Horse crushes carriage service owner

BY BETHANY KURTZ AND KATHY CRUZ
HOOD COUNTY NEWS

Wendy Inga, who operates the carriage service on the square, was crushed by one of her horses and is in intensive care.

The incident happened Wednesday. According to Melinda Ray, owner of the Nutt House Hotel, Inga suffered two broken legs and a broken wrist and her liver was ruptured when the horse stepped on her abdomen.

Ray said that Inga was inside her trailer with the horse and both apparently lost their footing.

"The person that was working with her heard the commotion and when they went around there, Wendy was pinned between the horse's body and the side of the trailer," she said.

Ray said that, as she understands it, Inga's injuries were caused by the horse thrashing around.

She said that Inga had two surgeries Thursday at Harris Methodist Hospital. A procedure done in the morning was to repair her liver.

"In the afternoon, she was stable enough that they did surgery to set her legs," she said.

Scott Young, president of the Granbury Historic Merchants Association (HGMA), said that the organization has not yet determined what it will do to help Inga, but that it will do something.

"It's a pretty tough situation," he said of Inga's injuries. "We're trying to figure out what we need to do."

In a Facebook post, Inga's sister, Diane Inga-Gilbert, wrote that her sister had been "crushed" in a "horrible accident."

"Lots of damage," the post stated.

In her own Facebook post, Ray wrote: "Wendy is a great lady, and her business is such a wonderful part of our downtown tourism experience."

"Please join me in prayers for her recovery and also for her family who are traveling to be with her."

Construction on square kicks off Monday

BY KATHY CRUZ
HOOD COUNTY NEWS

Construction work for the square improvement project will get started Monday.

Phase I will be at East Bridge and North Houston streets.

In order to ensure that only one intersection is closed at a time, work will not start on another phase until that one has been completed.

City officials said that efforts will be made to ensure that businesses on the square remain accessible during construction.

Construction will mostly be during the day, but work may occasionally be done at night in order to avoid interruptions to local businesses.

Detour signage will be posted for motorists.

The project is expected to take at least 140 working days and is scheduled to be completed in September.

The city will release updated information as needed when the project moves to new phases.

Possible mumps cases reported at elementaries

Parents of Acton and Emma Roberson elementary students received notification late this week about suspected cases of mumps at the schools.

A Granbury Middle School student previously suspected of having mumps tested negative.

Principals distributed the letter from the Texas Department of State Health Services (TDSHS) to make parents aware of the situation at Acton and Emma Roberson.

While this is not a confirmed case, it is important to read the following information and recommendations as a precautionary measure to help stop the potential spread of mumps.

Signs and symptoms of mumps are vague at the onset of illness and may last for 3-4

Thrilling job put Jim Sanders at center of NASA launches

BY KATHY CRUZ
HOOD COUNTY NEWS

Jim Sanders doesn't get to make yearly trips to Florida anymore to reunite with workers who helped put astronauts into space back in the 1960s and '70s.

Most of his former friends and colleagues are dead.

"All the Chrysler group, they just went away," said Sanders, 82.

His employer back then, the Chrysler Corporation, did contract work for NASA for the Saturn 1B, Apollo and Skylab missions.

Though many of those with whom he once shared enviable experiences are now gone, Sanders himself is alive and well - and so are his memories.

"It was exciting," he said of those years, when he met every NASA astronaut - including John Glenn - and even got to have lunch with them sometimes.

Sanders started out working for Chrysler at the Redstone Arsenal in Huntsville, Alabama, doing maintenance on the Jupiter system.

"Jupiter put our first satellite in orbit," he said. "I would fly to Cape Canaveral to help with the launch."

After President Kennedy's assassination in 1963, President Johnson renamed the base Cape Kennedy. The name reverted back in 1973.

Sanders eventually was transferred to Florida, where he worked at the space center during some of the space program's most exciting years.

Now long retired, Sanders and his wife Jo live in Port Ridglea East with their dog, Pepper.

Daughter Sherry Kilpatrick, who also lives in the Port Ridglea neighborhood, felt growing up that her dad's job as an electrician in charge of all electrical systems for space projects was "awesome."

OUT OF THIS WORLD: Jim Sanders shows off one of the pieces of memorabilia he has kept from his years with the Chrysler Corporation, which contracted with NASA for the Saturn 1B, Apollo and Skylab missions. Sanders met all of the astronauts, and even had the opportunity at times to eat lunch with them. He was at Cape Kennedy (now Cape Canaveral) on Jan. 27, 1967, when a flash fire inside the command module killed Apollo 1 astronauts Gus Grissom, Ed White and Roger Chaffee.

COURTESY

leagues when they worked for the Chrysler Corporation, which had a contract with NASA. He is seated and is second from the right.

MOON: At Florida space center, Granbury retiree had front-row seat to history

"We lived two blocks from US 1," she said, referring to the highway that runs along the beach that affords a breathtaking view of NASA launches.

Kilpatrick remembers that when she was 16 and old enough to drive, she loaded friends into her mom's convertible and they all watched launches from the beach.

"People from all over the world lined up, person to person," she said. "It was just a ball."

Launches would sometimes cause windows in their house to break, she said.

Sanders said he was in charge of 8-10 people back then.

"I had to go through so much training, you wouldn't believe - even EMS training," he said.

But no amount of EMS training could have brought a happy ending to what happened 50 years ago, on Jan. 27, 1967.

TRAGEDY

Sanders had worked 12-14 hours that day when he was finally relieved and told he could go home.

A pre-launch test for the Apollo 1 mission was underway, with astronauts Gus Grissom, Ed White and Roger Chaffee in the command module.

Sanders was getting in his car when all hell broke loose. "All of a sudden, (workers) started screaming and hollering," he recalled. "I said, 'What the hell is going on?!'"

A flash fire had erupted inside the command module, killing all three astronauts.

"People with headsets heard it," Sanders said. "(The astronauts) hollered over the intercom and I don't know what they said, but they hollered something and then everything went blank.

"(Workers) knew instantly they were gone."

