City bids farewell to Burwell as Overdier assumes spot on council

BY ASHLEY TERRY Staff Writer

Members of the Granbury City Council bid farewell to Mayor Pro Tem Trish Burwell as newly-elected council member Gary "Skip" Overdier was officially sworn in during the regular meeting Dec. 19. "This has been an incredible journey for me," Burwell said during the meeting. "I've been in office for six years now. Greg (Corrigan) and I ran together in 2017, and then we both went unopposed in the next election cycle. I have forged some amazing friendships and long-term bonds, and I really feel like we have — as a council member who's been up here — figured out a way to work together to benefit the city. I've appreciated all of you and the folks that I have worked with before, but thank you, Granbury, for trusting me to be in this position for six years."

Burwell will assume a new role as executive director for the Hood County Senior Center, replacing Jeannette Scott, who will retire in January.

"I will miss you. I'm not

Granbury City Council elected Steven Vale, Place 5 council member, to the office of mayor pro tem during a regularly scheduled meeting Dec. 19, following former Mayor Pro Tem Trish Burwell's decision not to run for re-election on the council.

During the meeting, Place 3 Council Member Bruce Wadley nominated Vale as mayor pro tem. He explained that although Greg Corrigan has been on the council for six years, Eddie Rodriguez for four, and Vale only two, Vale's three years on the Planning and Zoning Commission speaks volumes to his experience.

"He certainly understands the job," Wadley said. "But the main reason (for my nomination) is he's the most available of all of us. All of us work. We all have jobs, but Steven goes to everything. He's at Rise & Grind every week. He's on other boards. We all are involved in this community, or we wouldn't be up here, but I think he's more involved than any of us and I appreciate his service to the city of Granbury, so he's my nomination."

With no other nominations forthcoming, Mayor Jim Jarratt put Vale's nomination to a vote, with all members voting "aye."

"All in favor of naming Mr. Steven Vale as our mayor pro-tem, say 'aye'. All opposed say 'nay," Jarratt said. "Mr. Vale did not say 'nay,' so I think we're good."

Jarratt congratulated Vale, Burwell and newly-elected council member Gary "Skip" Overdier for their new positions.

"I will say the young lady sitting back here in red, she did a fantastic job as mayor pro tem," Jarratt added, referring to Burwell. "If I was not available, she was the mayor and if I was not going to be here, I knew it was going to be handled great, so thank you, Trish. Thank you again. We're going to be saying that a lot."

CHAMBER NEWS

Celebrating the spirit of Granbury

Wishing a joyful holiday season and gratitude for community support

Chamber Message

We wish Granbury and its surrounding areas a joyful holiday season! The Granbury Chamber of Commerce expresses gratitude for its members and the community's steadfast support in 2023. Thanks to dedicated members, businesses and volunteers, this year has been marked by achievements and growth.

Chamber events, like the monthly "Coffee & Connections" networking breakfast, have been key to fostering connections and promoting economic vitality. From empowering Women in Business to inspiring Young Professionals and Rising Leaders, chamber initiatives have contributed to personal and professional development.

Ribbon cuttings and signature events, such as the Annual Golf Tournament and the Hometown 4th of July Celebration, highlight the resilience and innovation of local businesses, enhancing Granbury's overall prosperity.

As we bid farewell to 2023, we eagerly anticipate the possibilities ahead. The Granbury Chamber of Commerce values the support of its members and the broader business community, and we look forward to continued collaboration in the coming year... including the 50th Anniversary of Granbury's Hometown 4th of July Celebration.

We wish everyone a joyous holiday season and a prosperous New Year! Together, let's build a thriving community we can all be proud to call home. Happy Holidays!

FROM MY FRONT PORCH It ain't over until it is over

BY SAM HOUSTON

Sam Houston is the publisher of the Hood County News. He is also an actor, author, playwright, performer and entertainment producer/promoter.

t was a particularly frustrating afternoon this past Sunday. As a loyal Cowboys fan, I dedicated myself to spending three hours watching the Cowboys play Buffalo. Careful efforts were undertaken to complete all my work tasks prior to game time so my mind could focus on the game. Food was purchased and prepared, beverages were chilled and I dressed in my favorite Cowboys jersey. My heart was full of anticipation of watching a close and exciting game with the hope the Cowboys would be victorious. My Sunday was going to be great! Unfortunately, when the game started, things went downhill very quickly. Quicker than I could build a platter of nachos, the game was out of hand. We stunk!

Watching the game was painful, but this is the NFL. The league is built on parity and as the old saying goes, "on any given Sunday any team can beat another." Sure, the Cowboys were slightly favored, but the game was on the road, against a very good team who had been playing better the past few weeks and now desperately needed the win to have a chance to make the playoffs. The Cowboys, on the other hand, have been playing terrific and had won five games in a row including a complete rout of their rival and leagueleading Philadelphia Eagles. With a loss by the Atlanta Falcons earlier in the day, the Cowboys learned before their game started a playoff berth was locked in. For a month, everything had been going great for the Cowboys. Unfortunately, the kickoff of Sunday's game was the beginning of the Cowboys laying an egg.

Let me remind you such a loss like the Cowboys suffered is not unusual. San Francisco, who many believe is the best team in the NFL, lost three games in a row earlier in the season. The returning Super Bowl Champs, the KC Chiefs, have a worse record for the season than Dallas, and their star quarterback Patrick Mahomes has thrown four interceptions in the last three games. This is NFL football. Ups and downs are to be expected and accepted. It is how the league was built and what keeps people interested in the games.

Despite the fantastic season being played by the Cowboys quarterback, Dak Prescott, and a highly-rated defense, after Sunday's game I saw some fans take to social media bashing the team and their quarterback. They ranted, they criticized and they cursed. Instead of having one of the best season records in the NFL, the loss to Buffalo clearly means the Cowboys are "losers," incompetent and "never going to win anything." Not sure that makes any sense.

A few months ago, after a short losing streak, some Texas Rangers fans began bashing their team, saying they would probably not make the playoffs and were clearly an inferior team. At that time, I wrote a column which expressed that baseball has a long season with lots of ups and downs and people needed to have faith the team would come together at the right time. As fate would have it, the Rangers not only turned it around, but they turned it around so much they played themselves into a World Championship. I am not saying the Cowboys will win the Super Bowl, but they are a pretty darn good team. Arguably a top four or five team in the league. They will be going to the playoffs, so let's just wait and see how they do when the games are played before we declare them dead as a can of tuna. There is a lot of football to be played, and no championship is ever won before all the games are played.

I had some folks tell me when I wrote the column about the Rangers I was a cockeyed optimist. Maybe so, but as it turned out, my patience was well-rewarded. I am willing to give the Cowboys the same benefit

Update on Granbury Middle School candy investigation

Staff Reports

According to a statement from the Granbury Police Department, on Dec. 12, Granbury Police Department officers were dispatched to Granbury Middle School for a report of multiple students possibly ingesting some type of drug. The initial information received indicated all the students involved had eaten some candy from the same package prior to becoming symptomatic, and that the candy had been recovered.

Four of the students were transported to Lake Granbury Medical Center with reported symptoms of being under the influence of some type of drug. Blood tests for all students showed negative results for any type of drug. The candy was taken to the DEA lab in Dallas for testing, and the results of those tests showed the candy had a negative result for any type of drug. It is not known what caused the reported issues with the students, but the testing indicates it was not caused by any kind of drug.

Granbury airport aviation director preparing for takeoff

Pat Stewart honored with retirement ceremony

BY ASHLEY TERRY

Staff Writer

fter eight years with the city of Granbury and serving as the aviation director at the Granbury Regional Airport, Pat Stewart is ready to take flight on a new adventure.

From working 30-plus years in the aerospace industry to serving a vital role in the airport expansion project, Stewart is now preparing for full retirement in the sunny skies of Florida with his wife, Eloise.

To congratulate Stewart on his years of hard work and dedication with the city of Granbury, a retirement ceremony was held Dec. 14, with many community members and city leaders paying tribute — and making friendly, comedic jabs — to the beloved director.

Steven Vale, Granbury City Council member Place 5, explained that he began as an airport attendant in 2014, where he worked until 2021 until he filed for a seat on the council.

"Pat, we just thank you for everything. We're gonna miss you guys — and can we come visit?" Vale said, which resulted in a room full of laughter.

Visit Granbury Director Tammy Dooley also reminisced on the time she played in a golf tournament with Stewart.

"I was saying, 'Man, how do you ever get off around this place? Like, how do you take time off?' and he said very important advice, which I love. You said, 'Well, the only person that could change that is you,' so I'll never forget that," Dooley said. "And then I also want to know why you never asked me to be on any future teams with you playing golf. That was my one shot at golf, and I evidently did not do that well, so we're going to miss you and your beautiful wife, Eloise, and I wish you guys all the best.

Gary Hawkins, former aviation director, said when Stewart was applying for the job Hawkins, himself, was leaving. He described Stewart as being the "most overqualified percen" he had over seen important thing — and everybody that was here back then knows — that the airport was not a slam dunk. It was a lot of arm-wrestling and trying to educate the public and council on the economic impact. The best feeling I get is when I see the numbers now, because I think we threw the forecast away a long time ago, because it's surpassed. We actually had to subsidize the airport back then, and now it's actually turning a profit."

Former Mayor Nin Hulett explained that a few years ago, the city council had just undergone drama with the Granbury Opera House and then they were suddenly looking at expanding the airport runway.

"I said, 'Man, I don't know if I can take another deal like this at all, because there were people that didn't believe we needed it," Hulett said. "But when Pat came on board and took this thing on, Pat said, 'I got this,' and when he talked about that, I'd go back to Chris (Coffman) and go, 'Where did we get this guy? This guy is overqualified by far.' Pat, I want to thank you for making my life, and really the council's life, really pleasant going through this whole thing because you did a great job and I'll always remember you taking the bull by the horns and taking this thing on and putting it together.'

Jackie Vaughn, chair of the Granbury Regional Airport Advisory Board, said he started flying out of the airport in the late 1990s and then later owned a small business in the mid 2000s. He explained that he watched the airport grow from only having one employee to what it is now.

"You've just done an amazing job, and it's been an honor to serve on the airport board," Vaughn said. "And even though we're an advisory board, you allowed us to have input and we've had some good people that served on the board, and we still do. I just want to thank you for all that you've allowed us to be a part of, and for what you've done for the city." John Roberts, former operations supervisor, said Stewart had first applied for Roberts' job, adding that he also described Stewart as being "way overqualified." After some discussion with Hawkins, Roberts recommended Stewart to the city, and said he is "so thankful that they did" just because of the successful updates Stewart has done for the Granbury Regional Airport since then. "At the airport, you may or may not know it, but people fly everywhere, looking eight years working with the city. around, checking out our apprivation of the city," Roberts said. "For many years, I would talk to people, and they would look at this the planned-in-the-future runway hat we had, and they would over ask me, "When are we going it w to get started?' And I'd say, Grae "Well, it's still pending.' They were actually looking for a team place to plant businesses. At "Th that time, I knew that we were for the city."

"The way he did it, wellestablished and built credibility with our organization he has friends."

"Pat, you're a huge picture of success, you got tons of friends, you can count on us to remain your friends, and we just love you to death," Coffman said.

He added that Stewart's attention to details made a difference to his career, along with his professionalism and passion.

need to chime in regarding his own experience. "So, I'm opening up the King Air hangar one day, and as the door comes up off the surface, there's a rubber membrane there, and as this door comes up, a sixfoot rattlesnake goes right by me," Stewart said. "I was so stunned, I didn't move; that's probably a good thing, but I'm afraid he's going to go up in the wheel well, so the owner pulls up in his car and I'm like 'Bruce, there's a rattlesnake right there,' so we started tugging, we pull it out and the snake wraps itself around the front axle of the truck. We're pulling it out and finally, it lets loose."

as a whole," Coffman said. "Maybe you don't know it, but he was vice president of the Rolls Royce engine division for American Airlines. I don't know how many years, but he had a $660 million budget that he administered, so running our airport is kind of like a hobby to this guy. Like they said, he's overqualified to do what he did for us. The citizens have stood back and watched us spend $16.4 million of grant money and about that much of taxpayer money on that facility, and then seeing the economic impact and the results that that's bringing in, it's huge, and we just can't thank you enough for that. We're sad you're leaving, though, because you've done so much for us in that part, but more than anything, you've become a great friend to all of us, and that's more valuable than anything."

Stewart was then presented with a gift card and a plaque for his commitment and in his life.

"He left Oklahoma State two years into his apprenticeship, I guess, as an engineer and went to work for Boeing in Seattle, and they promised him the world and gave it to him," Hawkins said. "Pat, you've been a joy. Eloise, you obviously know what you're doing moving to Florida. But thank you so much for the fine, fine work that you did and you spent all the money that I gave the city, $30 million."

Former Mayor Pro-Tem Tony Mobly then thanked Hawkins for getting the Granbury Regional Airport to a "certain point," as the city was looking to put the company in "good hands."

"I think we made the right choice," he said. "The most Cody Mathis, the incoming aviation director, said he has been fortunate to have the opportunity to shadow Stewart for nearly a month, adding that he quickly became his friend.

"It's a situation where I can see why so many people like you," Mathis said. "Never mind your accomplishments, which are enormous. But I've enjoyed spending time with you and learning from you, and you've really helped me transition from the commercial side of aviation to the GA side, and albeit in a very short amount of time. Thank you. I After shooting and killing the snake, Stewart explained how during the next staff meeting, Hawkins tells Mitch Galvan, Granbury Chief of Police, that they shot a snake at the airport.

"Just trying to be honest," Hawkins chimes in.

"Allegedly, Mitch tells Gary, 'You tell Pat that he'll get fined if he does that again.' I Coffman then quoted a phrase spoken by Clarence the angel during the movie, "It's a Wonderful Life," which states, "No one is a failure if excellence.

