Local businesses raise funds to purchase new jerseys for Lumberjack Soccer Club

Special to The Eagle
The Warren Lumberjack Soccer Club's 2024 season doesn't commence until next spring, but the team will have a fresh look on the field. Thanks to the unwavering support of several local businesses, the team will be sporting brand new Nike jerseys featuring a vibrant orange and white chevron pattern on the front, black sleeves, solid black on the reverse side, and a white-trimmed collar. Not shown in the mockup version below, the jerseys will also feature Warren's W logo on the left chest. The fundraising effort for the new jerseys was spearheaded by Saline River Chronicle, which sought to give back to Warren Athletics for their continuous support and cooperation in covering Lumberjack and Lady Jack sports. Grateful for the opportunity to show their appreciation, Saline River Chronicle reached out to various businesses and individuals to rally behind the cause. The total cost of the new uniforms was just over

$2,100. Among the generous contributors to the Warren Lumberjack Booster Club, which funded the purchase of the new jerseys, were Rob Reep and Jessi Reep of Saline River Chronicle, Union Bank and Trust, Arkansas Superior Federal Credit Union, Warren Mayor Gregg Reep, Greg Harton of Shelter Insurance, Warren Bank and Trust, and First State Bank. Their contributions exemplify the community's dedication to nurturing sportsmanship and camaraderie within the Warren area. On Monday, July 31, 2023, at Jim Hurley, Jr. Stadium on the Warren School District campus, Mark Jennings, of the Warren Booster Club, presented the check for the new jerseys to Warren Lumberjack Soccer Coach Shaun Wilson. Coach Wilson expressed his gratitude for the overwhelming support from the community and local businesses. He believes that the new jerseys will not only motivate the players but also symbolize unity and pride in representing Warren on the soccer field.

What time does the school-based health clinic (SBHC) open?
We open at 7 a.m. and close at 3:30 p.m. Opening at 7 a.m. allows parents to bring their child in before school to be seen to see if the child needs to stay home or is able to go to school for the day.

Who can be seen at the SBHC?
Any student (ABC-12th), board members, Americorp workers or staff member and immediate family (spouse and/or child(ren) of the Warren School District.
What services are provided at the SBHC?
We provide a variety of services at the SBHC. These services include (but are not limited to) the treatment of:
Acute/Sick visits: Allergies, common colds, stomach viruses, influenza, COVID, sinusitis, urinary tract infection, lacerations, sports injuries, lab work, etc.
Chronic care visits: High blood pressure, diabetes, asthma, ADHD, allergy injections, yearly well child examinations, vaccinations, sports physicals, etc.
The goal of having an SBHC in your child's school is to encourage early intervention and prevention through consistency and education.
If my child is sick and is staying home from school for the day, and I want to take him/her to be evaluated by a medical provider, can they come to the SBHC to be seen?

Absolutely. If a child is too sick to come to school, they can still be seen at the school-based health clinic for evaluation and treatment.
If my child needs to be seen, does a parent have to be present for the visit?
In most cases, we are able to see the students without parents present for the visit. If the provider feels the parent needs to be present, the parent will be notified, and an appointment will be made.
Does the SBHC provide behavioral health services?
Yes. We have a Licensed Therapist and Psychiatric Nurse Practitioner on staff at our Warren SBHC. (This service is for students and staff only)
What phone number do I call to contact someone at the SBHC?
To contact someone at the clinic, call 870-466-4987.

Passin' the Faith Along

By REV. JIM BALES
Pastor - First Assembly of God
Sponsored by Esco Termite, Pest & Weed Control

I wonder what would happen if we treated our Bible like we treat our cell phones?

- What if we carried it around in our purses or pockets?
- What if we turned back to go get it if we forgot it?
- What if we flipped through it several times a day?
- What if we used it to receive messages from the text?
- What if we treated it like we couldn't live without it?
- What if we gave it to kids as gifts?
- What if we used it as we traveled?
- What if we used it in case of an emergency?
- What if we upgraded it to get the latest version?