NEVER DETERMINED

Although the fire's ignition source was never officially determined, there are suspicions that it was related to several factors, including: a pressurized 100 percent oxygen pre-launch atmosphere; numerous wiring and plumbing flaws; flammable materials in the cockpit and on the astronaut's flight suits; and an awkward hatch that couldn't be opened quickly - and not at all with full internal pressure.

Sanders said that "not an hour" before the fire, he had commented on a tangle of wires that were on the swing arm that connected to the Rockwell space craft.

"I said, 'Man, that's a safety hazard from the word go,'" he said.

He said he doesn't know whether the wires were related to what happened, "but something caused a spark that set that fire off."

Sanders said the tragedy was "a harrowing experience" and he is glad he didn't hear the doomed men trapped inside the module.

"Everybody was running around crying. They were hugging each other. It was something else," Sanders said.

"I was glad I wasn't on the intercom. I imagine (the ones who were) will remember that for the rest of their lives."

A TOUCH OF HUMOR

Sanders remembers one time when he was sitting in a missile because he was supposed to send a signal as part of a test.

He had difficulty getting the equipment to cooperate and let his frustrations get the best of him.

"I said, 'Son of a bitch!'" he recalls with a laugh. The expletive was heard at the command center in Houston and through "all the downrange circuit," he said.

He worried that there might be fallout and, two days later, it seemed that his fears had come true. He received a phone call from the test director in Houston.

Instead of chastising him, though, the director thanked him for injecting a bit of humor into tedious testing procedures.

After retiring from Chrysler in 1974, Sanders worked at a nuclear power plant in Chattanooga, Tennessee, then became part of the start-up group for unit one at the Comanche Peak plant in Glen Rose.

He held other jobs in South Carolina, Alaska and New Jersey before going back to Comanche Peak.

He retired in 1995.

Sanders is soft spoken and easygoing. Smiles come easily, and they bring a twinkle to his eyes. The humor heard decades ago in Houston is still there.

"Sometimes I feel like I'm 39," he joked. "But most of the time I feel like I'm 102."

City to start replacing water meters in spring

BY KATHY CRUZ
HOOD COUNTY NEWS

The city of Granbury will begin replacing water meters starting in early spring.

Workers will install an Advanced Metering Infrastructure (AMI) system, replacing aging water meters throughout the city.

Replacing the approximately 5,500 meters will take about a year.

Some customers could see a slight increase in their water bills, but the state-of-the-art technology will provide water customers real-time data enabling them to quickly discover any leaks - or any unauthorized use of their water hose by a neighbor - before their bills skyrocket.

The city will be able to do most meter readings online.

The meters are expected to last about 20 years.

Early last year, city staff reviewed and analyzed water meters and found that there are several thousand existing meters in the city that are diminishing in accuracy due to age.

The City Council voted to replace and upgrade the city's water meters and leak detection infrastructure last April.

AMI is an integrated system of smart meters, communications networks and data management systems that enable two-way communication between utilities and customers.

City officials said the AMI system will not only increase the accuracy of the water being sold, but will provide savings in water and energy and will support enhanced customer service. Customers won't be charged for the new meters.

The project is fully funded by the Drinking Water State Revolving Fund and administered by the Texas Water Development Board.

Aqua Metric will be the company implementing the new system.

Questions can be directed to Utility Billing Manager Jason Barber at 817-573-1114.

Symptoms appear 12 to 25 days after exposure to an infected person. Parotitis (inflammation and swelling of the salivary glands) may occur on one or both sides of the face. The child may complain of earache or tenderness at the angle of the jaw. Infected persons are most contagious just prior to, and for several days after, the onset of swelling.

Immunization is the best way to prevent mumps, according to the TDSHS.

Children and staff with mumps symptoms should not attend school/childcare/public activities/family gatherings until five days after the swelling began or at the recommendation of your doctor.

Persons with mumps symptoms should be evaluated by their health care provider for diagnosis and treatment.

Call TDSHS at 817-822-6786 for more information.

SQUARE: Safety and landscaping

Much of the project is being funded through the Texas Department of Transportation's (TxDOT) Transportation Alternative Program (TAP), but the city is contributing as well.

The pedestrian safety and beautification plan involves the widening of sidewalks, but also includes lighting and landscaping improvements.

Those with questions can contact Public Works Director Rick Crownover at 817-573-7030.

Suspects Abiel Edgardo Sanchez, 18, Alexis Ann Wright, 18, and David Lee Gomez, 19, were booked into the Hood County jail for engaging in organized criminal activity-namely theft among other charges.

The case began at about 11:30 p.m. Sunday when Granbury Police officers responded to the EZ Mart located at 535 S. Morgan Street for a report of a theft, according to a statement by Granbury Police Department Public Information Officer Cris Brichetto.

Officers were told a suspect had stolen a carton of cigarettes valued at $65.21 and left the scene.

Then, at approximately 12:26 a.m. Monday, a theft was reported at Walmart. The suspects were seen on video surveillance running out of the grocery store carrying several bags of merchandise, according to Brichetto. The video also showed the suspects getting into a silver car with a sun roof.

The suspects then returned to the scene of the first robbery. EZ Mart employees called the police to report the persons from the earlier theft had returned at approximately 12:55 a.m. and then left.

Officers responding to the area spotted a vehicle matching the suspect vehicle involved in the thefts, Brichetto stated. The license plate was one digit off from the license plate provided by witnesses, so officers conducted a traffic stop.

"Upon approaching the vehicle, the officers observed the back-seat passenger matched the description of the suspect the two other passengers immediately became belligerent yelling at officers and refusing to comply with simple instructions."

Officers were able to identify everyone in the vehicle and verify all three subjects in the vehicle were under 21 years old, Brichetto stated. There was also a camouflage jacket consistent with the one the female suspect was wearing during the theft at Walmart.

Officers determined Gomez had two warrants from Bastrop County for theft over $100 but less than $750 and for possession of drug paraphernalia. They later confirmed Gomez had 12 active warrants for his arrest.

Sanchez was placed under arrest for engaging in organized criminal activity-namely theft and booked into the Hood County Jail.

Gomez was placed under arrest and booked in to the Hood County Jail for consumption of alcohol by a minor, engaging in organized criminal activity-namely theft, theft under $100, for the two Bastrop warrants, and for Irving Police Department warrants.