In his speech, Stewart said the airport project had been "outstanding," but it wasn't just because of him — it was because of his team.

"A lot of people throughout every department in this city were all working together with one goal," Stewart said. "I was just one of the guys that was part of that team, so thank you all."

He explained how his retirement plan led to him becoming the aviation director at the Granbury Regional Airport. He worked in a highstress industry, so he had a plan to retire at 56. Luckily, he was able to meet that goal and pull the plug. However, before he could, his wife,

Space heater safety: How NOT to burn your house down this winter

BY ASHLEY TERRY Staff Writer

There's no doubt about it it's cold outside.

But before you bust out that dusty space heater from your attic, you might want to refresh yourself on the dangers associated with heaters and how to prevent an accidental fire.

According to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, portable heaters were involved in an average of 1,700 fires per year resulting in an average of 70 deaths and 160 injuries annually from 2017 to 2019.

Additionally, according to the National Fire Prevention Association, space heaters account for 43% of home heating fires and 85% of associated deaths. More than 65,000 home fires are attributed to heating equipment each year. Unvented, combustion-based space heaters have asphyxiated homeowners or led to explosions.

Although a space heater can be a cost-effective way to stay warm — especially during Texas' bipolar winter months — they can also serve as a fire hazard, which is why the City of Granbury Facebook page recently shared a video detailing four safety tips from the Texas Department of Insurance.

Before you bust out that dusty space heater from your attic, you might want to refresh yourself on the dangers associated with heaters and how to prevent an accidental fire.

Inspect immediately: Before turning on the space heater, make sure there are no cracked or broken plugs or loose connections. If the heater shows signs of damage, get it fixed or replace it as soon as possible.

Outlets only: While extension cords and power strips are convenient, they are not always the safest route when it comes to heaters. Space heaters always need to be plugged directly into a wall

Give it some space: Make your mattress. Also, don't put space heaters in places where kids or pets might pass by.

Turn it off: Always turn off the space heater before you leave the room or go to bed. To help with this issue, look for space heater models that shut off automatically when tipped over.

According to a CPSC staff report, portable heaters can also present a hyperthermia (overheating) hazard to consumers, particularly children, people with disabilities and senior citizens, who may be more susceptible because of their limited ability to act or react to the elevated ambient temperature. Hyperthermia can result in death. Don't leave portable heaters running unattended in a confined space around infants or individuals with reduced physical, sensory or mental capabilities.

While these steps are vital to ensuring an accidental fire will not occur, the most important thing to remember is to always prioritize safety. Handle space heaters with care and always maintain vigilant usage.

STEWART FROM PAGE A6

Eloise, told him, "You can't not go to work. You're not wired that way.'

Stewart came up with three job possibilities to help him stay busy following retirement: work in the hardware department at Home Depart, get a job in the municipal airport, or to get on staff at a municipal golf course.

One day, a friend wanted to introduce Stewart to Hawkins, the city's then-aviation director. Hawkins told him, "John Roberts just gave me his resignation. You need to apply for this job." The rest, Stewart said, was history.

"Gary retired a couple of years later and the city asked me to come on board and take up this runway project," he said. "That runway project was the challenge. It's what kept me coming to work everv day, and doing everything I could to make it successful, but again, it wasn't me; it was the team.'

Stewart also thanked the city staff, as he had worked for several big corporations in the past and said the Granbury city staff is the best he's ever worked with.

He also honored his "boss" Michael Ross, deputy city manager for the city of Granbury, by saying Ross was the guy he depended on.

Stewart added, "Michael, you are a great leader and inspiration, and thank you."

Mathis will replace Stewart as aviation director of the Granbury Regional Airport. He comes to Granbury from the Waco Regional Airport, where he has been operations manager since 2018. His professional aviation career began in Houston in 2006, followed by leadership positions in Shreveport and Dallas. Mathis is a member of the American Association of Airport Executives and is certified as an airport security coordinator. Mathis earned a B.S. in aviation management from Louisiana Tech University.

"Granbury is already known as the 'Friendliest Little Airport in Texas.' That matches my personality and is a reflection of my passion for advancing and promoting the aviation community. I am excited for the opportunity to build on what Stewart and Granbury's management team has already accomplished." Mathis said, in a previous news release.

Mathis said he has "...had a love for airplanes since I was a kid." As a self-proclaimed history buff, he is looking forward to exploring Granbury's past with his wife and four children. All the kids have aviation-inspired first names; the youngest is Amelia, as in "Earhart.'

Coffman then presented Burwell with a clock as a token, adding that every time she looks at it, he prays she will remember her time spent on the council as her "happy days."

Eddie Rodriguez, Place 2 council member, thanked Burwell for being a great example of leadership within the community.

"Just the way you make decisions is unique, and I just appreciate your leadership, your candor and the way you represent yourself in the city," Rodriguez said.

Greg Corrigan, council member for Place 6, explained that unlike most of the council, he has had the pleasure of knowing Burwell for well over a decade, adding that she has always been someone who looks at life differently.

"She takes a different approach, which has been welcomed by the council and sometimes much needed," Corrigan said. "We'll miss you. It's been a pleasure working with you up here, and we look forward to what you're doing next."

Gary "Skip" Overdier is sworn in as a new member of the Granbury City Council during a regular scheduled meeting on Dec. 19.

Place 3 council member Bruce Wadley said he didn't know Burwell until he ran for city council. He explained how she also "steered him through" social media.

"Trish has been great," he said. "We've gone to conferences out of town. We've done so much together. She's so stable. I don't show much emotion, and then she can just sit there when I'm getting kind of riled up about something, she's like, 'Calm down.' I'm just gonna really, really miss you."

Steven Vale, Place 5 council member, said he has had the privilege of sitting next to Burwell for the last two years, noting she is a "stalwart" on the council.

"She's just been amazing to work with," Vale said. "She's provided tremendous leadership, great passion, great knowledge. She really studies everything that comes before us on city council. It's been a joy to work with her. This is not the end of her journey here. I know that she's got other things planned."

City Attorney Jeremy SoRelle jokingly added that Burwell is the "single council person" who has always listened to him.

"I have watched you go from Reiner to Burwell and been able to personally, outside of this dais, share some of those experiences with you," SoRelle continued. "I love that for you, and I love that for Jim (Burwell's husband) and I love the life that you guys have together. I'm so happy for you for that."

Mayor Jim Jarratt also jokingly commented that Burwell is the "lady who would keep me straight in the back room."

"Skip, you have very big shoes to fill," Jarratt added. "We are going to miss you so much."

As Burwell steps down, Overdier takes her place on the city council for a three-year term.

Dee Jowers-Riley

April 9, 1939 - December 18, 2023

Dee Jowers-Riley passed into the loving arms of Jesus on Monday morning, December 18, 2023, with her daughter, Debbie, at her side.

Celebration of Life Service was held at 4 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 21 at Grace Community Church, 801 W. Bardin Road, Arlington, Tx, with Jonathan Scheffrahn officiating. Interment was at the Hickory Flat Cemetery in Cedar Grove, Tennessee, on Saturday, Dec. 23 at 1 p.m. Dee was born April 9, 1939, in Cedar Grove, Tennessee. She married Eddie B. Jowers on July 2, 1955. They were blessed with two children, Debbie and Tony. Ed and Dee were married for 39 years. The Lord called Ed home on May 31, 1995.

Dee temporarily leaves behind her family who love her dearly; daughter, Debbie Roberts and husband Bruce of Arlington; son, Tony Jowers and wife Sandy of Midlothian; grandchildren, Sarah Scheffrahn, and husband Jonathan, Christopher Roberts and wife Holly, Brandi Ennis and husband Dawayne, Brittany Hoskinson and husband Michael, Bethany Lindsey and Brook Harris and husband Heath, and 25 wonderful greatgrandchildren.

Dee married Dwayne Riley on March 22, 2003. She was also blessed with a blended family that included daughter, Kathy Kennemer and husband Michael of Granbury; Vance Riley and wife Carmen of Granbury; Tamra Riley Cochrane of Granbury; grandchildren, Justin Kennemer and wife Erica, Connor Kennemer, Jacob Riley, and Coby Riley.

Dee made friends everywhere she went. While working at Texas Commerce Bank and as an Avon representative in the Shady Valley area, she made life-long friendships. At Lakeside Baptist Church in Granbury, she served in various ministries. She is probably remembered the most as one of the greeters. This was her most favorite thing to do. She was so good at welcoming people and letting them know they were loved.

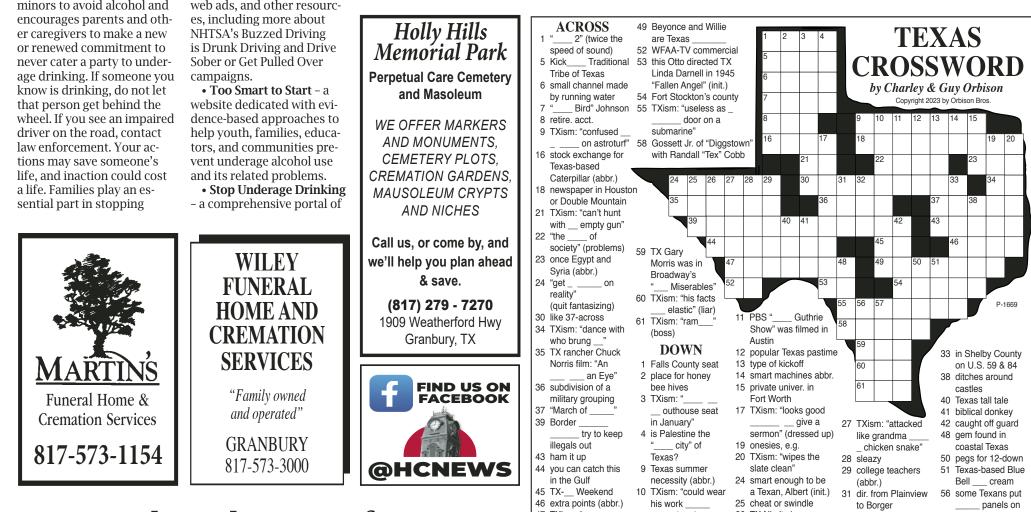

While Dee, also known as Grandmama and Grammers, will be greatly missed, her family is overjoyed that she has seen her Savior, Jesus, face-toface.

In lieu of flowers, the family asks that you consider giving to Partners Across Cultures. For info, please go to

Time: A key element of investing

TY ANDREW

Edward Jones Financial Adviser

Who knows where the time goes? We've reached the end of another year, so it's appropriate to reflect on the nature of time and how it affects us. And time certainly is a key element in the pursuit of your financial goals.

As an investor, time can be your greatest ally. If you hold some investments for the long term, you could achieve an impressive cumulative growth in value. Furthermore, if you keep adding shares to these investments, possibly through a dividend reinvestment plan, you could

Ty Andrew investments, you will experience market fluctuations, but in general, the longer you hold these investments, the more you can reduce the effects of market volatility.

But you also need to consider aspects of time in these contexts:

CHECKING PROGRESS ON ACHIEVING GOALS

When you establish a goal, such as saving for a child's education or your own retirement, you know the end date of when you'll need the money, but it's also important to mark your progress along the way. So, each year, see how far along you are in meeting your goal. If you're falling behind, you may need to adjust your investment mix.

CHOOSING AN APPROPRIATE STRATEGY

The time needed to achieve a goal should drive your investment strategy for that goal. For example, when you are saving for a retirement that won't happen for three or four decades, you will need to invest for growth by placing a reasonable percentage of equities and equitybased investments in your portfolio, based on your comfort with the various types of risk, including interest rate risk, credit risk and market risk. You will experience some bumps along the way keep in mind that the value of investments will fluctuate and the loss of some or all principal is possible — but you likely have time to overcome the "down" periods. On the other hand, when you are saving for a short-term goal, such as a vacation or a new car or a wedding, you'll want a set amount of money available precisely when you need it. In this case, you may need to sacrifice some growth po-

Keep in mind, though, that when you're investing for long- and short-term goals, it doesn't have to be just one strategy or the other. You can save for retirement with primarily growth vehicles but still have room in your portfolio for shorter-term instruments. And even when you're specifically investing for some short-term goal, you can't forget about your need to save and invest for retirement.

And here's one final point about the relationship between time and investing: Your risk tolerance can, and probably will, change over the years. As you near retirement, you may feel the need to adjust your portfolio toward a more conservative approach. That's because you may want to consolidate any gains you might have achieved while also recognizing that you simply have less time to bounce back from down markets. Still, even in retirement, you'll need some growth potential in your portfolio to help you stay ahead of inflation.

"The holidays can be a tough time of the year for many of us," mentions internal medicine nurse practitioner Nicole Cuellar, APRN, FNP-C. "In our recent edition of Live Healthy Newsletter, an excellent article highlighted the importance of understanding the Holiday Blues and what you can do about tnem.

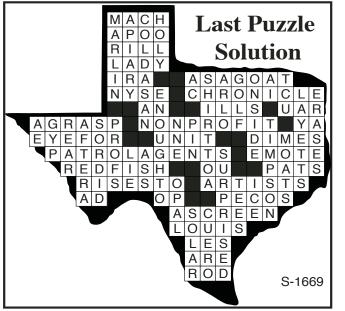

winter blues include changes in mood, feelings of hopelessness or sadness, low energy levels, difficulty concentrating and changes in appetite and sleep patterns. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention report women are four times more likely than men to be diagnosed with SAD. Though the cause of SAD is not fully understood, several theories suggest a lack of sunlight plays a significant role. The decrease in davlight during winter can disrupt the body's internal clock and lead to changes in serotonin levels, which regulate mood. There are several treatment and coping options available for winter blues:

depression, although the exact reason is still unknown. To ensure you get enough vitamin B-12, incorporate of seasonal affective disorder for up to 80% of patients. • Strong social ties. Engaging in meaningful so-

One-third of Americans say they're more stressed during the holidays than at any other time. It's easy to understand why — we have a lot of social obligations, we're spending a lot of money and the lack of sunshine is a real bummer.

