Kirksville High School graduation held

By Marty Bachman
Daily Express

Kirksville High School held its graduation ceremony on Sunday, May 21 at Spainhower Field on the Kirksville High School campus.

The event was presided over by Kirksville R-III School Superintendent Robert Webb. A performance of "Pomp and Circumstance" by the high school band opened the program followed by the National Anthem, sung by members of the Kirksville High School Chamber Choir Seniors. The Chamber Choir also performed "Goodbye to

Now." Members of the high school band followed with "Old Scottish Melody" by Charles Wiley and directed by Brad Hudson.

A recognition of honor students was overseen by Christopher Best, principal of Kirksville High School and the honor student address was given by Valedictorian Tacy Janae Ensign and Salutatorian by Anam Azim.

Best presented the Class of 2023 and Webb presented diplomas to class members.

Third Scholarship Honor went to Trinity Nicole Treasure and Fourth Honor went to Cristian Daniel Mendez.

Why we commemorate Memorial Day

The Levi Griswold Story

By Larry Evans

In the Yarrow Cemetery twelve miles southwest of Kirksville lie the remains of two young Yarrow soldiers who died in France at the Battle of Argonne Forest during World War I.

One of the men Thomas Eugene Barnett was born in 1893, and at the time he entered the service in May 1918, he was residing in Yarrow and engaged in the mercantile business with his brother. The other young man, Levi Warren Griswold, was also residing in Yarrow with his parents when he enlisted in the service and was working as a railroad section hand on the Iowa and St. Louis Railroad. He entered the service in 1917 some nine months before Barnett, and they both traveled across the Atlantic to fight in the trenches in France on the Western Front.

Both died there, one attempting to save the life of the other. Ultimately, both men's bodies were returned to their native Yarrow where they are buried in graves no more than twenty-five feet apart. Their graves are marked with identical tombstones. Their story is one of heroism and courage. Millions of other stories like it are the reason that Americans have set aside a day to recognize all deceased individuals who served our country.

Levi W. Griswold was born at Yarrow, Mo., July 19, 1892, and attended school there. After the war broke out and the United States joined the allies war effort in 1917, Griswold joined the local unit of the National Guard, inspired by his grandfather, after whom he was named and who had served on the side of the Union in the Civil War. Young Levi Griswold enlisted as a member of Company C, 4th Missouri National Guard on Aug. 5, 1917. The company was sent to Camp Doniphan, Okla. for training. In April 1918 Levi's unit was sent to France as Company C, 139th Infantry, 35th division.

Griswold was appointed corporal and later attained the rank of sergeant. In Europe he served in various sectors of the American Expeditionary Force (AEF) under command of Missouri native, General John J. Pershing, on the Western Front.

Sgt. Griswold's final engagement was during the Meuse-Argonne Campaign which was a major part of the final Allied offensive of World War I that stretched along the entire Western Front.

Kirksville/Moberly-area teens compete for state title

By Miss Missouri Scholarship Organization

MEXICO — In less than a month, a new Miss Missouri's Teen will be crowned at the Missouri Military Academy in Mexico and several area teen titleholders have their sights set on the crown. Beginning June 12, local teen titleholders from across the state of Missouri will spend a week in Mexico, competing in interview, talent, evening gown and on-stage question, and health and fitness preliminaries. On Friday, June 16, the Miss Missouri Scholarship Organization will crown a new Miss Missouri's Teen who will compete on the national stage later this summer.

Those hoping to earn the crown of Miss Missouri's Teen are:

- Miss Kansas City International Teen Allie Yoder, the daughter of Paul and Michele Yoder of Kirksville. Allie is a student at Kirksville High School. During her year as Miss Kansas City International Teen, Allie has advocated for her service initiative of: "The Power of You". "Every person is faced with an individualized experience that shakes their confidence, second guessing their abilities or stepping away from something they are passionate about due to low self-esteem," she explained. "The Power of You combats this growing epidemic across society by teaching goal setting and ways of feeling confident in our own skin."

Allie's title covers the Kansas City metropolitan area.

- Miss Kansas City's Teen Camryn Crist, the daughter of Matt and Shannon Crist of Moberly. Camryn is a student at Moberly Senior High School. During her year as Miss Kansas City's Teen, Camryn has promoted her social impact initiative, "#CheckYes4Life".

"I focus on encouraging those around me to become organ donors and educating all about organ donation," she explained.

Camryn's title covers the Kansas City area.

The organization's reigning Miss Missouri's Teen is Mallory Sublette of Palmyra. Using her scholarships as a state titleholder, Mallory will graduate from Palmyra High School later this month and continue her academic journey at the University of Alabama. Mallory is the daughter of Brandon and Jessica Sublette of Palmyra.

The Miss Missouri Scholarship Organization is one of the largest providers of scholarships to young women in the state. This year, the organization will award more than $85,000 in scholarships between the Miss Missouri and Outstanding Teen programs.

Camryn Crist

Tickets for the Miss Missouri and Miss Missouri's Outstanding Teen Pageants are available through the Mexico Area Chamber of Commerce, located at 100 West Jackson Street or by calling 573-581-2765.

Missouri Library Association's Intellectual Freedom Committee chair speaks in Kirksville

By Marty Bachman
Daily Express

Colleen Norman, chair of the Missouri Library Association's Intellectual Freedom committee, spoke to members of the Adair County Democratic Club and members of the public at the Rieger Armory on May 18. Norman spoke about Missouri legislation regarding book banning, library funding, and freedom of intellectual information. Throughout its history, the Missouri Library Association has strived to support Missouri libraries as they pursue their missions and work to accomplish the goals for intellectual freedom established by the American Library Association. The Missouri Library Association is dedicated to supporting the development of libraries and library employees in the state of Missouri.

HOME COUNTRY:

Heaven comes in small doses

Steve looked out from the turret of his cabin and watched the sun set behind the mountain. Branding is over for the spring, and he was able to get away from the ranch for a few days, so here he was, in his private castle, sipping private coffee, looking down at his private horse eating hay in his private corral.

For a man who has spent most of his life in someone else's bunkhouse, a suite at the Ritz couldn't be more wonderful than this little hole-up spot in the mountains.

He slid open one of the turret windows and let the warm breeze of early summer caress his magnificent mustache. "That does it!" he said.

He closed the window, climbed down the ladder and went out to saddle Ol' Snort. In a few minutes the two of them were heading along a little trail near Thompson Ridge, feeling the warm breeze, wondering how many more of these evenings they would share. Steve and Snort were both getting years on them, but they have this evening. They have this ride. They are together now.

And it was like taking a dry bath in paradise.

Steve reached down and patted Snort on the neck. "You know, O.S.," Steve said, "can you think of a luckier man/horse combination than us? I can't. Not right at the moment, anyway."

Snort was used to listening to Steve, but blissfully he wasn't required to do anything but walk along this mountain trail enjoying the evening.

"What do you think, old boy?"

Ol' Snort reached his head out and blew his nose.

"I knew you felt the same way," said Steve, smiling.

ROBIN WRITES:

Remember

As soon as my brothers climbed onto the school bus that Friday morning in May, I put on my pink sneakers and tied the laces. The bows looked like floppy rabbit ears, just the way they should. It was time for Mom and me to take our weekly walk to Kroger.

"Here we go. C'mon!" she called in a voice that made my insides yell HOORAY!