This is something to make you go..hmm..where is my bible?
Oh and one more thing, unlike our cell phone, we don't ever have to worry about our bible being disconnected because Jesus already paid the bill!
"For the word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edge sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart."
Hebrews 4:12

Reminiscing from the past . . .

Oldtimer's Notebook

By Robert L. Newton

The publishers of The Eagle Democrat have chosen to publish articles from the past Oldtimer's Notebook in memory of Robert L. Newton. This article was first published July 3, 2001.

Now we are over halfway through the current year of our Lord, 2001.

Two friends of yours, happily-married to each other, embarked on food-limitation (you call it a DIET) six months ago.

The distaff member of the two-some has had very fine success, as has her corpulent husband, who has managed to get rid of just about 30 pounds.

Diet regimen remains the same: instant oatmeal for breakfast, plus a glass of juice; six Nabs (peanut butter crackers) for lunch; a Lean Cuisine TV dinner, 300 calories or less, for dinner, plus a single quaff of the fermented fruit of the grape which the one-time country editor takes for health reasons (really).

Well, diets work, but this one, sent by a valued friend, probably won't:

This is a specially formulated diet designed to help people cope with the stress that builds up during the day.

BREAKFAST:

- 1 grapefruit
- 1 slice whole-wheat toast

1 cup slim milk

LUNCH:

- Small portion lean, steamed chicken with a cup of spinach
- 1 cup herbal tea
- 1 Hershey kiss

AFTERNOON TEA:

- The rest of the kisses in the bag
- 1 tub of Hagen Daas ice cream with chocolate-chip topping

DINNER:

- 4 bottles of wine (red or white)
- 2 loaves garlic bread
- 1 family-size supreme pizza
- 3 Snickers bars

LATE NIGHT SNACK:

- Whole frozen Sarah Lee cheesecake (eaten directly from the freezer)

R E M E M B E R : STRESSED SPELLED BACKWARDS IS "DESSERTS"

Send this to all the people you know or ever knew, and you will immediately lose 10 pounds.

One of our valued associates, long ago, went on a diet that consisted wholly of non-fat wieners.

Worked for him.

Just can't understand these people who can drink that "chocolate goop" to lose weight.

Senator Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy is said to embark each February on a regimen of "chocolate goop" entirely for a whole month...plus the abandonment of the five o'clock cocktail hour.

His weight losses are said to be pleasantly-alarming.

The onetime country editor is laboring currently on a stainless-steel weight plateau of some kind that hovers at 190 pounds on the scales.

Just can't get through it. Nor have I so far...

Tomorrow is the "Glorious Fourth".

It's the major midsummer holiday in our country, of course, though it falls inconveniently this year at the middle of the week.

Back in the dim shades of antiquity, Southern Lumber Company and its manager, Owen O. Axley, used to provide giant barbecue/picnics at the current site of "tooth pick", where Potlatch puts logs, under sprinklers, for storage way out on West Pine Street.

The Southern's barbecue/picnic day would provide lots of barbecue that had been prepared the real pit style, with lots of pork, beef, even goat being slow-roasted in top of chickenwire pits dug in the earth.

Southern ran "doodlebug" trains back and forth from the Main Street intersection with the MoPac, across from Hammons, Undertakers, out to the barbecue site.

You didn't have to work at the Southern to come to the barbecue: all were invited.

That afternoon, Southern's baseball team would have a game: the admission was free.

The July 4 celebrations were an "all white folks" deal, the company having done the same thing on that now-almost-ignored holiday of June 19 for its black employees.

It was the marking of the middle of summer for our ancestors who took part in those picnics...and for us, too, come to think of it.

