Here's who has filed for the Aug. 2022 Primary Election so far

By Austin Miller
Daily Express

The path to this fall's busy election cycle opened Tuesday with the start of candidate filing.

Filing for the Aug. 2 Primary Election opened on Feb. 22 and remains open until March 29. There was already a decent rush for area candidates to apply on the first day.

Many county positions will be up for grabs later this year. That full list includes Presiding Judge, Associate Circuit Judge, Presiding County Commissioner, County Clerk, Collector of Revenue, County Treasurer, Recorder of Deeds, Prosecuting Attorney and Circuit Clerk. And several of the people who already hold those positions have filed.

Incumbents Kristie Swaim (Associate Circuit Judge), Mark Shahan (Presiding Commissioner), County Clerk (Sandy Collop), Collector of Revenue (Sonja Harden) and Treasurer (Lori Smith) are the only ones who have so far filed for those positions.

Though there will be some positions open for grabs.

Pat Shoush is retiring as the Recorder of Deeds, having been in that office since 1983 and as the Recorder since 2005. Tracy Hunter, who has been the Deputy Recorder for nearly the last six years, has filed for Recorder. So far she is the only person to do so.

And there will be a new Circuit Clerk as Linda Decker retires. Angie Sullivan and Martha Cole have filed for the position, both as Republicans.

Prosecuting Attorney will likely feature the largest field with three people having already filed. With current Prosecutor Matt Wilson pursuing the Presiding Judge position, his former seat is open. David Goring, Andrew Boster and Patrick Nolan have filed for Prosecutor. Goring and Boster have served as Wilson's assistants. Nolan is a local lawyer, part of Nolan, Mulford & Deleeuw.

All three of those men filed as Republicans, so, unless a Democrat joins the fray, that race will be decided in the August Primary.

And looking at state races, candidates were quick to file, even though updated districts haven't been finalized.

Adair County Ambulance District adds 1/8-cent sales tax increase measure to April Municipal Election ballot

By Marty Bachman
Kirkville Daily Express

The Adair County Ambulance District (ACAD) Board of Directors are asking county voters to approve a 1/8-cent increase in sales tax, which they say is needed in order to continue providing the level of service county residents have come to expect.

County voters approved a 3/8-cent tax in 2006 and by increasing the tax to 1/2-cent, will bring in an additional $400,000 annually to the district's coffers.

According to Larry Burton, CEO of Adair County Ambulance, a non-profit organization, revenue has been flat the past several years while expenses, in every category of the district's budget, continue to rise.

"It's simply reached a point where it's increasingly more difficult to balance our net revenue with our increasing expenses," Burton said.

Burton said that currently, the typical net revenue of the district is between $3.3 and $3.4 million a year, with 41 percent coming from the current 3/8-cent sales tax, about $1.4 million. Other revenue comes from patient care transport that clients pay for. While the district responds to as many as 4,000 emergency calls a year, they only get paid for calls where they transport the patient, which is about 2,600.

"Four-hundred thousand in net revenue will go a long way toward helping us continue to deliver the highest quality of EMS services to the citizens of Adair County, which is our mission and something that we work very hard to deliver and continue to deliver throughout the years," Burton said.

Larry Burton, CEO of Adair County Ambulance.

Burton noted that Adair County Ambulance is one of only three Missouri cities that is accredited by the national Commission on Accreditation of Ambulance Services, which was established to promote and encourage quality patient care in America's medical transportation system. Their paramedic training program has also earned accreditation with the national Commission on Accreditation of Allied Health Education Programs, the largest programmatic accreditor of the health sciences professions.

"We take our mission and our responsibilities very serious and do everything that we possibly can possibly do to deliver the highest quality of care," Burton said. "Unfortunately, it costs money to do that — it's expensive in today's world."

He said that the district has to keep up with salaries, wages and benefits as they're competing for the same talent as neighboring communities who are trying to recruit from the same pool of personnel. Dealing with covid for the last two years has added even more strain on the

Truman State University project focuses on community outreach and student support

By Truman State University

Truman State University will soon transform a campus landmark in an effort to expand services in the community to assist learners of all ages.

With financial assistance from the state of Missouri, Truman will renovate the Kirk Building to house a new Student Success Center to be utilized by Truman students as well as a Sustained Knowledge of Integrated Lifelong Learning Skills (SKILLS) Center for area K-12 students, non-student community members and other adult learners. The SKILLS Center will build upon the services of the Student Success Center, making key services available to the local community.

Truman State University will renovate the Kirk Building to house a new Student Success Center to be utilized by Truman students as well as a Sustained Knowledge of Integrated Lifelong Learning Skills (SKILLS) Center for area K-12 students, non-student community members and other adult learners.

"Truman is committed to lifelong learning and to Kirkville and northeast Missouri," said University President Susan L. Thomas. "This project provides an invaluable opportunity to strengthen those commitments. We are very excited about the impact the SKILLS Center will have."

