Annual Shivaree set for this weekend

BY JEFF OSBORNE

SENIOR WRITER & EDITOR

The Gatesville Chamber of Commerce's annual Shivaree carnival will feature a new location and will be headlined by the band Little Texas, which had several hit country songs in the 1990s.

Thanks to a city ordinance change, the Shivaree will take place inside the Gatesville city limits this year, in the area between the chamber office and Tractor Supply at 2607 S. Highway 36.

The Shivaree carrival will be Thursday, June 2 and Friday.

The Shivaree carnival will be Thursday, June 2 and Friday, June 3 from 7-10 p.m. and from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Saturday, June 4, and will feature a variety of rides for all ages. Wristbands will be offered for $20 for rides on Thursday and Friday. Rides for Saturday will be by ticket only.

General admission tickets for the concert featuring Little Texas and Ryan Turner cost $28.34 general admission. There is an additional charge of $22.87 for coolers. Those who wish to sit during the concert must bring their own lawn chairs. The concert will be from 6-11 p.m.

Little Texas was founded in 1988, and popular singles include "Some Guys Have All the Love," "You and Forever and Me," "First Time for Everything," "What Might Have Been," "God Blessed Texas," "My Love," "Kick A Little" and a cover of The Eagles' "Peaceful Easy Feeling." After a hiatus from 1998-2003, the band was re-established in 2004.

The celebration will also feature a cornhole tournament, the Up in Smoke state championship barbecue cook-off at the Junction on Route 36 and a color run.

The cornhole tournament will begin at 11 a.m. Saturday, and the cost is $50 per team.

In conjunction with the barbecue cookoff, there will be a margarita, bloody Mary and guacamole contest on Friday at 7 p.m. The barbecue cookoff is sanctioned by the CBA (Champions Barbecue Alliance) and will feature beans, chicken, ribs, pork and brisket all day Saturday.

The color run will be at 8 a.m. Saturday starting at Vintage Royalty, near the Chamber office, and is for all ages. Cost for the color run is free for ages 3 and under, $10 for ages 4-10, $15 for ages 11-17 and $25 for ages 18 and up.

City audit conducted

BY JEFF OSBORNE
SENIOR WRITER & EDITOR

The Gatesville City Council received results from an audit of the city's finances by LaFollet & Company, a North Texas accounting firm.

Susan K. LaFollet, a certified public accountant, presented the Council with a 93-page document which included the financial report, independent auditor's report and a list of recommendations.

One major finding LaFollet presented is that the city needed to have policies and procedures in place that include controls for financial reporting.

"The net position of the city is $20,576,044, which was an overall increase of over $2.8 million from fiscal year 2020," LaFollet said. The city also had an increase of more than $2.1 million in its general fund balance from 2020 to 2021.

"Overall, your net position increased 9.8%," she told the Council.

One area in which LaFollet said the city needed to make changes

the city needed to make changes was in its adjustments at the end of financial cycles. She said her firm performed the closing adjustments, which she said should be done by city staff instead.

"We like to see 10 adjustments or less and there were 38, but the previous year there had been 75, so progress is being made," LaFollet said. She added that it was common practice for accounting firms to make the adjustments for clients 15 years ago, but that practice began to change about 10 years ago.

A recommendation LaFollet made was that the city review fund balances to make sure they match up with the audit.

Another area of concern voiced by LaFollet is that payroll is still being

GISD's local gain will be offset by state reductions

BY JEFF OSBORNE SENIOR WRITER & EDITOR

For the Gatesville Independent School District, it's a case in which the community giveth and the state taketh away. Rising property values mean that GISD will receive more local revenue, but rather than being able to benefit from that increase, the state will contribute less funding.

Darrell Frazier, the chief financial officer for the district, said local property values have risen significantly. In a memorandum provided to members of the Gatesville ISD Board of Trustees, it was notable that according to preliminary information from local appraisal districts, taxable values for GISD are up $151.845 million, or 17%. While the majority of the district's taxable property is in Coryell County, there is also a portion of Bell County within GISD boundaries.

Last year's property values were up $86.559 million, or 9.9%, the memorandum stated. "The estimated impact on the 2022 tax levy is a 16.75% increase of around $1.764 million from 2021. Given the formula funding method used by the state in calculating the district's state aid revenues, this increase in local taxes will be offset by a decrease in state aid."

