Cornerstone Church to hold annual Blessing of the Hunt

By Marty Bachman
Daily Express

Cornerstone Church will be holding its annual Blessing of the Hunt beginning at 5:30 p.m. on Nov. 10 at the NEMO Fairgrounds. Doors open at 5 p.m. and the event runs until 8 p.m.

Speakers include Doug Laird, who, in the state of Missouri owns the antlered doe world record, as well as an update from members of the Outdoor Dream Foundation, which takes terminally-ill and disadvantaged youth on hunts, both locally and nationwide.

There will be a talk on conservation hunting safety and there will be hundreds of door prizes, including the top prize of an enclosed tower deer stand with a Ruger deer rifle for those who remain for the entire program.

In a letter to local businesses, Cornerstone Church Pastor Jeremy Broach wrote of the many accidents that take place during hunting season, from tree stand falls to gunshot wounds.

“It is our goal to bring all hunters together, pray over them, and ask for God’s protection,” Broach wrote in the letter.

Broach wrote that the Missouri Conservation Department will be available to help hunters with questions concerning regulations and safety.

According to Chad Stearman, an associate pastor of Cornerstone Church, there will be different vendors hawking everything from firearms to deer stands. Food will be available for purchase to attendees of the event with church members making an abundance of chili to be served.

“We’ll be giving away prizes throughout the night with the grand prize there after the main speaker,” Steadman said. “And of course, the big part is that we get a chance to share the Gospel with everybody who comes into the event. We want to be able to pray for them because we know hunting is such a big part of this area in Northeast Missouri.”

Steadman said the prayers were for a fruitful and safe hunt.

“And, you know, to bless them with maybe some prizes or some stuff that would be a blessing to them,” he said.

Missouri State Highway Patrol asks the you include safety in your plans for Halloween

By Missouri State Highway Patrol

Colonel Eric T. Olson, superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, encourages everyone to have a safe Halloween.
Halloween isn't just for children. Many adults enjoy dressing up and visiting haunted houses or attending gatherings of friends. If you are driving to a costume party, make sure your costume doesn't hamper your vision. If you attend a Halloween party that includes alcohol, designate a sober driver for the trip home. Alcohol, even in small amounts, slows reaction time and dulls the senses. Driving after you've had alcohol could have a sad and possibly deadly result.
All drivers should stay alert when driving on Halloween. Young children excited by Halloween could dart in front of a vehicle. Slow down and drive with extra caution.
Motorists picking up and dropping off trick-or-treaters may result in an increase in the number of vehicles on the road, therefore affecting traffic patterns. Please be courteous and stay alert for trick-or-treaters of all ages. Distracted drivers are dangerous drivers when you're driving, keep your eyes on the road, not on your phone!

Parents, please remind children to approach only familiar houses that are well lighted. Talk with them about never entering a stranger's house or vehicle. Consider trick-or-treating with your children for their safety and because it's a fun way to spend an evening. Give some thought to safety when choosing a costume. Consider using make-up rather than wearing a mask, which can obstruct a child's vision making it difficult to see an oncoming car. A light-colored costume is easier for drivers to see at night and adding reflective tape to dark costumes makes them visible. Flame resistant costumes are the best ones.
Trick-or-treaters are reminded to watch for traffic while they are out and about this Halloween. Remember to look both ways when crossing the street. Use sidewalks whenever possible when you're walking around a neighborhood. Please trick-or-treat while it is light outside. If you do go out after dark, increase your visibility by using a flashlight. An adult should always accompany small children, and older children should stay in groups.
Have a safe, happy Halloween!

The gift of October

October is an object lesson from God. We may plod unwittingly through the other eleven months, tossing hours and minutes away like loose change from deep pockets. Our thoughts may run shallow; life is a long list of have to's and need to's. But then October comes. We step outside one morning, hurrying to somewhere, and our skin tingles in surprise. The breeze swipes across our faces like a cool washcloth against fevered brows. We gasp, relieved. October has taken the dullness from the world and filled it with crunchy paths, crisp leaves, and skies that hold whispers of feathery clouds. We take a deep breath. And wake up again. The hillsides tug at our eyes. Kaleidoscope colors glint from trees whose leaves burst with fatal beauty. They celebrate October's arrival with reds, oranges, yellows, purples. No dull passing for these. No listless wafting from limb to dirt. The leaves trumpet a farewell in proper fashion, and teach us the brilliant bonus of a life well lived. Birds whistle and caw through the morning skies, searching for the last few items on their winter's list of supplies. The excitement of October is trilled from every beak, and each flight yields rewards. The example of preparing for times of cruel winds and bitter hours flies overhead in a pattern of practical pursuits. October is blasts of frigid wind that shock our systems. It is warm puffs of sun-drenched afternoon wind that tugs off sweaters and melts hearts. The evening sky frames a pumpkin-orange moon and the air fills with cicada lullabies and chirpy complaints from chilly crickets. We startle at the clarity of the music and begin to remember the songs hidden deeply in the muffled chambers of our own lives, buried beneath weeds of worry and wasted time. There is no other month like this one. A time of life lived most vividly. Days of falling leaves and temperatures. Nights of moonlit meadows and haunting memories. Lessons of death amid the wonder of life at its most beautiful. The soul smiles in bittersweet acceptance to the lessons of October. And God nods His head approvingly. Take time to enjoy the gift of October. Store the beauty of this month inside a life that has room for simple joys and unhurried happiness. And when the harsh reality of winter winds seeps through unprotected walls, wrap October's colorful memory around your soul and bask in its warmth.

Painting the landscape

Someday," said Steve, our resident tall, walrus-moustachioed cowboy, "I'm going to mess around and mix up some paint and when it's just the right blend, I'll sell it to people who love beauty and nature to paint the walls of their favorite room in the house."

"What?" said Dud. "I don't understand." "Look at that sunset, Dudley," Steve said. "See how the orange and the red blend into the blue ... up higher there where the old day sky still is. And the black threads of the tree branches run through it." They were out in the parking lot of the Mule Barn coffee shop, which doubles for the headquarters of the World Dilemma Think Tank during coffee hours, to say nothing of the Supreme Court of Dang Near Everything, which has the same membership. The guys basked in the afterglow of a nice day before heading home. "Steve," said Doc, "I had no idea you were artistic minded. Is this something new?" "Naw. Ever since I was a kid, I wanted paint that color. You know what I'd do with it? I'd paint the wall behind the little telephone stand so that every time I spoke to someone on the phone, I'd be in a great mood." "You don't have a telephone stand, Steve," Dud said. "All you have is that cell phone in your pocket." "Picky, picky. Okay, then I'll paint my jacket that color, so every time I grab the cell phone ..." Herb had been awfully quiet ... for him, anyway. "So you would blend orange and red and yellow and blue and black?" "Only if I could get it to look like that," Steve said. Truman State University expands family scholarship eligibility to reach more students

By Truman State University

In an effort to make a college education attainable to more students, Truman is expanding eligibility requirements for one of its most popular scholarships.

For years, the Bulldog Legacy Scholarship has been automatically awarded to students whose parents graduated from the university. Starting with next fall's entering class, the family criteria is expanding, making the scholarship available to more prospective students. Admitted students who are children, step-children or grandchildren of Truman alumni, or the sibling of a graduate or currently enrolled student, will be automatically eligible for the scholarship. Alumni can refer students online to ensure the Admissions Office can reach out to them about applying to Truman.

