Support Our County Non-Profits

By Debbie Bowden, Director Caroline County Economic Development

Any economic developer worth her salt will tell you that business development and community development go hand in hand. There are goals for both – business development is about creating jobs and sustaining business income for companies and workers. Community development is about ensuring that everyone has a chance for success equitably in all areas of living – food, health, and shelter.

In Caroline County, we all work toward improving both community and business. And leading those efforts are organizations that are the heart of the County – the non-profits. These are mission driven organizations, operated by folks with passion, that look to make the county a little bit better.

The county's non-profits - civic organizations, shelter providers, business groups, animal shelter, or your church – all rely on outside support to keep running. As you end your summer and are gearing up for fall, consider making a donation of time or money to your favorite nonprofit. It is a good way to help a small business - non-profits are employers too - and the community.

For updates on any future business support, please visit carolinebusiness.com, sign up for our newsletter, and follow Caroline County Economic Development on Facebook.

Caroline County Economic Development is a department within Caroline County government. Its mission is to help businesses thrive in the community. Debbie can be reached at 410-479-4188 or info@carolinebusiness.com

Eastern Shore Threshermen to Hold 61st Annual Show

August 6, 7, 8

The Eastern Shore Threshermen & Collectors Assoc., Inc. will be holding their 61st annual Wheat Threshing, Steam & Gas Engine Show on August 6, 7, and 8, at their showgrounds located on Rt. 313 between Denton and Federalsburg. The show features free admission and free parking and opens at 10 AM each day. The show this year is celebrating 61 years of wholesome, family fun.

Happy 60th birthday to Smokey Joe! Our miniature steam train, Smokey Joe, was built in 1961 by the Crown Metal Products Company of Pennsylvania which built real steam trains for amusement parks. So this year marks 60 years since it was built. Our organization purchased the train in 1972. It was hauled from its previous home in Haines City, Florida to its new home in May of 1972. It was a busy time to get all the track laid and the train ready to run by show time of that year. We are excited that 2021 not only marks 60 years since it was built, but also marks Smokey Joe's 50th show at our showgrounds. Many of you were little kids when you started riding our beloved train and now bring your children and grandchildren out to enjoy the excitement of riding behind a real steam locomotive. Be sure to come out and take a ride. It's fun for kids of all ages! "Smokey Joe" is a replica of the Civil War era "General" locomotive.

There will also be steam engines, antique tractors, gas engines, antique cars and steam models in operation. Among the demonstrations will be wheat threshing, shingle sawing, sawing with a miniature and full size sawmills, and rock crushing. A daily parade of all equipment will be held at 5:00 p.m. on Friday and Saturday and at 4:00 on Sunday.

There will be something for everyone in the large flea market with over 125 dealers. Friday evening will feature the classic country music sounds of Country Express and Flatland Drive will perform bluegrass music on Saturday evening. Sunday will feature music at 5:00. All shows are free. There will also be church services Sunday morning at 9:00 a.m. featuring Janie and Mike Eskow with music by Rowdy Harrison.

Review Your IRA, 401(k) Beneficiaries

Submitted by Ann Jacobs, Financial Advisor, Edward Jones - Denton 410-479-0271

If you've had an IRA and a 401(k) for many years, you may occasionally ask yourself some questions: "Am I contributing enough?" "Am I still funding these accounts with the right mix of investments for my goals and risk tolerance?" But here's one inquiry you might be overlooking: "Have I used the correct beneficiary designations?" And the answer you get is important.

It wouldn't be surprising if you haven't thought much about the beneficiary designation – after all, it was just something you once signed, possibly a long time ago. Is it really that big a deal?

It could be. For one thing, what if your family circumstances have changed since you named a beneficiary? If you've remarried, you may not want your former spouse to receive your IRA and 401(k) assets or the proceeds of your life insurance policy, for which you also named a beneficiary.

However, upon remarrying, many people do review their estate plans, including their wills, living trusts, durable powers of attorney and health care directives. If you've revised these documents, do you have to worry about the old beneficiary designations? You might be surprised to learn that these previous designations can supersede what's in your updated will and other documents. The end result could be an "accidental" inheritance in which your retirement accounts and insurance proceeds could end up going to someone who is no longer in your life.

Furthermore, your retirement plans and insurance policy may not just require a single beneficiary – you may also be asked to name a contingent beneficiary, to whom assets will pass if the primary beneficiary has already died. As you can imagine, the situation could become quite muddled if stepchildren are involved in a remarriage.

