There are no counties with an unemployment rate higher than 10% in September.

Jackson County, at 5.6%, is down more than two percentage points from the previous month.

Once again, Moore County has the state's lowest unemployment rate. Its September figure of 3.2% is 1.9 percentage points lower than the previous month's rate.

Shelby County continues to have Tennessee's highest unemployment. While its September rate is 9.9%, the new figure represents a drop of 3.7 percentage points from where it was in August.

Employee Healthcare Discussed

staff writer

The Jackson County Budget committee met last Thursday and discussed covering a larger portion of their employees' healthcare coverage as premiums increase.

Jackson County Executive Randy Heady explained that insurance premiums are increasing for all employees; however, the county wants to assume the increase, which would keep the employees' contributions at the same amount per pay period and the Jackson County 911 Board is following suit.

"The health insurance is going up by 5%," Heady said. "I know that is everyone in local government."

He informed the committee that all surrounding counties have also increased by 5% and requests that the county assume the increase.

"There is plenty of money in the insurance line to cover that," he said. "It is not like we'll be appropriating more money because it is already there."

Currently the county pays $377.34 per month for each employee on the county's health insurance plan, making the individual employee contribution $56.66.

Heady requested that the county would assume the additional 5%, bringing the county contribution up to $401.34 while the individual contribution remains at the same rate.

Committee members on the 911 Board explained that they will follow suit in order to retain quality employees.

With no further business to discuss, the meeting adjourned.

All members were present for the meeting.

Save Money This Halloween

This year calls for a different approach to Halloween celebrations, and Goodwill has decor, costumes and DIY materials that can help families have fun while staying safe, two area Halloween enthusiasts said.

Andria Goodrow is such a fan of Halloween; she had planned to hold her wedding — complete with costumes and spooky decorations — on Oct. 31 this year. She and her fiancé decided to postpone the event because of the pandemic, but the 35-year-old Nashville resident still has holiday plans.

"I've always loved Halloween, so I'm trying to be more creative this year and get in the spirit," she said. "I don't want Halloween to be a disappointment."

Like many people, she is planning to participate in a virtual costume party using an internet video chat service. She is also hosting an outdoor, socially distanced charity event. And like thousands of people in middle and west Tennessee do every year, Goodrow will shop for a one-of-a-kind, do-it-yourself costume and decor from Goodwill.

"By going to Goodwill, you're able to find fun items and repurpose them, which is good for the environment. You're also able to save money, which I think is important for a lot of people during the pandemic," she said. "And if you go the DIY route, like me, you can get the whole family involved in something creative and rewarding."

Goodrow offered

some quick ideas for DIY costumes for a virtual party, including a "cat lady" in curlers — wearing a nightgown

Early Voting Currently Underway

staff writer

Early voting began Wednesday Oct. 14 for the November election and Jackson County election officials are continuing to encourage voters to take advantage of it.

"We strongly encourage people to early vote," said Elections Administrator Clay Thaxton. "It's a real easy way of doing it. You don't have to worry about what the weather is going to be like or the lines are going to be like on Election Day."

So far, the election office has received 1,931 voters, both in-person and absentee. According to Thaxton, the office is expecting many more to vote before early voting is over.

In the 2016 November election nearly 1,800 voted early. Jackson County is two days away from the end of early voting and experiencing record turnout.

"It is more than normal, but it was expected this cycle," Thaxton said.

Early voting hours are 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday at the Courthouse. On Wednesday and Saturday, voting hours are 8 a.m. until noon. This will be the only location available for early voting.

Those who wish to vote early, or on Election Day, need to remember to bring the proper I.D.

Those who do not have a valid photo ID will be issued a provisional ballot, which will not be counted unless they return with the proper ID.

Additionally, voters are asked to refrain from wearing campaign material within 100 feet of the voting precinct.

A sample ballot of all of the elections and candidates vying for seats in federal, state and local office can be found at jacksoncotn.com. Thaxton also informed that on election night, updates will be given live on that website.

For more information, you can call the election office at (931) 268-9284.

TN Promise Mentors Needed

With the Dec. 4 deadline less than two months away, tnAchieves needs an additional 3600 volunteer mentors across the state to support TN Promise applicants from the Class of 2021. Locally, Jackson County still needs seven mentors to meet student demand.

