

Denson Announces Re-Election Bid

Joey Denson has informed the Jackson County Sentinel that he is a candidate for election to the office of First District Commissioner. His statement is as follows:

I Joey L. Denson would like to announce that I am a candidate for re-election to the office of County Commissioner for the First District in the upcoming August 4th general election. I have lived in Gainesboro all of my life and have worked with the public in many forms during this time. For the past 25 years I have worked for the U.S. Postal Service, for the last several years I have worked out of the Gainesboro office serving residences in town, the Freestate and McCoinsville areas. I have also been a member of and serve as Captain of the Jackson County Rescue Squad for the past 39 years. I am married to Tammy Strong Denson, who works at the Jackson County Middle School and we have two children, Josh Denson and Ashley Pirl.

I feel my experience working with government and the private business sector allows me to make good sound decisions that affect our county and its future. Our county has changed over the past several years, we do not have the tax base we once enjoyed, and the everyday cost of providing services has continued to increase, and will do so in the days ahead. If re-elected as one of your commissioners I will strive to look at every issue fairly, honestly, and with a common sense approach and make the best decision for the county and the people who call it home. The next group of commissioners will be faced with many important issues and decisions that will directly affect all of us who live and work in our county. I feel my experience as vice chairman of the commission, and as chairman of the county budget committee and other knowledge I gained over the years will allow me to make the best possible decisions for all the people of the county on upcoming issues. During my tenure on the commission, I have never "missed" or "passed" on any important issue brought before us, I feel we are there to represent you the people and you deserve no less.

I will do my very best to spend your tax dollars wisely and efficiently and to work with all other commissioners and elected officials to do the best job possible for the county and its citizens. It has been an honor to represent the people of the First District and the entire county over the past years. I will try to see each voter before the early voting and election, but should I miss anyone, I do ask for your vote and support.

Thank you,
Joey Denson

Suspicious Person Arrested

On May 17, 2022 Jackson County 911 Center received a call for service in reference to a suspicious person in the Ellison Goolsby area of Jackson County. The caller was concerned that the individual may have vandalized a camper in the community. K9 Deputy Miquela Sullivan and Captain Dennis Thrasher responded to the call and did locate the individual. The deputies were able to obtain enough probable cause to arrest the individual for Criminal Trespass and Felony Vandalism. During the detainment of the individual he tossed several counterfeit $100.00 bills on the ground and was found to have others in his pocket. He also gave deputies a false name which caused him to also receive a charge of Criminal Impersonation. There is an ongoing investigation into the counterfeit $100.00 bills. The individual was identified as Skiler Blackwell who is also wanted out of another county. Deputy Miquela Sullivan arrested Blackwell and transported him to the Jackson County Jail where he was incarcerated on her charges.

Remembering The Fallen

BRIAN WILMOTH
Editor

Many Americans will enjoy a day off on Monday as we mark the unofficial kickoff to summer on Memorial Day.

For many others, Memorial Day, though, is a day of remembrance for family and friends that have fallen in battle. Before pulling the last remaining troops out of Afghanistan on Aug. 30, 2021, and ending the longest war in U.S. history, our nation had been in a constant state of war for almost 20 years. According to the U.S. News and World Report, just over 7,000 U.S. troops have died in post-9/11 military action. That number is on top of 58,000 service members that died as a result of the Vietnam war from 1964 to 1975, according to the National Archives. More than 36,000 died in the Korean War, and more than 400,000 died during World War II.

Since 1971, Memorial Day has been a federal holiday set for the last Monday in May. Before that, Memorial Day, or Decoration Day, as it was oftentimes called, was celebrated in many parts of the country on May 30.

Although many communities claim to have celebrated the first Memorial Day, the practice of recognizing those that had fallen in battle began shortly after the Civil War (1861-1865). According to most estimates, that conflict cost over 600,000 lives, more than all the other wars combined. The sheer loss of life led to the first national cemeteries in places like Alexandria, Va., Chattanooga, Tenn., Gettysburg, Pa. By the late 1860s, many communities began tributes during the spring, decorating gravesites with flowers and holding prayer services. However, it was not until 1966 that the federal government named Waterloo, N.Y., as the birthplace of the holiday when President Lyndon B. Johnson issued a proclamation to that affect. However, the topic is still disputed.

