Rape Conviction For Jackson County Man

BRIAN WILMOTH
Editor

A Jackson County man was sentenced to prison last week on rape charges.

15th Judicial District Attorney General Jason Lawson made the announcement Monday that Jay Macken, 46, was convicted at trial in April for the charges brought against him.

According to Herald-Citizen sources, Macken was arrested on the charges of aggravated kidnapping, aggravated rape, aggravated domestic assault and interference with the victim's ability to call 911 in December 2019.

Assistant District Attorneys Tom Swink and Ian Bratton prosecuted the case brought against Macken.

"Tom and Ian did a great job representing the victim in this case," Lawson said. "There were some particularly difficult pieces of proof and litigation in this trial, and I am thankful for their hard work in pursuing this to the end."

Lawson went on to applaud the investigators who worked the case to gather the evidence upon which the conviction was based.

"Dennis Thrasher, Kameron Johnston and Cody Buck, all of the Jackson County Sheriff's Department, are the reasons that this case could be successfully presented to the jury," Lawson said.

Macken appeared before Criminal Court Judge Brody Kane where he was handed a 20-year sentence last Thursday

"Aggravated kidnapping and rape are violent offenses under Tennessee law, meaning that Macken cannot be eligible for parole until service of at least 85% of the sentence," Lawson said.

A new study shows that Fentress and Overton Counties are among the top ten counties when it comes to receiving value for the amount of taxes paid.

The study from SmartAsset attempted to find places where people get the most value for their property tax payments by examining the amount of taxes paid, the community's school rankings, and the change in property values over a five-year period.

According to the study, Fentress County is the top county in the state for tax

Matter Of Balance Program To Be Held

Have you turned down a chance to go out with family or friends because you were concerned about falling? Have you cut down on a favorite activity because you might fall? If so, A Matter of Balance: Managing Concerns About Falls is a program for you.
Fear of falling can be just as dangerous as falling itself. People who develop this fear often limit their activities, which can result in severe physical weakness, making the risk of falling even greater. Many older adults also experience increased isolation and depression when they limit their interactions with family and friends. A Matter of Balance can help people improve their quality of life and remain independent.

A Matter of Balance is designed to reduce the fear of falling and increase activity levels, and for those interested in improving balance, flexibility, and strength. Participants learn to set realistic goals to increase activity, change their environment to reduce fall risk factors, and learn simple exercises to increase strength and balance.
Jackson County-UT Extension & the Jackson

County Health Department will be offering A Matter of Balance program on Fridays in August & September from 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. at the New Hope Baptist Church- 311 N. Murray Street Gainesboro, TN.
The program is FREE, and participants will receive a Matter of Balance workbook.

value. The study shows that Fentress has a 0.42% tax rate, a school rating of 6.00 (out of 10), and a Home Value Growth of 79.59% for an Overall Index of 95.93.
Overton County was number six on the list. The study shows that it has a 0.45%, a 6.00 School Rating, and a 64.11% Home Value Growth for an Overall Index of 90.30.
The tax rate was calculated by using the number of households in the county, the median home value, and per capita property tax amount that is collected in that county.

Math and reading/language arts proficiencies for each school district in the counties were used to measure the quality of the schools. An average score was created by looking at the district's scores and weighing it to account for the number of students in every school.
The study calculated the change in property tax value in the five-year period by tracking places where consumers were trying to buy homes and the return on investment by homeowners.

The study pointed out that Tennessee's property taxes are low compared to national rankings. The median annual property tax payment in Tennessee is just $1,220, about half the national average.
Rounding out the top ten were Johnson County (Overall Index of 93.80), Bledsoe County (93.40), Greene County (91.62), Decatur County (90.71), McNairy County (89.26), McMinn County (87.99), Smith County (87.15), and Macon County (86.73).

Where Was God?

Sponsored By: Burrstown • Cubb Creek • Flynn's Creek • Shiloh • New Salem • McCoinsville • Richmond Chapel • Zion • Bagdad • Hurricane • Union Hill • Stone Church of Christ

Tragedy strikes and the question often asked is, "Where was God?" Atheists challenge Christians in a time of tragedy and say something like, "How could a loving God allow something like this to happen?" So, in the wake of a mass shooting of innocent children, let's consider this question.