"The Bulldog family — our amazing network of alumni — is so important to the legacy we have at Truman," said Shari Foglesong, associate director of admission. "By expanding the Bulldog Legacy Scholarship, we are recognizing the fact that incoming students may have been influenced by the strong values and contributions of the Truman graduates in their lives, including their siblings, grandparents and parents. This expansion will make college more affordable for a greater number of students, and help students find their home at Truman just like their family members did."

For the 2023-24 school year, the Bulldog Legacy Scholarship will be awarded in the amount of $1,000 for Missouri residents and $2,000 for out-of-state students. This is in addition to any other aid a student may receive, including merit scholarships.

Any prospective student who completes an undergraduate application to Truman is automatically considered for the Bulldog Legacy Scholarship, as well as a number of other awards. Information on all of the automatic scholarships available to incoming students can be found at truman.edu/admission-cost-cost-aid/scholarships/automatic-scholarships. In addition to automatic scholarships, assistance is available through Truman State University Foundation scholarships and the Financial Aid Office.

Truman regularly receives national recognition for its efforts to ensure a high-quality education is an option for all students. Approximately 97 percent of Truman students earn scholarships. Half of Truman students graduate with no student loan debt, and the other half graduate with debt well below the national average.

For more information about the Bulldog Legacy Scholarship, contact the Office of Admission by phone at (660) 785-4114 or (800) 892-7792 or email at admissions@truman.edu.

Embracing Local History Part 20 — FORT MATSON BECOMES FORT MADISON

By Blytha Ellis, President
Adair County Historical Society and Museum

Now that we have been all the way to Texas for the murder of Captain Richard T. Matson, we return to Missouri and the site of Fort Matson. A man named Moses Furnish (1812-1888) from Kentucky came in 1841 and settled near the site of the old fort. He originally purchased 40 acres, then increased his land holdings as he prospered. Eventually, he owned the site of Fort Matson. He had 12 children by his first wife and 8 by his second, making a total of 20 children who grew up and populated the surrounding area. Mr. Furnish and others remembered timbers from Fort Matson still standing in their day and the layout of the fort distinctly visible.

Russell Conner (1869-1940) who lived just west of the Fort Matson site could also remember the earthworks of the old fort.

Over the years following the demise of Fort Matson, a community, a church and a cemetery developed in this area. Reportedly, the cemetery was constructed where the racetrack was built by the bored soldiers manning Fort Matson in 1832 while experiencing no Indian attacks.

At some point, the name Matson was mispronounced, misspelled and miswritten as Madison. (Not to be confused with the town of Fort Madison in Southeastern Iowa.) Exactly how this name change happened seems to be an enduring mystery.

Today, because of the deteriorating condition of many of the old stones at Fort Madison Cemetery and the many unmarked graves, it is impossible to determine when the first person was buried there. The oldest stone that is now legible is that of Peter Collop who died in 1855. He and his wife and seven children moved to the Fort Madison community in the early 1850s.

The Fort Madison Church was constructed in 1898, primarily for use as a chapel for the cemetery rather than for any denomination. However, regular services were sometimes conducted there. This church and cemetery were many times the site of Memorial Day activities, which consisted of a basket dinner and religious services which at one time drew as many as 1,200 people in the early 1900s. This was an excellent opportunity for rural neighbors, friends and relatives to get together.

As time passed and things changed, the Fort Madison Church was no longer used. After standing for 110 years, it was torn down in 2008.

Strangely enough, besides his fort, Captain Matson will also be remembered in Adair County in another way. In 1846, a son was born to Billy and Rosa (Wood) Brashear of Adair County. The baby was named Richard Matson Brashear after Captain Richard Matson. Rosa (Wood) Brashear's parents lived in Ralls County, Missouri, and knew Captain Matson. It appears that the Brashears were either friends or relatives of the Matson family, so much so that Rosa named her son after the Captain.

Richard Matson Brashear (1846-1933) grew up to be quite a prominent man in Adair County. He was a successful stockman, buying and selling cattle. When the railroad came through eastern Adair County, he was successful in getting the depot placed on his land. The town which grew up around this railroad station was named Brashear in his honor.

When Mr. Brashear later moved to Kirksville, he purchased 480 acres on the east side of town which he developed into housing additions to Kirksville. Within this area, he also built a home for his family, and across the street, he donated land for a park which now bears his name.

In 1932, 100 years after the building of Fort Matson, the Ann Haynes Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) had a large rock with a bronze plaque placed at the site of Fort Matson, just south of the Fort Madison Church and Cemetery. The plaque reads:

These Environs Were
The Site of
Fort Matson
One of Two Forts
Erected in Northeast Missouri
During the Black Hawk War
Named for the Commandant
Capt. Richard Matson

The DAR sponsored a dedication ceremony at the site of this memorial on September 25, 1932. Mr. Richard Matson Brashear of Kirksville, then 86 years old, the namesake of Captain Richard T. Matson, was asked to unveil the memorial. He planned to do so, but prior to the date became too ill to participate. Mr. Brashear died five months later.

Today, visitors can take Highway 63 north of Kirksville to a short distance past Sublette, turn right on Fort Madison Way and continue about three and one-half miles to the site of Fort Matson and the memorial stone.

(Thank you to Adair County historians Gary Lloyd and Larry Evans for their valued contributions to this subject.)

115 Years ago, October 9, 1907

Richey Hinds, a 69-year-old Millard man, was run over by a team of runaway horses about two miles south of Millard near his home. At about 11 p.m., Hinds started walking down the road at his home to meet his brother who had been to LaPlata and was driving a team hitched to a farm wagon. According to the brother, George, the team got away from him and run away. Apparently, Richey Hinds was walking in the middle of the road in an intoxicated state and was run over. His body was discovered the next morning by a neighbor who was hauling a load of corn to Millard. A coroner's inquest was held, and the cause of death was determined to be accidental.

In support of the World War II war effort, rural school district groups working in a township organization structure were canvassing farms in Adair County in search of scrap metal. School children were collecting small pieces of metal and making an inventory of larger pieces that would require additional manpower and trucks to complete the collection process. Adair County's quota in the scrap metal drive was 100 pounds of metal per capita. The National War Production Board hoped to complete the nationwide canvas during the fall before snowfall to provide enough scrap metal to keep the steel factories operating during the winter.

A Kirksville woman was in Stickler Hospital being treated for injuries she received when she was attacked by an infuriated hog. While the woman and her husband were trying to separate a sow from her pigs, the sow knocked the woman down and bit her severely before her husband could come to her rescue. The hog bit her on the left arm and hand and her right leg and abdomen. The wounds were cleaned and treated, and lockjaw serum administered.

A swimming beach to accommodate 2,000 persons was being built on Forest Lake at Thousand Hills State Park. According to W. O. Ladwig, acting supervisor of Thousand Hills State Park, the beach had not been sanded, but sand was to be added soon. The new park was scheduled to open for fishing, swimming, and boating July 1, 1953.