According to History.com, in 1868, General John A. Logan, who was the leader of a veteran's organization, called for a nationwide day of remembrance, which he called Decoration Day, to be held on May 30.

"(Decoration Day) is designated for the purpose of strewing with flowers, or otherwise decorating the graves of comrades who died in defense of their country during the late rebellion, and whose bodies now lie in almost every city, village and hamlet churchyard in the land," Logan said.

Logan claimed he chose the day because it was not the anniversary of any particular Civil War battle.

At that first Decoration Day ceremony, General (and future President) James Garfield spoke in front of around 5,000 people at Arlington National Cemetery before decorating the graves of the 20,000 soldiers buried there.

For decades, Memorial and Decoration Days continued to focus on those lost in the Civil War. However, as the nation became more involved in larger conflicts around the world after World War I, the focus began to include all soldiers lost in war.

In 1968, Congress passed the Uniform Monday Holiday Act, which established Memorial Day as the last Monday in May in order to create a three-day weekend for federal employees. The change went into effect in 1971. The same law also declared Memorial Day a federal holiday.

Since that time, some veterans organizations have pushed to have the holiday moved back to being exclusively to May 30, claiming that moving it to create a three-day weekend cheapened the memories of fallen soldiers.

"Changing the date merely to create three-day weekends has undermined the very meaning of the day," the Veterans of Foreign Wars said in a 2002 statement. "No doubt, this has contributed a lot to the general public's nonchalant observance of Memorial Day."

Since Congress passed the National Moment of Remembrance Act in 2000, people are asked to take a moment at 3 p.m. on Memorial Day to remember those that have fallen in battle around the world.

So, although you should still enjoy your long weekend, take a moment, or a few moments, to remember the sacrifice of so many young people, and those that love and miss them, as you kick off your summer.

Fun Facts

They lost their way
This flock of swallows was late returning to Capistrano, CA this spring. The birds seem to have gotten lost and, somehow, wound up in Redding, CA, about 600 miles north of their intended destination. When they got there they decided to stop by the home of Gary and Patti Reitemeyer, reports the Association of Mature American Citizens [AMAC]. The couple were away so hundreds of the birds made themselves at home, entering the Reitemeyer residence via the chimney. A neighbor saw at least 20 swallows “breaking and entering” the house and gave the Reitemeyers a heads up phone call. Gary later told a reporter from KRCR-TV: “As we pulled up, we were thinking you, know, 20 birds or so-that’s no big deal. We open the door and it’s like an Alfred Hitchcock movie. There were birds flying everywhere. I mean, it was crazy. We were ducking and dodging.”
May the 4th be with you
The greeting used in the first Star Wars movie, may the force be with you, became quite popular way to say hi after the film made its debut in 1978, says the Association of Mature American Citizens [AMAC]. A year later, according to the Lucasfilm studios, fans started using a corrupted version of the salutation – May the Fourth Be With You. It is said to have gotten started as the result of a political ad placed by Britain’s Conservative Party to celebrate the election of Maggie Thatcher to be Great Britain’s first female Prime Minister on May 4th, 1979. Soon fans began celebrating the date in an unofficial manner but it didn’t take long before Lucasfilms started recognizing the Fourth of May to be an official holiday and a good way to promote the Star Trek series of films.
He’s definitely not acrophobic
The dictionary defines the word “daredevil” as someone who is “reckless and daring.” And that, says the Association of American Citizens [AMAC], describes Brazilian tightrope walker Rafael Zugno Bridi. His latest achievement – a not-so-casual stroll on a cable between two hot air balloons 6,236 feet in the air. The International Slackline Association verified the feat and, as a result, Rafael now has the distinction of being a Guinness World Record holder. Is there anyone out there who might want to try taking that award from him?