To avoid these potential problems, make sure to review the beneficiary designations on all of your accounts at some point – and especially after a significant change in your family situation. If you see something that is outdated or incorrect, contact your retirement account administrator – or your insurance representative, in the case of life insurance – to request a change-of-beneficiary form.

And if you really want to be on the safe side, you may want to enlist a legal professional to help you with this review to make sure the beneficiary designations reflect your current family situation and are consistent with what's in your estate plans.

MAKING SENSE OF INVESTIN

In fact, if you're already working with an experienced estate planning attorney and you should - you might also pick up some other suggestions for dealing with beneficiaries. Just to name one, it's generally not a good idea to name minor children as beneficiaries. Because children can't control the assets until they become adults, a court would likely have to name a guardian - one that you might not have wanted. Instead, you could either name your own custodian to manage the assets designated to the minor or establish a trust for the benefit of the minor, which can distribute the money in several disbursements over a period of years - which is often a good move, since young adults aren't always the best at managing large lump sums.

If you're like many people, you have a strong desire to leave something behind. But you'll want to do it in the right way. So, pay close attention to your bene-ficiary designations – when you first create them and throughout your life.

Graduate Level College Debt Skyrockets

recent article in the Wall Street Journal by Melissa Korn and Andrea Fuller exposed how colleges and universities have awarded thousands of graduate degrees that provide a fraction of income after graduation in relation to the debt taken on to acquire the degree, according to US Education Data.

Columbia University in New York was singled out in the article because their Masters in Fine Art's graduates had the highest student loan debt in relation to income. They had a median of $181,000 in debt and f of their graduates were making less than $30,000 per year, 2 years after graduation. In very basic terms they got their Master's Degrees but were saddled with 6 times their annual gross income in debt.

Six figure student loan balances are no longer the exception for Master's Program graduates. The Grad Plus loan program created by Congress in 2005 opened a cash drawer for Colleges and Universities, by allowing students to borrow tuition, room, and board without limit. Most loan programs for undergraduates have limits.

And as one would expect, since 2005 the number of graduate programs offered has exploded to such an extent that for the first time in history graduate students are on track to have borrowed as much as undergraduates in the 2020-2021 academic year according to Federal Data.

Now I want to pause and let this factoid sink in a little, and I will restate. For the first time in history the dollar amount of student loans lent to graduate students will equal what is lent to all undergraduate students. On average there are 4 to 5 times more undergraduate students than graduate students. Hence the result of an everexpanding number of graduate school programs with an unlimited pool of money for grad students to borrow from.

This situation sounds so familiar to the mortgage market of the early 2000's when there was an overabundance of loan programs that had very lax requirements for qualifying. Low income? No problem, do a no income verification loan. No assets? No problem, do a no asset verification loan. Low credit scores? No problem, you will just have to pay a higher interest rate. Have all three of these issues? No problem, just pay a high interest rate.

The issue becomes, in both situations the debt must be repaid. If it isn't then there are consequences

I completely understand the desire to achieve as much education as one can. More education means higher lifetime earnings, this is a proven fact. What I am finding more difficult to understand is why we have a system of financing higher education based on the dreams and aspirations of our young people without any accountability of the success of the end product, the graduate.

Shouldn't all colleges be held accountable for the success of their graduates, regardless of whether it is and Associates Degree, Bachelor's Degree or Master's Degree?

We have seen an increase over the last several years of Federal monitoring of primarily for-profit schools of higher education and the success of their graduates. Several have been held accountable and shut down. Pandemic adjustments to the delivery of instruction have and I believe will put further pressure on colleges and universities to justify their expense.

There is no question that the more education one receives translates to higher lifetime earnings. There is no question that achieving more education comes at a price unless you are blest to get scholarships and grants. And there is no question that if you can fog a mirror while breathing on it and you are accepted at an institution of higher learning you can borrow your way to achieve it. Hence the $1.6 Trillion and growing balance of students loans outstanding.

But is all this debt to acquire a higher education, and hence higher lifetime earnings actually worth it?

Data is showing that there is a direct correlation between those with lower student loan balances at graduation and their feeling that a degree was worth it and those who graduate with high student loan balances and their feeling that the degree was worth it.

82% of bachelor's degree recipients with no debt say that their education was worth the cost, compared with a third (33%) of college graduates with $100,000 or more in student loan debt.

