GISD asks McCoy to reconsider tax collections

BY KATHY CRUZ
HOOD COUNTY NEWS

The Granbury School Board and Superintendent Jim Largent have drafted a letter to Tax Assessor-Collector Teresa McCoy, asking her to reconsider her intention to take over the county's tax collections.

Since its creation in 1982, the Hood County Appraisal District (HCAD) has handled collections for all taxing entities within the county.

McCoy has informed County Judge Darrell Cockerham that she intends to take over the collection of the county's taxes when the county's appraisal district expires at the end of August.

The Commissioners Court cannot prevent her from doing so.

Court members did not favor that move when McCoy first brought it up in 2015.

McCoy

Largent

The situation was discussed at Monday's night's regular school board meeting.

Board members, as well as Largent, signed a letter to McCoy asking her to reconsider and stating that the school district will not be utilizing her office for the collection of its taxes.

The school officials said they feel that McCoy's plan will be a duplication of work done by the appraisal district; increase costs for the school district; and create confusion for taxpayers who would get bills from both her office as well as the HCAD.

On Thursday, McCoy said she was disappointed in Largent and the trustees for their "lack of professionalism" in providing the letter to the Hood County News before she had received her copy from them.

The HCN provided McCoy a copy of the letter, which the newspaper received Monday night after the meeting.

In a written statement to the HCN, McCoy wrote that she is "saddened for the taxpayers" because the school officials "clearly did not do their homework and get the facts" prior to making their decision.

THE LETTER

The letter states that if the county no longer uses the appraisal district, GISD will see an increase of about $10,000 in fees to the appraisal district due to the county no longer contributing to operation costs.

It also says that the duplication of work will cost taxpayers because of increased postage expenses, as well as costs for software systems and collection staff, possibly necessitating a tax increase.

The letter to McCoy states that the appraisal district has done a good job for the school district, and deposits money to the district multiple times per month.

As well, Chief Appraiser Greg Stewart and GISD Assis-

OTS pool repaired, to open

Community rallies to fund improvements

BY DEBBIE SCHNEIDER
HOOD COUNTY NEWS

The fate of the swimming pool in Oak Trail Shores was in question earlier this year.

A long list of repairs and a shortfall of funds threatened the pool's opening this summer.

With community support, repairs have been made, and the pool will open next Saturday.

Pool Manager Tammy Kerr is excited, to say the least.

"I'm so glad these kids will have a place to go this summer," Kerr said.

At one time, the large lakeside subdivision north of Granbury had three swimming pools.

Kerr said the pool has been resurfaced, tile work fixed and edging around the pool repaired.

She hopes to repaint the swimming pool building a cream or tan color to match rock work at the pool.

The official grand opening for the pool is planned for Saturday, June 3. Kerr hopes community groups and churches will set up booths at the pool to let

Sheriff: 35 intoxicated texts to 911 land man in jail

A Granbury man was arrested after drunk-texting 911 a total of 35 times on Monday, authorities said.

"Moral of the story: Don't text and drink alcohol. Have a designated cell phone holder," sheriff's office Public Information Officer Lt. Johnny Rose said.

Around 8 p.m. Monday, sheriff's office dispatch started receiving text messages through 911 from a 46-year-old man, Rose said.

He claimed a bar overserved him, Rose said.

The man was warned several times to not abuse 911, but he kept texting non-emergency messages, calling the dispatchers and deputies names and wanted the bar investigated for overserving and overcharging him, Rose explained.

During the incident, the man sent 35 harassing messages to the 911 system, keeping deputies and dispatchers busy for several hours, Rose said.

Deputies arrested the man and charged him with abuse of 911, a class B misdemeanor with a bond of $1,000. The man bonded out of jail.

Dispatchers help mother save son's life on Mother's Day

A mother was able to perform CPR and save her son's life with help from Hood County Sheriff's Office dispatchers Sunday.

On Mother's Day around 6 p.m., a frantic mother called 911 from the 4400 block of Bobbie Ann Drive needing an ambulance, said Public Information Officer Lt. Johnny Rose.

Her 20-year-old son wasn't breathing, she told dispatchers.

Dispatchers gave the mother instructions on performing CPR until the paramedics arrived.

With the help of dispatch, the mother was able to keep her son alive, and he was transported to Lake Granbury Medical Center where he is recovering, Rose said.

The mother called back and thanked the dispatchers for their help.

Revised Brazos Crossing passes P&Z, City Council

BY KATHY CRUZ
HOOD COUNTY NEWS

A revised plan for the lake-front Brazos Crossing apartment complex that was denied by the Granbury City Council six months ago now has the green light.

After making some changes to his original proposal in order to appease adjacent town home owners, developer Don Murphy again brought the project before the Planning and Zoning Commission and City Council.

The two- and three-story apartment buildings will be built on eight acres on Hill Boulevard, behind Chili's and the Avalon Shopping Center. There will be 68 one-bedroom units and 62 two-bedroom units, for a total of 130 units.

The complex will consist of eight buildings. Four of the buildings will be three-story, and four will be two-story.

Some of the apartments will have attached garages, and there will be some detached garages available as well.