The American Academy of Family Physicians reports as many as 6% of Americans have seasonal affective disorder (SAD), but as many as 20% of us experience some form of the "winter blues." What we're trying to say is you're not alone if you feel down this time of year even though it's supposed to be a season of jov. Symptoms of SAD and the

• B-12 boosts. Low levels of vitamin B-12 in the blood have been associated with foods like salmon, trout, eggs and dairy products into your diet. If you're vegetarian or vegan, consider taking a B-12 supplement to meet your body's needs.

• Dietary adjustments. Leafy greens, oatmeal, sunflower seeds, oranges, fortified cereals, lentils and soybeans are great sources of folic acid that can help boost mood. Blueberries, raspberries and strawberries can help combat stress, too.

• Light therapy. Sunshine, or exposure to a light box that mimics natural sunlight, can boost mood. According to The Journal of Clinical Psychiatry, light therapy effectively reduces symptoms

It's normal to have occasional down days, but if you feel down for days on end, with changes in sleep patterns or appetite, it may be time to see your provider. Remember, asking for help is a sign of strength, not weakness.

of the doubt and when the next game is played, I will be watching, hoping for the best. Isn't that what being a fan is all about?

THE LION OF TEXAS ROARS BACK INTO GRANBURY

Ever since the last time it was on the marquee, I have been asked when I will present another performance of the celebrated show, "The Lion of Texas — a Conversation with Sam Houston." Finally, the time has come and it is with great pleasure I announce two performances at the Granbury Opera House: Friday, Jan. 12 at 7:30 p.m. and again Saturday, Jan. 13 at 2 p.m. This one-man show portrays the life and times of General Sam Houston, perhaps the most iconic figure in Texas history. While historically accurate, it is humorous, entertaining, thought-provoking and tells the story of our Texas in a way which is very impactful to an audience.

The last time this show was performed in Granbury it sold out all three shows, so I urge you to get your tickets early. One hundred percent of the proceeds go to the Granbury Opera House. If you are a Texan, this is a show which will make your heart swell with pride. And if you are not a Texan, well.... the rest of us will all feel sorry for you! I hope to see you all there!

Thought for the day: Being a true fan is not being there at the beginning but being there at the end.

Until next time... I will keep ridin' the storm out.

Smoking, Vaping and Menthol are extremely difficult to quit; American Lung Association in Texas offers tips The American Lung Association encourages people who use tobacco to make a resolution to quit in 2024, provides tips and resources

Submitted item

This time of year, thousands of people across Texas make resolutions to take on personal challenges, accomplish a significant goal, or improve their life for the new year. This year, the American Lung Association in Texas is encouraging everyone who smokes, vapes, or uses other tobacco products to resolve to begin their quit journey in 2024 and provides tips and resources at Lung.org/ Ouit-Smoking.

Tobacco use remains the leading cause of preventable death and disease here in Texas, killing 28,030 people each year. Nationally, 16 million Americans live with a tobacco-related disease. While it's best to guit as early as possible, quitting smoking at any age will enhance the length and quality of your life.

"13.1% of adults living in Texas smoke, and 3.9% of high school students use a tobacco product. We know that breaking the addiction to nicotine is extremely difficult. For most people, it takes multiple attempts to quit tobacco for good. Each quit attempt brings a person closer to reaching their goal," Charlotte Maffia, Executive Director with the American Lung Association in Texas said. "Some tobacco products, like menthol cigarettes and e-cigarettes, make quitting even more difficult, so it is critical that people who are ready speak with their healthcare provider about Food and Drug Administration (FDA)approved tobacco treatment medications, coupling them with proven effective cessation programs to quit."

Currently, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is in the process of finalizing rules to end the sale of menthol cigarettes and flavored cigars in the U.S. Menthol is a chemical compound extracted from peppermint or corn mint plants that makes cigarettes easier to start smoking and harder to quit. Flavored cigars often look similar to cigarettes, attract kids, and addict them to tobacco products for a lifetime.

According to the 2023 National Youth Tobacco Survey, 2.1 million high school and middle school students use e-cigarettes. E-cigarettes deliver a high level of nicotine very quickly, and many e-cigarettes contain as much nicotine as a pack of cigarettes. This makes them very difficult to quit. While much remains to be determined about the lasting health consequences of these products, the Lung Association is very troubled by what we see so far. The inhalation of harmful chemicals can cause lung damage and lung diseases.

Here are some of the tips and resources the American Lung Association recommends to successfully quit tobacco:

Lung Helpline: Not sure where to start? Call the Lung Association's free Lung Helpline and Tobacco Quitline at 1-800-LUNGUSA, which is staffed with licensed registered nurses, respiratory therapists, and certified tobacco treatment specialists.

Talk to your Healthcare

Provider: Talking to a healthcare provider about your plan to quit smoking is an important step. With your doctor's help, you can include cessation medication into your tobacco treatment plan, which can double your chances of quitting successfully. There are seven FDA-approved medications that are proven to help you quit. Most insurance covers these medications without cost-sharing.

Get Help from a Proven Resource: The American Lung Association offers resources to help adults and teens to guit all tobacco products, including Freedom From Smoking to help adults quit, and Not-On-Tobacco (N-O-T), which is specially designed for teens who are ready to quit.

Quit. Don't Switch. E-cigarettes are tobacco products, and the FDA has not found any e-cigarette to be safe and effective in helping smokers quit. Switching to e-cigarettes does not mean quitting. Quitting means ending your addiction to nicotine.

For more information about quitting tobacco, visit the American Lung Association website at Lung. org or call the Lung HelpLine at 1-800-LUNGUSA (1-800-586-4872). Most health insurance covers medications and counseling to help you quit. If you don't have insurance, you can enroll until January 15 in most states. For more information, visit www.lung.org/ openenrollment.

Texas announces statewide plan to expand access to high-speed broadband internet

From Staff Reports

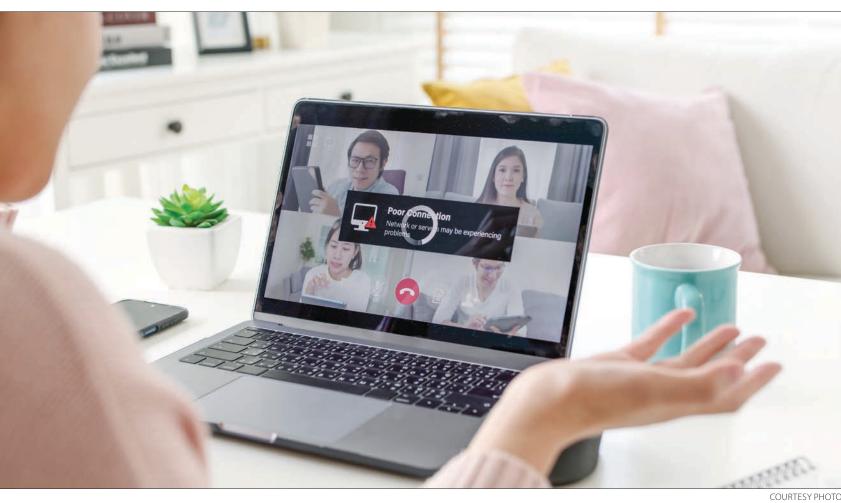

The Texas Broadband Development Office, operated by the Texas Comptroller of Public Accounts, recently announced a statewide Digital Opportunity Plan that will expand access to high-speed broadband internet.

Almost 2.8 million households and 7 million people in Texas lack access to broadband, or high-speed internet, according to U.S. Census Bureau data. The Digital Opportunity Plan will provide these Texans with the technology and knowledge they need to fully participate in an increasingly digital world.

"Access to reliable, highspeed internet as a means of advancing education, training, employment opportunities, healthcare and delivery of essential services is critical to the future of our state," said Texas Comptroller of Publica Accounts Glenn Hegar. "But we know that we can't do this without partners in the regions and the communities that need this service the most."

"The Texas Digital Opportunity Plan will allow more Texans to access technology and thrive," said Greg Conte, director of the Texas Broadband Development Office. "We know that starts with improving broadband (or highspeed internet) adoption, device access and digital skills training, but we want to hear more from community members most in need."

Historically, the digital divide in Texas has disproportionately left out rural communities, communities of color and low-income families, according to a 2016 Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas report. Because the internet and technology touch so many aspects of life today, bridging this divide is essential to ensure all Texans can participate and succeed.

The Broadband Development Office is partnering with organizations like the Texas Workforce Commission, chambers of commerce, industry associations, educational institutions and elected officials to highlight how high-speed internet and digital skills training can help Texans realize their economic potential.

From today through Jan 5, 2024, Texans can give their opinions on the Texas Digital Opportunity Plan by visiting broadbandfortexas. com/tdop.

Participants in the public comment period will help build a stronger, more connected Texas that can offer: Better access for better lives. Faster, quality internet can improve people's lives by providing better access to education, healthcare and job opportunities, no matter where they live.

Economic growth and job creation. Identifying digital barriers can create more jobs, attract investments and strengthen local economies.

Online learning tools. Sharing ideas about the plan can help close the "homework gap" and make sure students have what they need to succeed in the digital age.

Digital skills for all. The public's feedback will shape training and education plans so all Texans can succeed in a digital world.

Cybersecurity and online safety. It's vital that Texans have the training they need to keep them safe online and protect their personal information.

Hegar added, "Your input, passion and local knowledge will help us ensure the Texas Digital Opportunity Plan establishes a clear roadmap to bridge the digital divide and promote digital opportunities for all Texans."

GHS graduate Tyler Wright named to AFCA 35 Under 35 Leadership Institute

BY ASHLEY TERRY Staff Writer

A Granbury High School graduate accomplished a career goal of a lifetime when he was named to the American Football Coaches Association 35 Under 35 Leadership Institute.

Tyler Wright — current assistant coach and special teams coordinator for the New Mexico State University football team — was chosen from a field of over 175 highly qualified applications.

According to its official website, the AFCA 35 Under 35 Coaches Leadership Institute is a prestigious program aimed at identifying and developing premier, future leaders in the football coaching profession. Selected participants are invited to attend the oneday institute that features a curriculum of interactive lectures focused on topics specifically tailored to emphasize leadership in the coaching profession, ethics, influential responsibilities, career progression and family balance.

Wright, 31, served as a wide receiver for the Granbury Pirates and graduated from GHS in 2011. Following graduation, he attended Tarleton State University in Stephenville, and it was then he initially started pursuing a coaching career. He chose to follow in the footsteps of his stepdad, Earl Gandy, who was also a high school coach, while his mom, Wendy Gandy, worked in the GISD Administration Building.

"I got into coaching high school football because I wanted to help grow and develop young men," Wright told the HCN. "Football is just like teaching a class. If you're trying to teach them a concept or teach them a blocking scheme or teach them a patch route, you got to find a way to where it resonates with them and make it to where they can go out and execute it." In 2015, Wright started coaching football at Permian High School in Odessa, where he coached wide receivers for a total of three seasons.

But something was still missing for Wright.

"The whole time I was there, I knew I wanted to move up to the college game at some point," Wright said. "I was trying to move up, and obviously it just never happened, but then finally, one of my coaches from Tarleton got the head coaching job at (The University of Texas Permian Basin in Odessa) when they were starting their program, and so I went there and coached college football and quarterbacks."

After coaching at UT Permian Basin for a season in 2018, Wright got hired as a graduate assistant at Texas Christian University in Fort Worth in 2019, where he coached through the 2021 season.

In late 2021, a guy Wright worked with at TCU, Jerry Kill, was offered the head coaching job at New Mexico State University. Wright also chose to tag along with Kill to New Mexico — which resulted in his biggest career move to date.

"We took over a program that was literally ranked the last individual football and going on year two, we went 7-6 last year, won a bowl game, and then we're 10-4 currently and playing in a bowl game in the New Mexico Bowl on Saturday, Dec. 16," Wright said, before the game took place. During the New Mexico Bowl, the New Mexico State Aggies played against the Fresno State Bulldogs, resulting in a 37-10 loss.

Although the team didn't win the New Mexico Bowl, Wright said the New Mexico State football team was previously able to defeat Auburn University in Alabama 31-10 and played in a conference championship for the first time in school history.

"It's a pretty big deal that we've been able to come in and kind of turn this historically bad program around and finally win some ballgames, so it's been fun," Wright said.

Wright explained the main difference between coaching high school football and coaching college football is recruiting players.

"In college, you get to go pick your players, and if you don't have good enough players, you go out and recruit and find better players to replace them," he said. "But in high school, you're kind of given the roster that you have, and you got to find a way to coach them up. In high school, you have to be a much more detailed coach because you may have a couple guys that get to go play college football on your high school team, but most of the time you just have high school players who aren't as good of athletes as what we're coaching at the

Granbury ISD announces new head football coach

BY EMILY NAVA Staff Writer

During a regularly scheduled Granbury ISD school board meeting Dec. 11, the board voted 5-0 to bring on Bobby Allison as the new head football coach and boys' athletic coordinator. Trustees Melanie Graft and Karen Lowery were not in attendance at the meeting.

Allison is taking the place of Sonny Galindo who served as the interim head coach for the 2023 season. Allison comes from Northwest High School where he was the assistant head coach, defensive coordinator and recruiting coordinator since 2014. While Allison was at Northwest, the team won three district titles. posted three 10-win seasons, and won its first playoff win in school history.

Allison was named Assistant Coach of the Year for the 2016-17 school year and the Built by Nature Assistant Coach of the Week in 2016.

He has experience coaching at Odessa, Sharpstown, Levelland and San Angelo Central. He also served as special teams coordinator at the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga.

Not only does Allison come with football experience, he has also coached track and field and led a student to the state championship in the discus competition. He has taught history throughout his career and was most recently the physical education department head at Northwest High School.

GISD Superintendent Jeremy Glenn noted during the meeting that Allison comes highly recommended.