Local internet service provider completes fiber-rich network in Kirksville

By Daily Express staff

Local internet service provider Sparklight, recently completed construction of a $17 million, state-of-the-art, fiber-rich network in Kirksville, building a majority of the network underground to further strengthen the reliability of its high-speed internet service to residential and business customers.

"Our new underground network will reduce the impact of events such as fiber cuts and severe weather, including ice storms or strong winds that could otherwise take the network offline," said Martin Stitzer, Sparklight general manager. "We appreciate the patience and cooperation of our community and the support of the city of Kirksville as we completed this project. This new network will enable us to continue to meet the evolving digital needs of our customers while delivering high-value service and a quality customer experience."

Sparklight's new cutting-edge network is built with advanced, future-proof technology that will benefit customers today, as well as lay the groundwork for future expansion and technological advancements, including 10G for residential customers.

"Reliable internet is a key component of infrastructure and essential for economic growth that will help us attract and retain businesses in our community," said Mari Macomber, city manager of Kirksville. "We're thankful for Sparklight's $17 million investment in our city through the construction of this new, state-of-the-art network, which will provide our residents and businesses the high-speed internet service they need to keep them connected for years to come."

Sparklight Business currently offers up to 10 Gig symmetrical speeds over a dedicated fiber connection to larger Kirksville organizations, government agencies, healthcare facilities, and educational institutions. In a letter sent to customers, Stitzer said that the company will be discontinuing its residential 100 Mbps internet service and migrating customers to the 200 Mbps plan, which is the closest match to their existing service and offers the twice the download and upload speeds and twice the data.

"We value our partnership with the City of Kirksville, and we will continue to provide our customers with the latest products and technical advancements, while maintaining the highest level of reliability and customer care," he wrote. "We recognize that we have a responsibility to our customers and the communities where we do business, and we will continue to ensure that we are the kin do company that are communities are proud to call a neighbor."

Sparklight has many different plan packages listed on their website. To find out more, go to www.sparklight.com.

ELECTION

Current Missouri House District 3 Rep. Danny Busick (R-Newtown) filed for his third term. He hadn't had a Republican primary challenger in either of his first races, but he does now. Gary M. Ewing (Powersville) also filed on the Republican side. No

Democrat has yet filed for the district. In District 4, Greg Sharpe (R-Ewing) is so far unopposed in that race, which wouldn't be new if that held. Sharpe has run unopposed in his two previous races in 2018 and 2020. Moving to the Missouri Senate, Cindy O'Laughlin (R-Shelbina) is the only one to file for District 18 thus far. She seeks her second term in the senate. In 2018, she defeated three other Republicans in the primary before besting Crystal Stephens in the general. And for U.S. Congressional District 6, Sam Graves is running to keep the seat he's held since 2001. But he currently has three challengers on the Republican side — including a local person — and two more on the Democrat side. Dakota Shultz of Greentop has filed for that race, as well as Brandon Kleinmeyer of Parkville, as Republican primary challengers for Graves. And Henry Martin, Kansas City, and Charles West, Canton, have filed on the Democrat side. The General Election is scheduled for Nov. 8.

The SKILLS Center will offer services for area residents through workforce development outreach, rural telehealth counseling, K-12 education and academic outreach workshops. Students could receive tutoring and advising, while adult learners might seek skills to assist with career advancement through non-credit workshops on topics such as digital literacy, computer applications and personal development. The center will look to collaborate with relevant community partners including: the city of Kirkville, Adair County and other municipalities and counties in the northeast Missouri region; Kirkville Regional Economic Development, Inc., and other regional economic development entities; the Missouri Division of Employment Security; and regional health care and social service providers. The total estimated cost for the project is approximately $21 million. State support for the project comes in the form of $10.5 million through the American Rescue Plan Act that was recommended by Gov. Mike Parson during the State of the State address in January. The University plans to pursue grant funding, private donations and local resources to help meet its required portion of the funding.

If funding is approved by the Missouri General Assembly, design for renovation of the building is slated to begin in August 2022 with completion projected by December 2024. Constructed in 1923, Kirk Building is named in honor of John R. Kirk, an alumnus and the second-longest tenured president in University history. For generations of alumni, it is remembered as the social center of campus since it was the site of games, assemblies and events.

OBITUARIES

A life lived in service is a life well lived.

Our beloved mother, Irma Elkington Witt, was welcomed into the arms of her loving husband in the early morning hours of February 19, 2022. The two reunited in heaven after a nine-year, nineteen-day separation during which Mom missed her sweetheart every single day. While we are heartbroken at her passing, we rejoice in their long-awaited reunion and the continuation of their beautiful love story.

Mom was born in the small town of Grantsville, Utah, on February 2, 1931, to Ruth Ratcliffe Clark and Vaughn Elkington. She spent her summers pulling weeds on irrigation day in endless rows of vegetables with her sisters Nadine and Ruth, and her baby brother, Grant. She walked to and from school twice a day, coming home to choke down a warm bowl of tomato soup at lunch. She loved school, especially reading, where she developed a life-long love of learning.

