The recent stings are just the beginning.

It is Sheriff Tillman's solemn vow to keep the citizens of Bradley county safe and informed, and our citizens can look forward to more arrests in the future as we continue to wage our war on drugs, thefts, and violence in our community.

"Mr. Fullerton was a community-minded individual, a man who had several businesses, a man who provided jobs to many people in Bradley County. He built many roads. He gave up his time to the community through the School Board and other organizations. He donated his equipment and time to the community," said Hugh Quimby. "He will surely be missed. IF YOU WANT TO CHANGE YOUR WORLD START TODAY BY CHANGING YOUR WORDS
 "Death and life are in the power of the tongue."

You create an environment for either good or evil with your words, and you are going to have to live in that world you've created. If you're always murmuring, complaining, and talking about how bad life is treating you, you're going to live in a pretty miserable, depressing world. You will always be tempted to use words to describe negative situations, but God wants us to use our words to change our negative situations. Don't talk about the problem, talk about the solution.

When David faced the giant Goliath, he didn't murmur and complain. He chose instead to focus on the greatness of his God. He changed his whole atmosphere through the words that came out of his mouth. "Listen, Goliath, you come against me with a sword and a shield, but I come against you in the name of the Lord God of Israel" (I Samuel 17:45).

Those are words of faith! Notice, too, that he spoke the words out loud. "This very day God is handing you over to me. I'm about to kill you, cut off your head...the whole earth will know that there's an extraordinary God in Israel."

When you are facing obstacles, your words can change your world. There is a miracle in your mouth.

Reminiscing from the past . . .

Oldtimer's Notebook
 By Robert L. Newton

The publishers of The Eagle Democrat have chosen to publish articles from the past Oldtimer's Notebook in memory of Robert L. Newton. This article was first published December 20, 2000.

Santa Claus is supposed to surface again in Bradley County this weekend: as usual, he'll appear in the minds of the adults and in the reality of the kids.

I remember a Christmas when I got not only a basketball, but a football helmet: another when I got a bicycle.

Two-thirds of a century ago, we always had a program in the basement of that old brown brick pile that used to be the First Presbyterian Church.

Building was one the site of the Cash Convenience Store at Church and Myrtle: erected in 1912, it started falling down soon afterward and had to be replaced by 1960.

Congregation has been in the new church on the onetime site of the Burnett-Cathey house longer than it occupied the one at Church and Myrtle. Feature of the program in the church basement back then was the arrival of Santa Claus.

One year, William Parkman Neeley, a classmate of Sykes Harris and others at Warren High School, was Santa Claus. He was the son of my uncle, Everette Neely, in his first marriage to Bessie Sanderlin (she died young).

Later, Firechief Everette Beasley was Santa Claus. And didn't the late John Luther Hartsell do this too?

A Santa Claus came to the church armed with oranges, peppermint candy, and the like.

We all but collapsed with excitement. Back to the Burnett-Cathey house: I remember when the Brooks family resided there: Mrs. Brooks, the grandmother, was the first Arkansas woman to graduate from Vassar College.

Her daughter, Mrs. Mortimer, was a pillar in the First Baptist Church.

Did I read someplace long ago that when it came time for her to be baptized and to join the church, she insisted on walking to the Saline River and the baptismal service?

"Miss Mitt" was one of those wonderful Warren characters.

Speaking of Warren and oldtimers, retired Eastern Airlines Captain Wayne A. VanValkenburgh was here for our class reunion. (Truth be known: he organized the thing).

The Captain, 71, comes from an old Warren family.

He said his great-grandparents are buried in the tiny cemetery at Myrtle and East Pine, behind the onetime home of the V.C. Fords.

Two of the early lettermen in football for the Arkansas Razorbacks were from Warren and the VanValkenburgh family.

Included were Horace and William M. VanValkenburgh, who lettered with the Hogs about 95 years ago.

In the decade before them was John Towler, Wilmar, first Southeast Arkansas man to earn a Razorback letter.

Wasn't the mother of Lawton Greene, Warren man who played for the University of Colorado in the 'thirties, a VanValkenburgh?

The Captain's father was named Fay: oldtimers insist he was one of the first Arkansas State Police and that he drove a Model A Ford with "a high speed rear end" whatever that

Former Mayor Pennington receives award from Warren Rotary Club

Special to The Eagle

The Rotary Club of Warren met for their weekly meeting Tuesday, Jan. 24 at noon. The meeting began with a special presentation of Paul Harris Fellow Recognition to three members.

