The Kirksville Aquatic Center. AUSTIN MILLER

New Aquatic Center surpasses attendance goal

Future plans detailed

Austin Miller
Daily Express

The Kirksville Aquatic Center is winding down its first year of operation after opening in June.

Staff with the Parks and Recreation Department remain happy with how the new facility has fared since opening up, improving upon the previous aquatic center that was demolished and replaced over 2020 and early 2021.

The facility has had 28,888 visitors from June through November. A soft attendance goal of 23,700 was set since there had been no aquatic center for over a year and the new one wouldn't be open an entire year.

Attendance has dipped in the fall and winter since the outdoor pool isn't open, but the facility averaged 1,785 visitors in October and November. Parks and Recreation Director Rodney Sadler expects a drop in December since people start to leave for the holidays, but the year-end total should end up around 30,000.

With a full year of operations in 2022, the department is planning for 34,000 attendees next year.

"We're pleased. Even by opening late, our admissions projections have already (been passed) for the year," Sadler said. "So we're pleased with the use. We're still running about double the amount of people that are coming in and using the indoor facility compared to the old facility."

There are some kinks that staff are working through. There was some feedback raised over

City receives 10 bids for park master plan project

Austin Miller
Daily Express

Kirksville's Parks and Recreation Department is moving forward with its comprehensive master plan project after bids closed last week.

The city received 10 bids from firms looking to evaluate the city's park system and identify what short-term and long-term needs there are. All that data will be compiled into a master plan that will guide park and programming developments for the next decade.

Parks Director Rodney Sadler spoke during Tuesday's Lakes, Parks and Recreation Commission meeting about the project. He said he was thrilled to get that many bids for the project.

"People are pretty excited about working with us because they see a lot of potential in our parks department here," said Sadler during Tuesday's meeting. "The acreage that we have, the ability to possibly add new parks in the future and develop what we have, and do all of the deferred maintenance that we've been talking about for many years."

He also said he was familiar with most of the firms who applied and that they were all high-quality.

"I would say we had the best-of-the-best in the Midwest that applied for this," Sadler said.

Sadler, City Manager Mari Macomber, and LPRC member Tony Vazzana reviewed the applications last week and are going through and tallying scores. The next stage is to pick a few firms and then bring them in for interviews over the next few weeks.

Sadler said the plan is to reach an agreement with one over the next month or so, then take that agreement to the City Council for approval at its first meeting in January.

The city has budgeted $75,000 for this project. The firms did not include costs with their proposals. Instead, the city will select one based on its qualifications, then it will negotiate a price with the selected firm. So the final price tag could wind up lower than the budgeted figure.

Sadler said the plan should be completed around next September or October.

So what all work will go into the comprehensive plan?

First, the firm will look over all of the Parks and Recreation Department's available land, facilities and programming. It will survey what all is being offered and the state of city parks. It will also survey all recreational opportunities in the city to see what gaps there are.

For example, the parks department doesn't offer any indoor basketball programming since it doesn't have a court. The YMCA does have indoor basketball. But is that enough? That's one question that can be answered next year.

Pickleball is one activity Sadler is acutely aware that the city needs more options for. But

Missouri Sen. Blunt leads push to target billions to state wildlife conservation

Jacob Fischler
Missouri Independent

A bipartisan pair of senators on Wednesday called for Congress to approve billions in new funding for states to manage wildlife recovery work.

At a hearing of the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee, Sens. Martin Heinrich, D-N.M., and Roy Blunt, R-Mo., said a bill they introduced this year would help protect 1,600 threatened species, relieve the burden on state wildlife agencies and spare private landowners from having to deal with federal regulations related to the Endangered Species Act.

The bill would provide $1.3 billion annually for states, tribes and territories to do species conservation work. It would be paid for with revenue from enforcement actions against those who violate environmental regulations.

Reps. Debbie Dingell, D-Mich., and Jeff Fortenberry, R-Neb., inroduced companion legislation in the House.

Heinrich and Blunt have won support from both parties for the bill, though senators from both sides of the aisle cautioned Wednesday that the revenue source was too unpredictable — and perhaps too paltry.

Heinrich said the extra federal cash for state and local efforts would add a critical tool for species recovery. The numbers of endangered or threatened species have continued to increase, despite the successes of state programs and federal Endangered Species Act protections, he said.

"We have a once-in-a-generation opportunity to change this paradigm and save thousands of species with a solution that matches the magnitude of the challenge," he said.

Sara Parker Pauley, the director of the Missouri Department of Conservation, told the panel the bill would help states complete federally mandated conservation plans. Current funding only enables 5% of the actions called for across state plans, she said.

"The states have done their parts, really without the funding," she said. "We've been given a mandate. The funding hasn't come with it."

While boosting federal money for wildlife conservation, the bill is also meant to distance federal involvement in species management, in part by keeping species off the Endangered Species Act list.

"A significant part of the goal here is to work with these state agencies so the federal government never has to be involved in an endangered species situation," Blunt said.

Collin O'Mara, the president & CEO of the advocacy group National Wildlife Federation, told the panel that the Endangered

Bid process for Kirksville's baseball-softball complex to open later this month

Austin Miller
Daily Express

The Kirksville R-III School District will begin receiving bids later this month for its planned baseball-softball complex.