A Threat To Global Innovation At The WTO

special to the Sentinel

The World Trade Organization recently announced that the United States, European Union, India, and South Africa had finalized a proposal to waive intellectual property protections for Covid-19 vaccines. Soon, all 164 WTO member nations will vote on whether to implement the proposed waiver.

The terms it outlines would be revolutionary -- that is, in undermining the rules for intellectual property protection.

The bedrock of this system is the Agreement on Trade-Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights, known as the TRIPS Agreement -- which since 1995 has established explicit minimum standards WTO members must meet in respecting one another's patents, trade secrets, trademarks, and copyrights.

All 164 WTO members have adopted the TRIPS Agreement.

Yet some nations in the developing world have long bristled at

TRIPS and sought to modify it. This has especially been true in the case of medicines. The TRIPS negotiations were ongoing at the time of the HIV/AIDS epidemic, and many poor countries were understandably worried that they would have no affordable access to treatments as they developed.

But the TRIPS Agreement includes a provision that addresses this concern. When a country is facing an "extreme urgency" -- say, a public health crisis -- and is unable to secure the medicine it needs or negotiate a voluntary license with a patent holder, it can issue a "compulsory license" to authorize local manufacturers to produce the needed medicine for its own population. But this safety valve does not invalidate the ownership of the patent-holder -- thus preserving the core of IP protection.

When the Covid-19 pandemic arrived in 2020, however, new anxieties arose about the access of developing countries to the vaccines. India and South Africa then proposed a radical departure from the TRIPS framework at the WTO. They sought a waiver of global IP commitments on all health products and technologies related to the prevention, treatment, or containment of Covid-19.

It was telling that the leaders here were India and South Africa, two hubs of global generic drug manufacturing, and that their request was so broad. Rather than simply responding to the public health emergency at hand, they saw an opportunity to set a precedent for burying TRIPS in the future and acquiring not only patents but also private-sector trade secrets.

In short, it was naked commercial interest directed at piracy of medical innovation, dressed up as public health concerns.

It's noteworthy that two years after India and South Africa put their proposal forward, it's become a "solution" in search of a problem. The Serum Institute of India, the world's largest vaccine manufacturer, has stopped producing Covid-19 vaccines because demand is plummeting amid mounting global supplies. The Africa Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, meanwhile, has asked that countries halt all vaccine donations to Africa because "the primary challenge for vaccinating the continent is no longer supply shortages but logistics challenges and vaccine hesitancy." Indeed, by the end of 2022, the world's cumulative production of Covid vaccines may reach 30 billion doses -- or about four for every human on the planet.

Overcoming hesitancy and distributing doses remains a challenge -- but not one that would be budged an inch by a TRIPS waiver. It's time for the Biden administration to rethink its support for the idea and rein in its WTO negotiators.

James Pooley is former Deputy Director General of the United Nations' World Intellectual Property Organization and a member of the Center for Intellectual Property Understanding. This piece originally ran in the Boston Herald.

Programs Prioritize Rural Communities

LINDSAY MOUW
special to the Sentinel

With the passage of the bipartisan infrastructure law last November—a $1.3 trillion investment in our nation's infrastructure—major funding is now available to rural communities. These funds can be used to rebuild roads and bridges, invest in high-speed internet access and clean drinking water, and upgrade electric power infrastructure.

However, just because these funds are available does not necessarily mean they are accessible. Rural communities often find it difficult to navigate funding opportunities because they lack the capacity to research and apply. Grant applications require extensive research, documentation, and technical writing skills. Additionally, some require communities to provide matching funds, a barrier to already resource-constrained communities.

The Biden-Harris administration has made it a priority to address this by launching new initiatives, including the Rural Partners Network and the Communities LEAP, and proposing the Office for Rural Prosperity.

The Rural Partners Network, an effort led by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, launched in April with the goal of transforming the way federal agencies partner with rural communities to create economic opportunity. Federal field staff will be located in rural communities to help them navigate and access federal resources.