She strode down the road fast enough to make me hurry, but slowly enough to keep me safe. I watched the hem of her dress swish against the backs of her knees and marveled at the rhythm and pace of her steps:

Kro-ger. Kro-ger. HERE-we-go. HERE-we-go.

I skipped along behind her to the song of her walk, trying to keep my body in the shadow of hers.

Kroger was a wonderland of women and wares. Our cart clu-clunked down the narrow aisles as its squeaky wheels squeaked across dingy squares of once-white linoleum.

Mom had a list to follow. She read out the items as we walked, and I ran ahead to find each one. At the checkout, the cashier called out prices and filled the empty spaces between numbers with friendly conversation.

I stood quietly next to Mom to hear her talk and laugh. But I was looking out the huge front window of the store.

A grandma-aged woman stood near the glass. She wore a pale blue dress that stretched tightly over her body and made red lines around her wobbly upper arms. She was holding a shiny yellow pail. The plastic glistened in the sunshine as she moved her body from side to side, looking this way and that.

There was something inside that bucket. I knew, because she kept reaching in, tickling around with meaty fingers. Her touch seemed gentle and I thought the contents must be breakable.

By the time mom finished her visit with the cashier lady, my legs were itching to fly out onto the sidewalk.

ROBIN GARRISON LEACH
COLUMNIST

The pail lady leaped in front of us with a massive jiggle of flesh and a florid grin.

She reached inside the bucket, stirred the contents around like stew, and pinched two yellowed nails against a short green wire. She tugged daintily, and with the flourish of a magician — PRESTO — a red paper flower appeared in her sweaty, weathered hand.

I didn't see a price on the flower. Maybe that was what was on the paper strip along the stem. Mom only had so much money and she had probably used it all at Kroger.

"It's a gift. For you, Robin", mom whispered. I reached up to take the flower from the Poppy Lady and heard coins jingling in mom's hand. She dropped them into the pail. They chinked against each other as they parted the flowers and fell to the bottom.

Mom and I headed back toward home. I held the red poppy tenderly with my free hand and twirled it between my fingers like a tiny umbrella.

"Why did you get me this?" I asked. Mom said it was just for me, but who was it from? I saw mom's shadow stop moving and it got shorter as she bent down to speak softly in my ear.

"This is a special flower. It will help you remember how much you're loved by people you'll meet in Heaven someday. It's for Memorial Day. That means "REMEMBER".

I held that flower close to my face, studying the tiny lines and colors of the crepe paper. I waved my poppy toward Heaven, a salute of gratitude to those waiting there.

And every Memorial Day, for the rest of my life, I buy a poppy. I wave it Heavenward with a depth of love that grows with each passing year.

LETTER:

Community Opportunity needs your help

Rumors that the Sheltered Workshop will be closing have been circulating in Kirksville for the past few months. If solutions for current financial circumstances are not soon found, it appears that the rumors could be a reality.

The Rollins Sheltered Workshop, more recently referred to as Community Opportunities, Inc. (COI) and known as The Sheltered Workshop, located at 1001 S. Osteopathy Avenue, has, for 54 years, provided a safe working environment and meaningful, appropriate employment for many individuals with developmental disabilities. Currently 47 disabled men and women are employed by The Workshop. Throughout its existence, The Workshop has provided employment, a paycheck, opportunity for socialization, and boosted self-esteem.

For many years The Workshop has remained financially viable through the income generated by contracted services, being an agency of United Way, private donations, and agency fundings. In April 2005, the voters of Adair County voted to obligate themselves for a tax levy providing funds to "establish, improve, (and) (or) maintain a sheltered workshop (and) (or) residence facility (and) (or) related services for developmentally disabled and handicapped persons..." which was known as Senate Bill 40 (SB40). Since the inception of the SB40 Bill, part of The Workshop funding has come from grants from

SB40 funds, generated by "a levy tax of 15 cents per each $100 valuation." (Consult your tax statement to see how much real estate tax you are paying for SB40.)

Today's uncertainties have taken their toll. With extensive use of automated labor methods eliminating many repetitive, assembly line jobs, these types of contracts are no longer available to The Workshop. Uncontrollable inflation, instability in service market prices, and business fallout from the Covid-19 pandemic have contributed to the drying up and stretching to the limit of financial resources.

Despite the gloom, The Workshop employees continue to show up for work providing recycle service for cardboard, paper, plastic, aluminum and cans. They also provide a drop off for glass for the entire city of Kirksville. Today's recyclable prices are unstable but are improving. In addition to recycling, Workshop participants provide a car detailing service for the public by appointment, some janitorial services, E-Waste reclaiming, and limited contracted services.

The Workshop employees participate in appropriate, meaningful job assignments. Some perform their services in a "sheltered" environment while others work in a mainstream situation. All Workshop participants require the supervision of paid staff, another significant expense.

The extremely important SB40 grant funds, which have been so helpful, have apparently come to an end. The SB40 Board appears to have the authority to determine whether agencies or individuals meet the requirements to receive the benefits of SB40 tax funds. That board has determined that COI does not.

The dedicated Workshop supervisory personnel and Workshop board members are diligently working to maintain the employment services for the disabled workers who have depended upon it for over 50 years. We encourage the community to support Community Opportunities by bringing recyclables to The Workshop, by scheduling a car detailing session, by using any other service COI provides, and by making monetary donations to this 501(c3) workshop.

Thank you, Community Opportunities, Inc. Board

Too many veterans are battling substance use disorders

On Memorial Day, millions of American families will take time to honor the memory of the men and women who lost their lives while serving in the U.S. military.

Outside of this day, we must never forget the countless veterans who lost their lives to suicide, substance use, mental health disorders, or the millions struggling after returning home. Too many veterans battle addiction and mental health issues in silence.

In Missouri, there are over 400,000 veterans, the vast majority being wartime veterans. The National Survey on Drug Use and Health reports over 3.9 million veterans have a substance use disorder or mental illness. Substance use disorders significantly increase suicidality among veterans ages

Judith Jane (Updyke) Albin

Jan 4, 1943 – May 12, 2023

Judith Jane (Updyke) Albin, 80, of Kirksville, Missouri passed away Friday, May 12, 2023, at Northeast Regional Medical Center in Kirksville.

Born January 4, 1943, in Kirksville, Missouri, Judy was the daughter of the late James William (J.W.) Updyke and Wilma Jean Updyke. On August 12, 1985, in Las Vegas, NV Judy was united in marriage to Ralph Albin who preceded her in death on August 21, 2006. She was also preceded in death by one brother, William Updyke.

Judy is survived by one son, Cole Goemmel of Hope, KS, one granddaughter, Paisley Goemmel of Jacksonville, NC, two cousins Gaylene Jacobs and Pat Pulis both of Kirksville, MO. Judy claimed two other children as her own. Steven Hite of Columbia, MO and Heather Hoang of Kirksville, MO. She also claimed Cooper Hudnut of Mission, KS, Chelsea Phan, Andrew Phan, and Chantel Phan of Kirksville, MO as her own grandchildren.

Judy resided most of her life in Kirksville. She attended Adair County Schools and went on to receive her Associates of Arts Degree at Christian (Columbia) College in Columbia, MO and then went on to receive her B.S. in Social Studies at Truman State University. Judy devoted her life to service and leadership. She was a teacher before moving on to becoming a fee agent at the Kirksville License Office. Judy was an active member in the democratic party, enjoyed traveling, shopping with her granddaughter, socializing with friends and family at local restaurants, the Moose Lodge, and El Kadir Shrine Club. More than anything, she enjoyed giving to others whether it be volunteering her time or gifting items.