During Wednesday's school board meeting, the board approved moving forward with the bidding strategy proposed by Building Resource Studio, the district's architect firm.

The outlined timeline will see bid documents become publicly available on Dec. 16, with the actual bid process starting a few days later. The bid process will then last until Jan. 6. Then, bids will be looked over and results will be presented to the school board at its Jan. 12 meeting. If the board approves a proposal on that date, Aug. 2, 2022, is the planned completion date for the project.

District Assistant Superintendent Tricia Reger said the district quickly heard from several vendors when the project was first mentioned, so they expect several quality proposals to come in.

"We're pretty optimistic, as far as the interest for bidders," Reger said.

The project will see one baseball and one softball field built on campus, just behind the district's administration building. It is the first athletics-related facility update since Spainhower Field's renovations 11 years ago. The district has wanted to do this project so students aren't driving to North Park to play games. Physical education classes will also use the fields.

Harald Boerstler, the district's architect, said getting going early is important so materials can start being ordered. He said they are primarily using materials that don't have huge wait times, such as steel. However, construction materials and pricing continue to be impacted by the pandemic. In August, Reger said the district's cost estimate was $2.7 million. She said

Wednesday that cost is expected to be higher since the cost of materials continues to rise.

Concrete or concrete blocks will be the material used for the concession stand/restroom building. And the building trades students will construct the press boxes, dugout benches and cubbies for bats and helmets.

Parking was a topic focused on by school board member Gayla McHenry during Wednesday's

Kirksville man charged in shooting found in Washington state

Daily Express staff

A Kirksville man wanted after a November shooting has been found in the Pacific Northwest.

Kevin Whittom, 45, was charged in Adair County with first-degree assault and armed criminal action following a Nov. 27 shooting. Court documents state he shot one man who was at his residence.

Kirksville police tried to locate him multiple times, unable to do so. The department's investigation received information that placed Whittom in Washington. KPD contacted law enforcement there and Whittom was arrested in Clark County, Washington on Dec. 9. He awaits extradition back to Missouri.

the last few weeks about water temperatures in the pool and showers. Sadler said they are adjusting to a different heating system, and that cold temperatures outside are likely a factor.

For the indoor pool, the water is set to 86 degrees. Folks interested in high-end water training usually prefer it a bit cooler, around 78-80 degrees, while higher temperatures (90-96) are preferred for aerobics classes and activities like that. So Sadler said they are trying to be in the middle range for all would-be activities.

Tuesday, he heard feedback from members of a seniors aerobics class who felt certain parts of the facility aren't senior-friendly. Some of those concerns included water height and signage around the stairs that go into the pool.

Sadler said contacting himself or other department staff is the best way to let them know about any issues.

"If anybody has anything that they'd like to discuss as far as program ideas or ways that they can improve the processes or operations that we currently have here, having a discussion with our staff directly is the best way," Sadler said. "... Give me a call or email me directly, or bring me out to the pool deck if there's something out there that needs to be improved upon."

Programming and hours are also key areas of feedback. Sadler said Sundays, a day the old aquatic center wasn't open, is the least-attended day of the week. Afternoons during the week are also pretty quiet.

So having a year of that data will help decide hour changes or similar procedures. Next year's park master plan study will also help with that.

"We look forward to trying to figure out exactly how people are going to use this facility long-term," Sadler said. "If we're open the right hours, if we're offering the right type of programs."

There remains small items that are being finished over the next month. Sadler said there is some painting that will finish up later this month, which is why the facility will be closed on Dec. 22 and 23. In a rush to open in June, Sadler said the hallways and locker rooms only received one coat of paint, so this will finish that up.

The lights for the outdoor pool will finally be installed over the next few weeks. Twice, the department was sent the wrong brackets that attach the LEDs to the poles. The department is also still waiting on a rolling gate that will be used at the outdoor admissions window.

Sadler said there is also some painting and concrete work needed for the indoor pool, but that will wait until the spring. The pool needs to be drained for that, so it will wait until the outdoor pool opens.

the exact scale can be determined by the master plan.

And community feedback will be a major part of the whole project. The best way to find out what people's needs are is to ask them. Sadler said there will be a number of community forums and public exercises to hear directly from citizens. He said it will be similar to the discussions leading up to the Aquatic Center.

"Sometimes, cities get these plans and then put them on a shelf and don't use them. We want to know what people want, that way we can spend our funds the best way we can over the next 10 years," Sadler told the Daily Express on Tuesday. "We know that we're going to have a certain amount of funds that are left over after we make our payments on (the Aquatic Center), so if we can stretch those by doing different grant opportunities and making sure that we focus on projects that are closest to the community, that's going to be important."

Though this project will be the department's main focus for 2022, there still will be work done at city parks. New bathrooms will be added at Patryla Park thanks to a grant the city received. The portable toilet at Spur Pond will be removed in favor of a permanent bathroom. Some temporary skate park features will be added to the North Park skating site. And some swing sets will be replaced at various parks.