Her deepest desire as a young girl was to be allowed to wear a pair of jeans. That dream was finally realized when she moved out of the family home. She must not have enjoyed those jeans as much as she thought she would, because she didn't wear them often.

When she was in high school, Mom joined a double quartet as an alto. The group sang at various events around Tooele, and she spoke often of the time they were asked to sing in the Tabernacle on Temple Square in Salt Lake City. She played clarinet in the marching band, participated in school plays, served in student government, and loved hanging out with her many friends.

After a broken engagement, Mom was asked to serve a mission. Though she initially was not excited to go, she was grateful for the opportunity throughout the rest of her life. While serving in the Great Lakes Mission, working in the mission home, Mom became acquainted with Elder Witt—an outgoing young missionary from Nephi, Utah. Dad looked her up when he returned home from his mission at the request of the mission president's wife—who must have had an inkling that they would be good together—and they were married a few months later on June 27, 1955.

Mom and Dad loved each other fiercely. With all the adventures that came with raising five rambunctious children, they built a life centered on faith in Jesus Christ, supporting each other through illness, job changes, injuries, financial difficulties, and all the typical trials life deals out. When Dad was diagnosed with multiple sclerosis, Mom helped shoulder the load as they carried that burden together. She was his primary caregiver for over forty years, and we are so eternally grateful for that selfless service she freely gave.

She loved reading, singing, crocheting, knitting, quilting, cooking, bread-making, and sewing, and she was a master storyteller. She also loved gummy orange slices, peanut butter cups, peanuts, peanut brittle, warm bread, and potatoes baked any which way—especially browned around a juicy pork roast. Mom loved the Lord, her husband, books, and her children. In that order. We knew growing up that if Mom was reading one of her beloved books, we had to tap her on the arm to get her attention. Hard.

Mom was preceded in death by her sweetheart, Leonard, her sisters Lois, Nadine, and Ruth, and several brothers- and sisters-in law. She is survived by her brother, Grant (Nedra), her children, Karen (Terry) Irick, Vaughn (Donna), James (Tanya), Marilyn (Bruce) Bunder-son, and Julie, seventeen grandchildren, their spouses, and thirteen great-grandchildren. She and Dad have built a legacy of love that we will carry on through generations. We love you, Mom, you lived your life well.

The funeral will be on Saturday, February 26, 2022, at 11:00 a.m. at Davis-Playle-Hudson-Rimer Funeral Home, 2100 E. Shepherd Ave., Kirksville, MO, 63501, with a viewing from 10:00 to 11:00 a.m. Burial will be in Highland Park Cemetery.

In lieu of flowers, please consider making a donation to NEMO Senior Citizens Services, www.nemoseniorcitizens.org, who provided invaluable services to help keep mom home in her final years.

Report: Flaw that exposed teacher data existed since 2011

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ST. LOUIS — A flaw in a state database that allowed public access to thousands of teachers' Social Security numbers has been in place for a decade before a St. Louis Post-Dispatch reporter exposed it, according to a report that was released Monday.

Republican Gov. Mike Parson condemned reporter Josh Renaud last fall for writing about the weakness, even though the paper refrained from doing so until after the state could fix it. Parson also said the Missouri State Highway Patrol would conduct an investigation, which culminated in the 158-page report that was released Monday.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch reports that DESE spokeswoman Mallory McGowin told the patrol that Renaud hadn't accessed "anything that was not publicly available, nor was he in a place he should not have been."

According to the report, McGowin also told investigators with the patrol that a vulnerability that left 576,000 teacher Social Security numbers exposed "would have been there since 2011, when the application was implemented."

The Post-Dispatch previously obtained records through an open records request showing that the state education commissioner initially planned to thank the newspaper for finding the problem. But the state instead issued a news release calling the reporter a "hacker."

McGowin said the database — like other state computer services — is actually overseen by Parson's Office of Administration, which the governor controls.

The highway patrol said it spent about 175 hours on the investigation. Three officers assisted in the probe. No cost estimate was provided.

The report's release came more than a week after Cole County Prosecuting Attorney Locke Thompson announced he would not be charging Renaud in connection with the investigation.

The investigators also talked with cybersecurity expert Shaji Khan, who had verified for the Post-Dispatch that the flaw existed.

Khan, who teaches at the University of Missouri-St. Louis, said he was alarmed by the information he'd received about the vulnerability.

"He (Khan) stated by the time he was done looking, he realized how bad the situation was and indicated the state needed to be notified immediately," the report notes.

Khan's attorney, Elad Gross, said last week that Thompson would not be charging Khan either.

"Governor Mike Parson had no basis to instigate a criminal investigation into reporter Josh Renaud or cybersecurity expert Dr. Shaji Khan. These Missourians responsibly reported a security flaw on a public website that transmitted teachers' social security numbers to every website visitor. They did the right thing," Gross said in a statement.

