River snags, logjams pose concern

BY JEFF OSBORNE SENIOR WRITER & EDITOR

Logjams and snags in the Leon River are causing property damage during high water events. Coryell County leaders are looking to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to help resolve the problem.

"We've been dealing with logjams in the Leon River, and it's been causing some issues for us," said Coryell County Attorney Brandon Belt. "One in particular that continues to cause damage is upstream from the bridge across (Farm to Market Road) 1829. When the river gets up, it cuts across the land and then runs across 1829."

Other major logjams have led to recurring flooding near Mother Neff State Park.

The county has been discussing the concern and a possible resolution with the Corps of Engineers.

"They have a program to help remove snags," Belt said. "Over the years, the snags cause the river to jump out (onto property nearby)."

When water flows through the impacted areas, "It runs deeper, faster and there's more erosion, Belt said. "There's nothing to stabilize it because it's running across a field. The Corps of Engineers has a program and property owners (who are affected) have to have the consent of the governing agency."

Steve Manning, a Coryell County rancher, told the Coryell County Commissioners Court that by working together, different local entities can help resolve the con-funding as part of the effort, but county leaders are just expressing their support for Corps of Engineers work to help fix snags in the river that lead to flooding issues.

Leon River flooding sometimes creates road hazards for area residents. Recurring issues could be addressed by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Coryell County residents are also able to participate in similar hazardous waste collection events in other CTCOG counties.

collection, such as their driver's license or a utility bill, but the event

Coryell County seeking auditor assistance

BY JEFF OSBORNE SENIOR WRITER & EDITOR

Coryell County is looking for an auditor to fill the position when Ben Roberts retires, an assistant auditor to take over the responsibilities in the meantime, or possibly both.

During a recent meeting, the Coryell County Commissioners Court discussed whether to seek an assistant auditor, and had already advertised for an auditor.

"We've talked about this in the past - it's not easy to find a qualified auditor or assistant auditor," said County Attorney Brandon Belt. "The sooner we get going on this It may be a while before a suitable person is found. At this point without going through a (recruitment) service to help us, I don't know how we're going to find someone. This fiscal year is quickly rolling by.

"I know Judge (Trent) Farrell (the 52nd District Court judge) would back up the creation of that (assistant auditor) position, and we should start looking for someone to fill that position."

Belt said he is confident in

Roberts' ability to handle the many requirements of the job, "but it's a lot of things to keep up with. We can get the blessing from the district judge and start working on (finding a new auditor and/or assistant auditor)."

County Commissioner Kyle Matthews noted that a position has already been approved by the commissioners court for someone to focus on purchasing, and noted those duties could be combined with an assistant auditor post.

Roberts said getting a reasonable salary to attract a new auditor is important.

"If you do find someone to take my job, they're probably not going to take it for that salary," he said.

The annual wage listed for Roberts for 2020 was $70,561. According to published reports from the Texas Association of Counties, the Burnet County auditor in that same year had a salary of $91,790 while the Lampasas County auditor's salary was $71,842. These salary surveys are only published in even numbered years, so there is no report for 2021. The 2022 report has not been published yet.

Neighboring counties which are significantly larger paid substantially more for the same timeframe. The McLennan County auditor's salary was posted at $153,411 for 2020 according to the online county budget. Meanwhile, Bell County auditor was listed at $114,515 according to the Bell County budget, which was also posted online.

As of March 8, the posting for the Coryell County auditor position did not list a salary range.

"Judge Farrell would not stand in the way of the commissioners court posting a salary to help us find someone and to help us recruit for that position," Belt said.

County Judge Roger Miller said he supports using a service to help the county recruit a qualified auditor applicant.

"You may need additional money to help pay an auditor," Roberts said. "That leaves the judge some room to negotiate."

"He's just got to find someone to negotiate with," Belt said.

Roberts said he is committed to staying a while until the county leadership can find someone to take his place.

"I'm not leaving until we get somebody," he said. "I'm not going to leave you in the lurch. We're not in a unique position. This kind of search is going on all across the nation."

Matthews said he also favors hiring specialists that can fill out grant applications to help take the load off the auditor's office.

"While we look for someone to fill the position, there's companies out there that can help us with grant applications," he said.