Wright was arrested and transported to the Hood County Jail for engaging in organized criminal activity-namely theft, consumption of alcohol by a minor and possession of marijuana under 2 ounces. Wright was also charged with prohibited substance/item in a correctional facility.

NICE CHECK: Alumni of the Granbury Police Academy present a check to the city of Granbury representing the money the city would have spent to pay officers to work all of the hours alumni members volunteered over the previous year. The alumni group is holding an open meeting Thursday to give those interested in applying for the Citizens Police Academy class of 2017 a better idea what the course is about.

Citizens Police Academy enrollment opens

BY BETHANY KURTZ
HOOD COUNTY NEWS

Learning the dangers and responsibilities police officers face on Granbury streets every day is one step residents can take to make their city safer, said Jorge Mendoza.

Mendoza attended the 2015 Granbury Police Department Citizens Police Academy before advancing to join the Citizens On Patrol (COP) program and advancing to staff sergeant.

He encourages every Hood County resident to take advantage of the academy whether they can volunteer afterward or not.

Enrollment for the 2017 Citizens Police Academy is now open. To help answer questions about the course, the academy's alumni organization is holding an open meeting Thursday at 6 p.m. in the City Council Chambers at City Hall.

The 2017 course will begin March 23. Academy members attend a series of 10 classes, held once a week for three hours. Each week, members of the department instruct on different areas of police work, administration or cooperation with other emergency agencies. Attendees must be at least 21 years old but do not have to live or work in the city of Granbury.

The dress code is casual business attire unless otherwise directed.

The academy is for both the department and the attendees, Granbury Police Department Public Information Officer Cris Brichetto said.

"The Granbury Citizens Police Academy was created in order to provide enough information to the citizens that attend so that they may make informed judgments about the police department and police activity," according to information about the program. "The department, in turn, becomes more aware of the feelings and concerns of the community from the students' interaction and input."

DEMO: Jorge Mendoza's Granbury Police Department Citizens Police Academy class observes two officers during a demonstration. The academy uses a mixture of lectures and demonstrations to help students understand an officer's job and risks.

Academy classes cover topics like training, specialized assignments, criminal investigations, DWI procedures, traffic enforcement, narcotics and the patrol division.

Mendoza attended the academy because he wanted to do something for the city where he and his wife have raised their family since 2003. As members of the alumni group and COPs, he and other academy graduates are able to ease the burden off police officers by assisting with crowd control at community events and many other ways, he said.

"I benefitted by becoming, in a small way, an ambassador of Granbury by offering a smile, a helping hand and a sense of safety to all those that come to enjoy events in Granbury like the Fourth of July parade and the Christmas parade,"

Mendoza said.

The alumni group also raises money for needed police equipment like body armor, he said.

Even if a graduate does not have time to volunteer, they can make the community safer by knowing when to report a crime, what information to give dispatchers and how to avoid what could be perceived as threatening behaviors when interacting with officers, Mendoza said.

Part of the training includes academy students walking through common police activities like traffic stops and responding to different situations that develop including someone pulling a gun on them.

As an alumnus, Mendoza has played the role of the bad guy for other academy classes, using a pop-gun with no projectile to simulate a weapon.

"It's a powerful feeling to hold that pop-gun and know the officer doesn't know you have it or what you're going to do," he said.

This training helps students see situations as an officer does, Mendoza said.

"They will have a new understanding of what officers do and the risks they face," he said. "They will know when they get pulled over after dark to turn on the dome light and sit still so the officer can see you and doesn't have to worry all the way to your window."

To apply for the academy, fill out an application at the Granbury Police Department located at 116 W. Bridge St. between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, or online at www.granbury.org under the police services tab. For further information, contact Brichetto at cbrichetto@granbury.org or 817-573-2648.

GRADS: Jorge Mendoza's Granbury Police Department Citizens Police Academy graduates at the completion of their course in 2015. Mendoza had gone on to become a staff sergeant in the Citizens in Patrol (COP) program.

My world is not wide, I admit.

When not slumped over this keyboard, I'm spaz-attacking shots on the tennis court at Pecan or de-Cordova, or three-putting the slick greens in Glen Rose.

Or maybe bass fishing at Mr. Cohn's tank 70 miles west. And calling up mysterious barred owls from the aging cabin's front porch.

That's about it. Oh, maybe a frosty beverage and signature enchiladas on the heavenly patio at Joe T's on the north side.

I'm not down on the border, or in the Capitol or White House, or on the streets of college campuses.

Fox or CNN wouldn't invite me to be a talking head guest, but it seems everyone has an opinion these days, especially on unsocial media.

And the opinions are loud.

A CLOSER LOOK

Roger Enlow
Editor

In-your-face loud. The political divide in America is cavernous and growing wider. Where are the Ronald Reagans and Tip O'Neills? They were political opposites but smart enough to strike a compromise for the good of America.

DON'T GET IT

Our world has become way too serious. Do people laugh anymore? When was the last time someone told you a joke?

Who was it that said, "A little humor just might save the world"?

Humility seems to have left us too. I'm right, and you're wrong. No room for debate. Unfortunately, our state and national leaders, cable TV news, and yes, some in the pulpit have fostered this sad political climate in our country.

Heated arguments every night, tempers flaring, people taking to the streets and vandalizing in protest.

Is this 1968? I've never embraced people who think their opinions should be framed and mailed to every household in America.

Maybe ... just maybe ... those elitists could be wrong.