Joe Graves speaks to Rotary Club of Kirksville

By Rotary Club of Kirksville

At the Feb. 23 Rotary Club of Kirksville meeting, Hollister Incorporated Kirksville Plant Manager Joe Graves spoke about the local manufacturing facility. The roots of Hollister date back to 1921 when 23-year-old entrepreneur John Schneider founded a small printing company in Chicago. The business grew and expanded to become a global medical product manufacturer operating in six locations, including in The Netherlands. The company has been manufacturing innovative medical products in Kirksville since 1965 and currently has 96 employees, 74 of whom are involved in direct labor. organization, making the need for net revenue vital to its future.

Burton was sympathetic to citizens of the county who have seen their expenses rise as well, and said he understands their reluctance to vote for more taxes in the face of rising living costs and inflation, even one that's only 1/8 of a cent.

"Not a lot of people want more tax, obviously, I don't either as an individual," he said. "We certainly wouldn't ask for that tax if we didn't need it. But I feel like the people within this community and throughout Adair County, they understand the necessity of having a high-quality medical services organization within their community to be there for them 24/7, 365 days a year to respond when they call."

He said that while every penny counts, the impact is fairly minimal to every individual citizen spending money in the community.

"If you spend $8, it will cost you roughly a penny," he said. "If you spent $1,000, it will cost you around $1.25 total. So the financial impact is minimal but it's also understandable that every penny counts in today's society."

Burton said that whether the tax measure passes or not, Adair County Ambulance will continue to provide the level of service they have always given to the community.

"That's not going to change," he said. "Our vision that we've been pursuing and will continue to pursue, has been to achieve excellence, to receive recognition as a leader within the EMS industry, provide a quality of care that's both measurable and accredited, and deliver the same quality to all the citizens of Adair County. That's not going to change."

He said the district would continue to look at every category in the budget to cut expenses, something they do continuously, but that it will be increasingly difficult to balance the numbers as prices continue to rise. With the cost of an ambulance at $240,000, the district has chosen to purchase vehicle chassis's at $130,000 while remounting the box. Despite the savings, maintenance, training, education and capital costs continue to rise while margins to be used in emergency situations grow thinner. Cuts will not include anything that will take away from the organization's mission though.

"There's no way to build our business from a transport revenue perspective," Burton said. "We have a certain population and a certain demographic that we serve, so those numbers are going to be fairly consistent and they have been consistent over the years."

He said that Medicare doesn't even cover the costs of some transports and Medicaid is similar. Commercial payers are reducing what they're paying as well so it becomes more and more difficult to collect the monies the district generates. He said that 11 percent of their pay-er mix is self-pay and the majority of those customers have no insurance so most of that is written off as bad debt — as much as $600,000 a year.

"It's a challenging environment for us," he said. "But you're never going to find among any group in any area within this region, a better professional team of folks that take this job serious and understand why we're here to have that service available to the citizens of Adair County, 24/7, 365... and we're going to continue that to the best of our ability. But if you're going to recruit and train quality professionals, you're going to have to pay them a competitive benefit and wage package and it becomes increasingly more difficult to do that if you're not able to create a small margin."

SUDOKU

Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Get your facts straight. Don't act on assumptions. Be realistic about what's possible. Be specific, and have your plans mapped out according to your skills, time and desire. Success comes from doing what's best for you. Less time spent worrying about what others think or do and more time designated to your needs will encourage success and happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) -- When in doubt, take the time to research. Go directly to the source and ask pertinent questions to ensure you make the right decision. Stay calm and look over all options.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) -- Misinformation is apparent when trying to sort through documents and online sites and talking to experts. Leave nothing to chance and follow up on any discrepancies you encounter.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) -- Address a concern wholeheartedly, and gather pertinent facts. Knowledge is power when faced with controversy or opposition. Don't make unnecessary changes. Make every step you take count.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) -- Work alone and ignore the drama. Do your due diligence and ferret out the truth. Refuse to let anyone railroad you into something using emotional manipulation, temptation or lies.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) -- Proceed with your plans. Gather information, check out the competition and network with those who show interest in what you are doing. Embrace the unusual, and consider partnerships that offer benefits.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) -- Don't let someone who holds you back rather than pushes you forward have a say. Take responsibility for your actions and accomplishments. Don't wait for opportunities to come to you; manifest them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) -- Concentrate on what brings you joy and satisfies your soul. Explore how to use your skills, attributes and experience more effectively. Join forces with someone who brings out the best in you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) -- Use experience, resources and intelligence to figure out what works best for you to help you maintain a healthy financial position. Keep your life simple and functional, and focus on what's important.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) -- Plunge into what interests you, and embrace new possibilities. Consider new ways to repurpose old ideas and put your tools to work for you. It's what you do that will make the difference.