"We have the perfect opportunity to give them a test run," Belt said.

"I think it's worth our while to advertise an assistant auditor position," Miller said. "Right now, we have a need for both (an auditor and assistant auditor)."

1st Cav adapts during power outage drill on post

BY MASTER SGT. MIRIAM ESPINOZA

1ST CAVALRY DIVISION PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE

FORT HOOD – 1st Cavalry Division adapted food service operations on March 15 to feed troopers during the Fort Hood Energy Resilient Readiness Exercise which left the installation powerless throughout the duty day.

The purpose of the exercise was to test installation emergency and standby energy generation systems, critical infrastructure and equipment to inform senior leaders of what infrastructure is required to support critical missions on the installation.

"It provides me with satisfaction; to be able to feed the customers, to give them hope that they have somewhere to eat if something like this was to happen," said Spc. Jovan Harris, culinary specialist, 1st Cavalry Division Sustainment Brigade.

Culinary specialists with 1st Armored Brigade Combat Team, 3rd Armored Brigade Combat Team, and 1st CAV Sustainment Brigade set up field feeding equipment with the capability to feed up to 600 troopers, ensuring troopers, who are meal card holders, still had the opportunity to receive three meals while on-post restaurants and dining facilities remained closed.

Despite the loss of power, troopers continued to conduct operations to maintain the division's readiness. Private 1st Class Jazer DeGuzman, infantryman, 1st Battalion, 8th Cavalry Regiment, said he was preparing for upcoming training at the National Training Center and appreciative of having the commodity of stopping by and grabbing a plate of food on his way to work during the power outage.

Field feeding teams made up of 10-12 culinary specialists provided eligible troopers hot meals for breakfast and dinner. During the lunch meal, troopers were offered a cold take-out meal kit, which met the Army "Gofor-Green" nutritional value standards and included a sandwich, produce, a drink and snacks.

The 1st Cavalry Division Sustainment Brigade also provided troopers the opportunity to eat at their Mobile Outpost; which offered three hot meals and was equipped to feed approximately 300 troopers.

"As you can see we are ready to support the Fort Hood footprint to make sure that troopers have the meals they need throughout the day," said Chief Warrant Officer 3 Jobeth Yambo, food service manager, 1st Cavalry Division.

According to Yambo, these types of exercises offer opportunities to test how 1st CAV culinary teams would react if there were a real-world calamity.

Keep Gatesville Beautiful chose the home of Ann Miller (pictured with her son, Roger Miller) at 302 Leon as Yard of the Month for March. This beautiful home has been in their family since it was built 71 years ago on property that belonged to Ann's mother-in-law. The Millers raised their family in this home. What is Middle Trinity Groundwater Conservation District?

STEPHANIE KEITH

Editor's Note: Stephanie Keith has served as the education and public relations coordinator for Middle Trinity Groundwater Conservation District for the last five years. During her time at the district, she has established multiple educational programs ranging from classroom lessons to presentations for civil organiza-

Formally, Middle Trinity Groundwater Conservation District is a political subdivision of the State of Texas that has the authority to regulate the spacing of water wells, the production from water wells, or both under the Texas Constitution, Article III, Section 52, or Article XVI, Section 59.

Understandably, this definition portrays the district as the "water police," but we were actually established to aid in protecting groundwater rights of district landowners. MTGCD was formed through a local petition process in May 2004. All rules were developed according to Chapter 36 of the Texas Water Code, the needs presented by its residents, and aquifer characteristics. District staff process each new well to confirm adequate spacing is available from wellhead to wellhead to minimize neighbor pumping interference. Within the State of Texas, well registration and permitting of non-exempt wells is required within a groundwater conservation district.

The district continues to serve the residents within its four counties, Erath, Comanche, Bosque and Coryell, by well water level monitoring, well registration and permitting, free well water quality testing, free well capping and plugging, educational programming, 4-H Water Ambassador Program supporter and scholarship opportunities.

If you would like to learn more about the district, join us for our monthly board meetings or stay up to date on district activities by visiting us at www.middletrinitygcd.org or Facebook: @ middletrinitygcd.

