Mainline Health Systems Warren Clinic to hold grand reopening

Special to The Eagle

Mainline Health Systems Inc. (MHSI) announced on Monday the grand reopening of its Warren Clinic that has recently undergone more than $325,000 in renovations thanks to the American Rescue Plan Act Funding for Health Centers grant from HRSA.

When visiting the updated facility, patients will enter a centralized lobby opposed to three separate waiting areas. Two of those lobbies were converted into exam rooms and provider offices, expanding MHSI's capacity for bringing on more providers. A new ramp has also been added to make access easier for some patients and the entire inside space has been freshly painted and has new flooring, said Amanda Gilbert, chief project officer.

Ashley Anthony, chief operating officer said, the clinic has been around since the early 1980's and Mainline Health Systems has no plans to leave the location.

"We intend to continue providing the same great care that folks have come to know from Dr. Joe Wharton and Dr. Kerry Pennington who have well-established relationships with patients in the area," Anthony said. "We see this as an investment in the health of this community and while we know that visiting the doctor sometimes means there's something wrong, it's our hope that having a professional and accommodating space helps make the experience a little better for each patient who does come to see us."

On Friday, March 17 from 1 to 3 p.m., the clinic, located at 1012 E. Church Street Suite B, will celebrate the grand reopening with refreshments and a COVID-19 vaccine and booster clinic, all free and open to the public.

Since 1978, Mainline Health Systems has served the residents of Southeast Arkansas with a compassionate approach and a commitment to the highest standard of medical and dental care.

From its first office in Portland all those years ago, Mainline Health Systems has grown to 28 locations across Ashley, Bradley, Chicot, Cleveland, Drew, Grant, and Lincoln counties.

More than 50 vendors sold various goods at the Farmers Daughter Trade Days on Friday and Saturday. Hundreds of visitors attended the event both days. Vendors sold anything from handmade crafts to homemade food.

Community effort encourages reading

By Zach Killian

"The more that you read, the more things you will know. The more that you learn, the more places you'll go," says famed author Dr. Seuss.

The community of Warren and the Warren School District is helping students get excited about reading by getting involved in the R.I.S.E. program. R.I.S.E. stands for Reading Initiative for Student Excellence. The program is an award given to the community based on the partnership in projects that support and promote literacy.

The Warren School District applied for a SOAR Grant last year and the district was awarded the grant. The grant is a two-year grant for $176,000 total. The purpose of the grant is to promote a love of reading in schools.

The district brought in the community to promote reading with 10 events that could be chosen from. The events were: New Parent Imagination Library, the Book Bus, Family Reading Night, Community Leaders Reading to Students, Pink Tomato Festival, Community Easter Egg Hunt, Look Who Got Caught Reading, Author Visit, and Community Book Buzz.

The Warren Rotary Club partnered with the school to participate in Dolly Parton's Imagination Library, which allows a child to receive one free book a month from the age they are born until five years old. The school handed out registration forms for the program to parents at parent-teacher conferences. The school will help the Rotary Club with the Pink Tomato Festival and the proceeds will be donated to Dolly Parton's Imagination Library program.

The Book Bus will be a school bus driven around town that will give away free books that were purchased with the grant. Date and location will be advertised at a later date.

Local businesses set up reading corners for children to read at like the one pictured here at BCMC Rural Health Clinic.

Brunson Elementary both had family reading nights where parents could read with the students.

Community leaders also read to students in the classrooms. Rhonda Williams, School Improvement Specialist for the Warren School District, said a lot of them volunteered to read to students after it was advertised.

A booth will be set up during the Pink Tomato Festival where free books will be given out to all ages. The school will also be participating in the community Easter egg hunt where a booth will be set up to pass out free books.

The school is participating in "Look Who Got Caught Reading". When a student is seen reading without being told to read, their picture is taken for the program. Williams said parents can send pics of their child reading by choice to rhonda.williams@warrensd.org for the program.

Two authors have visited the elementary schools. One local author, Sara Daniels, spoke to Eastside and Brunson students. Daniels wrote a children's book and three adult books. She also teaches 9th grade English at Warren High School. Daniels shared with students what made her want to become a writer and how she got her book published.