60 Years Ago, October 9, 1962

The newly completed Shamrock Inn Motel at the south edge of Kirksville was holding its open house on October 13 and 14. According to the owners the 44-unit motel was designed and built to provide the visitors to Kirksville and the motoring public the utmost in motel comfort. It featured room controlled hot water heat, air conditioning, television, radio, background music, a heated pool, room phones, and paved parking. The motel was located on a 35-acre tract of land south of Kirksville with access to the motel from Business Highway 63. It was purposely located on the crest of a hill to allow motel guests the scenic view of the surrounding countryside. Shamrock owners, Mrs. Eldon Gash and Sam and Bud McHenry, were not newcomers to the motel business as they had owned and operated the Green Gables Motel in Kirksville for many years.

60 Years Ago, October 10, 1962

Kirksville Mayor, Joe Burdman, along with County Judges Waldo Shockey, Raymond Rummerfield, and Walter Huffman, participated in the groundbreaking ceremony for Kirksville's new Holiday Inn Motel. Two of the three franchise holders responsible for bringing the motel to Kirksville, William Fulkerson and Stanley Jones, were also present for the groundbreaking event. The motel was to be located just north of the intersection of Highway 63 South and Highway 11 West south of Kirksville.

More people now eligible to give blood with the Red Cross

Restrictions lifted for many who spent time in certain European countries

By American Red Cross

COLUMBIA — The American Red Cross now invites those who spent time in the U.K., Ireland or France and have never tried to give blood due to concerns over variant Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease (vCJD) – related to mad cow disease – to give blood and help save lives.

Recently, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration updated its blood donor eligibility guidance on vCJD, eliminating the deferral for those who spent time in the U.K., Ireland and France between 1980 and 2001. In alignment with FDA changes, the Red Cross began accepting donations Oct. 3 from individuals who have not tried giving blood before due to the prior donation criteria. In combination with prior eligibility updates in 2020 for those who spent time in other European countries, this new change effectively eliminates the deferral related to vCJD for all donors.

“For many years, the Red Cross has heard from people who have spent time in these countries – often members of the military and their families – hoping for the opportunity to donate blood or platelets,” said Rebecca Gordon, Executive Director, Red Cross of Central and Northern Missouri. “We now welcome all donors who may have spent time in Europe and avoided blood donation as a result to join us in our lifesaving mission to help patients in need.”

More blood donors – especially type O donors – are urged to donate now to prevent disruptions to essential medical care this fall. Book a time to give by using the Red Cross Blood Donor App, visiting RedCrossBlood.org or by calling 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767). As a thank-you, all who come to give Oct. 16-31, 2022, will receive a $10 e-Gift Card by email to a merchant of choice.

Changes in progress for those with a Red Cross donor record

Those who have tried to give with the Red Cross and have been previously deferred from donating will be contacted by the Red Cross once system records are updated. This deferral is more complex to remove than others as there are decades of donors in the Red Cross system who have been deferred under the previous FDA requirements. Individuals who have questions about their donor record can contact the Red Cross Donor and Client Support Center at 1-866-236-3276.

American

How to donate blood

Simply download the American Red Cross Blood Donor App, visit RedCrossBlood.org, call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767) or enable the Blood Donor Skill on any Alexa Echo device to make an appointment or for more information. All blood types are needed to ensure a reliable supply for patients. A blood donor card or driver's license or two other forms of identification are required at check-in. Individuals who are 17 years of age in most states (16 with parental consent where allowed by state law), weigh at least 110 pounds and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. High school students and other donors 18 years of age and younger also have to meet certain height and weight requirements.

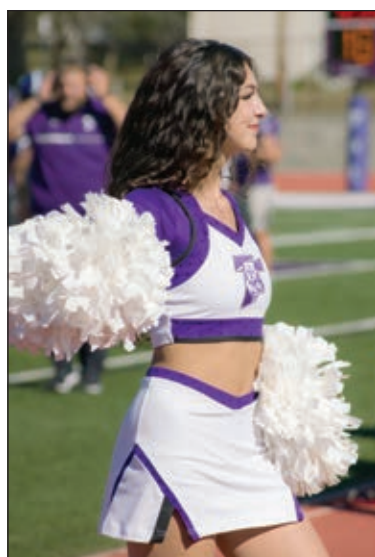

Blood and platelet donors can save time at their next donation by using RapidPass® to complete their pre-donation reading and health history questionnaire online, on the day of their donation, before arriving at the blood drive. To get started, follow the instructions at RedCrossBlood.org/RapidPass or use the Blood Donor App.

Son turns away from family when girlfriend is shunned

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing because I need some guidance. My 21-year-old son, "Dennis," is involved with a young woman he met in college. She is physically, verbally and emotionally abusive to him. Dennis is very intelligent -- a straight-A student, to be exact. We gave Dennis the best life we possibly could. His dad and I have been together for 26 years and raised him in a nurturing, Christian environment with strong family ties.

When Dennis went away to college, it seems like everything changed. His girlfriend has notable mood swings, becomes upset when he is near family, is very disrespectful and the list goes on. Recently, I told Dennis she's no longer welcome to our home. Now he has distanced himself from us, which is hurtful because he has younger siblings. I want a close relationship with him, but I refuse to tolerate his girlfriend. Am I wrong? Please give me some advice. -- MISS HIM IN THE WEST

DEAR MISS HIM: Yes, you were wrong to "banish" the girlfriend because, although you were trying to protect your son, it drove him away from you and closer to his abuser. It may be time for your husband to have a man-to-man talk with Dennis and point out that his girlfriend's behavior could indicate that she has emotional problems. Normal people do not hit and verbally abuse others. He should also tell Dennis that you said what you did because you felt not only disrespected by his girlfriend, but also were afraid for him.

Whether it will get through to your son is anyone's guess, but since he and his abuser are in college and have access to a student health center, it could benefit both of them to get counseling. For Dennis, to help him figure out why he would tolerate being abused; for her, to help her gain some self-control.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who had been ill for some time. Three years ago, two of his adult sons moved in with him because they'd been kicked out of their mom's house. They never got jobs or paid rent.

My friend died a month ago, and now his sons and "companion" want all of us who were his friends to organize a memorial service. They claim they "don't know how to do this kind of thing." My friend also has two adult daughters and three grandchildren.

Isn't it the duty of the surviving family members to do this? While I wouldn't mind providing a list of his friends and phone numbers, I feel the sons are lazy and exploitative, and I'm very uncomfortable being asked to form a group and do a job they should be doing. I'm not going to participate, and I wondered what you think. -- DISAPPOINTED GRIEVER

DEAR GRIEVER: I think you are absolutely correct. The honor of giving your friend a loving and respectful sendoff belongs with his family. By all means provide a list of those who would like to pay their respects. And, while you're at it, suggest the person who contacted you reach out to his father's religious adviser or a local funeral home for guidance.

The Kirksville girls golf team and coach Emily Powell celebrate the team’s fourth-straight conference title on Sept. 26.

Kirksville girls golf team bringing experience to state

By Adam Tumino
Daily Express

After a second-place finish at district last week, the Kirksville girls golf team is gearing up for a trip to Bolivar and the Class 2 State Tournament on Monday and Tuesday. The Tigers are heading to state with the aim of following up on last season’s third-place finish.

With seniors Morgan Lunsford and Maya McKiver, junior Anna Jenkins and sophomore Addy Davis, Kirksville will be bringing the same four players to state that finished third.