Popular insect repellant plants

Homeowners choose plants for their properties based on a number of variables. Some may be into growing their own foods, while others desire their gardens to be an awe-inspiring mélange of bright colors and alluring scents. There's no wrong reason to plant a fresh garden, but some plants offer extra benefits, such as repelling insects.

Insects can be a nuisance and a threat to individuals' overall health. According to the American Academy of Family Physicians, insect-borne diseases are viral and bacterial illnesses that develop from insect bites. Mosquitoes, sand flies and fleas are some examples of insects that can pass on disease. Fever, chills, headache, and muscle soreness are just a few of the more common symptoms linked to insect-borne diseases.

The good news for avid gardeners is that certain plants can help repel insects and provide the additional benefits like fresh food and aesthetic appeal that so many people love.

BASIL

The aroma of fresh basil is enough to compel any gardener to make a place for it in their garden. But there's more to fresh basil than its scent, as the Farmers Almanac notes it can be used to repel mosquitoes and moths.

and moths are not fans of this aromatic and colorful member of the mint family. Bees tend to be drawn to lavender, a durable plant that many garden centers recommend in areas prone to drought or hot summers without much precipitation.

Mint is another plant that is instantly recognizable for its aroma. But mint lovers may not realize that it's also great for keeping ants at bay. Mint also can be used to repel mosquitoes, but gardeners with no experience planting mint should plant it in pots. That's because the Farmers Almanac notes mint is an especially aggressive spreader that can quickly take over a garden. Separating mint in pots can prevent it from bullying its way into other plants' domains.

LEMONGRASS

Lemongrass is a tropical grass that's so fragrant it's often used in perfumes. Lemongrass contains citronella, which many people associate with repelling mosquitoes. A potted lemongrass plant can repel these unwanted guests, keeping them away from decks, porches and/or patios all summer long.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

The Farmers' Almanac® recommends using chrysanthemums, which repel a range of insects from bedbugs to fleas to ants, as border plants around a home. That's because they contain the natural insecticide pyrethrin, which can serve as something of an insect-repelling boundary around a home.

Crabgrass is one lawn problem that can compromise the look of an otherwise lush lawn. Thankfully, crabgrass can be controlled without much effort.

Identifying crabgrass

Crabgrass is a weed that grows in areas of a lawn that are bare or where the grass is thin. Crabgrass gets its name from its appearance, as it grows from the center outward and mimics the look of crab legs emerging from the center shell.

The growth of crabgrass

Crabgrass is an annual plant. That means a crabgrass infestation that's problematic once the mercury rises in the summer will die out in late fall or early winter. But crabgrass germinates in the spring, so homeowners will want to take steps to prevent it long before it becomes an eyesore in summer.

TAGD recognizes Joe Cooper

At the Texas Alliance of Groundwater Districts (TAGD) business meeting on February 8, members awarded Joe B. Cooper an Honorary Membership. The TAGD Honorary Membership recognizes Cooper's outstanding commitment to the organization and achievement in groundwater management.

Cooper retired from Middle Trinity Groundwater Conservation District in October 2021 after 18 years of dedicated service to the Texas groundwater community. He was president of TAGD in 2016 and 2017 and held other positions on the executive committee for the majority of his time at Middle Trinity

"Joe B." is passionate about TAGD's success and is especially proud to have served on the hiring committee for the past three TAGD executive directors. Outside of TAGD, he also represented his district through his involvement in the ers on a special occasion? Flowers traditionally are given for Valentine's Day, Mother's Day, anniversaries, and other special events. While a beautiful bouquet can make a lovely gift, fresh flowers have finite lasting power. Recipients of floral arrangements need not fret. Various strategies can help prolong the life of freshly cut flowers. Florists employ certain tricks to keep cut flowers fresh longer. In fact, that's a person's best bet to keep cut flowers fresh - purchasing arrangements from knowledgeable florists who have done their part to ensure flower longevity.

Who doesn't enjoy receiving a fresh bouquet of flow-

Here are some additional strategies to consider.

Make fresh cuts in stems Think back to the last time you purchased a fresh Christmas tree. What is the key to ensuring it gets enough water while on display? You guessed it: making a fresh cut in the trunk of the tree. The same concept applies to floral arrangements. Use a sharp scissor or that contain vodka. Sugar pruning shears to cut about one inch from the bottom of each stem at a 45-degree angle. Continue this process every three days or so. The 45-degree angle prevents the stem from squishing during the cut and enables it to absorb more water.