A private graveside service was attended by family and close friends. In lieu of flowers, a memorial has been established for the continuing education of her grandson, Andrew. The family asks that you make checks payable to Andrew Phan and mail to Travis Noe Funeral Home at P.O. Box 306, Kirksville, MO 63501.

Poppy: The flower that honors fallen warriors

By University of Missouri Extension

COLUMBIA — “In Flanders fields the poppies blow / Between the crosses, row on row ...” So begins “In Flanders Fields,” written in 1915 by John McCrae, a Canadian poet and military physician.

“The hauntingly eloquent words of McCrae helped to immortalize poppy as one of the most recognized symbols honoring soldiers who died in combat,” said University of Missouri Extension horticulturist David Trinklein.

The poppy referred to by McCrae is known today as the corn poppy or Flanders poppy (Papaver rhoeas), a common flower native to Europe, Trinklein says. Its seeds often lie dormant for years and spring to life when the soil is disturbed. This happened in European cemeteries used to bury fallen soldiers of World War I, which is one reason the plant is associated with those who have died in combat.

Poppies belong to the Papaveraceae family, which contains 30 genera and about 600 species. Most are cold-tolerant and prefer relatively cool summers. Among the annual poppies, in addition to Flanders poppy, is the notorious opium poppy (Papaver somniferum). Although its flowers are quite beautiful, growing the opium poppy is illegal in Missouri, noted Trinklein.

The Iceland poppy and Oriental poppy are two of the most familiar perennial types. The latter has the distinction of being the most popular garden poppy. Its large, spectacular orange-red flowers are 3 1/2-4 inches in diameter and have petals with a crepe-paper texture. Borne singly on wiry stems, the flowers wave well above the low-growing, sharply toothed foliage. Leaves and broken stems yield a milky white sap.

Like most poppies, the Oriental poppy is not suited for extremely hot weather and usually goes dormant in summer, Trinklein said. In Missouri, it flowers in the spring, usually April, and seemingly disappears from the landscape by July due to heat.

Oriental poppy prefers well-drained soil and a sunny exposure. Do not overwater during its dormant period, which often extends throughout the winter. Plant with other species of annuals and perennials that will provide color in the area once the poppies go dormant. You can start Oriental poppy from seeds, but it will not flower until the second or third year. In addition to red-orange, flower colors include rose, salmon, pink and white.

Iceland poppy (Papaver nudicaule) prefers cool climates and tends to be short-lived in Missouri. Because of this, Missouri gardeners probably should treat it as an annual or biennial.

It has colorful and distinctive flowers. Some of the more durable varieties, such as “Champagne Bubbles,” are rewarding even though their bloom period is brief, said Trinklein.

“If annual poppies interest you, then Shirley poppy is hard to beat,” he said. “Shirley” refers to any named cultivar of Papaver rhoeas. Some cultivars are quite colorful and have flowers likened in texture to tissue paper. They are easy to grow from seed.

Poppies generally do not transplant well, so directly seed annual types into the garden. If started indoors, plant in a cool location in peat pots or other biodegradable containers that can go in the ground with the plant. This reduces root disturbance and increases the chances of transplant success. Poppies tend to reseed themselves readily and can become a weed in the annual flower garden. To prevent this, simply remove seed pods before they mature and shed seed.

Another type of poppy treated as an annual in Missouri is derived from the opium poppy but is legal to grow in our state. Peony-flowered poppy (Papaver somniferum var. paeniflorum) bears spectacular, fully double flowers up to 5 inches in diameter with lacy, tightly packed petals. It comes in shades of red, pink, purple and white and requires the same care as Shirley poppy.

“There is no simple answer as to why veterans become addicted to drugs or alcohol, but there are numerous causative factors,” said Michael Leach of Addicted.org.

Many factors lead to substance use and mental health disorders within the veteran community. Many veterans struggle to adjust to civilian life. They may experience financial hardships, difficulty finding employment or opportunities, and accessing benefits.

Many other veterans experience mental and emotional health concerns, physical injury, or chronic pain. Untreated trauma can quickly develop into mental health issues or addiction. Illegal drugs, alcohol, and prescription drugs are used as a means to cope.

Veterans also face barriers when accessing supportive services. This can include cost and health insurance gaps. Stigma regarding addiction and mental illness is still common. Veterans in rural communities have limited access, and many communities have inadequate funding.

It takes families and communities to come together to help veterans.

Outside of the usual U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs resources, other options include:

The Official Missouri State Website provides numerous resources and information for veterans and their families;

The Missouri Department of Public Safety Veterans Commission provides a Service Officer Locator;

Helpful hotlines include the Veterans Crisis Line, 1-800-273-8255, and the Lifeline for Vets, 1-888-777-4443;

SAMHSA provides a treatment facility locator where veterans can find specific programs for substance use and mental health disorders;

Families exploring financial options can consider combining VA benefits with other forms of health insurance such as Medicaid, Medicare, or private health insurance.

Families play a significant role in supporting their loved ones. When speaking to them about their substance use, do so openly and honestly, express concern, but refrain from passing judgment. Help them find treatment. Be patient and show compassion. Remember, these are treatable problems.

Memorial Day is a time to remember. But the following day and every day after that, we must not lose sight of the veterans who made it home and need a helping hand. A single act of compassion can save a life.

Veronica Raussin is a Community Outreach Coordinator for Addicted.org, passionate about spreading awareness of the risks and dangers of alcohol & drug use.

EMBRACING LOCAL HISTORY: PART 52 –

The brutal murder of Isaac Ebey

By Blytha Ellis, President,
Adair County Historical Society and Museum

On the hot summer night of August 11, 1857, the occupants of a huge curved canoe docked at Ebey's Landing on Whidbey Island in the Washington Territory. They climbed the steep cliff from the shore to the home of Colonel Ebey, the first Sheriff of Adair County, Mo. The whole household was awakened between midnight and 1:00 a.m. by the urgent barking of their dog.

Just a few days earlier, this same canoe had docked at Kellogg's Point on Whidbey Island asking for the "medicine man," Dr. John Coe Kellogg (1820-1902), another pioneer of the area like Colonel Ebey. But, Dr. Kellogg had been called away for several days as a witness in a court case. The visitors had stayed three days waiting for the doctor's return, then gave up and paddled down the shore a few miles to Ebey's Landing. They had learned that an "hias tyee" (a chief, boss or leader) lived there and that he (Colonel Ebey) was an important man upon whom they could carry out revenge.

In the Ebey home that night were Colonel Ebey and his wife, Emily; his two sons, Eason, 13, and Ellison, 11; and Emily's daughter, Anna Sconce, 8. They also had two house guests, U.S. Marshal George W. Corliss and his wife, Lucretia, staying there to attend several days of court trials for which Colonel Ebey was a prosecutor.

After hearing the barking of his dog, Isaac suspected that Northwest Indians, who had caused trouble in the past, might be approaching. Emily had washed clothes that day, and they were hanging outside. Isaac told his wife that the intruders might steal the laundry, so they better bring the clothes in. Oh, if they had only known, the situation would be much worse than stolen laundry!