The COVID-19 pandemic has resulted in a decline of student enrollment and attendance rates, which further reduces state aid and is expected to result in a revenue shortfall of about $1 million, the report to trustees stated. "This shortfall represents an overpayment from the state for (the 2022 fiscal year), which will be deducted from (fiscal year 2023) state aid payments.

"In addition, we could face another $2 million shortfall (for the 2023 fiscal year) unless enrollment and attendance improve or the state implements another Hold Harmless provision" (in which the state does not reduce funding based on enrollment or attendance decreases).

Looking for hope after devastation

As another wave of sadness sweeps across the state, the nation and the world, people struggle to process the horrific information and to look for answers in different ways.

All too often, we see and hear about the aftermath of another mass shooting, whether it be in a school, grocery store, place of worship, or just a random street.

It's unfortunate that for some, the tragedies spark a discourse that some seek to politicize. Some blame the accessibility of guns, but the truth is, the vast majority of those with guns do not go out and commit terrible crimes. It's a sad truth, but there is evil in the world, and evil finds a way to unleash itself on the innocent. Do not underestimate the creativity of evil. If guns were to be severely restricted or even banned, that would not stop those who are consumed with evil from seeking to harm others, and finding ways to accomplish their mission.

Jeff's Reflections & Lu's Views

By Jeff Osborne & Tallulah

Jeff Osborne is senior staff writer and editor for the Gatesville Messenger and Tallulah is his trusted border collie-Jack Russell terrier mix.

I personally believe that faith is the answer to much of the world's ills. The problem is that even people of faith can have widely divergent views. For me, faith is a reason to reach out and make a positive impact on someone's life, not a reason to enforce my views on someone else. At the same time, we must agree to some truths and standards or else the world devolves into chaos and no one is safe. But that has to be balanced with the freedom to live one's life, the much celebrated "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

First and foremost, a lesson is for us to appreciate the people and things that are precious to us because they can be swept away in an instant. It's not something we want to even think about, but the world can change in an instant.

I hate to see tragedies become a militant call to action that misses the big picture. People are flawed and imperfect, but no matter how many laws you pass, there are those who will break them. Some people want to ignore the fact that evil is at the root of the problem. They would force restrictions on people who already are committed to doing the right thing, while those same restrictions are simply another hurdle to surpass in their burning desire to cause harm and devastation.

Some people want to blame movies, video games, the media, social media – there's no shortage of stones that can be cast. I do agree that there are both wholesome and harmful things that we can allow ourselves to dwell upon, things that can build up positive ideas or tear down with negative. However, the root problem is that there are some who choose to do the wrong thing, sometimes in a way that is devastating and harmful to others.

One person making a terrible choice can have an impact that creates waves of destruction, grief and misery, that much is all too clear. What we sometimes fail to realize is that we also have the ability to do the right thing and create waves of affirmation, goodwill and joy. Doing the right thing, seeking to make a positive impact on someone's life, might go unnoticed, but it can have such a powerful effect on our world.

All too often, we see the negative things, and they can be overwhelming. But there are so many positive ways we can help others that we shouldn't forget about. Each of us has the ability to make the world a better place or a worse place. Why not choose to make it better, even if the impact seems small?

Lu's take: It's hard to put into words just how I feel. As a dog, there are so many things I don't understand. But interestingly, there are also times that I think dogs have a better understanding about some things than people do.

I don't have a lot to say today, but there is one thing I do want to highlight. Whenever possible, however possible, wherever possible - be good to each other.

Boaters urged to clean, drain & dry to stop spread of invasives

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department (TPWD) is urging boaters and paddlers who enjoy water recreation this summer to do their part to fight back against aquatic invasive species that threaten Texas lakes.

While we want everyone to have a great time, we also want them to avoid giving free rides to invasive species and helping them travel to new lakes," said Brian Van Zee, TPWD Inland Fisheries Regional Director. "The best way to prevent the spread of many destructive aquatic invasive species is to clean, drain and dry your boats and equipment – every time."