ADDRESSING STONEGATE

During a rare joint meeting Tuesday night, the P&Z and City Council approved four requests by Murphy pertaining to the project.

The requests were to amend the Comprehensive Plan and to approve zoning, a tree conservation plan and a preliminary plat.

Although residents at the adjacent Stonegate town home community still strongly oppose the project, city officials approved changes that include a barrier and more distance between the properties.

Murphy's new plan includes a 50-foot-wide, 5-foot-tall berm with trees and shrubs to the west of the property, on the Stonegate side.

City Manager Chris Coffman said that the berm will have underground drainage.

The berm is expected to buffer noise and light, as well as provide more privacy for the 13

Stonegate town homes that sit along that property line. Those town homes already have backyard fences.

Murphy also moved buildings further away from Stonegate - a length of more than half a football field. The three-story buildings will not be on the Stonegate side, giving those residents more privacy.

During Tuesday night's joint meeting, Eve Behan spoke on behalf of a group of Stonegate residents in denouncing the project.

Some who reside at Stonegate spent retirement savings to purchase their town homes and bought them after being told that similar town homes - not multi-story apartments - were planned for the adjoining acreage.

Behan criticized the "many variances" required to approve the Brazos Crossing project, and said that Murphy's request that the acreage be rezoned to Planned Development/Multi-Family allowed him to bypass the Zoning Board of Adjustment (ZBA), violating height restrictions and rules for building separation and set-backs.

She also noted that Murphy's plans "don't provide sufficient parking."

Although city ordinance requires 2.05 parking spaces per unit, Murphy's plan calls for 1.72 spaces.

However, spokesman Art Anderson noted that many of the units will be one-bedroom and that one parking space is typically sufficient.

Robert Hill, who owns the property, said that Brazos Crossing will create jobs, provide much-needed rental housing and bring in 10 times as much in property tax revenue.

He also challenged claims that the apartments will lower property values at Stonegate, citing a study by George Mason University that found that there is "strong home price appreciation" and lower crime in areas where there is multi-family housing.

Hill also stated that "housing costs have increased at a faster rate than income" and that it's "hard for people who get jobs in Granbury to live in Granbury."

PUTTING IT TO A VOTE

The P&Z and City Council voted separately on each of the four requests. None of the votes were unanimous.

The P&Z votes were all three to one, with member Cathey Briscoe voting against each measure.

The votes were similarly consistent among the council. Mickey Parson, Tony Allen and Gary Couch voted in favor of Murphy's requests, but Rose Myers voted against them.

Council member Tony Mobly, who had abstained in prior votes related to the project because he lives at Stonegate, abstained during Tuesday night's votes as well on the advice of legal counsel with the Texas Municipal League.

Couch had also previously abstained due to what he viewed as a business-related conflict of interest but participated in Tuesday night's votes.

He said that further research and consultation with legal counsel showed there was no conflict.

BREAKING GROUND

Murphy told the HCN that he expects to break ground in August, and the clubhouse and "some of the first buildings" will probably be completed within 8-9 months.

He said he anticipates that the entire complex will take about a year to complete.

Murphy stated that there are eight floor plans - four for the one-bedroom units and four for the two-bedroom units.

Monthly rent will range from $900 to $1,400, he said.

Murphy said he intends to put white sand on the beach to give the complex a resort feel.

CONFUSING: McCoy, school officials disagree over her tax take-over plan tant Superintendent of Finance and Operations Dobie Williams communicate regularly, it was pointed out.

The letter also relays a concern that by duplicating services, McCoy will "likely hurt all of our collection percentages due to the complications created with duplicate mailings, multiple offices, personnel, etc."

In addition, the message states: "GISD and the HCAD has a good working relationship and we do not plan to consider allowing another entity to collect our taxes."

In her written statement, Mc-

Coy said that other taxing entities in the county can contract with her office at a lower cost.

"The county is only allowed by law to charge them actual cost," she wrote, adding that actual cost is "defined as anything over and above what it costs to do the county collections."

She wrote that the current situation "is already a confusing situation for taxpayers" since the elected county tax assessor-collector is the person responsible for assessing and collecting county taxes.

"My office redirects many citizens and tax payments during collection season every year," her message said.

McCoy stated that she believes she is acting in the public's best interest and is willing to address concerns one-on-one with individuals, or in a town hall meeting.

'Everything else is dead'

Legislators ignoring program's devastating impact

In Precinct 1 Justice of the Peace Roger "Cotton" Howell's courtroom Wednesday afternoon, attorney Paul Hyde asked for the judge's indulgence in making a closing argument.

Hyde was there representing Natalie Collier, who works in hospice and said she receives no help, financial or otherwise, from the father of her two children, one of whom is disabled. The state sent Collier a notice of its intention to suspend her driver's license after she paid the fine for an old speeding ticket in Glen Rose.

When Hyde made his request for a closing argument, Howell knew what was coming.

"If you're going to tell me how horrible the Driver Responsible Program is, you're going to be preaching to the choir," Howell said. "I'm no fan of it myself."