Rotarian Denisa Pennington was named a Paul Harris Fellow and received a certificate and pin for her efforts. Rotarians Jimmy Sledge and Bob Milton were honored for Paul Harris Fellow +1 status and received a pin with one blue sapphire gem on it.

The Paul Harris Fellow recognition acknowledges individuals who contribute, or who have contributions made in their name, of $1,000 to The Rotary Foundation.

The group then heard from Junior Rotarian Paris Wright before Rotarian Marnette George introduced her program of Rhonda Williams.

Williams is the School Improvement Specialist for the Warren School District and spoke about the R.I.S.E. Community Award Program.

The district has received a grant to promote reading within the school and the community. She is reaching out to different members and organizations around the community to help this campaign, which promotes a love and culture for reading.

These partnerships will all take place before June 23, 2023 and will involve a number of different activities.

Williams expressed interest in the Rotary Club being a partner along with the Imagination Library that the Rotary Club is heavily involved in. She answered a few questions before meeting with Rotary leaders for more details about the program.

amounted to. The Captain grew up in a little house just behind Molly's.

I remember seeing Mr. John Towler at a church meeting once: he was distinguished-lookin' elderly gentleman.

Richard Allin, the Demo-Gaz columnist was a classmate of the lovely Martha Huey in Helena.

He was recalling a duck hunt or two the other day and it reminded me of the only duck hunt to which I ever ventured and also to the only duck camp I ever visited.

We got out in the woods someplace one winter and Wayne VanValkenburgh and I cut down on the ducks.

We never hit any but we made a lot of noise.

We even called Wayne "Machine-Gun Van" for a while.

We decided duck-huntin' wasn't our bag.

But my interest in the process was quickened by a visit made 40 years ago and more to the "Bradley Duck Camp" near Stuttgart.

The Fullerton brothers, owners, of Bradley, loved duck hunting.

They had this lodge built and would bring in good customers for a morning or two of shooting.

Accompanied by Bradley Vice-President Omar Hilton and one of the leaders of Potlatch, which had just bought Bradley, we rode up to the camp one bright winter's day. We didn't hunt: just visited.

The camp was situated on a high place with some little river circling around it (could it have been the White?). Luncheon was served on plates that had the "Bradley Brand" emblazoned thereon.

I think Clyde Tracy was running the camp that season. Joe Reaves III ran it later.

Food was plenteous and wonderful.

Prior to breaking out the groceries, H.C. Clayton, later sales manager, conducted some sort of ceremony about wild turkeys or something.

Mr. Clayton was a clever kind of fellow, stepfather of Mrs. Mickey Tucker and one of the three best men in Bradley County, Rusty Rowell.

Forrest Girdner was there, of course.

So was the top man at Warren Bank and Trust, a visitor like us.

Meek Singer was a giant of a man with a giant's appetite both to dine and to libate.

Too many of the people in this memory are no longer with us.

Price you pay for approaching age 72.

They've built several new four-unit apartments on Burnett Road, west of the Southern mill and "toothpick", where logs are stored for the winter. Assume these are low-rent public housing.

Good-lookin' buildings.

If you haven't seen 'em, drive by for an inspection.

In antiquity, my grandfather had a farm northwest of that site: used to grow strawberries on it.

Couldn't find it now if I tried, and fervently, too.

Mr. A.R. Bratton and his wife Grace resided at the now-disappeared community of Forrester in Scott County in the 'thirties, as did the family of retired water department manager Don Copeland.

The Brattons came to Warren where he worked as a master machinist of woodworking equipment. They used to laugh and tell about Forester, rural as it was, and how they all operated there on batter powered radios.

The family of a lad named Billy Roy Wilson resided nearby: he's now Federal Judge Bill Wilson of Little Rock. Mr. Bratton succumbed the other day.

Grace has been gone several years.

Good friends.

Good folks.

BCMC Hospital board discusses renovating or rebuilding facility

By Zach Killian

Architects Paul Gregory and John Dailey, from Polk, Stanley, Wilcox Architects presented their master plan to the Bradley County Medical Center Board on Thursday. The two guests shared their findings of what needed to be worked on at the hospital facility.

It is important to note the facility is still in operation and remains safe to use to the public.