Mentors spend one hour a month assisting students as they transition from high school to college. In 2021, mentors will serve students virtually with the support of an online mentoring platform, tnAchieves CONNECT. This platform will allow mentors to remain engaged with their community while doing so safely from home and on their own schedule. Mentors remind students of important deadlines, serve as a trusted college resource and, most importantly, encourage students to reach their full potential.

"The financial component of TN Promise is critical, but we know that the local support of a volunteer mentor can be a difference maker for students," said Krissy DeAlejandro, tnAchieves Executive Director. "While 2020 presented new challenges, TN Promise enrollment increased 6% this fall. The support of mentors played a significant role in ensuring students achieved their college-going goals this fall. Mentor impact cannot be understated."

TN Promise, in partnership with tnAchieves, allows every graduating high school senior the opportunity to attend a community or technical college, as well as several universities, tuition-free with mentor support. Many of the students that apply for the scholarship will be the first in their family to attend college, and mentors work with students to overcome barriers that previously prevented students from accessing higher education. In 2021, mentors will prove more important than ever before as students work to overcome new challenges.

"Students often need just a little extra help navigating the college-going process," said tnAchieves Deputy Director of Partnerships, Graham Thomas. "Mentors in 2021 will prove critical in ensuring students have the resources and encouragement necessary to achieve their goals. With the introduction of tnAchieves CONNECT, we can ensure mentors and students continue building meaningful relationships in a safe, virtual environment."

Mentors will be provided with comprehensive training and a handbook to help navigate the program. Volunteers will also receive weekly updates from tnAchieves and have access to our staff for questions and concerns.

Potential mentors must be 21 years of age and are subject to a background check. For more information or to apply, you can visit www.tnachieves.org or contact tnAchieves Director of Mentors Tyler Ford at (309) 945-3446 or tyler@tnachieves.org

Historical Society And Museum History

The Jackson County Historical Society and Museum was organized in 1978 with Elsie Fox and Katherine Anderson on the organizing board. Elsie Fox served as secretary for approximately 15 years.

Fed Lucas Haile donated the property that included the Original Methodist Church building to the town of Gainesboro. Ronnie J. West, President of the Historical Society acquired the building for a county museum. Many county residents donated artifacts to the museum. During the early years there were special displays organized for public viewing. The first showing was farm tools, and then Christmas displays involving elementary school children decorated trees for judging.

Today the museum includes displays of an exact replica of Fort Blount and Williamsburgh the first county seat of Jackson County, vintage clothing, toys and books, genealogical information, schools displays, early telephone display, steamboat and medical display, moonshine stills and many other early 1800's antiques.

The museum is open three days a week: Thursday and Friday, 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. and Saturday 9 a.m. until 12 p.m. Any other time on request.

Get To Know About Jack Of The Lantern

The toothy grins of jack-o'-lanterns are as much a part of Halloween as candy corn and costumes. Even though these carved pumpkins have become synonymous with Halloween, the festive gourds weren't always tied to the October holiday.

The history behind jack-o'-lanterns is not entirely known and there are multiple origin stories, but people may have been making these carvings for centuries.

One Tale Traces The Origin Back To Ireland And A Popular Irish Myth.

According to History.com, the tradition involves a man nicknamed "Stingy Jack." As the story goes, Stingy Jack invited the devil to share a drink with him. Being the cheapskate his name implies, Jack didn't want to pay for the drinks, and he convinced the devil to turn himself into a coin that Jack could use to buy the beverages. After the devil transformed, Stingy Jack instead pocketed the money and placed it next to a silver cross, which prevented the devil from changing back into his original form. Jack made the devil promise that should Jack die, he wouldn't claim his soul. Eventually Jack freed the devil, but not before he tricked him again with another con.

When Stingy Jack Eventually Died, Legend States God Would Not Allow Such A Trickster And Unsavory Character Into Heaven.

The devil could not claim Jack's soul as promised, but he was upset by the tricks Jack had played. In turn, the devil then sent Jack off to wander the dark night infinitely with only a burning coal to light the path. Stingy Jack put the coal into a carved-out turnip and has been traversing the planet ever since. Irish storytellers first began to refer to Jack's specter as "Jack of the Lantern." Eventually the name was shortened to "Jack O'Lantern."