Get them in water quickly

Place the flowers in a vase or other vessel with water promptly after making the cuts. Some florists like to cut the stems under water to prevent air bubbles from forming in the stems. Choose an arrangement first, then cut and place the flowers in water quickly. This gives fresh arrangements a good chance to last awhile.

Monitor water temperature The temperature of the water in the vase should coordinate with the flowers on display. Do not use hot water or the stems will cook. Room temperature is best for most flowers, except for blooms from bulbs that flower during cooler months, such as tulips and daffodils. They'll be more likely to thrive in cooler water, according to Consumer Reports.

Tricks to keep floral

Chill your arrangement

The experts at FTD by Design tested various theories for keeping floral arrangements fresh, including adding aspirin to the water or using sugar or concoctions and vinegar served as a runner-up for long-lasting blooms, but the best solution for prolonging the flowers was putting the arrangement in the refrigerator each night for roughly eight hours.

Prune the foliage

Before placing cut flowers in a vase, remove extra leaves at the base of the stems that will fall underneath the water line. This helps to limit bacteria growth in the water and cuts back on foul odors. Plus, removing foliage focuses flowers' energy on the main blooms rather than the

These steps can add life to cut flowers, helping arrangements thrive in any home.

Upgrading bathroom safety features

Bathrooms can benefit from updates that improve their form and function. While styles and color patterns may inspire bathroom renovations, improvements to safety also should be considered. Bathrooms can be one of the most dangerous rooms in a house. Bath and shower areas account for about twothirds of accidental injuries in these spaces. Many other injuries involve the toilet. In 2008, a thorough investigation of bathroom dangers conducted by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention found that mishaps near the bathtub, shower, toilet, and sink caused an estimated 234,094 nonfatal injuries in the United States among people aged 15 years and older.

Seniors are particularly vulnerable in the bathroom due to reduced mobility and flexibility, visual impairment and other factors. However, some key modifications can make bathrooms much safer for aging populations.

RAISED TOILET SEAT

Install an ADA-compliant raised toilet seat. Standard toilet seats are roughly 15 inches high, but elevated seats can raise the bowl an additional two to four inches. Another option is to invest in risers that can be attached to an existing toilet.

GRAB BARS

Seniors may use towel holders as grab bars, which don't have stability and can dislodge from the wall. Install secured side grip bars by the toilet and inside the shower to make maneuvering easier.

WATERTEMPERATURE

Seniors may be vulnerable to hot water temperatures. Lower the water temperature setting on the hot water heater. StaySafe.org recommends 120 F.

FAUCETS

Change faucet handles to paddle-style handles rather than knobs. Knobs can be challenging to grip for those with arthritis in their hands. Also, handles that are easier for seniors to use can reduce the risk of the elderly losing their balance as they attempt to gain leverage to turn the water on and off.

NONSLIP MATS

Nonslip mats or tape strips can be used in showers and tub bottoms, as well as outside of the shower to reduce the risk of slips and falls. Rugs should have rubberized, slip-resistant backing.

ROUNDED CORNERS

Choose counters and fixtures with rounded corners. Should a senior fall against something, the rounded corner may prevent serious injury.

SHOWER BENCHES AND TRANSFER SEATS

Eyesight weakens over time, so improve lighting with combinations of overhead lighting and softer side lighting. Night lights or soft-glowing toilet lights can make it easier to get around the bathroom in the middle of the night.