Heidi Parrish takes care of her animals on a small farm outside of Judsonia, Arkansas. She has a couple of heifers, a steer, a donkey, chickens, and a Guinea. She's been showing her steer Trampus and heifer Sassy at county and state fairs for the last three years with reasonable success. This year, however, she decided she is ready for a change and bought her first sheep, named Pringles. "I've always wanted to show sheep. I think they're cute and just something different for me," said Parrish. Parrish added she hopes to have Pringles ready in time for this year's fairs. "I haven't shown sheep at all, so it's just a refresh and help with my technique and help me figure out what I need," said Parrish. For her new animal she decided she needed a little extra hands-on training, and for that she turned to the University of Arkansas Extension Livestock Clinic 101 held July 15 at the Drew County Fairgrounds.

At 16 years old, Parrish is a little bit older than some of the others at the Livestock 101 Clinic. Parrish, along with nearly 40 other students from across the state, spent the day with County Extension Agents and people who show animals on a regular basis. Parrish says the primary difference from showing her cattle is that she uses a halter and a show stick, while with sheep she uses her hands a lot more to position the animal for the judges.

The Livestock 101 Clinic was put on by The University of Arkansas System Division of Agriculture. It provided space for showing cattle, sheep, goats, poultry and rabbits. Drew County Extension summer intern Rayvin Callaway, an agriculture senior at University of Arkansas at Monticello, organized the event. Callaway said, "We show them how to get their animal ready and some showman basics to take the animal into the ring."

The show arena clinic was free, and most students brought their own animals. Besides animal care, Callaway said, "there is so much that I can learn from livestock. They can learn responsibility, determination, and confidence. I can't tell you how much showing cattle has made me confident in myself." Callaway herself is a member of the University of Arkansas at Monticello Show Team. She's been showing cattle for about eight years and has shown goats, rabbits, and poultry.

Something new at this year's Livestock 101 was a parent clinic. While the students were outdoors learning arena techniques for the show pens, parents were indoors learning about vaccines, diseases and nutrition and feeding their animals.

Among this year's seven speakers for the parent-focused section was University of Arkansas Division of Agriculture educator Les Walz, who spoke to parents about forages.

Also speaking to parents was Dr. Rocky Lindsey, University of Arkansas at Monticello associate professor of animal science. Lindsey said, "I wanted to train them on the veterinary-client patient relationship, which means the relationship they have to have with the veterinarian in order to get prescription medications filled like antibiotics." Lindsey also taught them about the animal health requirements for livestock competitions.

The highlight of the day focused on students getting to practice with their animals and gain some one-on-one feedback from people with previous arena experience.

Lincoln County Extension agent John David Farabough helped students learn how to show their cattle in the show ring. Farabough said, "entering the show ring is a good way to build confidence." Farabough added that presenting a project they've worked on personally can also raise confidence levels. Farabough emphasized that the amount of time they work with their animals at the house, at the barn and walking these animals will determine their success.

Drew Central High School instructor Brittany Leek put her young sheep showman through a hands-on routine. Leek answered questions about animal care, maintenance, selling in the ring, what they need to be wearing, what they need to be doing. Leek said, "It is that important for them to know they're going to gain a lot from their first show."

Leek also offered, "We talked about things that were basic care for sheep and goats. Their feet are really important to them. We talked about health care; we talked about worming practices."

Worms can be a huge parasite issue here in South Arkansas."

As for Heidi Parrish, she continues to work with her animals Pringle, Sassy, and Trampus on a daily basis. Parrish said, "Most kids are glued to their phone. But me, I can just come out here, play with the animals, and ride the horse."

Arkansas History Minute

by
Dr. Kenneth Bridges

“Tell it to the Marines” was a popular recruiting slogan during World War I. Throughout the long, distinguished history of the US Marine Corps, courage, determination, and love of country have always been at the heart of their training. One Arkansas native, John H. Pruitt, one of the most decorated Marines of World War I, showed this to the world when he became one of the few men to ever earn two Congressional Medals of Honor. John Henry Pruitt II was born in Pruitt Hollow, near Fayetteville, on October 4, 1896. He was born into a modest farm family, but his time in Arkansas would be short. While still young, Pruitt's father moved the family to the thriving mining town of Jerome in the Arizona Territory, where he worked for a few years as a blacksmith. After attending elementary school in Jerome, the family moved to Phoenix.

