GISD, local DA's office strengthen partnership

BY JEFF OSBORNE SENIOR WRITER & EDITOR

The Gatesville Independent School District Board of Trustees approved entering into a memorandum of understanding with the Coryell County District Attorney's Office to share resources.

"This will allow us to share information and resources and help to get our students the support they need," said Scott Harper, assistant superintendent for administrative services for GISD.

He said the memorandum will help build a strong connection between the school district and the DA's office, not just focusing on defendants but also on helping victims.

"When we start looking at things families need, we can look into stockpiling resources and reaching dropouts," Harper said. "We have 41 who seem to have fallen off the face of the earth, and this will help us work to find them.

"We can also focus on how we can get them back and help them get back on track by getting a high school diploma.

"This is an exciting time and will help us reach kids we haven't been able to reach in the past."

Sharing data will "help ensure students don't fall through the cracks," Harper said. He said district threat assessments can help reinforce student safety each day.

"The more information we have, the better it is," Harper said. "Hopefully, we're filling gaps. As you know more, you can do more. We can do what's best for kids."

School board President Charles Ament asked about the response of the DA's office to the agreement.

"Is the DA's office as excited about this as you are?" Ament asked.

"Absolutely," Harper said. "They are always working to get more information out to people."

School board member Calvin Ford said he also thinks the DA's office is looking forward to sharing more information.

"I agree they are excited," Ford said. "I think this is a wonderful thing – one of the best things that can happen – and it's much needed."

Sometimes, concerns may not be shared and collaborating more closely can make a difference, Harper said.

"If nothing else, it can make somebody aware (of concerns) who cares," he said.

"I agree with Calvin - I think this is phenomenal," Ament said.

"I think it's outstanding - long overdue," said board member Jimmie Ferguson.

"It's what we need," said board member Linda Maxwell.

Celebrating local Golden Deeds

BY JEFF OSBORNESENIOR WRITER & EDITOR

Outstanding students, as well as a firefighter, peace officer, healthcare professional, educator and community members were honored during the Gatesville Exchange Club's Golden Deeds Banquet on April 25 at First United Methodist Church of Gatesville.

This was the first time the banquet has been held since 2019 because of COVID-19 disruptions in 2020 and 2021.

"It's good to celebrate what a wonderful community we live in," said JoAnn Sugg, a member of the Exchange Club Board of Directors.

The first award presented was the Proudly We Hail Award, which went to Thomas Bone for his display of the American flag. Tabitha Tippit, assistant director of nursing at Hillside Medical Lodge, was honored with the Healthcare Professional Award.

The Peace Officer Award went to Gatesville Police Sgt. Michael Cochran.

"He has over 26 years' experience in law enforcement and has been in Gatesville since 2014," said Gatesville PD Patrol Lt. Georg Cleverley. "He counsels and mentors officers and is doing the work of two patrol sergeants with the retirement of

The fury of a woman scorned

BY DAVID SCOTT

On Feb. 2, 1909, tensions were riding high in the district courtroom at the Coryell County Courthouse. A town divided had come to witness a much-discussed court case...that would never culminate with a verdict.

When multiple gun shots rang out in the packed courtroom, those assembled were scrambling to avoid the sudden spray of bullets fired by a woman who was "wronged" by the man who was on trial for seducing her. Inside the crowded courtroom, some spectators were sitting in the windowsills when the shots rang out. One of those people, fearing he would be shot, jumped from the second story window, falling to the ground and breaking his leg. In the end, four people had been shot in the courtroom. The one who died instantly was John Hanes, the defendant accused of seduction.

The story began in March of 1907. Several versions of the story have often been embellished over the years. Verna Ware was an 18-year-old young lady of medium build with dark hair and dark eyes.

DAVID SCOTT | THE GATESVILLE MESSENGER

This Coryell County courtroom was the scene of an attack by a woman who had been rejected by a suitor after he seduced her. Four were shot and three died in the 1909 incident.