Head coach Emily Powell said that the team will have a better idea of their level of competition once they arrive in Bolivar, but she feels good about where the team is.

“Different course, different competition that last year, so we’ll know more how we stand once we get down there and see the course,” Powell said. “It’s hard to compare your district scores since you’re not playing the same course as everybody else. We’ve got some girls playing good golf right now, so that bodes well going down to state. I think we’ll be real relaxed after achieving a team trophy last year. I don’t feel like there’s an added pressure for girls since they’ve done that.”

Speaking of district scores, Kirksville had its top four players all place in the top 19, with Davis placing fourth and Jenkins placing seventh as both earned All-District honors.

Davis also earned All-Conference honors this season, and is looking to close out an impressive sophomore season that followed up a freshman campaign in which she placed seventh at state.

Davis said she is hoping to build on last year’s performance in state, and feels that the team is in a good spot ahead of the tournament.

“We did really good at districts, and I know not everybody played their best but I think at state, they can really do a lot better because they’re more comfortable and more relaxed,” she said. “I want to do better than last year, so try to get into the top five. I know a lot of the girls that we’ll be playing with, we played with each other before, so I feel pretty comfortable playing with them so I don’t think I’ll be nervous. I hope not, anyway.”

Jenkins said that she feels that the team’s chemistry has helped their performance this season and will be beneficial heading into state.

“I feel like we have a very good bond and we’re able to stay really happy when we’re out on the course and we’re together, and I’m just really hopeful for it,” she said.

Jenkins also said that she feels she has improved and grown throughout the season en route to All-Conference and All-District honors.

“I have mentally grown a lot, I feel like,” she said. “I’ve been more open to coach’s pointers and that’s been helpful.”

As for the seniors, Lunsford said she is looking forward to the competition but also excited about other aspects for the trip, which will be her last with the team.

“I think we’ll have a pretty good chance of placing because we’re all returners,” she said. “And I’m really looking forward to the hotel stay. It’s always so fun when we get to stay together and bond.”

McKiver said that she has mixed feelings about her final trip to state.

“It’s really bittersweet because it’s the end of such a big chapter in my life, but I’m really happy to be going back and, all season long, I’ve had the same goals to get first at conference and be in the top two at district, and we’ve completed those,” she said. “This is the last one on the list, to be in the top three at state, so I hope we can accomplish that.”

As the players expressed, already having experience competing at state will likely take some of the pressure off. Powell said that this is especially true of the early stages of the process, which can be nerve wracking the first time around.

“Last year, for three of the four of them it being their first trip down there, that first day can be a lot on your nerves,” Powell said. “I think going into it this year with everybody having that experience is a big deal for us mentally. The seniors, I think they really provide something different for their other two teammates that they’re traveling with, making them feel relaxed and comfortable. We do have goals for going down there, like we’re relaxed in the sense that we want to enjoy the last two rounds, but we want to go and play well and there’s still something more to achieve.”

A big aspect of heading to state is the reality of playing an unfamiliar course at Silo Ridge in Bolivar. It can be challenging to try to recreate that environment without actually being there, but Powell said that there have been ways the team has been able to familiarize themselves with the course prior to Sunday’s practice round.

“We have great members here (at the Kirksville Country Club), so we’ve got people that have played that course and there’s some Kirksville ties to Silo Ridge,” she said. “I’ve never been there personally, so getting to be familiar with it before we’re actually on it is a nice thing mentally to prepare for. Then we’ll have a practice round down there on Sunday before we play and the girls will be able to see it first hand. I think most important is the layout of each hole versus yardage and just the run of the greens and how they rub and roll, and that’ll be a good thing for our kids to have that opportunity.”

Looking at the rest of the field for the Class 2 State Tournament, Kirksville is the only team from last year’s field that is returning. The other eight schools competing are Incarnate Word, Westminster Christian, Boonville, Osage, Logan-Rogersville, Mt. Vernon, Maryville and St. Michael the Archangel Catholic.

I find no joy in being right about Thursday Night Football

Another Thursday night, another unwatchable football game. This time it was the Chicago Bears and Washington Commanders who faced off on Amazon Prime to prove once again that Thursday Night Football is possibly the worst product in professional sports.

It was a 3-0 game at halftime before a slightly more entertaining second half led to a 12-7 win for Washington. The only reason this might not be the worst game of the NFL season so far is because of the unfortunate existence of last Thursday’s 12-9 overtime game between the Broncos and Colts. At least both teams scored touchdowns this week.

There could have been a lot more scoring, with the Bears being inside the Commanders’ five-yard line three times in the game, coming away without points all three times. Washington did not really have as many scoring chances, and may be the worst team in the NFL. Quarterback Carson Wentz threw for 99 yards in the game and it felt like less.

It is hard to express how bad this game is to someone who did not watch it. Amazon paid the NFL $13 billion for the rights to Thursday Night Football for the next 11 years. This is the worst decision Jeff Bezos has ever made with his money and he has spent billions on sending Michael Strahan to the edge of space.

Bears fans who were upset about the team’s potential move to the suburbs in the future might now rather see the Bears launched into space as well.

There was nothing to see in this game. Bears fans hoping to see further improvement from quarterback Justin Fields after his solid second half against Minnesota on Sunday left disappointed.

It’s not all Field’s fault, of course. The play calling continues to be baffling and the wide receivers seemed to drop more passes than they caught.

I don’t even know what Washington fans possibly had to look forward to. Maybe they were hoping to see the Commanders’ defense get its first turnover since the season opener, which they did in hilarious fashion.

There was a nice story for Washington with rookie running back Brian Robinson Jr., who scored the winning touchdown just six weeks after being shot during an attempted carjacking.

But my overall feeling surrounding the game was one of complete disinterest. I did find myself laughing more often than I normally do during a football game, so that was kind of nice. But the laughter soon faded and I sat there with dead eyes watching for no apparent reason other than to torture myself.

Next Thursday’s game between the Saints and Cardinals looks better on paper, and the bar could not possibly be lower for those two teams. After all, the last two Thursday night games have featured a combined two touchdowns and 40 points.

There is nothing that game could do, however, to convince me that Thursday Night Football needs to exist. More often than not, it is a matchup between two mediocre teams that just played four days prior and would probably prefer to be just about anywhere other than a football field.

Their bodies have not fully recovered from the previous week and the quality of the games is lower as a result.

The only way to stop Thursday Night Football from invading our homes and ruining our lives is to stop watching it. It is not much of a sacrifice, of course. I’ll gladly stop watching and do almost anything else for three hours.

Maybe I should start reading a book, or start exercising, or gauge my own eyes out. Almost anything is preferable to watching these games. But deep down, I know I am a sick person who, next Thursday, will probably be watching the Cardinals and Saints trade field goals for 180 minutes, wasting precious time of the only life I’ll ever live.

Truman hosts Southwest Baptist, looking for fifth-straight win

By Adam Tumino
Daily Express

The Truman State football team will be looking for its fifth-straight win and a 2-0 start in conference play Saturday at home against Southwest Baptist. Truman is 4-1 this season and is coming off a 36-14 homecoming win over Missouri S&T last week in the Bulldogs' GLVC opener.

Southwest Baptist is 3-3 on the season and 1-1 in conference play, with their most recent game being a 44-21 homecoming win over William Jewell.

