Lumberjacks send Bulldogs to the doghouse, 34-27

The Lumberjacks sent the White Hall Bulldogs to the dog house after Friday night's win of 34-27.

The Lumberjacks and Bulldogs played a tough game with the game being tied during the second quarter until the 4th quarter.

"We made a lot of mistakes, but we just kept playing, and they made them too," said Lumberjack Head Coach Bo Hembree. "It was an early non-conference game. The Bulldogs have a chance to be a really good football team. They're big, they're physical, they're fast. Our guys kept playing. Our freshman quarterback is going to keep growing every week. We have four really, really good wideouts. You can't just take one away. Tonight, it was Tramond [Miller]'s night. Last week was Kam [Davis]'s night. It's just who's going to step up each week and tonight it was Tramond."

The Bulldogs won the coin toss and elected the Lumberjacks to receive.

The Lumberjacks started off strong with Kam Davis scoring the first touchdown at the kickoff for a 94-yard return. The extra point by Lumberjack kicker Allen Juarez's was good, giving the Lumberjacks the lead 7-0.

With 8:30 in the first quarter, the Bulldogs offense were at the 20-yard line. After getting to the 15-yard line, the Bulldog quarterback made a complete pass at the end zone. Their extra point was good, tying the game 7-7.

The Lumberjacks fumbled the ball at the next kickoff and it was recovered by the Bulldogs at the 40-yard line.

The Bulldogs offense scored another touchdown with 6:46 left in the first quarter from the 21-yard line. This put them in the lead, 13-7.

With 2:27 left in the first quarter, Lumberjack Cameron Burks recovered a fumble by the Bulldogs. And ran it to the 49-yard line.

The Bulldogs remained in the lead in the second quarter with 13-7 on the scoreboard.

Early in the quarter, the Lumberjacks' Cody Weatherspoon recovered a fumble at their 32-yard line.

At 5:44 in the second quarter, a foul was called against the Bulldogs defense resulting in them getting a 15-yard penalty. This moved the Lumberjacks to the 50-yard line.

The Lumberjacks' quarterback Jackson Denton threw a 65-yard touchdown pass to Kam Davis. The extra point was no good, resulting in another tie with the Bulldogs 13-13 leading into the third quarter.

At 10:43 in the third quarter, unsportsmanlike conduct was called against the Lumberjacks.

At 8:18, the Bulldogs' quarterback threw an incomplete pass.

Both the Lumberjacks and Bulldogs were penalized for unsportsmanlike conduct with four minutes left.

The Lumberjacks and Bulldogs went into the final quarter still tied 13-13. Tension was in the air as the clock counted down.

At 11:53 left in the quarter, Neondre Thomas intercepted a pass.

The Lumberjacks offense were at the 10-yard line. Denton made a pass to Antonio Jordan at the end zone and breaking the tie. After the extra point, the Lumberjacks led 20-13.

The Bulldogs scored a touchdown with an 80-yard run down to the end zone. Their kick was good, tying them again with the Lumberjacks 20-20.

The Lumberjacks scored another touchdown at 10:19. Denton threw a 19-yard pass to Tramond Miller for the touchdown. The kick by Juarez was good, giving the Lumberjacks 27-20.

At 5:05 in the final quarter, the Bulldogs scored another touchdown, resulting in another tie 27-27.

Weatherspoon caught an interception and ran to the 15-yard line.

With 43 second left to go, the Lumberjacks were at the six-yard line. Jordan scored the final touchdown with a two-yard rushing touchdown off the right tackle. The extra point by Juarez was good.

As the final seconds came down, the Lumberjacks won the game 34-27.

Treylong Jackson had seven carries and 27 yards. Jordan had two carries, six yards, and one touchdown.

Quarterback Denton had 282 yards and three touchdowns.

Miller had nine catches, 111 yards and one touchdown.

Jordan had three catches, 44 yards, and one touchdown.

Davis had two catches, 96 yards and one touchdown.