Student loan balances at graduation in excess of your first-year salary after graduation has been considered to be "excessive" student loan debt. Or if your monthly student loan payment exceeds 10% of your monthly gross income your student loan debt is considered "excessive". And the longer the term of repayment of the student loan the more likely it will be that the next generation of students will have an even tougher time avoiding the student loan trap.

New parents of children are less likely to be able to save for their children's college education because funds that could be put aside for their children is being used to pay their student loan debt. I see this situation often as I deal with you families trying to buy their first home. They would love to put money aside for their children's education but are too busy digging out from their own student loan hole. And the student loan forbearance currently in place will make this a more significant issue going forward by pushing payments further and further into the future.

The pandemic experience we have experienced in the last year and a half has fundamentally changed the delivery of instruction at all levels of education. Higher education will be affected most significantly with the explosion of online college level classes, this mode of instruction is not new. What is new is the adjustment many students have made and will be making will force colleges to make this method of instruction more available to more students with a broader menu of

The challenge, and dare I say the decisions young people make about furthering their education will begin in the 9th and 10th grade. Public schools need to give full and total access to all college level instruction so a high school graduate can leverage a high school diploma with earned college credits. Higher Education will have to adjust by increasing access to college level classes to those who will not be living in their dorms, eating their food, and sitting at desks in their classrooms. Cutting off or in the best case reducing the income stream of more traditional on campus students.

Don't get me wrong, I am not advocating for an end to an on campus 4-year experience. There is still a great need for young people to graduate from high school and continue their education on campus. The data supports that those who do achieve the goal of getting a degree in a timely fashion find more satisfaction and value in doing so. But they must look at all options before making that decision.

If making the commitment to go to college, you must make the commitment to finish. College dropouts account for 63% of defaulted student loans. First generation college students are 2.7 times more likely to default on student loans. How you pay for college is critical. The more you borrow the more you must pay back. And if you dropout without getting the degree you not only have the debt you also do not have the degree that will afford you more income to pay the debt.

To quote Mark Krantrowitz whom I derive information from this article, "we do not have a student loan problem, we have a college completion problem".

If you would like to see more data regarding student loans and default information Google Mark Krantrowwitz, article dated 7/23/20.

"Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it." Psalm 127:1a Greensboro Baptist Church to Celebrate 100 Years

Greensboro Baptist Church will be celebrating its 100th anniversary on Sunday, September 12. A year late, due to Covid, the church is planning a grand celebration and worship service. The day will begin at 10 a.m. with memories and remarks from former pastors. The worship service will begin at 10:45 a.m. A luncheon will follow the morning worship service. Memorabilia and archive material will be on display in the old sanctuary during the day.

Special music, provided by Servants Heart, will begin at 3 p.m. Servants Heart is a southern gospel singing group from West Virginia. The group consists of Chan Hubbard (former Greensboro Baptist pastor), Marley Hubbard, Greg Johnson and Linda Bane. They minister, in song and testimony, as to how their relationship with Christ has made a difference in their life. Their love and desire are to minister the gospel and to encourage fellow believers. Light refreshments will follow in the Family Life Center.

Greensboro Baptist had its beginnings during an evangelistic campaign beginning on July 3, 1920. A tabernacle was built on a 72 x 240 feet lot, purchased for $750. The Lane and Long Lumber Company of Ridgely agreed to supply the $1,300 worth of lumber to build the tabernacle, which would seat 1,000 people.

Rev. Melvin G. Morris, a Maryland Baptist State Evangelist, was called to lead the evangelistic campaign. He was later called to be the first pastor of Greensboro Baptist Church. During the more than four-week evangelistic campaign, it was reported that more than 35,000 people from all parts of the Eastern Shore and Delaware gathered at the tabernacle.

GBC Sunday School students, 1939

GBC Young Ladies Sunday School Class

According to a Denton Journal article dated July 31, 1920, "This stirring, old time revival has been attended, it is estimated by over 25,000 people from all parts of this and surrounding counties. Thunder and windstorms, camp meetings and county fairs have had no effect upon the large crowds that have attended the meetings nightly to hear the evangelist (Rev. Morris) present the old-time gospel in his unique and effective way."

On March 8, 1921, the church voted to build a permanent church. By June 1922, the first tabernacle had been moved across the street on the Bernard property and the lot was ready for a new church. E.S. Adkins Lumber Company of Salisbury agreed to furnish the lumber for $45,000. The cornerstone was laid on September 10, 1922 and the church building was dedicated on February 10, 1924.