When the United States entered World War I in 1917, Pruitt quickly enlisted in the Marines. He was soon sent to the front lines as part of the Second Division, Sixth Marine Regiment.

The day was October 3, 1918. The war was just five weeks from ending, but the horrors of war continued without mercy. The three-week battle of Blanc Mont, France, not far from the Belgian border had just begun.

Corporal Pruitt and his unit were pinned down by heavy German fire. The Germans were worn out by years of war but refused to give in. Pruitt quickly surveyed the situation. He spied the two machine gun nests firing at them. He then sprang into action. Charging ahead, he quickly captured both machine gun emplacements. Two German soldiers were killed, but he singlehandedly forced forty other troops to surrender and marched them back to the American lines.

Pruitt had strengthened the American position and, his superiors noted, also saved lives with his incredible feat. But the day was not done. He remained on duty as a sniper lookout for his unit. Suddenly, a round of German mortars erupted, striking Pruitt and critically injuring him. Doctors could do nothing for his wounds, and he died the next morning. It was Pruitt's twenty-second birthday.

Afterward, the military bestowed many honors on him. The Congressional Medal of Honor was established in 1861 as the highest military award to honor those soldiers who acted with gallantry above and beyond the call of duty. At the time of World War I, the army and the navy had their own versions of the medal, with an air force version created in 1965. With Pruitt's actions, there was no doubt of his worthiness. The navy and the army both awarded him the Medal of Honor. He became one of only 19 Americans ever to receive two Medals of Honor.

He was buried at Arlington National Cemetery in Virginia. Two of America's allies, France and Italy, also honored Pruitt with their highest military awards.

In 1920, the US Navy commissioned the cruiser USS Pruitt in his memory. This ship would serve ably through World War II until it was decommissioned in 1945. Pruitt Hall, at the Marine Corps base in Quantico, Virginia, was named for him as an example of the gallantry and patriotism the Marines hold in highest respect.

In the years after World War I, Pruitt's medals became part of a museum display at the Arizona State Capitol. The family, however, had them transferred to the Marine Corps museum. His nephew, John Pruitt III, reported that he had offers of up to $250,000 for the medals. He refused each offer, saying, “Those medals belong to the Marines.”

Most of the bills that were approved by the legislature earlier this year became law on August 1.

Among the most important measures taking effect is the LEARNS Act, which raises teacher minimum salaries to $50,000 a year and makes sweeping changes in the public school finance formula.

LEARNS is an acronym that stands for Literacy, Empowerment, Accountability, Readiness, Networking, School Safety.

Another important bill is Act 659, the Protect Arkansas Act, which lengthens prison sentences for violent offenders and requires prison inmates to work harder to qualify for parole. Making offenders serve longer sentences would bring Arkansas sentencing guidelines more in line with those used by federal prisons, where people convicted of federal crimes serve almost all of their sentence. To more effectively implement Act 659, lawmakers approved funding in separate legislation for 3,000 more prison beds.

Act 584 creates a new felony of “death by delivery” for dealers who lace their illegal drugs with fentanyl, resulting in the death of users. The penalties range from 20 years to life.

Act 264 tightens up requirements for scrap metal dealers who must maintain records of buying recycled parts, such as catalytic converters. The bill also makes it a Class C felony to possess stolen converters. It will be illegal to buy or possess a catalytic converter if it has been removed from a car the person does not own.

Act 629 prohibits the sale of Delta 8 products, a marijuana product made legal by the passage of federal Farm Bill in 2018, which legalized hemp production. The law has a loophole that allows for extraction of the ingredients that go into Delta 8. Previously, it was sold in stores with no regulation of packaging or marketing. The act has been challenged by manufacturers and sellers of the product.