Virtually no one is "a fan" of DRP and driver's license suspensions that often occur for minor infractions and are financially crippling hundreds of thousands of Texans. One news source put the number at 1.2 million.

In its Saturday, May 6 issue, the HCN published "State of Despair" - six stories about the problematic DPR and the statewide program's effect on people in Hood County. Hyde carried a copy of that issue of the paper into the courtroom with him.

For those of you who are unaware, the program was created by the Legislature in 2003 to help fund trauma centers. Which would be great if it wasn't also ruining the lives of those who cannot afford to pay the state's double-jeopardy ransom.

Surcharges spanning three years are part of the DRP, which includes Driving While License Invalid citations. DW-LLs are clogging our Justice of the Peace courts and municipal courts.

The surcharge system is incredibly confusing, and that's just one of its many problems. Mess up once by being a day late on a payment or forgetting to pay a reinstatement fee, and a whole new round of surcharges kicks in. Even if you can afford to pay upfront for all three years of surcharges, guess what? The state won't let you.

Maybe that's because by forcing you to pay every year for three years, it increases the likelihood that you'll make a mistake, resulting in another round of surcharges that will put even more money into the trauma fund as well as the state's General Fund.

No way you can afford it and still pay for your cancer medications?

Gee, that's too bad. Can't pay your surcharges and feed your kids, too?

Tough break, but maybe social programs paid for by taxpayers can help.

A DESPISED SYSTEM

Virtually everyone who has

LOOK AT IT THIS WAY

Kathy Cruz
Staff Writer

to deal with the DRP hates it, and not just people who commit the initial infractions.

Judges hate it. County attorneys hate it. Lawyers who are every bit as confused by the system as their clients hate it.

That's pretty much a clue, legislators, that the program you created is a complete and total mess and you are inflicting hardship upon the very people you were elected to serve.

Thanks to a compassionate Justice of the Peace, Collier walked out of the courtroom Wednesday with her driver's license intact.

This was especially good since school was to let out soon and she had no idea how she was going to pick up her children otherwise.

Her 11-year-old son, by the way, has spina bifida and is in a wheelchair. Howell imposed a probationary period of three months on Collier, which means that, as long as she has no traffic violations over the next three months, she'll be in the clear.

He tried to make the probationary period just one month, but Rachel West from the Department of Transportation's driver's license division in Cleburne told him that the Transportation Code mandates that probation periods be three to six months.

Standing outside the courtroom after the hearing, Collier breathed a sigh of relief. She said that her plan, if her license had been suspended, was to apply for an occupational license, but that would have required her to skip a car payment in order to pay the $500 fee.

She mentioned that she has to make sure to keep $700 on hand for the June 1 closing on her Habitat for Humanity home.

COMPASSION VS LAW AND ORDER

A couple of days after the publication of "State of Despair," I was told about a group of older adults who had discussed the stories amongst themselves and debated the merits of the DRP.

About half, I was told, had compassion for those caught up in the system. The other half did not, saying that people whose driver's licenses had been suspended probably had it coming.

Howell tries to incorporate both compassion and respect for the law when he sits on the bench.

He told me Thursday that the way he handled Collier's case is the way he handles most cases that involve driver's license suspensions.

"If there's any way that they're eligible for their driver's license and I can keep them on the road, that's always my policy," Howell said.

"I go ahead and let them drive with the probation. I don't want anybody not having the ability to make a living."

Too bad our legislators don't feel the same way.

NOT READY TO PULL THE PLUG?

As I was writing this column, I emailed Ted Wood of the Harris County Public Defender's office.

He was featured in "State of Despair" because he is knowledgeable about the 16 bills pertaining to tweaking or repealing the DRP that were filed in the current legislative session, which will end in a matter of days.

Wood created a spreadsheet on the surcharge system, which was published in the magazine "Voice for the Defense" to help lawyers understand the system. It's so complicated, the magazine had to print it on two pages.

Here is what Wood wrote regarding where things stood with the bills by late Thursday morning:

"HB 2068 is still alive. The Senate Transportation Committee voted favorably on the bill at the conclusion of yesterday's hearing. The vote was 6-0. But some of the senators had questions.

"The favorable committee vote seemed to be because time is running out on the session and the committee members didn't want to just kill the bill because the questions may ultimately be answered to their satisfaction.

"The questions about the bill will be taken up on the floor. We will need to watch for when the Senate as a whole will take up the bill. There could be an interesting floor debate on this."

(HB 2068, by the way, would repeal the DRP, but the surcharges would remain. However, they would be called "fines" instead of surcharges. The State Traffic Fine of $30 that is assessed on all rules-of-the-road convictions would be increased to $60. Doesn't seem to be much good news here.)

As for other bills that pertain to the DRP or that incorporate some aspect of the program, Wood wrote:

"SB 1913 is moving along and may pass. But the provisions concerning the Driver Responsibility Program (DRP) have been stripped out of the bill. So this bill is now irrelevant to the DRP.

"SB 1187 (which deals only with the surcharge assessed for a conviction of driving without insurance) is still alive. I would say its chances of passage are good.

"Everything else is dead." And so, I would imagine, is many people's faith in our lawmakers.