"We are certainly blessed to have him and his family here. We spent a lot of time talking to a lot of candidates and we had a very large committee of community members, parents and administrators, and Coach Allison just kept rising to the top," Glenn said during the meeting. "We're looking forward to great things that he is going to bring to Pirate football, but to boys athletics in general. He is a man of integrity, he's a hard worker and he and his family are ready to move to Granbury and get to work.'

GISD Director of Athletics

Dwight Butler also commented on Coach Allison coming to Granbury.

"I think Coach Allison is a great hire to lead Granbury going forward. I think his roots in West Texas are a major plus, because he brings a genuine football heart and understands the concept of needing and using multisported athletes to compete with," Butler said. "Plus, he has a North Texas mentality from multi-years of coaching in the toughest region of Texas with incredible athletes to battle every week. I look for great things for our student athletes, community, and school.'

Coach Allison told the HCN he is honored to step into this role and is looking forward to what is to come.

"I'm excited to build a resilient team, instill a winning mindset, and continue a culture of excellence. Our focus will extend beyond the game; we are committed to developing athletes of high character, instilling values that will guide them not only to success on the field, but also in every aspect of their future endeavors," Butler said.

During a regularly scheduled Granbury ISD school board meeting Dec. 11, the board voted 5-0 to bring on Bobby Allison as the new head football coach and boys' athletic coordinator.

'BBQ Buccaneers' are sizzling with success New Granbury BBQ team of middle schoolers to compete in state competition

BY EMILY NAVA Staff Writer

The brand new Granbury Middle School barbecue team has already made history by making it to the state competition that will take place in May after a successful first season. The team is under the direction of Crystal Burenheide who teaches foundations of restaurant management and intro to culinary at Granbury High School.

After Burenheide attended a couple of competitions last year with Brianna Langdon, head culinary teacher and head barbeque coach at GHS, she noticed there were some middle school teams competing.

When this school year began, Burenheide decided to ask Langdon if she could create a middle school team to see how it would play out. "If we could start BBQ at the middle school level, imagine the talent they would bring with them when they arrive at the high school level," Burenheide said.

A team was formed with four middle schoolers including seventh grader William Burenheide, of Granbury Middle School; sixth graders Eli Erwin and Harper Langdon, and seventh grader Kaylee Leisure, all of Acton Middle School.

During practice, the middle schoolers are able to work alongside the high schoolers and learn from them as well.

The team holds practices after school every other week for two hours. Each practice consists of Langdon teaching different components of BBQ. Students first learn about fire and kitchen safety before moving on to flavor profiles and trimming of protein.

The team first competed back in November at the Granbury BBQ competition with only three members. Burenheide cooked ribs and steak, Langdon cooked chicken, and Erwin cooked pork chops. All three also helped with cooking chili. At this competition the group was the only middle school team competing and they went up against 16 high schools. Erwin's pork chops placed 5th.

In their first competition as a full team, the Buccaneers took 7th place overall at a competition in Athens Dec. 7. The Buccaneers were again the only middle school team competing against 21 high

'Grinch' spotted as new GISD bus driver

BY ASHLEY TERRY Staff Writer

The Grinch is a long way from Whoville as he was spotted in his new job as a Granbury ISD bus driver Friday, Dec. 15.

Jack Jackson, lead bus driver for the GISD Transportation Department, spread some early holiday cheer when he decided to fully dress up as the Grinch before starting his shift Friday morning.

"He just loves the Grinch anyway, so the entire month of December, he wears Grinch T-shirts instead of his uniform and he has every Grinch T-shirt you can imagine," Sue Jackson, Jack's wife, told the HCN. "We've always had the Grinch head, which he wears every year, and this year for the first time, he bought the full costume."

To add to the holiday magic, the Grinch was also spotted wearing a Granbury ISD Transportation Department work badge, complete with his own headshot and the name "GRINCH" typed out below in all caps.

"He usually gives out candy," Sue said. "This year, there were Grinch Hershey kisses. He's been doing it for the six years that he's worked there."

Jack, who has been with the GISD Transportation Department for six years, said he's "always a Grinch" and everyone knows it.

"But at this time of year, I get such a kick out of spreading it around," he told the HCN. "I love these kids and it brings me so much joy to watch them smile."

Sue said Jack usually drives the bus around the STEAM Academy at the Mambrino campus, adding that he loves getting to see the special education students.

"It is great," Sue said. "They just go crazy with it. He loves being on those buses. Those are his babies."

college level now. But at the end of the day football is still football. You have got to find a way to teach them and get them to learn."

One of the selling points, Wright said, for transferring over to coaching college football is that he didn't have to also serve as a teacher.

"I was social studies composite, so I was certified to teach every social studies (course) from economics, to geography, to world history, to Texas history to U.S. his tory to psychology, but the years that I was teaching, I was doing world geography which wasn't too bad," he said. "It was fine. It's just. you know, I wanted to be a football coach, and not have to worry about the classroom stuff." One of the biggest challenges of becoming a coach, he added, is the realization that playing football and coaching football are two very different things.

coaching, you realize that you don't know near as much as you thought you did about the game of football and the little details, fundamentals and techniques," he said. "The hand placement, the pad level, the footwork, you do all that stuff as a player, but you're not necessarily thinking of 'Why am I doing this?' 'How are we attacking the defense?' Once you trade that player hat in and you put on that coach cap, you learn more about the game of football than you ever thought existed."

coaches in the profession along with many other great benefits.

Wright revealed that being selected to the AFCA 35 Under 35 Leadership Institute has been a goal of his since 2017.

"I'm not a big self-promoter," he said. "I just want to be a good person, do a good job and coach my players. I want to love my players up and do what I can to help whatever team I'm coaching for win ballgames, because that's ultimately why we get into this — we want to help young men win because this is a results-based business especially. That's kind of what all my focus has been on - it hasn't been on trying to necessarily further my career. Getting this recognition, it was cool because it was kind of the first time other people acknowledged 'Hey, you're a pretty good young coach.' Having somebody else say it, it's some validation like, 'Hey, maybe I am in the right field, and maybe I am doing the right thing and heading in the right direction as far as my career trajectory is concerned."" The Tolar Rattlers offense lined up against the Timpson defense at the State Championship game Dec. 13 at AT&T Stadium. Their hard work all seaon accumulated to this moment.

Special to the Hood County News

If it was easy everyone would do it.

The fact is, it's not easy, which is why it's only been done twice in the history of Hood County public high schools — playing for a state football championship, that is

But the Tolar Rattlers did just that in 2023. True, they came up short, falling in the Class 2A Division I championship game to Timpson, 49-7, Wednesday, Dec. 13, but they left an indelible mark.

The Rattlers finished 14-2, playing more games than any other football team public or private school has ever played in a season in the county.

"It is hard for me to put into words what this program, school and community mean to me. I feel very blessed and honored to be a part of it," Rattlers coach Jeremy Mullins said. "I talk to our kids often about the opportunities in football and how there are only a few compared to the amount of time you put into preparing for each week's game.

"When you sit and think about the amount of people who actually have the opportunity to play in a state championship... you really history, a record broken twice more in the two subsequent years.

"I am really proud of this group for taking what those who have come before them have started and taking it to another level. That is our hope each year, to do things better than they've ever been done before," Mullins said. "That bar has certainly been raised, but that will not change our mission as new groups continue to come through."

RALLYING AS A TEAM

No sooner had the Rattlers begun the 2023 season when they received what could have been devastating news. Junior running back Peyton Brown, who was among the national leaders in numerous categories in 2022, injured his ankle in the very first week of the season.

Brown would miss the next seven games, returning to be a force in the postseason. In the meantime, the team, filled with a plethora of talent otherwise, pulled together and posted a 9-1 regular season, steamrolling to another district championship.

"This team was just that... a TEAM," Mullins stressed, adding that on the wall in each locker room there are four words that comprise the team code — Compete, Team First Relentless

On Friday Oct . 14, Tolar High School had their homecoming game against the Bangs Dragons. The Rattlers beat the Dragons 61-6. Quarterback Isaac Blessing Recevied the snap.

FAREWELL TO 2A

Barring unforeseen circumstances in the future and seeing as the community is growing, the state championshp could very well have been Tolar's last football game in Class 2A. The program is moving up to play in Class 3A Division II next season.

tures plenty of returning talent for 2024.

"We lose 13 seniors from this group that did a great job of leading this year," Mullins said. "We are very grateful for them and excited about all they are going to go on to accomplish.' The roster for the team that played in the state championship game featured 19 juniors, 15 sophomores and 17 freshmen.

the best at letting coaches coach. I believe that is huge in today's world of high school athletics. They trust us to do what's best and do a great job of supporting us however they can.

"Our coaching staff and their families deserve a ton of credit. We are fortunate to have great men on staff who are not just great coaches but great mentors, husbands and fathers. I am lucky to be surrounded by them each day. Their wives and families sacrifice a lot for us to do what it takes to give our teams the best chance to be successful."

SUCCESS AFTER SUCCESS

Even at the end of the 2022 season there was something magical in the air about the Tolar football program. The Rattlers finished that season 13-1 and advanced to the regional final, something only done once before (a 9-5 season in 2015), and never with that many wins in a season.

The Rattlers' two losses this season were both to state champions. In the third game of the season they fell 37-6 to Dallas Christian, which won its third consecutive Texas Association of Private and Parochial Schools Division III state title this season.

The other, of course, was to a 16-0 Timpson team.

In all, the Rattlers faced seven playoff teams in the regular season before going on their own postseason run.

The Rattlers left their mark in 2A, however. Over the past four seasons they were 42-13.

Tolar was also 12-4 in the postseason over the past four years, going farther into the playoffs each season. They reached the second round in 2020, the third round in 2021, the regional final (fourth round) in 2022 and the state final (sixth round) in 2023.

The Rattlers were previously in Class 3A from 2016-19. They reached the playoffs three times and advanced to the second round once.

Heffernan following dad on basepaths Pirate signs to play baseball at Navarro

BY RICK MAUCH

Special to the Hood County News

Braxton Heffernan comes from a family that loves baseball. It's a good thing he's excelling at the sport — so much so he will continue playing at the next level at Navarro College in Corsicana. Of course, there's the little matter of his senior season with the Granbury Pirates in the spring of 2024.

"The person who has influenced me to play baseball the most is my dad, Jimmy Heffernan. He played at the University of Texas, and he has coached me all through my childhood," the younger Heffernan said.

Braxton simply describes himself as "just a natural competitor and baseball player."

He notes, "Baseball is unique in that the combination of skills, talent and hard work can be combined on a field and you will still fail more than you succeed. Other sports will say baseball is easy, but when you fail six out of 10 times (a .400 batting average) and you can still be considered successful in your sport, that's nothing short of special. That's why I love it."

BASEBALL EXPERIENCE

Heffernan has played on the varsity since he was a freshman, though that season ended early with an injury. He came back with a breakout sophomore season, batting .365 with five home runs, seven doubles, three triples and tied for the team lead in runs batted in with 24.

He helped the Pirates reach the second round of the postseason in 2020 and 2021. In 2022, the team had a rare year in which they missed the postseason, but head coach Brad Eppler is counting on Heffernan to play a big role in their quest to get back in the playoffs. "His junior year he was down statistically at the plate, so we're hoping for a senior year that is a product of experience, maturity and growth," Eppler said. "I look for solid numbers out of him."

Heffernan plays in the outfield, primarily right field for the Pirates and center field for his summer teams.

"I love the outfield because it puts speed on full display, and throwing runners out from the outfield is one of my favorite things to do in the game," he said.

Ask him about his greatest strength and he will humbly say it is his hitting abilities. He's not too humble when he gets to the plate, however.

"I focus on being a tough out at the plate each at-bat," he said. "I will hit for both power and average and being able to do that will not only pose a threat to the opposing team but will help me succeed at the next level."

SUCCESS BEYOND THE DIAMOND

Heffernan is also a standout swimmer. This season he is seeking a third consecutive trip to the UIL Swim Meet.

As do many multiple sports athletes, he finds ways to incorporate the training of one into the other. For example, he said swimming has helped him become a better baseball player.

"Swimming has benefited my baseball career by keeping me in shape, building shoulder strength, keeping my body loose, and reducing lactic acid in my muscles after the baseball weight room," he said.

"Coaching Braxton these last two seasons has been a blessing. It is not often you get to work with such a talented athlete, let alone one who is talented enough to excel in two sports at an extremely high level," Granbury High swim coach Charles Overton said. "His dedication, discipline and commitment to excellence has allowed him to achieve being a regional champion as part of a relay and a two-time state qualifier. It will also give him a chance to repeat as much and then some, hopefully on multiple relays and as an individual competitor."

While he loves swimming, Heffernan said he does not plan to swim in college. When he's not competing, he loves to lift weights or play video games at home. "I find that the enjoyment of these activities are not just a break from baseball, but take your mind off life," he said.

COLLEGE AND BEYOND

Heffernan is unsure of his major as of now, but said he is leaning toward the arena of business/marketing.

"He has always worked hard in the classroom, earning a top 25 ranking," Eppler praised.

And yes, like many young players, he does dream of playing at the major league level. Like others, he was further inspired by watching his local team, the Texas Rangers, win the 2023 World Series championship.

"I believe that any baseball player that doesn't dream of playing professionally doesn't have their goals set high enough to have the motivation to be successful," he said. "I want to thank my family and coaches for their constant support of my baseball career. The amount of time they have sacrificed for me is what will make me successful at the next level."

VB honors galore for Lady Rattlers; Two named all-state, another all-star

BY RICK MAUCH

Special to the Hood County News

It's not uncommon for a team's best season ever to be followed by a host of accolades. It's certainly no different for the Tolar Lady Rattlers volleyball team.

Two members of the team have been named all-state by the Texas Girls Coaches Association. A third has been selected as an alternate for next summer's TGCA Class 1A-4A All-Star Game.

Senior right-side hitter/setter Maddie Rue and freshman outside hitter Allie Terrell were honored by the TGCA as all-state selections. The duo was the driving force behind the Lady Rattlers advancing to the Class 2A Regional final before falling to Windthorst and finishing with a 25-15 record.

Rue was a force all over the court. She registered 334 kills and 43 blocks at the net, along with delivering 398 assists, serving 44 aces and having 249 defensive digs.

Terrell posted 268 kills and was a key player defensively with 126 digs.

Rue was also named aca-

Rue was named Offensive Player of the Year; Rousseau (376 digs, 35 aces) is Libero of the Year and Terrell is Newcomer of the Year.

Imel was named to the first team, along with junior setter Abbie Soileau. Secondteam accolades went to junior middle blocker Ally Dobbs, freshman defensive specialist Kamryn Kolb, junior right side hitter Kenzi McQuain and junior middle blocker Lily DeWitt.

All nine Lady Rattlers honored are also academic all-district.

GRANBURY BOYS BASKETBALL

The Pirates went into the holiday break in what has become something of a typical style for them this season, winning a close contest. They won 49-45 at Boswell Dec. 15 to improve to 11-4.

Granbury is 6-0 in games decided by four points or less this season.

The Pirates will return to play Dec. 28-29 in The Colony Tournament, where coach David Breazeale said they will face more tough competition. "The upcoming tournament should be good for us. Good

LIPAN BOYS BASKETBALL

The Indians (13-3), ranked 14th in the state in the latest Texas Association of Basketball Coaches poll, disposed of visiting Windthorst 59-30 Dec. 15. Leaders for the Indians were Tyson Tarpley (11 points), Court Gaylor (10 points, 5 rebounds), Tucker Tims (9 points), Payton Cornelius (8 points, 7 assists), Darius Steed (7 points, 5 rebounds, 4 assists) and Kilt Larson (7 rebounds).

They followed up by opening District 11-2A play with a 31-25 home win over Poolville, No. 16 in the state, Tuesday, Dec. 19. Gaylor led the way with 14 points, while Steed added 9 and Alberto Andreatta scored 8.

The back-and-forth contest saw the Monarchs lead 8-7 after the first quarter, the Indians led 16-14 at the half, and it was tied at 20 after three quarters before Lipan ended with an 11-5 run.

Lipan was playing Ector at the American Airlines Center, home of the NBA's Dallas Mavericks, at press time. They are competing in the Tenaha Holiday Hoops Tournament Dec. 27-29 and host Gordon and 8 points, respectively. Tolar is playing in the Eula Tournament Dec. 28-30. The Lady Rattlers return to district play Jan. 2 at Ranger at 6:15 p.m.

TOLAR BOYS BASKETBALL

The Rattlers traveled to Jacksboro Dec. 15 and fell 55-34. Tolar was led by Zane Terrell, who scored 11 points, while Merritt Imel added 10 and Cayden Abrego tallied 7. The Rattlers then played host to Lake Worth on Tuesday, Dec. 19 and won 47-41. Imel paced the win with a double-double of 17 points and 10 rebounds, while Terrell added 9 points.

Despite their record being 6-10, the Rattlers are ranked fourth in the state in Class 2A by the TABC. With the Rattlers football team now having finished their season after advancing to the 2A Division I state championship, the basketball roster could see some additions.

The Rattlers will compete in the Eula Tournament Dec. 28-30. They begin District 11-2A play Jan. 2 at Ranger with a 7:30 p.m. tipoff.

GRANBURY SWIMMING

Terrell posted 268 kills and was a key player defensively with 126 digs.Terrell is Newcomer of the Year demic all-state, along with senior libero Trinity Rousseau.

In earning TGCA all-star status, junior outside hitter Senne Imel's statistics included 47 aces served, 342 kills, 37 blocks and 449 digs.

"They are very well-deserved honors," Tolar coach Misty Rhodes said. "As a senior Maddie has worked for four years and finished her career with a great achievement.

"All-state as a freshman is a huge honor. Allie will continue to grow and develop into a leader for the program."

Imel is one of only four girls from Class 2A across the state selected as an all-star.

"Senne has proved herself worthy of the highest honors time and time again," Rhodes said. "I am proud that those efforts were recognized, and she has been justly rewarded for that."

TOLAR VOLLEYBALL ALL-DISTRICT

While the Lady Rattlers, ironically, did not win District 8-2A, finishing second to Hamilton, they nonetheless cleaned up in the honors doled out by the league's coaches. teams better expose your weaknesses to prep for district play," he said. "There are tons of coaches who would like to be 11-4, but this is about maxing out how far our abilities can take us."

Granbury begins District 5-5A play Tuesday, Jan. 2 at Wichita Falls Rider. Tipoff is 1:30 p.m.

GRANBURY GIRLS BASKETBALL

The Lady Pirates evened their District 5-5A record at 1-1 (11-7 overall) by defeating visiting Azle 43-31 Dec. 15. Ella Garner (13 points), Kate Hamlin (12) and Fayth Fry (12) combined to outscore the Lady Hornets.

In subvarsity action against Azle, the Lady Pirates freshmen won 52-16 and the junior varsity won 39-29.

Granbury traveled to Midlothian Tuesday, Dec. 19, before taking a Christmas break. They won 40-30 as Garner (14) and Hamlin (10) combined for 24 points.

The Lady Pirates will compete in the Caprock Tournament in Lubbock Dec. 28-30 before returning to league play at Wichita Falls Rider Jan. 2 at 1:30 p.m. Jan. 2 at 7 p.m.

LIPAN GIRLS BASKETBALL

The Lady Indians made short work of DeLeon, winning 78-27 at home Dec. 15. Leading Lipan were Alisha Green (19 points, 4 steals), Hanna Gaylor (15 points, 5 steals), Ashlyn Clark (13 points, 5 rebounds), Taylor Branson (9 points, 4 assists, 4 steals) and Madison Cornelius (4 steals).

They improved to 3-0 in District 11-2A (16-3 overall) Tuesday, Dec. 19 by defeating visiting Poolville 60-15. Gaylor scored 12, Clark 11 and Finley Shockley posted 10. Kynzi Callaway contributed 8.

The Lady Indians were playing Bullard at the American Airlines Center at press time. They are in the Tenaha Holiday Hoops Tournament Dec. 27-29 and return to district competition at Santo Jan. 5 at 6:15 p.m.

TOLAR GIRLS BASKETBALL

The Lady Rattlers (11-8 overall) moved to 2-0 in District 11-2A with a 43-31 win at home over Hico Dec. 15. At this competition, the team prepared five dishes including pork chops, skirt steak taco, smoked half chicken, St. Louis-style pork ribs and chili. Each dish is due at a specific time. Teams are not allowed to prepare or cook anything until the contest begins at 9 a.m.

"Time management and really knowing your ingredients largely impacts your success," Burenheide said.

Burenheide took home 3rd place with his tacos, Leisure took home 5th place with her ribs, and Langdon earned 7th with her chicken.

Due to its top 10 finish, the team qualified for the state BBQ contest that will take place May 3-4 in Burnet. The team will attend a few more competitions to prepare for the state competition. After the state competition, nationals will follow in the summer.

"If we keep pace and stay focused, (nationals) is definitely a possibility," Burenheide told the HCN.

The team was recognized for its outstanding accomplishment at the Granbury ISD School Board meeting Nov. 11.

"The BBQ Buccaneers demonstrate teamwork, positive mindsets, resiliency, skill and grit," Burenheide said. "They are so eager to learn and eager to prove themselves amongst older peers that they listen intently to instructions, focus on the small details, and take comments from coaches as constructive and positive. They put what instruction and knowledge they gained to work, and it shows."

Landon added that the biggest quality of the middle schoolers is their coachability. Burenheide noted there is talk of possibly adding a second middle school team, and that Langdon would love to generate more interest at the middle school.

Tarleton State opens indoor season, Angel Gomez breaks 5000m school record

Tarleton State University

PITTSBURG, Kan. - The Texans came out strong in the first meet of the season Dec. 8 and 9 with multiple athletes moving into the top-10 in school history of their respective event.

The Purple and White competed Friday and Saturday in the Boo Rogers Multi Invitational and the Crimson and Gold Invitational. Both events were held at the Robert W. Plaster Center.

"We took a small group to Kansas to get a quality meet under our belt," said head coach Clay Holland. "I was happy to see the progression we have made but we understand that we have a long road ahead of us to get to where we want to be.'

Boo Rogers Multi Invitational

The lone Texan to compete, Jordan Rae, earned a top-10 finish in the Women's Indoor Pentathlon on Friday in Pittsburg, Kansas. She earned 3404 points across her five events. This performance earned Rae the No. 2 spot in school history for the Women's Indoor Pentathlon.

Rae tied for third place in the high jump with 806 points, her best event of the weekend. She had top-15 finishes in her other four events on the weekend. In the 60m hurdles she earned 842 points with a time of 9.33. In the shotput, Rae threw a dis-

Moving to short distance, the Texans had three athletes etch their names into history. Taylor McFarland, Rese Schoonover and Caterrin Cox all moved up to the No. 2 overall spot in school history for their respective race. McFarland claimed her first of two spots in the record books with an outstanding performance in the women's indoor 400m race. She ran a 56.36 moving her to No. 2 overall in the 400m for Tarleton State.

Moving to hurdles, McFarland alongside teammate Schoonover share the No. 2 spot for the indoor women's 60m hurdles. Both student athletes ran an 8.89 to set the new school record. Also moving into the top-10 is Mikayla Watson with a time of 9.22.

In the men's hurdles, Cox earned the No. 2 spot in school history in the indoor men's 60m hurdles. Cox ran a 7.96 etching his name in the Texan history books. The Purple and White had two other student-athletes move into the top-10 in Omar Mahmoud and Nathan Franco. Mahmoud ran an 8.20 earning him sixth place while Nathan Franco moved into ninth place with a time of 8.32.

The No. 2 spot in the Indoor Men's High Jump now has a new owner. Davi Torres took control of second place in school history with a jump of 2.06m (6.76 feet).

The Purple and White will head west next time as they will travel to Albuquerque, New Mexico, to compete in the New Mexico Team Open Jan. 26-27.

STEPHENVILLE - Tarleton State has commanded the all-time series against Incarnate Word, but the Cardinals forced a tough offensive outing by the Texans and snapped the Purple and White's ninegame winning streak in the matchup.

The Texans (2-6, 1-1 WAC) fell 57-42 to the Cardinals (5-2, 0-0 SLC) on Sunday at Wisdom Gym in Stephenville, their first loss to UIW since 2008. The Texans still lead the all-time series 20-9.

Turnovers plagued Tarleton State in this one, as the Texans gave it away 25 times to UIW's 12. The Cardinals 41-29, but UIW outshot them 21-of-55 (.382) to 17-of-50 (.340). The Cardinals entered the game with the 17th best scoring defense in the nation at allowing just 52.2 points per game.

The Cardinals raced out to a 13-2 lead and never looked back. Tyler Jackson nailed a three at the first quarter buzzer to make it a 16-7 Texan deficit, but it was a similar second frame and UIW took a 29-16 lead into the locker room.

Tarleton's offense picked up in the third quarter, and after UIW led by 20, the Texans cut it cit after three, 43-30. UIW maintained control in the fourth though to earn its fourth straight victory.

Teresa Da Silva led the Texans with 11 points and two blocks. Jackson and Elise Turrubiates each added seven points, with Jackson grabbing four rebounds, and Turrubiates adding six. Faith Acker secured a team-high eight rebounds.

UIW was led by Destiny Terrell's 16 points on 7-of-8 shooting and seven rebounds. Aliyah Collins led the bench with 12 points (4-8), and Nina De Leon Negron chipped in 10 points and three steals.

Off shooting night leads to Tarleton road loss at Northwestern State

Tarleton State entered the Wednesday, Dec. 6 rescheduled game No. 1 in the WAC in field goal percentage (.460), but an off shooting night led to a Texan loss at Northwestern State.

Tarleton State University

NATCHITOCHES, LA -Tarleton State entered the Wednesday, Dec. 6 rescheduled game No. 1 in the WAC in field goal percentage (.460), but an off shooting night led to a Texan loss at Northwestern State.

The Texans (2-5, 1-1 WAC) shot below 40% for just the second time this season and had a season-worst night from long range (1-10). Despite all that, they still had a chance to win at Prather Coliseum in Natchitoches, Louisiana, but ended up falling 59-51 to the Lady Demons (4-4, 0-0 SLC).

Teresa Da Silva returned to the starting lineup and led the Texans with 11 points on 4-of-7 shooting. Jakoriah Long scored nine points (3-5 FG), Elise Turrubiates tallied eight points (3-5 FG) and six rebounds, while Faith Acker added four points, five rebounds and four blocks.

The Texans and Lady Demons were tied 40-40 entering the fourth quarter. Northwestern State won the final frame 19-11 as they outshot Tarleton 6-of-9 (.667) to 3-of-16 (.188). The Texans actually outshot the Lady Demons in the game 19-of-56 (.339) to 19-of-59 (.322), but were outrebounded 45-34.

It was a slow start to this one, with a combined three points over the first four minutes of action. The margin was one-possession for either team over the first eight minutes, with Northwestern State taking a 13-9 lead into the second quarter.

After Northwestern State led 16-9, Tarleton fought back with a 7-1 run, then tied the game at 20-20 with 3:15 to play in the second quarter. The Texans held a onepoint lead at halftime, 24-23, forcing the Lady Demons to shoot 6-of-33 (.182) from the field, including 1-of-12 (.083) from beyond the arc in the first half.

The Texans had their best offensive quarter in the third, making 7-of-14 (.500). Neither team led by more than three in the frame, deadlocked at 40-40 entering the fourth.

Tied at 44-44 with 7:14 to play, Northwestern State went on a 10-1 run over the next five minutes to put the game out of reach.

The Lady Demons' Jiselle Woodson scored a game-high 19 points (8-12 FT), adding four rebounds. Carla Celaya notched 10 points, seven rebounds and two steals. Jasmin Dixon finished with seven points, 11 rebounds and three blocks.

American Heritage Girls serve

BY EDEN DUNCAN GILBREATHV

Special to the Hood County News

Troop 3129 of the American Heritage Girls (AHG) bundled up to brace the morning cold Saturday, Dec. 16. Every third Saturday in December the young ladies of Hood County's AHG troop gather to serve Wreaths Across America and to assist the local chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Sons of the American Revolution in honoring the lives of veterans as they hold a ceremony each year.

This is the 10th year for the American Heritage Girls in Granbury. Nationally, the group was born in 1995 when a group of parents wished to make a leadership organization for girls with the Christian faith as its foundation. There are now troops in every state and 15 countries.

Service is a core tenet of the group, as is patriotism making Wreaths Across America a great opportunity for the girls to serve where their heart is. The AHG website states the AHG program is dedicated to the mission of building women of integrity through service to God, family, community and country. AHG is entrusted by the DAR with the special task of placing flags along the path to the site of the ceremonv at the Acton Cemetery. The flags alternate between United States flags and Texas flags. The girls work in teams under the supervision of their troop leaders and parents. The capable young ladies begin this task at just five years old, which is the age of the youngest members. They first hammer a hole with a screwdriver and mallet into the hard ground and then place the flag.

"When 20 or so children, teenagers and adults showed up to place flags for Granbury's Wreaths Across America hosted by the Elizabeth Crockett's Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution (ECDAR), they asked with big smiles, 'Can we help carry chairs. Can we carry those boxes?' AHG's dedication to the community exceeds what most groups do. The girls help set up outside for Wreaths Across America in December each year," shared Peggy Freeman, chair for the Constitution events for the ECDAR.

The local AHG troop has partnered with the ECDAR on multiple occasions, assisting with the Stroll Through Texas History and providing support and volunteers for the award-winning Constitution Camp in Hood County every summer.

"In June, they smile through Texas heat to help with ECDAR's Constitution Camp, facilitating 50 to 90 children in crafts, games and of course, water balloon bottles. Several have served as leaders in small groups. In September at DAR's Constitution Day activities, the AHG crew lead pledges, show respect for the flag, and lend their muscles to set up chairs and tables. The most extraordinary component of this group is that they share our event's purpose. It's not just another badge they earn. They bring their parents to honor the veterans and our history. They show interest in our nation's founders and the Constitution. Best of all, their smiles reflect their love for God," adds Freeman.

AHG desires to serve in areas that align with their ideals and world view. They have hosted diaper drives for

HOOD OUTDOORS Hazards of eating raw freshwater fish

BY MICHAEL ACOSTA

As a licensed professional fishing guide, Michael Acosta shows you how to find them. A Granbury resident of more than 35 years, he has been fishing all of his life, and has been a licensed guide since 1998.

I have covered this before as many folks enjoy eating Sushi. The raw fish-eating craze has been going on for years and has become the norm for many. I am personally not a big fan of raw fish, but I do enjoy eating cooked fish. Eating raw fish is generally not a bad thing, though I get asked questions on occasion if you can eat raw freshwater fish. The answer is freshwater fish that is not cured correctly could infect you with Diphyllobothrium (tape worm). Apparently most saltwater fish don't carry this infection and are preferrable for raw dishes.

Typically, most people who are infected with Diphyllobothrium have little or no symptoms at all especially early in the infection. However, some symptoms can include abdominal discomfort, diarrhea, vomiting and weight loss. Vitamin B12 losses due to the infection may lead to anemia. Some complications include intestinal obstruction and gall bladder disease.

This Diphyllobothrium, as I alluded to earlier, is defined in layman's terms as a tape worm infection. There are several types of these worms, some of which can grow up to 30 feet long. Diagnosis is made by identification of eggs or segments of the tapeworm in a stool sample with a microscope. Eggs are usually numerous, but more than one stool sample may be needed to find them.

This infection is easily treated with medication (praziquantel or niclosamide are used most often). Typical infections occur in humans by eating raw or undercooked fish as I mentioned earlier. Examples of fish include salmon, trout, perch, walleye, pike and other species — usually freshwater fish. Some fish such as salmon live in both fresh and salt water and can harbor Diphyllobothrium larvae. Lightly salted, smoked, or pickled fish also may contain infectious organisms.

What is the best way to avoid this infection? The best answer is to not eat raw or undercooked fish. The FDA recommends the following for fish preparation or storage to kill parasites.

Cooking: Cook fish adequately (to an internal temperature of at least 145° F  $[~63^{\circ} C]$

Freezing: At -4°F (-20°C) or below for 7 days (total time), or at -31°F (-35°C) or below until solid, and storing at -31°F (-35°C) or below for 15 hours, or at -31°F (-35°C) or below until solid and storing at -4°F (-20°C) or below for 24 hours.

I don't want to scare anyone as this infection is fairly rare, but it can happen. I regularly eat fish and our fish is great food to eat. I would make sure you cook your freshwater fish thoroughly or make sure to freeze per the guidelines above. I understand you cannot get infected with fresh raw oysters, which is good news for many of us that enjoy them on the half shell.

So again, I hope I did not affect your ability to enjoy our freshwater bounty. Granbury has some great fish to eat including bass, crappie, catfish, striped bass and sand bass. Keep the oil hot for the freshwater fish!

HOOD COUNTY FISHING REPORT

Water temperatures are in the middle 50s and cooling slowly. Water levels are about a foot low. Striped bass are slow to fair and scattered from Indian Harbor to Mallard Pointe but are good to 8 pounds on 5-inch soft plastics fished real slow. White bass (sand bass) continue to be caught all over the lake typically near channel ledges on the main lake and in the river near Tin Top. Best bait for sand bass are small jigs and slabs worked by bouncing off the bottom in 10 to 20 feet of water. Some good catches of small striped bass and sand bass are also being caught in open water under the birds near Sandy Point.

Big blue and yellow cats to 15 to 20 pounds are possible on cut bait fished on shallow flats just off the main channel mainly on the upper ends. Largemouth bass are slow to fair on soft plastics and slow rolling crankbaits near main lake points and near laydowns in the river above Granbury. Crappie are also good on the upper ends near deeper docks and near submerged structures. Best reports on crappie are north of the railroad bridge.

Comanche Creek (formerly Squaw Creek) eater-sized channel catfish limits continue to be hot on prepared baits. The bass anglers are flocking to this warm power plant lake and are catching numbers of fish near main lake points and on submerged tanks and road beds. Some good catches are reported on drop shot rigs. I do not have a Tilapia report on Comanche Creek.

Granbury Junior Optimist Club wins national title

BY EMILY NAVA Staff Writer

A student-led club known as the Granbury Junior Optimist Club dedicates its time to spreading optimism and serving the community. Just three years after its inception, the club has brought home a first place national title.

The Granbury Junior Optimist Club's service project took first place in an international organization with more than 15,000 members worldwide. In fact, Junior Optimist Club is also known as Junior Optimist International. The Granbury students were awarded for their service project acknowledging the club has completed the most impactful and wellorganized service project during the 2022-23 year. The club started out with 12 members and has grown to over 150.

Houcine Chraibi who is a member and director of the Granbury Optimist Club has helped guide the Junior Optimist group.

"We feel very proud of the recognition," Chraibi said. "Our community faces challenges like food insecurity and child abuse prevention. The JOI Club steps up to tackle these issues, offering a helping hand and spreading awareness. Beyond 'seeing the bright side,' our club fosters empathy, cultivates social responsibility and empowers students to become future community leaders."

The club has focused on two projects monthly, including offering help with Neighbors Feeding Neighbors food pantry at First United Methodist Church as well as reading books to elementary students at Acton Elementary School.

This year the Junior Optimist Club students were busy with helping across the community including helping at the Christmas parade, tying blue ribbons around town to bring awareness to Child Abuse Prevention Month, delivering meals to those in need during the summer school break, serving Thanksgiving meals at STEAM academy at Mambrino, ringing bells for the Salvation Army, painting Pirate Drive and much more.

"My favorite part of being an active member of Junior Optimist is our ability to provide a service organization to our community that is constant," Club Officer Quinn King said. "Whether it be reading to elementary students, helping at the monthly food pantry, or simply honoring individuals that have allowed a club like ours to succeed, it's always such a reward to be able to seek

"As an optimist, I believe that the world needs more optimists," Chraibi said. He said the Optimist Creed is a powerful statement that helps members to live a more positive life. "Promise yourself: To be so strong that nothing can disturb your peace of mind. To talk health, happiness and prosperity to every person you meet. To make all your friends feel that there is something in them. To look at the sunny side of everything and make your optimism come true. To think only of the best, to work only for the best, and to expect only the best. To be just as enthusiastic about the success of others as you are about your own. To forget the mistakes of the past and press on to the greater achievements of the future. To wear a cheerful countenance at all times and give every living creature you meet a smile. To give so much time to the improvement of yourself that you have no time to criticize others. To be

Merry and Memorable Hood County's one-of-a-kind holiday traditions

Special to the Hood County News

The festive holiday season is adorned with the timeless enchantment of Christmas traditions. From the ubiquitous glow of twinkling lights to the aroma of freshly baked cookies wafting through the air, the holiday spirit weaves its magic across the community. While classic customs like trimming the tree and hanging stockings bring a sense of nostalgia, some families in Hood County have added their own distinctive twist to the yuletide celebration.

Lakewood Hills residents Grant and Susan Wood have turned the art of giftgiving into a puzzling affair, quite literally. "Our children decided they only wanted cash for Christmas," shares Susan. This, of course, was unsatisfactory to their parents. "In response, we began devising complicated challenges where our children would have to solve puz to get the code for the money box holding their cash," added Grant. "My personal favorite was the year we used the Fibonacci Code. Their clues included pinecones, the Guggenheim Museum and shells. The game culminated in making their way (blindfolded) through a maze of mousetraps to get their prize." For Hood County residents Ryan and Sarah Harvey-Toth, the holiday season means embarking on an annual Christmas-themed vehicle scavenger hunt. "Most every year, we participate in a Christmas-themed vehicle scavenger hunt," Sarah explains. "It's a $20 buyin per car, and the first one to complete the list gets the prize pot." Ryan adds, "The list includes selfies from multiple Christmas-themed items ranging from someone in a Xmas sweater to the biggest candy cane you can find." However, one year, this tradition took an unexpected turn. Sarah recalls, "When coming down the back road in Acton, we noticed smoke, and then flames, in a field. There was no one near, and it looked close to a shed. So, we felt compelled to stop and check on it. We quickly realized it was a wildfire headranbury resident Kathryn Lospinoso is ready to give the dogs and cats of Hood County a trans-fur-mation they won't ever forget.

Lospinoso — who moved to Granbury from Florida two years ago — just opened her new dog grooming business, Dainty Paws Salon, at 816 N. Houston St.

"It's a small salon, but it's an old cottage home, I think, from the 1940s, and we gutted it and just rebuilt it into a shop instead of a home," Lospinoso told the HCN. "I just love animals so much, so it's a lifetime dream come true basically."

Although Dainty Paws Salon officially opened Nov. 21, right before Thanksgiving, Lospinoso explained she originally started the process of opening her own pet grooming business when she still lived in Florida.

"Financially is really the reason I ended up having to wait so long and just working toward this goal," she said. "But I was about to do it in Florida, and that's when my mom called me. She lives in North Carolina, and she called me, and she was like, 'Let's move to Texas.' I was like, 'Is this a joke?,' and she's like, 'No, let's move to Texas,' so we put everything back on hold and came here."

Lospinoso's mom, Laurel Neth, was not only the driving force behind her decision to move to Texas, but she was also the biggest inspiration for her career path.

"I grew up in a groom shop, because my mom was a groomer," she said. "It's just something that I've had a passion for pretty much all my life."

The community within a school in Granbury has come together to support a local teacher recently diagnosed with stage four cervical cancer.

Christina Lambert teaches at First Discoveries Montessori Academy and has been there for over two years. Toward the end of October, Lambert was diagnosed and has been battling since then. She recently had a port inserted for chemotherapy, which will hopefully reduce the size of a large tumor. Julie Fazio, who is the owner

The luck of the draw — and wheel of Fortune LIVE

BY ASHLEY TERRY

Staff Writer

don't consider myself to be a particularly lucky person. If you knew my extensive history of failed relationships before randomly finding JP on Facebook dating, you would understand.

But I digress. Two weeks ago, I found myself surrounded by a surprising burst of sheer luck when my dad happened to win four tickets to Wheel of Fortune LIVE.

In Wheel of Fortune LIVE, America's Game travels all over the United States to various venues where contestants are randomly selected from the audience to spin a replica of the iconic Wheel, solve puzzles and win incredible prizes, like trips to Paris and Hawaii or big money — up to $10,000 in cash. Audience members can also join in on the fun with interactive games and puzzles, according to wheeloffortunelive.com.

My mom randomly woke up one morning at 3 a.m., turned on the news, and saw a segment detailing how five people would win four tickets to see Wheel of Fortune LIVE in Grand Prairie at the Texas Trust CU Theatre Saturday, Dec. 16.

I didn't think much of it at the time. I entered mine and JP's name and my mom entered her and my dad's name, and I basically forgot about the entire ordeal — until my dad texted me Thursday, Dec. 7, revealing he was one of the ticket winners!

After some disbelief, with me thinking my dad was hardcore pranking me, we realized the tickets were real.

So, the four of us traveled to Grand Prairie — with no idea of the adventures that awaited us.

Wheel of Fortune LIVE is almost exactly like the real game show that airs on TV — except it isn't televised, it doesn't take place in California, the contestants solve puzzles to win points instead of cash, and Pat Sajak and Vanna White are not present during the competition. But other than that, it's really close to the real thing! Hosted by Mark L. Wahlberg — no, not that one — audience members are randomly called onstage to compete against two other contestants in a total of three rounds.