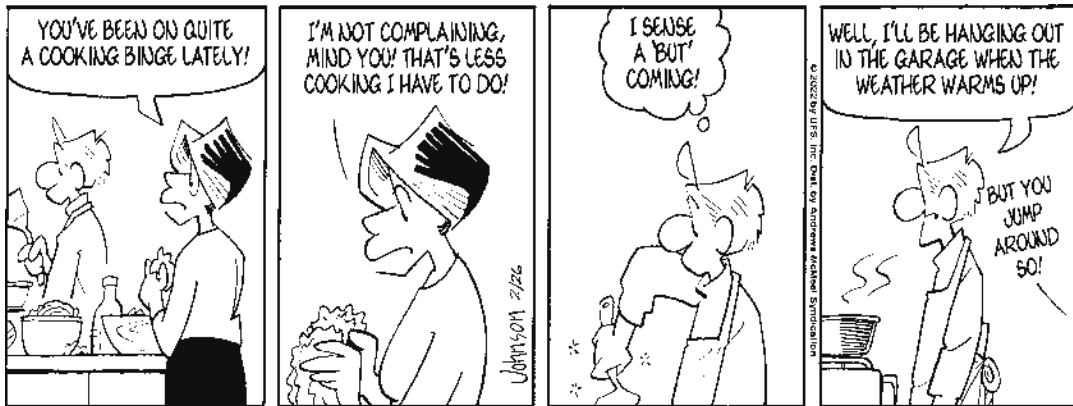

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) -- Rethink your connection to someone who tends to get you in trouble or leans on you too much. Use your smarts to recognize when someone is taking advantage of you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) -- Someone will complicate matters if you are gullible or too accommodating. Look out for your best interests. Home improvements will add to your comfort and ease stress. Put the past behind you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) -- Reconnect with people who put a smile on your face. A good laugh will do you a world of good and help you get over any disappointments you harbor. Put your heart into something you enjoy doing.

ASTROGRAPH BY EUGENIA LAST

Take what you can and use your skills to reach your goal. A change in how you earn and handle your money will help you build a strong base for what's to come. Turn to the things you enjoy most, and use your intelligence and connections to make your dream come true.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) -- Invite alternatives into your life. Don't be afraid to make a move and follow your heart. Step up, do as you please and have no regrets. Own what you do, and be responsible for the outcome.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) -- Be innovative, put a plan in place and pitch what you want to someone in a position to help you reach your objective. Network or reconnect with someone you enjoy working alongside.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) -- Use experience and fortitude to muster up a deal or idea that can help you use your skills more to your liking. A change will revitalize you and give you hope. Romance is encouraged.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) -- Don't get trapped in someone's dream when you have your own goals to achieve. Limit your time with reckless people or those who try to talk you into something that isn't in your best interest.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) -- Take the plunge and try something that exhilarates you. A positive connection with someone will lead to plans that can permanently alter your life. Love is on the rise.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) -- Choose intelligence and verbal response over physical action and potential risk of injury or illness. Be wise in your assessments of situations and mindful of those around you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) -- You have plenty to gain if you participate in events focused on making a difference. Do your part, network, donate and align yourself with those doing their best to turn negatives into positives.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) -- Delve into something you enjoy, and it will put a smile on your face and give you hope. Put a plan in place and follow through. Refuse to let laziness steal the joy that accomplishments offer.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) -- Let go of the past and embrace what life offers. Check out what others are up to, and share experiences. Explore your skills and talents creatively and uniquely, and you'll find a new niche.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) -- Don't get into a pointless debate with someone who exaggerates. Stay intent on taking care of your financial affairs, and put a game plan in place that will help you save for something unique.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) -- Turn up the volume and make yourself heard. Step into the spotlight, and bring about positive change. Make personal gains, love or self-improvement your goal, and happiness will follow.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) -- Speculation is not enough to make a change that can affect your health, wealth and happiness. Thoroughly dissect any offer that comes your way. Play it smart, be safe and eliminate sorrow.

MLB: Season to be shortened if no deal by end of Monday

By RONALD BLUM
AP Baseball Writer

JUPITER, Fla. — Major League Baseball said only five days remain to salvage March 31 openers and a full season, telling locked out players that games would be canceled if a labor contract is not agreed to by the end of Monday.

After the third straight day of negotiations with little movement, MLB went public with what it had told the union on Feb. 12.

“A deadline is a deadline. Missed games are missed games. Salary will not be paid for those games,” an MLB spokesman said after Wednesday’s bargaining ended. The spokesman spoke on behalf of MLB on the condition the spokesman not be identified by name.

Players have not accepted Monday as a deadline and have suggested any missed games could be made up as part of doubleheaders, a method MLB said it will not agree to.

The union told MLB if games are missed and salaries are lost, clubs should not expect players to agree to management’s proposals to expand the postseason and to allow advertisements on uniforms and helmets.

Bargaining is scheduled to continue Thursday, and both sides said they are prepared to meet through Monday.

A shortened season would be baseball’s second in three years following a 2020 schedule cut from 162 games to 60 because of the coronavirus pandemic. The last seasons truncated by labor strife were during the strike that ended the 1994 schedule on Aug. 12 and caused the start of the following season to be delayed from April 2 to April 25. The 1995 schedule was reduced from 162 games to 144.

Players are paid only during the regular season, accruing 1/162nd of their salary daily.

Players would be subject to losing as much as $232,975 daily in the case of Mets pitcher Max Scherzer, or as little as $3,441 for a player at a $640,000 minimum.

Baseball’s work stoppage was in its 84th day, and the three sessions this week increased the total on core economic issues to just nine since the lockout began Dec. 2.

Spring training workouts had been scheduled to start on Feb. 16, and MLB already has canceled the first week of exhibitions, which were to begin Friday.

Baseball Commissioner Rob Manfred said on Feb. 10 a minimum of four weeks of training are needed before starting the season. A deal by Monday would allow that plus a few days for players to report to camps in Arizona and Florida.

Manfred has spoken publicly just once since the day the lockout began and union head Tony Clark not at all.

MLB’s public statement was interpreted as a pressure tactic by the union, which was angered payrolls decreased during the expired five-year deal and an increased number of teams jettisoned higher-salaries veterans and transitioned to rebuilding mode.

“To get bears in the forest, you can’t offer them bear traps,” said Scott Boras, agent for five of eight players on the union’s executive subcommittee.

A day after the union made only small moves in response to management’s incremental proposal of a day earlier, MLB advanced only one change: Teams offered to increase the minimum salary from $570,500 to $640,000, up from their previous proposal of $630,000. The minimum would increase by an additional $10,000 each season during a five-year agreement. Clubs withdrew their proposal for a tiered minimum, which players opposed.

Players have asked for $775,000 in 2022 and additional $30,000 jumps in each succeeding season. The union evaluated MLB’s proposal as adding $5 million annually.

There was no discussion Wednesday on the key issue of luxury tax thresholds and rates, but players voiced their concern over a lack of competition and the need for younger players to get higher salaries earlier in their careers.

The union proposed a $115 million pool of money that would go to 150 pre-arbitration players annually, while the clubs offered $20 million that would be distributed to 30.

Yankees pitchers Gerrit Cole and Zack Britton joined the talks, two of six members on hand from the executive subcommittee that supervises the negotiations. They were joined by Scherzer, free agent pitcher Andrew Miller, Mets shortstop Francisco Lindor, and Houston catcher Jason Castro.

After meeting at the start of the day at Roger Dean Stadium, the vacant spring training home of the Miami Marlins and St. Louis Cardinals, the sides caucused and then had a smaller group meeting that included Deputy Commissioner Dan Halem, Colorado CEO Dick Monfort, Scherzer and Miller.

Teams have told the union they will not decrease revenue sharing and will not add new methods for players to accrue service time, which the union said is needed to prevent teams from holding players back to delay free agency.

Clubs also are refusing to increase arbitration eligibility among players with at least two years of service and less than three, of which the top 22% by service time are eligible. The union wants it expanded to 75%.

Rodgers says he still hasn’t decided on his 2022 plans

By AP

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Aaron Rodgers says he’s still making up his mind about whether he wants to return to the Green Bay Packers next season.

“There will be no news today,” the four-time MVP quarterback said Tuesday on “The Pat McAfee Show” on YouTube and SiriusXM. “No decision on my future.”

Rodgers said after the season that he would try to make a decision about his 2022 plans in relatively short order rather than dragging out the process. The reigning MVP said at the time that he hadn’t ruled out any option, including returning to the Packers for an 18th season, retiring or requesting a trade.

When Rodgers sent out an Instagram post late Monday night thanking current and former teammates and coaches among others, it raised speculation that an announcement on his future could be forthcoming. Rodgers said Tuesday he just wanted to show some gratitude to people who have helped him over the past year.

“I just came out of a 12-day cleanse where you’re eating a specific diet and you’re going through these treatments every day and you’re not really doing anything else,” Rodgers said during his 40-minute conversation.

“You’ve got to kind of turn everything else off, so you’re not working out, you’re not straining or anything. It’s kind of a re-centering. It not only heals you physically, but I think it takes away mental stress and then the spiritual part I think is it allows you to kind of enjoy the meditations a little more, so when I come out, my first thought is intense gratitude for the people in my life.”

Rodgers won his second straight MVP award less than two weeks ago. The Packers went 13-4 in the regular season and won a third straight NFC North title before losing 13-10 at home to the San Francisco 49ers in the divisional playoffs.

After the season, Rodgers talked about making a decision by the time the free agency period begins next month. He continues to point out the importance of getting this done soon.

“I get it,” Rodgers said. “There’s not a lot to talk about football-wise and this will be a topic of conversation. But I am looking forward to making a decision and moving forward. I think it’s best for me. It’s best for the team. It’s best for all parties involved. Let’s just get this behind us.”

The 38-year-old Rodgers did offer the Packers some reason for optimism.

He said he enjoyed the postseason conversations he had with team officials such as coach Matt LaFleur, general manager Brian Gutekunst and executive vice president/director of football operations Russ Ball.

“The meetings were much different than they were in the past, in a positive way,” Rodgers said. “There were some real honest conversations that I appreciate.”

