Truman State University expands entrepreneurship competition to area students

By Truman State University

Truman State University will host the finals of its annual Bulldog B.I.T.E. business pitch competition Nov. 17, and this year more students than ever were eligible to participate.

Bulldog B.I.T.E., which stands for Building Innovation by Truman Entrepreneurs, is a “Shark Tank”-like competition that allows Truman students to pitch a for-profit or not-for-profit concept for a product, service or project. It is open to any Truman student, or team of students up to three members, enrolled during the fall semester. This year, students enrolled in the fall semester at Moberly Area Community were also eligible to participate.

“Given the importance of the relationship between the two institutions, we decided to invite MACC students to this year’s Bulldog B.I.T.E. competition. We hope this will expand access and build an entrepreneurial ecosystem in the area,” said Yung-hwal Park, associate professor and chair of business administration at Truman.

Submissions for the Bulldog B.I.T.E. competition were due in October. Six teams will be selected to attend a live pitch competition Nov. 17 to present their concept to a panel of judges. The top three finalists receive financial awards of $3,000 for first place, $2,000 for second place and $1,000 for third place. Financial support for Bulldog B.I.T.E. comes from alumni Doug (’94) and Diane (’95) Villhard.

The Bulldog B.I.T.E. finals are only part of the events taking place Nov. 17. In coordination with the Advancement Office, Truman’s Community of College Entrepreneurs will host a similar event, Bulldog Pitch Day, for area high school students. The first round is scheduled for that morning in Violette Hall, with the finals taking place later in the day in the Student Union Building.

Hope’s Kitchen fundraiser continues to raise funds to feed the hungry

Staff Reports

The Kirksville Daily Express is continuing its fund-raising drive to raise money for Kirksville’s Hope’s Kitchen, which is in its 23rd year of operation. Daily Express readers can continue to donate through Dec. 10. Money raised is used by ATSU students to feed locals in need of food during the school year on two Saturdays a month. This is the primary fundraiser for the program. For information on the Saturdays meals are available, follow the Hope’s Kitchen Facebook page.

Since the Daily Express began organizing the fundraiser in 2001, it has raised more than $136,000 for the kitchen. Last year’s fundraiser raised more than $4,100. That money goes directly into feeding folks who need it. Approximately 150 meals are made each time and they are available for pickup or delivery.

The kitchen began in 1999 when Kirksville High School students Rachel Higgins and Megan Lesczynski started the volunteer effort. Today, more than 100 ATSU students volunteer to cook, man the phones taking orders and delivering the meals.

To donate, people can bring a check to the Daily Express office, located at 701 E. LaHarpe Street, Suite C. Money can also be mailed to “The Kirksville Daily Express,” PO Box ATSU students fill orders of food to feed families in need of a meal.

809, Kirksville, MO 63501 or ATSU (800 W. Jefferson Street), with “ATSU/Hope’s Kitchen” in the address line. And there is also a PayPal link on the kitchen’s website (hopes-kitchen.com). Donations are tax deductible.

With a minimum donation of $1, donors can have their names published in each week’s Daily Express fund-raising summary, as well as in a giant Christmas card that will appear in the Dec. 24 Daily Express, so include your name, business or organization when you donate and include at least $1 for each name you would like to see published. The list for that card will be finalized on Dec. 16.

Kirksville City Council approves 20-year franchise agreement with Ameren

By Marty Bachman
Daily Express

The Kirksville City Council, at their Nov. 7 regular meeting, held a public hearing and later approved the first reading of an ordinance that will renew an existing franchise for 20 years for Ameren Missouri.

In a staff report to the council, City Manager Mari Macomber said that it is not a non-exclusive franchise and that Ameren is not the only company that can provide service in town — but what the franchise will allow and has allowed the company for many years, is the ability to construct, repair and maintain their infrastructure within the city right-of-ways as well as on city property.

“So what is being proposed is a franchise agreement that is in compliance with the state statutes,” Macomber said, noting that the franchise requires Ameren to pay a franchise fee as opposed to a gross receipts fee.

Macomber told the council that after approving the first reading of the ordinance, the law required a 30-day period to allow for additional public input, which would allow the council to vote again at their December meeting. After that, she told the council, there’s another 30-day period to allow citizens to submit a petition if they wish. She said that if they approve the ordinance in December, it will go into effect Jan. 19, 2023.

Macomber said that Ameren also wished to renew their street lighting contract with the city and that will also be brought to them at the December meeting.

The council unanimously approved the first reading of the ordinance and will take up the second reading in December.

Council grants building orientation variance

In other action, the council approved the granting of a building orientation variance for a duplex located at 1015 S.Wabash Street. City Planner Mary Turner told the council that the property owners have requested to orient their duplex differently than the current Municipal Code allows.

Family honors its 42 members that have served in the military

By Special to The Express

The home of Orville and Cecilia Mausolf on Weatherbrook in the Weatherstone neighborhood of Kirksville, is decorated with 42 flags, which represent the four branches of military service and the five generations of service given to the country by their family members, both current and past. There are 20 flags with black ribbons on them that represent a family service member who has passed away, including a nephew, Lt. Garrison Avery from Lincoln, Neb., who died from an IED on Feb. 1, 2006 in Iraq, and an uncle, Lt. Lewis Wolf, who was killed in WWII. One flag says, "Home of the free because of the brave." The Mausolf family, originally from Moorhead, Minn., currently has seven members that are on active duty, all in the U.S. Army. Orville Mausolf served in the army from 1959 to 1961.

Room service

Mom always had a perfectly-sized box ready and waiting. I'd climb onto the bed and under the covers, all sniffly and feverish, and wait for the sound of a serrated kitchen knife cutting through cardboard.

I propped myself up against my pillow, smoothed my nightgown, and waited for the room service my illnesses always merited when I was a little girl.

Within minutes, she arrived. Mom placed the hand-carved box-table across my lap. It was a perfect fit. My legs disappeared inside the hole she'd made for them and my blanketed feet stuck out the other end.

It was a magic trick of loving delight.

The bottom of the box was now the top of my table. I held my arms up, knowing what was next: Ta-DA! A nubby, faded hand towel snapped across the air and billowed down atop my special table, wafting out a scent of Breeze detergent that even a stuffy nose could smell.

My arms plopped down weakly. Fingers splayed in anticipation. I was ready for lunch.