Throughout the church's history, the people of the church have relied on faith in God to provide for the church's needs. The church added a brand new sanctuary to the original church and it was dedicated on November 26, 2000. The church also was able to purchase adjoining property and build a Family Life Center.

Greensboro Baptist has hosted many different ministries over its 100 years including a yearly summer Bible School; Just Older Youth (JOY), a ministry to reach our seniors in the community; various youth programs (Awana's, Wednesday Connect); and the live nativity program, Emmanuel. Throughout its history, the church has reached beyond its walls to minister to those in the community and to far away places such as Central America and Eastern Europe. The church has also played a very important part in sponsoring new congregations in the area including Marydel, Harrington, DE, Dover, DE and Baltimore.

The members and friends invite you to come and celebrate and honor the church's history. Greensboro Baptist anniversary will focus on the important and significant years of commitment, persistence and sacrifices of those who paved the way for today's church. Spreading the gospel and glorifying Christ is the prime purpose for everything the church has done in the past and will continue to do in the future.

Please join the church members and friends during this very special day!

Located in Denton, this new center will provide children with critical life-altering support, helping children acquire the necessary skills to cope with mental health challenges at home, at school or out in the community. At the Caroline Youth Center, they will learn about their diagnoses, managing behavioral triggers while setting achievable goals toward wellness, and making better real-life decisions.

With this gift, early investors in this project have committed more than $150,000 toward the $250,000 goal. Summerfest Is "Under The Stars"

For 32 years the annual Caroline Summerfest Festival in Denton has marked the turn toward Fall in Caroline County. As vacations wind down and families prepare to return to the regular schedules set by school days, Summerfest has symbolized one last hurrah of family, friends, and food coupled with great music on three stages. Given its suspension due to pandemic restrictions in 2020, it is also among many community events that invite the return to in-person celebrations.

The Under The Stars theme signals an adjustment in festival operation hours to early evening hours for the two-day event on Friday, August 20 and Saturday, August 21 from 5 to 9 p.m. Free parking and shuttle bus transportation are available from the Health and Public Services Building located at 407 South Seventh Street on both days.

Celebrating Both Tradition and Innovation

Although Caroline Summerfest has been around for three decades, a new theme each year and a few new attractions keeps the event fresh and exciting. The "Under the Stars" theme embraces the promise of cooler evening temperatures and celestial decorations among the three entertainment stages and the 75+ non-profit vendors and corporate sponsors that support the event.

Kid and family friendly activities are a key feature and new this year is a Saturday "Touch A Truck" display for heavy equipment and big trucks-- a perfect opportunity for families to meet the "rock star" operators and sit in the driver's seat of these big rigs. Sand piles for castles, fire truck rides, the Eagle Line Railroad display, and Pro Parties Bounce events ($) will again be located throughout the three-block historic downtown. KidZart is the Caroline Summerfest version of free make 'n take craft creation stations for all ages to paint, sculpt, glue, cut and color creations that delight the aspiring artist and become a memento for the festival experience.

Friday stage performance highlights on three festival stages include Devon Beck Band, Choptank River Big Band, Big Chicken Dinner and the strolling stilt-walker and Balloonitic, Sand Sculptor, George Zaiser reveals the art within the sand pile faithfully donated by Towers Concrete Products of Denton. Zaiser will be sculpting both days during Summerfest.

Early Learning Readiness Program Open House!

Come play with us! The Y is offering a free Early Learning Readiness (ELR) program—a kind of community-based preschool—that provides a stimulating educational environment for children and support for caregivers.

ELR offers an informal setting with multiple play stations, where caregivers will discover more about how children develop and how they can encourage learning and skill building at home:

- Kids engage in active play-- developing physically, verbally and socially.
- Caregivers of young children can meet and socialize with one another.
- Kids and adults can enjoy toys, books, games, resources and more.

Need more convincing? Come see us at our open house in August. Open to anyone interested in the program. This also allows time to receive and complete required enrollment paperwork.

What DOES a CASA do?

At this point, you've probably at least HEARD of CASA of Caroline. You know we help kids. You know we are always looking for volunteers. But what exactly IS CASA and what exactly does a CASA volunteer do? To give you a better idea, we asked 2 of our current volunteers to share their initial thoughts about the organization and some of their experiences since becoming Court-Appointed Special Advocates for children in the Caroline County foster care system.

CASA: How did you first learn about the CASA program? And how long have you been a volunteer?