The department just isn't going to do any major additions until the master plan is completed.

WILDLIFE

Species Act designations that would result from inaction would be much more costly to the federal government and private sector.

"Imagine if the monarch butterfly ends up listed. The impact on farms all across the country is massive," O'Mara said, referring to the insect with a famously broad range in the Western Hemisphere.

"I'm convinced we can save most species through proactive, collaborative work and save hundreds of billions of dollars of private-sector cost."

The funding would help keep species numbers from reaching critical lows, O'Mara said. Working to protect species before they reach endangered status is more cost-effective and gives species a greater chance of survival.

Funding from fines, penalties

The bill would use money raised through criminal fines and penalties from violations of natural resource and environmental laws.

Leaders of the committee, Chairman Thomas E. Carper, (D-Del.), and ranking Republican Shelley Moore Capito of West Virginia, raised concerns the source of the bill's funding could be too unstable to support the ambitious spending.

"As drafted, the legislation identifies a funding source that may not be reliable or fully pay for the bill's spending," Carper said.

"As I understand it, the bill will still result in $14 billion in direct, mandatory spending over a 10-year period," Capito said. "This is an issue that we need to consider against the background of the growth of our debt and deficit during this pandemic."

Blunt said he and Heinrich "found a funding source we believe works."

Carper also said he wanted to see more funding for federal agencies, including the Fish and Wildlife Service.

"While we should absolutely address the funding needs of our states and tribes, we cannot afford to ignore the legitimate needs of our federal agencies and other partners," he said.

In addition to Blunt and Heinrich, 16 Democrats and 15 Republican senators co-sponsored the bill, though neither Carper nor Capito have attached their names.

Capito said Wednesday she was "eager" to work with Heinrich and Blunt to improve the bill and was hopeful the bill could move forward.

meeting. A new parking lot with about 60 spaces is planned. Additional parking spaces along East Hamilton Street are alternates for the project, and grass overflow parking is planned next to the existing soccer field.

An advisory committee made up of coaches and athletics department administrators, school board members and community members has worked this year to put the project together.

Reger said the No. 1 item wanted by members of the advisory committee is turf on the fields. So getting that taken care of first and foremost is the top priority. If the district decides to hold off on the alternate parking space, it has at least been designed and could get constructed in future years.

"The thing that rose to the top of priorities was the turf on the field — infield and outfield," Reger said. "That was just consistent among every committee member, so we put that at the very top of the list. If it means parking's a little bit tight for a year or two, then we decided that was the priority."

As Kirksville is working on this plan, Macon and Schuyler County are already in the construction phase for new turf fields on their campuses. And Truman recently finished installing turf on the infield of its baseball field.

Kirksville's baseball and softball teams have played at North Park for many years. The district's agreement with the city dates back to 1990.

"It'll be done right, it'll be overseen correctly — and it already has been," said school board member Nick Billington, who is on the advisory committee. "... It's going to be a fixture on this campus, I truly believe that."

While this athletic endeavor is the current focus of the district, Reger said Wednesday that the district still has its sights on a bond issue for a fine arts building in the future.

Preliminary hearing for three charged in duck boat accident

Associated Press

GALENA, Mo. (AP) — Three men charged after a tourist boat sank in Missouri during a 2018 storm, killing 17 people, were in court Wednesday for a preliminary hearing to determine if the criminal case against them will proceed.

Kenneth Scott McKee, 54, the captain of the vessel known as a duck boat; Curtis P. Lanham, 39, the general manager at Ride the Ducks in Branson; and Charles V. Baltzell, 79, the operations supervisor who was a manager on duty the night the boat sank, are each charged with 17 counts of first-degree involuntary manslaughter.

McKee also faces 12 charges counts of first-degree endangering the welfare of a child because 12 children were on the amphibious boat when it capsized on Table Rock Lake near Branson on July 19, 2018. Riders from Missouri, Indiana, Illinois and Arkansas were killed. Fourteen people survived.

Associate Circuit County Judge Alan Mark Blankenship will hear testimony in Stone County Court and determine if the cases will be bound over for trial.

When charges were filed in July, an affidavit from a Missouri Highway Patrol sergeant accused McKee of taking the duck boat onto the lake despite concern about an approaching storm. Lanham and Baltzell are accused of failing to communicate weather conditions and to stop operations after a severe thunderstorm warning was issued.

The three men each pleaded not guilty in September.

On Tuesday, McKee, of Verona, filed a motion to dismiss his charges, citing a lack of probable cause. He also accused Lanham, of Galena, and Baltzell, of Kirbyville, of not communicating the danger of the oncoming storm and halting the tour, The Kansas City Star reported.

Missouri Attorney General Eric Schmitt and the Stone County prosecutor filed the state charges after a judge dismissed federal charges, ruling that the federal government did not have jurisdiction because Table Rock Lake is not considered a navigable waterway, which means it doesn't support commerce.

The tour boats — a popular attraction on Table Rock Lake and Lake Taneycomo — have not been operating in Branson since the sinking.

Ride the Ducks and Ripley Entertainment, a Canadian company that owned the Ride the Ducks attraction in Branson at the time, have settled numerous lawsuits filed by survivors and relatives of those who died.