Isaac went out in the yard first, toward the laundry, and Emily made it to the back porch when they saw Indians approaching. Isaac had always been kind to the Indians and was able to talk reasonably with them, so he had no fear. He asked what they wanted. No one heard what they replied.

Suddenly, two guns were discharged! Emily ran back into the house and to a side window with the other household members behind her. In the darkness, she saw her husband run around the corner of the house. One hand was at his head and the other hand seemed to be motioning. She quickly opened the window and yelled at him to jump into the house through the window, but he did not appear to hear nor understand her. Others thought he was motioning for them to get out of the house. Later, the family realized the Colonel was running dazed or stunned because he had been shot and was probably flaying his one arm in pain. [Actually, he had been shot in the arm and hand, breaking the left arm.]

Then, they saw the Colonel turn and stumble back the other way when two more shots rang out. They assumed he ran into other hostile natives at the other end of the house, so he turned back. He would fall at the edge of the porch.

By this time, intruders were entering the home and pounding down doors. The family went into sheer panic! They were entirely defenseless as the Colonel kept no firearms in the house. Mrs. Corliss was the first to leap from the window that the Colonel had just passed, followed by others. As they ran from the home, they heard bullets whiz by them. They were not hit but were terrified.

Emily grabbed a blanket for her 8-year-old daughter as they jumped out the window. She could hear the sounds of her dishes being broken in the kitchen.

Marshal Corliss was "holding fast the door" of the room in which all the family had been gathered. Seeing that all the women and children had escaped the house, the Marshal turned loose of the door and dove for the window himself. He grabbed the arm of the child, Anna, and made a "quick flight" with the rest of the family into the woods, "a distance of about 50 rods [825 feet]." They all huddled together in the woods in mortal fear under the blanket that Emily had grabbed. They did not know until the next day where Mrs. Corliss had gone, only that she was not with them. And, they did not know Isaac's fate until family found them in the woods the next morning. Mrs. Corliss had turned toward the road instead of the woods, and she was able to reach a neighbor's home. From there, an alarm was spread throughout the countryside that hostile Indians had attacked the Ebey home.

The Indians quickly plundered the Ebey home, then escaped to the shore. By the time anyone could follow, their canoe was out of sight in the fog. No one ever specifically identified the culprits. However, much later, the Kake Indian Tribe of the Northwest claimed responsibility.

The people at the home of Colonel Ebey's parents, up the hill, were awakened by neighbors and ran to the nearby block house for safety. In this group were Isaac's parents; his young invalid daughter, Hettie; his deaf sister, Ruth; his sister and brother-in-law, Mary and Urban Bozarth; Mary's two children, Almira and Polk; a hired hand; and Isaac's brother, Winfield.

Winfield and some other men took guns and headed for the Colonel's house. However, they were met by three other men who had just been at the house. They informed Winfield that his brother, Isaac, "lay a headless corpse in his yard." Due to the gruesomeness of the scene, these men would not let Winfield go to the house and see his brother. These three men, who had apparently been the first to find the body of Colonel Ebey, realized that the Indians had beheaded the Colonel and had taken his head as a trophy. They remembered hearing that the Northern Indians had promised revenge on the settlers for the earlier conflict at Port Gamble (mentioned in our last episode) where several Indians had been killed. The next day when Winfield was finally allowed to go to his brother's home, he found the headless body still near the porch and he mourned severely. Beside the body lay the ax which he said his brother had sharpened just the day before, and it had been used to sever his head.

Winfield's diary gives a long, detailed description of what he witnessed and a tribute to Isaac. Winfield prepared him for burial, and a member of the Crockett family made his coffin. He was buried beside his wife, Rebecca. The Ebey cemetery is located on Jacob Ebey's land on Whidbey Island, and was named Sunnyside Cemetery by Mary (Ebey) Bozarth, the same name as her father's farm.

Colonel Ebey was only 39 years old when his life was brutally snatched from him, but the man who had started his public career in Adair County, Missouri, had accomplished much in his short lifetime. He had become widely known and well respected during his nine years in the Pacific Northwest. Word of his savage death was spread far and wide. Winfield wrote that people came from all directions for miles to confirm that what they had heard was true and to express their condolences.

Winfield lamented in his journal, "My noble, high-minded brother is no more."

A $100,000 fire that broke out in the kitchen of the Willard Hotel destroyed the hotel, the C. S. Robinson Mercantile, and C. E. Bleakley's grocery store on the west side of the Kirksville square. In addition, the R. Clark Hardware Store sustained thousands of dollars in damages and the loss of a large amount of hardware. If it had not been for the hard work of the Kirksville Fire Department and the fortunate change in the direction of the wind, the entire west side of the Kirksville square would have been destroyed. Twenty-five persons in the hotel building had narrow escapes from death, many of them getting out with only their night apparel. Three guests were carried out by John Hammond, manager of the hotel. The Willard Hotel building was built in 1876 by W. H. Parcels and was known as the "Parcels House." Dr. A. P. Willard owned the hotel building. The hotel was located at the north end of the west side of the square.

Dr. Ezra Grim, who was previously commissioned a captain in the U. S. Army Medical Corps, received instructions to report to the Presbyterian Hospital in Chicago for a special course of instruction preparatory for his service in World War I. From there he would proceed to a base hospital. He was in the process of winding up his business affairs for an indefinite absence. As it turned out Dr. Ezra Grim served in France in 1918. He previously graduated from Missouri Medical College in St. Louis (now Washington University School of Medicine) in 1901. After an internship, he returned to Kirksville and joined his brother, Dr. Edward Grim, in a medical practice. They eventually established Grim Hospital and later with the addition of Dr. Sanborn Smith, it became Grim-Smith Hospital. See the article in the April 2023 issue of the Adair Historian by Debi Boughton, "The Early Years of Grim-Smith Hospital," for a detailed account of the Grim brothers and the founding of their hospital. Above is a picture of Dr. Edward A. Grim (1867-1936) and his brother, Dr. Ezra C. Grim (1874-1943) who had the Grim Hospital constructed in 1910 at 112 E. Patterson Street.

The George A. Still Building at the American School of Osteopathy was dedicated. The dedicatory address was delivered by a classmate and colleague of the late Dr. Still, Dr. George W. Goode, who was the president of the American Osteopathic Association. The building was dedicated in memory of Dr. George A. Still, who was accidentally killed by a gunshot wound on November 23, 1922. Still was a nationally known osteopathic surgeon and physician and president of the American School of Osteopathy. The dedication was held in the auditorium of the building named in his honor.

Plans for the new Citizens National Bank building were made public by the Kirksville architect Irwin Dunbar. According to Dunbar, the building would be one of the most beautiful business houses in the city. The new bank building was to be located on the site of the existing bank structure, and the first step was to remove the old building. The new building was to be two stories to correspond with the existing building, the lower floor to be occupied by the bank, and the upper floor to be reserved for office space. The entire outside of the building was made of white marble with projecting columns of the Ionic style of architecture. The entrance to the bank was on the northeast corner of the building with a side door to the board room on the east. The floor of the lobby was constructed of marble blocks. The large vault would be placed in the rear of the banking area. Heat for the building was provided by the city heat supply, and to give more room the radiators were being placed in recessed spaces under the windows.

They would be hidden by bronze grills. Occupancy of the new facility was planned for the following October. The building is now the home of Pagliai's Pizza.