The architects shared their methods for conducting the master plan for the hospital. They are:

- Visual inspection of the building, site, and major equipment.
- Review old construction drawings.
- Photograph the facility and the site.
- Conduct interviews with the hospital leadership and staff.
- Conduct surveys.
- Collect relevant data on the hospital performance.
- Develop options.
- Estimate costs of the options.
- Prepare presentation.
- Review.
- Present.

During their analysis, they had several findings that were presented to the board. The concrete at the service entrance was the same concrete since the construction of the hospital in 1951.

The helipad was degraded and with no lights. It was also found to have a poor surface.

The emergency entrances were found to be a pedestrian hazard and were narrow and sloped. The hospital roof surface had also degraded.

Inside the hospital, they reported more rooms were needed for inpatient needs. There were no separations between pre-op and post-op and no therapy gym.

It was reported about 80 percent of the MEP equipment was beyond its useful service life. There were plumbing and electrical issues reported.

After reporting their findings, the architects presented pros and cons of building a new hospital facility that was reduced in size on a primary flat road. They said it would be the fastest solution. It would provide a positive impact for the county. Having a new facility would help recruit medical staff and retain more Bradley County patients.

Some of the cons they mentioned were a higher initial cost, an unknown location, moving time and expense, and any possible county lease or tax implications.

There was discussion whether to renovate or completely rebuild a new facility. The cost of a new facility would range between $12 million and $25 million.

It was also mentioned the Bradley County Medical Center was the oldest facility in the area.

In the meantime, they provided solutions the hospital could do. A few of the solutions presented include repairing HVAC and the plumbing. Another solution was to overhaul the website and make a new logo. It was also mentioned the name might want to be changed. They suggested talking to financial experts and find other funding options.

In the board's regular business, French Wynne was welcomed as the new member of the BCMC board.

It was commented that telehealth could be how patients see specialists in the county.

CEO Leslie Huitt reported they were working on finding an issue with accounts receivable. She also presented the financial report to the board.

CNO Jamie Wolfe reported

COVID was up and down in the county and he didn't want to completely relax on masking inside the facility. He said they keep up to date on weekly COVID numbers. The hospital was still seeing COVID patients. He also reported flu had begun to decrease.

Wolfe said they were working on continuing nursing education and getting staff certified in areas.

He shared the DAISY awards had started this year with Tina Battles being awarded. Rebecca Powell and Sabrina Peacock were two of the nominees. A celebration of life was held for the late Tammy Hensley.

Vice President of Support Services Marilyn Johnson reported they were working on applying for USDA grants.

Maintenance Director Tim Saunders reported work on the Kids First building was still in the process of being repaired. The building was heavily damaged by flooding.

He reported the generator at the rural health clinic was in operation.

He shared they had received two bids for roof repairs. He planned to wait for more bids to come in.

The next board meeting will be on Thursday, February 23.

Arkansas History Minute

by
Dr. Kenneth Bridges

Bill Carr was once the fastest man in the world. And it all started in Pine Bluff, Arkansas.

William Arthur Carr was born in Pine Bluff in 1909. His early life was not unusual. He, like so many boys, loved to run, and he could run faster than all the others. His parents believed in the importance of education and encouraged him to finish high school where he also pursued athletics. Carr would graduate from Pine Bluff High School in 1927.

In 1929, he enrolled at the prestigious Wharton Business School at the University of Pennsylvania, where his academic abilities matched his gift for speed. He would rise to co-captain the varsity track team and would never lose a race while at Penn. His string of victories and good nature made him a popular figure on campus, leading him to become president of his sophomore class in 1930. In his senior year, he was elected to the honors society.

The year 1932 would be a year of wonder for Bill Carr. The Olympics were coming to Los Angeles that summer, the first time they had come to America since the 1904 Olympics in St. Louis.

Carr had steadily built a reputation and was the 1931 AAU indoor 300-meter winner, but he was facing the phenomenal runner Ben Eastman of Stanford University, who many sports writers predicted would take the gold medal that year and had set a world record at another race in March.

That spring, in the IC4A intercollegiate championships, the best college runners in the nation gathered to compete. Carr and Eastman outpaced the rest of the field, and Carr edged out Eastman, winning the 400 meters in 47.0 seconds. Two weeks later, the two would face off once again at the Olympic trials. Carr, in a blaze of speed, finished in 46.9 seconds in the 400 meters.