It will be the first night game of the season for Truman, with kickoff scheduled for 6 p.m.

The Bearcats will be coming into Stokes Stadium with one of the top offenses in the GLVC, ranking third with a scoring average of 33.2 points per game. Their offense has achieved that total through the play of one of the top running backs and quarterbacks in the conference.

Running back Abel Carter ranks second in the GLVC with both 650 rushing yards and six rushing touchdowns. He is averaging 108.3 rushing yards per game while also recording 15 catches for 104 yards. He trails only Indianapolis' Toriano Clinton in rushing yards.

Quarterback Cooper Callis is completing 68 percent of his passes for 1,592 yards and 15 touchdowns, ranking second in the conference in all three categories, trailing only McKendree's Turner Pullen.

Callus has relied the most on wide receiver Curtis Culliard, who leads the team with 30 receptions for 412 yards and six touchdowns. He ranks fourth in yards, third in receptions and is tied for the conference lead in touchdowns.

Southwest Baptist's defense has not been as successful as its offense, ranking last in scoring defense. The Bearcats have allowed 35.3 points per game overall and 48.3 points per game in their three losses.

They have still had some standout performers on defense, chiefly linebacker Coleton Smith who ranks third in the GLVC with 49 total tackles and second with 30 solo tackles. He also has 1.5 sacks, making him one of 10 players in the conference with more than one sack.

Truman's defense, on the other hand, has been perhaps the best unit in the conference. The Bulldogs are the top defense in the GLVC in terms of points and yardage, allowing 16.8 points and 304.6 yards per game. They also rank first in passing defense, allowing just 207.8 yards and seven touchdowns through the air this season.

Truman is tied for the conference lead with eight interceptions, led by defensive back Ryan Olivas who is tied for the GLVC lead with three picks. Defensive backs Ben Thomas and Ben Watson each have two interceptions, making Truman the only GLVC team to have multiple players with multiple interceptions so far this season.

The Bulldogs haven't gotten to the quarterback much and are tied for fifth in the conference with eight sacks, just one more than last-place William Jewell. Eight different players have combined for those eight sacks, led by Ben Miller with 1.5.

The Bulldogs have mostly gotten by with their defense and special teams while the offense has gained the second fewest yards per game in the conference at 271.2 while ranking fifth in the conference with 24.2 points per game.

Truman running back Shamar Griffith ranks fifth in the conference with 59.8 rushing yards per game and is tied for third with four touchdown runs. Quarterback Nolan Hair ranks fourth in the conference with 177.4 passing yards per game. His seven touchdowns ranks second-to-last in the conference, but his three interceptions are tied for the second-fewest in the conference.

Last season's matchup between these two teams ended in a 27-21 win for Southwest Baptist. Truman's defense held Abel and the running game in check, but Callis went 27-of-38 passing for 401 yards and three touchdowns.

Hair was 25-of-43 for 240 yards, but was not able to connect with his receivers for a touchdown. He did run for a touchdown, and Cody Schrader ran for two despite being held to a relatively low total of 101 yards, at least low by his standards.

It was one of three conference losses for Truman last season and one of three conference wins for Southwest Baptist.

Bros and foes: Bills’ Josh Allen, Chiefs’ Mahomes rivals, friends

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The previous time Patrick Mahomes and Josh Allen saw each other in the heat of competition wasn’t at Arrowhead Stadium during their epic January playoff game, when the Chiefs quarterback rallied past Allen and his Bills for an overtime victory and a return to the AFC title game. In fact, it wasn’t on a football field at all. And both turned out to be losers. It happened in June, when the uber-competitive QBs teamed up against Aaron Rodgers and Tom Brady in a match-play event in Las Vegas. Mahomes and Allen led after the first eight holes in the 12-hole exhibition, only to watch as Brady tied it up at the 10th and Rodgers walked in a winning birdie putt on the final hole. It was the latest example of their burgeoning friendship, which also happens to be one of the NFL’s best new rivalries, one that will be renewed when the Bills visit the Chiefs on Sunday. “Josh is a great guy. He’s a great quarterback — physically talented, he can throw, can run. He can really do it all,” Mahomes said. “But he’s a great dude, too. And so obviously when we’re on the football field, we’re competing against each other and we want to beat each other’s teams, but I have a ton of respect for him, the player and person he is.” Mahomes has won three of their four matchups, including the two that mattered the most: That divisional round win in January, when the teams combined for 25 points in the final two minutes of regulation before Kansas City won in overtime, and the AFC championship game in the 2020 season, when the Chiefs went on to the Super Bowl. Allen’s lone win? A regular-season game last year at Arrowhead Stadium, one largely forgotten. It’s not entirely on Allen’s shoulders that the Bills keep coming up short, though. Take the game in January, when he threw for 329 yards and four touchdowns while running for another 68 yards. It was an incredible performance, but one matched by Mahomes, who had 378 yards passing and three touchdowns to go with 69 yards rushing and another score. It was the first time in NFL history a quarterback — let alone two — threw for at least 300 yards and three touchdowns while completing 70% of their passes and leading their teams with at least 65 yards rushing. “As a football fan myself, when I’m watching games, I love watching him play,” Allen said. “He can do everything you want. His teammates love him, and I know he’s got a good grasp in the locker room over there, and how he carries himself, the things that he does off the field for his charity. He’s a special football player and a special guy.” The similarities between Mahomes and Allen help to form the bedrock of their friendship. When Mahomes was coming out of Texas Tech in 2017, many labeled him just another “Air Raid” quarterback, one whose prolific passing numbers would never translate to the NFL. And when Allen was drafted the following year, critics pounced on his erratic performances at Wyoming, along with the fact that he played a lower level of competition. Mahomes and Allen have been proving people wrong ever since. “You heard all those stories of when (Allen) was coming out, about this and that, and you’re always pulling for those guys that even do better than what was expected,” Chiefs coach Andy Reid said. “He’s a good football player, tough kid. In a good system, too. He’s blessed to have good coaches, which helps.” Allen’s head coach, Sean McDermott, learned the ropes from Reid more than a decade ago in Philadelphia. There are a lot of great rivalries in the NFL, though. Mahomes and Allen have transferred theirs away from the field. They first spent considerable time together at The Masters in April 2021, and both have played in the American Century Championship, an annual celebrity golf tournament in South Lake Tahoe, California. Earlier this year, both found themselves in Miami for the Formula One weekend. Mahomes called up Allen on FaceTime and invited him over, and the two hung out for a couple of hours on the Saturday night before the race. Yet it’s on the field where they shine brightest. Their styles are remarkably similar — big arms, plenty of athletic ability and the natural creativity and improvisational skill that makes them a handful for opposing defenses. They make everyone around them better, and as a result, each has their team 4-1 and atop their division heading into their latest matchup Sunday in Kansas City. “Whenever they’re getting ready to put Patrick Mahomes and Josh Allen in the Hall of Fame,” Bills pass rusher Von Miller said, “that game (in January) and of course games throughout these upcoming years, will be the games they talk about, and it’s just an honor and a privilege to be a part of it.”

Bills visit KC for rematch of memorable January playoff game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — In one of the wildest playoff games in NFL history, the Bills and Chiefs traded the lead three times and scored 25 points in the final 2 minutes of regulation, including a 13-second field-goal drive by Kansas City to force overtime that folks in Buffalo are still trying to live down. The Chiefs went on to win that game in January, ending Buffalo’s season at Arrowhead Stadium for the second consecutive year, and leaving Josh Allen and the rest of the heartbroken Bills counting the days until Sunday. That’s when they get another shot at the team that’s becoming their nemesis. “I mean, I think there are a lot of things you can take away from that game that can help you,” said Allen, whose Bills also lost the 2020 AFC championship game at Kansas City. “Again, that’s neither here nor there right now, but it’s a situation — we can take a lot from that and try to apply to practice and when we play.” There’s an argument to be made both teams are better than they were last year. The Bills lead the league in passing offense and total offense and are second in scoring. Tops in scoring? That would be the Chiefs, who are fourth in passing offense and sixth in total offense. On the flip side, the Bills are tied for first in scoring defense and No. 2 against the pass and in total defense while Kansas City is third against the rush. No wonder both teams are 4-1. “They’re a really good team. They’ve been there for a long time. Andy Reid-coached football teams win and they win often, and they sustain it and they’re really tough at home,” said Bills coach Sean McDermott, who worked under Reid in Philadelphia more than a decade ago. “So really good opponent. We have a lot of respect for them.” The respect is mutual, and it’s only grown over the years. This will be the fifth time since 2020 the two teams have met, including those two playoff games at Arrowhead Stadium. “We know it’s going to come down to the wire every time we play them,” Chiefs quarterback Patrick Mahomes said. “To see the guys respond (in January) when it looked like it was over, that’s something you’re always going to have.” Indeed, the Bills appeared to have the game won when Gabe

Davis caught his playoff-record fourth TD pass to give them a 36-30 lead with 13 seconds left. But that was enough time for Mahomes to complete two long passes and set up Harrison Butker’s 49-yard field goal to force overtime, where Kansas City scored on the first possession to win. To this day, the words “13 seconds” continue to haunt Bills fans. “Well, I mean, that did happen. That’s part of our past on one hand, but it’s also part of our past,” McDermott said. “This team will take on its own identity. You learn from things like that and you move forward.” BEST BUDS Allen and Mahomes each eclipsed 300 yards passing with three touchdowns, completed at least 70% of their passes without an interception and led their teams with at least 65 yards rushing in their January showdown. No other quarterback in NFL history has done that in a game, regular or postseason. The burgeoning rivals are also good friends, though, and found themselves on the same side in June, when they teamed up against Aaron Rodgers and Tom Brady in a match-play golf event. Rodgers made a walk-off 15-foot putt for the win. INJURY OUTLOOK The Bills’ injury report listed 15 players this week with the most notable being safety Jordan Poyer, who sat out last week with a rib injury, and cornerback Christian Benford, who had a broken hand. Linebacker Tremaine Edwards (hamstring) and tight end Dawson Knox (foot/hamstring) also were limited after missing one game apiece.

The Chiefs are thin on defense, where cornerback Rashad Fenton is dealing with a hamstring injury, safety Bryan Cook is in the concussion protocol and defensive tackle Tereshawn Wharton is out after tearing his left ACL on Monday night. YOU AGAIN? After chasing Mahomes for several years in Denver, Bills pass rusher Von Miller finds himself doing it again for Buffalo. But don’t think for a moment that there’s ill will between them. In fact, the two Texans are quite fond of each other. “We got the same financial advisor,” Miller said, “so no matter what I do, I could never get away from Patrick Mahomes.” FOUR SCORE(S) Fewer than two dozen players have caught four or more TD passes in a game. Two of them will be playing Sunday. Davis did it against Kansas City in January while Chiefs tight end Travis Kelce did it last week against the Raiders, when all four of his touchdown catches came from inside the 10-yard line. THE ODDSMAKERS SAY The Bills are 2 1/2-point favorites, according to FanDuel Sportsbook, making it the first time in 42 home starts Mahomes will take the field as an underdog. That includes 11 starts in the playoffs, two of those against Buffalo. “It is what it is,” Mahomes said. “Our job is to go out there and win a football game. It’s a tough place to play at Arrowhead; they’ve won here before. But we’ve also handled business before. It’s up to us to do that Sunday.”

Cardinals face future without Pujols, Molina wearing red

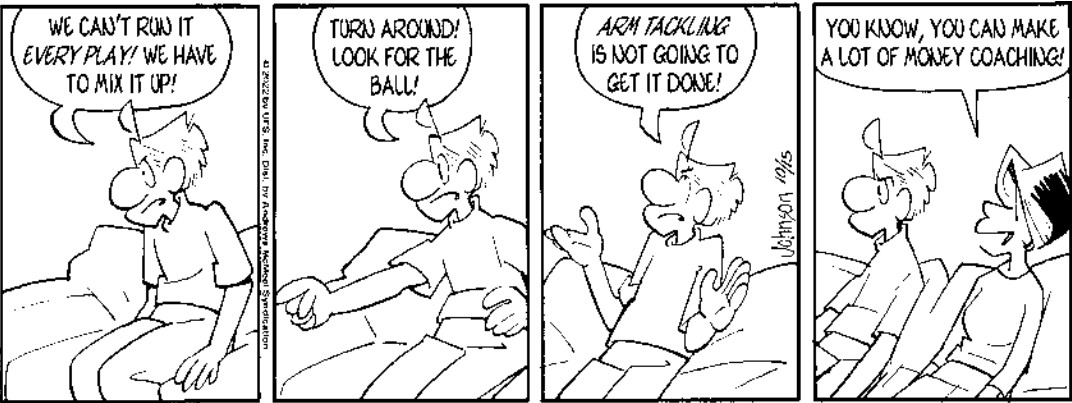

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ST. LOUIS — Magic was happening on a chilly Saturday night in St. Louis, where the Cardinals were trailing the Philadelphia Phillies in a do-or-die Game 2 of their National League wild-card series, and Albert Pujols was stepping up to the plate. He rapped a clean base hit in the final at-bat of his career. The Cardinals failed to push across the run in the eighth inning, though, when MVP candidate Paul Goldschmidt and Nolan Arenado struck out. The game pressed on to the ninth. And suddenly there was more magic in the making as Yadier Molina came to bat with a runner on base, two outs and the NL Central champions still trailing by two runs. He also rapped a clean single in the final at-bat of his career. And then the magic was over. Tommy Edman fouled out against Philadelphia closer Zach Eflin, sending the precocious Phillies spilling onto the field in a wild celebration. The Cardinals slowly slipped away, through their dugout and back to the clubhouse, the season — and an entire era in St. Louis baseball — having ended in a 2-0 loss and two-game series sweep.