The Lumberjacks will be off Friday for a bye week, but will play against Star City at home at 7 p.m. on Friday, September 15.

Passin' the Faith Along

By REV. JIM BALES
Pastor - First Assembly of God
Sponsored by Merchants & Planters Agency

"Listen, all of you. Love your enemies. Do good to those who hate you. Pray for the happiness of those who curse you; implore God's blessing on those who hurt you. If someone slaps you on the cheek, let him slap the other too! If someone demands your coat, give him your shirt besides. Give what you have to anyone who ask for it; and when things are taken away from you, don't worry about getting them back. Treat others as you want them to treat you." Luke 6:27-31.

You know something? If everyone in the world obeyed that principle, spoken long ago by a Galilean named Jesus, every nation could cut its defense spending by 100 percent. Law enforcement officials would be reduced to getting cats out of trees and helping little old ladies across the street.

Former President Ronald Reagan included in one of his speeches these words, "if everyone obeyed the principles of the Bible, there would be worldwide peace."

What simple words- and yet how staggering: "Love your enemies! Do good to those who hate you! Pray for the happiness of those who curse you!" it is directly opposite to what we so often practice.

Furthermore, we don't want to forgive. It is too difficult for us, we claim, Easier by far to strike out and wound the one who has wounded us. Forgiveness of our enemies sounds like an invitation to disaster.

And yet forgiveness is precisely the way that God deals with us. God forgives man and teaches him to forgive himself and those around him.

If you fail to forgive, you will be forever imprisoned by the past. You will be forever under the other person's control. Is that what you really want?

I know forgiveness is not a reaction that the world holds in much favor today. We look more to the Dirty Harry's of life; to the high plains drifter; to the hard, cold eye of the avenger. We reason that forgiveness such as that taught by our Lord is not much of a tool for survival in this wicked world. And yet, that is exactly what it is!

Oldtimer's Notebook

By Robert L. Newton

The publishers of The Eagle Democrat have chosen to publish articles from the past Oldtimer's Notebook in memory of Robert L. Newton. This article was first published July 25, 2001.

Funny how memories of childhood rise up as one gets ever-closer to age 72, to wit: It had to be 60 years ago; perhaps more.

My mother and her sister were serving the Thursday night meal to the Y's Mens Club, a now-defunct eatin' meetin' for young men that met each Thursday night on the third floor of the old wooden YMCA.

This was before "babysitting" existed: I tagged along and was usually given a dime with which to repair to Glasgow's just north of Warren Printing's current site on Main, for a hot dog and a Coke (five cents each).

A girl my age or younger came into Glasgow's and nervously ordered a hamburger which was prepared and set before her as she sat at the counter.

"That's ten-cents", said the clerk.

But the girl only had a nickel: hurriedly, she got off the stool and all but ran from the place.

Not content with the kid's embarrassment and consternation, the clerk twisted the knife as she fled: "I was afraid of that", he said.

There are things one never forgets: like the girl with the nickel...I think she still makes her home in Warren town.

It's hard for young folks of the current day and time to realize what the "hard times" of the 1930s were like.

As the historian Arthur Schlesinger, a friend of Jack Kennedy's, recalls: When we went to bed at night, we had to wind our watches since the battery-powered ones were still to come. When we got dressed in the mornings, we first put on one-piece BVD underwear (remember when "the Kingfish" on "Amos and Andy", the radio show, thought he had amnesia and was convinced his name was "Buster V. Davenport" since those were the initials on his underwear?)

BVD underwear has gone the way of all flesh, like "undershirts" which got suspended during World War II by what we now call "T-Shirts".

Back then, when we bought a suit, it came with two pairs of trousers and a coat.

After putting on pants (no blue jeans, no khakis) we had to button our flies since zippers didn't appear until the second administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt as president of the United States: zippers were not particularly dependable in those days which could cause acute embarrassment on dates. Garters held up socks; we tied our shoes (loafers were unknown).

When we wanted a sandwich, we had to get out a knife to slice the bread: sliced bread was still to come. When men went outdoors, those over 18 that is, they put on a hat...a wooly or felt one in the winter, straw one in the summer.