At the Olympics, the rivalry between Carr and Eastman took center stage. On August 5, the 400 meter race was held. Eastman took an early lead, eventually getting a lead of almost three meters on Carr. Bill Carr piled on an extra burst of speed, putting everything he had into the last stretch of the race. He caught Eastman, and as the finish line approached, pulled ahead, eventually winning by two meters and a fraction of a second. Bill Carr won the gold medal with a world record time of 46.2 seconds. Two days later, the 1600-meter relay was held. He led the American team to the gold medal again with a world record 3 minute, 8.2 second race.

He was one of the most celebrated athletes in the world for his triumphs. But his glory would be cut short. In January 1933, a brutal car wreck left him with a broken pelvis and two broken ankles. He would never run again.

He would graduate in 1933 with an economics degree. He married and had one son. He would spend the next several years as an insurance executive and then served as an officer in naval intelligence during World War II. After the war, he would work as an executive with safety equipment manufacturing companies.

Arkansas would never forget his successes. His was the first two-time gold medalist from the state. In 1962, he was inducted into the Arkansas Athletic Hall of Fame in Little Rock just before his sudden death in Tokyo in 1966.

Senate Week in Review from Ben Gilmore Senator

The first three weeks of the 2023 legislative session have been remarkable for the wide variety of issues the Senate has addressed.

Public schools will get more flexibility in setting their academic calendar, thanks to Senate passage of legislation that widens the window of dates in which the school may begin.

Good Samaritan legislation passed by the Senate will add protections for individuals and organizations that try to prevent suicides.

Like other government employees, school staff will be allowed to take up to 15 days of leave if they're for emergencies if they're in the Civil Air Patrol.

Environmental regulations will be loosened slightly, to allow the burning of vegetation as a method of disposal.

People who want to become massage therapists will be able to start at the apprentice level, thanks to legislation that allows licensing of student and apprentice therapists.

Almost every local and state government in Arkansas flies the American flag every day. Legislation approved by the Senate will require those flags to be made in the United States. The requirement applies to Arkansas flags too.

An obscure statute, which most people were not aware of, will be repealed. It required motorists to turn off the ignition of their motor vehicle when they left it unattended. In effect it made outlaws of everyone who started their car in the driveway on winter mornings to warm up while they step back indoors to finish getting ready for work.

Senate Bill 47 is a bill of one paragraph that deletes the section in the Arkansas code that required drivers to always turn off their ignitions when leaving the car.

The Senate approved legislation to classify drag shows as adult entertainment if they appeal to the audience's prurient interest. The sponsors say it will prevent sexualized performances in front of children.

The Senate Education Committee endorsed legislation that encourages schools to dedicate the final week of January as Holocaust Education week. Beginning in the fall, all public schools must teach courses on the causes and effects of the Holocaust, which refers to the systematic murder of more than six million Jews and other people by the Nazi regime of German during the 1930s and 1940s.

A purpose of the requirement is to teach children about the effects of bullying, stereotyping, bigotry and discrimination. Designating the last week of January as Holocaust Awareness Week will be encouraged, but not mandated.

The Senate will soon vote on legislation to clarify that a GED is the equivalent of a high school diploma when people apply for a job.

The Senate also will consider legislation to prohibit serious sex offenders from owning or operating unmanned aircraft, such as drones.

By late in the week, 131 Senate bills and 262 House bills had been filed. In past regular sessions, it's usual for more than 2,000 bills to be introduced. Between 200 and 300 of those will be budget bills for state agencies, institutions of higher education and public schools. Typically, regular sessions last for 90 to 100 days.

Protecting the United States and our interests is a fundamental responsibility for the federal government. Our founders made this role clear when they wrote the Constitution with the intent to, in part, "provide for the common defense."

Today we understand how vital that is in the face of threats from adversaries and competitors around the world.

The Chinese Communist Party is actively seeking to displace the United States from atop the international order. Russia openly threatens global security and wages unprovoked wars to expand its influence and territory. Iran continues to pursue nuclear weapons and underwrite terrorist activity in the Middle East and beyond.

There are numerous other challenges on the horizon, which simply underscores the need to ensure America's military is always able and ready to defend our homeland and protect our interests.

One thing Natural State residents should feel increasing pride and excitement with is Arkansas's growing footprint in the national security space.

In addition to the vital ongoing missions at Little Rock Air Force Base, Pine Bluff Arsenal, Camp Robinson in North Little Rock, Ebbing Air National Guard Base in Fort Smith and the Fort Chaffee Joint Maneuver Training Center, we have been fortunate – through a combination of hard work, strategic planning and collaboration – to welcome key defense industries to Camden where a skilled workforce and cutting-edge technology are producing vital weapons and tools that help America and our allies maintain superiority on the battlefield.