Kirksville school district selects featured teachers for November

Kirksville R-III School District

The Kirksville R-III School District is highlighting teachers in the district for their hard work.

These featured teachers of each month receive a complimentary lunch, as well as a framed certificate and "Lesson from Geese" lapel pin. The geese moniker comes from the birds being highly successful in their flight patterns when doing so together in the V-formation.

One person is selected from each building in the district. These are the teachers chosen for November.

Marsha Jones, Embedded Math Teacher, Kirksville Area Tech Center

Jones is originally from St. Charles and attended Southeast Missouri State University, where she earned her degree. Jones has been an Embedded Math Instructor, Career Readiness Facilitator and SkillsUSA Advisor at Kirksville Area Technical Center for 16 years.

Nick Totta, Special Education Teacher, Kirksville High School

Totta is originally from the Kansas City area, receiving his Bachelor's Degree from Ottawa University and his Master's Degree from Baylor University in Texas. Totta has been a Special Education Teacher with the district for two years and genuinely cares for his students.

Janelle Stephens, 6th Grade Math Teacher, William Matthew Middle School

Stephens graduated from Kirksville High School and went on to the University of Missouri to complete her Bachelor's Degree. She then received her Master's Degree from Quincy University and began her career in education before returning to Kirksville, where she has been teaching for the last 11 years.

Molly Tuggle, Gifted Education, Ray Miller Elementary School

Tuggle graduated from the University of South Florida with her Master's Degree in Elementary Education. Tuggle taught for 5 years between Florida and Missouri before becoming a 3rd grade teacher at Ray Miller Elementary. Tuggle is now a Gifted Education Teacher and has been with the Kirksville R-III School District for 19 years and is a true leader and pioneer.

Becky Yardley, Instructional Coach, Kirksville Primary School

Yardley received her Specialist in Education Degree from Northwest Missouri State University and has been with Kirksville School District for 19 years. Yardley began with the district as a Kindergarten Teacher and is now an Instructional Coach at the Primary School where she is a valuable asset and continues to work hard.

Sandy Adams, Preschool Teacher, Early Childhood Learning Center

Adams is originally from Liberty, Mo. and received her Master's Degree from Michigan State University. Adams has been a great asset to the Kirksville R-III School District for 21 years, serving as an Educator for the Parents as Teachers program before becoming a Preschool Teacher at ECLC.

COVID-19 hospitalizations up dramatically in Missouri

Jim Salter
Associated Press

O'FALLON, Mo. (AP) — COVID-19 cases are rising sharply again across Missouri, prompting renewed concerns about overcrowding at hospitals and long waits for emergency services and hospital beds.

Data posted on the state's COVID-19 dashboard on Tuesday showed 1,637 people hospitalized with the virus. By comparison, 951 were hospitalized a month ago. The number of intensive care unit patients has risen to 338, up from 228 on Nov. 5. In-patient bed capacity is at 15% in the St. Louis region, 18% in Kansas City and just 12% in northwestern Missouri.

Dr. Clay Dunagan of the St. Louis Metropolitan Pandemic Task Force said colder weather is driving more people indoors, giving the virus greater opportunity to spread, especially among the unvaccinated. He also cited "reduced masking and distancing as people have gotten tired of these precautions."

Dunagan added a third factor: Immunity is starting to wane for those who got shots early on. He urged everyone to get a booster shot.

"Right now, we are losing ground against the virus and seeing a pretty clear escalation (in hospitalizations) in the region," Dunagan said during a news conference on Monday.

The situation is similar in Kansas City. A weekly report posted on the Kansas City region's COVID-19 data hub cited "an alarming upward trend" in hospitalizations, mostly among people who are not vaccinated.

The report noted that the high volume of COVID-19 patients may lead to "longer wait times for emergency services and a decreased availability of local hospital beds." Dunagan raised similar concerns and said some elective procedures may be delayed if the surge escalates.

Only one case of the omicron variant of the virus has been confirmed in Missouri — in St. Louis — but Dunagan said it's just a matter of time before omicron leads to even more cases.

COVID-19 also is hitting hard again in many schools. The Kansas City Star reported that several districts in the Kansas City area are reporting record numbers of cases.

Vaccination rates remain low among children and teenagers. While 52% of all Missourians have completed vaccination, just 13.8% of children ages 5-14 and 41% of children ages 15-17 have completed vaccination, according to the state dashboard.

Republican Attorney

General Eric Schmitt said in a news release Wednesday that he is asking parents to identify school districts enforcing measures such as mask mandates and quarantines.

A day earlier, Schmitt threatened legal actions if school districts or local public health agencies enforced COVID-19 mandates, citing a November ruling by Cole County Circuit Judge Daniel Green, who declared local health orders "null and void."

Schmitt's spokesman, Chris Nuelle, said health mandates in schools are illegal because the state "legislature has not delegated authority to school districts or school boards to enact public health orders, and the Cole County ruling further reinforces that point."

But the Kearney School District in western Missouri is still requiring masks. In a letter to parents sent Tuesday, Interim Superintendent Todd White wrote that lawyers for the district "advised us that no action is necessary at this time in response to the Attorney General's letter."

INVITATION TO BID 00111 - 1

INDEPENDENT AUDITOR'S REPORT

To the Board of Education
Kirksville R-III School District
Kirksville, Missouri

Report on the Financial Statements

We have audited the accompanying modified cash basis financial statements of the governmental activities and each major fund of the Kirksville R-III School District, Kirksville, Missouri (the "District"), as of and for the year ended June 30, 2021, and the related notes to the financial statements, which collectively comprise the District's basic financial statements as listed in the table of contents.

Management's Responsibility for the Financial Statements

Management is responsible for the preparation and fair presentation of these financial statements in accordance with the modified cash basis of accounting described in Note 1; this includes determining that the modified cash basis of accounting is an acceptable basis for the preparation of the financial statements in the circumstances. Management is also responsible for the design, implementation, and maintenance of internal control relevant to the preparation and fair presentation of financial statements that are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error.

Auditor's Responsibility

Our responsibility is to express opinions on these financial statements based on our audit. We conducted our audit in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America and the standards applicable to financial audits contained in Government Auditing Standards, issued by the Comptroller General of the United States. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free from material misstatement. An audit involves performing procedures to obtain audit evidence about the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. The procedures selected depend on the auditor's judgment, including the assessment of the risks of material misstatement of the financial statements, whether due to fraud or error. In making those risk assessments, the auditor considers internal control relevant to the entity's preparation and fair presentation of the financial statements in order to design audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the entity's internal control. Accordingly, we express no such opinion. An audit also includes evaluating the appropriateness of accounting policies used and the reasonableness of significant accounting estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall presentation of the financial statements. We believe the audit evidence we have obtained is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our audit opinions.

Opinions

In our opinion, the financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the respective modified cash basis financial position of the governmental activities and each major fund of the District, as of June 30, 2021, and the respective changes in modified cash basis financial position and the respective budgetary comparisons for the General and Special Revenue Funds for the year then ended in accordance with the modified cash basis of accounting described in Note 1.

Basis of Accounting

We draw attention to Note 1 of the financial statements, which describes the basis of accounting. The financial statements are prepared on the modified cash basis of accounting, which is a basis of accounting other than accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America. Our opinions are not modified with respect to this matter.

Other Matters

Other Information

Our audit was conducted for the purpose of forming opinions on the financial statements as a whole that collectively comprise the District's basic financial statements. The debt service budgetary schedule, capital projects budgetary schedule, schedule of revenues collected by source, schedule of expenditures paid by object, schedule of selected statistics, and schedule of transportation costs eligible for state aid are presented for purposes of additional analysis and are not a required part of the basic financial statements. The schedule of expenditures of federal awards is presented for the purposes of additional analysis as required by Title 2 U.S. Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) Part 200, Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards, and is also not a required part of the basic financial statements.

The debt service budgetary schedule, capital projects budgetary schedule, schedule of revenues collected by source, schedule of expenditures paid by object, and schedule of expenditures of federal awards are the responsibility of management and were derived from and relate directly to the underlying accounting and other records used to prepare the basic financial statements. Such information has been subjected to the auditing procedures applied in the audit of the basic financial statements and certain additional procedures, including comparing and reconciling such information directly to the underlying accounting and other records used to prepare the basic financial statements or to the basic financial statements themselves, and other additional procedures in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America. In our opinion, the debt service budgetary schedule, capital projects budgetary schedule, schedule of revenues collected by source, schedule of expenditures paid by object, and schedule of expenditures of federal awards are fairly stated in all material respects in relation to the basic financial statements as a whole.

The schedule of selected statistics and schedule of transportation costs eligible for state aid have not been subjected to the auditing procedures applied in the audit of the basic financial statements and, accordingly, we do not express an opinion or provide any assurance on them.

Other Reporting Required by Government Auditing Standards

In accordance with Government Auditing Standards, we have also issued our report dated November 24, 2021, on our consideration of the District's internal control over financial reporting and on our tests of its compliance with certain provisions of laws, regulations, contracts, and grant agreements and other matters. The purpose of that report is solely to describe the scope of our testing of internal control over financial reporting and compliance and the results of that testing, and not to provide an opinion on internal control over financial reporting or on compliance. That report is an integral part of an audit performed in accordance with Government Auditing Standards in considering the District's internal control over financial reporting and compliance.

SUDOKU

Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

ASTROGRAPH BY EUGENIA LAST

Express your views and align yourself with people who contribute to your progress. Refuse to let emotional matters and manipulative people confuse you or push you down a questionable path. Show your intelligence by standing up for your beliefs. Explore new possibilities and put your energy where it will do the most to ensure a better life.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) -- An emotional incident will lead to confusion. Don't miss out on an opportunity because you cannot let go of the past. Be open to suggestions, and you will discover a way to move forward.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) -- Offer your insight, suggestions and affection to others, and the results will lift your spirits and open doors to something new and exciting. Be a participant.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) -- If you don't like something, make changes. Put force behind your ideas and see matters through to the end. Thoughts followed by actions will help you reach your target.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) -- You're in dreamland. Before starting something new, make sure your ideas are sound. Put everything in place before you start bragging. Personal improvements help you move forward.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) -- Share and learn. A change due to someone's recommendation will lead to an exciting opportunity. Network and share information, and everyone will benefit, but be careful with personal data.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) -- You can make a move or change, but don't go over your budget.