MG: I would drive by and see the office. Then I started to see commercials and I felt that was a sign that I should learn more. I reached out to Shelly (Shelly Kulp is the Executive Director) and after talking to her, I decided to take the class and become an advocate. I've been a CASA for 3 years and have had 3 cases.

BT: I received a donation request, which prompted me to research the organization. The more I learned, the more I thought it might be a good fit for my personal volunteer efforts.

I've been a CASA for almost 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ years and have had one case, working with the same youth.

CASA: What was your biggest fear/reservation about becoming an advocate? How have you resolved that?

MG: Not being able to do enough to help. But I realized that just being there for these kids is enough because we are their voice and give them at least one stable adult in their lives. And the CASA of Caroline staff gives us great support – talking to Shelly and Amy has helped me work through challenges I've faced.

BT: My biggest concern was whether I would really be able to make a difference. The court formality was daunting too but I just forged ahead with my tasks to the best of my ability, and I haven't gotten into trouble yet!

CASA: Tell us about the positive things – your best experience and favorite thing about being a CASA.

MG: My favorite part about being a CASA is meeting new people and interacting with the kids. My best experience was seeing one of my cases go to adoption by a relative and knowing that child was finally in a safe, loving, permanent home.

BT: My best experience is also my favorite thing – seeing the way the youth's face lights up every time we see each other. It confirms my decision to become a CASA and resolves my fear of not being able to make a difference. His smile is proof that I really am making a difference in his life.

CASA: Are there any downsides? What is your least favorite thing and worst experience?

MG: I don't like it when I feel helpless. One of my cases stayed open longer than I thought was necessary and I wished I could do more to move it along.

BT: Sometimes I feel helpless, like once when my youth got himself into a bad situation and I didn't know about it beforehand to try to stop it. And when his mother is still consulted about his well-being even though she doesn't take an active role in his life. It's hard feeling helpless but when I see his smile it's all worth it!

CASA: What are your strongest beliefs about what CASA does?

MG: We really are a voice for the children we serve. I feel the CASA report truly does matter and the court really does value our recommendations.

BT: CASA's really do make a difference in the messed-up life of a CINA (Child In Need of Assistance) foster child.

CASA: What do you wish other people knew about CASA that you didn't know before becoming an advocate?

MG: That YOU decide how much time you want to put into it. Whenever I've talked to people about becoming a volunteer, they're always hesitant because of the time commitment. I, the volunteer, decide how much time I'm able to put in. There's more flexibility than I would've thought.

BT: Sometimes it's difficult to know that a CASA is a support and can't change the outcome of cases. Also, I thought it was more like a mentoring program but it's not. It's so much more than mentoring. It's helping a child with more than just their homework. It's helping a child through a really tough time in their young life.

CASA: What do your friends and family say when they find out you're a CASA volunteer?

MG: They are always very proud. I have 2 sons and I believe it is through my work with CASA that they've learned the importance of giving back and helping those in need.

BT: They aren't surprised because I'm a compassionate person. Most people say they couldn't put up with the rules (of the court) but I'm here for the best interests of a child and that's always my main concern.

CASA: If you weren't volunteering for CASA, what would you be doing instead?

MG: Nothing. I honestly can't imagine not being a CASA!

BT: I would still be working with children in some capacity.

A CASA is a trained volunteer advocate who represents the best interests of a child in foster care. Each advocate undergoes an application process, including background checks and an interview, prior to enrollment in the pre-service training program. Once the class is completed and the volunteer is sworn in as a friend of the Caroline County Courts, the volunteer is assigned to a case and gets right to work, meeting with the child, teachers, guidance counselors, doctors - all the relevant people in the child's life. The volunteer starts to make a difference - make THE difference - in a child's life from Day 1. Does this sound like something you'd like to do? We are currently accepting applications for our next training class, scheduled to begin in September. To learn more or to fill out an application, please visit www.carolinecasa.org or contact Shelly Kulp at 410-479-8301 or skulp.casaofcaroline@gmail.com.

Isn't it interesting how folks tend to think that we can flip a switch and go back to "normal" now that Covid protocols in some locations have been lifted? Case in point: interpersonal effects of lifting the masking mandates. A friend in the service industry shared a story that brought a chuckle but also got my attention about facial expressions behind the mask. Americans have lived behind a mask since March of 2020 and surfacing from that restriction is an eye opener!