Zebra mussels and giant salvinia continue to spread to new areas in Texas. Yet while they remain some of the biggest threats to Texas lakes, other highly invasive species can also be spread or be introduced by boaters, including water hyacinth, crested floating heart and quagga mussels.

"There's no doubt that Texans love their lakes," said John Findeisen, TPWD Brookeland Aquatic Habitat Enhancement Team Lead. "We also need Texans to take action to help protect their lakes. It only takes a tiny fragment of an invasive plant to create a new infestation and preventing aquatic invasive species introductions avoids costly, longterm efforts to manage these species once they infest a lake."

Giant salvinia, a highly invasive, free-floating aquatic fern that can double its coverage area in a week, is one of the major threats to our lakes. The invasive plant can produce thick surface mats that make fishing, boating, swimming and other water recreation nearly impossible.

Giant salvinia is currently present on 23 East Texas lakes and numerous rivers, creeks and marshes between Houston and Beaumont. While TPWD efforts have kept giant salvinia from limiting angling or boating access in Texas public waters, they could still hitchhike from one lake to another on a boat, trailer or other equipment.

Zebra mussels, a non-native shellfish that attaches to hard surfaces, also pose a significant threat to our lakes.

These invasive mussels damage boats and infrastructure for water supply and control, alter lake ecosystems and cause harm to native species. They also litter shorelines with hazardous, sharp shells that impact lakefront recreation.

Outdoor learning center at Primary dedicated in memory of Joyce Rhoades

An outdoor learning center was recently dedicated at the Gatesville Primary School in honor of long-time GISD employee, Joyce Rhoades, who passed away in September 2021. The outdoor learning center was dedicated on what would have been her 67th birthday. Rhoades, who graduated from Gatesville High School in 1974, would later work for the Gatesville Independent School District for her time being on the Primary School campus.

Due to her love of gardening, it was decided to create an outdoor learning center with raised planter boxes placed around the gazebo. The boxes are planted by the kindergarten, pre-kindergarten and ECSE classes where the students can learn about growing flowers and vegetables. "With her love of cook-

"We could not have thought of a better way to remember Joyce than with an outdoor learning center."

With money raised from the sale of cookbooks, the school was able to have planter boxes built which are already being used by the kin- These ladies have worked redergarten, pre-kindergarten and the ECSE classes. Community members, businesses and clubs donated seeds and soil for the planter boxes.

Gatesville Primary School principal Mashara Streater said, "We are so proud of our outdoor learning center. It was truly a labor of love for Tami Hoover, Sandra Brown (Joyce's sister), Amber Colson and Whitney Carothers.

"Her name and her love of our students, staff and gardening will forever live out here," said Hoover.

What will those tattoos look like in 30 years?

SAM HOUSTON

Sam Houston is the publisher of the Hood County News. He is also an actor, author, playwright, performer and entertainment producer/promoter.

I am all for individual expression. It is the American way. My dad and I had crew cuts and it was a little unsettling back in the 1960s when boys started to grow their hair long. It was different and not something I was accustomed to. With time my acceptance grew. I never wanted a ponytail for myself, but if someone else wanted to do so, more power to them. I accepted the other guy's right to express himself and realized character and appearance are not necessarily the same thing.

Over the course of my life, I have seen lots of fads come and go, like polyester leisure suits, platform shoes, velour track suits, and the forgettable parachute and cargo pants. Some of these trendy fashions are looked back on with disdain and disbelief — but trust me, in their heyday they were popular and quite the rage. I had no interest in participating in most of them, but I continued my mindset of "to each their own." Sometimes I chuckled or laughed at the "latest" but I never threw folks under the bus for their choices.

I am here to confess I am having a hard time with tattoos. When I was not more than four or five years old, I vividly remember my mother telling me to never join the Navy because they would make me get a tattoo. Mothers have a lot of power over their young sons, and she sure made an impression on me. I did not really conceive what a tattoo was except Popeye had one on each of his forearms. Once Mom made her statement, I never again thought tattoos were cool.

Almost no one had tattoos when I was growing up except for a few miliary guys who came back from Vietnam or bikers. One rarely saw a woman with a tattoo and if we had, she would have been held up to scorn and public ridicule. There was an attitude that getting a tattoo was just not something reasonable and intelligent people did, though there was an exception if you were in the military. I remember a teacher of mine once saying,

"I prefer my artwork on the wall," and I guess I felt the same way. Tattoos were far from mainstream and general acceptance non-existent.