'Fake news' back when?

Sometimes, a random thought crosses my mind (admittedly, it's usually a rough crossing), and there's no guarantee of safe arrival to the other side.

Such thoughts often bob up and down like a fishing line cork that's way too big, thus giving a 6-year-old fisherperson mixed signals as to whether the time has come to "land" a 4-inch perch. (Mixed signals - like fake news - can be hard to interpret.)

A puzzling thought struck me the other day. At first, it seemed to have the innocence of a lazy butterfly landing on a blossom to suck it dry.

I say this to indicate that my "train of thought" was on a random sidetrack. (My wife always counters, "Train of thought? You flatter yourself. You don't even have a caboose of thought.")...

-- The name "Johnny Appleseed" kept rattling around in my mind. Did he ever REALLY live, or should he be remembered like Santa Claus, the tooth fairy and the Easter bunny?

Thoughts of this historical figure wouldn't go away.

They reminded me of conversations with my wife that occur at least daily.

One of us names a longtime friend. Then the other responds as to whether the said friend is dead or not. And if so, did we go to the funeral?

Luckily (or, in this case, perhaps unluckily), Dr. Google is in bit-chomping mode, ready to reveal much about Johnny Appleseed.

The more I read, the more it seemed he was eccentric to the max in many ways, with the "much good" in him made even

THE IDLE AMERICAN

Don Newbury
Guest columnist

as humanitarian and a huckster. I'll leave it to you to decide.

Indeed he went about planting apple orchards, but some of them, it seems, were the result of a government program that was to his liking.

One puzzlement is that he favored wild apples that often were called "spitters" by those attempting to eat them. However, they were great for "cider stills" that dotted the countryside, albeit somewhat camouflaged when many Americans described alcohol as the devil's brew...

-- The further we are removed from his era (1774-1845), the more likely we are to glow with remembrances of "warm fuzzies" rather than "cool pricklies."

There are two Johnny Appleseed Museums, and in Fort Wayne, Indiana, stands a statue in his memory.

To my knowledge, no one is clamoring to close the museums, or threatening to drag the statue away.

He was "part preacher," and preaching was what the arborist did when he wasn't planting trees or walking to the next meadow.

He espoused a religion popularized by a theologian named Emanuel Swedenborg.

His mentor, a philosopher and scientist, had a spiritual awakening at age 56 and authored numerous theological books.

He claimed to be an authority on both heaven and hell. (Keep in mind that these men lived long before global warming, back when hell's temperature was at an all-time high.)...

-- There. I've done it again. Writing about a topic I now know more about than I need to and have brought to light far more questions than answers.

Herein are shared substantial truths, interspersed with the stuff from which myths are made.

Admittedly, I did resort to the Internet to determine Dr. Google's findings. Alas, they, too, are only partially conclusive.

I pray to have suggested neither vilification nor sanctification. You are left to reach your own conclusions.

As my wife always claims, most worthwhile conclusions are far out of my reach.

We believe, though, that Old Johnny really lived; after all, a 5-cent U.S. postage stamp was issued in his memory.

No doubt, he did considerable good along the way. And we are absolutely certain we didn't attend his funeral.

So, I depart this column whistling "Johnny Be Good."

How do you like them apples?...

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

VOUCHERS BAD FOR SCHOOLS

Once again, the State Senate has added a "voucher" amendment to this session's education funding bill.

The House has resoundingly rejected vouchers in past sessions and yet their Senate proponents raise them from the dead time and again.

Vouchers are bad for Texas and bad for Texas school children.

Among the problems with diverting dollars from the public school system come real limitations with private school oversight.

We must ensure that all children receive a fair and equitable education, but a broad 2016 Indiana University School of Education study found that many voucher programs result in schools that discriminate on the basis of religion, disability status, sexual orientation and other factors.

In addition, the study found that these programs have notoriously poor fiscal oversight. Once our local elementary, middle and high schools lose dollars to private schools, we also lose the economies of scale.

A smaller pool of money in our district directly translates into fewer school librarians, counselors, learning specialists, nurses and coaches across all our schools.

On top of that, our class sizes and the proportion of special education students increase (the private schools "cherry-pick" their students, concentrating on those most profitable to teach).

I appreciate Superintendent Largent's focus on the school funding issues, and his sharing those insights with HCN and our community.

Creating a two-tier local educational system by diverting public money from our neighborhood schools is wrong-headed.

Let's all get behind the Texas House and their efforts to improve school funding without the ill-considered voucher amendment recently added by the Senate.

COME HOME TO DEMOCRATS

Come on home to the Democratic Party.

There comes a time when change must happen for the common good.

That time is now. We must all put our Constitution and country first.

My Republican friends and Democratic friends are more alike, than different. They are fiercely loyal and patriotic.

My Republican friends are trying to stay the Trump course ... but they aren't happy. It's obvious.

So I say to them, "Come home to the party of your parents and grandparents - the party that helped America rise out of the Great Depression - the party that created Social Security and Medicare to protect our elderly."