The U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) created the Communities Local Energy Action Program (LEAP), which will create a community-driven action plan focused on reducing local pollution, increasing energy resilience, and lowering utility costs and energy burdens for 22 low-income communities, including the Iowa Tribe of Kansas and Nebraska.

Additionally, Congresspersons from Iowa, Nebraska, and other states introduced a bipartisan bill to establish a permanent Office for Rural Prosperity. The Office would ensure federal dollars earmarked for rural communities are actually spent there and ease access to government services for rural Americans.

These three initiatives demonstrate that the federal government is serious about prioritizing rural America. Often overlooked or sidelined due to a variety of challenges, rural communities now have a more equitable opportunity to access federal programs and funding.

A Jumble Of Wait Times For VA Medical Care

by Freddy Groves

A recent audit by the Department of Veterans Affairs Office of the Inspector General outlined what so many of us already knew -- that it's difficult to understand the wait times for appointments and medical care at the VA. It seemed to some of us that the rules changed day by day, that our appointments were at the whim of whatever program was being followed at the time and that there was no transparency about how those dates were calculated. Turns out that we were right all along.

In a perfect world, wait times at the VA always begin with an accurate starting point. If, for example, a veteran wants to seek civilian care because the wait is too long at the VA, he doesn't qualify for that outside care until he's waited a certain amount of time. Precisely when that period of time begins is at the heart of the problem.

Since 2014, the OIG

discovered, the VA has used various methods of calculating wait time and figuring out when the criteria is met to seek civilian care. The rules for those calculations were in writing back to 2014. But without following those rules consistently, wait times varied and wandered all over the place. It didn't help that the website gave misleading information about how dates were to be calculated, with differences between wait times for new patients and what was written in the scheduling directive.

Enter the OIG, with its excellent investigators who always leave no stone unturned. While the recent audit doesn't assign blame (which the OIG won't hesitate to do when it's called for), the VA knew about these problems. The OIG has officially asked the VA to respond and let them know what steps they're going to take to fix this.

To read the details, go to www.va.gov/oig/pubs/VAOIG-21-02761-125.pdf. Don't miss the timeline on the cardiology patient whose provider wanted him seen pronto. There was a 66 day wait.

Fitness Tips For New Parents

Being a parent requires an ability to adapt to change. Newborns require around-the-clock care that often translates into little free time for their parents. When parents get opportunities to step away, exercise may be the furthest thing from their minds. But it could be in new mothers' and fathers' best interests to consider exercise even when their schedules are hectic.

Health experts at the Mayo Clinic advise exercise helps to tame stress, keep the mind sharp and boost the immune system. Staying fit and healthy with a new baby in the house may be easier when parents embrace certain strategies.

Flexibility is key
New parents strive to maintain schedules, but newborns and infants don't always comply. Therefore, committing to a workout at a specific time each day or even a specific duration can be foolish. It's better to take what you can get when you can get it. Don't get hung up on following a specific regimen right now.

Exercise in bursts
Rather than devoting a set amount of time to a workout, fit in exercise when you have a minute. Run up and down the stairs while the baby is napping. Or do some bicep curls while preparing a bottle.

Take a "baby-and-me" class
Gyms and fitness organizations often offer classes for new parents that build workouts around movements that can be done with baby in hand or in tow. Another option is Stroller Strong Moms, a workout group that incorporates kids and strollers. Seek out these programs for innovative ways to get exercise and spend time with your child and other parents.

Ask for time off
Spouses can divide baby duties so that each gets equal time away to devote to personal needs. Factor exercise into some of the plan, even if you can carve out only a few minutes. Another tip is to multitask. Consider buying a stationary bicycle to use while watching a favorite television show.

Go swimming
Swimming works many muscles of the body, and the buoyancy of the water relieves pressure on joints and other areas of the body. When baby is old enough, you can even enjoy time in the pool together.

Prioritize sleep
Do not compromise sleep for exercise, which can adversely affect your overall health. Sleep is essential for human development, says The Sleep Foundation. During sleep, the brain experiences intense activity, building the foundations for how people learn and grow, including the development of our behavior, emotions and immune systems. Adequate sleep is vital for new parents to maintain their health and the health of their babies. As infants grow, parents will find they have more time to devote to exercise. Until then, new parents can be flexible and make time for exercise when their schedule allows.