Excess of any kind will make you look bad. Do the work and make a difference.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) -- Don't get into an emotional funk because someone mistreats you. Show everyone how resilient and capable you are. Communicate honestly and directly, and you'll outmaneuver any rival.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) -- Avoid getting involved in gossip or someone's enticing antics. The more energy and effort you put into your obligations, the more satisfying the rewards. A romantic evening is favored.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) -- Put more thought into financial and contractual matters. Don't be fooled by what others say or do. Don't commit to anything that is risky or touted by someone trying to take advantage of you.

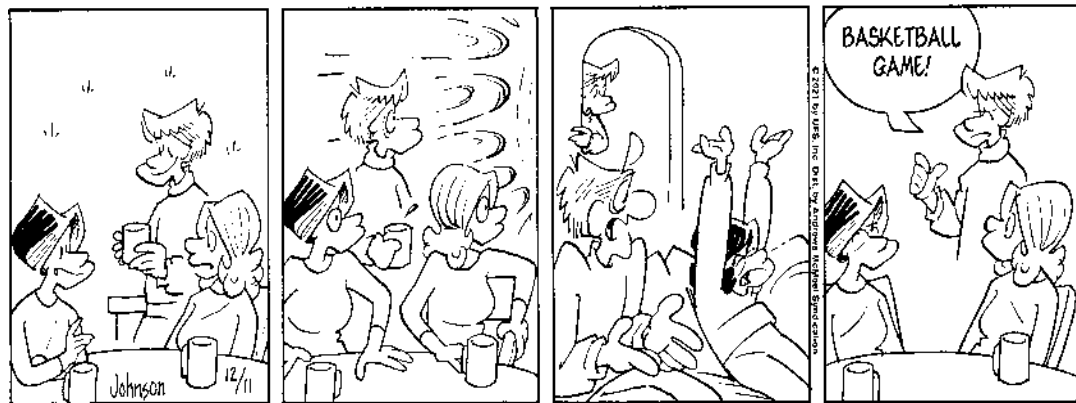

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) -- You'll gravitate toward movers and shakers, but that's no reason to leave out the people who have propped you up and pushed you forward. Mix the old with the new and make positive changes.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) -- Be a participant. Don't sit back when you have so much to offer. Let your voice lead the way and your ideas flourish. Act, and you'll command attention. Do what comes naturally.

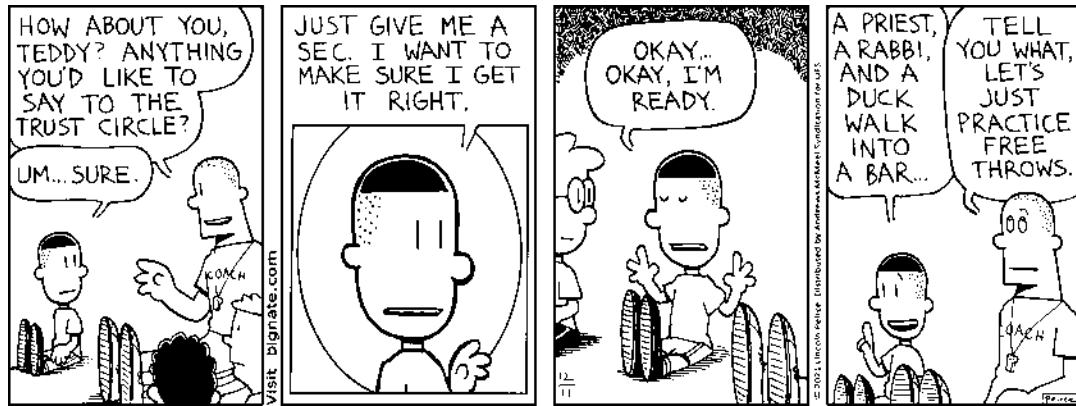

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) -- Look for the real deal; trying to replace something too soon or without enough thought will cause stress. Take your time and use your imagination, and you will find the right fit.