Come home to the party that stands with the working man - the party that pushed for and passed the first minimum wage law, time-and-a-half for overtime pay and ended child labor.

We are your neighbors and your friends. We worship beside you in church. We stand proudly beside you as we recite the Pledge of Allegiance together. We cheer for your children when they play ball, just as you cheer for ours.

Google "Hood Democrats" and contact the local Democratic Party. You'll be welcomed to the next monthly meeting and enjoy a potluck dinner.

Let's work together for the betterment of our country.

Come on home.

Give your favs a virtual hug

Yesterday I Googled a local business to get their phone number.

This particular business is one of my very favorite in town. I just don't happen to have the phone number saved.

I quickly found the number, and the one star next to the listing caught me off guard.

One star?? The Google reviews had one star out of five.

I was shocked. After further investigation, I found that there was only one review.

ONE SINGLE REVIEW of one star.

This means that this business's online reputation is poor, though I know that its real-life reputation is outstanding.

I immediately logged into my Google account and gave the business a five-star, very detailed review.

But unfortunately, it's going to take more than my five-star review to bring its online reputation up again.

It really got me thinking about our knee-jerk reactions.

We are so quick to blast somebody publicly for any and everything negative.

We shout it from the rooftops and use any platform available.

But when something positive happens, we just smile to ourselves, enjoy the good feeling and move on with our lives.

We don't excitedly get online to post detailed information about our good experiences. We don't try to go on every platform possible to let everyone know about it.

Other than word-of-mouth referrals, the best thing we can do for a business that we love is to give it positive online reviews.

EVERYWHERE. Google, Yelp, Yahoo, Facebook and the list goes on.

A positive online review is like giving that business a great big hug.

I encourage you all to take a few minutes and search your favorite restaurants, doctors, shops, Realtors, music venues, car dealerships, veterinarians, body shops, dental offices, hospitals, furniture shops, and all other businesses that you love, and give them positive online reviews.

The more detailed the better, but if all you have time to do is click five stars, by all means, click those five stars.

Let's support each other every way possible. Get online and give all of your favorites a great big virtual hug.

School trustees reject proposal to outsource after-school program

BY ROGER ENLOW
EDITOR

The Granbury School Board turned down a proposal to outsource the after-school program.

School board members were concerned about increased costs to parents and lack of local control.

The company, Right at School, proposed to manage the Extended Day Program with what appears to be a fun and educational curriculum.

A company representative told the board the cost could be $5 more per week for parents.

The increase didn't set well with trustees.

"I don't want to put a burden on our parents," board member Barbara Herrington said.

The district would not be out any cost. Revenue for the company would be generated from fees paid by the parents.

The current fee is $45 per week.

School Superintendent James Largent said he learned about the company at a conference and brought the proposal to the board.

GISD Director of Curriculum and Instruction Sharon Williams, whose duties include managing the current after-school program, indicated that outsourcing would take a heavy burden off her department.

Managing the "swinging door" personnel is "incredibly time consuming," Williams said.

Outsourcing, however, has its pros and cons. The school outsources custodial services, apparently with some concern.

"I don't think that's going well," board member Micky Shearon said. The school administration did not respond to Shearon's comment.

The board took no action on the proposed contract.

School board approves several improvement projects

The Granbury School Board has approved several facility improvement projects for the summer.

They include:
- Security cameras at all elementary campuses.

- Resurfacing the transportation parking lot.

- Painting at Baccus Elementary School and GHS athletic facilities.

- Replacement of letters on the Pirate Stadium press box.

The projects total about $220,519 with the bulk coming from bond funds for the security cameras and the remaining from district reserves.

In April, board members approved other projects: carpet squares in the Granbury Middle School lecture hall; bleachers outside the Granbury Marine Corps JROTC rifle range; resurfacing and painting the Granbury High School auditorium stage floor; replacement of wash stations at Baccus; an additional conference room at GMS; additional restroom lighting at Baccus; installation of restroom partitions at Acton Elementary School; installation of sink in GHS theater arts classroom; refinishing of small gym floors at both Acton Middle School and GMS; and repair and refinish gym floor in administration building.

Previous projects approved in March were: roof and tile at Baccus; and cafeteria sound systems for GHS and GMS.

GISD'S BANK DEPOSITORY

Board members also approved a bid by PlainsCapital Bank to serve as the school district's bank depository for a two-year period beginning in September 2017.

Trustees adopted changes to local district policy to fine-tune language regarding the calculation of GPAs as well as additional clarifying wording on how to break potential ties between top students for the designation of valedictorian and salutatorian.

Essay contest winners announced

Campus winners in a fifth-grade essay contest for Memorial Day were honored at the Granbury School Board meeting Monday.

The contest was initiated three years ago by J.C. Campbell, a veteran and community leader who felt it was important for students to commemorate armed services personnel who have died in service to the nation.

The program objective stated, "Many students think Memorial Day is simply a day to 'celebrate' a day off from school.

"They don't realize it is instead a day to 'commemorate' or remember those who have lost their lives in all American Wars. The objective of this contest is to help students understand the true meaning of this day."

The winners at the campus level were:

Acton Elementary School: Tyler Rodgers.