She had become acquainted with John Hanes, a young man who was 22 years of age. One version of the story is that Hanes, who was said to have been a pharmacist, had secretly placed drugs in chocolates that he gave to Ware at a picnic, and after she was sedated, he took advantage of her. The other story, and most likely the more accurate version, was that Hanes had escorted Ware to a dance in the western regions of Coryell County where the two had ended up spending the night together and thus resulted in Ware becoming pregnant.

Internet study approved

BY JEFF OSBORNE SENIOR WRITER & EDITOR

The Coryell County Commissioners Court approved participation in a broadband internet evaluation by the Foresight Group despite reservations about the $249,280 price tag.

The study is expected to help determine the county's internet needs and could also help the county obtain grant funding to help fill the gaps when it comes to technology.

The commissioners court approved the contract with Commissioner Ray Ashby voting against the measure.

"I'm not against broadband, I'm just against spending that much for the study," Ashby said.

Commissioner Kyle Matthews had also voiced concerns about the cost, and the extent to which the county might be expected to provide the information for the study.

"That's a lot of information they're requesting, and I feel if they're doing the study, they're the ones who need to gather the information," Matthews said.

Lee Comer, a representative of the Foresight Group, said if the county had the information, "we'd love to have access to it. Otherwise, if you could make some introduction to those who have the data, we can get that data."

County Judge Roger Miller said in order to be eligible for grants to enhance local internet service, the study is an important part of the process.

"There is federal funding available" Miller said "we're not go-

"There is federal funding available," Miller said. "we're not going to be able to get a lot of what's available without having gone through this process. It's beneficial to our citizens and our county, and we've discussed internet concerns for years."

On Dec. 24, 1908, Verna Ware gave birth to a healthy baby girl whom she named Opal Kathryn. The exact relationship between Ware and John Hanes remains unknown, but the following month after her daughter's birth, on January 23, 1909, seduction charges were filed against John Hanes. A deadly court case would ensue the following month. Both Verna and John came from wellknown and respectable farm families. The community became divided...some coming to Verna's defense and others to John's.

On the day of the shooting, Verna Ware and her brother were standing in the rotunda of the courthouse watching the proceedings through an inside window which separated the courtroom from the rotunda. Some reports say that she feared that Hanes would not be convicted of seduction and that was when she took matters into her own hands. Before she could be stopped, Ware pulled a 38 Colt revolver from her purse and shot Hanes at least twice and then shot three other men in the courtroom who were said to be his character witnesses. Newspaper accounts said that after she had shot the men, she put the gun to her own head, but that the gun was wrestled away from her before she could fire.

Ware was taken to the Coryell County Jail where physicians reported her to be in a "critical condition of nervous collapse." She had to wait in jail a few days before the grand jury could charge her. During that time, newspapers reported that there were "threats of violence" made against her by friends of John Hanes. One account reported that "a party was formed which threatened a lynching, but its leader was arrested, and the rest were dispersed by officers."

The grand jury returned three bills of indictment for murder and one for carrying a pistol. Ware's bond was set at $7,500 which was determined by $2,500 for each charge of murder. The bond was provided by prominent citizens of the community who sympathized with Ware and her condition.

Ware's trial began in the latter part of 1909. In August, it was reported that the courtroom was filled to capacity with 120 men, visitors, and witnesses. The window in the courtroom through which Ware had fired the fatal shots had been painted over and the sheriff had declared that everyone entering the courtroom would come through one door and no one with firearms of any kind would be permitted to enter.

The trial continued on until February of 1910 when a verdict of "not guilty" was rendered by the jury. The judge had instructed the jury to deliberate the charges of first-degree murder, manslaughter, and self-defense. Ware's legal defense continued to press for a plea of insanity and irrepressible impulse, which apparently worked since newspapers reported that during the trial "many pathetic scenes took place that moved the jury and spectators alike to

The year following her vindication, Verna Ware married W.R. Eck in Gatesville when her daughter Opal was nearly three years of age. Opal believed W.R. Eck to be her father and would carry his name until she married. W.R., Verna, and Opal would later live in the Dallas area before moving to Oklahoma and eventually, to Utah - far away from any memories that might haunt her. Verna Ware Eck died on July 31, 1973, in Clearfield, Utah. Her obituary mentioned that she was a saleswoman and buver for a clothing store. She was also a member of the Baptist Church and a member of the Business and Professional Women's Club. Her only survivor was her daughter, Opal.