There are other origin stories regarding jack-o'-lanterns.

Some say the term originated in 17th century Britain, where it was often customary to call men whose names were unknown a common moniker like "Jack." Night watchmen who carried lanterns might have been called "Jack with the lantern."

Other Theories Connect Jack-O'-Lanterns To The Celtic Pagan Practice Of Hollowing Out Root Vegetables And Carving Them With Grotesque Faces.

Illuminated by coal or candles, these items served to ward off evil spirits. When settlers came from Europe to America, where turnips and other root vegetables were scarce, they used native pumpkins instead.

Jack-O'-Lanterns Are Often Seen Lighting Up The Halloween Night.

There are various theories regarding the origins of the carved gourds. While the truth may never be fully known, it's fun to learn about the various origin stories connected to this popular symbol of Halloween.

Jack Of The Lantern – The history behind jack-o'-lanterns is not entirely known and there are multiple origin stories, but people may have been making these carvings for centuries.

The Sinking Of The I.T. Ray

Everyone who has ever lived in Jackson County during the first 50 to 60 years of the 1900s knew and loved one of our highly respected citizens, a plumber by trade, an amateur ventriloquist and magician by choice, who entertained and enthralled the youth of our community. The one and only, P.J. Murphy.

On April 6, 1895, the riverboat I.T. Ray sank in the Cumberland River near the Dudney farm in the Free State Community. On this particular day, Mr. Murphy was working in the Free State community near the scene of the shipwreck.

He related to Mr. B. Richardson that as the boat went down, the gates to the livestock pens were opened to allow them to swim for their lives. There was on board a load of pigs. Everyone knows the sound of pigs squealing. They swam to the shore and were running in every direction, squealing in panic, all over lower Free State, while farmers chased, trying to catch and corral them.

The scene was dismay, unbelief and complete mayhem, due both to the horrible boat sinking and excitement of pigs running wildly.

New England Clam Chowder

Clam chowder, New England's signature seafood dish, derives its name from chaudiere, the French word for "cauldron." The saltiness of clams and pork varies; taste the soup before serving and season if needed.

- 1 cup water
- 18 large (about 4 pounds) littleneck clams, scrubbed
- 3 slices bacon, chopped
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
- 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1 pound (3 medium) all-purpose potatoes, peeled and chopped
- 2 cups half-and-half
- 1 cup milk
- 3/4 teaspoons salt or to taste

1. In a 5- to 6-quart saucepot, heat water to boiling over high heat. Add clams; heat to boiling. Reduce heat slightly; cover and simmer until clams open, 5 to 10 minutes. Transfer clams to a bowl as they open. Discard any clams that have not opened.

2. When cool enough to handle, remove clams from their shells and coarsely chop. Discard shells. Strain clam broth through sieve lined with paper towels into measuring cup; if necessary add enough water to equal 2 cups.

3. In same clean saucepot, cook bacon over medium heat until lightly browned. With slotted spoon, remove bacon to paper towels. Add onion to drippings in pot; cook, stirring occasionally, until tender, about

- 5 minutes. Stir in flour and pepper until blended; cook 1 minute. Gradually stir in clam broth until smooth. Add potatoes; heat to boiling. Reduce heat; cover and simmer until potatoes are tender, about 15 minutes.

4. Stir in half-and-half, milk and chopped clams; heat through (do not boil). Stir in bacon. Taste for seasoning; add salt as needed. Makes about 6 cups.

- 1 bag (10-ounce) shredded red cabbage
- 1 cup apple cider or apple juice
- Salt and pepper
- 1 Granny Smith apple, cored and cut into 1/2-inch chunks
- 1 box (16-ounce) frozen potato and onion pierogies

onion and cook 5 minutes or until golden and softened, stirring frequently. Increase heat to medium-high; add cabbage, cider, 1/4 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper; cover and cook 5 minutes or until cabbage begins to wilt. GELF To Provide Books

Thursday Oct. 22, Governor’s Early Literacy Foundation (GELF) and the Tennessee Department of Education, in collaboration with Scholastic, the global children’s publishing, education and media company, announced the launch of a new K-3 Book Delivery program to deliver 580,000 books to 58,000 kindergarten through third grade students and teachers across the state.