Today, everyone from 70-year-old grannies to teenagers go to tattoo parlors and get themselves adorned with artwork. When the craze initially started, many who got a tattoo did so on a location of their body that would be out of sight to the public at large. All of that has changed. Now I see young people with tattoos adorning their legs, arms, neck, and every other body part. Girls, guys, it doesn't seem to matter because most young people are tatted up. There are an increasing number of older adults who are joining in.

I was in a local restaurant recently when a woman in her mid-50s, entered. She was wearing shorts and a summer top and clearly had a large tattoo on her thigh and a "sleeve" on one arm. It was colorful and it would be fair to say the artistry was excellent, but it was not anything I would want to have done. I kept saying to myself, what is her artwork going to look like when she is 70? How do you explain tattoos to your grandchildren when the pendulum swings back around, and no one wears a tattoo? What about the young woman who gets tattooed and then has three or four children or puts on 50 pounds? Is the artwork still going to look "hot" or "exciting"? How about a guy like me who goes from a 32inch waist to a 42 inch as they age? Is that tattoo going to still shine?

Please understand, if you want to go through the pain and expense of having a tattoo, I will stand aside and let you walk to the front of the line. I accept that you believe they look beautiful and create an image you want to project to the world. I have friends, coworkers, and family members who have tattoos. I love them as they are. For me, I will stick with the image I have. It is not much, but it is mine. Maybe I will put some money in a company that does tattoo removal. I have a feeling there is going to be a big demand someday.

Thought for the day: A fella ran a café called Tattoos. The man didn't have any tattoos, but then again, I never saw his wife.

Until next time.

National PTSD Awareness are quietly suffering because Some studies suggest that The Jason Foundation is another available resource.

June is National PTSD Awareness Month

Month is observed in June and it ushers in an array of awareness campaigns run for ma due to the symptoms of the benefit of PTSD Survi-

PTSD stands for Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder, which occurs in people after they have experienced a particularly traumatic event like war, violent physical, sexual, or verbal assault, accidents and so forth. Symptoms include depression, anxiety, nightmares, paranoia, insomnia, disturbing thoughts and much more.

Many people recover from PTSD after a few days, weeks, or months. Yet, for others, the recovery road might mean one year or more. This mental disorder is treatable, but due to the lack of knowledge around it as well as the stigma attached to seeking mental help, many choose to ignore the problem and suffer through it.

suicide risk is higher among those who experienced trau-PTSD. A study from the National Comorbidity Survey, a national representative sample, showed that PTSD alone was significantly associated with suicidal ideation or attempts. A later study by the Canadian Community Health Survey data also found that respondents with PTSD were at a higher risk for suicide attempts. Among people who have had a diagnosis of PTSD at some point in their lifetime, approximately 27% have also attempted suicide. Another large-scale survey found that 24% of military personnel diagnosed with PTSD had experienced suicidal thinking within the past of the stigma surrounding the utilization of mental health services. First responders are approximately 10 times more likely to have suicidal ideations and/or attempt suicide compared to the CDC national average.

The National Suicide Prevention Lifeline, 1-800-273-TALK (8255), is a free resource, available 24 hours a day for anyone who is in suicidal crisis or emotional distress. The crisis text line is a free 24/7 text line where trained crisis counselors support individuals in crisis. Text "Jason" to 741741 to speak with a compassionate, trained crisis counselor. Confidential support 24/7, for free.

The Jason Foundation offers the First Responders Training Module: Addressing Suicide with Youth in the Community and Within the Profession. The goal of this training is to provide first responders with the knowledge, skills and resources to enable them to be better able to recognize the signs of concern and elevated risk factors for suicidal ideation in youth within their community, as well as in co-workers and fellow first responders. The training is free of charge and can be found online at www.jasonfoundation.com under the How To Get Involved tab.