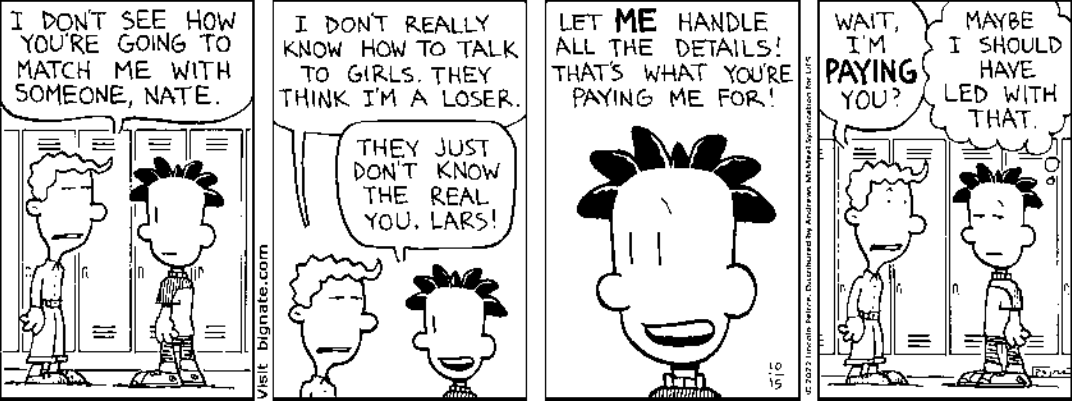

“You know, it’s something that it’s not even next week,” Pujols said later, when asked when the finality of his superlative career would set in. “It’ll take a couple of months to realize, and knowing the great team we have and the great chance we had this year to hopefully bring a championship — and it didn’t happen.” Pujols did just about everything he could this season, going on a second-half tear reminiscent of his first decade-plus with the Cardinals. It energized the city in the same way that Mark McGwire’s home run chase once did, and when Pujols finally eclipsed 700 career homers, all that was left was to make a deep postseason run. That he was doing it alongside Molina and longtime teammate Adam Wainwright — well, it seemed downright poetic. Right up until the last out on Saturday night. “It was a great season,” Molina said. “I mean, a great season, for everybody here in the clubhouse, for all the moments, the memories — the good memories. It was fun to watch Albert come back and do his thing. It was fun.” Pujols maintained his typical, reserved demeanor as he stood in front of his locker for the final time after a 23-year career, one that rewarded him with two

World Series rings and three MVP awards. But the hardscrabble Molina began to let his emotions show, even appearing to choke back tears while describing the past 19 years. “Just to be around the teammates, to be in this clubhouse, fighting for and winning games, I mean, that’s what I’m going to miss most,” he said, adding of Pujols: “I’m going to be his brother forever.” First-year Cardinals manager Oliver Marmol praised the way Pujols, Molina and Wainwright — who has not decided whether to return next season — established a culture in the St. Louis clubhouse that will carry forward to the next generation, one that will be led by the likes of Dylan Carlson, Andrew Knizner and Nolan Gorman. “I’ll tell you this: That’s a respectful group, one that is full of veterans,” Marmol said. “I was watching them retire Tim Duncan’s number in San Antonio and (coach) Gregg Popovich’s message during that speech was thanking him for allowing him to coach him. I let that sink in. We have a veteran group that’s done this for a long time. The respect they had for me and this staff meant a lot. They did a lot to set the culture for the young group coming up.”

Settle in and get things done. Put together a plan and eliminate what you no longer need in your life to make room for what you want to accomplish. You can make this a year to remember if you give yourself the freedom to turn negatives into positives. Focus on what will make a difference and bring you joy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) -- You are in a better position than you realize. Don't miss out because you are too scared to make a move. Follow your heart and reach for the stars. You'll have the discipline to reach your goal.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) -- Taking care of lingering matters will put your mind at ease. Waiting for someone to make a move will be a waste of time. Concentrate on what's important to you and make a beeline to the finish line.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) -- Surround yourself with experts and call on those you can count on to help. Pay attention to meaningful relationships and you'll notice little things you can do to improve connections.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) -- Emotions will surface. Choose your words wisely and treat others respectfully. Fair play and a willingness to work in unison with others will pay off. Take better care of yourself physically.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) -- Consider what works for you and do your own thing. If you make a move because someone else does, it will set you back. Step up, say what you think and try to be the best you can be.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) -- Remain calm, regardless of what's happening around you. Don't let anyone railroad you into a disagreement. Keep things in perspective and avoid anyone putting pressure on you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) -- Your enthusiasm will rub off on others. Share your thoughts, and you'll get the help you need. Don't let an uneducated opinion dismantle your plans. Follow your heart.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) -- A change of scenery will empower you. Take a moment to unwind and regroup before you make a move. Refuse to let your emotions take you in the wrong direction. Look out for yourself first.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) -- Put your head down and keep working toward your objective. Leave no stone unturned. Offer positive input and see who aligns with you. You'll be surprised by the outcome.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) -- Emotions will surface and confusion will arise if you aren't willing to look at situations realistically. Don't overreact or leave anything to chance. Be proactive and well-informed.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) -- You'll get a sense of what others want and how you can contribute. Your input will help you gain respect and a leadership position. Caring and sharing will bring positive results. Romance is encouraged.

Section 7. The City acknowledges that Company is vested in rights, permissions and authority independent of this Ordinance. Neither acceptance of this Ordinance nor compliance with its provisions shall impair in any way or waive any right, permission or authority which Company may have independent of this Ordinance. In addition, neither use by Company of public property or places as authorized by this Ordinance nor service rendered by Company in said City shall be treated as use solely of the rights, permission and authority provided for by this Ordinance and in no way shall indicate non-use of any right, permission or authority vested in the Company independent of this Ordinance. Section 9. Subject to the requirements of Mo. Rev. Stat. § 67.1830 thru § 67.1846, this Ordinance shall not relieve Company of the obligation to comply with Chapter 32 Article III. – Rights-of-Way Management of the Kirksville Municipal Code of Ordinances of the City including Section 32-74 Technical specification for utility work in city rights-of-way or as amended in the future requiring Company to obtain written permits or other approval from the City prior to commencement of construction of facilities within the rights of way thereof, except Company shall not be required to obtain permits or other approval from the City for the maintenance and repair of its facilities, which do not require excavation.

Section 10. If any provision of this Ordinance, or the application of such provision to particular circumstances, shall be held invalid, the remainder of this Ordinance, or the application of such provision to circumstances other than those as to which it is held invalid, shall not be affected thereby.

Section 11. If, at any time, during the term of this Ordinance, City grants or renews a franchise to another entity or person for the purposes of transmitting, furnishing and distributing electricity for light, heat, power or similar services, and Company reasonably believes the other entity or person is granted more favorable treatment, terms, or conditions, then Company shall notify City of such treatment, terms, or conditions. Upon receipt of such notice, City and Company shall negotiate in good faith to amend this Ordinance to provide Company such treatment, terms or conditions on an equivalent basis. Such amendment shall take into consideration all circumstances that distinguish between Company and entity or person receiving the more favorable treatment, terms, or conditions.

Section 12. Except as provided in Mo. Rev. Stat. § 67.1830 thru § 67.1846, the Company shall be exempt from any special tax, assessment, license, rental or other charge during the term of this Ordinance, on all poles, conductors, wires, cables, conduits, equipment and other apparatus placed in the City property and rights of way or other public places within the City under this Franchise Agreement. However, the Company shall pay to said City on or before the last day of each month of each year that this franchise remains in effect, an amount equal to five percent (5%) its gross receipts, as herein defined, from sales of electricity delivered by it within the corporate limits of the City for the preceding month, in lieu of payment due pursuant to Sec. 12-226. – Fees levied.