These are just some improvements that can create safer bathroom environments for seniors

Hasty Judgements

"Do not judge, or you too will be judged. For in the same way you judge others, you will be judged, and with the measure you use, it will be measured to you." —Matthew 7:1-2 NIV conclusions about other people's motives. ■We may think that someone is doing something for the worst of reasons, but we really do not and cannot know with certainty why people do the things they do. Scrutinizing our own motives and judging ourselves can often be valuable for our own spiritual progress, but judging others is almost always a mistake because we simply can't know someone else's motives. So why do we do it? Why are we so quick to judge other people? Perhaps part of the reason is simply that to get along with others it helps to be in tune with what others are thinking and feeling. We can't be blind to the fact that other people have feelings and motives for doing what they do. But by judging others charitably, and assuming the best of them rather than the worst, we usually get along much better. In fact, sometimes the charitable judgement becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy. So if you are going to be hasty in making judgements about others, at least be hasty in making charitable judgements. All it takes is a bit of kindness, empathy, and perhaps a smile to get others to act with kindness, empathy and a smile of their own. - Christopher Simon

This Brighton Beach Memoir-ish tale is warm as a sidewalk knish

TERRI SCHLICHENMEYER

You never thought that you could tell a joke.

Oh, you'd start off right, tucking in all the funny motions and voices. You'd do the build-up like it was meant to be and you'd pause at all the right places but much as you tried, the punchline never arrived, or it did and it was delivered wrong. Ugh. Maybe you should try writing better jokes. Just remember, as in the new memoir, "What's So Funny?" by David Sipress, some jokes write themselves. Friday nights at Gino's on Lexington Avenue were the best of times. New Yorker cartoonist David Sipress remembers them for their sophistication, for the celebrity-spotting opportunities, for his mother's elegant dresses and pearls, and because his father, Nat, was an important man on those evenings about town.

Nat Sipress was born in the early 1900s and immigrated with most of his family from Ukraine as a boy, to escape prosecution for their Jewish faith. The family landed first in Brooklyn, where life was a struggle; shortly afterward, they moved to Williamsburg and Nat left home, cutting most ties with his siblings. Why, his son can only guess; Nat was silent on the subject of his life in Ukraine and his earliest boyhood.

And yet, he was open and mostly affable about many other things. The staff at Gino's apparently loved him. He gave Christmas the same weight as Hanukkah in the household, and he didn't lose control the afternoon when Sipress tossed his toys out their apartment window. He urged Sipress to go to college, was proud when he chose to major in Russian history, and urged his son to stick with it, even though Sipress knew his heart was in cartooning. It was then that Nat spoke his displeasure in a time-honored fatherly way: by cutting Sipress loose for awhile.

But it was done with love. As were Sipress' mother's constant queries about Sipress' happy childhood. As were his father's weekly visits to the legacy he'd leave his children, and the surprises Sipress would find when his sister died....

So there you are, sitting anywhere but New York City. So why would you want to read the memoirs of a Jewish kid from Manhattan, circa the years, a quaintly overprotective mother, and memories of a New York that you'll never see again. Former children, especially those who grew up in the Eisenhower years, will recognize their own kidhood in this book; anyone who was a young adult in the 1960s will identify with memories of fatherson clashes and long-haired hippies. Most delightfully, it's all wrapped around Sipress' story of his career and

It seems trite to say that you'll laugh at this book and you'll cry, but you will. It's like the best kind of college reunion, with a casual after-gathering in the lounge. Indeed, read "What's So Funny?" and you'll know what is.

Tuesday night (March 15) did not pan out how the Gatesville Hornets would have liked, losing a nondistrict game to Robinson, 12-2, at Robinson High School.

The Hornets struggled against the Rockets with only Hayden Mooney and Parker Allman crossing home plate in the third inning.

Mooney's walk in the third inning led to a steal of second base to set him up in scoring position. Allman hit the ball hard into right field for a single and Mooney reached third base. A sacrifice fly by Mata allowed Mooney to score a run. Allman scored his run on a passed GHS baseball coach Chase Smith remained positive after the defeat. Smith hopes the Hornets can grow from the loss, bettering themselves for district opponents.

"We saw some good pitching, which will help us gain experience in the box for district," Smith said.

With the loss, the Hornets dropped to 6-7 overall. The Hornets are 1-0 in their District 6-4A standings because of their 10-0 mercy-rule win over the Lampasas Badgers on March 8.