The first thing to consider is that God has given free will to each person-i.e., God has given each person on this earth the freedom of choice in how he will live and the actions he will take. If you think about it, isn't that a sign of God's love? Rather than programming us against our will, He gives us freedom. Of course , we don't always like the choices that others make, because choices always have consequences. But, there again, we see the nature of God in that He is no respecter of persons (Acts 10:34), for He doesn't decide who can have the freedom to choose and who cannot. He gives freewill to everyone. Thus, the consequences of the actions of others often lead to our own pain and suffering. That does not prove "there is no God" or "God isn't a loving God." It proves that God has given freedom of choice to all.

The second thing to consider is that the existence of evil actually proves the existence of God. In a moment of tragedy, some want to use that to prove the God really doesn't exist. But, if that were true, then how can we explain our evaluation of something being "evil"? The only way to conclude that a mass shooting is evil is to have a standard of righteousness with which to compare it. Where does that come from? The answer is If there is no God, then there is no sense of right or wrong, good or evil. That embedded sense of right and wrong is evidence for the existence of God, and more than that- evidence for the existence of a loving God.

The third thing to consider is that death of an innocent child is not the worst thing that could happen to that child we think it is because we decided that death is the worst possible tragedy. But, is it? We are, as humans, dual-natured creators. We are a spiritual being living inside a physical body. When the physical body dies, the spirit leaves the body (Jas. 2:26) and returns "to God who gave it" (Ecc. 12:7). Our immortal soul is infinity more valuable than our physical body or physical life (Matt. 16:26). When Paul considered death, he saw it as "gain" for "to depart and be with Christ...is far better" (Phil. 1:21-23). Have we considered that those precious little souls have been "taken away from evil" and have now entered "into peace" (Isa. 57:1-2)?

We grieve deeply for these families. We long for their comfort. But, let us not blame God! Tragedy and death is not His fault! Long ago, man chose to sin against God, and now evil exists in this world and brings horrible tragedy with it. Let us pray. Let us lean on God. Let us help others to turn to Him.

Stopping Pharmacy Middlemen

PETER PITTS
Special to the Sentinel

The Federal Trade Commission now has a golden opportunity to expose why so many Americans are getting fleeced on prescription medications.

The agency has just voted unanimously to conduct an inquiry into the business practices of America’s silent medical middlemen, giant corporations known as “pharmacy benefit managers.” Such a probe is long overdue. Drug makers are often painted as the villains for high drug prices, but PBMs are the real profiteers.

The three biggest PBMs, which own or are owned by the nation’s largest health insurers, control nearly 80% of the prescription medicine market. One of their principal jobs is to negotiate discounts with drug companies.

PBMs shroud their negotiations in secrecy. They aren’t legally bound to operate transparently, nor is there any requirement that discounts they negotiate get passed on directly to patients. These discounts increased from $89.5 billion in 2016 to $175 billion in 2019. This leaves sick Americans paying needlessly high prices for life-saving medications while PBMs and their insurer partners get rich.

Suppose the retail price for a drug is $500, and a patient’s insurance company obligates him to pay 20% of the cost. That means he has to pay $100. But if the PBM secured the drug for $300 -- a fairly typical discount -- the patient’s share wouldn’t drop to $60, as you might expect. He’d still be billed $100 -- and wouldn’t have any idea that his insurer picked his pocket and lined its own.

PBM profits are soaring. They and other non-manufacturers in the drug supply chain managed to pocket 51% of the $686.9 billion spent on prescriptions in 2020. That’s quite a jump from the 37.2% middleman share in 2013 -- and not a bad haul for paper-pushing entities that produce nothing.

Rising co-pay and co-insurance costs have led three out of every 10 adults to stop taking their medications as prescribed, according to a recent poll by the Kaiser Family Foundation. By making prescriptions less affordable, the insurer/PBM nexus drives up overall health costs as patients skip doses and end up needing expensive hospital stays.

It took a while for the FTC to get to yes on launching this inquiry, which begins as a basic study of PBM business practices but could lead to enforcement action down the road as the truth comes out. Cozy relationships and self-dealing with affiliated pharmacies and insurers and discriminatory practices against independent pharmacies are now the norm.

The FTC inquiry offers the best hope for a comprehensive review of PBM practices nationwide. As patients have been feeling the squeeze on prescription costs, PBMs and their affiliated insurers and pharmacies have been secretly maximizing their opportunities for profit. When consumers learn what’s really going on, they will know exactly where to direct their outrage.

Here’s How To Find Where Vet Is Buried

by Freddy Groves

The Veterans Legacy Memorial website has been expanded by 500,000 names at 93 veterans cemeteries across the country. This is in addition to the 4 million names already there at 155 cemeteries.