Baccus Elementary School: Sarah Boyd.

Brawner Intermediate School: Brasen Moore.

Mambrino School: Silas Hughes.

Oak Woods School: Owen Aramburu.

The top essays were judged by the Hood County News, and the overall winner will be announced at the community Memorial Day event on the square on Monday, May 29.

MAN IN CHARGE: Granbury head coach Chad Zschiesche strides through his players during Thursday morning's practice session. This is the first spring that Zschiesche has spent with the Pirates after taking the Granbury job in the summer of 2016.

Pirate football spring practices have coaches enthused for season

BY GRANT MCGALLIARD
HOOD COUNTY NEWS

The regular season is still three months away, but the Granbury Pirates have been grinding hard getting ready for the 2017 campaign.

Granbury concluded their fourth week of spring practice with the spring football game Friday night at Pirate Stadium.

Head football coach Chad Zschiesche is in his first spring practice session with the Pirates, and he said he's been as focused on instilling the attitude he wants as he is on plays and drills.

The mentality he wants his players to have, he said, is twofold.

"Number one, hard work pays off," Zschiesche said. "Number two, compete in whatever you're doing."

"If you're going out with your buddies to the pizza buffet, you need to eat the most pizza. If you're playing checkers with your little brother, you need to beat your little brother."

Just because it's not in-season doesn't mean the practices haven't been intense, either.

"That's day in and day out, drill in and drill out," Zschiesche said. "We instilled that with some very tough stuff in the offseason, and also some fun stuff - but whether it was tough or fun, we wanted the kids competing."

Overall, Zschiesche said he's been pleased with how the spring practices have gone.

"This team has the potential to be as good as they want to be," he said.

In particular, he singled out the offensive line and the incoming sophomores as groups that have made strides in the offseason.

"Offensive line was a big concern going into spring ball, just who would step up, how would they come together," he said. "We have the potential to be really athletic up front."

"And there were question marks on some incoming sophomores, whether or not they could handle Friday night speed, Friday night mentality. There have been a few that have stepped up and have accepted that challenge."

PIRATE VS. PIRATE: Offensive and defensive linemen for the Granbury Pirates line up against each other during a practice on Thursday morning. The offensive line, head coach Chad Zschiesche said, has been a bright spot this offseason, with many players stepping up and improving.

Striper action improving on Lake Granbury

No one was absolutely sure of the impact of the 2016 floods on the Granbury and Possum Kingdom fisheries. The large flows of water through both Possum Kingdom and Granbury definitely transported fish downstream.

The dams at Possum Kingdom and Granbury open, and water flows through the dam, which sends fish caught in the flow downstream. When that occurs, the fishing is excellent below the dams, and that has been the case at both lakes.

Not all fish go through the dam, and what remains is now being assessed by anglers and Texas Parks and Wildlife Department (TPWD) folks.

A recent survey at Possum Kingdom indicated a healthy population of stripers of various sizes with a good population of smaller fish. The TPWD reported that a year's worth of striped bass was found that was not stocked.

Based on this report, the flood (water flows) allowed a natural spawn to occur there. Typically, striped bass spawns on most Texas reservoirs are not sufficient to maintain the population, and stocking is required.

HOOD OUTDOORS

Mike Acosta
Unfair Advantage Charters

Texoma is the exception. Stripers successfully spawn year to year at Texoma, and no stocking is required there for this species.

A survey has not been done on Lake Granbury as of yet, but I can tell you we also have an abundance of small stripers that were not stocked. I would say we had the same conditions as Possum Kingdom and more than likely had a successful spawn in the river above Granbury.

Some of the larger stripers are still being caught on Granbury, but in my opinion we lost a lot of these fish downstream. The future does look good for Granbury going forward on striped bass, as we have unbelievable amounts of 12-to-16 inch stripers running with the sand bass.

The black bass and crappie populations look great. I don't think the floodwater did much to alter the population of these fish.

A recent Florida largemouth bass stocking just occurred on Granbury, and the already excellent largemouth bass fishing is sure to improve beyond that.

In my opinion, white bass (sand bass) numbers are down as well, but the populations of these fish are still abundant. I have been able to catch limits of these fish consistently, and there are a lot of smaller fish in the mix.

Channel catfish populations are good based on reports received from many anglers.

Eventually, a survey will be done on Granbury, and we will get the TPWD's official stance on the fishery, but for now Granbury is doing great, as anyone who fishes Granbury knows.

HOOD COUNTY FISHING REPORT

Granbury water temperatures are approaching 80 degrees, and summer is starting to set in. Granbury black bass are good to six pounds on soft plastics (I understand blue fleck is a good color choice).

Crappie are good on small minnows near deeper structures. Striped bass to eight pounds are good on live shad or slabs.

Look for any bird action to locate active fish. Even just one bird can point you to fish.

Squaw Creek fishing continues to be good at this power plant lake. Many bank anglers frequent this lake to catch tilapia, which are great table fare.

The best bait for tilapia is a worm fished under a bobber. Black bass continue to be good on crankbaits and Texas-rigged worms.