70 Years Ago, May 24, 1953

Don Hartsell, age 40, proprietor of the Hartsell Supper Club and the Corral Drive-In was killed instantly in an automobile accident a mile south of Lovilia, Iowa. Hartsell was alone in his 1952 Roadmaster driving about 80 miles an hour. He lost control on a curve and hit the rear of a truck, knocking out the truck's real axle. No wallet or identification was found on Hartsell's body, but his identification was confirmed by family members. The Hartsell family came to Kirksville from Marshalltown, Iowa, and opened the Pigstand near the north city limits on Highway 63. They sold the business and later opened Hartsell's Supper Club on Highway 6. They later opened the Corral Drive-In on Highway 63.

45 Years Ago, May 22, 1978

Four Iowa residents were killed when the car one of the Iowa victims was driving failed to stop at the intersection of old Highway 6 and new Highway 6 two miles west of Kirksville. The accident occurred at 1:15 a.m. when the Iowa vehicle pulled into the front of an east-bound tractor trailer unit driven by Raymond A. Violette of Edina. The Iowa car was struck broadside by the tractor trailer, and the front of the car was sheared off by the impact. Two additional passengers in the car survived the collision and were admitted to a Kirksville hospital in critical condition. Violette, driver of the tractor trailer, his wife and two children, who were passengers, escaped serious injuries.

The offensive began Sept. 26, 1918, and lasted until the armistice was signed on Nov. 11, 1918, a total of 47 days. During this offensive at the Battle of Argonne Forest (Argonne, France) on Sept. 29, 1918, only four days into the battle, Sgt. Griswold made the heroic effort to save the life of a fellow soldier and his Yarrow childhood neighbor—Cpl. Thomas E. Barnett. The act cost Griswold his life and sadly, Barnett died just eight days later, Oct. 7, 1918, in Hericourt, France, of pneumonia.

Leona (Griswold) Tharp, who is the second cousin of Levi Griswold told the story of Levi's death. Leona's father, Frank Griswold and Levi Griswold were first cousins. Leona and her siblings—there were 10 children in her family—were told the story each time they visited the Yarrow Cemetery. She related the story as she remembers it, quoted below in italics.

Levi was serving in France during World War I when they came under heavy fire from the German troops. Levi saw that the Barnett boy could not get to cover, so Levi ran out into the machine gun fire and carried Barnett to safety. In doing so, Levi saved Barnett but was mortally wounded himself and died that day on the battlefield at Argonne. Barnett's parents were always grateful for what Levi had done. We were told that Levi was a Kirksville hero and was posthumously awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for his valor. We were encouraged to always be proud of his actions that day.

On a side note: When I was in grade school my teacher took us on a field trip to Memorial Park in Kirksville. My class was all gathered around the obelisk honoring Kirksville soldiers who died in World War I. As I looked up at all the names, I saw Levi W. Griswold near the top and I was proud to tell my class Levi's story and how proud of him I was for his sacrifice. I believe that the obelisk has since been moved to a location near the wall of names from other wars on North Baltimore Street.

The obelisk memorial in Veteran's Park near the radio station was originally located in Memorial Park. It lists the names of Adair County's World War I dead.

In August 1919, Levi Griswold's mother was notified that her son was to receive the Distinguished Service Cross (DSC) posthumously. This distinction is the nation's second highest military decoration reserved for soldiers who display extraordinary heroism in combat with an armed enemy force. It is exceeded in military stature only by the Congressional Medal of Honor.

The presentation of the Distinguished Service Cross took place on Nov. 22, 1919. According to the Kirksville Daily Express, Nov. 22, 1919, between three and four thousand people gathered on the square in downtown Kirksville that afternoon to witness the presentation of the Distinguished Service Cross to three individuals for their heroism for service in World War I. Levi W. Griswold was one of the three to receive the honor. It was presented posthumously to his mother, Mrs. Alice McAninch of Yarrow.

According to the newspaper account, members of the American Legion gathered in front of the post office from where they marched to the east side of the square where the crowd had gathered. The Kirksville band and the Porter Junior band played several numbers which was followed by Lt. Col. James E. Rieger introducing Col. Parker, of St. Louis, who presented the Distinguished Service Cross. Rieger began his introduction; "We are gathered here today to see three persons from Adair County receive the distinguished decoration of a reward for the valor on the field of action. With regret, however, do we mention the fact that one of these men died on the field in honor, but his mother is with us today and will receive the decoration." The other two men receiving the Distinguished Service Cross were Capt. John Dale Heiny and Lt. Ben Turner.

Another son of Mrs. McAninch, Cpl. George H. Thompson, also a volunteer in Company C, was gassed and wounded by shrapnel on the same day that her son, Levi Griswold died. The two men were half-brothers. Thompson fully recovered from his wounds.

When Levi Griswold's body was returned to the United States in the summer of 1920, a funeral service with full military honors was conducted by McDougall-Lowe Post at the Yarrow Church. Burial followed in the churchyard cemetery.

The inscription on Griswold's tombstone in Yarrow Cemetery reads: "In Honor of Sgt. Levi W. Griswold, July 19, 1892-September 29, 1918, Died in Battle of Argonne, Awarded D.S.C. for bravery, Gone but Not Forgotten, GRISWOLD."

The grave site is located south of the church and in the first row along the road on the west side of the cemetery. It is located just a few graves from Thomas E. Barnett, the young Yarrow soldier whose life Griswold attempted to save.

Barnett's tombstone reads: "In Honor of Corp. Thomas E. Barnett, Apr. 18, 1893-Oct. 7, 1918, Died in France in Service of His Country, BARNETT."

His body was returned to the United States. A funeral service with military honors was held May 30, 1921, in the Yarrow Church, and burial was in Yarrow Cemetery nearly three years after his death.

The sacrifice Griswold and Barnett made for their country is a testament as to why we commemorate Memorial Day or Decoration Day, as it was originally known, is a federal holiday for honoring and mourning the U. S. military personnel who have served in the United States armed forces. From 1868 until 1970 it was observed on May 30. The month of May seemed an appropriate time of the year since many varieties of flowers are in bloom, and fresh flowers were commonly strewn on the graves of the war dead.

Decoration Day was first observed on local levels at the close of the Civil War to honor and remember the war dead. By 1890, every state in the Union observed Decoration Day. After gradually gaining national stature, the day was recognized by Congress in 1971 as a national holiday observed on the last Monday in May.

A special thank you to Leona (Griswold) Tharp for providing information for this article. Additional information and the photograph of Levi Griswold came from the files at the Adair County Historical Society\Museum, various issues of the Kirksville Daily Express, and other Adair County newspapers. Other photographs were provided by the author.

Edmondson is the May 2023 Adair County SB40 Spotlight Award recipient

By Adair County SB40

Adair County SB40 announced that Jamie Edmondson is the May 2023 Spotlight Award recipient. Edmondson was nominated by Kim Baker of Chariton Valley Association/CHS for her long-time employment with Sodexo at Truman State University.

Baker said, "Jamie is a rockstar employee! She is trained in all areas of the Student Union Building dining services, works independently and is valued by her coworkers, and supervisors as a dependable, hard-working employee. She always shows up on time, comes in early, picks up open shifts and is a great team player. Her coworkers and students at the SUB always look forward to seeing her smiling face!"

"Congratulations Jamie!" officials at SB40 wrote in a press release. "Thank you for all that you do to make our community a better place for everyone!!"