Nobody wore a baseball cap; not a single soul existed who wore a cap backward unless he was a catcher in a baseball game.

Hatless Jack Kennedy destroyed the hat business over 40 years ago.

Back then, when we had writing to do, we brandished a fountain pen we'd filled with ink with a bottle. The ball-point pen was still to come. Nobody had any idea what a word processor might be and they wouldn't find out for two generations.

Telephone calls a nickel: in many an area of Warren town, people would go to a neighbor's to "use the phone".

The late Eva Pennington Davis, a friend of the past, told about a neighbor coming to use her phone: the neighbor's child had been bitten by a rabid dog. The child later died in unspeakable agony.

A Depression joke had it that President Herbert Hoover asked somebody to borrow five cents to call a friend. Somebody handed the hapless Hoover a dime and quipped: "Call both of 'em".

Back then, if we had a letter to mail, we licked a 2-cent stamp: Rufus Johnson and/or Stanton Bartram and/or Shelton Adams delivered mail to your house twice a day. If the message was urgent, you sent it "special delivery" which set you back 10 cents. If the message was profoundly-extreme, you'd got to the lobby of the Southerland Hotel where Mrs. Meek Singer, of Western Union, would put your message on the wire.

When it rained, we carried a black umbrella. When we traveled, men called "Red Caps" were there to handle our luggage. Suitcases had no wheels. When you were sick, doctors came to your house (in Warren town, at least one still makes this reassuring trek). Doctors had no penicillin to prescribe; people including the doctors smoked all the time. The Pastime had a balcony. Over half of it was reserved for minority patrons: uproarious laughter would erupt therefrom over what folks now would consider Profound Embarrassments like "Step and Fetchit".

The remaining one third of the balcony at the Pastime was called "the passion pit" where teenagers would sit and grapple with one another as folk like Myrna Loy and Clark Gable did the same sort of thing on the silver screen.

The lamented "Arkansas Gazette" came out in the mornings, the "Arkansas Democrat" in the afternoons.

People knew little about "The Commercial" of Pine Bluff and absolutely nothing about the "Bradley Cleveland County Shoppers Guide", now age 26 and maturing gracefully.

A haircut at Mr. Kenneth B. (Shorty) Montgomery's establishment provided by Mr. Montgomery or by Messrs. Oscar Koehler, Senior, Horace Ashcraft, or "Slim" Offutt cost 50 cents: you even got your back brushed with a long whisk broom brandished by Pat Patton, who also shined shoes, or by John Brunson, Thomas Brunson's brother, who did the same thing (their

Visit our new website

theeagledemocrat.com

dad was one of three minority physicians in town: Dr. John Brunson, Dr. John White, and H.H. Rhinehard, M.D., whose little office still stands on North Myrtle).

As noted above, cigarettes were very popular: their cost was 15 cents a pack; some folks bought cigarette papers and rolled their own, using brands like "Bugler" or "Bull Durham".

Morgan and Linsey, on South Main, sold stuff for a nickel or a dime: Ruby Dickerson Garrison worked there (she later worked for years at Moseley Furniture and Hardware, then Ashcraft's). Charles Kelly Adams came to Warren seven decades and more ago as Morgan and Linsey manager. He married an area girl named Florine Ross: the named their eldest son, Charles Ross Adams.

Back then, we had no television, no air conditioning (we were fearful we'd get colds on infrequent trips to Little Rock by going into a cooled stores like Kempner Cohn's, Blass, and Pfeiffers).

There were no electric blankets, women just didn't wear pants or slacks often at all: double-knit very far into the future, as were "warm ups",

"sweats", "headbands".

When we drove, we shifted get and lowered windows by hand.

Cars had a choke and a running board; earlier ones had windshield that could be "cranked out".

There were no directional signals, you stuck your arm out the window to tell folks behind you what you contemplated doing.

Gasoline cost under 20 cents a gallon at Rose Oil where Kentucky Fried now flourishes on South Main.