Another high-profile bill has been challenged in the courts. Act 372 gives parents more options to have offensive material relocated or removed from local libraries and school libraries.

After making an objection to the librarian and if necessary making an appeal to the library board, parents then can appeal to the county Quorum Court or City Council. Both are composed of people elected by voters.

Act 372 removes the current exemption that protects librarians from criminal prosecution. If librarians knowingly maintain material that is deemed obscene, they could be prosecuted.

Act 612 makes pornography websites liable for harm they cause to minors, and requires them to make reasonable efforts to require age verification. For example, they can require a digital ID before allowing viewers to access the site.

Act 689 would require social media sites to verify the age of users, and users under the age of 18 would need parental permission. Prosecutors could seek fines of $2,500 per violation against the social media companies.

Other new laws affect transgender people, and physicians who perform medical procedures to change genders. Act 274 allows medical malpractice lawsuits against physicians who perform gender transformation procedures on children, for up to 15 years after the minor turns 18. In most medical malpractice cases the limit is two years after the injury.

Act 777 clarifies that you don't need a permit to carry a concealed firearm in Arkansas.

of the year. I enjoy watching the proposals come together, and I am always impressed with the hard work and attention to detail the students bring to the table to address something they are passionate about. The CYC is open to high school juniors and runs throughout the school year. We are accepting applications for the next group of students through September 1.

College and post-graduate students also have a role to play in the nation's capital or at a local congressional office in Arkansas through my office's internship program. Interns in the Washington, D.C. office learn about the legislative process and the federal government by working closely with the policy, communications and constituent services staff members. By assisting my state staff, interns gain direct insight into how a senate office serves and represents Arkansans – including by advocating on their behalf with federal agencies –, engages with the community and helps share feedback with my entire team.

Participants in these programs are truly the leaders of tomorrow. I am grateful for those who choose to take part in these experiences, and my hope is always that they learn as much as possible and walk away with practical skills and valuable knowledge. Time spent representing their state will undoubtedly help them in their future pursuits, and I can't wait to see where these talented, aspiring leaders end up.

These opportunities all have a lot to offer youth and young adults in our state, and I look forward to welcoming them to the ranks of public service and community engagement in the months and years to come. To learn more about these programs visit the Educational Opportunities page on my website (boozman.senate.gov) to get all the details or start the application process.

Opportunities for young Arkansans to learn more about government through firsthand experience and serve their communities are plentiful and worthwhile. Public service and civic engagement are incredibly important, which is why my staff and I provide multiple avenues for high school, college and graduate students to grow personally and professionally.

While school was out for the summer, Springdale's Nora Shitandi had a front-row seat to a unique lesson on American government as a U.S. Senate Page. The rising high school senior said her experience in the prestigious program was one she wouldn't forget.

The Senate Page program is a way for students to continue their high school education in the nation's capital while also contributing to the daily business of the greatest deliberative body in the world. They provide vital assistance to the chamber's operations and interact with senators and staff. During the school year, pages attend classes to obtain academic credit and continue their education. The Senate Page program offers fall, spring and summer sessions. This summer we were blessed to have Shitandi and Fayetteville's Joshua Ofodile representing Arkansans as pages.

A few years ago, we launched the Congressional Youth Cabinet (CYC) for Natural State students who want to learn more about the legislative process.

This initiative is designed to inspire public service among Arkansas youth and involve the next generation in creating policies. Participants represent their community and discuss issues facing our state and nation, working with my staff to research an issue and create solutions culminating in a presentation at the end

Zinnias
Zinnias can be planted in late summer. They like hot weather, and will germinate easily. Plant your zinnia seeds 9" to 12" apart in well-drained soil located in full sun; after they sprout and grow taller, pinch off the new growth after the 2nd or 3rd true leaf set, as this promotes more branching and flowering. Watering at the base of the plants helps prevent diseases such as "leaf spot" from flourishing. The "Peter Pan" variety of zinnias is one of the fastest to start blooming, often in only six weeks from seed. - Brenda Weaver

Tips to take care of your yard during a heat wave

As temperatures rise, so should the care of your yard's lawn and landscape. However, it's important to ensure your yard is healthy before a heat wave hits.