If you would like to nominate a great candidate for a monthly Spotlight Award, Adair County SB40 is accepting nominations. Anyone can make a nomination. Nominations can be made in any of the four following categories:

- Kids Inclusion Spotlight Award for children in kindergarten — 8th grade
- Youth Leadership Spotlight Award for youth in grades 9-12

Jamie Edmondson

Community Volunteer Spotlight Award (any age)

Entrepreneur or Employee Spotlight Award (any age)

In March 2024, Spotlight Award of the Year winners will be selected from all of the monthly winners. Nominations can be made throughout the year by visiting the Adair County SB40 website or by contacting a SB40 staff member to assist you at (660) 665-9400. You can also find more information about the four nomination categories by visiting Adair County SB40's website, <https://www.sb40life.org/>.

Summer Work Program for students entering their junior and senior year in the fall of 2023

By Chariton Valley Center for Home Services

Chariton Valley/Center for Home Services is offering a Summer Work Program for students entering their junior and senior year in the fall of 2023. The four work sites are Kirksville Country Club, Kirksville Parks and Recreation, the YMCA, and Thousand Hills State Park.

The program is through Vocational Rehabilitation with Chariton Valley Association (CVA) and Center for Human Services. Students who are eligible would have an IEP, 504, documented medical condition and English as second language. The students must be legal U.S. residents and legally able to work. The sites will provide a variety of soft skills and hard skills for learning about work and the skills needed.

The students will earn $12 an hour and the dates are June 5 to July 14 for six weeks, 20 hours a week. The contact person can be reached at ssevey@chs-mo.org.

They are looking for qualifying students to participate in this innovative program. The missions of both organizations is to align by striving to make an impact in the lives of people with developmental disabilities and supporting job employment through Vocational Rehabilitation and Department of Mental Health. Together, both companies serve over 10,000 children, families and individuals across 47 counties.

Vulgar comment to woman makes waves at pool hall

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I play on a pool team. About a year ago, the team captain looked at my wife and said, "So, can I play with your lower private area?" (He didn't use those words.) My wife, who is very shy, was shocked. He has made dumb comments before, and I've warned him several times. This time when I told him, he was dumb enough to invite me outside. I slapped him around a bit. We are both big guys. I'm 6-foot-4, 300 pounds. He's as tall, maybe a few pounds lighter. Now the members of the league here have shunned my wife and me. Was I wrong? Should I have let that guy talk to my wife like that? -- SECOND-GUESSING IN THE SOUTH

DEAR SECOND-GUESSING: Violence is never the answer. You and your wife should have left as soon as those words were uttered. As for the rest of the league shunning you, I think it's in my duty as a parent to teach her the values my parents instilled in me. Maybe, since I'm sad for the loss of my friend, I took what she said wrong. Any advice on how I should approach this with my daughter would be greatly appreciated. -- FEELING LIKE A FAILURE

DEAR FEELING: Your daughter appears to lack any sense of empathy. What she said was unkind and dismissive. She may be self-centered, or was annoyed with you or about something else going on in her life when she said it. You have every right to tell her how her comment affected you at a time when you were feeling vulnerable. But don't blame yourself for your daughter's insensitivity. That's on her, not you.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD...

Weird Science

Spring weather can be unpredictable, but a man in Ankara, Turkey, got an up-close glimpse of exactly what intense winds can do on May 17, Metro News reported. As Onur Kalmaz looked out his window, trying to check on his car during the storm, he captured on video a sofa flying from a balcony of a 35-story block of apartments nearby. Kalmaz said the sofa crashed into other buildings before falling to the ground. "No one was hurt, but we were pretty scared," he said.

The Happiest Place on Earth

Two families went at each other on May 15 at Walt Disney World's Magic Kingdom, Fox35-TV reported -- all over who could stand next to a sign commemorating the 100th anniversary of the Disney Co. According to police, one family was standing in front of the sign when another group wanted to snap a photo. When the second group asked the first to step aside, punches were thrown. At least one person was treated for injuries at the site, but they didn't want to press charges. Two people were removed from the park.

The Entrepreneurial Spirit

When a 36-year-old woman in Providence, Rhode Island, couldn't afford conventional dental care for her painful teeth, a friend recommended "Yorki," WPRI-TV reported on May 18. The woman contacted Altagrafia Yorquis Adames, 57, and went to her home basement "dental practice." There, Yorki allegedly removed instruments from a dresser drawer -- some that were visibly rusty -- then numbed the victim's molar and pulled on it until it came out. She then numbed and drilled on the patient's front teeth. Later that night, when her pain worsened, she texted with Yorki, who told her to take painkillers and ice her mouth. The next day, the victim checked into a hospital and was told she was "very sick." Police said Yorki was a licensed dentist in the Dominican Republic but not licensed in Rhode Island; she is due back in court in August.

Putnam County falls 4-0 to Salisbury in state quarterfinals

By Adam Tumino
Daily Express

The Putnam County baseball season came to an end Wednesday with a loss to Salisbury in the state quarterfinals, marking the second-straight season where the Midgets fell in the quarterfinal round. This year it was a 4-0 loss that brought the season to the end.

Putnam County finished the season with a 21-8 record, the latest in a string of seven-straight winning seasons. Salisbury improved to 23-1 on the season and has won 23 consecutive games heading into the semifinals next week.

The game on Wednesday was mostly close, especially until Salisbury added a pair of insurance runs in the bottom of the sixth inning. Putnam County had some chances to score, especially early, but were unable to take advantage of those chances.

Putnam County head coach Blane Robinson said he was proud of how his team approached the entire season and managed to leave it all on the field against likely the toughest opponent they faced all year.

"I love the way they stepped up there," he said. "A lot of people wrote us off last year after graduating seven seniors, but I love their hard work and the way they approached every day ready to work. Good attitude, good effort kids that are always willing to step up to a challenge. We played a Salisbury team to a 4-0 ballgame, went toe-to-toe with one of the best, so I'm really proud of them. I let them know that if they ever need anything I'm going to be here for them, and hopefully they decide to move back to Putnam County and coach their kids one day."

The two teams were even for the first two and a half innings, with Putnam County playing as the road team despite being on their home field. Neither team threatened in the first inning, but Putnam County quickly got something started in the top of the second.

After a Vincent Jones single to lead off the inning, Salisbury's defense failed to catch a pair of foul popups, leading to a walk that put two runners on base for the Midgets. A botched pickoff attempt put the runners and second and third with no outs.

A flyout followed, not carrying deep enough to allow the runner on third to tag and score. A ground ball then hit a Putnam County baserunner, leading to the second out of the inning and keeping a run off the board. A strikeout ended both the inning and the best scoring chance Putnam County would have all game.

The game remained scoreless until the bottom of the third. With Jones on the mound for Putnam County, Salisbury had runners on first and second with no outs. A flyout and field-er's choice put the Midgets an out away from escaping with no damage. Instead, the Panthers scored two runs on a double from Eli Jackson. No more damage was done in the inning.

Putnam County managed just one more hit, an infield single, against Salisbury pitcher Ethan Hamilton for the rest of the game. Jones allowed just one Salisbury hit across the fourth and fifth innings.

Jackson led off the bottom of the sixth for Salisbury with a single. A stolen base and groundout advanced the runner to third, where he scored on a single. Later in the inning, with the bases loaded, Jones was replaced by Michael Christian on the mound. A pitch in the dirt allowed a run to score, but Christian then retired the batter. Putnam County was retired in order in the seventh to end the game.

nam County. He allowed nine hits but still held the Panthers well below their season average in runs scored, which sat at 10.5 entering Wednesday's game.