We have all become accustomed to the "eye crinkle" greeting during mandatory masking and social distancing of the past year. You know, that "eyes only" thing we all learned to do when you pass a familiar face in Walmart or to simply acknowledge another human being while pumping gas? The eye squinting over the mask that constituted a friendly look but that frequently did not include a real smile behind the mask? Whelp, for those that are no longer masking, remember your whole face is now exposed! Out of habit the eyes may be looking friendly but remember that irritated lip sneer or mocking facial expression that was hidden is now front and center! Demasking has some societal impacts on many levels. Just remember those little negative nuances that were hidden under the masks are now there for the world to see! So here's a friendly reminder to paste that smile back on, folks, and watch your interactive P's and O's!

The emotional impact and effects of isolation and social distancing have certainly affected more than our rusty face to face interpersonal skills. More folks than you might think are experiencing a bit of agoraphobia (fear of entering crowded places or leaving one's home) as a blow-by of Covid 19. Now we know what hibernating bears feel like! Even though the mask mandate has been lifted, many choose to continue wearing masks, and many businesses, particularly doctor's offices, hospitals, and Nursing Homes, still require masking, as is their right under the law. It is difficult to change ones cautious mind set after 14 months, and masking is a good way to continue protecting oneself and others, but the best way to set the mind at ease is to get vaccinated!

Remember that none of the vaccines authorized for use in the United States contain the live virus so you cannot get Covid-19 from the shots. Rest assured that all Covid-19 vaccines are free from metals so they do not produce an electronic field at the injection site. They do not contain implants, microchips or tracking devices. This shot cannot cause you to become magnetic! They were not developed using fetal tissue. Covid-19 vaccines do not change or interact with your DNA in any way. Both the mRNA and viral vector vaccines deliver instructions to our cells to start building protections against the virus that causes Covid-19 to develop an immune response. The mRNA causes the cells to make the spike protein to stimulate the immune system, then breaks down without affecting your DNA. This is why if you have an antibody test after vaccination, those tests could indicate that you had a previous infection even if you never had Covid-19. Rest assured that the genetic material used never enters the nucleus of the cell, which is where your DNA is kept. Additionally, there is currently no evidence of male or female fertility problems as a side effect of any vaccines, including Covid-19, so for those trying to get pregnant now or who want to get pregnant in the future, you can safely get a vaccine through he health department or at any local drug store."The spike protein used creates copies of the one found on the virus's surface to fight Covid-19. It is not the syncitin-1 spike protein involved in the growth and attachment of the placenta during pregnancy. The two spike proteins are different and distinct from each other." (hopkinsmedicine.org)

People who have already had the virus can be re-infected, so even those who have had it are advised by the CDC to get vaccinated. The CDC states that if you have been vaccinated, the risk of getting the virus is very low. Most importantly, fully vaccinated people are far less likely to spread the virus to others. If a fully vaccinated person does experience even mild symptoms they should get tested. The tests for the rare breakthrough cases, and vaccines, are still free. On the outside chance the test is positive you will need to isolate for ten days. Reports from those who did experience a mild case of the virus after vaccination indicate they did not get nearly as sick as someone who had not been vaccinated.

A report from Johns Hopkins states that the protein that helps your immune system recognize and fight the virus does not cause infection of any sort. Remember to rub the shot site for the 15 minute wait time to distribute the vaccine throughout your muscles so the site is not sore afterwards! Body aches, headaches and fever that last for a day or so indicate that the vaccine is working to stimulate your immune system. If symptoms persist beyond two days you should call your doctor. (hopkinsmedicne.org) Not all vaccination recipients experience these symptoms afterwards. I had some achiness across the shoulders after the second shot, but some time with a heating pad and good book took care of that in a few hours!

Those who choose not to be vaccinated are not only at risk for becoming deathly ill from this scourge, but are still carriers to others. Please read the signs at the entrances of stores stating that those not vaccinated are required to wear masks. Remember, local businesses have the legal right to enforce masking and workplace guidelines. Local laws, rules, and regulations must be respected and followed. Please get further science from your doctor who can debunk the fear mongering rumors that are spewed across social media on the internet, tv, and radio about the safety and efficacy of these vaccines. Meanwhile, as a responsible citizen, your choice not to vaccinate requires you to continue following state mandates requiring masking, frequent handwashing, and social distancing rules. Be a good neighbor and respect the rights of others to be safe from possible contact with unknowing carriers of this virus who are not vaccinated.