Saluting those who stand in the gap for community

Whether it's keeping us safe from the kind of fires that recently raged at Fort Hood, preventing many crime threats that we may never even know about or saving someone's life during a medical crisis, I am very thankful for the people who stand in the gap to help protect our community. During World War II, Winston Churchill, the leader of Great Britain, paid tribute to the British fighter pilots who kept the Nazi war machine from subjugating his nation. His famous quote, "Never have so many owed so much to so few" rings true today.

Firefighters, law enforcement officers, first responders. EMTs. doctors and nurses play such a big role in helping our society avoid plunging into chaos.

When I reported on the local fire departments rushing to the aid of Fort Hood as fires spread on the post, I thought of the dedication and sacrifice those men and women make on a regular

In small towns, we know many of our law enforcement officers, firefighters and first responders on a first name basis. There is a strong respect and appreciation for the job they do to keep us safe. I am glad I live in a place where we enjoy that kind of environment.

do is recognized, there is much more they do on a daily basis that often goes unnoticed, but no doubt those are many of the things which enable us to sleep safely at night and also go about our routine business in peace each day. And when crises do threaten us, it is amazing to know that there are dedicated men and women who have our backs, who step up and do their best no matter the challenges. Hats off to those who protect us so well. Life would be far more precarious and hazardous without their vital

Lu, what do you think?

Tallulah: I am very thankful to all of those who help keep people and pets safe. I agree with all you named, but I want to add veterinarians to the list, too.

So many people have a heart of gold when taking care of people and animals. I know you have a great appreciation for our military, too, but we'll focus on that in another column. I was so thankful to see all the people who rallied together in our community to raise funds for the police dog, Stana, who had to retire because of a medical need.

It's great to see fellow dogs are doing their part to serve our community, too.

Some fire departments have a dog, and dogs can also help bring joy and love to people who have gone through difficult times.

I know people take the lead, but there are also dogs in our community that help make it a better place to. I guess that goes for kitty cats, too, and other animals that help enrich people's lives.

I suppose I've gotten a bit off topic, but that's a dog's prerogative. If you want to get a dog's view, there will be inevitable wandering and sniffing from time to time.

The price tag is an issue for Matthews, he said.

"My concern is that it's a lot of money," Matthews said. "We've done these studies before and nothing happened. I don't want a situation where two years from now we're still in the same situation because the company that's been grandfathered in (to provide service) to the Gatesville area doesn't want to upgrade. My concern is the cost and the buy-in from other entities."

Commissioner Daren Moore said he believes upgrading local internet service is important.

"I think this is essential to business – even a very small business," he said. "It all focuses on access to broadband. We're really being left behind if we don't do something. If it costs twice as much and gets something done, it's still a good investment. This is essential, or businesses will go elsewhere. It's also important for distance learning. We want to keep the businesses we have without them going somewhere else."

Matthews said he agreed, and noted smaller communities such as Evant, Jonesboro, and Oglesby have all been able to upgrade internet speeds because of grants and decisions by companies serving them.

"The company that's here (in Gatesville) has the ability to do that and it's not doing it." he said.

Miller said he has talked to some local superintendents, including for the Jonesboro and Gatesville school districts, as well as Copperas Cove, and each has said they have some students who do not have internet access at

"To me there are three areas - with businesses, education and emergency services," Miller said. "We're not going to entice growth or even keep what we have without connectivity. I believe a lot of the funding and this is strictly my opinion - will focus on bringing high-speed broadband to rural and underserved areas.