Mom returned to the kitchen. I could hear her padding about; her bare feet stopped at the stove. I pulled at the worn tufts of my towel tablecloth and stared at midday sunbeams through lowered window shades.

Seconds later, my bedroom door was full of Mom. She carried a bowl of chicken noodle soup in one hand and a cup of weak, warm tea in the other.

A spoon dangled from the pillowy slit between her thumb and index finger, tapping Morse code against the bowl with each step.

I saw a glimpse of the tea tag hanging from the cup's edge; it swayed dizzily back and forth like a tiny kite.

"Here ya go!" Mom set the bowl on the middle of the box and placed the cup to my left (she always remembered that I was her left-handed child!). Her fingers flittered and fanned as if serving royalty. I watched happily, steadying my box with bony forearms.

Then, Mom placed a temperature-check peck against my forehead, wedged my limp hair behind my ears, and took a quick look around my bedroom to make sure all was as it should be.

She turned to the door and whirled back with a smile I still see in my dreams.

Mom left me alone to enjoy my soup. Steam rose from the bowl. Noodles danced. Tiny squares of meat floated like rafts on a sunlight-yellow sea. I picked up my spoon and scooped up the remedy that came from a red and white-labeled can...bought at the Kroger store in town and served up by the person I loved most in the world.

All grown up now, I'm much too big to fit under one of Mom's box trays. And my mother now lives only in my heart. Most of my sick time over the years has been spent on my feet, taking care of my own family and resisting the urge to hide under the covers.

But I still open a can of chicken noodle soup when I feel a cold taking hold. In those seconds I am a child again, and I smile at the memories of Mom's forehead kisses and room service atop homemade, cardboard box tables.

The perils of the flu shot

You get them flu shots ever' fall? I try not to, but Doc has this year nurse that's not only stouter'n a streetsweeper, but fleet of foot as well. This year's Windy, a-course. So, yeah, I prit-nearly allus get one a-them shots each fall.

But I been workin' on a way to either speed me up or slow her down. Ever seen on them summer Olympics the relay race? You know, when one guy's runnin' and he sticks out a stick and the next guy takes it for a while? Thass what that there nurse looks like in hot pursuit 'cept it's a hypothermic needle and not a stick in her hand. Now you know ol' Doc makes fun a-me ever' dang time she catches up. A-course, she could stand to run off a few calories here and there, mostly there. Truth be told, wouldn't hurt me none, neither.

When Doc stops laughin' he usually says, "Windy, I don't think you're any faster'n you was last year."

"Nope," I admitted, "but I think she is."

SLIM RANDLES
HOME COUNTRY

Oh, I tried to talk Doc out of it. Honest. I told him I been particler good this last year and took my vitermins and minerales and drank my fruity juice and all that stuff. See, I figgered if he got impressed enough with my diet, I might could slip away from Vampira for one year.

But it seems like some-thin' always happens to that there plan a-mine.

For example, Doc looked at me while Nurse Sprint was in the corner, sharpenin' her needle and lookin' funny at my fanny.

"So Windy," Doc said, "you been drinkin' your fruit juices?"

"Yessir!" I replied.

"Let me guess ... was this juice mixed up with gin or vodka?"

"Well"

Doc nodded to the nurse. I didn't even make it as far as the restroom door.

Can you catch an old camp cook? The world wants to know. <https://www.nurserecruiter.com/>

Just four meatpackers control 85 percent of the market. Missouri cattlemen like me need a voice

In the last two decades, hundreds of thousands of U.S. cattle producers have gone out of business, and we are currently losing 40 operations per day by some estimates. Just in the last two years, around 1,700 small feedlots run by independent family farmers were put out of business because of corporate consolidation. This has led to an even more centralized production system as the dominant meatpackers favor a single-source system — getting cattle from large operations, run by them for their benefit only.

In 1980, the major meatpackers controlled 36 percent of the beef supply. Starting in that decade, we saw deregulation and a disappearance of antitrust enforcement that were designed to curb consolidation in industries, including meat production.

By the time the '80s came to an end, the Top 4 meatpackers controlled 70 percent of the beef supply, and their power has only grown. Today, the top four meatpackers control around 85 percent of the beef supply.

What are the results? In 1980, beef producers made 62 cents of every dollar consumers spent on beef. Compare that to today, where only 37 cents of the beef dollar goes to the producer. The price of beef in the last decade has risen from $4.67 a pound to $7.36 per pound — a 60 percent increase for consumers. But cattle producers' profit dropped from $518 per calf in 2014 to last year's $125 per calf.

Profit for producers in 2014 was helped by mandatory COOL — country-of-origin labeling, which was required by the 2008 farm bill. However, corporate agriculture groups such as the North American Meat Institute and National Cattlemen's Beef Association successfully lobbied Congress to repeal COOL in 2015, which led to the largest one-year price drop in cattle prices. Today, producers receive $300 less per calf than we did in 2014.

Meatpackers have also increased their use of so-called alternative marketing arrangements or AMAs, which are complicated strategies to avoid having to buy cattle on the open market. Meatpackers procure 80 percent of their supply through AMAs for a price to be named later based on the future cash market. And meatpackers manipulate the cash market through their control of the cattle supplies to drive down the price of cattle, resulting in less for the farmer and more profit for corporate meatpackers. The result is that consumers get gouged while producers are ripped off.

The use of AMAs increased from around 40 percent in 2005 to 80 percent in 2019. According to a study done by Georgetown and Ohio State University, for every 1 percent increase in AMAs, there is a 5 percent decrease in cash market prices. These kinds of pricing schemes have roughly doubled the meatpackers' profitability, while cattlemen and small independent feedlots have suffered from higher input cost and lack of access to the marketplace.

There have been attempts to fix this corporate-controlled system by increasing competition for beef by supporting the building of packing plants not associated with the Big Four. However, in order to ensure independent processing plants succeed, we need to strengthen and enforce antitrust laws and fix the marketplace so these new plants can compete on a more level playing field.

For example, Congress needs to pass the American Beef Labeling Act to restore mandatory country-of-origin labeling for beef, and the U.S. Department of Agriculture needs to close a loophole in voluntary labeling rules so that only beef born, raised and harvested in the United States can bear the label "Product of the USA."

Another bipartisan bill, proposed by Sens. Chuck Grassley and Jon Tester, is the 50/14 Bill, which would require that meatpackers purchase 50 percent of their supply on the cash market and cannot own the cattle for more than 14 days before harvest.