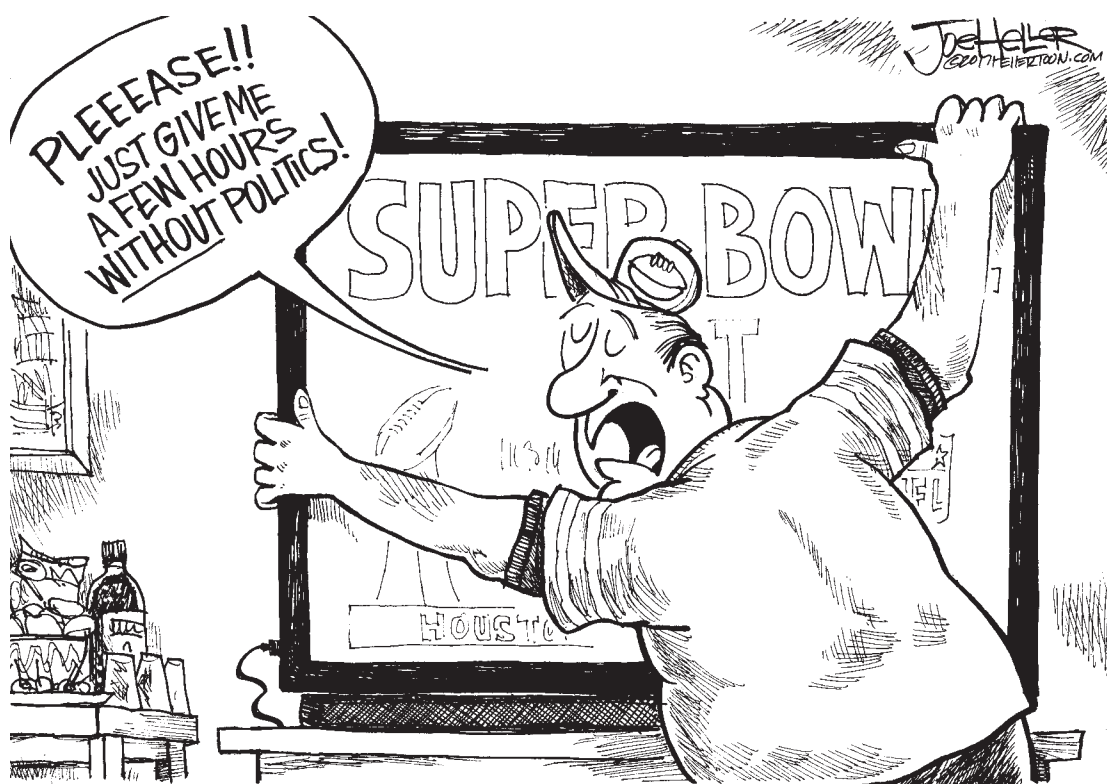

My good friend and I probably don't agree on every political issue. I don't know. We don't talk about it much.

We have more important things to do.

Golfing, fishing. Watching football. Learning more about local history.

Trying to enjoy life.

Oh, the rapturous recliner!

Not since the invention of the automobile and delivery pizza has something captured the mind of the male species like the recliner.

It's one of modern man's most prized and coveted pieces of furniture, truly one of the genuine miracles of everyday life.

It's life altering. How did we ever live without it?

Actually, we haven't.

We've been enjoying this incredibly comfortable, sometimes ugly, masterpiece design since the late 1600s. Napoleon III was the first owner of the newly invented, by a Frenchman, reclining chair.

This doesn't surprise me; the French are into comfort almost as much as they are food connoisseurs. It's possible the dictator/emperor introduced this comfort craze with a bunch of male buddies sitting around discussing war strategies, or quite possibly while cheering on a sporting game. Well, I haven't read anything to dispute this theory.

In 1928 a patent was obtained by two cousins for a mechanical reclining chair, and the general population has been lounging and sleeping in them ever since.

NASA was so intrigued with

GUEST COLUMN

the design they had a type of reclining lounge chair fitted into the Mercury, Gemini and Apollo crafts for the Astronauts to blast into space in supported comfort.

Lyndon Johnson was the first President to own a NASA-inspired recliner, photographed lounging in one after his gall bladder surgery.

I'm sure this will come as no surprise to lovers of this ingenious chair; it is the most asked for and sold piece of furniture during the Christmas shopping season. Father's Day comes in a close second for sales.

Why?

It's the most celebrated man chair of all time, so comfortable one falls into restful sleep within half hour after sitting down.

Nor should this be a shock to anyone, men love lounging back with a cold beer or spirits of some sort while they watch sports on television.

First, understand the recliner comes with a variety of options men can't turn down; similar to choosing a vehicle. It may have a massage or vibration option, rocks and/or swivels, or both, lumbar support, choose an option for a heated seat or/and back, and decide if leather or fabric is the covering; men love leather.

This will help you understand why men are passionate about recliners and love them as much as their truck or sports car, or perhaps their guns, or fishing rods, maybe his boat - you get the idea.

And for those who do not understand, in short, women, who have firm ideas on decorating, there are concessions that must be made when furnishing a home if she hopes to have a happy spouse.

It doesn't matter if she believes a recliner is the ugliest piece of furniture in the house, it's mandatory it be placed in front of a television in whatever room is available, living room, game room, garage or man cave. For all I know, men believe his recliner is the only piece of furniture necessary to complete a home.

Recliners are many things, but most of all the male owner of one usually experiences something close to rapture each time he sits down.

WE ALL FAILED

I must disagree with the way a couple of my statements were used. I clearly said we failed. Our system failed. Not just law enforcement or the investigators. We all failed.

When I was asked if I knew of any advocacy program for women who are accused of assaulting or murdering their abuser, I realized we did not.

Further checking with other victim services organizations reinforced that a gap does exist for that kind of advocacy so we're not unique in that respect.

We simply don't have a system that provides access to a trained domestic violence/sexual assault advocate for victims like Deborah. If we did, perhaps the outcome might have been different. The advocate would have listened to Deborah's story and presented facts about her history of victimization that might have triggered a closer look.

At the very least, we would have known we did all we could to help Deborah as a domestic violence/sexual assault victim.

Lastly, I would never pretend I could close a gap in the justice system, and I never indicated such. Recognizing the gap exists certainly lays the way to start a conversation, both here and at state conferences where other victim service directors meet to address gaps in service.

These cases are fairly rare and not ordinary, but they do happen. They are victims, and they deserve the same advocate services other victims receive.

SOCIETY GETTING WIDER?

Someone asked me why we need wider sidewalks downtown. I said the only reason I can think of is our society is getting wider.

Maybe we need wider sidewalks behind the downtown stores also so Americans can continue to grow and expand their horizons.

It don't matter if fire trucks can't get through the square - we can develop flying fire trucks kinda like CareFlite only it would be fire flight.