Reminder; The Health Department has a list of folks who do not have transportation to vaccination sites and need to be vaccinated at home. Call 410-479-5880 for more information.

On another note, the famed toilet paper shortages brought out latent hoarding tendencies to different degrees for many American consumers. Early on during the pandemic, many folks attacked closets and storage areas and took advantage of down time. Storage bins were impossible to find! However, as time went by and Amazon purchases exploded, that gained space dwindled. For many, it became a matter of becoming accustomed to living with clutter while being hunkered down during the past year. Bottom line is internet shopping over the past year has contributed mightily to the amount of stuff we have...and it may not all have a place to call home in our homes!

Clutter is a collection of things scattered about in a disorganized and untidy mess. Clutter may be the result of kids leaving their toys all over the house (Legos and Barbie shoes stabbing one in the foot comes to mind!) or the family shoe dumping area getting out of hand. Newspapers and magazines piling up? I personally accumulated piles of books from Thrift Books online while in lockdown! (a little plug for very affordable used books in great condition!) Perhaps the stairs leading to the second floor have become almost impassable with items meant to travel to bedrooms! Or it may be that pile of Junk Mail we have been intending to go through for the past six months! Notice the repeated use of the word "piles"?!

Psychology Today's Dr. Carter states that "a cluttered space can be stressful and unsettling since it is viewed as unfinished business. When one's physical space is cluttered, anxiety can rise, and stepping on or over things can reinforce feelings of being off balance." She further states that long term exposure to clutter can produce chronic stress, which is bad for our physical health. Emotionally, clutter may also result in anxiety or depression. So for those who have a touch of the above mentioned agoraphobia, part of the ongoing stress could actually be originating in the home you don't want to leave!

Neuroimaging has shown that some brains react subconsciously to images of order and organization, giving the viewer a sense of calm. For these folks, when surrounded by clutter, cortisol levels (stress hormones) are raised and the fight or flight mode kicks in, creating stress. Princeton University professor Sabine Kastner researched the science of attention using fMRI (functional magnetic resonance imaging) scans and found that "most of us aren't good at processing clutter. It can become overwhelming and make our brains work much harder to complete simple tasks." Which probably explains why it's sometimes easier to "postpone" tackling the mess...because, at this moment, we just don't have it in us to know where to start! The mess stays in place, leading to constant cortisol production and constant stress!

Senior Homecare by Angels

A 2010 study in the scientific journal Personality and Social Psychology confirms that the constant flow of cortisol contributes to headaches, irritability, high blood pressure, intestinal problems, heart disease, low libido, suppressed immunity to disease, and difficulty recovering from exercise. This pre-Covid study also reported that subjects who described their homes as cluttered had more difficulty transitioning from work to home environments. Interesting point, as so many are transitioning from working remotely full time, not to mention leaving home to shop in stores and start socializing! Stress induced Cortisol may spike for those who are making the change from being house bound to entering stores and restaurants, attending social events, or resuming volunteer positions. Reducing stress in the home environment may very well help reduce the stress of all these transitions!

De-cluttering involves decision-making and problem solving skills. These skills really kick in when one picks a place to start and just keeps rolling! Once you start using them to reclaim your space you will feel empowered! You will no longer feel that your possessions have got the better of you! Additionally, when you declutter you may come across sentimental items that give you a chance to revisit old memories. August, with the insufferable heat and humidity it always brings, is a perfect time to set up three boxes for keep, donate, or sell and to fill a couple of trash bags with broken and unusable stuff that no one would use. (One man's ceiling is another man's floor, but please don't donate broken or stained articles to Goodwill or the Samaritan House.) Once it's all sorted out, you may be able to save money by not having to Covid shop online! When you need something, look in your freshly organized designated storage area, you may have a spare!

For those who have worked remotely, there is the very personal issue of one's work space. Does a tidy desk create a thought pattern of conformity to the task at hand? Does one's highly organized work space create a calm and focused environment? Or does your highly cluttered work space proclaim the mark of creativity? Reportedly, Steve Jobs and Albert Einstein thrived with their messy desks! There is a 1901 picture of Mark Twain seated at his messy desk that indicates his exceptionally creative thinking was a messy process! I have a friend whose desk looks like a paper explosion, but he knows where everything is and he is, frankly, brilliant. Then there are those who make a mess while working but tidy up at the end of the day. Ultimately, it comes down to your personal work habits! But if you still have catalogues and magazines from 2019 buried because of that one article you want to keep, it might be time to get those three boxes out and start digging!