The VLM is a digital platform and repository for information on veterans buried in those cemeteries. Friends and family can add biographies, photos, documents and other information to the listing for each veteran as a way of paying tribute. So far, 22,000 friends and families have added information to their veteran’s profile page.

For those of us who live far from the cemeteries where our veterans are buried, being able to add to a legacy page helps. For me, my family is only partially covered at this point. My grandfather at Fort Sam is in the database. Another relative at Riverside is in the database. Three others aren’t, including my parents at Arlington National. They are, however, in ANC’s website, although there is no way to add photos (except for the photo of the marker that is already there) or stories or biographies.

Perhaps Arlington will be among those added in the half-million new names. Eventually the project intends to cover veterans buried in state and local cemeteries, as well as private cemeteries.

To look for your veteran, go to www.vlm.cem.va.gov and put in the name -- first name last name, no comma. Click on the FAQ for more information.

To find a veteran at Arlington National, go to www.arlingtoncemetery.mil.

If your veteran is listed in the Veterans Legacy Memorial, contribute to the profile. Pictures are a great addition, as is bio information and personal stories.

As a side note, Wreaths Across America will be on Saturday, Dec. 18, 2021. See their website (www.wreath-sacrossamerica.org) for ways you can help with wreath-laying at the 2,500 locations.

Financial Suicide Is Not Necessary

GLENN MOLLETTE
Special to the Sentinel

There is some risk to all of life.

A friend and his wife had a house paid for and a substantial savings account. At the age of 65 he was retired and bored and bemoaned he had never been a business owner. He was aware of a family who had recently closed a business so he offered to buy it from them and even employed a family member to run it.

He knew nothing about the business but was confident all would be well. The cost of the investment, his lack of understanding the business and the monthly outgo spelled disaster. Within two years he had lost his house and his entire retirement savings trying to make his dream business endeavor sustainable.

Another acquaintance had worked hard at an auto plant for twelve years but retired and took his $150,000 retirement savings and sunk it into a restaurant endeavor. He had never run a restaurant before and within one year the restaurant had failed. His money was gone and he had a sizable debt.

Another acquaintance retired and wanted something to do. He got into a cookie business that lasted three months. He spent $30,000 a month for three months in a cookie franchise before he was able to get out of the venture.

Neither of the prior persons had any prior business ownership experience.

Life is filled with lessons. Education is often very expensive. You must decide if you are still young enough or too old to take on such a business venture. This is especially true if you could end up losing all your investment and further financially obligating yourself.

If you want or need something to do, then get into something that you can afford and know something about. Being informed and applying as much research to any endeavor is crucial. If you can afford a large franchise fee, other investment costs and you can make the business successful, then by all means enjoy your endeavor. If you are risking being homeless then you should probably reconsider.

Years ago, an old friend was almost financially broke at 50. He had worked in various restaurants with others but had little to show for his efforts. He rented an old hamburger restaurant that had been closed and his rent and overhead were cheap. He went to work making the best hamburger in town. For 16 years his burger business netted him an annual salary of over $300,000. He retired well.

Sometimes we simply need to be content with what we have. If you need to work, consider what you know, what you have and how you can make it work for you. It could require a minimal amount of advertising. Or, it might simply require letting acquaintances know what kind of work you are doing and building your business by word of mouth. You may be able to use space or land that is sitting dormant and can be rented or bought reasonably.

Life’s pursuits can be, and should be, approached with reasonable caution. Financial suicide is not necessary.

Hear Dr. Glenn Mollette each weekday morning at 8:56 and 10:30 AM EST.

Stock Your Kitchen With These Must Haves

The global pandemic required people from all walks of life to reassess their priorities and make changes to their daily lives. One of the changes that emerged during the peak of social distancing was an increased interest in making meals at home.

While the simplest of recipes can be made without much equipment, for more complicated meals, it is likely worth investing in some high-quality cooking gadgets. The following are some items home chefs will want to add to their culinary arsenal.

Spiralizer set

A spiralizer is a device that can turn raw vegetables into “noodles” that can be substituted for traditional pasta in many popular dishes. Sets will come with blades that can produce coils, ribbons or even shorter “juliennes” for various dishes.

Cookie dough scoop

If you like to bake, then a cookie dough scoop is a worthwhile investment. This helps ensure uniform sizing for even cooking.

Pressure cooker

Interest in pressure cookers has risen exponentially thanks to the relatively recent release of the Instant Pot®. This device has even spurred an entire collection of recipes that are designed to be prepared in the cooker.