The 50/14 Bill is such a threat to the meatpackers' profits that they went immediately to work lobbying Congress, and convinced legislators to introduce a weaker compromise bill, the Cattle Price Discovery and Transparency Act, which would leave the meatpackers in charge for years while the USDA studies the issue.

That leaves a few questions: First, how many producers and small feedlots are going to go out of business before our elected representatives do something? Second, why did Congress rescind COOL when 90 percent of Americans want truth in labeling? Why did Congress bow to the World Trade Organization and the big meatpackers?

We should call our representatives and senators to demand they support and pass the American Beef Labeling Act and the 50/14 Bill. Furthermore, they should break up the enormous meatpackers for the betterment of both the consumer and the producer.

“Per our code, basically your building as opposed to front on the short side and they would like to run it on the long side of their lot,” she said, noting that the planning and zoning commission recommended the council approve the request. Currently, there are no structures on the property.

The council unanimously approved the variance.

Council approves purchase of storage tank

The council then approved a resolution authorizing the purchase of a T-3 3000-gallon Emulsion Storage Tank from Cimline of Bridgeton, Mo. Public Works Director Glenn Balliew told the council that the department had “limped” their tank along this year for paving as well as other projects and that now paving season is over, they were bringing it to the council for purchase. Balliew said the price is $63,000 and that the former tank is 25 years old.

“This will be a more blanketed system that should last longer and last us a long time,” Balliew told the council. “It’s needed so that we can repair streets.”

The council unanimously approved the purchase.

Council approves appointment of grievance officer

The council unanimously approved appointing Assistant City Manager Ashley Young an alternate ADA grievance officer. City Manager Mari Macomber told the council that on Oct. 17, city staff had presented an ADA grievance process policy to the council and in that policy it identified one individual as the individual to hear grievances. She said that at the council’s request, an amendment was made to the policy based on their motion to add a second or an alternate to hear grievances, in the case that the person who actually is was identified to hear the grievances, has any grievance filed against him.

“The primary person is the HR director, Human Resource Director Don Crosby,” Macomber said. “Ashley Young, as the assistant city manager and community and economic development director over that department, we have assigned him the responsibility to serve as the alternate and we have amended the policy accordingly.”

Macomber said that the city is in the process of updating their website and they will make sure to add a prominent section for ADA ,which will include the grievance policy in that section.

“Ashley, we thank you for agreeing to take on this role,” Mayor Zac Burden said.

The council voted unanimously to approve the appointment.

Council approves closure of streets for Christmas parade

The council approved a special event request to allow the closure of specific streets in the downtown streets area during the annual Kirksville Kiwanis Christmas Parade.

Parks and Recreation Director Rodney Sadler told the council that the parade is an annual event and that while it doesn’t normally go to the council for approval, they’re changing the parade route so that instead of just going down Franklin Street, parade organizers would like it to turn onto West Washington and North Elson Street to be more of a part of the new Kirksville hometown holiday events that Main Street Kirksville, the city of Kirksville and other partner organizations are currently planning.

“Everything associated with this seems like it’s really coming together in one big special way and I appreciate the parade is acknowledging that as well,” Mayor Zac Burden said. “I’m looking forward to this event. This would be a really neat thing for our community this year.”

The council unanimously approved the changes.

Council approves appointments

The council next approved the re-appointment of City

Manager Mari Macomber and Finance Director Lacy King, along with the new appointment of Craig Kiser to replace Ryan Kiser to the North Baltimore Street Community Improvement District (CID) Board of Directors, with their terms expiring in September 2026.

Macomber told the council that the Community Improvement District is a requirement of law when you establish community improvement district as was done for the shopping area that is at the intersection of Hwy. 6 and Baltimore Street and includes Hobby Lobby all the way up to Old Navy. The board consists of several members of the city along with representatives of the development organization. The council unanimously approved the appointments.

The council then voted unanimously to reappoint Don Crosby to the Tax Increment Financing Commission for a four year term to expire in October 2026. Crosby has been serving on the commission since 2011.

Embracing Local History Part 24 - SLAVERY IN PRE- ADAIR COUNTY

By Blytha Ellis, President
Adair County Historical Society and Museum

As much as we may detest it now and wish it never existed, slavery was a way of life before the Civil War and cannot be ignored. Northern Missouri was not immune from it. Many settlers, particularly the more prosperous ones, came into the future Adair County bringing slaves with them. Here are a few stories of those people.

Early settler John Cain, who has been discussed in previous parts of this history, came into The Cabins area in 1830 with slaves. One of his known slaves was named Richard “Dick” Hill (1816-1895). Dick planted the first orchard in what became Adair County and took much pride in keeping the trees pruned and producing abundantly. Dick once said he claimed to have the oldest trade in the world because the original work of the first man on earth, the Biblical Adam, was to care for the Garden of Eden.

Dick Hill was born near Nashville, Tennessee, and said he came to Missouri in 1825. Unlike some other slave owners, the Cains reportedly encouraged education for their slaves and wanted them to learn to read and write. This was true with Dick Hill. He was known for writing letters, subscribing to the best newspapers, and for keeping abreast of current topics of the day. In February 1895, long after he was a free man, he was in Burlington, Kansas, visiting his daughter when he wrote a letter to folks back in this area stating he would return to Adair County in March to prune the fruit trees as he had done for so many years.

Dick did return to Adair County that spring and pruned his orchard for the last time. He died in November 1895 at his home in the Cain and Collett neighborhood. He was buried near his former owners, the Cains, in the Collett-Cain Cemetery. In the Weekly Graphic newspaper in Kirksville, it was written of him, “He was a member of the Christian Church and an excellent citizen.” Later, a tombstone was placed on his grave by a member of the Cain family.

Colonel Jesse Leven Jones (1795-1847) was an early settler of The Cabins area, and he brought several slaves with him. Some records show he was born in Virginia and others show Kentucky. He earned his title of Colonel for his service in the War of 1812 where he served under Robert McAfee and Richard Mentor Johnson. It is recorded that while living in Kentucky, Jesse knew Daniel Boone and probably hunted with him as did John Cain.

In 1829, Colonel Jones came to Randolph County, Missouri, the same year in which that county was established. There, he operated the first mill in Prairie Township of Randolph County. It was located near Renick, Missouri. During the Black Hawk War threat, Jesse Jones served briefly at Fort Matson in the future Adair County

Jesse’s wife, Elizabeth (Dean), by whom he had nine children, died in Randolph County in 1830. In the census of 1830, Jesse Jones listed that he had eleven slaves. It is recorded that after Elizabeth’s death, one of their domestic slaves cared for the children as their mother. The youngest child was a newborn. After one of these children was grown, she highly complimented the slave mother who raised her.

In 1835, Jesse remarried to Sarah (Christian) and in that same year sent two of his slaves north to what would become Adair County to manage horses, cattle and hogs on property he had obtained. Two years later, the Jones family moved to this property in The Cabins area bringing twenty slaves. Here, Jesse Jones established the first trading post and a mill. George Cain wrote, “Colonel Jesse Jones came here bringing lots of cattle, hogs and negro slaves.” Jesse eventually owned 1200 acres on the Chariton River which was cultivated by his slaves.

Jesse is credited with having built the first frame house (as opposed to a log home) in this part of the country in 1845 with the help of slave labor. The house frame was of burr oak, and the floors, shingles and weatherboarding were of black walnut. The two fireplace chimneys were built of limestone and sandstone rock taken from near the Chariton River.

One of Jesse’s slaves named Carter was the miller at the family mill. He sawed and hewed the timbers to construct this house. Two other early settlers, William and Thomas Parcells, also helped with the construction. This house was still standing in 1911 when a number of Jones descendants and friends held a picnic reunion on the house grounds which at that time was owned by a family named Stinson. This reunion was recorded in a Kirksville newspaper.

In 1840, the slave schedule (a Federal Census count of slaves) shows that Jesse Jones owned twenty-two slaves. Besides Carter, the names of a few of his slaves are known, although many of them only by first names: Joe Adams, Isaac, Rob, Jim, Pelina and Margaret, the latter a daughter of Carter who was born in this county.

Washington “Wash” Conner who was discussed in earlier parts of this history, also had slaves. His second wife was Martha, a daughter of Colonel Jesse Jones. It is recorded in a history of these families by historian Anita Dennis that the slave Pelina was purchased from Wash Conner by Colonel Jones in 1848 for $300.

At some point, a store was started about four miles northwest of present-day Kirksville, in the Bear Creek Church community by a settler named Samuel Withrow (1790-1852). A primitive post office was established in his store, and Mr. Withrow was the Postmaster. In these early days, there was no mail delivery and no postage stamps. Settlers had to simply check with the postmaster to see if they had any mail. Then, it was the responsibility of the receiver to pay to get the letter.

The story is told of a letter arriving at Mr. Withrow’s post office addressed to Wash Conner from one of his brothers. The letter must have come from quite a distance as the cost of getting it was ten cents, a whopping price for those days! Wash had many hundreds of dollars worth of animal hides and leather at his tannery, but he had no cash. Wash asked the father of his first wife, John Cain, for the ten cents, but he had no money either because nearly everything was purchased in those days by barter.

Then, Wash went to his second wife’s father, Colonel Jesse Jones, to borrow the ten cents. Surely Colonel Jones would have it since he had such a fine house, a mill, a trading post, and so many slaves! But, Colonel Jones was in the same predicament, no cash.

However, one of Colonel Jones’ slaves named Jim spoke up and said he had ten cents and he would loan it to Wash to get the letter. Wash gratefully took the money and got his letter. Hopefully, he paid Jim back!

Colonel Jesse Jones died in 1847, several years prior to slaves being freed. At that time, his large estate was probated. Provision was made for his slaves to be divided among his heirs. Jesse’s widow received eight slaves while the rest were divided among the Jones children.

The Associated Barber Shops (Barbers Union) announced that effective November 12, 1917, the price of haircuts, massages, and shampoos would increase to 35 cents each.

Word was received in Kirksville that a former student at the American School of Osteopathy (ASO, now A. T. Still University), Earl H. Fisk, took his own life in an Omaha, Nebraska, motel room. To end his life Fisk, who had been in ill health, shot himself in the head. Twelve years earlier on December 6, 1915, when he was a freshman osteopathic medical student in Kirksville, he attempted suicide by shooting himself through the heart with a 32-calibre revolver. At that time Dr. George Still, renowned surgeon, saved his life in what those in the profession called a “miracle of science.” At the time Fisk shot himself in the heart, Dr. Still had just completed performing surgery on another person when he learned that the young student attempted suicide. Fellow students brought Fisk to “the pit” where surgeries were performed. Dr. Still was prepared with instruments at hand although Fisk’s body showed no signs of life. He did not have a wrist pulse, showed no signs of respiration, and was bluish in color due to lack of oxygen in his blood. Dr. Still immediately opened the chest cavity and the pericardium where he removed excess blood. The bullet hole was discovered in the left ventricle of the heart, in which Dr. Still stuck his finger to stop the bleeding. Immediately Fisk’s vital signs returned. The hole was sutured, chest cavity opening closed and dressed, and the student sent to his hospital room. The bullet was later removed from his rib cage. He was dismissed from the hospital on December 28 and promptly left Kirksville. Ironically, Dr. George Still’s life ended on November 23, 1922, with a bullet to his head. He accidentally dropped an automatic revolver he recently purchased, and when he picked it up it discharged hitting him in the head.

A large crowd packed Kirk Auditorium to honor Adair County’s World War I dead in one of the “greatest Armistice Day programs in Adair County History.” There were hundreds of participants including organized groups of ex-servicemen, numerous area high school and college bands, students of the local Adair County schools, and other groups. The main event of the celebration was the dedication of Adair County’s Memorial Park which featured a granite shaft containing the names of Adair County’s thirty-eight servicemen killed during World War I. The park is located on the site of the Cumberland Academy, northeast of downtown. Dr. E. S. Smith, commander of the McDougal-Lowe Post of the local American Legion, conducted the ceremony in the auditorium due to inclement weather. He said that the formation of the park and memorial started eleven years ago when the state of Missouri donated $1,000 as seed money to construct the park. Adair County was required to match the states’ contribution which it did as the fund grew to over $3,000.

In a concentrated effort to conserve the nation’s petroleum supply for use by the U.S. Armed Forces in World War II, the U. S. government began nationwide gas rationing. Registration for gasoline ration cards was being held two days in Adair County. Every person owning an automobile or motorcycle was required to register. The registration was conducted at the Rieger Armory for Kirksville residents, and the remainder of Adair County residents were to register at their respective local schoolhouse. Each applicant was given an “A” Ration Book that entitled them to four gallons of gas a week. Certain vehicles such as ambulances, hearses, commercial vehicles, fleet vehicles, taxis, rental vehicles, and vehicles with dealer license plates required a different type of ration book or were exempt. Gas rationing began in May 1942 in the eastern states and was in effect in all 48 states by the end of the year. Rationing lasted until August 15, 1945, after World War II ended.

Nine former students at Northeast Missouri State Teachers College (now Truman State University) who sacrificed their lives in the Korean Conflict were recognized at the college in a special Veterans’ Day ceremony held on campus. Lt. Col. Robert McKinney delivered the address at which time a bronze plaque was dedicated listing the names of the deceased servicemen. The men and their hometowns were: Jerry Purdin Davis, Kirksville; Wilfred E. Hall, Coffey; Elmer Earl Holcomb, Shelbyville; Robert Newland Howell Jr., Kirksville; Robert Joseph Lawrence, St. Louis; Gerald E. Miller, Brashear; Louis Plagakis, Quincy, IL; Perry Wilson Porter Jr., Unionville; and Donald Dewey Sevits, Kirksville. Relatives of the honored servicemen were special guests at the ceremony.

In the general election, Adair County voters turned down a $700,000 bond issue to construct a new nursing home in Adair County. The vote was 3,556 against the proposal and 2,141 in favor. Every one of Adair County’s twenty-nine voting precincts turned-down the bond issue.

Kirksville’s new post office on East Jefferson Street was formally dedicated Sunday, November 11, 1962, as 600-700 people heard Missouri’s Ninth Congressional District Representative, Clarence Cannon, deliver the dedicatory address in the parking lot of the new post office. Cannon described the progress that had been made since the mail was first delivered by pony express and stagecoach. Dr. Wray Rieger, dean of the Kirksville State Teachers College (now Truman State University) served as master of ceremonies, and Kirksville’s Postmaster Boyd Funk made introductory remarks. Representative Cannon presented the post office with a flag that had been flown over the U. S. Capitol in Washington D.C. A flag raising ceremony followed along with the singing of the national anthem. Approximately 1,000 persons attended the open house that included tours hosted by post office employees.

Old romance rekindled amid current marriage

JEANNE PHILLIPS

deciding what to do.

My home is more like a small office than a home. We have a business, a ministry, and I have a full-time job. I can't just pack up and leave, but in my heart I want to go back to my ex. He has been clean for three years, free from the drug-related health problems and is not going to return to that life. What do I do? -- TORN IN LOVE IN THE SOUTH

DEAR TORN: The relationship you have described with your self-centered husband seems more like a business partnership than anything else. From what you describe, he's either unwilling or unable to give you what you need. Unless you like living in an emotional desert, you will have to take charge of your life. IF you decide to divorce your husband, I urge you to take a LONG pause and not rush back to the altar. Get to know your ex again. Learn what pressures drove him to substance abuse. Although you care for him, the last thing you need is to wind up back at square one.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Contact Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD...

Great Art

A 1941 artwork by Dutch abstract artist Piet Mondrian has been found to have been hanging upside down in various museums for 75 years, The Guardian reported. One could be forgiven for the mistake; the piece features interlaced red, yellow, black and blue adhesive tape strips that subtly thicken at the bottom. But a photograph of Mondrian's studio shows the same piece on an easel -- with the "bottom" at the top. However, Susanne Meyer-Buser, curator of the North Rhine-Westphalia's art collection, said it will continue to be displayed upside down. "The adhesive tapes are already extremely loose and hanging by a thread," she said. "And it's now part of the work's story."

Armed and Clumsy

A man who stopped in a corn maze in Brooklyn Park, Minnesota, on Oct. 22 to get a corn kernel out of his shoe accidentally shot himself in the leg, KMSP-TV reported. The 38-year-old from Circle Pines was carrying the gun legally, and it discharged when he bent over to retrieve the kernel. Police said the gun did not have a safety; the owner wasn't charged.

Up a Tree

Tyler County (Texas) Deputy Cory LeBlanc and other first responders undertook an unusual assignment on Oct. 31, KFDM-TV reported. An unnamed man who was bow hunting for deer from a tree stand called 911 around 4:25 p.m. to report that he had fallen from his perch and was stuck upside down, 18 feet above the ground. The man's ankle had become lodged in the framework of the stand. "We had the Spurger Volunteer Fire Department, DPS, Texas Parks and Wildlife on the way, all trying to help," LeBlanc said. After an hour and a half of being heels-over-head, the man was lowered to the ground and was unhurt. His advice: "Use a harness. It was in my truck. I just got complacent."

Kirkville’s Keaton Anderson signs to play baseball at Missouri Southern

By Adam Tumino
Daily Express

A Kirkville athlete will be continuing his athletic career at the next level. Keaton Anderson, a Kirkville senior and pitcher on the baseball team, signed on to play baseball at Missouri Southern State on Wednesday in a ceremony at the KHS Library.

Anderson said that the process of signing on at the collegiate level began after his sophomore season when college programs began showing interest, and the signing on Wednesday was the result of a lot of hard work.

“It’s been a long one,” Keaton said of his path to this point. “I’ve had a lot of hours of practice, a lot of driving, a lot of commitment of time and energy. But it’s been fun. I’ve enjoyed it, so that helps a lot.”

He also said that there were multiple factors that played into his decision in choosing Missouri Southern for his next destination.

“The coaches, I really liked the coaches, and I just thought they had really nice facilities and I felt like it was the right fit for me,” he said. “When I went down and visited there I really liked the town and the atmosphere it was giving off to me.”

Missouri Southern is located in Joplin and the athletics program competes at the NCAA Division II level. The baseball team competes in the MIAA Conference and is coming off a 2022 season in which the Lions posted a 29-23 overall record.

Anderson still has his senior season at Kirkville coming up, and he said he thinks the Tigers have the opportunity to have a strong season to close out his high school career.

“I think we’re going to have a really successful year as a team,” he said. “Personally I just want to go out there and continue to do what I’ve been doing. Get people out and don’t let them score. The only thing I can really do is my job.”

Playing sports at the college level is something that fewer than 10 percent of high school athletes have the opportunity to do, and Anderson said that he feels grateful to be one of the athletes to have this chance.

“It makes me really happy, just because I love the game of baseball, and sports in general have been a really big part of my life,” he said. “Being able to go and continue my athletic career is something I’ve always wanted to do. I’m happy I’m able to do it, and am fortunate enough to do it.”

