Gov. Lee Announces Passage Of Fiscal Year 2021-2022 Budget

On April 29, Tennessee Governor Bill Lee announced the Fiscal Year 2021-2022 budget has passed through the General Assembly. The budget totals $42.6 billion and includes historic investments in literacy, mental health, broadband, and safety.

"I'm proud that this budget delivers on some of our top promises to Tennesseans and invests in external organizations meeting the needs of our local communities," said Gov. Lee. "Thank you to the General Assembly for their steadfast commitment to our shared goals and establishing Tennessee as a fiscal leader across the nation."

As a result of fiscal prudence and over $180 million in spending reductions from the state agencies, Tennessee is able to return to pre-pandemic priorities and invest in public-private partnerships.

The budget also includes historic investments in some of the state's most pressing issues including:

$100M to provide high-speed broadband to every Tennessean; $250 investment in Mental Health Trust Fund; $79 million to eliminate the 11,400 person TCAT waiting list

$145 million for air and rail transportation infrastructure. "I'd like to thank the General Assembly for their outstanding partnership in passing this historic budget," Department of Finance and Administration Commissioner Butch Eley said. "I am proud of the way state agencies worked hard to curtail spending, allowing us to make long-term strategic investments in the future of our state. This budget will enable us to maintain Tennessee's status as one of the best fiscally managed states in the nation."

The budget includes strategic investments in public-private partnerships, non-profit organizations, and external partners to support Tennesseans' top priorities without growing government. Those highlights include:

Pro-Life & Pro-Family
$500K to Agape Child & Family Services; $250K to Families Free, Inc.

$3M to Human Coalition; $50K to Isaiah 117 House; $183K to Psalm 139 Project.

Fighting Human Trafficking & Supporting Victims
$3.5M to End Slavery Tennessee; $1.2M to Her Song, a Ministry of the Tim Tebow Foundation; $600K to Tennessee Anti-Slavery Alliance.

Career & Technical Education
$1M to Associated Builders and Contractors Greater Tennessee Chapter; $150K to Center for Employment Opportunities; $40K to Flight Foundation; $700K to Niswonger Foundation; $478K to Tennessee Builders Education Foundation

CIS Helps Students With Basic Needs

Ultimate Objective: Increase Graduation Rates

A program at Jackson County High School (JCHS) is seeking to help students achieve success through increasing their attendance.

Communities In Schools (CIS) Site Coordinator Jennifer Fields is working tirelessly to help individual students—as well as their families—with academic and non-academic issues that contribute to absences.

In partnership with Gov. Bill Lee's administration and the General Assembly, CIS coordinators like Fields are working in high schools in rural communities across the state as part of a three-year pilot program to broaden the program's reach among vulnerable students in rural Tennessee.

Fields started her efforts in the school in 2019 and is now in year two of the three-year pilot—and although the program started during a challenging time, she believes it was the right time as she has found unique ways to help at-risk youth.

"The overall goal of the program is to reduce chronic absenteeism,"

Fields said. "It has definitely been challenging since March of last year."

"Not seeing the kids every day for several months made me have to seek other ways to connect with them and be sure that they had the tools they needed to be successful."

Fields explained this program is very much needed at the high school level because when students are elementary- or middle school-aged, when students are consistently absent or homework and assignments aren't complete the blame is normally shifted to the parents; however, as students grow older the blame tends to shift to them—even though they too are still children and many things are beyond their control.

"They are still children who are facing the same issues that have not been resolved for any number of years," Fields said.

"I try to build a rapport with the students and find out the 'whys' surrounding why they are not showing up," Fields explains. "The whys could be anything. We have kids that don't have running water or electricity so they can't wash clothes. And of course at this age level, it is a little more noticeable to the other students, so of course they're embarrassed. So if we could slip them some clothes once a week or try to find them a way to wash their clothes, their attendance will most of the time improve."

Along with lack of access to basic necessities such as electricity and running water, many students also lack access to food, internet, reliable transportation, stable housing—nor do they have family members that can help them to encourage them to go to school.

"There is a mirage of reasons that we can try to come in and help them fix the issues they may have that is preventing them from being in school," she added.

Fields says that while she is there to help the students, most of the success comes when the family is successful and the program can help provide resources for families that are struggling to help meet those basic needs.

"Some of the students and families can be a little skeptical when they are first introduced to the program," Fields said.