Matter Of Balance Fall Prevention Program

Matter of Balance a Fall Prevention Program was conducted this spring at the New Hope Baptist church. The program is a collaboration between the Jackson County-UT Extension & the Jackson County Health Department. The program was a huge success with a full class of 12 participants with 11 completing the program.

Matter of Balance is a evidence-based program designed to reduce the fear of falling and increase activity levels, and for those interested in improving balance, flexibility, and strength. Participants learn to set realistic goals to increase activity, change their environment to reduce fall risk factors, and learn simple exercises to increase strength and balance. The program will be offered again in August – September. For more information, Contact Rebekah Melton, FCS Extension Agent at 931-268-9437 or email tmelton9@utk.edu.

Cattle Flies and Control

Jason Garrett

Extension Agent

As warmer temperatures start to emerge, beef producers can almost guarantee they will start to see increased numbers of flies on their cattle. These pest are associated with lower animal gains, losses of blood, infection and disease, decreased milk production and lost grazing time all from being harassed and bothered constantly which results in lost revenue for beef producers. Fly control programs can greatly improve cattle production, health, and profits.

The most common fly associated problems are from horn, face and house flies. Horn flies are blood feeders that that constantly engage painful bites on cattle. These flies are the ones you see on the animal's shoulders, back, and belly on hot days and rain storms. Face flies are the ones that are mostly found around the head, mouth, eyes, and nostrils of cattle feeding on secretions from these areas. These flies are responsible for diseases such as pinkeye being distributed. House and stable flies are more present in areas where high fresh, wet, organic matter is present.

While it's almost impossible to eliminate flies, here are some ways to reduce them from your beef herd according to Extension Veterinarian Dr. Lew Strickland:

- Feed minerals with insect growth regulator in early spring 30 days before flies show up and until 30 days after killing frost.

- Dust bags, cattle rubs and strips with insecticide on it placed at sites where cattle must use it (waterers, mineral feeders, etc.)

- Topical sprays
- Pour-ons
- Fly tags – Wait

until 200 flies per cow to place. Use pyrethroid tags for two years, then switch to an organophosphate tag for one year to reduce pyrethroid resistance. Be sure to remove tags at end of season to prevent resistance problems.

- Use the same class of topicals, pour-ons, and fly tags within the same year. Use same class 1-2 years then rotate.

For any further information on fly control call Overton Extension at 823-2735 and UT Extension offers equal opportunities in programs and employment.

Remember Food Safety This Summer

As summertime brings families and friends together for outdoor celebrations, the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) wants to make sure your summer festivities are food safe. Whether you're grilling burgers, camping, or having a picnic, everyone should always remember to practice proper handwashing and use a food thermometer.

After observing that consumer behavior in test kitchens revealed that people are skipping basic food safety practices, USDA is concerned that consumers are not doing enough to reduce the risk of foodborne illness.

USDA encourages all Americans to follow these food safety tips to keep you and your family foodborne illness free this summer.

Wash Your Hands

Inadequate handwashing is a contributing factor to many illnesses, including foodborne illness. It is important to follow proper handwashing steps before, during, and after preparing food to prevent bacteria from transferring from your hands to your meal.

Recent USDA consumer research (January 2020-2021) showed that 56% of participants didn't attempt to wash their hands during meal preparation. This is a major drop in handwashing attempts from prior years' research. In year 3, this figure was 71% and in year 2 it was 74%.

In addition to low attempts at handwashing, roughly 95% of participants failed to wash their hands properly. The most common reason in the study for unsuccessful handwashing was failing to rub hands with soap for at least 20 seconds, followed by not wetting hands with water as a first step.

There are five steps for proper handwashing: wet hands, lather with soap, scrub for 20 seconds, rinse, and dry.