Truman set to play Indianapolis for GLVC Championship

By Adam Tumino
Daily Express

Before the season began, the scheduled game between the Truman State football team and conference rival Indianapolis set for the season finale looked as if it could be an important game. Now that the game is upon us, the importance cannot be overstated.

The winner of the game will be this season’s GLVC Champions, and either the No. 15 Greyhounds and No. 20 Bulldogs will end the season with a perfect conference record. Both teams are 8-1 overall and 5-0 in GLVC play and feature strong defenses and red-hot offenses.

Few teams in the nation are hotter than Truman right now. The Bulldogs have won eight games in a row, their longest winning streak since 1994. Their lone loss of the season game in the opener against a Davenport team that is now ranked 18th in the nation. Truman won its last game 52-7 at home over McKendree.

and has since won three games in a row, the most recent of which was a 48-14 road victory over William Jewell.

Indianapolis has won eight of nine games against Truman all time, including the last five in a row. Last season’s game was a 13-10 win for the Greyhounds. It was the lowest-scoring game of the season for both teams.

Truman running back Cody Schrader ran for 202 yards in the game, but was only able to get into the end zone once. Bulldogs’ quarterback Nolan Hair was just 7-of-18 passing for 68 yards. He did not throw any interceptions but was sacked three times.

JaQuan Buchanan was the leading rusher for Indianapolis in that game with 94 yards and the team’s lone touchdown. Buchanan began this season behind Toriano Clinton, who was the leading rusher in the GLVC through six games this season before being lost to injury.

Buchanan has filled Clinton’s role nicely, averaging 135.7 rushing yards over the Greyhound’s three-game winning streak while recording 10 rushing touchdowns.

The Greyhounds also have an injury replacement at quarterback in Christian Conkling, who has started the last four games in place of Connor Kinnett. Conkling has averaged 203.3 passing yards in the last three games while throwing five touchdowns and two interceptions.

Like it or not, the Astros won it clean this time

I spent a large portion of the MLB playoffs trying to gather my thoughts on the Houston Astros. The team seemed destined for at least a World Series appearance when the postseason began, and it turns out they were poised to win the whole thing.

But the dominant postseason run by the Astros, during which they proved themselves to truly be the best team in baseball, was overshadowed immediately by the leftover bad feelings caused by the 2017 Astros, who won the World Series and were later proven to have been cheating throughout that season.

The 2017 team illegally stole signs during games, presumably giving their hitters huge advantages during games and sometimes causing opposing teams to scramble and change their signs on the fly. But should the 2022 Astros still be judged by the actions of the 2017 team?

Sure, five players from the 2017 team are still on the team that won the 2022 World Series. Those players will have to carry that stain throughout their careers and beyond.

Many fans are still hanging on to the anger they felt when they learned the 2017 Astros had cheated. Any social media posts about the Astros winning this year were met with comments calling them cheaters. But the 2022 Astros did not cheat, at least as far as we know.

Calling them cheaters is obnoxious and detracts from their achievement. Whether you love them or hate them, the 2022 Astros were a great team that earned their place in history, unlike the 2017 iteration.

The 2022 Astros bear almost no resemblance to the 2017 team. Major players like Jose Altuve and Alex Bregman remain, and both played important roles in the team’s success this postseason. Many fans will hate these players forever, and they certainly have that right. I feel the same way about those players.

But hating them for what they did five years ago and still calling them cheaters now are different things. They cheated. They got caught. They stopped cheating. They kept winning anyway.

I think what upset many people is the fact that no players from the 2017 team were punished by the league in any way. There were no fines or suspensions for any players, who were the ones that implemented and benefited from the cheating.

Maybe if they had been suspended people would be more willing to move on. Maybe not. Regardless, it is time to move on.

It may not really seem like it, but 2017 is a very long time ago, especially in terms of baseball. Jeremy Peña, Houston’s rookie shortstop who won the World Series MVP, was not even drafted yet in 2017. Carlos Beltran and Brian McCann were on the 2017 Astros. That was a long time ago.

Focusing on the cheating takes away from the many exciting things about the 2022 Astros. Young stars like Peña and Yordan Alvarez are a lot of fun to watch. The pitching staff Houston put together was also incredible to watch, particularly during the combined no-hitter they threw in game four of the World Series, just the second no-hitter in World Series history.

Complaining about the 2017 team also takes away from the accomplishment of Astros manager Dusty Baker, who finally won his first World Series as a manager. Baker was drafted as a player in 1968 and, after a long and successful playing career, has now managed for 25 seasons and won 2,093 regular season games. He is probably one of the most beloved figures in baseball history, and people are minimizing his accomplishment because of what the Astros did before they even employed him.

It’s also simply not fun to complain about the Astros cheating. Baseball should be fun to watch, and focusing on a years-old cheating scandal is not fun for anyone involved.

People can certainly root against the Astros as much as they wish. As long as there are still players from the 2017 team still in Houston, they will probably remain the villains of the league. That is fine. Every sport needs a team or two that people love to hate.

But it is time to stop calling the 2022 Astros cheaters. Let’s all grow up and move on. The 2022 Astros were a great team, and they did it clean.

Neither of these quarterbacks played against Truman last season. Quarterback Bryce Stancombe played in that game and was intercepted three times by the Truman defense. Both defenses have excelled at taking the ball away this season. Truman leads the GLVC with 15 interceptions this season while Indianapolis ranks second with 14. Truman defensive backs Ryan Olivas and Ben Thomas and

Indianapolis defensive back Kivonte Houston are all tied for the conference lead with four interceptions this season. Olivas had one of Truman's interceptions in last season's game against the Greyhounds while Ben Watson and Jake Closser had the other two. Indianapolis' defense has been especially good at stopping the run this season, allowing just 55.7 rushing yards per game and a total of five rushing touchdowns. The Greyhounds will have their hands full with Truman's running game, which is averaging 197.1 rushing yards this season and has 23 rushing touchdowns. The Bulldogs rank second in both categories trailing only Indianapolis. Truman's running game has been even better lately, averaging a staggering 327 rushing yards over the last four games. The Bulldogs have also recorded 16 of their rushing touchdowns in that span. Something will have to give in the winner-take-all game Saturday, which is scheduled to kick off at 2 p.m. Eastern from Indianapolis.