THAT A BABY

SUDOKU

Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Be realistic about what's possible, and you'll drum up interest in an idea you want to pursue. Communicate with people who can offer insight, and you'll gain confidence and inside information that will help you prepare for the future. Distance yourself from manipulative people. Be true to yourself and your beliefs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) -- A problem with a friend, relative or loved one will surface if someone isn't honest. Don't exaggerate or over-react. Be a good listener, assess the situation and offer a straightforward opinion.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) -- Look at the possibilities and choose the people you want to work alongside. Make a difference at home or in your community. Pay attention to a loved one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) -- An emotional matter will escalate. Put a positive spin on whatever you do or say. Change is upon you; it's up to you to take the path that adds to your happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) -- Your imagination will run wild. Don't get caught up in something that isn't realistic. Focus on what's doable and helpful. You can make a difference if you use your skills, not your cash, to help others.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) -- Take nothing for granted. Live up to your promises and take rules and regulations seriously. Channel your energy wisely and keep your life and relationships simple. Find someone who can help you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) -- Confusion will set in if someone withholds information or you have too many options. Take a step back and do something physical. An energetic activity will help you gain needed perspective.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) -- Broaden your scope, pay attention and put in the work required to get what you want. Share your vision and consider how to improve your relationships. Take a short trip or attend a seminar.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) -- Keep your emotions in check. Be a good listener, and you will avoid saying something you'll regret. A creative outlet will ease stress and broaden your interest in a potentially lucrative hobby.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) -- Gather information before you share your thoughts and feelings. It's up to you to be responsible and to allocate your time to suit your needs. Set a good example to attract valuable support.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) -- You'll encounter trouble if you aren't up-front. Be diplomatic, but not misleading. It's time to make a change that will take care of a problem that's been weighing you down.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) -- Keep the peace and focus on domestic matters. Take the time to hear grievances and to make adjustments that will accommodate loved ones. Compromise will pay off down the line.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) -- Look at the big picture. Baby steps will get you further ahead than making unrealistic promises and falling short. Be up-front about your feelings, and you'll find out where you stand.

Truman's Cody Schrader earns All-American status

Austin Miller
Daily Express

Truman running back Cody Schrader snagged yet another award Wednesday for his illustrious season.

Schrader was selected as a first-team All-American by the American Football Coaches Association. He is the 86th All-American in Truman history but the first by the AFCA since Jarrett Anderson in 1996.

The sophomore, who was the Co-Offensive Player of the Year in the Great Lakes Valley Conference this season, led Division II with 2,074 rushing yards, 25 rushing touchdowns and 172.8 yards per game. He also averaged 6.9 yards per carry, which was sixth-best in the country, and scored at least one touchdown in all 12 of Truman's games this fall. Schrader ran for 100 or more yards in 11 of 12 games and eclipsed 200 yards in five games.

One of those came in last weekend's America's Crossroads Bowl game, where he ran for 219 yards and three scores. He was selected as the game's offensive MVP.

Schrader's total yardage and touchdowns both rank second all-time for a season at Truman. Anderson ran for 2,140 yards and 27 touchdowns in 1996.

His 3,084 career yards has him sixth on Truman's career leaderboard and his 39 career touchdowns is third.

Chiefs' Tyrann Mathieu making important plays on and off the field

Dave Skretta
Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — There may be no other time in Tyrann Mathieu's life that he's felt such an affinity for the place he calls home.

The three-time All-Pro safety arrived in Kansas City three years ago after a year-long stint in Houston, signing a $42 million deal that gave him some sought-after stability.

And with the knowledge that he'd call the city home for a while, Mathieu not only poured himself into helping the Chiefs win a championship but also into helping the community.

Through his foundation, designed to help underprivileged people in Kansas City and his hometown of New Orleans, he has packed out backpacks to school children and turkeys to families in need during the holidays. Mathieu led an event around National Voter Registration Day, raised money for COVID-19 relief and led donation drives for local food pantries.

That championship? He helped the Chiefs deliver that two years ago, ending a 50-year title drought in Kansas City.

No wonder Mathieu is the Chiefs' nominee for the Walter Payton Man of the Year this season.

"You know the work he puts in, not only on the field but off the field as well. He's done it in every single community he's been," Chiefs quarterback Patrick Mahomes said.

"He truly cares about people, that's the biggest thing. He came up in a rougher background. He understands how much his impact can be to bring out the greatness in everyone."

Just this week, Mathieu surprised a nurse at a Kansas City-area hospital with two tickets to the upcoming Super Bowl.

One that he hopes to be playing in again.

"We all grew up experiencing different things," Mathieu said Wednesday. "For me, I play football because I love that part of it — the team part of it — coming together in the building, helping other people become what they want to be."

"It's kind of like the same mindset when it comes to the community. You want to feel a part of something. You want those people to feel special. You want to recognize those people, too."

Mathieu said the importance of giving back really hit home during his time in Arizona. He was surrounded by veterans such as wide receiver Larry Fitzgerald and defensive lineman Calais Campbell who showed him how to be a professional.

"I was just blessed and fortunate early on to get both sides of it," Mathieu said, "what it takes to be a great athlete and a great teammate, and what it takes to extend on that beyond the locker room."

On the field, the former Heisman Trophy finalist from LSU has molded himself into one of the league's best defensive backs. He's started all but two games the past two-plus seasons, picking off 12 passes and returning two of them for touchdowns, while also serving as the one responsible for lining up the secondary most of the time.

"He's been through a lot in his life. He understands that people need him and he's able to share his experience with people," Chiefs coach Andy Reid said. "The guys love him. They voted him captain every year. He's a good player, the players get how he's wired. He's very intense. He makes sure he 'mother hens' everybody out there and makes sure they're right."

Mathieu's contract is set to expire after the season, but the Chiefs — from chairman Clark Hunt through general manager Brett Veach and right down the line — have expressed their desire to sign him to an extension.

Mathieu likewise has said he would like to stay in Kansas City, where he's become intimately ingrained in the community. "All you can really do is do your best, really show people who you are. If people decide to keep you around, that's really their decision, but it won't change how I do or why I do it," Mathieu said.