Use a Food Thermometer

Don't forget to bring a food thermometer to your summer activities. Always use a food thermometer to check the internal temperature of your food to determine if it is safe to eat. Insert the thermometer into the thickest part of the meat, through the side, for the most accurate temperature reading. In the study, only 55% of participants used a food thermometer to check the internal temperature of the hamburgers and sausages they were cooking. Use a food thermometer to ensure the following foods have reached their safe internal temperature:

- *Beef, pork, lamb and veal steaks, chops and roasts: 145 F with a 3-minute rest
- *Fish: 145 F
- *Egg dishes: 160 F
- *Ground meats (beef, pork, lamb and veal): 160 F
- *All poultry (whole or ground): 165 F

Avoid Cross-Contamination

While preparing your meal this Memorial Day, be sure to keep your raw meat separate from your fruits and vegetables. Raw meat and poultry can carry bacteria that causes foodborne illness. To reduce the risk of cross-contamination, USDA recommends using separate cutting boards: one for raw meat and poultry, and another for fruits and vegetables.

In this study, cross-contamination was prevalent. Across all participants:

- *32% contaminated their plates and cutting boards while preparing food.
- *28% contaminated their kitchen sinks.

Holt Appointed Assistant Commissioner

With a strong background in and commitment to the agriculture industry, Andy Holt has been appointed Assistant Commissioner for the Business Development Division at the Tennessee Department of Agriculture and special advisor to the Commissioner.

Agriculture Commissioner Charlie Hatcher, D.V.M. made the announcement.

"Since joining the department more than a year ago, Andy has proven himself as an advocate for Tennessee agriculture and forestry and an integral member of our staff," Commissioner Hatcher said. "No matter the initiative, Andy shows up with thoughtful perspective, fresh ideas, and enthusiasm to get the job done. Governor Lee and I are dedicated to supporting and enhancing Tennessee's economy—particularly in the state's rural areas. Andy's experience and leadership will strengthen those efforts."

Holt comes to this job after serving as Director of the Business Development Division. The division administers several of the department's best-known programs, including the Tennessee Agricultural Enhancement Program, the Agricultural Enterprise Fund, the Specialty Crop Block Grant Program, Livestock Market News and Statistics, and Pick Tennessee Products. As Assistant Commissioner, he will lead division staff in maximizing efforts to increase profitability and viability of farm and forest businesses.

Andy Holt

"As a result of my experience with 4-H, I chose to pursue a career in agriculture at an early age," Holt said. "My hope is that by strengthening our agriculture and forestry economy, we can create attractive opportunities and encourage investments in Tennessee. If we balance our pursuit of new agriculture and forestry investments while also supporting our legacy farmers and foresters, I am certain that we will continue the monumental success that we have seen in recent years."

Holt will work closely with Commissioner Hatcher as an advisor concentrating on agribusiness growth and to support opportunities for agricultural innovation, technology, and entrepreneurship statewide.

For the last 11 years, Holt has taught business, government, and economics as an adjunct instructor at Bethel University in McKenzie. Before joining the department, he served for five terms in the Tennessee General Assembly as the State Representative for House District 76. which includes Weakly County and portions of Carroll and Obion Counties. His prior career experience also includes the Weakley County Farmers Co-Op and Farm Credit Services.

Holt earned a B.S. in Agricultural Economics and Business from the University of Tennessee in Knoxville, followed by an M.B.A. with focus on economics and finance from the University of Tennessee at Martin.

Fitness Tips For New Parents

Being a parent requires an ability to adapt to change. Newborns require around-the-clock care that often translates into little free time for their parents. When parents get opportunities to step away, exercise may be the furthest thing from their minds. But it could be in new mothers' and fathers' best interests to consider exercise even when their schedules are hectic.

Health experts at the Mayo Clinic advise exercise helps to tame stress, keep the mind sharp and boost the immune system. Staying fit and healthy with a new baby in the house may be easier when parents embrace certain strategies.

Flexibility is key
New parents strive to maintain schedules, but newborns and infants don't always comply. Therefore, committing to a workout at a specific time each day or even a specific duration can be foolish. It's better to take what you can get when you can get it. Don't get hung up on following a specific regimen right now.