She added that she puts a lot of energy into building a connection with the families. "Once they realize that I'm not here to get into their personal business and I am actually here to help, they start to really open up. My goal is to keep building those relationships and connections and helping those kids in whatever way I can," she said. "I know it can be hard for people to trust and they may have had bad experiences with other agencies—you just don't know their history. But if these families had a just a little bit of support and someone that cares, it can aid in the students' success."

With this program, the community can actually become involved in as well—considering the program is called Communities In Schools.

Fields can take non-perishable pre-packaged ready-to-eat food items, hygiene products, clothing (plain t-shirts, socks, underwear, basketball shorts, etc.) monetary donations, and an Amazon wishlist is in the works.

It happened on the Jack Anderson farm at Granville.

A calf, belonging to Anderson's son, Alan, was discovered missing after noticing the cow had not been nursed. After two weeks of searching, the family gave up all hope of finding the calf.

"Then on Saturday, two weeks later," Anderson said. "as I walked by this hole I heard this sound from within. It sounded like the bawling of a young calf. With the assistance of Jimmy Apple and Robert Halfacre we lowered ourselves with ropes down into the deep cave."

Why The Water Matters To Novice Kayakers

Kayaking is a fun way to spend an afternoon, particularly in summertime. If smiles on the faces of kayakers aren't enough to convince you just how fun this sport can be, perhaps statistics can convince you how enjoyable it is to paddle away in a kayak.

According to the Physical Activity Council, which each year conducts the largest single-source research study of sports, recreation and leisure activity participation in the United States, recreational kayaking is the most popular paddlesport in the United States, attracting more than 11 million participants each year.

People who have never before been in a kayak may be intrigued by those statistics and tempted to follow the example set by millions of kayakers who take to the water every day when the weather permits. Safety should be a top priority for all kayakers, and especially for novices. A kayaking course can be a great way for novices to familiarize themselves with the basics of kayaking, including the best practices in regard to staying safe on the water. Local watersports retailers and recreational organizations that take watersports enthusiasts out on the water may offer safety courses, and these courses can be great resources while also helping people get their feet wet before paddling away.

When kayaking for the first time, it's important that novices choose the right type of water for their experience level. Rough, choppy waters can prove challenging to even the most skilled kayakers, and these same waters can be deadly for novices. The following are some characteristics novice kayakers should look for in a body of water before pushing themselves and their kayakers into the current.

Size
Novices should avoid vast bodies of water, such as oceans, rivers or large lakes, until they gain more experience. Large ponds and small lakes can be great places to gain some experience and familiarize oneself with the nuances of paddling.

Demeanor
Demeanor might not be a trait one normally associates with water, but looking at a body of water in this way can be a great way to determine if it's the right place for a novice. If a body of water is raging, with choppy waters and rapid waves, then steer clear. If the water is calm, then it's likely a safe spot for novices.

Traffic
Novices may be intimidated by crowds, but other kayakers can serve as something of a safety net for novices. Kayaking is a fun group activity, and novice paddlers should never go it alone.

Variety
Novices should steer clear of waters that allow power boats. Such vessels can alter paddling conditions quickly, and that can put novices in potentially precarious positions. Stick to waters that allow only canoes or other boats that won't affect water conditions.

Access
Until they get more comfortable in their kayaks, novice kayakers should stay close to shorelines so they have quick and simple access to land should they struggle to get acclimate to the water and being in a kayak.

Kayaking is a popular activity that even novices can enjoy, especially when they take certain measures to ensure their safety.

Novice Kayakers – When kayaking for the first time, it's important that novices choose the right type of water for their experience level.

Facts About The BIBLE

BY JOHN LEHTI

SALOME: ONE OF THE BIBLE'S DRAMATIC CHARACTERS, HAS INSPIRED STORIES, PLAYS, BOOKS, OPERAS, AND MORE THAN ONE MOVIE! NUMBERS OF ARTISTS HAVE PAINTED THIS SEDUCTIVE, DESTRUCTIVE YOUNG WOMAN WHOSE DANCE SO ENRaptured KING HEROD THAT HE VOWED, "ASK OF ME WHATSOEVER THOU WILT, AND I WILL GIVE IT THEE." THAT RASH PROMISE COST JOHN THE BAPTIST HIS HEAD WHICH SALOME DEMANDED--AND GOT--ON A PLATTER! BUT...