I watched the local TV channel the other night when City Planners were showing the results of their fire truck drive-through test of the downtown based on where the new sidewalks would be and laughed uncontrollably.

That was the funniest thing I've seen on local TV channel in ages.

Being able to navigate the downtown square in a semi-truck after the sidewalks have been widened falls under the heading of "Are you out of your friggin' mind?"

How about the City Council telling Austin to forget the whole thing?

DISGRACE TO JUSTICE SYSTEM

The recent reporting of the Malone-Wilson murder case by Kathy Cruz was excellent.

It brings to my mind a very important question. How does an indigent person get a good court-appointed attorney in Hood County?

I know that is a very general question and that there are some attorneys who will always represent their clients well, regardless of payment. But, it seems like a crap shoot to me.

The indigent stands the chance of getting good representation from a competent attorney or virtually no representation from an unethical attorney who just wants to quickly fulfill the court-appointed duty. That is not justice, in my mind.

How do we rectify this problem? Indigents are citizens and deserve good counsel from their attorneys.

Are the court-appointed attorneys who are lazy, lax or unethical disciplined in some way? If not they should be. They are a disgrace to the justice system in this county.

Hobbit home improvement

It took a tiny broom for Master Gardener Drew Williams to sweep off the front porch of the little Hobbit house Monday morning at the Lake Granbury Master Gardeners Demonstration Garden behind Annex I, 1410 W. Pearl St. The Hobbit house is actually a facade that was constructed into a small hillside to add whimsy and interest to the ever-expanding garden. Plans are in the works to build up a landscape surrounding the house and to add a tiny playground area in the back.

When to prune?

This month is the time to snip

The most frequently asked gardening question once the weather chills is, "Is it time to prune?"

This query applies to most any plant, but particularly to roses, perennials, trees, evergreens and crepe myrtles.

Although each species should be addressed separately, the general answer in February is YES!

Never "top" crepe myrtles. Do not follow the practices adhered to by many landscape professionals, which is to chop these plants severely.

Despite what you may think, severe pruning does not promote flowering. It ruins a crepe myrtle's natural form forever. It's best to remove only small branches to correct errant growth. Removing spent seedpods is optional.

Severe pruning is not required of roses designated as Knock-Out™ or EarthKind™. On the other hand, annual heavy pruning is essential to ensure the bloom and longevity of hybrid tea roses.

These general steps apply to all rose pruning: 1) First, remove any canes that are dead,

GARDEN PATCH

which means they are probably black or gray, 2) Next, remove weak or crisscrossed canes, 3) Trim damaged or broken canes back to healthy growth, and 4) Shape overgrown roses.

The basic technique for pruning roses on live growth is to cut to an "outside bud." When looking for the place to cut a branch (cane), find a healthy bud on the cane, one that faces away from the plant's center.

Make the cut at a 45-degree angle about ¼ inch above the outward-facing bud. This type of cut ensures that the new bud will grow away from the bush, keeping the center of the rose bush open for better air circulation.

Evergreen shrubs may be shaped as needed to remove winter damage. Avoid formal shearing whenever possible to retain the plants' natural shape.

Wait to prune spring-flowering plants until after they have bloomed, which includes many deciduous shrubs and vines. Remove "winter kill" from perennials.

Prune away dead or damaged tree branches. If mistletoe is growing on limbs, remove it to slow its spread. If you do not remove the young clump just as it is starting to establish, you will later be forced to remove limbs.

To prevent deadly oak wilt virus, always seal wounds when trimming oak trees. Finish pruning oaks early this month; you cannot prune when the tree "wakes up" from winter without risking oak wilt.

Fruit trees and grapevines should be pruned to remove dead or damaged branches. Check with the AgriLife Extension about pruning specifics for grapevines, apple, peach, plum, pear, fig, pomegranate and pecan trees.

Crowley scored in the final 90 seconds of the game, said head coach Doug Kissinger.

"It was by far the best game we have played this year. We had a little bad luck at the end, but overall I am pleased with our performance," he said.

BASKETBALL

Granbury High School football player Daniel Shelton announced his intention to continue his education and playing career with Howard Payne University on Wednesday in the GHS Pirate Pavilion.

Pirate head coach Chad Zschiesche praised Shelton for his hard work and determination both on the playing field as well as in the classroom.

The GHS senior, who received honorable mention all-district honors in 2015 as a junior, previously played basketball and was a member of the GHS choir and debate team. He also serves as the manager for the Lady Pirate soccer team.

Purdy signs with Lubbock Christian

BY BETHANY KURTZ
HOOD COUNTY NEWS

Granbury Lady Pirate goalkeeper Addy Purdy celebrated signing her letter of intent to Lubbock Christian University with her teammates, family and several coaches.

Purdy officially signed the letter Wednesday on National Signing Day to play goalie for the Lubbock Christian Chaparrals.

Her family invited her select team coach Steve Ramirez and goalkeeper coach Milo Milosevich to join Granbury's head girls soccer coach David Winkleman to the celebration.

The first time Ramirez saw Purdy play, she was on a different team, he said, but impressed him enough he convinced her to join his team.

Later, during a tournament that happened to be played in Granbury, he watched as Purdy discovered her goaltending potential.

"There were rockets flying out. She was stopping everything," Ramirez said. "At that point, she realized what she could do."

Purdy combines that talent with dedication, Winkleman said.

"It is all or nothing with her. She is all in all the time," he said.

Her parents, Dianna and Rusty Rhoads, said they are excited Purdy chose a college close to extended family and that they will get to see her continuing to play.

"When I went there for a tour, the coach and the athletes were really welcoming. It felt like home," Purdy said.

She first started playing goalie following her cousins' example and found she enjoyed it.

"On the field, you can make mistakes, and it's okay. You have a whole game to make up for it. In the goal, you can't. You have one second to make the save," she explained.

While her right arm was in a cast during the signing and she is missing much of this year's season to let it heal, Purdy said she expects to be ready to play again before the college season starts.

Tolar seniors not done with football

BY BETHANY KURTZ
HOOD COUNTY NEWS

Two Tolar High School Rattlers will don different football uniforms next season.

Cody Jones and Jacob Silcox ceremoniously signed pledge letters to two different colleges on Wednesday, known as National Signing Day in the U.S.