"I am pretty sure if you're in downtown Dallas, you have access to high-speed internet. The need for a student in Dallas to have that internet access is no greater than the need of a student in Coryell County."

Miller said he also believes emergency services will focus more on the internet.

"It's huge for a rural area to be able to provide that," he said. "This gives us the foundation to build on. The county has dedicated $2.5 million in (American Recovery Plan Act) funds for broadband and internet. Those previous studies had no funding mechanism for implementation, and now we do." "I see this as a very u

"He is also involved in the Lions Club, American Legion, Silver-Haired Legislature, helps with the North Fort Hood Council, is a HAM radio operator and unloads food trucks for the Gatesville Care Center.

Students of the Year were Haley Luensmann and Cooper Sutton. Luensmann has served as the Texas Future Farmers of America District 8 vice president and attended the FFA national meeting in Indianapolis. Sutton was named to the Texas Academic All-State Football Team and was selected to participate in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes Heart of Texas Victory Bowl.

Four students were awarded scholarships. Luis Macias and Alissa Molina each won $500 scholarships. David Kennon and Evonna Pitrucha each earned $1,000 scholarships. Each student has overcome significant challenges.

Macias "came to America for a better life and has excelled in academics and athletes," Sugg said. "He works at El Tapatio and has been accepted to both Tarleton

State and Texas Southern."

Molina "was born to a drug-addicted mother which has resulted in health problems for her," Sugg said. "She has had lung problems and was raised by her grandfather. She is an excellent student and will be the first in her family to go to college. She was in the band all four years and has been accepted to Stephen F. Austin State University.'

Kennon's family moved frequently "because of his father's addiction to drugs, and his grandfather stepped in to raise him, so he moved to Gatesville in junior high," Sugg said. "He helped care for his grandparents while attending high school, participated in FFA, has been accepted to Tarleton and wants to be a vet."

Pitrucha overcame a situation in which "both parents were incarcerated for drug abuse and child abuse," Sugg said. "She was in (Child Protective Services) custody for eight years before she was adopted. She has played volleyball all four years and has excelled in academics. She will attend McLen-

"They are dedicated volunteers who have over several years contributed to the community," Coward said during the presentation. "They have been co-owners of Valet Cleaners since 2012 and had hosted annual coat drives, sponsored youth sports teams, and Cody has coached flag football.

"They have also helped to sponsor numerous events including the Coryell County Youth Fair. They are leaders at Hay Valley Baptist Church and help lead youth activities and work with 4-H."

The District 8 Livestock Judging contest took place in Bryan on April 23 where 12 members in the junior, intermediate and senior divisions participated, representing Coryell County. The senior team once again qualified for the state contest by placing second in a tough field of competitors. District 8, which is made up of 21 counties in central Tevas is comprised of some of the best teams in the state. Placing in the top three and advancing to state is no easy feat. Placing just three points behind Bell County, the locals will again be vying for a chance to compete at a national contest once more. The intermediate and junior teams also placed well at Saturday's contest, both finishing in the top 10.

The District Consumer Decision Making contest was held April 25 in Cleburne. Team members use their consumer skills after given a scenario, to place products. Intermediates and seniors justify their decisions by giving oral reasons. The Coryell County senior team placed 12th. Three teams of intermediates competed, placing third, fourth and 10th. Two junior teams represented the county, placing first and

The 4-H Fashion Show allows members to learn consumer buying skills, fashion design skills and sewing construction skills in a fun, competitive environment. Individuals also participate in a runway style show to display their garments. Cayleigh Coursey placed first in the senior division with her fashion story board and will advance to the state contest. Lillie Mann placed second in the Intermediate Buying-Dressy category.

All Coryell County 4-H members did an outstanding job representing the county at the District contests. The next District 4-H contests will be Public Speaking, Educational Presentations, and the Share the Fun Talent

Wallace, Wells excel at competition

Roman Wallace and Paisley Wells, members of the 2022 TMEA Region 8 All-Region MS/JH Choir, learned five high school level pieces in preparation for an audition on April 9, and had to sing for a blind panel of five judges.