Texas 4-H Foundation awards $61,000 to Coryell County Youth

BECKY COWARD Coryell County 4-H Extension

As the largest scholarship program not only in Texas but also in the nation, the Texas 4-H Foundation awards academic 4-H Opportunity Scholarships each year to applicants based on their academic record, 4-H experience, and financial need. Thanks to generous donors, the foundation awarded more than $2.7 million in scholarships to more than 220 Texas 4-H members this year.

Coryell County recipients include Gatesville High School seniors Kinsey Gardner, Hailey Luensmann, Cooper Sutton, and Samuel Belt. Each of the students was extremely active in extracurricular activities throughout their high school careers but also were youth leaders in the 4-H program, gaining valuable life skills as they culminated their 4-H careers earning scholarships.

Gardner, the daughter of Jim and Julie Gardner, earned her 4-H scholarships funded by the Jason Spence Memorial Fund ($1,000) and the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo ($20,000). As a 10-year 4-H member, Gardner earned several state and national titles as a member of the livestock judging team, as well as serving as a Texas 4-H Livestock Ambassador. This summer she will be traveling to Hawaii as part of the Ambassador team. Gardner will continue her livestock judging career on scholarship, first at Blinn College, and then plans to obtain a bachelor of science degree at Texas A&M University competing on the judging team.

Luensmann is the daughter of Brian Luensmann and Kandi Luensmann. She received a $20,000 4-H scholarship provided by the San Antonio Stock Show & Rodeo. Luensmann competed well at all levels of the 4-H program, from serving as her local club president, to attending National 4-H Congress in Atlanta, Georgia. Luensmann will represent Coryell County as part of the County Ambassador delegation traveling to Washington, D.C. this summer. She will attend Texas A&M University this fall and was accepted into the honors program majoring in busi-

Sutton, the son of Shanon and Jalean Sutton, received a $10,000 scholarship awarded by the Fort Worth Stock Show Syndicate through the 4-H foundation. As a 4-H member he competed in a diversified list of projects, exhibiting livestock all over the state and claiming a reserve national title at the National Beefmaster show. As a County Ambassador he will be attending Citizenship Washington Focus this summer. He has always been willing to help younger youth with their projects and has been an outstanding teen mentor. Sutton will attend Texas A&M University majoring in poultry science. Belt is the son of Brandon and Kari Belt. His 4-H scholarship was funded by the McLean Family. Belt's main 4-H project throughout his career has been beef cattle. He serves on the board of the International Junior Brangus Breeders Association planning events and representing the breed. He will attend Blinn College, continuing his livestock judging career there under scholarship. Belt plans to earn a degree in ag business and continue with his family cattle operation.

As large as the 4-H Foundation scholarship awards are, these as just a percentage of the scholarships earned by these outstanding youth. All of them received multiple scholarships in large increments from donors who believe in the potential of our 4-H youth. All four of these young people completed 4-H record books from an early age and were taught the value of not only pursuing your passion in life but serving in their community and leadership skills that will carry them far into whatever avenue they intend to pursue.

Many times I hear people misunderstand that 4-H is a club for livestock kids or that 4-H is just about the county fair. I'm hoping to spread the word that each one of these youth is a shining example of well-rounded young adults who have accomplished much but have learned even more throughout their 10 years of 4-H membership.

They are the leaders of tomorrow armed with knowledge of how to lead a business meeting, public speaking skills, a teamwork mindset, interview skills, record-keeping skills, along with a strong work ethic and tools they have developed over time to succeed.

I'm very proud of each and every one of them and will be glad to watch them move on to bigger and better achievements and contributions to society.

Assistance may be available for livestock forage losses

Producers in Coryell County are eligible to apply for 2022 Livestock Forage Disaster Program (LFP) benefits on short and long season small grains, native pasture, improved pasture, and annual ryegrass.

LFP provides compensation for grazing losses for covered livestock due to drought on privately owned or cash leased land, or fire on federally managed land. County committees can only accept LFP applications after notification is received by the National Office of qualifying drought or if a federal agency prohibits producers from grazing normal permitted livestock on federally managed lands due fsa.usda.gov. to qualifying fire. You must complete a CCC-853 and the required supporting documentation no later than Jan. 31, 2023, for 2022 losses.