Jones signed to play for the Tarleton State University Texans. His parents are Trevor and Amy Jones.

Silcox will be an offensive lineman for the Cisco College Wranglers. His parents are Jon Silcox and Jennifer Chambers. Tolar head football coach Mike Franklin is proud of both his players' achievements.

Silcox has improved greatly from his performance on the field at the start of his junior year when the coaching staff warned him he had to apply himself to continue to play.

"He really committed and came on as a football player," Franklin said. "I think Cisco will be a great fit for him. He will get to mature and grow there for a few more years before heading somewhere else if he decides he wants to."

Being offered a full scholarship to pursue a criminal justice degree helped persuade him to continue playing football, Silcox said. "I wanted to further my education and play football," he said.

Jones set his sights on playing for Tarleton in his sophomore year, he said.

"I wanted to play football and stay close to my family," he said.

To make that dream come true, Cody and the coaching staff have been working closely with Tarleton all season, Franklin said.

"I'm glad he is getting to play out his dream," he said.

Jones is slotted to play defensive back safety for the Texans. He plans to study kinesiology.

Swimbait

A good choice for warm winter days

As the water temperatures start warming (as it has been this week), you need to impart a little more action on your presentation.

On those warmer days, the swimbait may be your best option.

If a cold front moves back in and cools everything back down again, going back to the dead sticking may be your best choice. Regardless, be prepared for either option.

I use soft plastics in the winter to catch stripers, hybrids and sand bass. You don't impart much action on the soft plastic baits due to the cold water. This type of fishing is called "dead sticking," and it is extremely effective in the winter. You can "dead stick" a swimbait using the trolling motor, and the tail will move back and forth as you slowly move the bait through the area you wish to fish.

The swimbait is also a great option when the fish start surfacing. The swimbait can be tossed and retrieved through the feeding fish mimicking a fleeing shad.

HOOD OUTDOORS

Mike Acosta
Unfair Advantage
Charters

There are many options when it comes to swimbait. There are pre-made baits like the Storm Wildeye that has the plastic bait molded on a weighted jig head. There are many different versions of these pre-made baits, and they will do the trick for sure.

The option that I prefer to use is a swimbait body typically called a "Sassy Shad" type bait. This soft plastic bait is threaded on a swimbait jig head. I typically use a 4- to 5-inch swimbait on a 3/4- to 1-ounce jig head for stripers and hybrids. Smaller baits around 3 inches with 1/4- to 3/8-ounce jig heads are effective on sand bass.

The colors that I use the most are "glow," chartreuse (yellow) and white/pearl. The jig head can be unpainted or at times a white/chartreuse painted jig head with a black or red eye can entice the bite. A "glow" colored Sassy Shad with a chartreuse-dyed tail is a good option.

With the present winter patterns, I like to put my bait to the desired depth where the majority of the baitfish are holding. This can be from 15 feet down to over 40 feet down depending on the day and the temperature. I then move through the area very slowly with my trolling motor keeping the bait typically right off the bottom. At times you need to position the bait where the fish are holding, which means if they are suspended, then that may be the depth to focus on.

Once you locate fish willing to feed, you will feel the fish hit and you need to set the hook. Some days they will hit it hard, other days the bite will be light. Either way, you need to set the hook.

If the fish are pushing bait to the surface and you are trying to catch fish "under the birds," a good winter method is to cast into the schooling fish and let your bait fall through the feeding fish.

Each day is a new adventure, and you might have to experiment on how the fish want it. Some days a slow, steady retrieve is desired. Other days they may want it moving fast.

HOOD COUNTY FISHING REPORT

Lake Granbury water temperatures are in the low to mid 50s. Stripers continue to be slow to fair to good on the lower ends near Striper Alley and the dam. Black bass fishing continues to be good on soft plastics on those warmer days when the fish move up.

Squaw Creek black bass are good to excellent on soft plastics. Bass anglers continue to flock to this fishery this winter. Tilapia anglers have not been disappointed either.

Whitney stripers continue to be good in numbers in the river above the lake and on the main lake under the birds.

Possum Kingdom stripers are fair to good to 18 pounds on soft plastics fished on the upper ends.

SCHOLARSHIPS: Luminant and its Comanche Peak Nuclear Power Plant and DeCordova Power Plant employees helped the next generation of scientists and engineers by providing $1,500 in scholarships and volunteer support for the 2017 Granbury ISD Science and Engineering Fair.

Luminant employees encourage tomorrow's scientists

Helping the next generation of scientists, nearly 20 employees from Luminant's Comanche Peak Nuclear Power Plant and DeCordova Power Plant volunteered as judges for the Granbury ISD Science and Engineering Fair.

Luminant also awarded three $500 scholarships - for a total of $1,500 - to three winning entries as part of the company's commitment to educational partnerships, especially those building skills in science, technology, engineering and math, or STEM.

"The company and its employees are proud to invest in our communities and participate in educational outreach activities that empower students to pursue their interests in STEM fields," said Caroline Atkins, Luminant corporate affairs manager.

"There's a lot of hard work and creativity that goes into each one of these projects, and it's exciting to know that our employees are helping to develop future leaders and scientists." Luminant's scholarship funds were awarded to Granbury ISD students Madelyn Lanning and Taylor Laurence, "Best of Show" category winners; Avery Thomas, "Most Innovative" category winner; and Adam Stone, "Judges' Favorite" category winner.

For Luminant's volunteer judges, the science and engineering fair was an opportunity to provide mentorship, pass along real-world knowledge and boost students' enthusiasm for STEM.

"As an engineer, I'm passionate about science, and giving back to the community is what it's all about," said Chase Dube, Luminant DeCordova Power Plant engineer and science fair judge. "I remember participating in science fairs when I was younger and learning the importance of asking questions, looking for ways to improve my project and always thinking of new ideas. I see myself in these students and I hope they continue to pursue their passion for science."

School counselors 'integral' to student success

"School Counseling: Helping Students Realize Their Potential" is the theme of the National School Counselors' Week, which is being celebrated next week.

The American School Counselor Association (ASCA), affiliated with the Texas School Counselor Association (TSCA) and Texas Counselor Association (TCA), sets aside the first week in February to offer information on how school counselors can help all students and families with academic support, social development and career planning.