Electric breakfast sandwich maker

Create restaurant breakfast and/or deli sandwiches quickly with an electric breakfast sandwich maker. Bacon, egg and cheese is easily created, and some of these gadgets even have spaces for English muffins or bagels to cook all ingredients at once. Because it is electric, this device can be handy in dorm rooms.

Adjustable rolling pin

Rings on an adjustable rolling pin help guide the thickness, and measurement markings help bakers keep track of the diameter while rolling out favorite doughs.

Smart meat thermometer

A wireless food thermometer can track the internal temperature of meats and poultry as well as the air temperature of an oven or grill. Those readings connect to a smartphone app so one can monitor doneness from any room in the house.

Collapsible silicone colander

Straining the water out of pastas and other foods requires the use of a colander. Having a collapsible version enables a person to flatten and store the colander in a cabinet or drawer.

Mandoline

A mandoline is used to produce slices of many different foods at various thicknesses and textures.

Create crinkle-cut fries or thin slices of eggplant for frying.

Food processor

Food processors come in a variety of styles, from free-standing units to ones that serve as blender attachments. Manual food choppers are often cranked by a handle or may have a push-down handle to engage the chopping action.

Air fryer

There are many incarnations of air fryers depending on the manufacturer. These gadgets work with convection (heated air) to simulate the crispiness of oil frying without all the oil.

Outfitting a kitchen with the basics and then supplementing with some clever gadgets can make cooking meals at home that much easier.

THE ILLUSTRATED BIBLE

Whoever of you loves life and desires to see many good days, keep your tongue from evil and your lips from telling lies. Turn from evil and do good; seek peace and pursue it.

PSALMS 34:12-14

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

IN THIS MODERN DAY AND AGE, WE HAVE BECOME USED TO LARGE SIZES—HUGE FOOTBALL PLAYERS, TOWERING BASKETBALL STARS ETC. BUT WE STILL HAVE A LONG WAY TO GO IF WE WANT TO TOP WHAT THE BIBLE TERMS AS GIANT. THESE TWO SEVEN-FOOT BASKETBALL PLAYERS AND AN AVERAGE-SIZE FIVE-FOOT, TEN-INCH COACH PALE IN COMPARISON NEXT TO THE BIBLE'S GOLIATH.

WE LEARN IN 1 SAMUEL 17:4-7, THAT GOLIATH STOOD SIX CUBITS AND A SPAN, THE CUBIT BEING APPROXIMATELY TWENTY INCHES, A SPAN NINE INCHES, PUTS GOLIATH'S HEIGHT AT TEN AND A HALF FEET—A HALF FOOT HIGHER THAN THE BASKET WHICH HANGS TEN FEET ABOVE THE BASKETBALL COURT!

GOLIATH'S COAT OF MAIL, THE BIBLE TELLS US, WEIGHED FIVE THOUSAND BRASS SHEKELS—WELL OVER A HUNDRED POUNDS. THE IRON SPEARHEAD WEIGHED MORE THAN FIFTY POUNDS AND THE STAFF OF THE SPEAR WAS AS THICK AS A WEAVER'S BEAM, WHICH IS A LITTLE THICKER THAN AN AVERAGE MAN'S WRIST—A FEARSOME FOE IN EVERY RESPECT!

HOWEVER, THE SPRY AND AGILE YOUNG LAD, DAVID—WHO, NOT BEING FULL-GROWN, COULD HARDLY HAVE STOOD MORE THAN FIVE FEET AT THE TIME (JUST HALF GOLIATH'S HEIGHT) TAUGHT GOLIATH AND THE WORLD A BIG LESSON—THAT NO MATTER HOW FORMIDABLE THE ADVERSARY, ONE CAN OVERCOME IF HE IS FILLED WITH COURAGE AND A FIRM BELIEF IN THE RIGHTNESS OF HIS CAUSE!

NEXT WEEK: A BIBLICAL EFFICIENCY EXPERT—IN NO UNCERTAIN TERMS!

Tennessee Farmer Of The Year Named

AMY BLAKELY
UTIA

A third-generation dairy farmer, John Harrison of Sweetwater Valley Farm, remembers hearing his parents and grandparents talk about the milk-bottling operation they ran in the 1940s and 1950s.

He, too, dreamed of having a farm where he could make and sell a product using the fruits of his labors.

Today, Sweetwater Valley Farm—located in Philadelphia, Tenn., in Loudon County—is one of the area’s largest and best known agritourism destinations in the region, and Harrison has been named the 2022 Tennessee Farmer of the Year by University of Tennessee Extension.

David Bilderback, area farm management specialist for UT Extension’s Eastern Region, along with Loudon County Extension Agent John Goddard, nominated Harrison for the award.