"The healthier your grass, trees, and shrubs, the more resistant it will be to summer's extreme temperatures. Lawns, in particular, that have healthy grass leaves and deeper roots are able to store more moisture," says Kris Kiser, President & CEO of the TurfMutt Foundation, which encourages people to care for and use their outdoor spaces.

Here are a few recommendations on protecting your yard during a heat wave from The TurfMutt Foundation.

- Put the right plant in the right place. Always select appropriate plants and grass for your climate zone. This ensure the space is not only attractive, but also will be more likely to thrive in your microclimate, be easier to maintain, and will support pollinators and wildlife. Consider water, sunlight or shade requirements for your yard.

- Water at the right times. The best time to water the lawn and plants is in the early morning or late evening when it's cooler.

- Don't over water. It's okay to make your grass work hard for its water. With little water, grass will send its roots deeper, seeking water. The grass then does a better job of sequestering carbon and releasing oxygen.

Also, most turfgrasses—and there are hundreds of species—will go brown during summer months where water is more scarce. It will "green up" again when conditions change.

- Know what type of soil you have. The frequency and amount of water you apply to lawns and gardens vary based on its soil, clay type, organic matter and the type of plants and grass. Some soil holds water better than others; water molecules cling to fine particles of clay soil than to the coarser particles of a sandy soil.

- Cut grass long. When mowing, don't cut more than one-third of the grass height. By keeping it longer, turfgrass can develop stronger roots and a greater tolerance to heat and drought stress.

- Keep foot traffic minimal. For already stressed grass, foot traffic can cause damage. Keep people off the lawn while the heat persists.

What the Federal Reserve's federal funds target rate hike means for consumers

The Federal Reserve federal funds target rate hike on Wednesday will affect interest rates for consumers, making it an expensive time to borrow or make large purchases.

The Fed raised the federal funds target rate by 0.25 percent to a range of 5.25 to 5.5 percent, its highest level since 2001. The federal funds target rate is the rate financial institutions pay each other when borrowing money overnight.

Laura Hendrix, interim associate department head of Family and Consumer Sciences for the University of Arkansas System Division of Agriculture, said the Fed functions to promote effective operation of the U.S. economy. The Fed may raise or lower the federal funds target rate to help maintain a stable economy.

"The Fed may raise interest rates to slow economic activity," Hendrix said. "When rates are higher, it is more expensive to borrow, so consumers and businesses are less likely to make large purchases. A rate hike usually means higher interest paid to borrow money and higher interest earned on savings. Consumers who are in the market for a house or a car will see higher costs for borrowing money."

less of the current interest rate, it's important to shop around for a loan.

Look for the best terms and rates. "Consumers who have higher credit scores qualify for better interest rates," Hendrix said. "Look for ways to improve your credit score and clean up your credit report."

Consider the type of loan. Hendrix said fixed-rate loans for shorter periods of time usually have the lowest interest rates. "Consumers may see a slight increase in interest earned on savings accounts and Certificates of Deposit, so now may be a good time to take advantage of those," she said.

Pay additional funds to the principal of a loan. This is another way to save money on interest. Hendrix said keeping credit card balances low in comparison to spending limits also helps to avoid additional interest and helps to increase one's credit score.

The Fed's increase of the federal funds target rate could impact consumers' budgets, but Hendrix said this depends on an individual's situation and financial goals.

"One benefit of careful planning and financial management is that it prepares consumers to make the most of economic upswings and to weather the downturns," Hendrix said. "Consumers who were already overextended will be more stressed by increases in consumer goods. One option is to look for ways to save on everyday expenses, such as groceries."