Exercise in bursts
Rather than devoting a set amount of time to a workout, fit in exercise when you have a minute. Run up and down the stairs while the baby is napping. Or do some bicep curls while preparing a bottle.

Take a "baby-and-me" class
Gyms and fitness organizations often offer classes for new parents that build workouts around movements that can be done with baby in hand or in tow. Another option is Stroller Strong Moms, a workout group that incorporates kids and strollers. Seek out these programs for innovative ways to get exercise and spend time with your child and other parents.

Ask for time off
Spouses can divide baby duties so that each gets equal time away to devote to personal needs. Factor exercise into some of the plan, even if you can carve out only a few minutes. Another tip is to multitask. Consider buying a stationary bicycle to use while watching a favorite television show.

Go swimming
Swimming works many muscles of the body, and the buoyancy of the water relieves pressure on joints and other areas of the body. When baby is old enough, you can even enjoy time in the pool together.

Prioritize sleep
Do not compromise sleep for exercise, which

can adversely affect your overall health. Sleep is essential for human development, says The Sleep Foundation. During sleep, the brain experiences intense activity, building the foundations for how people learn and grow, including the development of our behavior, emotions and immune systems. Adequate sleep is vital for new parents to maintain their health and the health of their babies. As infants grow, parents will find they have more time to devote to exercise. Until then, new parents can be flexible and make time for exercise when their schedule allows.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

A CASE OF "WOMENS LIB" OVER THREE THOUSAND YEARS OLD!

IT IS RECORDED IN JUDGES, CHAPTERS 4+5 THAT DEBORAH (CIRCA 1296 B.C.)... THE WIFE OF LAPIDOTH, JUDGED ISRAEL AT THAT TIME" THIS WAS BEFORE THE ADVENT OF KINGS. WHOEVER JUDGED ISRAEL WAS ACCREDITED LEADER OF ALL THE PEOPLE. DURING THIS PERIOD, THE ISRAELITES WERE BEING SEVERELY PERSECUTED BY A CANAANITE KING, NAMED JABIN, AND THEY APPEALED TO DEBORAH TO RID THEM OF HIS DOMINATION...

... DEBORAH APPOINTED A MAN OF GREAT VALOR, BARAK, TO LEAD TEN THOUSAND ISRAELITES AGAINST THE VAUNTED ARMY OF SISRER, KING JABIN'S GENERAL, WHO HAD NINE HUNDRED CHARIOTS OF IRON! BARAK, KNOWING DEBORAH ALSO AS A GREAT PROPHETESS AND SEER, INSISTED SHE BE WITH HIM ON THE FIELD OF BATTLE AND BECAUSE OF THIS, SHE SAID THAT SISRER WOULD DIE BY A WOMAN'S HAND AND NOT BY A MAN'S... FOLLOWING DEBORAH'S ADVICE, BARAK ATTACKED THE CANAANITES FROM THE HEIGHTS OF MT. TABOR, DRIVING SISRER'S ARMY HARD AGAINST THE BANKS OF THE KISHON RIVER, WHERE HIS CHARIOTS COULD NOT MANEUVER AND, IN FACT, WHERE MANY OF THEM BOGGED DOWN AND WERE SWEEPED AWAY BY THE WATERS, GIVING ISRAEL A GREAT VICTORY!

THE GENERAL, SISRER, ESCAPED FROM THE BATTLE AND SOUGHT REFUGE BY HIDING IN THE TENT OF HEBER, THE KENITE. HERE, HEBER'S WIFE, Jael, SLEW HIM WHILE HE SLEPT--THUS FULFILLING DEBORAH'S PROPHECY AND PLACING HER NAME NEXT DEBORAH'S AS THE TWO PERSON'S MOST RESPONSIBLE FOR THE CRUSHING DEFEAT OF THE CANAANITES!

NEXT WEEK: THE MAN WHO LOST HIS HEAD OVER A DANCE!