Caroline Medical Adult Day Care is excited about all the great activities planned for our favorite time of the year. More than ever, we are looking forward to being together enjoying a great fun filled August. Likewise, we are looking forward to Summerfest! Please remember to stop by the Caroline Medical Adult Day Care booth, play a game-win a prize and please introduce yourself; we enjoy meeting new friends. We will also have free information about our facility to offer while answering any questions.

We would also like to take this opportunity to share some of the benefits of Medical Adult Day Care.

Benefits of Caroline Medical Adult Day Care

Adult Day Care offers benefits to both caregivers needing help and adults who are in need of oversight during the day. Additionally, Medical Day Care offers services under the direction of one's primary physician and supervised by a registered nurse.

If you are a full-time caregiver, Adult Day Center can provide a much needed break. While a loved one is at the Center, you'll have time to rest, run errands or finish other tasks. If you find yourself feeling guilty, ask yourself this, "If I wear myself out to the point of total exhaustion, what good will I be to my loved one?"

If you are a caregiver that works during the day, Adult Day Care can be very helpful as you try to balance a job with caregiving duties. Hours of service for Adult Day Care are Monday through Friday, 8:00 AM to 4:00 PM., meals and transportation are provided.

Medical Adult Day Care provides a chance for adults to be social and to participate in staffed recreational and therapeutic activities such as music and exercise programs. Caregivers, keep in mind that your loved one may need time to adjust to the experience of going to day care at first, however they often look forward to going after attending, joining in activities, meeting people, and forming relationships.

The services at Medical Adult Day Care include:

Health services: At a Medical Adult Day Care, health services include but are not limited to medical oversight, medication administration, medical treatments, and transportation from the Day Care Center to local medical appointments and referrals are offered as staff provided medical assistance.

August 21 is National Senior Citizens Day

This month Caroline Medical Adult Day Care will be recognizing August 21 as National Senior Citizen's Day.

Do you have an elderly person in your life that you love and appreciate? August 21 —National Senior Citizens Day — is the day to let them know how much you care about them. Our senior citizens have contributed so much to our communities and helped make them what they are today. National Senior Citizens Day is the day to show them our appreciation and support and recognize their accomplishments. It's also a time to help raise awareness of various issues that affect senior citizens. In 1988 Ronald Reagan declared the holiday, but prior to this, many observed August 14 as Senior Citizens Day as it was the day Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the Social Security Act in 1935. Today, senior citizens are still very active in their communities and the workforce. They still contribute heavily to our society and for what they have achieved and continue to achieve, they deserve our thanks.

Why National Senior Citizens Day is Important

Seniors give us advice

Our elderly family and friends have so much more life experience than us. For centuries, cultures across the world have looked to the seniors in their community for wisdom and knowledge. They are great at giving us life advice and often they are the first people we go to. Their wisdom and advice is valuable to us and we have much to learn from them.

How to Observe National Senior Citizens Day

Educate and Donate

Educate yourself about the life of a senior. Find a cause concerning today's seniors and get involved. Make a contribution to a group or organization dedicated to the betterment of our seniors.

Spend time at a nursing/retirement home

One of the kindest and most rewarding things one can do is make a visit to a nursing home. Sit and chat with residents. Play games and participate in activities. You can really make a difference in someone's day, week, or even his or her life, and trust us, you will find the experience fun and rewarding too.

Reach out to a senior family member

Do you have a senior family member? Perhaps it's a parent, grandparent, aunt, or uncle. Visit them and spend some time together. If you can't see them in person, give them a call and let them know how much you appreciate them.

Seniors Celebrating National Senior Citizens Day

Maybe it could be the day you finally try that one thing you've been thinking about or maybe it's a day for relaxing at home. Whatever makes you happy, go for it because it's a day dedicated to you! You've earned it!!

We would like to leave you with words of wisdom regarding age from a few great people. I am certain you could add your own.

"You can only perceive real beauty in a person as they get older." Anouk Aimee

"How old would you be if you didn't know how old you are?" Satchel Paige

"It was once said that the moral test of government is how that government treats those who are in the dawn of life, the children; those who are in the twilight of life, the elderly; and those who are in the shadows of life, the sick, the needy and the handicapped." Hubert H. Humphrey

"To keep the heart unwrinkled, to be hopeful, kindly, cheerful, reverent that is to triumph over old age." Thomas Bailey Aldrich