"School counselors work with all students to remove barriers to learning by addressing students' academic concerns, personal/social skills and career awareness in post-secondary options," said ASCA executive director Kwok-Sze Wong.

"Comprehensive school counseling programs help to increase student achievement and provide a much-needed resource for students, parents, teachers and administrators. School counselors are integral to student success."

The counselors are active in supporting student achievement and providing guidance lessons on building good character and other topics like bullying prevention, school officials said.

They also lead groups of students to solve problems, sponsor evening events to promote higher education, participate in intervention programs, and coordinate testing and other student services.

GISD school counselors are: Granbury High School - Doug Barnett, Karin Harrington, Cindy Holt, Claudia Hurst, Kim Spencer and Kelly Tuggle; Acton Middle School - Stacy Bishop and Jeri Dewberry; Granbury Middle School - Nova Dea and Megan Guidry; Acton Elementary School - Jill Jernigan; Baccus Elementary School - Meredith Deemer; Brawner Intermediate School - Mary Stennett; Mambriño School - Angie Molinari; Oak Woods School - Holli Moore; Roberson Elementary School - Karman Chandler; and STARS Accelerated High School/Behavior Transition Center - Misty Walters.

Kerr hopes to save OTS pool for the kids

BY DEBBIE SCHNEIDER
HOOD COUNTY NEWS

Tammy Kerr is trying to change the atmosphere in Oak Trail Shores.

And she's doing it through the children.

"I want this to be a family-oriented place," Kerr said of OTS. "I want to get the children involved in something positive. I just want to change the mood of the community."

There have been times when Kerr provided sandwiches for kids who did not have lunch.

"We've got the Healthy Kids summer lunch program here now. So that's a big help for some of these kids who may not get food at home," she said.

Kerr is now focused on the OTS swimming pool.

At one time, the huge lakeside subdivision north of Granbury had three swimming pools. Only one is still in operation. And it's existence is in peril.

"That's all we have out here for the kids," Kerr said. "Some days we've had more than 100 kids at the pool."

As pool manager and OTS community coordinator since 2015, Kerr is passionate about her work with children and families.

She sees the pool as a sanctuary for kids who otherwise could be unsupervised at home.

"The swimming pool gives kids something to do. It keeps them away from drugs and off the streets," Kerr said.

Already she's spruced up the pool deck with red, white and blue chairs. But the pool itself is in need of major repairs. And it's a big pool - estimated to hold 83,000 gallons, or more.

Tile is falling off inside the pool and also around the pool deck.

The inside of the pool needs to be resurfaced. The pool has a small leak, and some of the sidewalk is breaking up.

The baby pool needs a new pump. The big pool also needs a new pump.

EFFORT TO SAVE OTS POOL

CONSTRUCTED in the late 1960s, and in need of major repair.

SERVES up to 100 children a day.

SITE for free swimming lessons offered by YMCA staffers.

REPAIR estimates range from $28,000 to $78,000.

DONATIONS can be made to the OTS pool fund at First Financial Bank.

Repair estimates vary widely, from $28,000 to $78,000.

With raffle items donated by local restaurants and hotels, the end of summer splash day raised a little money for the pool last year. But much more is needed.

There's only $953 in the pool fund account at First Financial Bank.

Several groups are working to make improvements in OTS. The youth group at Oak Trail Baptist painted playground equipment at the park.

YMCA staffers give free swimming lessons for the kids at the OTS pool.

Ruth's Place in OTS provides a variety of services for children and adults.

As Kerr works to give the kids positive experiences at the pool, she hopes the community will join her quest for improvements.

Donations can be made to the Oak Trail Shores pool fund at First Financial Bank.

Kerr also said she could use some help in organizing large benefit or fundraiser. "It's something I haven't done before."

For more information, contact Kerr at 817-894-5323, or Patsy Parr at 817-578-9001.

Artist of the Month

Local artist Claudia Pattillo was named Artist of the Month for January by the Lake Granbury Art Association. Her winning pastel painting is titled "Farmers Market Find" and will be on display at the BBVA Compass Bank at 1807 E. Highway 377. Patillo painted with acrylics for 10 years before she moved to Granbury in 2012. She joined the LGAA in 2014 and started working with pastels. She enjoys the challenge of pastels, finding it so different from painting with watercolors, acrylics or oils. Other artists recognized this month were Jeanette Alexander, Teri Daniels, Vickie Pflueger, Kay Wirz and Elizabeth Sutton. Sharon Grindstaff is January's feature artist at the Visitors Center.

Dinner decor follows a theme

BY DEBBIE SCHNEIDER
HOOD COUNTY NEWS

Carol Shuck loves to cook, and she loves to entertain.

"My sister jokingly says it's because I was deprived from playing with dishes as a child," Carol said with a laugh.

Known for her theme parties, Carol sometimes takes her decorations over the top.

"Especially with Halloween," she said.

Carol decorates in classic Halloween style. Nothing gory or scary. Her silver and black color scheme is highlighted with green and purple witches.

Halloween menus may include fingers (asparagus), bones (pork crown roast), death by chocolate and witches brew.

When planning dinner parties, Carol likes to make things that can be prepared ahead of time. Like her chocolate molten cakes.

"I make the cakes a day or two ahead of time, then just warm them up and garnish prior to serving," Carol said.

The chocolate molten cake is one of her most requested dishes.

Carol sighed and said, "There was a time when I just got so tired of making it."

Luckily, that time passed and she still makes the rich chocolate dessert.

Carol and her husband, Con, have been in deCordova Bend

Homestead exemption increased

Realtors worked during 2015 legislative session to make it happen

Do you want lower property taxes? Would you like to avoid paying a tax when you buy or sell real estate? If you're in favor of those ideas, I've got good news. The Texas Association of Realtors worked hard during the legislative session in 2015 to pass a bill ultimately approved by 86 percent of voters that increased the homestead exemption by $10,000 and constitutionally banned real estate transfer taxes.

Those measures are already saving you real money, and the Texas Association of Realtors isn't done.