Lots of memories: they rest don't bless and burn it all.

Extension homemakers clubs seeking new members

Special to The Eagle
An EH Club is a group of people who meet once a month to learn more about issues facing people today: personal and home safety; family relations and human development; foods and nutrition; the management of family resources; leadership; and clothing and textiles.

These clubs also volunteer their time to important activities like the All Tomato Luncheon and Bradley County Fair. They donate time, goods and services to such worthy people and events as Hope Place, Arkansas Children's Hospital, local nursing home, making cancer turbans, and many others.

In the past, Extension Homemakers Clubs have been known as FACE Clubs and Home Demonstration Clubs. We have one traditional club in Bradley County. Each month, a designated leader attends a county-wide leader training conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service. The leader then presents the lesson to their fellow club members at their monthly meeting. We also have three project clubs in Bradley County, the Bradley Block Builders (Quilting) Club, Block of the Month Club, and Twisted Stitchers Club which also meet once a month.

Anyone who is interested in improving home and community life may join EHC. You may join the traditional club in the county, the project clubs, or become a member-at-large. Members-at-large may attend any special meetings and receive the Homemakers News newsletter.

All EH clubs are open to all eligible persons regardless of race, color, sex, gender identity, sexual orientation, national origin, religion, age, disability, marital or veteran status, genetic information, or any other legally protected status. The Cooperative Extension Service is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer.

Arkansas History Minute

by Dr. Kenneth Bridges

By the beginning of the twentieth century, the United States had built one of the most powerful navies in the world. The battleship USS Arkansas, designated BB-33 by the navy, was an achievement for the expanding power of the United States Navy. During its career, the USS Arkansas and its crew would distinguish itself at some of the most important events of the early twentieth century.

Several other vessels had the name of the Natural State. During the Civil War, both Union and Confederate navies had ships named Arkansas. The Union ship was a wooden supply vessel while the Confederate version was an ironclad ship that saw only four months of service before it was sunk in the Mississippi River near Baton Rouge in 1862. In 1898, the new USS Arkansas, designated M-7, was constructed as a heavily armed monitor, but it was outdated by the time it was launched in 1900. It spent most of its career as a training ship before it was renamed the USS Ozark in 1909 just as a new battleship under construction would take the state's name.

On January 14, 1911, the Arkansas was launched as one of the nation's top new battleships. It boasted a dozen 12-inch guns, 21 smaller guns, and submerged torpedo launchers. The 562-foot vessel carried a crew of more than one thousand men.

In 1914, President Woodrow Wilson decided to intervene in the deteriorating civil war in Mexico and sent the Arkansas along with other ships to surround the port at Veracruz and land troops to occupy the city. During the Veracruz expedition, the Arkansas actually served in the same task force with its former namesake, the rechristened Ozark.

When the nation entered World War I in 1917, the Arkansas patrolled the Atlantic coast against possible German submarine attacks before joining the combined American-British fleet in the eastern Atlantic.

In 1919, it served as part of the fleet escorting President Wilson to the international peace conference in Paris to formally end the World War I. The vessel spent much of the interwar years as a training vessel.

The ship served as a support vessel to protect convoys from German submarine attacks in the first years of World War II. When American forces landed at Omaha Beach on D-Day, June 6, 1944, the Arkansas was part of the naval bombardment against the Germans and later bombarded German positions at Cherbourg as the Allies expanded their hold on northern France. It was rushed to the Mediterranean in August to be part of the Allied landings in southern France. The Arkansas was soon transferred to the Pacific theater. In early 1945, it served as part of the heavy naval bombardment of Japanese positions at the battles of Iwo Jima and Okinawa.

Though it had served honorably for more than three decades, the Arkansas had an ignominious retirement. To describe the end of the career of the Arkansas, it safely can be said that it ended with a blast. A nuclear blast, to be precise. As it was considered too old for continued service after the end of World War II and as many ships were being decommissioned, it was included in a US Navy test of the effect of atomic weapons on naval vessels. The tests, at Bikini Atoll in the Marshall Islands several thousand miles southwest of Hawaii, were conducted in 1946. While the Arkansas survived the first round of bombing tests, it did not survive the second.