Whitney and Possum Kingdom stripers continue to be good on live shad or downrigging jigs with curly tail trailers. Both bodies of waters have double digit fish to catch.

Limits of striped bass are common on Whitney. Great crappie limits are being caught on Lake Benbrook near deeper structures.

Brand bashing can go too far

As we all know, earlier this month the sporting world was rocked by a disturbing, urgent announcement that called into question the very fabric of athletic endeavors as a whole.

I'm speaking, of course, of the release of the Big Baller Brand shoe, the ZO2.

For those unaware, Big Baller Brand (or BBB) is the company run by Lavar Ball, a wonderfully egotistical man whose son, Lonzo, should be the second overall pick in the NBA draft. After spurning deals from major shoe companies to sponsor Lonzo, Lavar started BBB, mostly because the companies refused Lavar's insistence on a billion-dollar lifetime sponsorship that also covers other Ball boys (get it?) LiAngelo and LaMelo.

Stick with me here, I know all the names can get confusing. Lonzo is an exceedingly good point guard from UCLA, LiAngelo is an incoming Bruin and LaMelo, a sophomore in high school, might be better than all of them.

And of course, Lavar is the dotting dad and shrewd - sort

POINT FORWARD

Grant McGalliard
Staff Writer

of - business-man in charge of it all. Got it? Good.

So when Lavar and Lonzo announced the release of the ZO2s (named for Lonzo's number at UCLA), nobody raised too much of an eyebrow that a player fresh out of college already had his own shoe under his own brand.

That is, at least, until people got a look at the price tag for the ZO2, which retails at $495 and $695 if you wear a size 14 or above.

That's right. You can make your car payment for the month on a nice new truck, or you can pre-order a pair of sneakers that are guaranteed to get to your house by Black Friday.

As expected, the hot takes began flowing, and the backlash was swift. Most of this was all justified and in good fun; who in their right mind would pay $495 for a shoe?

But, as always, a subset of people made a mistake that most sports fans will make once or twice in their lives: they took Lavar Ball way, way too seriously.

Instead of chuckling at Big Baller Brand and ignoring the peculiar behavior of the father to focus on the excellent play of the son, Lonzo has become a poster child in some circles for everything wrong with the sport, a shining example of the too-much-too-soon generation. Keep in mind that Lavar has been the driving force behind most of this media circus, and that Lonzo has, by all accounts, said and done everything right with teammates at UCLA and NBA teams trying to draft him. It was Lavar, not Lonzo, that said they'd only accept a contract from the Lakers; Lavar, not Lonzo, said that Lonzo was the best player in the world.

This column isn't asking you not to make jokes at the expense of the Big Baller Brand - it's truly funny, and as someone who actually does wear a size 14 shoe and would have to shell out $200 more than the average guy, I won't be purchasing any ZO2s.

But too many people are lumping in Lonzo with Lavar, and that's not fair to the son. Lonzo will most likely get drafted by the Lakers and play well for them, and rooting against a 19-year-old kid just because his dad is fond of making outlandish claims on national television seems harsh.

Lavar has also said some offensive things in this past week, telling a female journalist to "stay in her lane," and he should be rightly criticized and called out for such boorish behavior.

But it's okay to pull for Lonzo and wish him well while simultaneously taking cuts at Lavar, especially as the dad makes more and more desperately controversial things to keep the media attention on him. It doesn't make you a hypocrite, and it doesn't make you any less of a Big Baller - whatever that may mean.

Volunteers are helping seniors

BY DEBBIE SCHNEIDER
HOOD COUNTY NEWS

The volunteers with Senior Connection are making a difference for senior citizens.

Through the Meals on Wheels program, the client needs are funneled to the Senior Connection nonprofit organization.

Volunteers then converge on the home, generally on a Saturday morning, to complete tasks too daunting for the homeowner.

They have cleaned the gutters, built ramps, removed old mattresses, trimmed tree branches and removed old fencing.

Groups or individuals can help the program with monetary donations or as volunteers.

To volunteer with the group contact Publisher Jerry Tidwell at the Hood County News, 817-573-7066.

Tax deductible donations can be made to UWHC - Senior Connection, and mailed to UWHC Senior Connection, P.O. Box 1611, Granbury, Texas 76048

The names of donors will be listed in the paper. If preferred, donations can be listed as "anonymous."

Plant sale will help circle project

The Pecan Plantation Woman's Club and the Green Thumb Garden Club worked cooperatively to produce a plant sale extraordinaire at the clubhouse recently.

Members from both groups were on hand to discuss merchandise for sale and answer questions about plants and their best placement.

The weather cooperated beautifully, and funds raised were generous.

All proceeds from the day will help make the west circle project of the garden club a reality.

Thank you to all the folks who planned, worked, purchased and made this day such a success.

TALENTED COMMUNITY

Pecan boasts a plethora of people with a myriad of talents, and the recent "Pecan's Got Talent" show proved that postulate true once gain.

The audience boasted 180 people gathered to watch the show. Eleven performers provided 15 different acts for the evening.

Many thanks go to the entertainment committee, and specifically to Eva Margle and Brenda Palmer, for their help in this production.

