bluegrass band releases new single and video

nternationally recognized band Lindley Creek has just released their latest single "Too Bad You're no Good" from their upcoming sophomore album. It's just a taste of what fans of the fast-rising Missouri natives have in store on their upcoming Pinecastle Records effort. Needless to say, there are plenty more surprises in store and the future is certainly looking bright!

Since the release of their debut album Freedom, Love and The Open Road, Lindley Creek quickly burst onto the national Bluegrass scene. The entire record was produced by Jim VanCleve. Along the way, they've turned several heads and charted multiple songs including a No. 2 debut on the Bluegrass Today chart with their lead single "I Gotta Go," while also being selected as an official showcase artist at the IBMA World of Bluegrass event in 2021. They were also a finalist for the IBMA Award for "Momentum Band of the Year," while lead singer Katie Greer was a nominee up for "Momentum Vocalist of the Year."

The busy Dallas County resident family bluegrass music group is a regular feature at Silver Dollar City's The Gazebo on the town square. It is at the Silver Dollar Saloon where the "Too Bad You're No Good" video was filmed with local talented SDC actors playing roles in the melodramatic Spaghetti Western action that accompanies the band's stage performance.

Buffalo's Southwestern Missouri Celtic Festival attendees were the first to hear the song debut at live stage performances by Lindley Creek.

"The song is somewhat of a drawback to the Country Music of the 90s," said Lindley Creek guitarist and vocalist Kathie Greer. "The tune is a departure from our regular mix of songs and is slightly reminiscent of the songs from "O Brother Where Art Thou. It is 'rootsy'

appeal to the Outlaw

the end. It was Calloway who first hired Lindley Creek to perform at SDC in 2004, three years after the music group began performing and recording.

The costumes and lighting were supplied by SDC and with the saloon being closed to performances over the past year because of COVID 19, it was the perfect time to shoot the video. The video also holds another surprise. Family member and former Lindley Creek banjo player, Tate Greer makes a cameo performance wearing a handle-bar mustache.

As with any Western romantic comedy, Love has its ups and downs and in this music video, there's more downs than ups. The colorful costumes and sultry vocals of Katie Greer make this video a real pleasure to watch and listen.

The single "Too Bad You're No Good" is bound to be a hit. It was written by songwriters Paul Craft and Cadillac Holmes. The album is yet to be released but plans are for sometime in 2022.

Lindley Creek is John Rob Greer (bass and vocals) and wife, Kathie (guitar and vocals), along with their children Jase (violin and vocals) and Katie (lead vocals and mandolin). You can learn more about the group by visiting their website at lindleycreek.com or watch more videos at YouTube - Lindley Creek Band.