HIDDEN PROPERTY TAX

This legislative session, the association and its members will work on eliminating the

GRANBURY REALTORS

Tammye Rushing, President, Granbury Realtors Association

hidden property tax in Texas. This includes reforming the property appraisal and tax rate setting process to ensure a more transparent and honest conversation at the local level as well as advocating for additional state aid in the school finance system.

Texas Realtors will also closely monitor any proposals to change our state's home equity laws. Why? Realtors were the driving force behind strong consumer protections in home equity legislation passed a few decades ago. Those safeguards are a big reason Texas was not hit as hard during the last real estate downturn as states like California, Nevada and Florida. We want to ensure that any changes designed to improve home equity lending don't come with unintended consequences that put homeowners and the Texas economy in jeopardy.

KEEPING TEXAS A BETTER PLACE

Texas Realtors will be supporting proposals to decrease traffic congestion and looking for other ways to keep the state's economy healthy. It's a tall order. But Realtors have been working for years on behalf of the citizens of Texas to make our great state a better place to work and live.

We do this by staying up-to-date on legislative news affecting Texas - and sharing that information with friends, colleagues and clients.

Realtors volunteer on committees that examine issues affecting the real estate industry and property ownership. We contact our elected officials—thousands of us will visit the Texas Capitol in April.

Yes, the 110,000-plus Realtors help you buy, sell and lease property. But we also protect private-property rights, advocate for property owners and work to keep homeownership affordable.

Learn more about how Texas Realtors work to protect the interests of homebuyers at texas-realestate.com.

Estates for 20 years. The have two sons, both living in the Metroplex area, and six grandchildren.

Con's grilled salmon is always a hit at dinner parties and church potlucks. He's also known for his pork ribs and homemade barbecue sauce.

Carol likes to garden and can often be found out working in the yard. She uses home-grown tomatoes for her Stuffed Baked Tomatoes recipe.

Once a month she meets with a group of girlfriends known as The Piglets. They play poker (with dimes and quarters), have lunch, drink wine and "laugh until our sides hurt."

On a trip to the coast years ago, the gals began to plan lunch shortly after breakfast.

"We started laughing and making snorting sounds," Carol giggled and said. "That's where The Piglets name came from. We love to eat."

David Elwood Lawson

David Elwood Lawson passed away in Fort Worth on Jan. 23, 2017.

A private family memorial will be held in the future.

Dave was born in Enid, Oklahoma, Jan. 1, 1940, to Darlene and Sherwood Lawson. He graduated from Medford High School in Medford, Oklahoma, and graduated from Oklahoma State University in Stillwater, Oklahoma. He started his career at the TracyLocke advertising agency before opening his own firm, McQuien, Lawson & Knowles. He left advertising to manage Byrd's River Bend Farm, a pecan orchard in Lowndesboro, Alabama.

In 1993, while working as an adjunct professor at the University of North Texas, he co-wrote the ground-breaking book on baseball analysis, "Essential Baseball 1994," with his long-time friend, Norm Hitzges. This began a new phase in his career as a statistical analyst for the Milwaukee Brewers, Texas Rangers and Seattle Mariners.

While his interests were many, he was a husband, brother and father first.

He is survived by his loving wife, Janice Marie Lawson of Granbury; his son, James Travis Lawson (wife, Nicole) of Austin; his daughter Kirstin Sue Martin (husband, Simon) of Dallas; his daughter Erica Jane Henderson (husband, Troy), and his granddaughters, Alexis, Aleyah, and Trinity Henderson of Castroville; and his sister, Teresa Wituhn of Hays, Kansas.

Dave was a man of unshakable integrity, keen intelligence, boundless loyalty, and a sense of play that was as evident in his 70s as when he was a younger man. He loved richly, and, fittingly, he was richly loved in return. His favorite times were spent fishing, watching and talking baseball, enjoying good food and wine, making road trips, listening to talk radio, and reading and playing with his granddaughters. He claimed to tolerate cats but he secretly loved them as well.

A special thank you to the medical professionals who made such a difference throughout his life.

Arrangements made by Wiley Funeral Home.

Jan Caldwell retires Great itinerary: See grandkids and travel

BY DEBBIE SCHNEIDER
HOOD COUNTY NEWS

Jan Caldwell Hulett is doing what many of us hope to do some day. She's enjoying retirement. After 33-plus years at Luminant, Jan's getting comfortable with a change of pace. "Retirement is awesome!" she said. Jan and husband Nin have five grandchildren, between Odessa and Houston. "We look forward to spending more time in their worlds," Jan said. A sailing trip is planned this summer. On the homefront, Jan plans to continue her involvement with three or four community organizations. "I think what I'm most grateful for in my career, is the ability it afforded me to establish long-lasting relationships, both in our community and across the state. Being a good neighbor and a community partner, drove my decisions and recommendations," she said. Kathy Mobly remembers meeting Jan at a Rotary event about nine years ago. "Tony and I were new to Granbury and she helped introduce me to several organizations to get me involved in the community. Her heart for service is infectious and she just makes you want to join in with her because she has such a great sense of humor," she said. Kathy and Jan both are involved with the Lake Granbury Area Beautification Council.

REFLECTING ON RETIREMENT

"I guess what I miss most is my Luminant work family. They're such a great group of dedicated folks who do their level best every-day. "That, and the ability to call our IT guy and have my computer issue magically fixed," she joked. Ken Peters, chief nuclear officer for Luminant, praised Jan for her many years of service. "We want to thank Jan for her commitment to our company and community, and her many contributions in powering Texas. We wish her all the best in retirement," he said. What does the future hold? "There's a line from an old Calvin & Hobbs comic strip, something like, 'There's never enough time to do all the nothing you want.' Feels like that may be true," she smiled and said.

GOOD SPORT: Jan Caldwell Hulett was a good sport at the United Way fundraiser last fall. She was called to the stage to be serenaded by men in the audience. In Tom Cruise style from the movie "Top Gun," the men sang "You've Lost That Loving Feeling," as part of the Pete's Dueling Piano entertainment at the annual special event.

Junior High boys and girls teams win tournament

The Lipan Junior High girls and boys teams both won first place in last weekend's Junior High Basketball tournament held in Lipan. Both teams played well and are champions on and off of the court.