Robinson said he was pleased with how Jones, and the defense behind him, performed to keep the game close to the end.

"Limiting damage and scattering some hits, I thought Vinny did really good trusting his defense, attacking the zone," he said. "He got some big defense help up the middle, turned a couple big double plays there. I thought he was really good on the mound. He commanded really well, hit his spots, was locating and mixing pitches really nicely. Unfortunately we didn't get any run support for him."

Robinson said he thought the team did a good job getting runners on base earlier and putting pressure on Salisbury, but timely hits proved to be evasive.

"We did a good job early getting guys on, but didn't get the big hit," he said. "But I thought we stuck to our approach pretty well, getting guys on and unfortunately didn't get that big hit when we needed it. But the guys didn't fold and battled right to the end."

The loss marked the end of a five-player senior class that has had plenty of success during their time at Putnam County. The group of Hunter Anderson, Vincent Jones, Ethan Kaster, Brayden McReynolds and Brayden Walter contributed to a combined record of 59-17 in their three seasons following the cancellation of the 2020 season. They were a part of three district championships, a third-place finish at state in 2021 and back-to-back trips to the quarterfinals in their final two seasons.

Robinson said that the players coming back next season need to put in the work to make sure they can continue to build on the foundation that has been set over the past several seasons.

"It doesn't start in February, it starts tomorrow," he said. "Getting here and feeling this pain right now that some of the guys are feeling, it can be motivating. I have no doubts that guys are going to go to work and be ready, and I wouldn't be surprised if we're not back at some time in the immediate future."

LeBron James' legacy not tarnished by playoff loss

The infuriating and seemingly endless debate about LeBron James' legacy kicked off once again following the Lakers' exit from the NBA playoffs last week. As it always is, the debate was pointless and obnoxious.

The Lakers were swept in the Western Conference Finals by the top seeded Denver Nuggets, so not an unreasonable loss by any measure. Also, James had one of his best playoff performances, playing nearly the entire 48 minutes and scoring 40 points while recording 10 rebounds and nine assists. This was his 20th season.

After the game, James hinted that he was going to have to think about his future, something which is completely normal for a professional athlete who is 38 years old to say.

James has had a lot of wear on his body throughout his career, and the older he gets the harder it is to overcome that. Still, people argued that a retirement would possibly hurt his legacy. He is probably not going to retire, though.

He has stated that he wants to play with his son Bronny, who will be attending USC next season and then, in all likelihood, entering the NBA Draft.

James could retire for a season and then come back and sign for whatever team drafts Bronny, and that is actually a reasonable idea. But the argument about whether or not a retirement would hurt James' legacy is even more absurd considering how he is always compared to Michael Jordan, a man who has almost as many retirements as he does championships.

It does not matter if James retires for a year, or permanently. It does not matter if he does not win another championship. It should be immediately clear to everyone that knows anything about basketball that James is the superior player.

There is nothing on a basketball court that Jordan is better at than James is. Some of it is not Jordan's fault. James is bigger and stronger, which allowed him to defend all five positions on the floor. Jordan was simply not big enough to guard all five positions. He could potentially guard four positions in the modern NBA, which is becoming increasingly positionless, but is not nearly as defensively versatile as James.

For people that think Jordan is the superior are hung up on the fact that Jordan has more rings than James. This is true, but winning championships is not an individual skill. An individual player can impact the game tremendously and give their team a much better chance to win a title, but if winning more championships is the only thing Jordan does better than James, that is not enough.

It is not like Jordan has six titles and James has one. James has won four rings in his career, often on teams that have given him less support than some of Jordan's teams. And if championship rings are the most important part of the debate over which player is better, Robert Horry has seven rings. Does that make him better than Jordan?

The debate between Jordan and James is not necessarily statistical, but if it was, James would come out on top. Jordan has a higher scoring average in his career, but James has averaged 1.3 more rebounds per game and two more assists per game. James has a higher field goal percentage and three point percentage. James is also the NBA's all-time scoring leader and has the fourth-most assists of all time.

James has played 349 more regular season games than Jordan and 103 more playoff games. James has scored 2,036 more playoff points and has played in 53 playoff series compared to Jordan's 37.

When arguing which player is better out of any two, longevity has to factor into the debate. James clearly has Jordan beat in that regard.

Despite the fact that James appears to be the superior player in almost every way, the debate against him still rages on. One of the worst things about the debate is that it is often framed as a generational dispute, with many older fans preferring Jordan and younger ones preferring

ADAM TUMINO
DAILY EXPRESS SPORTS

James. There is enough superficial nonsense separating different generations, and this is just one item on a long and dumb list.

The worst thing about the debate is that it causes people who prefer Jordan to lessen James' accomplishments and people who support James to do the same to Jordan. I do realize that I just did this quite a bit in favor of James, but I am as susceptible to the nonsense as everyone else.

I am, however, able to fully enjoy and appreciate what Jordan did. My belief that James is better does not make it impossible for me to respect Jordan. I think it is unfortunate that people rob themselves of joy by thinking they have to pick one or the other. You can enjoy both. I try to do that, and I highly recommend it.

Comeback not enough for Green City in baseball quarterfinal

By Adam Tumino
Daily Express

A four-run comeback from the Green City baseball team put them in a good spot in the state quarterfinal matchup with South Nodaway on Wednesday. But the Gophers were unable to pull ahead for the lead, and the Longhorns scored a late run to win 5-4.

Green City's season ends in the quarterfinals for the first time during their impressive run of five-straight seasons with district titles.

They finished in third place at state in 2018 and 2021 and fell in sectionals in 2019 and 2022. They ended this season with a 16-7 record, making it two-straight seasons with 16 wins for the Gophers.

Wednesday's loss came after a dominant 12-1 win over North Shelby in sectionals, and marked an end of the high school careers for the Gophers senior class of Aaron Peavler, Brody Lunsford and Grant O'Haver. This senior class was the third-straight senior class to earn district titles in every season they played, with each class winning three district titles and the canceled 2020 season coming in between.

The Gophers averaged nine runs per game on the season and allowed 4.4, making it eight seasons in a row where they outscored their opponents on average.

South Nodaway will play Community in their semifinal game on Monday. Joining those teams in the Class 1 final four are Cooter and St. Elizabeth.

Macon drops sectional game to Fulton, ends season at 22-7

By Adam Tumino
Daily Express

With a 2-0 loss in sectionals Tuesday, the 2023 season for the Macon baseball team came to an end. Fulton downed the Tigers 2-0 to advance to the state quarterfinals and finalize Macon's record at 22-7.

Macon's usually high-scoring lineup ran into a tough matchup against Fulton pitcher Walker Gohring, who held the Tigers to just two hits over his seven shutout innings. Macon was held scoreless for just the second time this season.

Head coach Travis Mundahl said that he was proud of how the team and players have managed to grow and improve, and just because the season ended earlier than they were hoping that does not mean they did not work hard enough.

"Most importantly, I'm proud of the young men they've become," he said. "This game, it's a beautiful game. It continues to teach life lessons and the main thing that I preached to them after the game is no matter how hard you work, sometimes you don't always get what you want. You just have to keep continuing to work and continue to move forward."