"We won a championship, so I think that team will be really hard to forget; a lot of those players will be hard to forget. But this just feels like home."

NOTES: CB Chris Lammons missed Wednesday's practice with a high-ankle sprain. Reid said that CB Josh Jackson, who was protected on the practice squad this week, could replace him on special teams. ... CB Rashad Fenton (knee) and RT Lucas Niang (ribs) returned to work after missing last week's game. "They're going to try it this week and get some work," Reid said, "and then we'll just see how it goes."

Chiefs eagerly await the day Kelce, Hill get back on track

Dave Skretta
AP Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs have been giving defenses the most unenviable of options for years: Do they attempt to take away speedy, big-play wide receiver Tyreek Hill or crafty, equally dangerous tight end Travis Kelce?

It's kind of like choosing between hitting yourself in the head with a mallet and banging your toe with a hammer.

Either way, you're going to get hurt.

Yet the Packers and Broncos are among several teams that have figured out the riddle this season, taking away the top two targets of quarterback Patrick Mahomes and succeeding in slowing down the entire Kansas City offense.

The Packers allowed Hill to catch four of his 11 targets for 37 yards, while Kelce had five of his eight for 68, as the Chiefs squeaked out a 13-7 victory last month. The Broncos last Sunday held Hill to two catches on five targets for 22 yards, and Kelce to three catches on eight targets for 27 yards, as the Chiefs again leaned on their defense in a 22-9 win.

"I've learned as my career has gone on that you can't get caught up in the hype and the show of playing," Mahomes said earlier this week. "I have been in a lot of games where we've scored a lot of points and lost. But I promise you, when you win football games like we have, it feels a lot better."

Kelce and Hill would be the first to say the same thing. The Chiefs (8-4) have won five straight to take a one-game lead on the Chargers and a two-game edge on the Broncos and Raiders — their opponent Sunday — in the crowded AFC West.

But there's no doubting that Kelce and Hill also want to have more impact on the game. That's just their competitive natures.

When it comes to Kelce, defenses are using multiple defensive backs to simply wear him out. They jam him hard at the line of scrimmage to throw off some of the timing routes that the Chiefs like to run, and they continue to play him physically all the way through each play. Eventually, it becomes as mentally frustrating as it is physically demanding.

Three times this season, Kelce has been held to 27 yards or fewer — three of the 13 lowest totals in 122 straight games that he's had a catch. And the three catches he had against Denver last week were more than just eight other career games.

Then with Hill, defenses have adopted a two-high safety look that the Buccaneers embraced to such success in shutting down Kansas City in the Super Bowl.

They are willing to give up short gains underneath the coverage, and make the Chiefs work 10- and 12-play drives, rather than allowing Hill to beat them deep for easy touchdowns.

Only six times has Hill caught fewer than the two passes he grabbed against Denver. And when he caught three passes for 14 yards against Baltimore, it was his lowest yardage total since getting shut out by the Chargers on Nov. 18, 2019.

"It's been an adjustment period," Chiefs wide receivers coach Joe Bleyemeier said. "For Tyreek, he's made so many plays going down the field and he loves doing that. We still have to ask him to do that, but at times, the 12-yard ins or coming back and facing the quarterback — back-to-the-defense sort of routes that are open for him — that's what we need."

"It hasn't been him specifically," Bleyemeier added. "I think it's just an illustration of the whole defenses."

It hasn't helped anybody's cause that Kelce and Hill have been dropping passes at an alarming rate. Kelce has already had a career-high and league-leading 10 passes slip through his fingers, including one against Dallas that was picked off. Hill has dropped a career-high seven balls, three of which bounced into the hands of a defender.

As a team, the Chiefs have dropped the third-most passes in the league this season.

"I mean, every route is different that things have happened on," Chiefs coach Andy Reid said. "Going back to basics I think is important. Some of these things come in cycles like that, where sometimes the ball looks big and sometimes it looks small, kind of like batters in baseball. So you just got to focus it back on the fundamentals and go right back to square one. See the tip of the ball, squeeze it, and the tuck, and then do that at mach speed and with whatever elements are out there."

Mahomes is the first to accept some of the blame for the drops. He's thrown some balls high and low and behind his targets, and sometimes he's thrown a pass unnecessarily hard and made for a tougher catch for his receivers.

"If you look back at the one with Travis, the Cowboys game, (if) I put the ball in front of him, he probably catches it and breaks a tackle and gets extra yards," Mahomes said. "I kind of threw it on his back hip and it got tipped up and intercepted. "Just because it hits them it doesn't necessarily mean it's in the spot for them to make the catch."

Everybody appears confident that Kelce and Hill can get going down the stretch. They have a long track record of success that suggests it's only a matter of time. And besides, Mahomes said, the defense is playing well enough lately for the Chiefs to win games even without his top two targets putting up big numbers.

Just imagine how dangerous they'll be when the offense gets in sync.

"There's nothing extra they have to do. They have the talent, they have the playmaking abilities. It's just continuing to go out there and be themselves," Mahomes said. "I think