The All-Region Choir consists of students from roughly 40 schools throughout Central Texas, with over 700 students auditioning. Only 120 girls will make the Treble Choir and 70 boys will make the Tenor-Bass Choir.

Wells took fourth chair, out of nearly 60 competitors in her zone. Wallace was eighth chair, out of 22 competitors in his zone. They spent the past Saturday at Midway Middle School for the clinic and then gave a stellar performance.

Wells was selected for the 2022 TCDA MS/IH All-State Choir. She will have several songs to learn prior to the Texas Choral Director Convention in July where she will spend several days rehearsing with the group, with a final performance in front of thousands of music educators and audience members.

Average teacher salary in Texas trails national average by $7,510

The average teacher salary in Texas now trails the national average by $7,510, according to the latest rankings released today by the National Education Association (NEA), at a time when teacher salaries across the country are struggling to keep pace with inflation.

The Texas gap is even worse for the most experienced teachers, although beginning teachers compare more favorably to their peers nationwide.

The average maximum salary for Texas teachers lags $12,867 behind the national average, while the average starting salary for first-year teachers is $2,757 more than the national average. Texas ranks 14th in the country in average starting pay for new teachers but 43rd in top salaries for veteran teachers. The state's overall salary ranking for all teachers is 26th.

"The new state task force studying teacher shortages can start here," Texas State Teachers Association President Ovidia Molina said. "Other factors, including the pandemic and the disrespect that some state leaders have shown educators, are driving good, experienced teachers from the classroom. But the bottom line for most teachers is their bottom line. The pay raises in 2019 were not enough. They can no longer afford doing the work they love."

"Our most experienced teachers are particularly frustrated with salary policies that do not adequately recognize them for additional training and experience. Texas' record in this regard is abysmal," she added.

Texas' average salary for all teachers for the current 2021-22 school year, based on state financial data reported to NEA, is $58,887, compared to the national average of $66,397. That ranks Texas 26th among the states and the District of Columbia.

The average starting salary for beginning Texas teachers, based on state data for 2020-21, was $44,527, compared to the national average for first-year teachers of $41,770. But one-third or more of those starting teachers will be gone from Texas classrooms after five years as their pay starts to fall farther behind their needs.

Top salaries for teachers, based on such factors as experience and advanced degrees, vary from district to district, but the average in Texas for the most experienced teachers was $63,673, compared to the national average of $76,540.

"Our school support employees also are underpaid,' Molina said. "These people are the bus drivers, cafeteria workers, secretaries, teachers' aides and many more whose work is essential to every school campus. Teachers can't do their jobs without them."

According to a related NEA report, these school district employees in Texas were paid, on average across job categories, $29,067 in 2020-21, ranking Texas 38th in the country.

But Texas broke into the Top 10 among the states and the District of Columbia in another school finance category of special concern to property taxpayers. In 2020-21, Texas moved from 14th to 10th highest in the percentage of state and local school revenue paid by local taxpayers. Local property taxes accounted for 57.7% of total state and local school revenue in Texas that year. That was almost nine points more than the national average of 48.8%.

This continued overreliance on local property taxes contradicts what state leaders promised when they enacted House Bill 3, the school finance law, in 2019. They said House Bill 3 would transfer more of the responsibility for school funding to the state and give property taxpayers a break, but that hasn't happened.

Based on input from school finance experts in Texas, TSTA believes a more-accurate estimate of Texas' average per-pupil ADA payment for 2021-22 is about $12,000.

Comfort and Belief

"Though you have not seen him, you love him; and even though you do not see him now, you believe in him and are filled with an inexpressible and glorious joy, for you are receiving the end result of your faith, the salvation of your souls."

—1 Peter 1:8-9 NIV

ecently, I heard a preacher at a funeral remark that "we don't believe because it's comforting, but we are comforted because we believe." This was a nice turn of phrase and certainly Comforting words for a funeral, where we are all hoping that we will see our dearly departed again. But this turn of phrase is also good advice for those of us who don't want to be lazy about what we believe, and want to believe things because they are true rather than simply because they are comforting. It's easy to fall into the trap of believing things either because we want them to be true or because we fear the alternative, and it's tempting to view a lot of religious beliefs as falling squarely into one or the other of these cases. So the real question becomes what we are justified in believing, and in the realm of religion, where the subject matter clearly transcends the realm of experience, we must rely on faith. As Saint Paul rightly noted, "faith is confidence in what we hope for and assurance about what we do not see." (Hebrews 11:1 NIV) Many areas of life require this leap of faith. Every friendship and every marriage starts with a leap of faith which hopes, but cannot know in advance, that things will work out well. Likewise, when we invest our money or invest our time and effort in studying, we are hoping that those investments will pay off. When it comes to believing in God and the afterlife, we cannot know with certainty, but our faith gives us confidence, and in that there is great comfort. - Christopher Simon

Tigers outscore Hornets in slugfest

BY CHRIS ALLMAN
SPECIAL TO THE MESSENGER

Thanks to a poorly conceived tie-breaker scenario the District 6-4A baseball playoff picture is even more complex than it was just a week ago.

A 16-13 loss Gatesville loss to Glen Rose on Tuesday forced the Hornets into a must-win in their rematch against the Tigers on Friday night. A loss would eliminate Gatesville (9-16, 4-7) from the playoffs. A win would extend the season at least one more game as it would trigger a tournament-style playoff for seeding and, potentially, the final spot.

· A Gatesville win on Friday and a Brownwood win against Stephenville would mean a three-team playoff between the Hornets, Lampasas, and Glen Rose.

A Gatesville win on Friday would wrap up a 2-1 season-series win against Glen Rose. The Hornets also own the season series against Lampasas thanks to a 3-0 record against the Badgers this season.

Despite those wins, the Hornets will be forced into the tiebreaking tournament as head-to-head record is not taken into account when determining playoff spots and seeding.

"We could go 5-1 and win both series against those guys and they could have the opportunity to jump us," Gatesville head coach Chase Smith said. "It's crazy. Just another obstacle for us this year."

On Tuesday, the obstacle was a surprisingly potent Glen Rose offense. The Tigers scored just one earned run in Gatesville's 8-5 win on March 25 but erupted for 15 hits and 15 earned runs on Tuesday.

"Usually when you score 13 runs you win the game but credit to them, they hit the ball a little bit better," Smith said. Gatesville jumped out to a lead in the bottom of the first inning with a textbook display of offense from the top of their lineup.

Parker Allman singled to open the game then quickly took second on his team-leading 17th steal of the season. Hayden Mooney followed with a single to left scoring Allman. Cayden Mata then doubled to left to score Mooney for a 2-0 lead. They would extend the lead to 4-0 after one inning when Mata and Grant Erwin scored on Glen Rose errors.

Mooney singled in two runs in the bottom of the third and Gatesville had a 6-3 lead after three innings when Glen Rose erupted for eight runs and an 11-6 lead after four innings. But the Hornets battled back.

Walks from Carter Williams and Mooney opened the bottom of the fifth and Williams scored on a Glen Rose error. Bralen Veazey singled to left to cut the deficit to 11-8 after five. Veazey was one of three Hornets with two hits.

In the sixth, Kody Hernandez and Williams reached and Hernandez scored on a passed ball to cut the lead to 11-9. Allman drove home Williams with his second hit of the night to make it 11-10 Tigers after six.

But Glen Rose put the game out of reach with another five runs in the top of the seventh.

Gatesville was led by Allman, Mooney, Mata, and Veazey offensively. Allman, Mooney and Veazey each had two hits and Mooney drove in three runs. Williams also singled and scored two runs. He reached base in all three of his plate appearances.

"The last couple weeks we have scored runs and hit the ball most games but we just haven't had the game where we put it all together with pitching, defense, and hitting. It would be good timing if it came together Friday and Saturday for us," Smith said