For additional Information about LFP, including eligible livestock and fire criteria, contact your Coryell County USDA Service Center at 254-865-7012 (option 2) or visit

AREA FISHING REPORT

GOOD. Water lightly stained; 77 degrees; 4.31 feet low. The threadfin shad spawn is tapering to a close and thanks to the recent stretch of unseasonably warm temperatures the strong late-spring white bass bite is now past peak. Topwater action in areas where the overnight winds have blown has been reliable for largemouth, smallmouth, and white bass during a short window from 6:45-8:00 a.m. using MAL Originals. After that early topwater action, we have relied exclusively on the MAL Dense used in conjunction with Garmin LiveScope to fish vertically for white bass and short hybrid, which are still heavily congregated on the bottom in 32-50 feet of water. Report by Bob Maindelle, Holding the Line Guide Service. Crappie are good in timber ranging from 18-27 feet of water using ten foot pro SE outlaw crappie rods paired with ATX Lure companies two inch wicked shad. Report by Zach Minnix, Jig N Jerk Guide Service.

GOOD. Water stained; 75 degrees; 5.60 feet low. Crappie are awesome in 10-20 feet of water fishing brush piles and humps. Report by Zach Minnix, Jig N Jerk Guide Service.

Stillhouse

GOOD. Water lightly stained; 76 degrees; 4.38 feet low. Stillhouse Hollow continues to produce Share Lunker quality bass each week thanks to the many acres of lush hydrilla now found there. Fishing the wall-like stand of the deep outer edge of hydrilla beds using soft plastics is producing now and should continue to produce throughout the summer. Although hydrilla alone will hold some fish. hydrilla combined with topographic features like points are even more productive. The local 3X9 Series bass tournament required a three-fish, 16.98-pound sack to win this past week. White bass are hit-or-miss as they make their post-spawn migration to deeper water at the east end of the lake, feeding on suspended schools of shad as they travel. Report by Bob Maindelle, Holding the Line Guide Service.

Whitney

GOOD. Water lightly stained; 73 degrees; 2.66 feet low. Fishing patterns are similar for the Memorial Day weekend. Striped bass are great in 20-50 feet of water trolling umbrella-rigs, swimbaits and fishing with live bait on flats and along the main river channel throughout the reservoir. Catfish are great on live or cut bait near the bottom throughout the reservoir. Report provided by Kraig Sexton, Sexton's Guide Service LLC.

Buchanan

GREAT. Water lightly stained; 77 degrees; 4.86 feet low. Crappie fishing is good with fish clinging to the summer pattern. Fishing in 15-20 feet of water over brush piles using chartreuse jigs will fill the boat. Report by Jess Rotherham, Texas Crappie Fishing Service. Bass are good on shallow rock and vegetation, and flipping shallow trees with worms and craw worms. The topwater bite is getting good as well. Crappie, white bass, hybrids and stripers are going strong using small jigging spoons or flutter spoons. Report provided by Bryan Cotter, Texas Hawgs Bass Fishing Guide Service.

GOOD. Water lightly stained; 78 degrees; 0.66 feet low. Bass are very good on brush piles and rocky points in 8-15 feet of water using ten inch worms and crankbaits. Good topwater bite all day on overcast days while the bass are feeding on shallow perch. White bass are good mid lake to the river in jigging spoons and live minnows. Crappie are excellent over brush piles with live bait. Report by Charles Whited, Barefoot Fishing Tours.

GOOD. Stained; 76 degrees; 27.44 feet low. Bass are good using swimbaits, ierks baits and shaky head worms targeting brush on points and shorelines with chunky rock and brush combinations. Report provided by Carson Conklin, ATX Fishing.

Requirements for draining aquatic vessels in Texas

BY MICHAEL ACOSTA CONTRIBUTING WRITER

I get asked about the requirements for draining and drying your boat, which is the law in Texas. This requirement came about due to Texas waters that are under attack by invasive species that push aside native plants and animals, throwing aquatic ecosystems out of balance. Invasive plants like giant salvinia can double in size in a week and block recreational access. der water recreation, damage boats and affect water supplies.

Luckily, Lake Granbury has not been identified as containing zebra mussels, but many have been identified from Lake Texoma, Bridgeport, Lewisville and even Central Texas lakes like Lake Belton.