Before the show, attendees were given the option to sign up to participate as a contestant. Although my mom wasn't interested in going onstage, JP, my dad, and I happily threw our hats in the ring.

Once we found our seats and looked onstage, we realized the setup was made to look like the actual Wheel of Fortune set, complete with a virtual puzzle and a gigantic wheel — which we learned later is almost an exact replica of the 2,400-pound wheel on the show.

The announcer began by picking three random contestants out of the audience who participated in the first round.

As the first round began, we realized the concept was almost the same as the game show itself, with contestants spinning the wheel and calling consonants or vowels. But instead of the contestants winning the dollar amount following a successful solving of the puzzle, they were instead awarded points, and the points would help determine the winner following the end of each round.

After the first and second rounds ended with none of our names being called to participate, we started to feel a little bummed out. But then we realized we were in a venue of at least 1,000 people, so the odds that one of us would be called up onstage were extremely slim.

During the final round, we were informed the winners of the first and second a chance to spin the wheel. Imagine my shock and disbelief when I saw "Ashley Terry" flash across the screen!

As JP and I gasped, my mom was still confused — until she remembered I had gotten married in September and my last name is no longer "Inge."

I was so shocked and nervous I didn't even stop to take off my coat before making the trek onstage something the host, Mark L. Wahlberg, mentioned, suggesting I "stay awhile."

One of the production assistants started to explain the rules to me, but my heart was beating so quickly, and my mind was racing like a speed horse; I wasn't paying any attention to what she was saying. Luckily though, I had been watching Wheel of Fortune since I was about 5 years old, so I knew the lay of the game.

The first puzzle I attempted to solve was a Sports Crossword. The announcement elicited groans from my parents and husband as they frankly did not have any faith in me to solve a sports-related puzzle.

But as luck would have it, the puzzle didn't have anything to do with an athlete or the rules of football. It was a crossword, so I knew the words "uniform," "ball," and "scoreboard" already. It was the last word I didn't know.

As I continued to spin the wheel and rack up points, I apparently landed on a Las Vegas, Nevada trip wedge. Unfortunately, I didn't realize each contestant essentially had their own pointer they needed to watch when the wheel spun, so I was really confused when the who participated, I was the one who earned the most. Even the gentleman who went to the bonus round only won about $400.

But as for me, I won a four-day, three-night trip to Las Vegas for two, and an additional $200 for playing in the final round.

My total winnings added up to $1,356 and I will be receiving a Delta voucher in the mail sometime in the next few months.

To make matters even more interesting, the production assistant told me I don't have to travel to Las Vegas if I don't want to. I can use the voucher and the money for the hotel chain to travel anywhere, as long as it is around the same price.

I'm still reeling from the experience and I'm not sure where my sudden burst of luck came from, but I will say one thing: I won't be writing about our future trip to Las Vegas anytime soon, because as they say — whatever happens in Vegas, stays in Vegas.

rounds would be competing to see who would participate in the bonus round.

But they were still in need of one more contestant. JP, disappointed that three audience started to cheer as I was looking at another contestant's arrow. The host chuckled and quickly clarified the "correct" pointer puzzle.

ing toward what looked like a horse stable. I knocked on the homeowner's door while Ryan stayed on the phone with the fire department and woke the homeowner, who was shocked and thankful. The fire department was able to put out the fire without major structural damage or any injuries. We were able to remain on the scene while the fire department worked diligently. Needless to say, we didn't win the prize money, but my children were left with the feeling of being a hero and doing the right thing even at the risk of losing something they wanted to win so badly. And since then, we talk about that night every year while we drive around looking at Christmas lights or participating in the annual scavenger hunt."

For Granbury City Councilman Steve Vale and his wife, Lori, their family tradition has evolved over the years, transitioning from the excitement of Christmas morning to the nostalgia of revisiting past celebrations. "When our boys were young, we lived in a two-story house with their bedrooms upstairs on the other side of the house," said Lori. "We had an intercom system so they could call us if they needed something. On Christmas morning, they were always instructed that they could not come downstairs until they checked with us if they were to do so. Usually around 5:30 or 6 a.m., we were awoken by a sleepy but excited whisper over the intercom: 'Mom, can we come down yet?' We would jump up and go into action! We would grab the video camera (smartphones with cameras were a long way off), get the fireplace going, and have the Christmas tree lights on. The boys would hurry down the stairs, and we'd be able to capture the excitement on their faces at the first look at what Santa had brought them! Fast forward to our teenage years and beyond, we now sit in the living room, usually on our third cup of coffee, waiting for THEM to wake up! We spend the time watching old videos of Christmases past."

These Hood County families remind us that the magic of the holiday season lies not only in the traditions themselves but in the joy, laughter and love shared with those we hold dear. As the lights twinkle and the festive spirit fills the air, it's the people and their stories that make this season truly special.

Heading into the new year The history of resolutions and some from Hood County residents

he new year is a way for people to come together to celebrate the end of the year and kick off the start of a new one with fireworks, food and fun. With the start of the new year, many people also create resolutions and goals as a way for a fresh start. This tradition has been around for quite some time but how and where did the beginning of the celebration of the new year and resolutions start?

In 2000 B.C. the Babylonians celebrated the new year by having a 12-day festival called Akitu that began with the new moon after the spring equinox. This was the kickoff of the farming season for planting crops, and during the festival they would crown their king as well as promise to pay their debts. Oftentimes many of their resolutions would circulate around returning borrowed farm equipment, according to the Farmer's Almanac.

This Babylonian New Year was adopted by the ancient Romans along with the idea of resolutions. The timing of when the new year kicked off was shifted with the Julian calendar in 46 B.C. which declared Jan. 1 the start of the new year.

The month of January was named after the twofaced Roman god, Janus. Janus looked forward to new beginnings with one face and backward for reflection and resolution. The Romans would offer sacrifices to Janus as a promise of good behavior the next year.

Resolutions also came from medieval knights who would vow to chivalry by placing their hands upon a peacock, known as the "Peacock Vow." Later, in the 17th century, the practice of setting goals continued to grow and become more common, and in the 1900s, resolutions became more of a spiritual idea to work on one's character and work ethic.

According to a global survey done by Statista in October, the most popular resolution for 2024 is to save more money followed by exercising more and eating healthier. Last year's poll showed the most popular resolution was to exercise more followed by eating healthier and losing weight.

The HCN asked residents in Hood County to share their resolutions for the upcoming new year.

"Go into the new year with more love toward people, not hate," Eric Clayton said. "Mend broken relationships, whether family or friends, and help those in need.'

"Be Kind. Put down the phone and talk to people," Rhonda Cardena shared.

"Be a better person, help those in need and never be greedy," Judy Bell Godel told the HCN.

Many in the county said they weren't making resolutions as they would rather make short-term goals or not worry about setting any.

Some helpful tips for making resolutions include avoiding negative words like "quit" or "stop." The simpler the resolution the easy it will be to follow. It is very easy to not follow through with your resolution if it is too big a goal. A goal must be measurable for you to be able to see if you have made progress. It is important to also set aside time to check up on your goals and track your progress. No matter what, the most important part of making a resolution is to not knock yourself down if you fail and to always get back up.

all different types of educational material such as math, science, geography, history, spelling and reading," Fazio told the HCN. "The areas in the classroom that Christina makes extra fun for the kids are the practical life and art areas. These always have some creative twists in them to keep the kids engaged."

Fazio also noted that Lambert is certified as a childcare director within the state of Texas.

"Her personality is amazing. She always has a smile on her face. She lights up the room when she walks in. The parents and students adore her because she's always the one who makes them feel welcomed by consoling a child that is having a hard day or asking a parent about their long day after work," Fazio said.

Due to the cancer, Fazio added that Lambert is in a lot of pain and has been having a rough time.

After hearing about Lambert's diagnosis and learning she has no insurance, Fazio Fazio knew this fundraiser idea needed to happen and over 150 items – cakes, pies, cookies and Christmas treats galore were brought to the Dec. 15 fundraiser by families of First Discoveries.

Over $1,800 dollars was raised for Lambert and Fazio was thrilled. She plans to have more fundraisers after the holidays are over.

"She will rise above this and find in herself a strength she never knew she had. We will all be here on the sidelines cheering her on and supporting her the entire way," Fazio said.

Ladybug Garden Club decorates depot for over four decades embers of Granbury's Ladybug Garden Club decorated the Granbury Depot Monday, Nov. 20, as they faithfully have for well over four decades. The group cheerfully convenes each year to bring a bit of holiday magic to the historic structure via Christmas décor, making ready for the Tour of Homes that takes place the first weekend in December.

The Ladybug Garden Club has been in existence since 1978, admittedly not as long as the structure it decorates which has stood since 1914. The club has decorated the depot annually throughout the existence of the club. The depot, which once was a bustling center of travel, is now a quiet icon of the community and home to the Hood County Genealogical/ Historical Society (HCGHS).

The Hood County Genealogical Society is a nonprofit that lacks the funds to decorate its historic home as well as its members would probably like so the Ladybug Garden Club faithfully does this for them. The Ladybug Garden Club is a nonprofit as well, but it pools resources, talents and funds to make the historic site more festive.

Santa and Mrs. Claus cutouts received a sprucing-up last year as member Cheryl Moore and her daughter, Heather Moore, both artists, repainted the pieces. Bows were made to adorn the great steel fences to add to the garland. Members Jim and Mary Sutton provided their airplane hangar to house the decorations during the rest of the year.

"The Ladybugs' dedication to our Christmas decorating of the depot is inspiring and brings joy to all of us who participate each year," said Cathy Gaines, Ladybug club president and chair of the decorating committee. She added, "It's the perfect start to the holiday season and the taking down of the depot decorations is a perfect bookend to the season!"

Granbury Opera Guild celebrates 10th anniversary since previous renovation

MARY VINSON | HOOD COUNTY NEWS

The Opera Guild board's Evening of Entertainment 10-year Opera House Renovation Celebration event on Dec. 12 at Lake Granbury Conference Center was the perfect time and place to mark the 10th anniversary of the Granbury Opera House reopening. After two years of closure for a complete renovation, the opening night for the first show, "A Christmas Carol," was December 12, 2013. Pictured at the podium former Managing Director Marty Van Kleeck enjoys sharing her unique Granbury Opera House insights and memories as she addresses the crowd.

The Granbury Opera Guild, an all-volunteer organization that works to support the Granbury Opera House and the arts, celebrated some renovations of the Opera House at an event Dec. 12 at the Granbury Convention Center.

The Guild has operated since 1978 and its mission is to support the many arts in the town of Granbury. Through the Guild's effort, the organization has uplifted and upgraded the Opera House.

The sold-out event Dec. 12 celebrated the 10th year anniversary since the Granbury Opera House reopened after being closed for two years due to the $3.5 million renovation. The first show after the renovation was "A Christmas Carol;" the Granbury Theatre Company has staged 79 Broadway productions at the venue since then.

The most recent upgrades include an expansion of the back portion of the Opera House to allow for a bigger rehearsal space, stage and prop area.

The event featured speakers including Tammy Dooley from Visit Granbury, City Manager Chris Coffman and President and Director of Granbury Theatre Company Micky Shearon. President of the Opera Guild Gari Wise told the HCN attendees came from all over to attend this event and support the efforts of the guild.

At the event, plaques were presented containing the names of those who purchased seats in the Opera House back in 1998 and 1999.

"It has been very rewarding (to be part of the Opera Guild). It's given me a purpose and it's helped me be a part of the community and get to know some pretty awesome people," Wise said. "There's a lot of opportunities here and this is a very giving town."

When it comes to the upcoming year, Wise looks forward to the opportunity to give out more scholarships for young thespians. Just this past April, eight students were awarded scholarships totaling $5,450 dollars.

The Opera Guild also plans to paint the interior of the theater and to convert the gas lights in front of the building to electric.

"Anyone who has lived in Granbury for enough years knows that 'as goes the Opera House, so goes the economy on and around the Granbury Square.' The Opera House is the engine that drives the economic train," Shearon said. "The initial $4 million investment by the City of Granbury to fund the Opera House renovations back in 2012 is, in my opinion, the best money the city has ever spent. The Granbury Theatre Company that manages and operates the Opera House consistently welcomes over 50,000 people into the Opera House for its performances every year. The impact that has on local shops, restaurants, hotels, bed-and-breakfasts, etc. is enormous.'

"I grew up in a groom shop, because my mom was a groomer. It's just something that I've had a passion for pretty much all my life."

KATHRYN LOSPINOSO Owner of Dainty Paws Salon

Services provided by Dainty Paws Salon include full haircuts, coloring, mini grooms, line cuts, spot shavings, baths and nail trims.

"I do a tidy service that is basically for people who enjoy bathing their own dog and just want to come and get like a little face or feet clean up," Lospinoso said. "I do cats. Really, whatever somebody asks for, basically, we just try to accommodate."

An aspect that makes Dainty Paws Salon unique, she said, is the fact that it's more of an "upscaletype setting" compared to other dog grooming businesses.

"It's probably more affordable than most places as well," Lospinoso said. "All my prices include tax already, so they seem similar to everyone else's (pricing), but they already include the tax so there's no up-charging."

With the tagline "Where happiness happens," Lospinoso also aims to turn Dainty Paws Salon into a comfortable space for both customers and their pets.

"We have high transparency where you see everything," she explained." A lot of places I know, you can't go past the front desk, so you don't really know what's happening to your animal at all, so I try to give people that welcoming feel, like come on in, look at my tubs, look at my equipment and the things I'm doing, so that they really feel confident and comfortable."

Additionally, for customers whose pets don't get along with other animals, Lospinoso will book private and "special" appointments.

"If somebody has a cat, I will do them on Monday or a time even in the evenings when no dogs are here," she said. "I even do a special appointment where people can actually stay with their pet during the groom if they would like to."