He wants to avoid a repeat of 2021, when his status with the team was uncertain until the start of training camp.

Rodgers reported for training camp on time last summer after skipping their mandatory minicamp, but he acknowledged his future with the organization was uncertain. At the time, he said he wanted more of a voice in the team’s decision-making process.

His relationship with Packers management improved over the course of the season. Rodgers said it started with a meeting he had with Gutekunst shortly after arriving for training camp.

“I feel like that was kind of the first step to having a real free-flowing conversation and friendship,” Rodgers said. “I’m definitely thankful for the work that he put in on the relationship, and Russ Ball as well. Matt and I, I believe every year we get closer and more connected and feel better about our communication.”

Rodgers said he also had to make some adjustments.

“It wasn’t a one-way street,” Rodgers said. “I knew that I had to grow as well. I had to be more comfortable with those conversations, with being responsive to them in a super-timely manner, trying to find kindness in the adverse moments or difficult conversations we had. I feel like we all grew and had a good year of communication, had nice conversations after the season. I felt really good at how that got tied up before I left town.”

LaFleur and president/CEO Mark Murphy had said after the season they wanted Rodgers back in 2022. They indicated that was a unanimous decision among the team’s main decision-makers.

The Packers seemed to make a move aimed at keeping Rodgers last week with the hiring of quarterbacks coach Tom Clements, who previously worked with the team from 2006-16. Rodgers said Tuesday that he owes Clements “so much credit for my development” and added that “the game is better when Tom Clements is coaching because he’s one of those special, special coaches.”

NBC’s scores are in: Record low Olympics ratings

By DAVID BAUDER
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK — The final scores are in, and NBC is no doubt happy to put the Beijing Winter Olympics in the rear-view mirror.

The games reached an average combined audience of 11.4 million people in prime time on NBC, the USA cable network and Peacock streaming service, the network said. That’s the lowest-ever American audience for any Olympics, and down 42% from the Winter Games in Pyeongchang, South Korea, in 2018.

For NBC alone, the prime time telecasts reached an average of 9.3 million viewers, or 48% down from South Korea, the Nielsen company said.

The games never really captured the public imagination, and were hurt by COVID-19 restrictions that had most of NBC’s announcers working half a world away in Connecticut.

In a diminished world for broadcast television, however, NBC beat every other network in prime time during the Games’ duration. Only pro football can say the same this season. The Peacock streaming service, which will undoubtedly play a bigger role in future Olympics, had its best stretch of usage since the service began, NBC said.

Mark Lazarus, chairman of NBC Universal television and streaming, said Peacock “delivered a user experience that was greatly enhanced from just six months ago” during the COVID-delayed Tokyo Summer Olympics.

For the week, NBC averaged 7.2 million viewers in prime time. CBS had 3 million, ABC had 2.7 million, Fox had 2 million, Univision had 1.5 million, Ion Television had 1.3 million and Telemundo had 1 million.

Fox News Channel was the most popular cable network in prime time, averaging 2.42 million viewers. TNT had 2.01 million, MSNBC had 1.05 million and Hallmark had 968,000.

Monahan: Players tempted by Saudi tour need to make up minds

PGA Tour Commissioner Jay Monahan is not ready to declare the threat of a rival Saudi league over

By DOUG FERGUSON
AP Golf Writer

PGA Tour Commissioner Jay Monahan says he has “zero complacency” when it comes to the threat of a Saudi-funded rival league, and he has a clear message for any player still tempted to leave.

“I told the players we’re moving on and anyone on the fence needs to make a decision,” Monahan said Wednesday in a telephone interview.

He also emphasized anew that players who sign up for a Saudi golf league will lose their PGA Tour membership and should not expect to get it back.

Monahan said the tour had “incredible momentum” coming off its West Coast swing. None of the top 12 players in the world expressed support for joining a Saudi league, a damaging blow to Greg Norman and his LIV Golf Investments. The endless chatter of a new league was louder than ever last week, centering on the possibility that Norman was on verge of announcing a roster of 20 players.

“All this talk about the league and about money has been distracting to our players, our partners and most importantly our fans,” Monahan said. “We’re focused on legacy, not leverage. You saw it last week with Joaquin Niemann winning, receiving the trophy from a legend (tournament host Tiger Woods) who inspired him to take up the game.

“Those moments can’t be replicated.”

Monahan met with players Tuesday afternoon at the Honda Classic. While the meeting had been scheduled weeks in advance, it began just minutes after Phil Mickelson released a statement in which he apologized for “reckless” remarks about the Saudis and praised Norman’s LIV Golf Investments for sharing his goal of making golf better.

Mickelson did not mention Monahan or the PGA Tour, which he referred to as a “dictatorship” in his explosive comments to Alan Shipnuck, whose biography on Mickelson is due in May. Mickelson also said he and three other top players paid attorneys to write the operating agreement for a new league in which players would have more control.

Monahan declined to comment when asked if Mickelson had been suspended or faces punishment, citing the tour’s longstanding policy of not discussing discipline.