The tradition of the Arkansas name continued with the commissioning of a nuclear-powered cruiser in 1980. This USS Arkansas, CGN-42, was decommissioned in 1998.

Senate Week in Review from Ben Gilmore Senator

Over the course of the upcoming year legislators will study all the various laws in Arkansas governing firearms, with the intent of simplifying them.

The study was prompted by requests from law enforcement and instructors of gun safety. At legislative meetings this summer they have asked for clarification of when and where it is legal to carry firearms.

Legislators themselves have been seeking clarity on the state's gun laws. Earlier this year lawmakers approved Act 777 to clarify that a concealed carry permit is not required in order to carry a concealed firearm in Arkansas. The purpose of issuing permits to Arkansas residents is to make it simpler for them to comply with gun laws in other states, and to qualify for reciprocal treatment.

The state attorney general already has begun working to clarify the state's gun laws, along with the Senate co-chairman of the Legislative Council and the Senate co-chairman of the Council's subcommittee that focuses on the Game and Fish Commission and the State Police.

As an example of how confusing the state's gun laws can be, the attorney general said that in the past ten years, lawmakers had requested about two dozen official opinions about firearms.

The Game and Fish-State Police subcommittee will submit recommendations by October 1, 2024. The Legislative Council will consider the final report during its meeting in December of 2024, and the entire legislature will vote on the recommendations during the 2025 regular session. It begins in January of 2025.

One point of clarification will be the locations where carrying a concealed firearm is restricted, such as courtrooms, jails and prisons.

There is a distinction between ordinary concealed carry permits and enhanced permits, which allow the permit holder greater access to public areas.

Also to be decided will be the qualifications of firearms instructors, how much continuing education they must complete and the extent that the State Police is authorized to enforce standards for firearms instructors.

Arkansas laws and federal laws are not the same. Legislators will study and recommend which state agency is best qualified to answer questions about discrepancies between state and federal statutes.

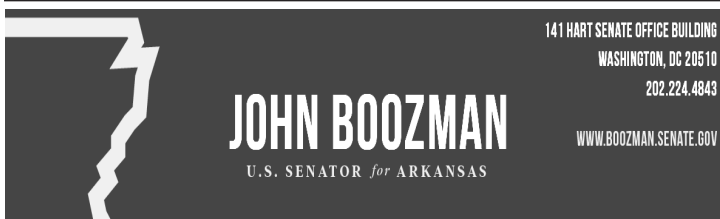

The attorney general and legislative leaders emphasized that the purpose of the study will be to strengthen the protections in the Second Amendment, which guarantees the rights of citizens to bear arms.

The Arkansas legislature has never enacted a bill that would restrict the Second Amendment. However, understanding current laws can be complicated because there are so many on the books.

Representatives of law enforcement expressed support of the study, because they have sometimes have to interpret complicated and repetitive language. As the attorney general said, people should be able to make sense of Arkansas gun laws without having to hire a lawyer.

In 2017 the governor sent a letter to the State Police stating that "Act 743 of 2013 clarified that a person may open carry a handgun so long as there is no intent to unlawfully employ the handgun." Any citation for mere open carry would be inappropriate and inconsistent with Arkansas law, the governor wrote.

This is an exciting time of year filled with hope and promise as students begin a new school year. It's also a season that brings people together to cheer on their favorite football team. There is something unique about the enthusiasm for the sport that shapes the identity of schools, communities and fans. Like many Arkansans, I know firsthand how athletics builds character and teaches lifelong lessons that extend beyond the field.

Growing up in Fort Smith, I looked up to Razorback players and coaches and watched games on Saturdays. Having the opportunity to suit up in Hogs gear under legendary Coach Frank Broyles was a dream come true.

Outside of family, the people who had the greatest influences on my life were coaches and teachers. Perhaps none more so than Coach Broyles.

Coach Broyles had a great ability to attract good people to surround himself with, and he made them better. Since he had so many assistant coaches come through the program that went on to do great things in football, the award given to the best assistant coach in college football is now named after him.

He was a great mentor for his staff and the athletes he recruited.

Coach Broyles was fond of saying "there are two types of people in this world: givers and takers. Live your life as a giver, not a taker."

I have carried that bit of wisdom with me throughout my life and certainly while serving Arkansans in the Senate.

In a recent episode of The Elephant in the Room podcast, we talked about how sports teach us to work as a team. On the field players learn quickly that by working together you can achieve great things, but it requires cooperation and the participation of all team members.

It's a practice coaches share that also translates off the field.

When I was first elected to Congress to represent the Third District of Arkansas in 2001, I became friends with Congressman Tom Osbourne who was representing a district in Nebraska.

Prior to serving in Congress, Tom was one of the winningest head coaches in collegiate football history. He coached Nebraska teams to 13 conference championships, three national championships and earned a spot in the College Football Hall of Fame.

He understood that this life we are given is about more than personal accomplishments. He felt compelled to give back and thought the best way to use his talents was to serve in the House of Representatives.

The old football player in me sought out the Coach for counsel when I got to Washington.

He provided a wealth of advice, but perhaps the best lesson he taught me was that, even in a place like Washington, you can get a lot accomplished if you don't care who gets the credit.

There is so much truth in this insight. We are stronger and smarter as a team. When each person brings their individual talents to the table we can change things for the better and celebrate the victories together.

As the 2023 football season kicks off, I wish all players, coaches and fans a great season, and I encourage all of us to remember the valuable lessons learned on the field are just as important after the final whistle blows.

 TRUTH IN SCRIPTURE
 At Sinai: Commandments Given
 Exodus 19-20

When the Israelites arrived at Sinai, Moses went up into the mountain to meet with God and the Lord gave him the Ten Commandments, writing them on stone tablets.

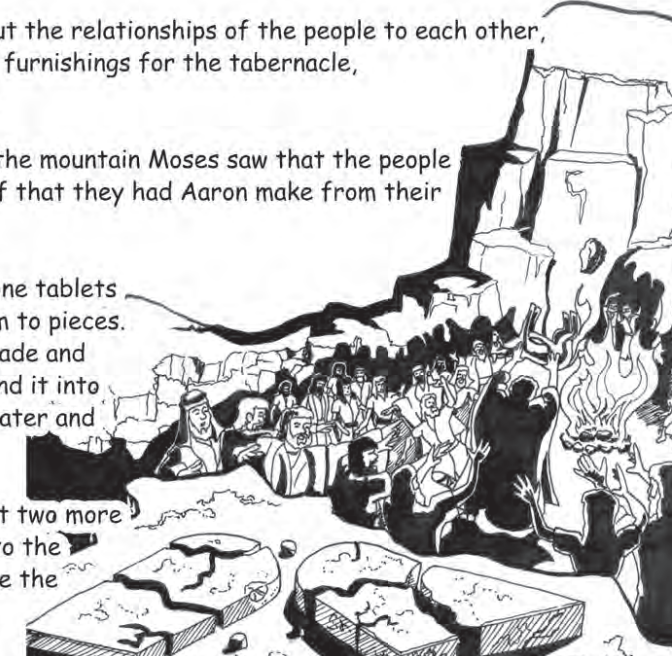

He also gave instructions about the relationships of the people to each other, festivals, the tabernacle and furnishings for the tabernacle, the Sabbath observance, etc.

As he was coming down from the mountain Moses saw that the people were worshipping a golden calf that they had Aaron make from their jewelry.

In anger Moses threw the stone tablets out of his hand, breaking them to pieces. He took the calf Aaron had made and burned it in the fire and ground it into powder, scattered it on the water and made the Israelites drink it.

The Lord had Moses chisel out two more stone tablets and take them to the mountain where he would write the commandments again.