Also making the evening possible were Pecan staff members John Thomas and Aaron Reid, along with Keith Casterlin and Darryl Davis.

An annual talent show for Pecan began several years ago, and each year it has grown and become more popular.

The show's primary objective is to feature talented Pecan residents, and the various acts presented have included singers, dancers, musicians, magicians and storytellers of all kinds.

Young talent is also encouraged in this family oriented show and it has had performers as young as 10 years old.

Monte Lewis writes, "These shows are fun to do and this year's was one of the best yet."

Our Pecan residents are the real stars, and we applaud them for sharing their talent with us and all the preparation they do to perform in front of the best audience in Granbury!"

Look for "Pecan's Got Talent" the 2018 edition next spring.

READY TO HELP: When disabled Army veteran Charlie Thedford needed help to reconstruct his home after a fire, Hood County veterans and Home Depot employees were ready to answer the call. Veteran receives help to rebuild home after fire Disabled Army veteran Charlie Thedford, of Granbury, had talked with Hood County Veteran Services Officer Linda Mallon about some repairs needed at his home.

She knew just what to do. She forwarded his request to the Greater Granbury Veterans Association.

Working with the GGVA, Jim Trimble, of the Granbury VFW Post 7835, contacted the local Home Depot asking them to partner with the VFW in repairing the home.

Thedford's home burned over a year ago, and his insurance money was not enough to cover the entire reconstruction.

"When the money ran out he was forced to live in the unfinished home which had no insulation. Basically it was a metal box.

"The temperature during last summer was so extreme in the home, it was detrimental to Mr. Thedford's health," Trimble said.

The local Home Depot, through its Home Depot Foundation, donated $5,000 in materials. Granbury and Weatherford Home Depot store employees volunteered their time to do the repairs. Jim Elliott from the Granbury VFW assisted in this effort.

Joan Marie (Jo) Schoepf

Joan Marie (Jo) Schoepf, 81, of Granbury passed away suddenly May 9, 2017, at Rapid City Regional Hospital.

Celebration of Life: 3 p.m. Sunday, May 28, 2017, Acton United Methodist Church. In lieu of flowers a memorial fund has been established in Joan's name, 663 Glen Lake Drive, Coppell, TX 75019.

Jo was born June 22, 1935, in Bridgewater, South Dakota, and although she lived in many states she was a resident of Rapid City for 17 years and lived in Granbury for the last 20-plus years.

Jo was married to the love of her life, Loy Schoepf, who passed away in 2008. She was a fantastic mother to daughters CandE Wright and Sheryl Brazil, and favorite son, Kevin Schoepf and an even better mother-in-law (because she always took their side) to Steve Wright, Jim Brazil and Jean Schoepf. All of her grandchildren and their spouses (19) called her Grandma Jo and great-grandchildren (22) called her JoJo. They all adored her as she always had a smile and she never failed to give a word of wisdom whether you wanted it or not. She would play a "getcha" game with the little ones which always made them laugh. Her sisters, Connie Scarbrough, Lana Bartling and Donna Mae Benson considered her their best friend and her advice was taken seriously, most of the time.

Jo was best known for her ability to become friends with everyone she met. She loved life to the fullest and her energy for visiting and helping people was endless. She loved to dance, laugh and her love for God and family was admired by all. She lived what she preached, felt blessed each and every day, and always believed in God's plan for her and the family.

Jo was preceded by several other loved ones including brother Roger Bartling; brothers-in-law Harold Scarbrough and Wally Benson; sisters-in-law Carole Ann Hart and Delores Hutchinson; grandson Jason Johnson; and great-granddaughter Chloe Harp.

Jessica was beautiful, smart, funny, independent, generous, and had the biggest heart anyone was blessed to know.

She was always the first one in line to help; even those she didn't know. Her giving spirit and unconditional love allowed her to lead by example. She had an infectious laugh whose smile brightened the day of anyone around her.

Sadly we say goodbye Jessica. We will miss you everyday and are comforted knowing we will see you again in the Kingdom of God.

The Hood County Senior Center and the Hood County News need your help.

Get connected today with the Senior Connection!

DID YOU KNOW:

- 34% of the elderly need improvements to bathroom facilities – wheelchair height commodes, grab bars, etc.
- 24% have accessibility issues – ramps, repairs to steps and/or porches, removal of overgrown shrubs and/or trees.
- 54% reported their places of residence required them to walk up steps or porches.

* Per a representative of the North Central Texas Council of Governments – Committee on Aging: A national survey resulted in these statistics from respondents.

The number of older adults living with disabilities has soared over the past 10 years.

Most older households were not designed to accommodate occupants with limited mobility and other cognitive difficulties.

Your tax deductible donation can help the elderly recipients of Meals on Wheels stay in their homes longer with:

- ~ Wheelchair ramps and accessibility construction
- ~ Carbon Monoxide and smoke detectors/alarms
- ~ Bathroom safety upgrades
- ~ Brush clearing
- ~ Other safety-related issues

I would like to make a tax deductible donation to Senior Connection

Please attach your tax deductible donation to the form included, and mail to:
