ounds of rolling dice and shouts of "Bunco!" filled the American Town Hall on Tuesday night as more than 50 female residents tried their hand at becoming the official Bunco queen of Hood County.

Hosted by Bridgewater Memory Care, the Bunco for Brain Health event was created to raise money for the North Central Texas (Fort Worth) Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association.

"I was at a meeting the other day — I'm gonna get a little choked up — and they said, one out of three people (receives an Alzheimer's diagnosis) so look to your left and look to your right," said Jordan (Jory) Ruckman, marketing director for Bridgewater during the event. "Unfortunately, some days I think I'm the next one. A lot of people have been touched by that - family members, and people you know – so this is a very important cause, and I love you all for being here." Tickets to play were $20 each and there were also several silent auction items available for attendees to make bids on for purchase, with 100% of those proceeds also benefiting the Alzheimer's Association.

Jordan Craig, The Longest Day manager for the North Central Texas Alzheimer's Association, also spoke at the event, encouraging attendees to participate in The Longest Day this June.

"Basically, The Longest Day is like a DIY peer-to-peer group fundraising where you do your hobby and enjoy your hobby," she said. "It honors caregivers and people living with Alzheimer's because every day can feel like the longest day, so that's where it got its name." The Longest Day,

Life jackets, other giveaways part of Lake Granbury's Water Safety Awareness Day

From staff reports

The Brazos River Authority has announced the return of Lake Granbury's Water Safety Awareness Day, an outdoor event that will involve booths, food, and giveaways that include lifejackets for children and fishing poles.

The event will be from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday, May 6 at Rough Creek Park, 2209 S. Morgan St. (SH 144).

Sponsored by the Brazos River Authority, the annual event has grown steadily to include more guests, more life vest giveaways, and more participation by other organizations throughout the surrounding community.

Organizations are invited to participate in the event to help teach different safety topics to youth, according to Reservoir Manager Connie Tucker.

The growing list of participants for this year's Water Safety Awareness Day includes the American Red cross, Celebrity Pools, the Granbury and Pecan Plantation Volunteer Fire Departments, the Hood County Community Emergency Response Team, L.G. Marina/North Texas Kayaks, Texas EMS, Texas Search & Rescue, the YMCA, and the Upper Trinity Groundwater Conservation District with its teaching trailer.

K-Hits 95.5 FM will broadcast from the location, and Gary and Janice Turner will cook free hot dogs.

The first 300 youth to arrive will be fitted for their own free life jacket. The first 100 children interested will get a free fishing pole that they can use immediately. Experienced fishermen will be on hand to teach kids to bait and cast a line, an announcement by the BRA stated.

Two buses from Carter BloodCare will be on hand to allow people to donate blood. Although the event ends at 1 p.m., Carter BloodCare will take donations until 2 p.m.

For those unable to attend, the BRA offers these tips for choosing the right life jacket:

• Make sure it is U.S. Coast Guard approved.

• Check the manufacturer's tag for your size and weight to get started. • Make sure the life jacket is properly zipped or buckled.

• Raise your arms straight up over your head while wearing your life jacket, and grab the shoulder material, gently pulling up.

• If there is excess room above the openings and the life jacket rides up over your chin or face, it does not fit properly. A snug fit in these areas signals a properly fitting life jacket.

• If the jacket is too tight, go the next size up. Life jackets that are too small will not be able to keep your body afloat.

known as the summer solstice, takes place in June every year. It's the day of the year with the most sunlight and is dedicated to "fighting the darkness of Alzheimer's through fundraising activities," according to the Alzheimer's Association website.

The host of the Bunco for Brain Health event was Bridgewater Memory Care. Located at 900 Autumn Ridge Drive, Bridgewater is an assisted living facility that focuses on Alzheimer's and dementia care. "I was at a meeting the other day — I'm gonna get a little choked up — and they said, one out of three people (receives an Alzheimer's diagnosis) so look to your left and look to your right,. "We were the first freestanding Alzheimer's assisted living in Granbury," Ruckman said. "The building is architecturally designed with an open base system. It's secure, and safe, and (residents are) free to walk and roam around the building." According to the Alzheimer's Association, more than 6 million Americans are living with Alzheimer's and more than 11 million Americans provide unpaid care for people with Alzheimer's or other dementias. ordinated by the Texas A&M Transportation Institute, was held April 12-14 at the Moody Gardens Hotel in Galveston. A video created by TxDOT about Granbury's years-long airport expansion effort was shown at Tuesday night's regular City Council meeting. It was followed by comments from City Manager Chris Coffman commending those involved in the project, which is expected to be a major economic boon to the city. Coffman thanked the City Council for its ongoing financial support to bring the project to fruition. The panel has changed during the years since efforts to expand the airport first got underway about 17 years ago, with the council unanimously voting to move forward in 2016. The city paid half of the $32 million cost for the expansion and grant funds from TxDOT's Aviation Division paid the other half. Last November, the city commissioned the new runway, which is 5,200 feet long and 75 feet wide. It replaces the 3,600-footlong runway that was the shortest among similar airports in the western Dallas-Fort Worth air space. Because the runway was so short, it was unable to safely accommodate business jets. With the larger runway now in use, the old runway is being used as a taxiway. The city is in the process of building a new terminal building that will look similar to its new police station. The City Council has not yet decided on a use for the existing terminal building.

In his remarks at the council meeting, Coffman noted the contributions of Deputy City Manager Michael Ross and Aviation Director Pat Stewart, as well as the city's Airport Board and KSA Engineering. He indicated that engineer Joseph Garcia, who does not work exclusively for KSA, was instrumental in saving the city a considerable amount of money.

Coffman said that two dozen box hangars are scheduled to be built and 15 acres will be developed for flight maintenance facilities for jet service.

"The demand for our airport is growing faster than we anticipated in the Master Plan," Stewart said. Speaking to the Hood County News by phone Wednesday, Stewart said that he was present at the conference where the award was announced and that he attends it every year. He noted that the airport expansion project was a group effort. "It took a whole team of people for this thing to be successful," he said.

mitting, and inspections. Once the renovation project has been completed, the development team will be together in the same area.

Additional funds for carpeting and "FFE" — a few items pertaining to furniture, fixtures, and equipment — will be allocated later but were not included in the expenditures approved by the council at its regular meeting Tuesday night. Deputy City Manager Michael Ross said that the city will save money through that course of action.

City Manager Chris Coffman stated that new carpet is expected to cost between $110,000 and $130,000.

The largest chunk of money approved by the council as part of the agenda item was $509,742 to be paid to Lever Construction, LLC, the only company to bid on the project. Ross indicated that part of the reason for the city receiving only one bid may be because of school projects that some construction companies are about to begin once school lets out for summer break.

The council also approved an expenditure of up to $80,000 for the purchase and installation of new security cameras at City Hall. City Manager Chris Coffman said that the current cameras have been in place since 2005 or 2006 and are at the end of their life. Also approved was an expenditure of up to $90,000 for a new security access control system.

Coffman noted that the building is now 21 years old, "so, it's probably time" for updating.

Early voting for May 6 elections starts Monday

Early voting for the May 6 election will begin Monday. On the ballot is the Lipan School Board of Trustees and two matters pertaining to the city of Cresson: consideration of a tax reauthorization and a Municipal Utility District.

All early voting will take place in the meeting room at Annex 1, 1410 W. Pearl St. in Granbury. Polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Friday, April 24-28 and from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, May 1-2.

Cresson voters will vote on the reauthorization of the local sales and use tax at the rate of one-half percent to continue providing revenue for maintenance and repair of municipal streets. The tax expires on the fourth anniversary of the date of the election unless the imposition of the tax is reauthorized.

Voters in voting precinct 415 will also vote on Cresson Crossroads MUD #2. There are two propositions pertaining to the Municipal Utility District.

Proposition A states: "The issues of $90,425,000 Utility Bonds and the Levy of Ad Valorem Taxes Adequate to Provide for the Payment of the Utility Bonds by Cresson Crossroads Municipal Utility District No. 2 Defined Area #1."

Proposition B states: "The issuance of $113,031,250 Utility Refunding Bonds and the Levy of Ad Valorem Taxes Adequate to Provide for the Payment of the Utility Refunding Bonds by Cresson Crossroads Municipal Utility District No. 2 Defined Area #1."

FROM MY FRONT PORCH The unfortunate consequences of taking your medicine

BY SAM HOUSTON

Sam Houston is the publisher of the Hood County News. He is also an actor, author, playwright, performer and entertainment producer/promoter.

arly on, it became apparent to me that children did not come with an instruction manual. Hopefully a degree of parenting skills comes from genetics or from each person's own personal experiences. Unfortunately, a whole lot of parental knowledge comes from bad experiences, which is why when raising the second child, parents are considerably more comfortable and knowledgeable in what they need to do and what they shouldn't do.

When my son was about five years old, he was suffering from a wee bit of a cough. Nothing serious, just a little cough, which might indicate a cold coming on or some other childhood malady. After dinner and once he had his pajamas on and teeth brushed, his mother gave him a dose of Robitussin, the panacea of medicines for small children, then tucked him in bed and turned out the light.

The next morning, it was a usual workday. We had quite a pre-work routine. My wife would get the baby fed, while I showered and dressed, then I would watch the baby while she showered. When we finished, she would dress the baby and get her ready for the sitter while I would get our son dressed, out the door, and drop him at pre-school. We were a well-oiled machine.

This one morning, things were pretty much on track. When I finished dressing my boy, we got on our coats, and were headed out the door when my wife called out from the bedroom, "It would probably be a good idea to give Dustin another shot of Robitussin." Being a dutiful husband, I stopped in my tracks and proceeded to the kitchen cabinet where all the essential pharmaceuticals were kept. I opened the cabinet door, saw the familiar, tall, brown colored bottle with the white label and dark print. I was in a hurry to get to work and drop off my son, so I snatched up the bottle. With spoon in hand, I poured out a teaspoon dose, told my son to open his mouth and lean his head back, and proceeded to pour the concoction down his throat.

Almost immediately my son started to spit and sputter and claimed, "That tastes horrible, Dad!" My response sounded very much like something my father would have said to me as a child, "take your medicine and hush." Normally such a directive from me would have ended the conversation with my small boy, but in this case he strongly resisted. He kept trying to spit the remnants of the medicine out of his mouth. Grabbing a paper towel I started wiping the front of his shirt and then I got a "whiff" of something unusual. I smelled the paper towel, and it did not smell anything like Robitussin. Grabbing up the bottle I looked aged to give my precious son a full teaspoon of "tick and flea medicine!" At first my eyes did not believe what they saw. The bottle was the same size and shape as Robitussin, the label was even the same design, but the writing on the label clearly recited it contained flea and tick medicine. Why my wife had placed the bottle in the same area as the medicines I will never know. I already was beating myself up for not reading the label BEFORE I administered the dose. Clearly the fault rested entirely on my shoulders.

Quickly calling poison control, I was instructed to go to the hospital where they induced vomiting. Soon the entire emergency room smelled like flea and tick medicine. Other patients inhaling the noxious odors emanating down the hallways of the hospital must have thought they had gone to a veterinary hospital by mistake. The smell was terrible, and I could not imagine how bad it must have tasted when I poured the substance into my son's mouth.

In between the many times of throwing up, I begged my boy to forgive me and repeatedly expressed how I was to blame for his misfortune. I went so far as to promise my son that when he got to be an 18-year-old, he had my permission to hit me square on the nose, as hard as he wanted. As he listened his little eyes smiled with the thought of one day getting back at the man who had poisoned him.

After about two hours my son was discharged and there was no harm done, other than the beating I gave myself for not being more careful. After hearing my 500th apology, I can still hear him say, "Dad I know you didn't mean to poison me," and as far as he was concerned the matter was closed.

I learned an important lesson about never taking things for granted, especially when it comes to children or medicine. Fortunately, my son never held me to my promise of allowing him to strike me on my nose. As a grown man telling this story, he always likes to add, "and I never had a single tick or flea from that point forward." Well, at least he got something out of it.

Thought for the day: Everybody knows how to raise children except the people who have them!

Until next time ... I will keep ridin' the storm out!

TxDOT calls for safe driving in work zones to continue downward trend in fatalities Work zone crash fatalities decreased for the first time since 2018

Texas Department of Transportation

AUSTIN — Following a year in which fewer people were killed in work zone crashes in Texas, TxDOT is calling on all drivers to stay vigilant and help continue that downward trend. As National Work Zone Awareness Week kicks off, TxDOT's "Be Safe. Drive Smart." campaign is reminding drivers to stay alert and exercise caution when going through road construction and maintenance areas.

Traffic fatalities in the state's work zones were down 16% in 2022, decreasing for the first time since 2018. Despite that, 205 people lost their lives and another 788 were seriously injured in Texas work zones last year. The vast majority of those killed, 85%, were drivers or their passengers. "Although it's encouraging to see a reduction in the number of work zone crashes and fatalities last year, one life lost is too many,' said TxDOT Executive Director Marc Williams. "We're calling on all Texas drivers to slow down and stay alert when traveling through work zones. Doing so could save a life, including your own."

The "Be Safe. Drive Smart." campaign offers five tips for safely navigating work zones:

SLOW DOWN

Follow the posted speed limit and proactively adjust your driving to match road conditions. Excessive speed is one of the leading causes of work zone crashes.

PAY ATTENTION

Avoid distractions, keep your mind on the road and put your phone away.

WATCH OUT FOR ROAD CREWS

Roadside workers want to get home safely, too. Always follow instructions and be mindful of construction area road signs.

DON'T TAILGATE

Give yourself room to stop in a hurry, should traffic stop suddenly. Rearend collisions are the most common type of work zone crashes.

ALLOW EXTRA TIME

Road construction can slow things down. Count on it, and plan for it.

TxDOT also reminds motorists of the state's Move Over/Slow Down law that requires drivers to move over a lane or reduce their speed to 20 mph below the posted speed limit when approaching TxDOT, emergency, law enforcement, tow truck or utility vehicles stopped with flashing lights activated on the roadside.

Traffic fines double in work zones when workers are present and can cost up to $2,000. Failure to heed the Move Over/Slow Down law can also result in a fine of up to $2,000.

Roadway safety professionals are encouraged to wear orange on April 19 for National Go Orange Day to proudly show their support for work zone safety.

TxDOT's "Be Safe. Drive Smart." campaign is a key component of #EndTheStreakTX, a broader social media and word-ofmouth effort that encourages drivers to make safer choices while behind the wheel to help end the streak of daily deaths. Nov. 7, 2000, was the last deathless day on Texas roadways.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

A note on septic systems and Hood County Commissioners

Now we see that three of our County Commissioners favor homeowners maintaining their own septic systems. While this would be great if we lived in a society where all citizens acted on behalf of their community's best interests, but we know this is not the case.

In the same edition of the Hood County News, we see information about the Great Granbury Clean-up so our city can maintain its Scenic City certification. Precinct 1 Commissioner Kevin Andrews "indicated a belief that those who choose that option (septic self-maintenance) will handle their responsibility competently." Really? If people cannot pick up their trash that is readily seen think people will stay on top of soil conditions deteriorating underground they cannot see?

Then we have Steve Biggers, Republican Party Chairman, being in favor of the change. This is the man who lost a case in district court by the county for not maintaining the on-site sewage disposal system at his own home in accordance with county regulations). Such hypocrisy!

Additionally, we have Biggers sponsoring septic tank maintenance classes. Does anyone else see that as a real conflict-of-interest situation? Absolutely!

In addition, we have Precinct 2 Commissioner Nannette Samuelson saying "no rules would be loosened as part of the proposed amendment to county regulations. The only change would be as it septic work." Does she truly believe the average citizen can detect early problems as do the trained inspectors?

Finally, Precinct 4 Commissioner Dave Eagle then adds, "... people who have enough sense to take care of their own... septic system." This from the man whose proper residence location has come into question many times?

Once stricter regulations were put into place, Lake Granbury went from being "impaired" to "unimpaired." Does anyone want to see our city's lake fall into its previous condition again?

I agree with Judge Massingill - we cannot afford to take that chance.

TAYLER MOBLY Edward Jones

Financial Adviser

During your working years, you generally know how much money you're bringing in, so you can budget accordingly. But once you're retired, it's a different story. However, with some diligence, you can put together a "paycheck" that can help you meet your income needs.

Where will this paycheck come from? Social Security benefits should replace about 40% of one's pre-retirement earnings, according to the Social Security Administration, but this you retire, the lower the percentage will be replaced by Social Security. Private pensions have become much rarer in recent decades, though you might receive one if you worked for a government agency or a large company. But in any case, to fill out your retirement paycheck, you may need to draw heavily on your investment portfolio.

Your portfolio can provide you with income in these ways:

DIVIDENDS

When you were working, and you didn't have to depend on your portfolio for income to the extent you will when you're retired, you may have reinvested the dividends you received from stocks and stock-based mutual funds, increasing the number of shares you own in these investments. And that was a good move, because increased share ownership is a great way to help build wealth. But once you're retired, you may need to start accepting the dividends to boost your cash flow.

INTEREST PAYMENTS

The interest payments from bonds and other fixedincome investments, such as certificates of deposit (CDs), can also add to your retirement income. In the years immediately preceding their retirement, some investors increase the presence of these interest-paying investments in their portfolio. (But even during retirement, you'll need some growth potential in your investments to help keep you ahead of inflation.)

PROCEEDS FROM SELLING INVESTMENTS

While you will likely need to begin selling investments once you're retired, you'll need to be careful not to liquidate your portfolio too quickly. How much can you sell each year? The answer depends on several factors — your age, the size of your portfolio, the amount of income you receive from other sources, your spouse's income, your retirement lifestyle, and so on. A financial professional can help you determine the amount and type of investment sales that are appropriate for your needs while considering the needs of your portfolio over your lifetime.

When tapping into your investments as part of your retirement paycheck, you'll also want to pay special attention to the amount of cash in your portfolio. It's a good idea to have enough cash available to cover a year's worth of your living expenses, even after accounting for other sources of income, such as Social Security or pensions. In addition, you may want to set aside sufficient cash for emergencies. Not only will these cash cushions help you with the cost of living and unexpected costs, but they might also enable you to avoid digging deeper into your long-term investments than you might like.

You may be retired for a long time — so take the steps necessary to build a consistent retirement paycheck.

Cresson Mayor Teena Putteet Conway, a native of Cresson, attended school for two years in the historic Cresson school. She is a Granbury High School graduate, and earned a BBA from Baylor University. After marrying, then raising her family in the Metroplex, she returned to Cresson after 40 years.

had this phrase shared with me this week and it made me stop and think. The person that shared it said her mother always said, "Kerri, be a 'good' finder." From time to time it would come up whenever the daughter would be going down a negative trail.

With all that is going on in the world today, there are plenty of opportunities to hear, read, and speak the negative things. Whether it is in the political arena or our own GISD School Board meetings, or the Hood County Commissioner's meetings, there is almost always a cloak of negativity over them.

It is impossible to expect a perfect eutopia type of existence, but I do think that a gentle reminder from time to time is effective. It reminds me of the 'WWJD' bracelets that were so popular 20 years ago. Just a gentle reminder to think before you speak. Think before you make a post on Facebook. My mom was correct when she would tell us that there are always two sides to every story.

With technology and our cell phones, it is so easy to hop on social media and just rip something or someone to pieces. I used to tell my teams in my past careers that I was most certainly open to being made aware of issues or problems. However, it was a requirement to bring at least three suggested solutions or remedies to the discussion as well. I realize that they were closer to the issue and probably had better solutions to suggest.

So, I am going to start reminding myself of the need to be a "good" finder! Positivity goes a long way in our wonderful community. For example, whenever I think of Visit Granbury's Tammy Dooley it makes me smile with positivity. The same is true for the Chamber of Commerce's Brian Bondy. This guy radiates with good vibes. And speaking of vibes, do not leave out Eric Wilkens at Vybe Realty. He lives and breathes positive vibes. I could go on and on, but you get what I'm trying to share here.

CLEAN-UP DAY

Moving on to my focus most of the time around trash! Cresson will hold its twice annual Cresson Clean-Up for our trash customers on Saturday, April 22, with a backup rain date of April Beyond providing clinical care, the hospital is a cornerstone of our community and a major contributor to the economic health of our community as a major employer and tax-payer through our resources to expand and enhance the medical services available close to home. The overall impact is significant and totaled more than $168.2 million in 2022.

Care was provided at more than 285,700 patient encounters, including more than 21,800 emergency department visits, more than 3,300 inpatient admissions and more than 7,100 surgeries. More than 253,000 patients received care across Lakeside Physician clinics, including our cardiac, physical, occupational, and speech therapy centers as well as our diagnostic imaging centers. Joy was delivered to local families with the birth of more than 575 babies.

"Our commitment to the communities we serve and in everything we do is evident across all of our facilities," said Curt M. Junkins, chief executive officer for Lake Granbury Medical Center.

well as continued accreditation by the Metabolic and Bariatric Accreditation and Quality Improvement Program. Additionally, the orthopedic surgery center's Advanced Knee and Hip Replacement Certification from the Joint Commission is another level of commitment to our patients and their care.

Access will be enhanced in late 2023 with the completed construction of our 6,000-square-foot medical clinic and Express Care facility in Stephenville, as well as the future construction of our $15 million freestanding emergency department to be located at the corner of Highway 377 and Fall Creek Highway, slated to open in 2024. In 2022, capital improvements totaling more than $3.6 million were made to enhance patient monitoring equipment and technologies throughout our hospital.

Lake Granbury Medical Center also gives back to our communities by providing more than $71.3 million in charity and uncompensated care for the community's most vulnerable. And the payment of $8.9 million in property, sales, and GRT taxes helps support civic resources and services.

Support for local charitable and community organizations such as United Way of Hood County, Mission Granbury and Ruth's Place includes financial donations and outreach. From food drives and charitable fundraising events to free school physicals for hundreds of students across our district, our staff members are deeply engrained and committed to the well-being of the communities we live in and serve.

"I am constantly amazed by the generosity of our healthcare team," Junkins stated. "Their commitment to community wellbeing through their generosity reflects how Lake Granbury Medical Center and Lakeside Physicians are local cornerstones."

The hospital's payroll of more than $74.9 million ripples across the local economy as employees buy goods and services. Last year, the hospital added enhanced benefits to help team members achieve their personal and professional goals, including assistance with student loan repayments, reimbursement of licensure and certification expenses, as well as tuition reimbursement.

Granbury named Best Destination for Foodies

BY ASHLEY INGE Staff Writer

Granbury is known locally for having some of the most delicious food and unique restaurants that you can't get anywhere else.

But now, this small town has proof of its reputation on a statewide level.

BEST DESTINATION FOR FOODIES

Granbury has recently been awarded Best Destination for Foodies – People's Choice Award 2023 by the Texas Travel Awards.

Competing with other foodfavorite cities like Austin, Fredericksburg, and San Antonio, Granbury still came out on top with this honor.

"We are in such good company with other fantastic People's Choice Winners: Best Destination for Arts & Culture - Dallas; Best Destination for Families -Grapevine; Best Destination for Outdoor Adventures - Mineral Wells, and now Granbury - Best Destination for Foodies," said Tammy Dooley, director of Visit Granbury. "The success of the Foodie Trail promotion has been great for Granbury's culinary tourism. Of course, the real stars are our fabulous restaurants, venues, and attractions offering great food and drinks."

GRANBURY FOODIE TRAIL

The Granbury Foodie Trail is a promotion that was first launched in 2018 featuring "the best dining adventures in Granbury," where guests could sample food from some of the restaurants featured on the trail, according to a 2018 article in the Hood County News.

The promotion was revamped in 2020, when the top 12 dishes from favorite local restaurants were chosen from nearly 500 votes. During this promotion, customers could keep track of the restaurants they visited via the "I Love Granbury" phone app, or by picking up a punch card at participating restaurants. Residents who visited all 12 restaurants could earn a Foodie Trail T-shirt and would be entered into a drawing for a $200 gift certificate.

ne simple class assignment has now changed the life of a Granbury High School senior forever. When Victoria Rodriguez received the assignment from her AVID instructor Jason Shahan to fill out a Dell scholarship application, she didn't think much of it at the time.

"I had very low expectations for this one," she said, with a chuckle. "I knew it was a big scholarship, so I was like, 'Oh, well, I guess I'll try it out, but I probably won't get it. I'll just do it for the assignment."

Rodriguez and 36 of her classmates in the AVID senior class applied for the scholarship, with Rodriguez receiving the news that she was selected as a semifinalist in December.

But it wasn't until spring break when she found out that she was named a Dell Scholar by the Michael & Susan Dell Foundation.

"I woke up, checked my phone, and was like 'Oh, there's an email, whatever,'" she said. "I was barely waking up. I thought it was a scam at first because there were I was like, 'Oh, OK, I don't know if I believe this,' and so I had to scroll. I just saw 'congratulations,' and I was like, 'What? I'm a little confused.' I was in shock. I didn't know what to do, and I didn't tell anybody until (Shahan) told the class."

According to the corporation, Dell Scholars are highly motivated students who demonstrate the drive to succeed despite personal obstacles and candidates with a unique set of grit, potential, and ambition in their quest for a college education.

Rodriguez is one of the 500 scholarship recipients nationwide — and the first Granbury High School senior to receive one of the toughest and most prestigious na-

"It's so rare," Shahan said. "They give 500 of them out per year throughout the entire United States, so you're talking thousands and thousands of applicants and there's 500 winners. So, I started researching to make sure I knew exactly what it entailed and what (Rodriguez) would receive from it. Then I started emailing (and asking) all the staff, 'Does anybody know of any Dell scholarship recipients from Granbury High School?' They all said 'No,' and some teachers have been here for 25-30 years. It started in 2004, so, I (told Rodriguez), 'Well, if we go back 20 years, and there's not one, then that means you gotta be the first."

Reminisce during Cresson Homecoming April 29

BY ASHLEY INGE

Staff Writer

Those who attended Cresson School in its prime will soon have the chance to reminisce about the good old days during the annual Cresson Homecoming from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. on Saturday, April 29.

Held at the Historic Cresson School, 9304 Pittsburg St., (directly behind Sonic Drive-In), the Cresson Homecoming provides an opportunity for alumni of Cresson School to share memories and renew old friendships with those who attended the school decades ago. Rick Fidler, a Cresson native, attended the school in the late 1950s. He said he remembers the "huge playground," and how indoor plumbing was installed when he was in the sixth grade.

"We had a boys' outhouse down in one corner of the property and the girls' was on the back fence. It was fairly well separated by several yards," he said, in a previous interview with the Hood County News.

A vivid memory he recalled was seeing David Andrews — the husband of well-known former Granbury High School basketball coach Leta Andrews — fly a plane over the school.

"Leta Andrews, her mother-inlaw, and father-in-law were teaching here when I went to school here," Fidler said, in a previous interview with the Hood County News. "Mrs. Andrews taught first, second, and third grade, while Mr. Andrews taught fourth, fifth, and sixth grade. One time Mrs. Andrews' son, David, who is Leta Mae's husband, was going to be in a plane and said, 'I'll pass over at a certain time.' We all went out, and when we saw him way in the distance, he gave us the wave — that was something. They were just great people, the Andrews were."

Cresson School was built in 1931 and was no longer used as a school after 1968. Those who did attend are now in their 70s and 80s.

"It was a fun time growing up," Fidler said, who is now 75. "Kids don't have the opportunities that we had. We weren't confined to the house. We weren't afraid to go outside. We weren't afraid to lock our doors. You knew to come home at lunch and come home at supper. Folks didn't know where you were, or what you were doing, except you were outside having

The scholarship program provides a $20,000 scholarship with an additional $500 each year to help cover the cost of textbooks and supplies. In addition, Rodriguez will be connected to a network of resources provided by the Dell Corporation, including tutoring, financial, and emotional support services. She will also receive a new Dell laptop, with a five-year warranty.

Shahan said Rodriguez will also get to connect with a network of Dell scholarship recipients.

ABOUT AVID

Since she was in the seventh grade, Rodriguez has been a member of AVID (Advancement Via Individual Determination) a program that has been a major contributor to her esteemed scholarship.

AVID was first created by a California teacher at Clairemont High School in San Diego named Mary Catherine Swanson in 1980. According to avid, org, the teachers there had low expectations for students bussed in from disadvantaged areas of San Diego, which caused a belief that those students could not succeed. However, Swanson believed that if students were willing to work hard, she could teach them the skills needed to be college-ready.

AVID's mission is to close the opportunity gap by preparing all students for college and career readiness and success in a global society.

Today, AVID is implemented in more than 7,000 schools in 47 states across the U.S., plus schools in Department of Defense Education, Canada, and Australia. AVID impacts more than 2 million students in grades K-12 and 62 postsecondary institutions.

The AVID program was implemented in GHS in 2017 to provide students with the knowledge and skills they will need to excel in college.

"We use it as an elective class, but now it's grown so much that it

> JASON SHAHAN AVID instructor

goes beyond that," Shahan said. "A lot of the teaching strategies that AVID has established go outside of that classroom, and they spread throughout the high school.'

Rodriguez was greatly inspired to join AVID after talking with the Granbury Middle School AVID teacher, Donna Dumas, adding that her favorite part about the class was her classmates.

"I got really lucky with every single class," Rodriguez said. "I was very energetic, and so I would talk to everybody, and they would talk to me, so they made it more fun and enjoyable to talk more about college — especially in middle school."

Unlike other elective courses. however, students must apply before being accepted into the AVID program.

"We're looking for first-generation students who don't have any college support or experience from home," Shahan explained. "A lot of times they are low socioeconomic, or they could come from a household that might be split, where the parents are divorced. They have to have decent to good grades, and they need to be motivated."

Shahan has been Rodriguez's AVID teacher for the past four years, and definitely has a soft spot for the first AVID graduating class.

"When you teach the same kids for four years straight, they kind of become like your own children," he said. "It's like a family atmosphere in that class, and that's the connectivity that so many other students don't get at school where they may have just two or three select friends, but they're not in the same class with them, and they're not working towards the same goals of going to college."

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

Rodriguez said she learned a lot in the AVID program over the years, like how to take Cornell notes and how to stay organized.

"We did a lot of college researching," she said. "Without AVID, I don't think I would have been even looking into colleges right now.'

Since joining AVID in the seventh grade, students toured as many as eight college campuses and even visited one college overnight.

"We did two per year, and they made it a goal themselves," Shahan said. "A lot of things that we do in AVID are based on goals. We do goal setting all the time, and their freshman year, one of them just mentioned in class one day about how cool it would be for us to go on an overnight field trip. I said, 'We can do it, but I'm not taking any freshmen or sophomores on an overnight field trip, so if y'all want to make it a goal to raise enough money to go by the time you're seniors and you want to do that, you can,' and so they did. They made it a goal. They had to meet a minimum expectation of how much money each one would need to raise by the time they were seniors, and they earned it. We drove all the way to Arkansas, and we stayed the night. On the way back, we stopped at Oklahoma State (University), so we got to see two major colleges in one trip.'

AVID students also volunteer for several community service projects, like Adopt a Highway, and Life Skills Prom.

"They all have a role of responsibility to play," Shahan said, on the Life Skills Prom. "They plan it, they coordinate it, they execute it, and we bring the prom to school during the day. The feeling that they get from that is the most important thing. It's doing something selfless for somebody else without expecting anything in return, and despite all the work they put into it, they love it."

COLLEGE PLANS

Rodriguez has applied and been accepted at University of Mary Hardin-Baylor, Stephen F. Austin State University, Tarleton State University, Houston Christian University, Texas Tech University, Texas Woman's University, and Texas State University.

Although she has not yet decided where she will attend this fall, she is currently leaning toward becoming a Texan at Tarleton State University.

Shahan added that a requirement of his AVID students is to apply to at least four colleges. "There's 36 of them who are seniors, and from those 36, they have over 125 college acceptances, so that averages out to about five per student," he said. "And with this next board meeting, we'll be revealing how much they qualified for in scholarships. Between 36 of them, they've qualified for over $1.9 million in scholarships. There's still two or three of them who haven't made their decision, but out of the ones who have, we expect to accept $375,000 to $380,000 (of scholarships) that they will actually use so they're doing some really, really big things."

EXTRACURRICULARS

In addition to her involvement in the AVID program, Rodriguez is also an active member of the Junior Optimist Club and Key Club. She recently earned an industry-based certificate in Floral Design through the Granbury High School CTE program.

She also works with elementary school students as a parttime aide in the extended school day (ESD) program at the STEAM Academy at Mambrino — a program that she also participated in when she was in elementary school.

MOTIVATION AND INSPIRATION

Shahan added that he is super proud of Rodriguez not only for working hard, but also for overcoming adversity.