ALEXANDRE REGNAULT'S PAINTING--SALOME
METROPOLITAN MUSEUM OF ART, NEW YORK

NO ONE KNOWS IF HER NAME WAS SALOME--IN FACT, SHE HAD NO NAME AT ALL! IN THE TWICE-TOLD TALE (MATT. 14:6-11, MARK 6:22-28) SHE IS NEVER CALLED ANYTHING EXCEPT "THE GIRL" OR "THE DAUGHTER OF HERODIAS." THE NAME SALOME APPEARS BUT TWICE IN THE BIBLE (MARK 15:40, 16:1) AND DESCRIBES ONE OF THE WOMEN WHO, ALONG WITH MARY MAGDALENE AND MARY MOTHER OF JESUS, WENT AT THE CRUCIFIXION--HARDLY THE KIND OF WOMAN WHO WOULD DO A SALACIOUS DANCE BEFORE HER STEP-FATHER!

Even Exchange by Donna Pettman

Each numbered row contains two clues and two 6-letter answers. The two answers differ from each other by only one letter, which has already been inserted. For example, if you exchange the A from MASTER for an I, you get MISTER. Do not change the order of the letters.

Jehovah’s Witnesses’ Year Without Knocking on Doors

BRIAN J. MARLER
JW Of The USA

It’s been one year since Jehovah’s Witnesses worldwide adjusted their hallmark methods of sharing comfort and hope from the scriptures due to the pandemic.

For many, the change from ringing doorbells and knocking on doors to making phone calls and writing letters expanded and invigorated their ministry.

“Witnesses have embraced this shift, finding the good in these trying times,” said Joseph Castano, who reports a 30 % increase in the Witnesses’ preaching activity in his region of northern Virginia and nearby parts of West Virginia. “In fact, I hear many saying, ‘I’m able to do more now.’”

In March 2020, the some 1.3 million Witnesses in the United States suspended their door-to-door and face-to-face forms of public ministry and moved congregation meetings to videoconferencing.

“It has been a very deliberate decision based on two principles: our respect for life and love of neighbor,” said Robert Hendriks, U.S. spokesman for Jehovah’s Witnesses. “But we are still witnesses and, as such, we must testify about our faith. So it was inevitable that we would find a way to continue our work.”

In the bitterly cold winters of Arden Hills, Minnesota, Terri Whitmore normally bundles up for the door-to-door ministry in a long down coat and snow boots—sometimes with removable cleats to help navigate icy sidewalks.

Now she sits at her dining room table, sips on hot tea, and calls people on her cell phone to share the same message. In December, she conducted more than twice as many Bible studies than in any prior month. “I’m having a blast,” she said. “After a nice phone call, it energizes you. You can’t wait to make the next call.”

Her “go-to” topics for conversation with her neighbors are COVID-19, civil unrest, and government. “Some people feel like they have nothing secure to hold on to,” she said. “The power of God’s word is amazing. You can just share a scripture and you feel like they’re settling down.”

Nearly 51,000 people in the United States last year made a request for a Witness to contact them, either through a local congregation or jw.org, the organization’s official website, according to Hendriks. Since the outbreak, the Witnesses have followed up on these requests via letters and phone calls instead of in-person visits.

“Our love for our neighbors is stronger than ever,” said Hendriks. “In fact, I think we have needed each other more than ever. We are finding that people are perplexed, stressed, and feeling isolated. Our work has helped many regain a sense of footing – even normalcy – at a very unsettled time.”

It was nearly 50 years ago that Lorrita Parsons vowed to do the Lord’s work as one of Jehovah’s Witnesses. She could often spend a full day preaching from door-to-door, conducting in-home Bible studies, and standing with a cart displaying Bible-based literature at a local train station. Then age slowed her down. “I just didn’t have the energy to stay out as long,” said Parsons, 83, of Palm-dale, California.

But during the pandemic, she has regularly participated in virtual ministry groups, making dozens of telephone calls and writing more than 400 letters. “None of us like being in this pandemic, but I can go all day if I want to and not tire out,” she said. “I feel like I got a second wind.”

Parsons said the door-to-door ministry will always be her preferred mode of preaching; but when it resumes, she won’t stop calling people and writing letters. “I see the value in it,” she said. “We’re reaching people. Sometimes they can’t come to their door, but they’ll get their mail.”