Food trucks and Market on Main on topic for Chamber

Food trucks and Market on Main were the main topics of discussion at the Bradley County Chamber of Commerce meeting on Monday.

Terrie White said the Bryant Building would possibly be used as a food truck court once the building is demolished. She commented there would be electricity and water there. The Chamber discussed different ways to bring in food trucks like what is done in Monticello on their "Food Truck Fridays".

The Chamber of Commerce also talked about various ways to advertise the Market on Main. It was decided to look into promoting Market on Main on the electronic billboard downtown Warren.

There were also discussions on the time of the Market on Main Festival. Some brought up the current time of the festival, at 8 a.m., as being too early for people to come to the Market on Main. After talking about it, the Chamber decided to move the event up to 10 a.m. to give people time to attend. The next Market on Main will be at 10 a.m. on Saturday, April 15 at the old Martin Lot in downtown Warren.

JaNelle Lipton said the committee had met to make changes to the bylaws. One of the changes was changing the name of the "President" position to "Chairman of the Board".

Passin' the Faith Along

By REV. JIM BALES
 Pastor - First Assembly of God

Carnal Christians

Recently I saw a sign that said, "Wanted-clean fill dirt." I thought those words don't go together. How can you get clean dirt?

Since pastoring, counseling, and traveling as an evangelist, I have talked with people whose ideas are like that sign. Their lives are full of impure mixtures. Sometimes they are referred to as "carnal Christians".

A carnal person's life is governed by bodily pleasures and appetites. But a person who commits his life to Jesus Christ should be able to say, "I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I but Christ liveth in me: and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me." (Galatians 2:20).

To suggest that a person can be both Christian and carnal is not only incorrect, but impossible.

A man responded to my question, "Are you a Christian?" with the answer- "Well, sort of." I replied, "SORT OF? Did Christ 'sort of' die for you?"

An impure mixture of thoughts has invaded this hour. We mix things that cannot be mixed.

Can a person be carnally minded and Christlike? "For to be carnally minded is death but to be spiritually minded is life and peace. Because the carnal mind is enmity against God; for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be." (Romans 8:6-7).

"For such a time as this," God is calling Christians to step out of their carnal, worldly, self-centered lifestyles into an exciting and fulfilling walk with Him.

God once asked, "Whom shall I send and who will go for us?"

The response from a man named Isaiah was "Here am I; send me" (Isaiah 6:8). Oh, how God longs to hear men and women answer as Isaiah did. "Lord, I'll go! Send me."

How will you respond to His call?

Oldtimer's Notebook

By Robert L. Newton

The publishers of The Eagle Democrat have chosen to publish articles from the past Oldtimer's Notebook in memory of Robert L. Newton. This article was first published February 7, 2001.

Almost 20 years ago, our good neighbor, the late S.M. Dixon, arranged for us to have some good seats at Oaklawn, the racetrack at Hot Springs.

We've enjoyed those seats, and the track, in the intervening years, not to "win any money", but simply for a chance for a midwinter outing and to see people we never see at any other time, like Judge DuVal L. Purkins' nephew, Glen Williams, once of Hope in Hempstead County, surely a Hendrix Classmate, Leo Trulock, the Sherrill banker and farmer.

The hosses started running around the track again the other day: we quietly gave thanks for being able to be there, and to sit in those seats Sam Dixon provided for us during the first administration of Ronald Reagan as President of the United States.

Almost 40 years ago, a young Idaho man named Rex Hancock came to Warren and Bradley County "on mission" as a missionary for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints (the Mormon church, of Utah).

He says he came to Warren with a fellow missionary; they rode bikes around town as they engaged in their work.

He recalls they were asked to make speeches at a Warren High assembly, and to meet with the ministerial alliance of Warren.

Hancock was here in the early 'sixties, just before President John F. Kennedy was shot in Dallas.

The onetime LDS missionary came back the other day, traveling in a giant pickup that towed an equally-imposing house trailer.

Accompanied by his wife, Elder Hancock had been on a midwinter trip into the East.

He came here to get another look at Warren, but he found himself "completely turned-around" as he sought the place where he rented a tiny house for himself and his companion missionary.

Someway, he wandered down our one-way street and knocked on the door.

Elder Hancock is an excavation contractor in Idaho: can't work during the winter because the ground's frozen.

He is cordial, gracious, and probably weighs at least 150 pounds more than he did when he was riding back and forth on Warren streets on that bike.

We talked at some length, trying to figure out where he rented that small house.

The opinion was given by me that the place was near the "Allen House", which once sat on the whole property where East Shields is now situated: the aforementioned Mr. Dixon and his longtime friend, Lovett M. Reaves, bought the place, subdivided it, and made space for houses including ours and the parsonage of the First United Methodist Church (a copy of the president's home at Lyon College, Batesville).

Warren Junior Rotarians Karis Files and Natalie Cooper

UAPB Coach Hampton speaks at Rotary Club

Special to The Eagle
 The Rotary Club of Warren met Tuesday, March 7 inside First United Methodist Church for its weekly meeting. A large crowd of Rotarians and visitors were on hand to listen to the program.

The first order of business was the Rotary Club voting to use a portion of their Foundation Points to recognize LaDonna Mathur for her contributions to the Imagination Library. She will now be an honorary Rotary member and a Paul Harris Fellow.

The Rotary Club of Warren is heavily involved with the Imagination Library and our proceeds from the "Happy Box" every week go to the project. Then the club heard from Warren Junior Rotarian Karis Files and will hear from Natalie Cooper next week.

Andrew Tolbert then introduced his program of UAPB Head Football Coach Alonzo Hampton. A native of Warren, Hampton accepted the job last December to become head coach of the Golden Lions. A multi-sport star at Warren High School, Hampton played college football at ULM (formerly Northeast Louisiana University) and had stints in the NFL and NFL Europe.

After his playing days he

coached under Bo Hembree at Warren High School. He was also the head coach at Dumas High School before becoming a volunteer coach at UAPB in 2006, which turned into a permanent position over the next few years.

Hampton then coached at Western Kentucky, South Florida, Oregon, and Florida State before coming back to ULM in 2021. The bulk of Hampton's speech focused on his upbringing in Warren and how proud he is of his hometown.

He spoke about the quality education he received at Warren High School and a number of his mentors from his time in Warren. Additionally, he stressed the importance of academics and how they come first.

He plans to instill the importance of academics into his players at UAPB and spoke at length about how he plans to mold them into better men, not just football players.

Coach Hampton answered a few questions and wanted to thank the Rotary Club and the community of Warren. He said he's glad to be back close to home and wants everyone in Warren to support the Golden Lions in any way they possibly can.

The Elder finally got that truck and trailer turned around and started back toward Idaho.

Upon reflection, we decided he was probably talking about the little "servant house" that once sat behind the S.B. Meek mansion on Pine.

He said an elderly lady made her home in the "big house" and rented them the little one.

This would have been the imposing Edith Meek Thomas, middle daughter of the Meeks, widow of Zoeth King Thomas, manager of the Southern Lumb Company in the 'thirties (the Thomas' built the house on Pine now occupied by the Lorin McLouds: Mr. Thomas died before he was age 50).

Elder Hancock said he enjoyed his time in Warren back there 40 years ago...that the town "looks great" but "different now".

Dorothy Henderson, member of the city council in Warren, has been honored as "woman of the year" in Star City, where she heads the Lincoln County social services office.

Mrs. Henderson is married to Larry Henderson, who heads Southeast Arkansas Community Action.

Nice and well-deserved honor for Mrs. Henderson.

Noticed they sold the old Donaghey Building in Little Rock the other day for $600,000.

We remembered the structure from childhood, when my parents took me there to "have my tonsils out". Doctors did that sort of thing in their offices 50 years ago and more.

Afterward, we spent the night at the Albert Pike Hotel. Bigtime stuff.

Back then, all the big doctors were located in the Donaghey Building. They had only blocks to travel to see their patients at St. Vincent on High Street (now M.L. King street) and Baptist, ever closer.

As for tonsils, I heard a story once that topped mine.

Many here will recall Miss Jessye Mae Harley, a teacher of piano who was the long-time organist at what they then called the "First M.E. Church South".

Miss Harley's brother, Roy, who worked in the office at the Bradley Store, said Miss Jessye went to the doctor as a teenager in Malvern: he proceeded to remove her tonsils and she then walked home (to a house in Malvern, where the family then resided).

Oldtimers will remember "Miss Jessye" got around on crutches always.

Imagine her swinging along on those crutches in Malvern town, her just-removed tonsils wrapped in a piece of paper in her pocket.

Maybe people were tougher then.

"Miss Jessye" sure was...

Roy Harley married the elder sister of J.B. Frazer, founder of Frazer's Funeral Home. A big, cordial, friendly man, he had a lot of stories like one he told about Bradley Lumber Company President Robert W. Fullerton.

Mr. Fullerton, a graduate of Cornell, was sent to Warren by his father (along with his younger brother, Baker) to run a lumbering property Samuel Holmes Fullerton had purchases.

The historic "bachelor house" at Main and Wheeler, new home for the Merchants and Planters Agency (once the location of Derby Insurance) was built for the two single brothers as a residence.

During the Depression, Mr. Fullerton was in the Bradley Store and asked Roy his opinion about somebody and that person's credit (everybody's was shaky then, of course).

"He's just as good as cash", Roy Harley replied, expansively.

"Nothing's as good as cash," responded the elder of the Fullerton brothers.

Mrs. Minnie Harley's sister, Julius, became the wife of Monroe Brown, a pharmacist with the drug store of W.R. Appleton, a Lockesburg (Sevier County) native who married a Garison (one "R") from Bradley County.

More later, of course.

Williams said she was saddened by the passing of author Glenn Lansdale, who was from Warren. She said they want to do an author showcase to honor his memory.

Many businesses have participated in the Community Book Buzz event, where a "reading corner" is set up. Williams said this has been a big hit.

Williams said she was contacted to apply for the R.I.S.E. Community Award after it was noticed all the community involvement in the SOAR grant. It was recommended to her to apply for the award.

The award is given to the community, not the school. The school district has to partner with people in the community. The more partners they have, the better the chance of receiving the award. The award will be given in September.

There needs to be at least six partners at each event. Williams said there are different ways to be a partner by volunteering at the events, donating water or books to hand out at events.

School staff provided books and provided social media advertisement for the campaign by using the hashtag #readacrosswarren. The school also hosted a book fair.

Warren Mayor Gregg Reep provided publicity at all speaking engagements and civic organization meetings about the READ program and #readacrosswarren.

The Bradley County Chamber of Commerce, First State Bank, Mane Event Salon, State Farm Insurance, George-Marsh Clinic, C2 Floor, Clanton Farms, Bradley County Medical Center and Main Street Market established book corners in their businesses. Weyerhaeuser donated books to Brunson Elementary. Rob Reep, owner of Saline River Chronicle donated copies of the children's book "Let's Go Fishin'" by the late Glenns Lansdale in his memory.

The Warren Women's Club handed out dictionaries to all third graders in the Warren School District.

Students have been enjoying and getting involved in the reading. The students in Jennifer Milton's, 12th grade English teacher, creative writing class have written children's books as part of the class. During Read Across America Week, the students read their books to the students at Brunson to help promote reading.

Williams said she was also amazed at the positive reaction from Warren Middle School students. She said the community leaders have been reading at the middle school and have commented the students were receptive to the program. She said the students have also enjoyed the author visits.

The community has shown a lot of support and involvement in getting students to read.

If you would like to get involved or learn more information on this program, email Rhonda Williams at rhonda.williams@warrensd.org or call at 870-820-0135. Use the hashtag #readacrosswarren on social media to help promote and encourage reading in this community.

Arkansas History Minute

by
Dr. Kenneth Bridges

Some people are fortunate enough to have lives that are a front-seat to history. Respected University of Arkansas law professor Albert Witte was one such man.

Witte was born in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, in 1923. His parents moved several times when he was young before they divorced. Eventually, he and his mother settled in Erie, Pennsylvania, where he grew up and attended the local schools.

After graduating high school in 1942, he enlisted in the U. S. Army Air Force. He served as a bombardier, flying 35 missions and earning the Distinguished Flying Cross. After his 1945 discharge, he enrolled in college. He earned an undergraduate degree and a masters degree in English from the University of Chicago by 1950. After earning his masters degree, he worked as an English professor for two years at a college in Wisconsin. In 1952, he decided to take his life in a different direction and enrolled at the University of Wisconsin Law School.

Once he graduated and passed the Wisconsin bar exam, he briefly worked for a law firm before deciding to return to teaching. As a result, he was hired by the University of Arkansas Law School in 1957, embarking on a long and storied career. He retold the story years later about his arrival in Arkansas just as the Little Rock desegregation crisis was reaching its peak.

He left the university for two years in the early 1960s to teach at Emory University in Atlanta, Georgia, before returning to Arkansas. He was in high demand with other law schools. He served as visiting professor for four other universities, including the University of Arkansas at Little Rock.

He served on the hiring committee in 1973 when the university hired a young Bill Clinton, just recently graduating from Yale Law School, as a law professor. Witte served as a mentor and colleague with Clinton while he taught at the law school. In fact, university records still show Witte's official observation of Clinton's Constitutional Law class in October 1975. Overall, he was impressed, noting, "Professor Clinton seems to rely on an unstructured approach to the material. . . I thought his questions were good and many of the responses spirited and intelligent. . ."

Clinton resigned his position at the university after he became the state's attorney general in 1976, but Witte continued to teach. During the course of his career, Witte influenced the minds of young law students who would become prominent lawyers, judges, and politicians. He recalled in an interview that he had taught two future U. S. Senators, David Pryor and, years later, his son, Mark Pryor.

Witte lent his legal expertise to a variety of organizations. He served on the Fayetteville Planning Commission and as a consultant to the Southern Governor's Conference from 1969 to 1971. From 1981 to 1990, he served as Special Assistant Attorney General for Arkansas. For many years, he served as the faculty athletic representative for the University of Arkansas. He served on the boards of several college athletic organizations as a result which eventually led him to serving as president of the NCAA from 1989 to 1991.

In 1994, he retired from teaching full time. Though he was 71 by this point, he still felt he had much to contribute and continued to teach a reduced load of one or two classes each semester as an emeritus professor. He continued to teach for another two decades. On December 23, 2015, after the last class of the last semester, he died at the age of 92 in Fayetteville.

Senate Week in Review
from
Ben Gilmore
Senator

As the legislative session enters its final weeks, activity is in high gear.

The highlight of the week was the final passage of the governor's historic reform of Arkansas education.

Dozens of other important measures were advanced out of committee and approved by the Senate and House of Representatives.

Both chambers approved HB 1419 to change the rules for citizens' groups trying to place an issue on statewide ballots.

Currently, supporters of an initiative or proposed amendment must submit signatures from at least 15 counties. HB 1419 would require a minimum number of signatures from 50 counties. Arkansas has 75 counties.

The bill's sponsors say it is too easy for wealthy special interests to get an issue on the ballot. Opponents question whether the bill is constitutional.

Senate Bill 199 was sent to the governor for signing. It would extend the period in which a person can sue a physician for malpractice for performing gender transformation procedures on a minor.

Those procedures include surgery and hormone therapy. People who have had the procedures could file a malpractice suit up to 15 years after they turn 18.

The Senate passed SB 270 to expand the definition of sexual indecency with a child to include adults who knowingly enter and remain in a bathroom assigned to the opposite sex, if a minor is present.

It does not apply to parents with their own children who are under the age of seven.

The House passed HB 1156 to require schools to designate all bathrooms and changing areas as exclusively for boys or girls. If a student is unwilling or unable to use the boys or girls bathrooms, the school must provide a reasonable accommodation, such as a single-use room.

The Senate approved SB 262 to remove the power of the state Board of Education to require consolidation or annexation of a school districts whose student population falls below 350.

Act 195 repeals a state law that required teenagers under the age of 16 to get an employment certificate from the state Department of Labor as a condition for getting a job.

The House Committee on State Agencies and Governmental Affairs advanced HB 1513 to create an election integrity unit within the office of the state Attorney General.

The unit will work with the state Board of Election Commissioners and the Secretary of State. Its staff will track all violations of election and voter registration laws, and will oversee the hotline for reporting violations that is maintained by the Attorney General.

The House approved and a Senate committee advanced HB 1401 to cut from two years to one year the cumulative period that an able-bodied adult is eligible for welfare.

According to the bill's sponsor, more than half of the recipients of cash welfare in Arkansas have received it for longer than 18 months. Technically, the cash assistance program is under the Department of Workforce Services and is called the Transitional Employment Assistance Program.

HB 1401 would not affect children, people who cannot find work due to circumstances beyond their control, parents or caregivers over 60 and parents or caregivers with disabilities.

The 118th Congress has already provided multiple opportunities to roll back proposed or recently enacted rules, regulations and legislation that is bad for Arkansas and our country.

Republicans in Congress have been leading Congressional Review Act (CRA) joint resolutions of disapproval to challenge several ill-advised and potentially damaging orders from taking effect. These initiatives provide Congress an expedited mechanism to overturn certain federal agency actions. A joint resolution of disapproval under the CRA is also afforded special privileges that bypass normal Senate rules and allow for a vote on the Senate floor.

When a CRA resolution is approved by a simple majority in both chambers of Congress and signed by the president—or if Congress successfully overrides a presidential veto—the rule is invalidated.

I'm pleased we've already been able to draw bipartisan support for some CRA joint disapproval resolutions in the last month that are headed to the president's desk.

When the Biden administration issued a rule last November allowing ERISA retirement plan fiduciaries to politicize millions of Americans' retirement investments by favoring liberal ideological preferences like environmental, social and corporate governance factors, I joined my colleagues on a CRA to halt it.

Hard-working Arkansans want their money working for them, and focusing on anything else is a distraction. Fortunately, a few Democrats in the House and Senate voted with Republicans to protect millions of Americans' financial security and send this measure to President Biden's desk.

His administration has also put forward a burdensome Clean Water Act regulation discarding a commonsense rule that would protect our water systems and sources without eroding the rights of landowners. The Waters of the United States (WOTUS) decree will expand federal regulatory authority over virtually every pond, puddle and ditch nationwide.

A similar framework was advanced during the Obama administration only to be reformed by the Trump White House. Now President Biden wants to revert back to the misguided, far-reaching rule that fails to provide farmers, ranchers and private landowners certainty and predictability.

There is also bipartisan support to strike that down. Republicans and Democrats in the House of Representatives voted this month on a CRA resolution objecting to it and a similar result is likely in the Senate where a vote is expected soon.

Finally, just a few days ago Congress sent another CRA joint resolution of disapproval to the president, this time dealing with a disastrous crime bill the D.C. City Council passed over objections from the city's mayor and others. I was proud to sponsor this rebuke of a radical attempt to weaken penalties for certain crimes as the nation's capital experiences a surge in violence, criminal conduct and public safety concerns – and I wasn't alone.

Over 30 Democrats each in the House and Senate joined my Republican colleagues and me to stand up and say no to this very bad idea.

This string of bipartisan agreement and cooperation can continue, even beyond just CRA joint disapproval resolutions. For the good of Arkansas and our country, I'm committed to working in that spirit for the rest of this Congress.

ARKANSAS IS FILLED WITH BEAUTIFUL VIEWS
BUT PERHAPS NONE IS MORE IMPORTANT THAN THE VIEW INSIDE OUR GOVERNMENT.

We have a responsibility to you, our readers. It is our job to question authority, expose wrong-doings, fight injustice and get to the heart of the issues that matter most. We are watchdogs who advocate for accountability and transparency.

As we observe Sunshine Week, we celebrate why freedom of information through an open government is a bedrock of democracy. Information belongs in the hands of the people, and officials of government should never shield the public from this constitutional right. You deserve no less.

IT'S YOUR RIGHT TO KNOW.

4-H members represent Bradley County at 4-H Day at the Capitol

Special to The Eagle

Nine members of Bradley County 4-H attended the day-long festivities on February 28 to learn about state government, meet legislators and share their 4-H experience. For some, it was their first visit to the Arkansas Capitol.

Participating members include: Owen Roberson, Asher Weaver, Luke Cathey, Weston Gavin, Emanuel Strong, Benjamin Green, Paisleigh Stanley, Brooke Rawls, John Sawyer Murphy, 4-H Leader, Jessica Murphy, Agents, Michelle Carter and John Gavin.

Bradley 4-H members were among the more than 400 Arkansas 4-H members, agents, leaders and volunteers from 52 of the state's 75 counties who participated. The gathering is usually held every other year when the Legislature is in session. The 2021 event was cancelled because of the COVID-19 pandemic.

On Tuesday, 4-H members learned about the roles of the state's constitutional officers and heard from many of them, including Lt. Gov. Leslie Rutledge, Attorney General Tim Griffin, Treasurer Mark Lowery, Secretary of State John Thurston and Commissioner of State Lands Tommy Land.

Attorney General Tim Griffin urged the 4-H members to get to know their elected officials.

"A lot of people get to know their elected officials only when they need something. That's the wrong way to do it," Griffin told the group. "Get to know your elected officials early in life. Learn the process. Develop meaningful relationships now, so that when you become a community leader — and you will be — you will know people. When leaders know other leaders, they can't be stopped."

Bradley County 4-H members did just that. They visited Representative Jeff Wardlaw and Senator Ben Gilmore and discussed the differences between the House and the Senate and why someone would run for one office over the other.

Throughout the day, 4-H members watched sessions taking place in the House, Senate Arkansas Supreme Court. They also heard resolutions read aloud in the House and Senate, recognizing the positive impact of the Arkansas 4-H program on youth and proclaiming February 28 as 4-H Day. The group also visited the Treasurer's Office, where they got to stand inside the vault and hold $600,000 in cash.

The event gives 4-H members an opportunity to see government in action and encourages them to think about citizenship and civic responsibility — tenets of the 4-H program, along with leadership, healthy living and science and technology.

4-H is the youth development program of the Cooperative Extension Service, part of the University of Arkansas System Division of Agriculture. The program serves more than 144,000 youth statewide and is open to youth ages 5-19.

In Bradley County, more than 70 youth are part of 4-H.

The University of Arkansas System Division of Agriculture's mission is to strengthen agriculture, communities, and families by connecting trusted research to the adoption of best practices. The Division of Agriculture conducts research and extension work within the nation's historic land grant education system through the Agricultural Experiment Station and the Cooperative Extension Service.

The Division of Agriculture is one of 20 entities within the University of Arkansas System. It has offices in all 75 counties in Arkansas and faculty on five system campuses.

The University of Arkansas System Division of Agriculture offers all its Extension and Research programs to all eligible persons without regard to race, color, sex, gender identity, sexual orientation, national origin, religion, age, disability, marital or veteran status, genetic information, or any other legally protected status, and is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer.

Mayor Reep proclaims March 13-17 "AmeriCorps Week in Arkansas"

Mayor Gregg Reep signed a proclamation for "AmeriCorps Week in Arkansas". Representatives from Southeast Arkansas Education Cooperative, AmeriCorps, and AmeriCorps Seniors Foster Grandparent Program. Both programs have volunteers that serve at Warren School District.

By Zach Killian

Warren Mayor Gregg Reep signed a proclamation on Monday stating March 13 through 17, 2023 was "AmeriCorps Week in Arkansas".

In his proclamation, Mayor Reep urged "citizens to thank AmeriCorps members and alumni and AmeriCorps Seniors volunteers for their service and to find their own ways to give back to their communities."

There are two volunteers at Warren ABC, two volunteers at Hermitage Elementary in the AmeriCorp Seniors and Foster Grandparent Program.

AmeriCorps provides opportunities for more than 200,000 to serve their country through service at nonprofits, schools, public agencies, and community and faith-based groups across the country. In Arkansas, there are more than 3,300 AmeriCorps members that serve at more than 300 locations. They respond to COVID-19, tutoring and mentoring children and youth, increasing food security, supporting veterans and military families, combating the opioid epidemic, restoring the environment and responding to disasters.

AmeriCorps Week is an opportunity to recognize the dedication and commitment of the more than 1.2 million Americans who have chosen to serve their country through AmeriCorps and millions more who have served in AmeriCorps Seniors and their community partners, and to encourage more Americans to follow their footsteps in service.

UAMS HOUSE CALL

Dr. Daniel Knight is a professor in the Department of Family and Preventive Medicine in the College of Medicine at the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences.

Q: What are some causes for muscle weakness?

A: Muscle weakness can be caused by many conditions. While it can happen suddenly, it usually develops gradually. It's normal to lose some muscle mass and become weaker with age, usually in your 60s or 70s.

Some medications can weaken muscles as can a bad cold, the flu or COVID-19. A muscle injury can also be to blame. For injuries that aren't too severe, rest, ice, compression and elevation should help.

Muscle weakness can also be a symptom of a serious health condition like multiple sclerosis, with symptoms often including weakness or numbness in one or both legs and arms. This disease causes the immune system to attack the protective layer surrounding your nerve fibers, which can result in a disruption of communication between the brain and other parts of the body.

A stroke may cause a sudden weakness in muscles, usually on just one side of the body. Other conditions that include muscle weakness as a symptom include heart failure, diabetes and thyroid disorders.

Anyone experiencing unexplained muscle weakness should visit with their doctor.

FEATURES FROM THE BIBLE
TRUTH IN SCRIPTURE
LAUGHING AT GOD
 Genesis 17 and 18

Laughing at God? Some do. Both Sarah and Abraham did it. They did not see how God could fulfill His promise that in their old age they would have many descendants. Abraham even asked if his son by Sarah's handmaiden, Hagar, could live under God's blessing.

Sarah's laughter came when three visitors came to Mamre to visit with Abraham and Sarah. A warm welcome was extended to the visitors and a fine meal was prepared for them. One of the visitors was the Lord. He was the spokesman and told Abraham that the next year he would visit again and that by that time Sarah would have a son. Sarah heard this conversation and laughed. Her thoughts were that she and Abraham were both too old for this to happen.

The Lord heard Sarah laughing and questioned her about it. She tried to deny that she had laughed, but the Lord knew that she had.

The Lord asked Abraham, "Is there anything too hard for the Lord?"

He then stated that he would return at the appointed time next year and Sarah would have a son.

Attracting pollinators

Plants provide food, stabilize our soils, clean our air, supply oxygen and support wildlife. The transfer of pollen must occur for plants to fertilize and produce fruits, seeds and young plants. Many insects, birds and animals transfer pollen as they feed; by growing their favorites such as beebalm, marigolds, pyweed, and yarrow, you can attract many pollinators to your yard, which can also benefit your fruit trees, vegetable gardens, patio pots and flowering vines. - Brenda Weaver

Obituaries

Michael Berry
 Michael Jonas Berry, 50, of Little Rock, passed away March 1, 2023, at home with his loving family after a courageous battle with glioblastoma brain cancer.

He was born to Robert and Elizabeth Berry on October 12, 1972, in Valparaiso, Ind. He graduated from Oak Grove High School, class of 1991. He earned his Bachelor of Science from the University of Arkansas, where he was associated with Sigma Nu fraternity. He then completed his Bachelor of Science in Construction Management from University of Arkansas - Little Rock and worked as a Plumbing and Fire Protection Designer at Pettit & Pettit Consulting Engineers.

Mike leaves behind his wife, Milly (Dees) Berry; son, Jonas (11) and daughter, Addison (8); brothers, Patrick Scott Berry (Helen) of Somerville, Mass., Robert Berry, Jr. (Shawn), and Jonathan Berry (Jennifer) all of Little Rock; 7 nieces and nephews, and many close friends. He is predeceased in death by his parents.

Mike was passionate about life and making the most of every day. He poured his heart into renovation and restoration projects and worked tirelessly until a project was complete. His greatest joy was his wife and children. He never wanted to miss any aspect of his children's lives and always encouraged them to do their best. He enjoyed being outdoors, spending weekends at the baseball field, biking with the kids, hiking trails, and reveling in Razorback game days. He will be forever remembered for his genuine kindness and uplifting spirit.

Over the past year of Mike's life, the outpouring of support from his entire family, a long list of truly amazing and caring friends, and compassionate coworkers was unbelievable. He was often overwhelmed at how much love and support he was shown. Mike heartily believed in the good of all people and this belief was only reinforced during this time.

A celebration of Mike's life will be held at a later date. In lieu of flowers, please consider donating to brain cancer research through the Glioblastoma Foundation in his honor.

Arrangements entrusted to Smith Little Rock Funeral Home.