Truman State University United Way campaign kicks off

By Truman State University

Truman is launching its campaign to help the United Way of Northeast Missouri. The funds raised during the campaign will stay in the local area. The local programs and services funded by the United Way of Northeast Missouri are among agencies who provide disaster services, meals for senior citizens, bereavement counseling, utility assistance, life skills training, membership assistance for the YMCA, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, youth tutoring programs and much more. To learn more about the local programs and services that can benefit from donations, visit liveunitednemo.org. There are several ways to donate. Those who receive letters in the mail can donate by sending in a check. Faculty and staff can donate using payroll deduction. Donations can also be made online. Students can donate meals from their meal plans and when the campaign ends, Sodexo will write a check to United Way. Faculty and staff that donate can enter to win a reserved parking spot for 2023. In order to be considered for this drawing, donations must be made by Nov. 18 and this form submitted. While a donation of any size will have an equal opportunity to win, it is encouraged to set up a recurring monthly donation of $10 or more. This can be accomplished using the payroll deduction option on the pledge form, or the United Way website.

Be a courteous, attentive driver this Thanksgiving holiday!

By Missouri State Highway Patrol

Col. Eric T. Olson, superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, reminds everyone there will be an increase in traffic over the Thanksgiving holiday. Drivers should remain alert to changes along their normal route. Regardless of traffic patterns, safety should remain a priority.

The counting period for the 2022 Thanksgiving holiday weekend is from 6 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 23, through 11:59 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 27. Troopers will be participating in Operation C.A.R.E., enforcing all traffic laws, and available to assist the public. Over the 2021 Thanksgiving holiday counting period, 12 people were killed and 540 injured in 1,365 traffic crashes. Someone was injured or killed every 11 minutes over the 2021 Thanksgiving holiday.

Before you take a trip this holiday season, make sure your vehicles are in good condition and that you are well rested before they start driving. Remember: There is never a reason to speed, drive aggressively, or drive impaired.

Too many people die in traffic crashes each year in Missouri. The choices you make when you're behind the wheel matter. Make good choices, so you'll never have to say, "If I could just go back..."

If Missouri temperatures are accommodating, boating or fishing might become part of your Thanksgiving holiday weekend plans. Make sure your vessel's navigation lights are operational. There is less daylight this time of year, so check your lights and have extra bulbs on board before you head out. The water is becoming colder, and hypothermia is also a concern. The body loses heat 25 times faster in water than in the air of the same temperature. If you take an unexpected plunge in cold water, it's important to get out of the water and into dry clothes as soon as possible. Always wear the proper life jacket and using caution to avoid falling overboard. Plan ahead: How would you exit the water if you inadvertently fell overboard? Does your boat have an exterior swim ladder to allow you to re-enter the vessel? It's also important to tell someone about your plans to be on or near the water and where you're going.

Watercraft operators must consider the effect their actions have on others: Share the waterway and use common sense, good judgment, and courtesy to ensure the safety of all. Life jackets save lives. Wear It!!

- The public is encouraged to call the Patrol's Emergency Report Line (800) 525-5555 or 55 on your cellular phone if they witness criminal activity or experience an emergency. These phone numbers are operational for both highway and water emergencies. If your celebration includes alcohol, designate someone else to drive whether you are in your boat or your car. Please don't become a statistic.

Students invited to apply to free WashU Rural Scholars Academy

By Washington University

Washington University in St. Louis invites talented high school sophomores from rural communities in Missouri and southern Illinois to apply to the WashU Rural Scholars Academy, a free summer program that will strengthen academic and leadership skills, demystify the college application process and introduce students to Washington University, a global leader in teaching and research, as well as to the St. Louis region, home to world-class museums, parks and attractions.

The program runs July 16-22 and includes tuition, housing, meals, materials and excursions. Travel grants to St. Louis are available.

Students may apply online from Nov. 1 through March 1 by submitting a high school transcript, short essay and a reference.

The WashU Rural Scholars Academy is part of the university's Heartland Initiative, which aims to recruit and support students from rural communities in Missouri and southern Illinois. This fall, two admissions officers are visiting 90 rural high schools and attending numerous college fairs to share more about the university and how it prepares students to succeed in fields ranging from medicine to business to architecture.

"The WashU Rural Scholars Academy will be a great way to meet other rural students, discover what it's like to live and learn on a college campus and explore all that St. Louis has to offer," said Washington University admissions officer Dacoda Scarlett, himself a graduate of a rural high school outside of Springfield, Mo. "WashU has a lot to offer rural students. And I know they have a lot to offer us."

Academy scholars will live in university residence halls, participate in academic programs with faculty, learn more about the college application process and visit St. Louis attractions. The week concludes with lunch for scholars and their families with Washington University Chancellor Andrew D. Martin.

The WashU Rural Scholars Academy is one way Washington University is striving to support talented students from all backgrounds. This month, the university unveiled Make Way, an initiative to expand financial support and resources for all students. In 2021, Washington University announced a $1 billion investment in financial aid. And in 2019, the university launched the WashU Pledge, which provides a free education to accepted undergraduate students from Missouri and southern Illinois who are Pell Grant-eligible or from families with annual incomes of $75,000 or less. The WashU Pledge covers the full cost of a WashU education, including tuition, room, board and fees.

Ranked as one of the top universities in the nation, Washington University is a selective private research university on 169 leafy acres in St. Louis. The school boasts a 7:1 student-faculty ratio, approximately 100 majors and more than 400 student clubs. The university's 15,000 undergraduate and graduate students hail from every state and about 100 countries.

Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. HERMAN

ASTROGRAPH BY EUGENIA LAST

Take it upon yourself to do what makes you happy. Be responsible for what comes next instead of giving others jurisdiction over your future. Take the road less traveled if it will bring your desired results. Follow your intuition, and you'll have no regrets. Refuse to let your emotions cost you. Tell the truth, love yourself and walk away from unpleasant situations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) -- Play to win and protect what you have worked hard to acquire. Adjust your appearance and how you present yourself to others. Address your living conditions and you'll find good solutions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) -- Focus on whatever makes you happy. Make plans with a loved one to give you something to look forward to. Be careful when it comes to shared space or expenses. Equality matters.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) -- Do things your way, and others will marvel over your talent. Spending quality time with someone you love will lead to a better understanding of how you can make big improvements.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) -- Patience is a virtue and will help you maintain your dignity when dealing with difficult people. Size up the situation and take a step back. Do your own thing and allow others the same freedom.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) -- Fixing up your place will lift your spirits and prompt you to entertain. Don't let trivial matters frustrate you. Distance yourself from unsavory situations, and you'll save time and money.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) -- Bide your time. Don't sign up for something you can't handle. Look inward and focus on self-improvement, health and taking care of business. Protect your assets.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) -- Take a step back, breathe and rethink your strategy. A timeout will allow you to see pitfalls you may have overlooked. Establish your position and proceed with caution. Share with a loved one.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) -- Concentrate on what's essential. Showing discipline, putting in a little extra work and being prepared to step up when needed will pay off. Be on the lookout for exciting proposals.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) -- Share your thoughts and feelings, and socialize with people who make you think and inspire your imagination. A change of scenery will broaden your scope and encourage new beginnings.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) -- Take care of your responsibilities. Arguing or taking on a losing battle will not help your reputation or position. If you want to make a difference, live up to your promises.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) -- Talks will lead to change that will transform the way you do things. Don't waste time opposing the inevitable; get with the program and be part of the solution. Independence begins with you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) -- Keep things in perspective. It will be easy to overreact due to exaggeration or failure to verify facts. Don't discuss matters unless you have the proof you need.

All Terrain Vehicles (ATV) and Utility Terrain Vehicles (UTV) are great tools in the feedyard

By Press Release

All Terrain Vehicles (ATV) and Utility Terrain Vehicles (UTV) are great tools in the feedyard. However, all operators must be made aware of the unique hazards they present and the real risk of injury or death if they're not operated safely.

Identifying ATV safety principles is one of the aims of Central States Center for Agricultural Safety and Health (CS-CASH). This University of Nebraska Medical Center group (<https://www.unmc.edu/public-health/feedyard/>) is conducting two research projects (funded by National Institutes of Occupational Safety and Health) that are designed to make a positive impact on the sustainability of cattle feedyards through increased safety and health efforts.

It's recommended that only adults over the age of 18 should operate an ATV or UTV in a feedyard setting. Everyone who operates the vehicle should read the accompanying manual, complete hands-on operation instruction, and demonstrate competency to properly handle the vehicle.

Since equipment failure – such as defective brakes – can result in an ATV or UTV accident, each vehicle should be thoroughly inspected prior to each use. In addition to the equipment mechanics, tires should be inspected for condition and appropriate pressure, driveshaft or chain condition should be reviewed, lights, ignition/stop switches, and secure wheel nuts/pins should all be checked.

All riders must wear appropriate clothing, including a DOT-compliant helmet, goggles, long pants, long sleeved shirt, gloves, and over-the-ankle study boots with a low heel. Vehicles designed for one rider should never carry a passenger. For machines designed for two passengers, no more than two should be allowed.

Anytime the ATV/UTV is used to carry a load, ensure that the weight is properly balanced and secured to a rack intended for hauling.

Operators should be familiar with the area of operation and aware of any steep inclines, uneven terrain, bumps, holes, etc. Never operate the vehicle at excessive speeds. Driving speed should always match weather and visibility conditions, terrain, and operator experience. Any attempt to do wheelies, jumps, or other stunts should never be tolerated.

According to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA), "inexperienced drivers face a higher risk of injury according to the recreational data collected by the Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC). During the first month of operation, new recreational ATV drivers have an injury rate 13 times higher than the overall average injury rate for ATV operators. Further, the CPSC's data indicate that almost half the injured drivers had less than one year of experience and on-fourth of injured drivers had less than one month of experience."

Operators should be instructed to use extra caution when approaching any hill, turn, or obstacle. All terrain hazards – ruts, culverts, large rocks, wires, fences, etc. – should be conspicuously marked in areas where ATV/UTVs are frequently operated.

ATV/UTVs were not designed for use on paved surfaces and may be difficult to control when driven on pavement or on a highway. If it's absolutely necessary to operate an ATV/UTV on a public road, it must have headlights and taillights illuminated, operated by a licensed driver, covered by liability insurance, and operated at a speed not to exceed 30mph.

Never operate an ATV/UTV while impaired by a condition that may impact your driving abilities.

"Workhorse" ATV/UTVs are best suited to four-wheeled, designed for power, traction, and stability. Recreational models are built for speed and thrills and are not suitable for a workplace.

Some models have a low-pressure balloon tire suspension system. With added speed or on rough terrain they tend to bounce and pitch up and down and from side to side. Controlling the machine becomes more difficult and riding is more tiring.

Some models have a suspension system only on the front wheels, other models include suspension systems on all four wheels. Some use only coil springs, others use both shock absorbers and coil springs. The system with both coil springs and shock absorbers provide the best traction, maximum control, and the smoothest ride. Other models are more likely to cause or aggravate back and/or leg problems.

For most agricultural operations, an ATV/UTV with automatic clutch, reverse gear, shaft drive, and a differential with a locking mechanism is appropriate. A power take-off is featured on some models for operating attachments such as mowers, spray equipment, and other accessories.

ATV/UTVs are equipped with engines ranging from less than 100 cc to over 500 cc and with gear ratios that permit speeds in excess of 50mph. The use of the vehicle should determine the size of the engine and gear ratio. There are few, if any, justifications for a maximum speed of more than 20-25 mph for ATV/UTVs in agricultural operations. Serious ATV/UTV accidents often involve higher speeds.

Additional vehicle features include front and rear brakes with independent controls. Rear fenders and foot peg or rest should be designed to make it difficult or impossible for the foot to slip off and be caught under the rear wheel.

The ATV/UTV muffler, exhaust and other hot engine components should be located, or guarded, to prevent burns. The design should also prevent the buildup of dry trash near hot exhaust parts to reduce the risk of fire.

If attachments and implements are used, use those brands specifically manufactured for the model. Only use the attachments as the manufacturer intended and comply with all manufacturer recommendations.

In recent years, rural Nebraska hospitals are seeing an increase in severe ATV injuries. In 2018, The University of Nebraska Medical Center, the University of Nebraska Extension and the Nebraska Safety Center at the University of Nebraska at Kearney began presenting training sessions to adults and children in more than 50 cities across Nebraska. The training includes safety practices such as proper personal protective equipment and a demonstration with an ATV simulator on the proper way to ride.

The most common cause of agricultural-related deaths in Nebraska is ATVs and overturned tractors. In an ATV accident, the first parts of the body likely to be impacted are the head and neck. Those who survive roll-over ATV/UTV incidents may be paralyzed or sustain an injury that affects them for the remainder of their life.