In the rural areas of Salina, Kansas, where the wheat and corn fields stretch for acres, the Milbradt family sometimes drives miles from one house to the next to reach their neighbors. Now, instead of buying gasoline to fill up their vehicle for the ministry, they spend money on paper, envelopes, stamps, and crayons.

“We look for ways to add variety to our ministry,” said Zeb Milbradt. He and his wife, Jenny, help their boys—Colton, 8, and Benjamin, 6—write letters to children’s book authors, local police, and hospital workers. Sometimes the boys even include with the letters hand-drawn pictures of the Bible’s promise of a global paradise.

“We’ve been able to get the message to people who we wouldn’t necessarily reach otherwise,” said Jenny Milbradt.

A letter Benjamin sent to nurses at a regional health center included a quote from the Bible’s prophecy at Isaiah 33:24 of a coming time when no one will say, “I am sick.” The center’s marketing secretary replied to Benjamin, informing him that she scanned and emailed his letter to 2,000 employees. It “made so many people smile,” she said.

Witnesses have also made a concerted effort to check on distant friends and family—sometimes texting links to Bible-based articles on jw.org that cover timely topics, such as isolation, depression, and how to beat pandemic fatigue.

“Former Bible students have started studying again,” said Tony Fowler, who helps organize the ministry in the northern portion of Michigan’s Lower Peninsula.

“Colleagues at work have now started to show interest. Some have started Bible studies with family members who showed very little interest before the pandemic.”

Castano has been reaching out to Witnesses who had long ago stopped associating with fellow Witnesses. “The pandemic has reignited their spirituality,” he said, adding that many are attending virtual meetings with some sharing in telephone witnessing and letter writing even after decades of inactivity. “It’s been pretty outstanding,” he said.

Fowler and Castano both report about a 20 % increase in online meeting attendance. But perhaps the most significant growth is in an area that cannot be measured by numbers.

“I think we’ve grown as a people,” Fowler said. “We’ve grown in appreciation for other avenues of the ministry, our love for our neighbor, and love for one another. We’re a stronger people because of all of this, and that’s a beautiful thing to see.”

Still Waiting On Records?

by Freddy Groves

Weeks ago, I wrote about the National Personnel Records Center (NPRC) being mostly closed due to COVID-19 with staff unable to process requests for information. I warned that unless you have one of a very short list of essential reasons for asking, your request is going back on the pile to be handled later.

Now, the Department of Veterans Affairs is going to work with the National Archives and Records Administration to get COVID-19 vaccines to on-site staff so that they can return to work to process compensation claims. The VA is going to provide enrollment specialists and medical staff with vaccines provided by the Department of Health and Human Services.

The short list of requests the NPRC is able to handle are true emergencies: records information so veterans can get medical treatment, burials and homeless veterans trying to get into homeless shelters.

And, no, in answer to one Missouri veteran who asked if he could just show up in St. Louis and do his own research. All National Archives research rooms are closed. All museums are closed. No tours, no school visits, nothing involving the public strolling in.

If you have a genuine emergency, you’ll need to fax them Standard Form 180, Request Pertaining to Military Records. The NPRC’s website says its fax machines are down, but here are alternate fax numbers to send your emergency request: 314-801-0764, 314-801-0762, 314-801-0569, 314-801-0984, 314-801-9195. Include an email address.

On the off chance the records you need have already been digitized online, check www.archives.gov, click Veterans’ Service Records. Unfortunately, at this point, all records digitizing has come to a halt.

One has to wonder about the true size of the records request backlog. A letter signed by 185 members of Congress gave the number as 480,000. It also mentions the $15 million given to NPRC to help get the backlog cleared, the emergency number that isn’t answered and the call center that isn’t staffed.

What did we get for that $15 million?

Blast From The Past

It's In – The last giant beam is in tact on the new bridge after two cranes hoisted it into its permanent place. Construction superintendent Jim Gillispie, foreground, said the work should be completed by early spring. The assistant superintendent for the construction project is David Cantrell. The new bridge will be a vast improvement over its predecessor. (From the Nov. 2, 1972 edition of the Jackson County Sentinel.)

These Nursing Specialists Are In Demand

Nursing can be a fast-paced, exciting occupation. Nursing is a vibrant field that includes talented professionals who specialize in various areas of health care. Depending on which type of medicine they find appealing, nurses can work in various settings.

Demand for nurses is high. The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics predicted that the demand for nurses in the United States would soar in the early years of the 2020s. The ongoing global pandemic has increased demand for nurses even more and highlighted how essential these workers really are.