Q: What is spinal stenosis?

A: Spinal stenosis is the narrowing of the spaces around the spinal column. This puts pressure on the vertebrae and spinal cord, which affects the nerves that run from the spine to the arms and legs. Spinal stenosis most often occurs in the lower back (lumbar) and the neck (cervical).

Spinal stenosis may develop at any age, but most commonly occurs in people over the age of 50. Individuals with a congenital condition may develop spinal stenosis, and it may also occur due to injury.

Spinal stenosis symptoms in the lower back may include a burning pain that radiates through the buttocks into the legs, numbness or tingling in the legs and feet, or a loss of bowel control in severe cases.

Symptoms from cervical spinal stenosis may include numbness or tingling in the arms or hands, problems with balance, or loss of hand function.

At-home management includes applying heat to increase blood flow or cold to reduce swelling and inflammation. Nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory medications, physical therapy and steroid injections are nonsurgical remedies for spinal stenosis. Your health care provider may recommend surgery if all other treatments do not resolve the issue.

Sweet Water
 The Israelites, escaping from the life of slavery in Egypt, made it through the Red Sea to safety by following God's leadership as he spoke through Moses. The Egyptian army that followed after them was swallowed up by the water.

At Marah the people began to grumble because of the bitterness of the water. Moses cried to the Lord and the Lord showed him a piece of wood which he threw into the water and the water became sweet. Exodus 15:22.

Manna and Quail Given for Food
 In the wilderness of sin, the whole community of Israelites grumbled against Moses and Aaron. They complained that it would have been better to have died in Egypt than there in the desert. They remembered the pots of meat they had to eat back in Egypt and here in the desert they were hungry.

In response to their grumblings, God sent bread from heaven which they would gather daily and eat in the mornings. It was called manna. A portion of this manna was saved so future generations would know how the Lord had provided for His people.

God sent quail for them to eat in the evenings.

Moments in time

- On Aug. 21, 1888, American inventor and former bank clerk William Seward Burroughs patented the adding machine. Two years earlier, Burroughs had co-founded the American Arithmometer Company to produce and sell the device, but the early models had to be recalled since he was the only person who could actually operate them.
- On Aug. 22, 1849, the first-ever air raid took place when Austria launched 200 unpiloted hot-air balloons carrying timed-release bombs against enemy defenses in Venice, Italy. Few casualties resulted, however, due to the unpredictable wind currents.
- On Aug. 23, 1990, Chancellor Helmut Kohl decided to prosecute women seeking abortions in East Germany. While the procedure was only carried out if the mother's life was endangered in West Germany, it had been considered a reproductive right in East Germany and could be performed on anyone after the 12th week of pregnancy.
- On Aug. 24, 2013, Broadway actress Julie Harris died at age 87. The winner of several Emmy Awards, Harris was also one of the record-holders for most Tony Awards and was known for her roles in movie and television productions, including "East of Eden" and the series "Knot's Landing."
- On Aug. 25, 1985, 13-year-old Samantha Smith, dubbed an "ambassador" to the Soviet Union, died in a plane crash. Samantha had achieved notoriety by penning a letter to Soviet leader Yuri Andropov in 1982 expressing her worry about the possibility of nuclear war between his country and the U.S., and by visiting the Soviet Union as his guest the following year.
- On Aug. 26, 1794, President George Washington decided it was necessary to subdue the Whiskey Rebellion, an insurrection of 6,000 men in a field near Pittsburgh that originated from the resentment of grain farmers after a federal tax was attached to their distillery products. While he originally led the responding procession of 13,000-plus soldiers, mastermind Alexander Hamilton took over early on.
- On Aug. 27, 1934, thousands of Chicago teachers finally received their back pay after working with no wages for long periods because the city did not have the funds to compensate them. Many lined up outside the bank well before it opened, with most teachers receiving more than $1,000.