Over 50 school districts are participating in the K-3 School Year Book Delivery program, which will deliver books and literacy resources directly to the homes of students and teachers, at no cost to families or participating school districts. Book packs consist of ten high-quality, grade appropriate books with guided activities and tips for parents to engage with students as they read. Book packs and resources are expected to be delivered to students’ and teachers’ homes by the end of 2020. Additionally, K-3 families will gain access to engagement tips via text.

The program was introduced recently at an early literacy event at Findlay Elementary School in Sparta, and included participation from Tennessee Gov. Bill Lee, Education Commissioner Penny Schwinn, GELF President James Pond, White County Schools Superintendent Kurt Dronebarger and Scholastic Education Senior Vice President of Sales Chris Hedrick. There was a special appearance by Clifford the Big Red Dog®, who distributed books to students and teachers in attendance.

“Now more than ever we are committed to our mission of strengthening early literacy in Tennessee by supporting our students and teachers with high-quality resources,” said James Pond, GELF president. “Together with Scholastic and our state partners, we can work to prevent the ‘COVID slide,’ and create a community classroom to foster lifelong learners and to support students, teachers and families during this time.”

“Independent reading and reading-aloud are crucial year-round practices to help support children’s academic and social-emotional development, both in and out the classroom,” said Chris Hedrick, senior vice president of Sales, Scholastic Education. “With Governor’s Early Literacy Foundation and the Tennessee Department of Education, we’re proud to have an opportunity to reach even more Tennessee families with increased access to engaging, high-quality books.”

“The School Year Book Delivery program is an incredible opportunity for our state to make important early literacy gains,” said Commissioner Penny Schwinn. “This partnership could not have come at a more important time, as many students, families and teachers are working hard to make up for classroom time lost last spring. Building literacy skills early is foundational to lifelong educational success and the department is grateful to GELF and Scholastic for their work to expand access to high-quality books and literacy resources and help students and families read together at home.”

Participating districts for the new K-3 Book Delivery program were selected based on size, 2018-2019 third grade reading proficiency rates and the economic prosperity of the county as defined by the Tennessee Department of Economic and Community Development. Rural districts with lower reading proficiency rates were prioritized, and all three grand regions of the state are represented. Over 50 school districts are confirmed to participate as of this release date. Jackson County Schools is participating in the program. For a full list of participating districts, visit <https://governorsfoundation.org/>.

The new book delivery program comes on the heels of a successful summer reading pilot where GELF and Scholastic distributed 2,100 book packs to students.

The response from children, parents and caregivers was overwhelmingly positive, sharing feedback about the excitement of receiving new books in the mail, the joy of sharing stories together and the magic of escaping through a good book.

“The Scholastic book program was a blessing to many of our families,” said Carmen Hayes, principal of Southside Elementary School in Pulas-ki. “We have dispensed books in the past through the school system, but we found the one with GELF and Scholastic was especially successful because books and materials came directly to students’ homes. Many of the families in our Title I school lack reliable transportation and have not had access to past opportunities as a result. Our neediest students were able to benefit from this program. Also, the high-quality texts were just what our students needed, putting them at the same level of their peers.”

The K-3 School Year Book Delivery program is a part of the At-Home Reading Series to engage students and families to read more at home. Additional supports and family resources will be provided on the department’s Best for All Central: Tennessee’s Hub for Learning and Teaching.

GELF serves as a thought leader, advisor and catalyst to strengthen early literacy in Tennessee by sustaining early literacy programs for children statewide. In addition to the K-3 Book Delivery program, GELF also provides a Birth-5 Book Delivery program through Dolly Parton’s Imagination Library, Storybook Trails, Book Buses that deliver resources to communities in need and a Caregiver Engagement program that provides families with resources to help children develop early literacy skills through reading and learning together. Since the beginning of the pandemic, GELF has distributed more than 2.5 million books across Tennessee.

GELF Program – The K-3 School Year Book Delivery program is a part of the At-Home Reading Series to engage students and families to read more at home.