New nurses or seasoned applicants ready for something a little different may appreciate the growth potential in a variety of in-demand specialties.

Geriatric nurse: The population of senior citizens is expected to increase by 75 percent between 2010 and 2030, according to Husson University Online. Many nurses have no geriatric training, making a career in geriatric nursing a viable option - and one that can provide for quality care for the aging population.

Cardiac nurse: The World Health Organization reports that heart disease is the leading cause of death across the globe. So it should come as no surprise that the demand for nurses with a specialty in cardiac health is growing. Cardiac nurses can advise about preventing heart disease and assist in surgical procedures.

Certified nursing anesthetist: This interesting career option involves nursing and anesthesia. A certified nurse anesthetist administers anesthesia to patients under the supervision of an anesthesiologist. These nurses work closely with doctors in various fields.

Nursing midwife: In this specialty, nurses deliver babies and provide health care to pregnant patients. They also are instrumental in offering prenatal and postnatal care.

Critical care nurse: Critical care nurses are especially educated and trained for emergency situations. They are called on to tend to serious wounds and monitor life-support systems.

Family nurse practitioner: An individual who becomes an FNP is trained in primary care health services for people of all ages. The duties of an FNP are similar to a primary care physician in diagnosing and treating illnesses, providing physical exams and prescribing medications.

The opportunities in nursing are endless. Individuals have many options when they decide to become a nurse, and many fields that fall under the nursing umbrella are experiencing a shortage.

Old-School Southern Barbecue Spare Ribs

Two slabs whole spareribs, about 4 pounds each

1 1/2 tablespoon salt
1/2 tablespoon finely ground black pepper
1/2 tablespoon granulated garlic
1/2 tablespoon onion powder
Mop:
1/4 cup olive oil
one small onion, finely chopped
two cloves garlic, crushed
one Serrano chile, seeded and finely chopped
3/4 cup apple juice
1/4 cup cider vinegar
1/4 cup catsup
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoon soy sauce
2 tablespoons hot sauce
At least a half hour and up to four hours before you plan to cook the ribs, peel the membrane off the back of the ribs and cut the flap off. Trim any excess of fat. Mix the salt, pepper, granulated garlic and onion powder in a small bowl. Mix well. Season the ribs on both sides with the mixture. Refrigerate.
To make the mop, in a medium pan over medium heat, heat the oil. Add the onion, garlic and chili. Cook for about four minutes stirring often, until the onion is soft. Add the apple juice, vinegar, catsup and Worcestershire sauce, soy sauce and hot sauce. Mix well and cook for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Let rest for 15 minutes to steep. Strain the mope mixture through cheesecloth or small strainer, then transfer to a spray or squeeze bottle. Set aside.
Prepare the grill for cooking over indirect heat at 250 degrees using Hickory and cherry wood for flavor. Place the ribs, meaty side up, directly on the cooking grate and close the lid. Cook for 1 1/2 hours without opening the lid. Spray or drizzle some of the mop, on the ribs and cook for another 30 minutes. Spray or drizzle more of the mop, flip, and spray or drizzle again. Repeat every 30 minutes until the ribs are tender. This should take 5 to 6 hours total. Check for doneness by sticking a toothpick down into the meat, between the bones. It should slide in easily. Transfer the ribs, meaty side down, to a cutting board. With a sharp knife, cut through the slab completely at each rib. Flip the ribs back over and transfer them to a platter. Serves 4 to 6.

Town of Gainesboro Water Quality Report 2020

Is my drinking water safe?

Yes, our water meets all of EPA’s health standards. We have conducted numerous tests for over 80 contaminants that may be in drinking water. As you’ll see in the chart below, we only detected 8 of these contaminants. We found all of these contaminants at safe levels.

What is the source of my water?

Your water, which is surface water, comes from the Cumberland River. Our goal is to protect our water from contaminants and we are working with the State to determine the vulnerability of our water source to potential contamination. The Tennessee Department of Environment and Conservation (TDEC) has prepared a Source Water Assessment Program (SWAP) Report for the untreated water sources serving this water system. The SWAP Report assesses the susceptibility of untreated water sources to potential contamination. To ensure safe drinking water, all public water systems treat and routinely test their water. Water sources have been rated as reasonably susceptible, moderately susceptible or slightly susceptible based on geologic factors and human activities in the vicinity of the water source. The Town of Gainesboro sources rated as reasonably susceptible to potential contamination.