Rodriguez said she would like to thank her brothers — Ervey Valdez, Jesse Valdez, and Daniel Valdez — for never giving up on her.

"They raised me, so I felt like I had a lot of high expectations from them, and they motivated me to keep doing this," she said. "Without their support, I probably wouldn't be here at all.'

Rodriguez is the daughter of Roberto Rodriguez and the late Amelia Saldana.

"I'm doing this because of (my brothers) and because of (my mom)," she added. "I'm so proud of myself, honestly."

Hood County ACTIVITIES YOUR TICKET TO THINGS TO DO

BY MICHAEL ACOSTA

As a licensed professional fishing guide, Michael Acosta shows you how to find looking for an easy meal. Cranes and other birds may point you to active fish as well throughout the year. With the recent new moon, the threadfin and gizzard shad are spawning in the shallows on most every reservoir and you can be sure there are predators that are not far behind. If you are a hybrid or striper angler, nothing is better than a tank full of large (4 to 5 inch) threadfin shad, commonly called vellowtails. I would also keep the bigger gizzard shad this time of the year as well. Many of the sand bass are done with the spawn and are returning to the main reservoir on most North Texas lakes and they will school up on baitfish on the surface. Most any shad imitation lure will put these fish in the boat. Another good thing about schooling fish is that the lazy bigger fish looking for an easy meal will be drawn in due to the noise. If you work below the feeding smaller fish, you will more than likely hook them. A Granbury resident of more than 35 years, he has been fishing all of his life, and has been a licensed guide since 1998.

ater temperatures have been a little slow to rebound this year due to the extended cool weather days. Lake temperatures are rising into the 60s and 70s and the fish are near their most active time of the year. If you can get on them when they are feeding right now, look out!

Luckily this time of the year, shallow water action is possible most any day. Many fish will push baitfish in the shallows. This is also when many of the baitfish species are spawning. So where would you be if you were a predator? Most likely you will be shallow.

Though I advertise how I call fish in by thrashing the water most of the year, this is one time that when you're fishing real shallow you want to be sure to not spook the fish. Keep the big motor off and approach slowly. Long casts may be in order, or if you use live bait, it may be good to float your bait into the shallows under a float or balloon.

Bird action can point you to active fish. Some of our wintering birds are still around and they are always up with bigger sand bass, hybrids and/or striped bass depending on which reservoir you fish. In fact, you never quite know what other predators are feeding in the same area. Blacks, drum, buffalo, catfish or gar may be in the same area ready to take your presentation. Shallow water presentations include soft plastics, swim baits, crank baits (plugs and poppers) and spinner type baits. A little deeper and you can work slabs and spoons. The slabs and spoons are excellent choices on structure this time of the year.

So if you can get away this time of the year, the top water action is there to be taken. See you on the water.

FISHING REPORT

Lake Granbury water temperatures are in the 60s and some 70s in the back of creeks. A cool down will occur by the time this article runs, which may cool the lake some. Striped bass action is tremendous mid-lake on large shad. Sand bass action is also good near channel ledges near DeCordova and Indian Harbor. Largemouth bass are good on soft plastics and crankbaits in the backs of most creeks. Crappie catches continue to be good in DeCordova and near The Shores under docks. Large blue and yellow catfish continue to be taken near Hunter Park and near the DeCordova subdivision.

OTHER AREAS

On other reservoirs, Lake Whitney continues to produce limits of striped bass on Alabama rigs and live bait from The Bluffs to Cedar Creek. Possum Kingdom Lake striped bass are also great mid-lake near Broadway to past South D&D.

BOOK REVIEW Appealing characters help make 'Silver Alert' a wonderful, quick-read novel ou can have whatever you want. So g'wan: buy a new car - heck, buy three of them. Have a vacation home on both coasts and two overseas. Get a new wardrobe for every day of the week, rings for your fingers and toes, go ahead, go wild. You can have whatever you want - except, in the new book "Silver Alert" by Lee Smith, you can't have your life back.

BY TERRI SCHLICHENMEYER

When Herb Atlas opened the door of his Key West villa, he couldn't believe his eyes. His step-daughter had hired a teenager - a kid, actually - to take care of his wife, Susan.

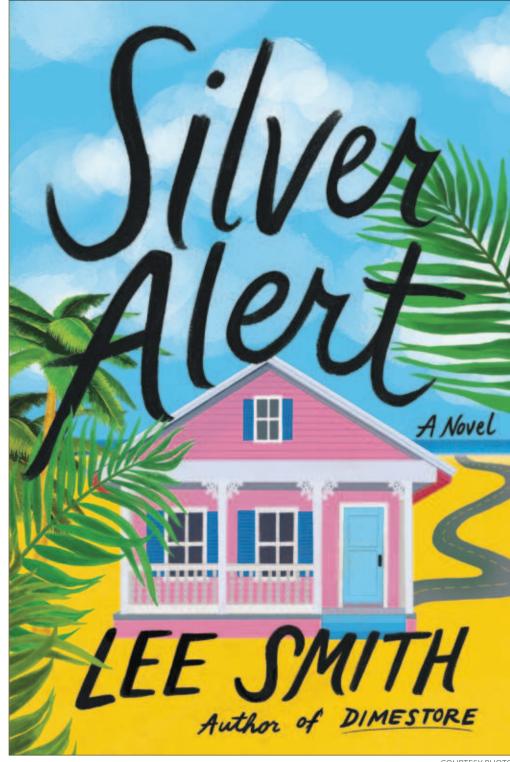

She'd been a real looker not so long ago, his Susan was. Charming and funny, everybody loved her. Then early-onset Alzheimer's made Susan an unrecognizable, wild-haired woman that Herb barely knew.