Persons leaving or approaching public fresh water are required to drain all water from their vessels and on-board receptacles (includes live wells, bilges, motors and any other receptacles or water-intake systems coming into contact with public waters). This rule applies at all sites where boats can be launched and includes all types and sizes of boats whether powered or not, personal watercraft, sailboats, kayaks/canoes, or any other vessel used to travel on public waters.

Live fish, including personally caught live bait, cannot be transported from the water body where the fish were caught in or aboard a vessel in water from the water body where the fish were caught. Personally caught live bait can be used in the water body where it was

Transport and use of commercially purchased live bait in water while fishing from a vessel is allowed, provided persons in possession of the bait have a receipt that identifies the source of the bait. Any live bait purchased from a location on or adjacent to a public water body that is transported in water from that water body can only be used as bait on that same water body.

A vessel leaving a public freshwater body may be transported on a public roadway without water being drained, provided the vessel is transported via the most direct route to another access point located on the same water body during that same day.

Persons participating in a fishing tournament confined to one water body are allowed to transport live fish in water from that single water body to an identified off-site weigh-in location, provided all water is drained and properly disposed of before leaving that location. Participants must possess documentation provided by tournament organizers that identify them as participants in a tournament. Consult the Texas Parks and

It was noted that "federal grant funds have helped offset this revenue loss, however, those grants will expire Sept. 30, 2024."

Frazier said GISD was doing well with attendance and enrollment before COVID-19, after which attendance dropped from about 95% of enrolled students to 90%. That equates to a steep drop in state funding if the state again starts enforcing its previous attendance requirements, which were temporarily stopped in the wake of COVID-19's

"You may want to take that up with the state," Frazier said. "It's a pretty big problem.

We may never see 95% or 96% attendance again, and that results in a pretty big reduction in funding."

He described the situation as being "pretty tricky" but added that he was cautiously optimistic that the issue will be resolved.

"We've had some big-time attendance problems and we need to get that back up," Frazier said.

Signs of progress were present in attendance rates for some grades.

"Third grade attendance has seen a nice increase, Frazier said. "It had 96% attendance in April which was really a bright spot. Sixth grade attendance improved to 94.79%, and that's going to impact funding."

Jose Sanchez guides GISD's band program to excel

For the last six years, Jose Sanchez has banded the community together through the sound of music

As Gatesville ISD's director of bands, Sanchez — a tuba player himself — leads all the district's bands, including the Gatesville High School Fighting Hornet Marching Band.

Prior to moving to Gatesville, he graduated with a bachelor's degree in music education from Baylor University and was the assistant director and marching director at Robinson High School.

But the majority of his career has been spent here, touching the lives, and songs, of many.

"There's been a really nice progression of the marching band program (over the last six years). This year is the best that we've ever done," Sanchez said. "We call it the marching arts, because what we do as band directors is continuously evolving into more artistic expression. There is an aesthetic that is really being pushed into our foundation."

fall semester, has already begun. Normally, he said, they'll begin with planning about a year in advance.

As band faculty guides students through competition season in the spring, they concurrently plan for the upcoming marching season.

"It's kind of a double-edged sword as to which season is busier," Sanchez said. "The spring is more involved for the band directors just because we are trying to close out a year, while working on marching concepts and show design for the following year's (season). There's like this continuous balance of concentrating on the things that we're currently doing, while also looking to the future."

On any given day during the spring semester, Sanchez said he can find himself in the band hall between 12 to 14 hours. But his schedule isn't slowing down anytime soon — not even in the summer

"We have music camps in June that are specific to different instrument groups, so we can give them some individualized attention," Sanchez said. "And once we hit July, we're pretty much back in the swing of the things with cover guard camp, percussion camp and music camp. Then come August, we're teaching the marching show, then, school starts on Aug. 11.

"We've got a very, very small timeframe for our camps, and we have to plan our time very importantly — especially since we have so many students that we share between other activities and athletics," he added.

"We have students that are involved in every single activity. There's not been a year, since I've been here, that we haven't had at least one varsity football player."

Coming from a band family, of which his wife is also a band director in another district, Sanchez said he gives it his all, not only because of his passion for music, but for the students.

"We want to give our students all we can," he said. "We understand the value of being a well-rounded student and want them to participate."