“John is extremely innovative,” Bilderback said. “He runs an excellent operation and he’s also a good steward of the land and resources.”

Bilderback works with Sweetwater Valley Farm and other Tennessee farms in Dairy Gauge, a benchmarking program in which the farmers work with consultants and share details about their businesses and finances to help each other.

“John and the other farmers are working together to make each of their farms more efficient,” Bilderback said. “They want to make each other better. Iron sharpens iron.”

Harrison’s 4,490-acre spread includes a dairy farm, a cheese factory, a store and a café. He also has a cow-calf beef operation and grows corn, barley, soybeans and hay. He produces most of his own livestock feed and sends the surplus to the AgCentral Farmers Co-op. The farm also welcomes visitors to tour parts of its operation.

When Harrison started college at UT Knoxville, he flirted with the idea of pursuing something other than farming. But the more he explored, the more he knew dairy farming was his life.

“I realized I had an opportunity,” he said. “I enjoyed it, and I knew it.”

After earning a degree in agricultural business, Harrison farmed with his family for a few years and then rented a 350-acre farm and purchased 80 cows to launch his own dairy. In 1987, Harrison and his wife, Celia, purchased an interest in Sweetwater Valley Farm. They became its sole owners in 1992.

Looking for ways to grow his business, Harrison took a cheese-making course, borrowed against his farm, and built a $1.5 million cheese factory in 1998. Although craft cheese factories are popular now, back then it was a novel and risky venture.

Over the years, Sweetwater Valley Farm has grown significantly. In 2012, the International Dairy Foods Association named Harrison Innovative Dairy Farmer of the Year.

Today, the farm has more than 2,050 mature dairy cows, 1,500 replacement heifers, 650 beef cows and 450 beef calves. The farm has three dairy facilities—two with traditional milking parlors staffed around-the-clock, as well as Tennessee’s largest state-of-the-art robotic milking facility where 500 dairy cows are trained to interact with robots that do the milking 24/7.

Sweetwater Valley Farm produces an average of more than 85 pounds of milk per day per cow, and last year sent more than 44 million pounds of milk to Mayfield Dairy Farms plant in Athens, Tennessee, through the Dairy Farmers of America, a national milk co-op.

The farm purchases back 10 percent of the raw milk and uses it to produce as much as 450,000 pounds of cheddar cheese a year, which is sold at its store and in its Seed to Sandwich Café. The cheese is also sold online, as well as in stores and restaurants in Tennessee and surrounding states. The farm also provides cheese for the “Power-T” cheese sold by All Vol Cheese, a project of UT’s Food Science Department.

In addition to the farm and café, Sweetwater Valley Farm offers tours of its robotic dairy and its cheese factory.

Harrison employs about 50 people, some of whom are dairy producers whose own operations shuttered over the past decade.

Sweetwater Valley Farm is a family endeavor. Celia, the emergency department director at Sweetwater Hospital, serves as the corporation’s secretary and treasurer. Three of the Harrison’s five children work on the farm: their oldest, Mary Lyndal, is the farm’s marketing director and runs the public side of the business; their fourth child, Charles Allen, is the head herdsman and crop manager; and their youngest, Amy Elizabeth, recently started helping with the business. (Daughter, Sally Anna, is a doctor, and son, John William, is a software engineer who acts as a “great sounding board” as the farm expands its virtual presence.)

Despite his busy schedule, Harrison stays active with county, state and national agriculture organizations, county economic development groups and the First Baptist Church of Philadelphia.

For Sweetwater Valley Farm, like all businesses, the pandemic has brought challenges.

The day-to-day work with the crops and animals continued without interruption because, as Harrison said, “people still needed milk.”

The store, café and tours shut down for a while, but the Harrisons got creative.

Mary Lyndall took café operations online, and customers picked up their to-go meals from the café porch. When the café finally did reopen in November 2020, customers could dine outdoors at picnic tables.

“I think people felt like we were a safe place to be,” Harrison said.

Supply chain issues persist, and it’s been a struggle to find workers. Skyrocketing fuel prices are concerning, but visitor numbers are increasing, and tour buses are arriving again.

Always known for his optimistic outlook and ability to think outside the box, Harrison wonders if the high cost of traveling could work in his favor.

“Tennessee might be a good destination—a quick vacation for a lot of the country without flying,” he said.

Each numbered row contains two clues and two 6-letter answers. The two answers differ from each other by only one letter, which has already been inserted. For example, if you exchange the A from MASTER for an I, you get MISTER. Do not change the order of the letters.