But here this kid who said her name was Renee was doing Susan's nails and she had Susan calm, quiet, and not rat-a-tat-tatting. That hadn't happened in a long time. Herb liked this girl right off; when she dropped her wallet and he saw an ID card with another name on it, he didn't even care that she was probably lying.

He tipped her a couple of $100 bills and he couldn't wait to hire her again.

Two hundred bucks! Dee Dee practically skipped away from Mr. Atlas that afternoon, thinking about the things she could buy. She decided not to go back to the pink trailer just yet; she didn't want to run into Tony because she was done with that life. Dee Dee liked the new work she'd been chosen to do, and she liked Susan, too

Herb should've known an intervention when he saw one; even his nephew, Ricky, was there. His extended family didn't get together for the fun of it, after all. Then again, an 83-year-old man doesn't get scary-sick every day, either, nor does he willingly give up everything he knows and has worked hard for, before taking one last grasp at life... Let's be honest: the old elderly-person-and-caregiverflee-in-a-classic-car plot is suddenly everywhere, overused, almost overdone. Set it aside, though, if you can, and "Silver Alert" is a wonderful little novel. What helps is that author Lee Smith's two main characters are very appealing. Herb is a foul-mouthed, onceproud man who hates the fact that he's aged, and he rails against it. Dee Dee is an under-educated backwoods girl who longs to fulfill her own promise and overcome her awful past. Their separate, but entwining, stories are the kinds you can't wait to return to while you're spending time with the rest who make this novel truly fun: among others, there's an insufferably uppity doctor and his wife, a no-nonsense lesbian couple, a careerwoman daughter, an absent son, poor Susan, and Ricky, a cool-headed voice of reason who'll make readers wish they knew someone like him. If you're up for a fast read with a great story-line and somewhat of a surprise ending, ignore the trope and reach for "Silver Alert." You can get it whenever you want.

"It was a fun time growing up. Kids don't have the opportunities that we had. We weren't confined to the house. We weren't afraid to go outside. We weren't afraid to lock our doors. You knew to come home at lunch and come home at supper. Folks didn't know where you were, or what you were doing, except you were outside havingfun. fun. We didn't worry about anything growing up, to be honest with you."

The Historic Cresson School is now used as a community center and houses a museum collection of Cresson School, community, county, and Texas memorabilia. The facility is available to rent for events such as meetings, reunions, and receptions. Rentals may be arranged through the Facebook page.

Although the school is no longer functioning in the way that they remember, the Cresson Homecoming is still a way for alumni to get together and connect like old times.

"This is just a chance for former students — or even some of the people that moved here that knew some of us but didn't go to school here — to visit and have a meal," Fidler said. "The older you get, the more you want to see some of these people again. I just enjoy reminiscing about the old building, the things we used to do, growing up here in Cresson and of course, the school. Besides the churches, the school was the main activity in this town."

Anyone wishing to attend the Cresson Homecoming may RSVP on the school's Facebook page, Historic Cresson School. Attendees should bring a side dish or a dessert. Meat will be provided.

"There's not many Cresson natives left anymore," Fidler added. "You can probably count them on your toes and your fingers how many families that are still here that were here back in the 50s and 60s. It's all changed — I'm just glad I'm still around."

PECAN PLANTATION BITS Pecan Plantation Art Guild prominent, popular in our community

BY DIANE LONG

A Mississippi native who has been a Texas transplant for 28 years, Diane Long is a wife, mother and English teacher who has written Pecan Plantation Bits for 15 years cumulatively. She spends her time gathering neighborhood news and teaching students how to avoid passive voice.

he Pecan Plantation Art Guild is a prominent bunch in our community, offering both art instruction and workshops as well as art displays and sales of members' work.

The group met collectively last week when Sarah Clawson demonstrated her resin art. Attendees brought paintings for artist of the month accolades as well as for the PAC display wall. Members also secured spots for the upcoming July art show.

Congratulations to Barbara Brown and Linda Parks for being named artists of the month. Folks may view their work on the Brazos Room wall of the Pecan clubhouse, in addition to seeing Carl Stidston's pieces in "Art on the Wall" adjacent to the clubhouse ballroom.

PPAG artists displayed work on tables at a Pecan Plantation Woman's Club gathering earlier this year when many artists also enjoyed attending the meeting and luncheon.

Finally, the guild is hosting a stained-glass workshop on Tuesday, May 9 from 1 to 4 p.m. in the EMS Auxiliary meeting room. Instructor Kerian Massey will lead participants in making a colorful hanging stained-glass feather. All supplies are provided with the $75 registration fee, which is payable upon arrival at the event.

BREAKFAST CLUB

Pecan's Breakfast Club will gather again at the clubhouse on Wednesday, April 26 with a breakfast buffet available at 8:30 a.m. and a program beginning at 9. Reservations are due by noon on Tuesday, April 25: Call 817-573-2641.

Attendees will hear from Hood County Emergency Management Coordinator Margaret Campbell, who coordinates with county, city, and local shareholders to ensure our area is prepared to respond to, and recover from, all natural and manmade emergencies.

GOLF NEWS

With more daylight happening now, longer golf playing times are available, and thus the Thursday Couples Scramble has returned. Sign up on ForeTees or in the golf pro shop: 817-573-2645.

In addition, the LGA's Spring Ringer will happen April 24-25, and the Guys and Dolls Tournament is on the calendar for May 5-7. Registration for both is happening now.

Finally, congratulations to Stephanie Holmes for a holein-one on Hole 11 on March 25.