All payments made hereunder will be reduced by the total payments made by Company for the applicable periods of time or portions thereof on account of any tax levied or imposed by said City upon the business of selling electricity or upon the proceeds of sales of electricity or upon the right or privilege or engaging in such business within said corporate limits, whether said tax be designated as an occupation tax, license tax, or a gross receipts tax or otherwise; but not including a sales tax levied or imposed pursuant to the City Sales Tax Act.

With each franchise payment hereunder, Company shall file with the Clerk of said City a sworn statement of the gross receipts for the applicable period and also a sworn statement of all payments made by it for such period on account of any of the taxes enumerated above in this Section. The term "gross receipts" shall mean the aggregate amount of all sales and charges that result from Company's business of supplying electric energy or electricity transmission and distribution service to customers within said City during any period less discounts, credits, refunds, sales taxes, state or county taxes on electricity distribution service, and uncollectible accounts. In the event retail wheeling of unbundled electric energy becomes available in the City (i.e., retail customers are permitted to choose their suppliers of electric energy), then Company and City agree within three (3) months of the availability of retail wheeling ("the Negotiated Period") to revise the definition of gross receipts to be consistent with law and regulation in effect at that time and to eliminate any provision that prevents Company from competing equally with other potential suppliers of electric energy in the City. In the event the Company and City cannot agree upon a revised definition of gross receipts within the Negotiation Period, this Ordinance shall automatically terminate. The Negotiation Period may be extended at any time prior to termination by written agreement between City and Company.

Section 13. This bill shall take effect and the rights, privileges and authority hereby granted and renewed shall vest in Company upon its filing of an acceptance with the City Clerk according to the terms prescribed herein. The Ordinance shall not be subject to approval or disapproval of the voters of this City only upon the terms and conditions as provided in Mo. Rev. Stat. § 88.251, unless there is a petition submitted by qualified voters requesting an election. If the City Clerk does not receive within thirty (30) days after the passing of this Ordinance a petition sufficient in form and signed by the requisite number of voters, it shall be a valid and binding franchise of the City upon the filing of an acceptance by the Company according to the terms prescribed herein and shall remain in full force and effect and cannot be repealed or amended.

MU videos share cattle management practices in drought

By University of Missouri Extension

COLUMBIA — Drought continues to plague growers and livestock producers in parts of Missouri, especially in the southwest corner of the state, raising concerns about feed availability.

“It’s a perfect storm of high fertilizer prices, reduced fertilization of pastures leading to lower hay yields and drought in the southern half of Missouri,” said Eric Bailey, University of Missouri Extension state beef specialist. “Folks are eating into their winter hay supplies.”

MU Extension has posted recent videos featuring livestock specialists who address how producers can manage their herds in drought conditions this fall and into the winter:

Cattle Culling Strategies. Bailey notes that drought-induced culls can be beneficial because culling forces decisions and management. “Producers who last longest in cow-calf businesses are not those who make the most money in good years. They are those who lose the least in bad years,” he said.

Weaning Cattle in Times of Drought. In this video, Bailey discusses early weaning strategies. Cow nutrient requirements drop by 40 percent when calves are weaned. That means every 2.5 days a calf is weaned saves the producer a day of feed for a cow, said Bailey. “Body condition score management is important, especially when feed is limited or poor quality.”

Do I Feed Through Drought or Sell Cows Now? MU Extension field specialist in agricultural business Wesley Tucker says any market comes down to supply and demand. He urges producers to calculate their costs of production and their breakeven beyond 2022. “We have seen some costs come down a little, such as fertilizer and fuel, but the reality is I don’t believe any of these are going back to pre-pandemic levels, especially on items like equipment,” he said.

MU Extension regional agronomy and livestock specialists are available to help cattle producers plan for the winter months as they navigate drought conditions.

The videos are part of MU Extension’s “Forage & Livestock Hour,” which is livestreamed twice a month via Zoom, with recordings of past sessions available on YouTube.

Longhorned tick discovered in northern Missouri for first time, MU researchers find

Discovery indicates looming problem for cattle health in the Midwest

By MU College of Veterinary Medicine

The Longhorned tick causes the loss of millions of dollars in agricultural revenue to cattle producers worldwide, and it is now in northern Missouri.

Originally found in eastern Russia and the Australasian region, this tick was first found in the United States in 2017 in New Jersey. It has since reached the Mid-Atlantic, New England and Midwestern regions of the U.S., and now has been discovered in northern Missouri for the first time by researchers at the University of Missouri.

Last year, the Longhorned tick was found in the southern part of the state. This latest discovery indicates an additional economic burden to cattle producers due to ticks; as the Longhorned tick infestation could lead to significant loss in weight gain for cattle, similar to an already widely prevalent disease called anaplasmosis; but so far, the threat from this species of tick to cattle — and people and their pets — in Missouri remains low. However, researchers emphasize that the discovery of the Longhorned tick in the state increases the need for more vigilance towards ticks in general.

While most ticks reproduce traditionally, female Longhorned ticks can lay thousands of eggs without the help of a male, which makes it easier for them to quickly establish in new areas. Infestation of the Longhorned tick can lead to possible transmission of bovine theileriosis, a disease that kills red blood cells in cattle.

While there have currently not been any confirmed cases of bovine theileriosis in Missouri cattle, this discovery further heightens the need for Missouri cattle ranchers to make informed decisions regarding quarantining protocols when introducing new cattle into their herds in an effort to protect the health of their livestock, which has significant economic implications.

“Studying the prevalence of invasive ticks in different geographical regions can help veterinarians and farmers take proactive, preventative steps that may ultimately protect the health of livestock, which has huge economic implications,” said Rosalie Ierardi, an anatomic pathologist at the MU College of Veterinary Medicine who recently discovered two Longhorned ticks in Linn County, Missouri, while conducting anaplasmosis surveillance research.

Ierardi collaborated on the project with Ram Raghavan, a professor in the MU College of Veterinary Medicine and MU School of Health Professions. Raghavan, who has been tracking the spread of various species of ticks in the U.S. for 15 years, predicted the potential geographic distribution of the Longhorned tick back in 2019. So far, the tick appears to be establishing in the areas that he had predicted in that study. He said there not only appears to be an increase in the abundance of all ticks in the Midwest in the past decade, but also an increase in the pathogens and diseases they transmit to cattle, humans and pets.

“Warmer temperatures in the Midwest seem to be creating perfect conditions for ticks and the pathogens they carry to thrive, and this problem may get worse going forward as the planet continues to warm, which is concerning,” Raghavan said. “We must be vigilant and devote resources toward trying to prevent these ticks from spreading diseases that harm the health of cattle, humans and their pets. The discovery of Longhorned ticks in northern Missouri greatly increases the need for more vigilance towards ticks in general and the need for routine monitoring of the pathogens they transmit.”

Ierardi encourages cattle ranchers who notice weakness, jaundice and pregnancy loss in their cattle to contact their local veterinarian and the MU Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratory for assistance with tracking down the causes for such signs.

“Symptoms of this disease can be often mistaken for anaplasmosis, so we encourage producers and practitioners to be vigilant and get their animals tested whenever there is a doubt,” Ierardi said. “Although these Longhorned ticks are known to transmit a number of human disease pathogens, at the moment the threat from them appears to be mostly bovine theileriosis, which impacts cattle.”

For more information about Longhorned ticks, visit the United States Department of Agriculture Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (USDA APHIS) website.