Lospinoso also prides herself on having a facility that's clean and "super safe," as she used ideas and elements that were missing from other grooming shops to perfect her own business model.

"Since I was able to do the floor

Lospinoso provides many dog and cat grooming services like coloring, full haircuts, mini grooms, line cuts, spot shavings, baths and nail trims.

Since I was able to do the floor plan myself, I was able to put in a double gate — that way when you open the door, there's no chance of a dog escaping out the front door," she explained. "I just made sure to really try to 'wow' people, so when they come in, it's super clean and super pretty 'cause everybody's starting to get concerned about the new respiratory disease that's going on with dogs, even though from what I know there's no cases in Texas yet, but I've still had lots of people ask me. So, we just do a lot of safety measures like disinfecting in between every client — just normal stuff that sometimes you just don't see at other shops."

lived in Granbury for two years, she said she already loves it here, and hopes to make her name known with her new business.

"Everyone has been so welcoming, and I just really love everybody in the community that I've had interactions with," she said. "I couldn't have moved to a better place."

Dainty Paws Salon is open Tuesday through Saturday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Lospinoso recommends clients call first and schedule an appointment to ensure availability.

"I'm super passionate, I love animals, and when (customers) bring their animals to me, it's like my own dogs for the time that I have them," Lospinoso added. "I just love them so much and (I want to make sure that) they're safe and they're comfortable."

You remember winters like this

BY TERRI SCHLICHENMEYER

Short, cloudy days, long stormy nights, both perfect for curling up with a warm blanket and reading until it's time for bed – and then reading there, too. So this winter, why not cuddle with one of these great unique history books?

For readers who love to compare life a century ago versus now, "1932: FDR, Hoover, and the Dawn of a New America" by Scott Martelle (Citadel Press, $28.00) will be just the ticket. The Great Depression and the Dust Bowl both cloaked America in hard times and in the midst of it, two men - both Presidents had different ideas on how to fix things. Readers who enjoy mixing history in their politics will want this book.

Want to take your history back a little farther? Then look for "God Save Benedict Arnold: The True Story of America's Most Hated Man" by Jack Kelly (St. Martin's Press, $29.00). Sure, Arnold was a traitor and a snake but, says Kelly, he was a hero before that. This book doesn't try to erase that which made Arnold a symbol of backstabbing and turncoating, but readers will still be very surprised at what they'll learn.

Historians know America's never had a monarchy but in "Flight of the WASP: The Rise, Fall, and Future of America's Original Ruling Class" by Michael Gross (Atlantic Monthly Press, $30), you'll read about very elite Americans who heavily influenced politics, economics, society, racial attitudes and religion decades ago. The more things change, the more they stay the same? Maybe – and you gotta read this book to understand why.

For the history lover or women's history reader who also craves a bit of romance, look for "Between Two Worlds: Jewish War Brides After the Holocaust" by Robin Judd (The University of North Carolina Press, $29.95). It's a book about survival, but also of hope and recovery, love and determination, and if you've read or watched anything about the Holocaust, you need to add this important book to your list. Another Women's History book to look for is "Boardinghouse Women: How Southern Keepers, Cooks, Nurses, Widows, and Runaways Shaped Modern America" by Elizabeth S.D. Engelhardt (The University of North accessible."

The game loosely follows the five stages of grief, beginning with depression. Gris is the name of the protagonist, who has recently lost her mother. The game starts with her sitting in the palm of a crumbling statue of a women. It breaks and she falls to the ground. As she walks forward, she finds structures powered by points of light. But it's still very empty, except for Gris, who travels through these landscapes. As she collects these lights, color begins to return to her world. The first color is red, which evokes desert landscapes and sunsets. Gris gets the ability to turn into a stone block so that she can resist the strong desert winds. Later she unlocks other colors, all of which give her new abilities to navigate her environment.

This is one of the nicest looking games I've ever played. It's really more like watching an animated movie, rather than playing a game. Subtle layers of color and translucency make some scenes look like a watercolor painting. As each color is unlocked, the story progresses and Gris gains new abilities.

If you're looking for a puzzle game that will challenge you, this is not it. This was created deliberately to not be too difficult. Puzzles are solved by finding and collecting the points of light. The game is meant to be an exploration of the story, rather than a challenge. There is no death, only discovery.

THE IDLE AMERICAN A blessing of beds

BY DON NEWBURY

Dr. Don Newbury is a longtime public speaker and former university president who writes weekly.

We have eyes to see and hearts to serve, yet somehow don't recognize the importance of both purpose and passion until we see needs up close at life's intersections.

Thankfully, such consciousness - the kind leaving lumps in our throats and guilt in our minds — results when we hear accounts from folks whose lives have changed direction through the pursuit of serving others.

In this season of commemorating the birth of Jesus Christ, in a strawstrewn stable with no crib for his head, we are jolted by a jarring fact. In the here and now, some 3% of American children sleep nightly on the floor, on worn out sofas and even on piles of clothing worn during the day.

Luke Mickelson, living the good life with his family in Twin Falls, Idaho, built a bed for a girl named Hailey, a bedless 6-year-old in his town. Seeing her plight, sharing her tears and determined to do more, he began his fulltime philanthropic pilgrimage almost five years ago. The sole purpose of his nonprofit organization, "Sleep in Heavenly Peace," is to work toward reducing perhaps even eliminating – what he calls "bedlessness."

Luke's calling has helped him sleep better, too, because he has ignited both passion and purpose in the hearts of thousands of others. There's been a national chorus of "What can we do to help?" Bed-building across the land by volunteers in some 300 chapters abounds. There's no end in sight.

"No kid sleeps on the floor in our town" is a slogan not only fostered, but deeply

heartfelt.

Representatives of "Sleep in Heavenly Peace" tell their stories wherever possible, one of their main targets being civic clubs. Thankfully, SHP representative Bruce Crenshaw visited my Burleson Lions Club a few months ago, and the results have been electrifying....

He shared his sense of "passion and purpose" magnificently, and since his visit, 10-12 of our members have built 180 beds for Texas Lions Camp. They've also delivered and set up beds in dozens of area homes and apartments, their joy matching the delight evident in the eyes of children opening gifts on Christmas morning. One much talked-about recipient kissed her bed.

The impact of SHP is staggering. Magnitude of SHP continues to grow in both the USA and Canada. Want a statistic? Some 57,000 beds have been built and delivered in 2023 alone! Volunteers have built, delivered and set up all of the beds. Mickelson walked away from a well-paying job in favor of giving all his energies to the tax-exempt organization — one which has highest standards in the world of nonprofits. It passes the test of truth and integrity long admired and envied by the Dr. Billy Graham Evangelistic Association.

Mickelson and his followers are sharing with thousands of others the joy of "giving back," kindling the fires of passion and purpose that may have slowly been reduced to smoldering, now aflame with energy, support, and enthusiasm....

Stories about SHP abound on the Internet, including its website, shpbeds.org. There's also information on how others can get involved by providing time, energy and support — perhaps all three.

It is noted the organization has some national sponsors, the kind who contribute at least $50,000 annually.

One such sponsor is Lowe's. Here's a grand example of how Lowe's and SHP faithful can "build something together."

On the SHP website, one may identify children who need beds. There will be a positive response, even if it takes a while.

There are many reasons, of course, why this charity has found its place quickly. Though Jesus never had an earthly place to lay his head, he was able to change the world as he traveled the thenknown world on foot.

Crude as the manger was, surely it was immersed in love. He bade little children to come unto him, and, for all of us, he promised assurance of rest. Most of us have more than we need and recognize the importance of a good night's sleep. May God bless you, Luke Mickelson, and all the folks you've inspired.

had previously worked on games like Hitman, Far Cry, Rainbow Six and Assassin's Creed. They saw an opportunity to create a game with artist, illustrator and painter Conrad Roset that was less violent than their previous work. Visually compelling (story-rich) games like "Journey" and "Ori and the Blind Forest" were an inspiration for Gris. The game's biggest challenge was integrating Conrad Roset's artwork into a playable game. Visual and camera cues were used to indicate where the player should go next.

"We tell a big part of the story through the statues while relying heavily on the colors," Mendoza explains in an interview with The Verge. "The colors mark Carolina Press, $27.95). Here, you'll read about women who changed the way we eat, vacation and live away from home, but with a little innovation, business, racism and independence rolled into this story.

And finally, how about the history of fashion? Try "Pockets: An Intimate History of How We Keep Things Close" by Hannah Carlson (Algonquin Books, $35). Men's clothing has them. Women's clothing, not always. We stuff 'em with our hands, tissues, wallets, phones and breath mints. We can't live without pockets but what do they mean? # PECAN PLANTATION BITS Pecan's First Wednesday Bridge Club gears up for new year

BY DIANE LONG

A Mississippi native who has been a Texas transplant for 29 years, Diane Long is a wife, mother, and former English teacher who has written Pecan Plantation Bits for 16 years cumulatively. She spends her time both gathering neighborhood news and collecting new books to read.

he Pecan Plantation Women's First Wednesday Bridge Club has been gathering for card playing and fellowship for more than 40 years, and a new year for the club begins Wednesday, Jan. 3, when the ladies will assemble in the Terrace Room of the Pecan clubhouse for its inaugural bridge day of 2024.

Following registration for attendees, bridge play will commence at 10 a.m., with an intermediary lunch break, and then more bridge in the afternoon. The ladies play five hands at each assigned table and then rotate tables for a total of five rounds of play. The outing usually concludes around 3:30 p.m., and prize money goes to the ladies with the highest scores for the day.

Annual dues in the club are $20, which includes a free lunch in December. Ladies pay a $2 registration fee each month that funds the prize money for that specific play day. Lunch at the clubhouse is available for purchase at each gathering.

Bridge players interested in learning more about the group may contact Vicki Leggett at vleggett19@ gmail.com or 903-388-2200. Reservations are requested and due on the Friday prior to the first Wednesday play date.

In addition to bridge play, fellowship, mimosas and a delicious lunch prepared by the clubhouse staff at the December meeting, ladies thanked the club's coordinator of many years, Sharon Green, for her dedicated leadership.

COLLECTION CENTER

Pecan's collection center's schedule will not change due to the upcoming Christmas holiday. Wednesday, Dec. 27 and Saturday, Dec. 30 will hold regular business hours for the center.

SPECIAL EVENT

"Beni di Batasiolo" will be the mantra for the evening featuring a wine dinner Wednesday, Dec. 27 at the clubhouse. Call the front desk to make reservations for this event: 817-573-2641.

NEW YEAR

Pecaners will ring in the new year in style with a Las Vegas-styled evening filled with sparkle beginning at 6 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 31 with a cocktail hour. Dinner will come at 7 p.m. and celebratory activities follow at 8 p.m.

"Who's Oscar" will be the band for the night for dancing in the ballroom, and the Brazos Room will transform into a casino where winnings Pecan's Women's First Wednesday Bridge Club has enjoyed card playing and fellowship for more than 40 years, and a new year for the group commences Wednesday, Jan. 3. At its December meeting, the ladies enjoyed bridge play, delicious food, fellowship, and gave a special salute to longtime club coordinator Sharon Green. Pictured at the event are (left to right): Kaye Norman, Bunny Earley and Sue Bates.

will equal entries for fabulous prizes. The night will culminate with a New York New Year's Eve good night at 11 p.m. Call the clubhouse front desk to secure a spot: 817-573-2641.

CARD DESIGN

In 2024, Pecan will be issuing membership cards that will allow secure transactions at club facilities by using a card instead of giving out a member number. The cards will work like a debit card and thus curb errors of incorrectly charging members' accounts.

Pecan is seeking member input for the design of the front of the card, and any member may submit a proposal idea for consideration. Pecaners received email with specific instructions about inclusions on the card in addition to a blank template for design use. Submissions should be emailed to communications@ppoaweb.com or delivered to the clubhouse front desk by Sunday, Dec. 31.

GOLF INFO

The golf pro shop will be closed Sunday, Dec. 24, but the course will be open for first-come, first-served play on both Christmas Eve and Monday, Dec. 25, Christmas Day. Players may use the signup page outside the pro shop door; golf cart rentals will not be available. Regular hours will run Sunday, Dec. 31, but the course will be closed as normal Monday, Jan. 1. Signups for the LGA Low Gross/Low Net Tuesday, Jan. 2 is happening on ForeTees. Registration in the Tuesday morning shotgun Jan. 2 is also on ForeTees by end of business day Sunday, Dec. 31.

TENNIS TIME

"Camp Frosty Junior Tennis Camp" will find Pecan tennis players ages 6 to 12 at the courts Wednesday, Jan. 3 and Thursday, Jan 4 from 1 to 3 p.m. Tennis, hot chocolate, and reindeer games are on the menu. Sign up in the tennis shop: 817-579-9412.

MUSIC CLASS

For Pecaners whose New Year's resolution involves learning to play the guitar, the PAC has just what they need. Beginner guitar lessons will commence on Thursday, Jan. 11 with Carolyn Troland leading students, teaching them how to play the guitar in 6 to 8 weeks without reading music. Lessons happen each Thursday from 5 to 6 p.m., and participants should bring a guitar with newer strings already in place. This offering is for adult students only, and participants should plan on attending all lessons (each with a $25 fee). Sign up at the PAC by calling 817-573-7952, and contact instructor Carolyn for more information at 580-369-8485.

TRAVEL GROUP

Pecan's Recreational Vehicle Club enjoyed a fall rally to the Stonewall and Fredericksburg areas, followed by a collective meeting of the club in the home hanger of Don and Kim McDonald. The event boasted a "Cheeseburger in Paradise" theme in honor of the late Jimmy Buffet, and attendees enjoyed dinner from the grill. Nominees for the 2024 board were taken, as well as rally plans for 2024 made. For complete information on the RV Club and its activities, contact David Kroon at dk1341@swbell. net.

SYMPATHY

Our deepest sympathy goes to the family of Butch Aust, who passed away Nov. 21.