AREA FISHING REPORT

GOOD. Water lightly stained; 55 degrees; 3.21 feet low. White bass are moving toward spawning areas and tributaries, but cold temperatures and lack of flow is a major hindrance. Using side-imaging to cover large tracts of bottom to find nomadic schools of fish has been very effective. Spot-Locking crosswind from these fish, then casting MAL Heavy or MAL Dense lures to them and working these lures in a sawtooth pattern has been the successful tactic, and will continue to be for the next 2 weeks or so. Using a light spinning tackle with a light (10-15 pound) braided line helps cut through the wind and helps the lure reach bottom quickly. Report by Bob Maindelle, Holding the Line Guide Service. Crappie and white bass are excellent in the Leon River and Cowhouse Creek biting ATX Lure Company plastics. Report by Zach Minnix, Jig N' Jerk Guide Service.

Stillhouse Hollow

GOOD. Water lightly stained; 45 degrees; 3.15 feet low. White bass are moving toward spawning areas and tributaries, but cold temperatures and lack of flow is a major hindrance. Using side-imaging to cover large tracts of bottom to find nomadic schools of fish has been very effective. Spot-Locking crosswind from these fish, then casting MAL

Heavy or MAL Dense lures to them and working these lures in a sawtooth pattern has been the successful tactic, and will continue to be for the next 2 weeks or so. Using a light spinning tackle with a light (10-15 pound) braided line helps cut through the wind and helps the lure reach bottom quickly.

Waco GOOD. Water stained; 57 degrees; 4.54 feet low. Cattin' Around Adventure's Professional Guide Service. Crappie and white bass are excellent in North and South Bosque biting ATX Lure Company plastics. Report by Zach Minnix, Jig N' Jerk Guide Service.

GOOD. Water lightly stained; 54 degrees; 2.31 feet low. Striped bass is good but can be caught in 25 to 60 feet of water near the bottom. Look for fish suspended off the bottom as those are the ones that are feeding more actively. Soft plastics with a heavy weight to help sink it lower seems to do the trick. Do this while slow trolling at 0.3mph to 1.8mph in the main river channel. These fish are holding deep so deadsticking with white or chartreuse will work as well along with slabs. Fish are scattered throughout the reservoir from the dam all the way to the river. Report provided by Kraig Sexton, Sexton's Guide Service LLC.

Proctor

SLOW. Water clear; 46 degrees; 1.86 feet low. Fishing continues to be slow but should improve as the weather warms the water. Fish between fronts for the best success. Blue catfish are slow in shallow water on cut shad. Hybrid bass are slow on cut bait drifting 10-15 feet of water. Crappie are slow on brush piles using minnows and jigs.

Brownwood

SLOW. Water stained; 47 degrees; 2.18 feet low. Largemouth bass to six pounds are good on shad or craw color square bill crankbaits or chatterbaits around stick-ups, and rocky shorelines in 2-6 feet of water close to the mouth of major coves starting to move shallow getting ready to spawn. Crappie are slow on minnows and jigs. White bass are slow on slabs and live bait around bait fish schools. Catfish are slow on shrimp, chicken liver on jug lines.

Buchanan

FAIR. Water lightly stained; 54 degrees; 4.89 feet low. Largemouth bass are good near rock piles and spawning flats are starting to turn on with some good bites using shaky heads, jigs, worms or crankbaits and spinnerbaits bouncing off or running through rocks. Shallow crankbaits and plastics worked around the flats full of trees are working as well for largemouth. Crappie are showing up around shallow flats with trees and around docks now as well. White bass and stripers are good using your electronics to find them piled up deeper and dropping jigging spoons on them. Report provided by Bryan Cotter, Texas Hawgs Bass Fishing Guide Service.

Travis

GOOD. Stained; 54-57 degrees; 20.87 feet low. Lake Travis is fishing well. Check the backs of coves for bedding bass and catch them using soft plastics such as lizards, craw worms and straight or curly tailed worms. Some of the better bites are coming around staging areas just outside of spawning flats and coves where big females are hanging out either going in to spawn or on the way out of spawning. Deep ledges and boat docks are holding fish as well. A shaky head, drop shot or jigging spoon will get you bit. Report provided by Bryan Cotter, Texas Hawgs. Bass are good on jerkbaits around points and bluff walls using shallow running shad crankbaits. Night fishing in the green lights is good for crappie and stripers from the dam to midlake and Briar Cliff using live bait and small swimbaits. White bass are trying to move between the Pedernales split and Colorado River biting on jigging spoons.