I have always believed in the value of this project and advocated public and private commitments to it because it's truly a win-win – jobs and economic development for the region and enhanced national security capabilities for our country.

Most recently, the Fiscal Year 2023 National Defense Authorization Act provided further significant investments in these enterprises, assuring all involved with this partnership of its long-term viability.

Our state is also on the cusp of adding an even higher profile contribution to our national security résumé with Fort Smith's selection as the preferred location to host the Air Force's future F-35 Foreign Military Sales (FMS) program that trains military personnel from allied nations on the fifth-generation fighter jet. This development represents yet another significant contribution to our national defense while, at the same time, promising to yield tremendous benefits for the region and our state.

The Arkansas Congressional delegation and the Governor's office have worked hand-in-hand to support this endeavor, including through securing critical funding and facilitating beneficial dialogue between the Department of Defense, state leaders and our allies abroad that plan to participate.

This work continued in January as I traveled to Germany, Poland and Finland to discuss our shared defense initiatives and partnership in F-35 training. The meetings were an opportunity to reassure our allies that Arkansas remains committed to this opportunity and stands ready to support any needs for their success and our own.

This productive trip was just the latest effort to champion Arkansas's role in U.S. national security. Our state has incredible resources and features that are ready-made to help ensure the federal government can, as the Constitution envisioned, defend our country.

Arkansans should feel confident that your elected officials will continue to advocate fiercely for our state to further expand its ability to contribute to that foundational duty.

CASA Board holds annual retreat; finalizes plans for Blue Tie Gala fundraiser

Special to The Eagle

The CASA (Court Appointed Special Advocate) of the 10th Judicial District's Board of Directors met Saturday, January 21 at the Crossett Chamber of Commerce for their annual retreat.

CASA is a non-profit organization composed of highly trained volunteers responsible for speaking up and advocating for the best interest of abused and neglected foster children in the courtroom and other settings. The winter retreat provides Board members the opportunity to receive updates on the work of the organization, discuss the direction of the organization, as well as finalize plans for the organization's annual fundraiser, the Blue Tie Gala.

Jerri Willis-Mendiola, Director of CASA of the 10th Judicial District, started the meeting with updates on the number of children currently in foster care in the five county district as compared to the State of Arkansas and nation. The 10th Judicial District includes the southeast Arkansas counties of Ashley, Bradley, Chicot, Deshae, and Drew. Among all five counties, there are currently 58 children in foster care, with the most being in Ashley county. Twenty-two of these children have a CASA advocate working with them.

Willis-Mendiola also provided the Board with an update on staffing and volunteer activities and accomplishments during the previous year. Staff members remain committed to recruiting new volunteers to serve all children in foster care in the five county service area. "Volunteers are critical in CASA's mission to advocate for the best interest of these vulnerable children in foster care," she stated. "It is imperative that we continue to grow the numbers of volunteers to keep up with the number of children who come into foster care," she continued. Volunteers work with child welfare professionals, educators, and service providers to ensure Judges have the information they need to make the most well-informed decisions for each child.

Following Willis-Mendiola's updates, Board member Lindsay Grissom presented the history of CASA—starting with the founding of the national organization in 1976. "The inspiration to start CASA came from juvenile judge David Soukup in Seattle, Wash. Soukup had insufficient information to make a life-changing decision for a three-year-old girl who had suffered from child abuse," Grissom told the Board. Following that situation, Soukup began asking by word-of-mouth that anyone interested in being involved in helping foster kids to come to an informational meeting he was hosting. "Soukup asked six or seven community members. When he arrived to the meeting, he was surprised to see approximately 50 people in attendance," Grissom said. "That is how he knew his idea was going to work," she stated.

Next, Board Member Tammy Rosales provided information on potential fundraising opportunities. "It costs about $1200 per year, per child for CASA to provide the necessary advocacy a child needs while in foster care. "As a non-profit organization, we rely heavily on the generosity of donations," she said. The annual Blue Tie Gala plays a huge part in raising money to serve CASA children.

Cassidy Mansur then outlined a vision for 2023, starting with the annual Blue Tie Gala to be held on April 1 at the Crossett Event Center. Mansur said last year's inaugural Gala was a huge success. "Everyone who attended last year had a wonderful time and we were able to raise a lot of money for the kids who depend on us," she told the Board. She continued, "This year, we have an opportunity to build on last year's success."