Mickelson said he needed time away without elaborating when or how long it would be. He has not played since the Saudi International three weeks ago. It was in Saudi Arabia where Mickelson first accused the PGA Tour of “obnoxious greed” in an interview with Golf Digest. He also said even the talk of a rival league was providing leverage to get changes he felt were needed on tour.

Most damaging to Mickelson were his vulgar description of the Saudis, and how he was willing to overlook their human rights atrocities if it allowed him a “once-in-a-lifetime” chance to reshape the PGA Tour where he has made nearly $120 million in career earnings and bonuses.

KPMG, a corporate partner with Mickelson since 2008, said Tuesday in an email there was mutual agreement on ending the endorsement contract immediately. Amstel Light said Wednesday it has ended its partnership with the six-time major champion.

Workday did not immediately respond to an email seeking comment, although that contract was believed to be ending in the spring.

Norman’s proposed league took a beating last week in Los Angeles when top players like Jon Rahm and Rory McIlroy repeated strong support for the PGA Tour, and then Dustin Johnson announced on Sunday he was “fully committed” to FILE — Phil Mickelson walks off the 14th green after missing a birdie putt during the third round at the PGA Championship golf tournament on the Ocean Course, Saturday, May 22, 2021, in Kiawah Island, S.C. the tour. Johnson’s statement was among the most influential because he was often connected to the new league without ever having indicated which way he was leaning.

Hours later, Bryson DeChambeau offered more tepid support by saying if the best players were sticking with the PGA Tour, that’s where he would be playing.

Monahan said he thanked the many top players who showed their loyalty, though he didn’t feel as if the threat was over. McIlroy referred to it as “dead in the water” because none of golf’s top players were going.

“There is zero complacency here,” Monahan said. “We will continue to talk to the players and continue to listen.”

According to those in the room for his meeting with the players, Monahan’s overall theme was about money — not only how much prize money was projected to grow on the PGA Tour over the length of the broadcast contracts, but how the Saudi league was being built only on money and how much it would take to cause a player to leave.

“I think it’s going to still keep going. I think there will still be talk. Everyone talks about money. They’ve got enough of it,” Brooks Koepka said Wednesday. “They’ll get their guys. Somebody will sell out and go to it.”

Still, the support from top players — Koepka was among the first to speak out — was a boost for the tour as it begins its Florida swing that includes another $12 million purse at the Arnold Palmer Invitational next week, and Woods getting inducted into the World Golf Hall of Fame during The Players’ Championship.

“I know where a lot of our athletes stand,” Monahan said. “That validation was incredibly impactful and gave us a renewed sense of optimism.”

AP sources: Zach Johnson selected US Ryder Cup captain

By DOUG FERGUSON
AP Golf Writer

Two-time major champion Zach Johnson is taking over as Ryder Cup captain, leading an American side trying to end 30 years without a victory on European soil.

Three people with knowledge of the decision confirmed the move to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity because the PGA of America has yet to announce Johnson’s selection.

The PGA scheduled a news conference for Monday morning to announce the new captain.

The decision is not a surprise. Johnson, 45, has been an assistant captain each of the last two matches, and the U.S. team has moved toward captains with previous involvement.

The 2023 matches are scheduled for Marco Simone in Italy. The Americans are coming off the country’s biggest Ryder Cup rout, beating Europe 19-9 at Whistling Straits last September with Wisconsin native Steve Stricker as the captain.

Stricker was part of the Ryder Cup committee — three PGA Tour players and three PGA of America executives — that picked the next captain.

Europe has yet to announce its next captain, a process that has been slowed as some candidates contemplated joining a Saudi-funded rival league that has yet to get off the ground.

Tony Finau, when asked last week at Riviera if he could envision Johnson as Ryder Cup captain, gave his endorsement and described him as a “great leader.”

“He’s a cool blend of the older generational player and a person with a new generational outlook on the game,” Finau said. “He’s lived in both worlds. He’s got a great perspective on the game and the team atmosphere.”

Johnson played in five Ryder Cups, part of a hard-scrabble career that began with him driving the country to play on mini-tours out of college and now includes 12 wins on the PGA Tour, including the Masters in 2007 and the British Open in 2015 at St. Andrews.

Once a self-described as a “normal guy” from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, he joined Tiger Woods, Nick Faldo, Seve Ballesteros, Jack Nicklaus and Sam Snead as the only players to win at Augusta National and St. Andrews.

Xander Schauffele, reflecting on Johnson’s time at Whistling Straits, said while Johnson was light-hearted as a non-playing assistant captain, that wasn’t enough to hide his competitiveness.

He thought Johnson’s playing career gave insight to him as a potential captain.

“You look at his game and what he’s accomplished,” Schauffele said. “He’s a shorter guy, like the old-school type. If you’re in trouble, chip out and hit your wedges close and putt really well. If you think about that type of player, they have to be so precise and disciplined in their approach. That created who he is. He’s got a lot of fight.