An explanation of Tennessee’s Source Water Assessment Program, the Source Water Assessment summaries, susceptibility scorings and the overall TDEC report to EPA can be viewed online at <https://www.tn.gov/environment/program-areas/wr-water-resources/water-quality/source-water-assessment.html> or you may contact the Water System to obtain copies of specific assessments.

Why are there contaminants in my water?

Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency’s Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

Este informe contiene información muy importante. Tradúscalo o hable con alguien que lo entienda bien.

For more information about your drinking water, please call Jerry Rhoten at 931-268-9517.

How can I get involved?

Our City Council meets on the first Thursday of each month at 7:00 p.m. at City Hall. Please feel free to participate in these meetings.

Is our water system meeting other rules that govern our operations?

The State and EPA require us to test and report on our water on a regular basis to ensure its safety. We have met all of these requirements. Results of unregulated contaminant analysis are available upon request. We want you to know that we pay attention to all the rules.

Other Information

The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs and wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally-occurring minerals and, in some cases, radioactive material, and can pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity.

Contaminants that may be present in source water:

- Microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, which may come from sewage treatment plants, septic systems, agricultural livestock operations and wildlife.
- Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, which can be naturally-occurring or result from urban stormwater runoff, industrial or domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining or farming.
- Pesticides and herbicides, which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture, urban stormwater runoff and residential uses.
- Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, which are by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, and can also come from gas stations, urban stormwater runoff and septic systems.
- Radioactive contaminants, which can be naturally-occurring or be the result of oil and gas production and mining activities.

In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, EPA and the Tennessee Department of Environment and Conservation prescribe regulations which limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. Town of Gainesboro’s water treatment processes are designed to reduce any such substances to levels well below any health concern. FDA regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water which must provide the same protection for public health.

Do I Need To Take Special Precautions?

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about not only their drinking water, but food preparation, personal hygiene and precautions in handling infants and pets from their healthcare providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbiological contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

Lead in Drinking Water

If present, elevated levels of lead can cause serious health problems, especially for pregnant women and young children. Lead in drinking water is primarily from materials and components associated with service lines and home plumbing. Town of Gainesboro is responsible for providing high quality drinking water, but cannot control the variety of materials used in plumbing components. When your water has been sitting for several hours, you can minimize the potential for lead exposure by flushing your tap for 30 seconds to 2 minutes before using water for drinking or cooking. If you are concerned about lead in your water, you may wish to have your water tested. Information on lead in drinking water, testing methods and steps you can take to minimize exposure is available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline or at <http://www.epa.gov/safewater/lead>.

Water System Security

Following the events of September 2001, we realize that our customers are concerned about the security of their drinking water. We urge the public to report any suspicious activities at any utility facilities, including treatment plants, pumping stations, tanks, fire hydrants, etc. to 931-268-9315.

Pharmaceuticals in Drinking Water

Flushing unused or expired medicines can be harmful to your drinking water. Learn more about disposing of unused medicines at <https://tnpharm.org/patient-resources/disposing-of-unwanted-drugs/>

Water Quality Data

What does this chart mean?

- MCLG - Maximum Contaminant Level Goal, or the level of a contaminant in drinking water below, which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.
- MCL - Maximum Contaminant Level, or the highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology. To understand the possible health effects described for many regulated constituents, a person would have to drink 2 liters of water every day at the MCL level for a lifetime to have a one-in-a-million chance of having the described health effect.
- MRDL - Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level or MRDL - The highest level of a disinfectant allowed in drinking water. There is convincing evidence that addition of a disinfectant is necessary for the control of microbial contaminants.
- MRDLG - Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level Goal - The level of a drinking water disinfectant below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MRDLGs do not reflect the benefits of the use of disinfectants to control microbial contaminants.
- AL - Action Level, or the concentration of a contaminant which, when exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements which a water system must follow. Non-Detects (ND) - laboratory analysis indicates that the contaminant is not present.
- Parts per million (ppm) or Milligrams per liter (mg/l) - explained as a relation to time and money as one part per million corresponds to one minute in two years or a single penny in $10,000.
- Parts per billion (ppb) or Micrograms per liter - explained as a relation to time and money as one part per billion corresponds to one minute in 2,000 years or a single penny in $10,000,000.
- Nephelometric Turbidity Unit (NTU) - nephelometric turbidity unit is a measure of the clarity of water. Turbidity in excess of 5 NTU is just noticeable to the average person.
- TT - Treatment Technique or a required process intended to reduce the level of a contaminant in drinking water.
- RTCR - Revised Total Coliform Rule. This rule went into effect on April 1, 2016 and replaces the MCL for total coliform with a Treatment Technique Trigger for a system assessment.