Willis-Mendiola then told the Board that over the next six weeks, leading into the Gala, will be the most important to making the event a success. Board members reviewed current Gala sponsorships and set individual goals for recruiting new sponsorships. Board members will be going into the communities that CASA serves soliciting donors of all levels and silent auction items. "We have six sponsorship packages at multiple price points providing a wide range of both individual donors and businesses to support the Gala and build on the success of last year's event," said Mansur. Mansur stated that sponsorship packages start at $250 and go up to $2500. "Although we have these six levels of sponsorships, please be sure to tell everyone that CASA will be appreciative of any size donation," Willis-Mendiola exclaimed.

"I can't think of a more fun evening for such a worthy cause," stated Grissom. "We will have a live band, amazing food and beverages, a silent auction, a wine pull, and the best part—we will get to meet and recognize some of the foster parents and incredible CASA volunteers with an awards presentation," she continued.

Anyone wishing to support CASA, Blue Tie Gala, or become a volunteer, may contact Willis-Mendiola at 870-367-9949 or jerri.willis@casaofthe10th.org.

Prepare for severe weather

Special to The Eagle

Entergy Arkansas is staging crews, equipment and supplies in areas of the state likely to be the hardest hit in the coming days based on a forecast for sleet, freezing rain, and ice accumulations. In the event of power outages, the local workforce consisting of scouts, vegetation crews, linemen and more is prepared to begin restoration as quickly as they can safely do so. Additional resources from other mutual assistance energy companies have also been requested.

Extra weight on power lines caused by ice can cause them to fall or stretch, possibly causing power interruptions. While Entergy Arkansas manages growth of trees and bushes near electrical equipment, one half-inch of ice can increase the weight of a tree limb as much as 30 times, causing even smaller limbs to bend or snap, falling onto power lines and causing an outage.

Additionally, wet and icy roads can make travel hazardous for crews. In the event of power outages, crews will begin assessing damages, then repairing equipment and restoring power as quickly as it is safe to do so.

Customers should prepare now

It's important to be prepared at your home or business for freezing weather and possible power outages with a basic emergency supply kit, along with a family emergency plan. Act now to winterize your home or business with some simple steps like insulating water pipes, caulking and weather-stripping doors and windows, and ensuring fire extinguishers are ready for use.

Entergy Arkansas storm prep happens year-round

Arkansas was plunged into sub-freezing temperatures the last two winters at about this same time, causing scattered power outages. Entergy continually reviews its data and processes and identifies ways to be more prepared for prolonged freezes.

Each of the company's power plants has a customized plan to support fleetwide winter preparedness efforts, including:

- Insulating critical equipment using improved methods and materials to protect them from lower temperatures.
- Insulating all piping, with the potential for standing water during normal operation, to prevent freezing.
- Designing and building permanent windbreaks or enclosures to protect pumps and other critical equipment.
- Exploring the use of wireless instrument line monitoring systems to monitor temperatures of critical equipment.

FEATURES FROM THE BIBLE
 TRUTH IN SCRIPTURE
Abram and Lot
 Genesis 13
 The famine that sent Abram from Canaan to Egypt was over so Abram returned to Negev with his wife and his nephew, Lot, and everything he had. Abram was wealthy with livestock, silver and gold.
 They continued to Bethel and on to the area between Bethel and Ai, where he had previously built an altar. There Abram called on the name of the Lord.
 Lot also had flocks and herds and the land would not support both families. Quarreling arose between Abram's herdsmen and Lot's herdsmen. There were also the Canaanites and Perizzites living in the land.
 Being a peacemaker, Abram suggested that he and Lot part company. He gave Lot the privilege of choosing which part of the land he would take.
 Lot chose the land near Sodom because it appeared to be more fertile. Abram continued to live in the less fertile land of Canaan.

Samuel Fullerton

Samuel Baker Fullerton, Jr. of Warren died peacefully in his sleep January 28, 2023. He was 91. Sam was born July 10, 1931 in St. Louis, Mo, the son of Samuel Baker Fullerton and Mary Styron Fullerton. He graduated from Culver Military Academy, the Lawrenceville School and the University of Arkansas with a degree in Business Administration. Sam was married for 69 years to the love of his life, Tomme "Fufa" Triplett Fullerton. From the time they met and fell in love in the summer of 1952 until his death, Sam and Fufa were inseparable.

Fullerton served as a Second Lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force, stationed at Mobile, Ala, where he served as a war planner and in military logistics. In the Reserves, Sam reached the rank of Captain. Following his return to his hometown of Warren in 1956, he worked as an executive in the Bradley Lumber Company. He later founded and led Moro Gravel, Moro Inc., and L.A. Log Trailers. He served as a director of the Arkansas General Contractors. Fullerton built many sections of the Arkansas interstate system, including the I-40/430 Crystal Hill interchange, most of I-530 from Pine Bluff to Little Rock, and other sections of the interstate from Texarkana to Fort Smith. He also built many secondary roads and bridges all over the State of Arkansas. Following his retirement, Fullerton was recognized by his peers as a leader in the construction industry and was inducted into the Arkansas Construction Hall of Fame in 2004.

Fullerton was a long-time supporter of the Warren Public Schools. He served three decades as the school board representative and Chair of the Bradley County Equalization Board. He donated the site work to construct the Warren High School Auditorium/City of Warren Cultural Center and Lumberjack stadium, the latter in honor of his friend and business partner, Jim Hurley. Fullerton also donated playground material for the elementary school. Fullerton did the site preparation for the Warren Municipal Airport. He served as a Charter Member of the South East Arkansas Regional Intermodal Authority and as its treasurer from 1998 until 2011.

Fullerton was both an Elder and a Deacon at the First Presbyterian Church in Warren and served on the Board of the Arkansas Presbyterian Foundation and the Ferncliff Board. He was a lifelong supporter of the Razorbacks, a Broyles Matthews Scholarship donor, and a member of Xi Chapter of Kappa Sigma Fraternity, where he made many lasting friendships across the state. Fullerton was a Ducks Unlimited Life Sponsor, a voracious reader, and a lover of big black dogs.

Fullerton is survived by his wife Tomme "Fufa"; Fullerton; three children, Samuel Baker Fullerton, III (Phyllis) of De Witt, the Reverend Dr. Fairfax Fullerton Fair of Houston, Texas, and Arthur King Fullerton of New York City; one grandson, Barton Walker Fair, Jr. (Jessie) of Houston, Texas; and two great grandchildren, Sadie Rose Fair and Ashton Samuel Fair, both of Houston; and one nephew, Mickey Seeburg of Bozeman, Montana, only child of his late sister, Mary Lu Fullerton Seeburg.

A memorial service with Dr. Fair presiding will be held at the First Presbyterian Church of Warren on Tuesday, January 31st at 2 pm with a reception to follow in the church Fellowship Hall. Pallbearers are Dr. Scott Claycomb, Thomas Frazer, Clint Horne, Bryan Martin, Bob Milton, Nazaire Minton, Scott Richardson, and Neil Wisener.

Honorary Pallbearers are Murray Claycomb, Bill Jones, John King, Jack Miller, Dr. Kerry Pennington, and the Elders of The First Presbyterian Church, Warren.

preparation and restoration information that is updated throughout the day.

Safety after the storm

Restoration in extremely cold conditions may take a little longer, as energizing homes requires a different and methodical process. Rather than simply energizing an entire power line all at once, we must bring customers back online one section at a time to avoid damage to our system thereby worsening the situation.

In the event power is lost at your home, customers are advised to turn off breakers to major appliances to prevent a spike in demand when power is restored. Turn them back on one at a time when your home is ready to receive power.

Also, keep refrigerator doors closed but open cabinets that house water pipes. In doing so, food is less likely to spoil, and pipes are less likely to freeze and burst.

If you choose to use a generator, be sure to follow all manufacturer's guidelines for safe usage.

Stay away from downed lines

Remember, one-half inch of ice can add 500 pounds of weight on power lines, as well as tree limbs which could then fall onto power lines and people. It's safest to avoid the area near ice-laden power lines and tree limbs; however, if you see downed or low-hanging lines, stay away, and call 1-800-9OUTAGE to report them.

Other efforts to prepare and maintain critical systems and infrastructure across the grid in advance of colder temperatures also included:

Inspecting and testing equipment that can be impacted by extreme cold such as gas-filled circuit breakers.

Ensuring the readiness of assets that provide electric service to critical gas infrastructure and other points of delivery that are vital to support generation reliability and resiliency.

Inspecting and maintaining substations and transmission lines that are critical to Bulk Electric System reliability.