Contaminant	Violation Yes/No	Level Detected	Range of Detections	Date of Sample	Unit Measurement	MCLG	MCL	Likely Source of Contamination

*During the most recent round of Lead and Copper testing, only 1 out of 10 households sampled contained concentrations exceeding the action level.

Registration Open For Leisure Services Summer Day Camps

Some kids fill summer break with sports. Others prefer arts and crafts or free play. Cookeville Leisure Services’ summer day camps provide opportunities for all of the above.

“We are excited to be able to offer a jam-packed summer of sports camps, especially after not being able to have any last summer due to the pandemic,” Seth Bruton, Leisure Services athletic superintendent, said.

The sports-themed camps, to be held at Cane Creek Gymnasium and SportsPlex fields, include the return of All Sports Camp, Basketball Camp and Lacrosse Camp, as well as a new Volleyball Clinic.

“We are partnering with local coaches to give the best instruction and experience for our campers,” Bruton said.

Recreational Day Camp, to be held at Cane Creek Recreation Center, offers a variety of indoor and outdoor activities.

Cara Sheets, Leisure Services recreation superintendent, said, “Our day camp allows kids to be kids. We play outside, we do arts and crafts, we use our creativity, and we explore our park area. We encourage our campers to make new friends and be active.”

Details for all camps are as follows:

Recreational Day Camp
June 1-July 30: This camp, open to rising first graders up to age 12, will have age-appropriate games, arts and crafts, programs and free play. Each week has a different theme. Hours are 7:15 a.m.-5:30 p.m. An enrollment calendar must be completed at Cane Creek Recreation Center. The registration fee is $25 per child.

All Sports Camp

U.S. Kayak Open Expands To Include Two Youth Championships

In addition to the more than 150 competitors scheduled to arrive in Cookeville for the 2021 U.S. Kayak Open, approximately 100 high school fishing anglers, along with parents and guests, are now set to take to the water for the opportunity to compete for two national titles simultaneously, the Kayak Bass Fishing HIGH SCHOOL Open and the Youth U.S. Kayak Open Fishing Championship.

Arriving Sept. 10, with subsequent days of competition and education, youth anglers fishing in the KBF event have the option to participate in two, one-day competitions.

If anglers choose to compete both days, their catches will additionally qualify them for the Youth U.S. Kayak Open Fishing Championship, an expansion of the 2021 U.S. Kayak Open.

“The youth series provides high school kayak anglers opportunities to compete and hone their skills against teams from other schools on a state, regional and national level,” said Chad Hoover, KBF founder and president.

“Partnering with U.S. Angling and locating this in Cookeville, we couldn’t ask for a better host community and incredible fishing waters,” added Hoover.

The KBF HIGH

SCHOOL Series Tournament consists of a virtual online series from May to September qualifying for the KBF HIGH SCHOOL Championship on Laurel River Lake in Corbin/London, KY, then the KBF HIGH SCHOOL Open on Center Hill Lake and select area waters in Cookeville.

“Adding this event to the U.S. Kayak Open only celebrates the fast-growing kayak fishing movement even more by involving our youth,” said Tony Forte, U.S. Angling founder and USA Bass/USA Kayak Fishing president. “Plus, Cookeville is a beautiful place and America’s best kayak destination.”

Cookeville hosted the first Pan-American Kayak Bass Championship welcoming some of the world’s most elite anglers in 2019 and has been featured in recent years on the Outdoor and Sportsman Channels in addition to the World Fishing Network, e.g., Major League Fishing, GEICO Select Series, Fishing University, and Kayak Bassin’ TV.

Open to national and international anglers, the U.S. Kayak Open is set for Sept. 9-12, 2021. An inaugural world championship competition is scheduled to take place in May 2022 with 100 to 150 anglers accompanied by fans and families for six days of activities.

Participants are expected to arrive early for pre-fishing various area waters. Following the competition, they are also anticipated to stay and explore more local attractions, waterfalls, downtown life and more.