After trailing 3-0 and 2-0 entering the bottom of the sixth inning of both district games, and coming back in the sixth to win both games, the Tigers found themselves in a similar spot on Tuesday.

The game was a pitchers' duel, as indicated by the score, and neither team was able to get on the scoreboard through the first five innings. Macon starter Hayden Burns held Fulton to just two hits in the first five, and Gohring held the Tigers to just one hit, a first-inning double from Gage Lewis.

Fulton was able to mount a bit of a rally in the top of the sixth, although the Hornets had to battle for their two runs. After a leadoff single and then an error, Burns was removed from the game and Logan Petre came in to pitch for Macon.

A sacrifice bunt moved the runners to second and third with one out, and an infield single drove in the first run of the game. With runners now on first and second with one out, a wild pitch moved them both up where a sacrifice fly drove in the second run. Petre struck out the next batter to end the inning.

In the bottom of the sixth, where Macon had done all of its scoring in the previous two games, came and went with a single by Mykel Linear and no further damage. Petre worked around two singles to throw a scoreless top of the seventh, but Macon was unable to rally against Gohring in the bottom of the seventh, putting an end to the Tigers' season.

Mundahl said that he felt the lineup did a solid job sticking to the game plan in the box, but were simply unable to score.

"Approach wise, I feel like our approach was good," he said. "We were swinging at pitches we wanted to swing at for the most part all night long. Unfortunately, hats off to that pitcher."

Even though Gohring and Fulton walked away with the win, Burns had a strong showing in his final start as a Tiger. Mundahl said that it has been amazing to see how Burns has grown and developed as a pitcher over the years.

"I'm so proud of Hayden Burns and the way he's pitched all year long, and the pitcher he has become," he said. "It is amazing to look back at where he was two years ago and where he is now. Moberly Area Community College is getting a great one with him, and he's going to continue to get better. I think he is just beginning to feel what he can do, and I'm really excited to watch his future." Burns, along with fellow seniors Gage Lewis, Mykel Linear, Cooper Lucas, Drew Meisner, Tanner Nelson, Logan Petre, Ethan Prewitt and Greg Seipel, have been one of the most accomplished senior classes the Macon baseball program has seen.

They helped win district titles in 2021 and 2023 and made an appearance in the district championship game the year in between. Over the last three seasons, the Tigers have posted a combined record of 57-15, expanding on a string of winning seasons leading up to their arrival.

Mundahl said that the contribution they made to the program is immeasurable.

"This senior class left a legacy that's sort of unmatched," he said. "They're arguably the most accomplished group of seniors that we've had come through the Macon Tiger baseball program. They won the first district title in Macon Tiger baseball history, and then continued to grow and improve and won a second one in their career. They were a part of two conference championships, and I'm definitely proud of them. But they worked for it. They earned it."

"I wish I could think of a way of eliminating this static cling."

ASTROGRAPH BY EUGENIA LAST

Think before you speak, and avoid emotional problems with those you live or work with this year. Doing some research will help keep you out of trouble. Get your facts straight and put your time and energy into improving your life. Traveling and attending conferences and observation could be necessary if you want to make a difference in your community.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) -- Stop, reevaluate what's happening around you and avoid doing something unwise. Choose discipline over emotional mayhem. Do something that you find satisfying or that will benefit you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) -- Pitch in and help others. Express your concerns and suggest solutions. An interesting idea will lead to a new way to spend time and make extra cash. Try not to take on too much or stretch your budget.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) -- Rethink your financial strategy. You'll have to tighten your purse strings if you want to save money. Don't let others define or change you. Make your intentions and desires clear.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) -- Be receptive to information that comes your way, but verify its validity before you share it with others. Be energetic but not aggressive in all things today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) -- Rearrange your home to suit your needs. Sort and declutter. Don't let laziness set in when you know you'll feel better once you have everything in order. Keep busy and learn as you go.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) -- Fill in the blanks, and you'll get your answer. You can fix an emotional situation if you share your feelings. Don't let your secretive nature stand between you and something you want. Love is favored.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) -- Don't fold under pressure. Someone will use emotional manipulation to push you in a questionable direction. Put your energy into something that will strengthen your position.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) -- Head to a place that puts your mind at ease and brings you the comfort and confidence you require to move forward. Focus on home, family and improving your relationships with others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) -- Stick close to home. Bypass situations that are extreme, tense or indulgent. Observe rather than get involved in something that can disrupt a relationship. Keep the ball rolling.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) -- Put every ounce of your energy into what's important to you. Turn an idea into a way to save money and live with less tension. Spend time pampering yourself and relaxing with a loved one.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) -- Don't overdo it or let anyone take advantage of you. Relax, rethink your plans and adjust whatever is slowing you down. Don't structure your life to suit others when success is your responsibility.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) -- Think big and get involved in something that makes you feel good about yourself. Hard work will make a difference and provide insight into how you want to live your life and spend your time.

PUBLIC HEALTH CORNER:

Fatal overdoses rise amongst Missourians who used Xylazine laced opioid drugs

By Brandon Carlyle,
Health Educator
Adair County Health Department

This week's edition of the Public Health Corner will educate readers on the new issue of the recent Xylazine laced opioid drug use surge in Missouri. The Missouri Department of Health and Senior Services has issued a call for vigilance relating to a steep rise in fatal overdoses amongst Missourians who used Xylazine laced opioids. A recent study by Missouri Vital Statistics has found that confirmed deaths involving Xylazine rose 180 percent between 2021 and 2022 in our state. (See Figure 1.)

Xylazine is an animal sedative that is not approved by the FDA for use in humans. Xylazine and fentanyl drug mixtures place users at a higher risk of suffering a fatal drug overdose. Because Xylazine is not an opioid, naloxone (Narcan) does not reverse its effects. Still, experts always recommend administering naloxone if someone might be suffering a drug overdose. People who inject drug mixtures containing Xylazine also can develop severe wounds, including necrosis—the rotting of human tissue—that may lead to amputation. According to DEA Administrator Anne Milgram, The DEA has seized Xylazine and fentanyl mixtures in 48 of the 50 states. The DEA Laboratory System is reporting that in 2022 approximately 23 percent of fentanyl powder and 7 percent of fentanyl pills seized by the DEA contained Xylazine. The Adair County Health Department provides Narcan to county residents on a non-judgmental basis, nor is it our job to inform law enforcement. We hope to increase access for county residents to obtain this life saving drug, so that it can be as easy as getting a pneumonia vaccine for those most at risk. It is our duty to get naloxone in the hands of those who may need it to save their own life or the life of a colleague, friend, or loved one.

To learn more about Naloxone and how to administer it, visit the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) website or contact the Adair County Health Department at 660-665-8491. To obtain Naloxone, visit the health department at 1001 S. Jamison during clinic hours. Naloxone is free to Adair County residents.

Missouri State Highway Patrol Troop B announces promotions

By Missouri State Highway Patrol

Captain Erik A. Gottman, commanding officer of Troop B, Macon, announced the following promotions effective June 1.

Trooper Riley D. Johnson will be promoted to the rank of corporal and designated assistant zone supervisor of Zone 6, Scotland, Clark, Knox, and Lewis counties.

Cpl. Johnson was appointed to the patrol on Jan. 1, 2017, and after graduating from the patrol Academy he was assigned to Troop E, Zone 9, New Madrid and Pemiscot counties. On Nov. 1, 2019, Johnson transferred to Troop B, Zone 9, Marion and Ralls counties. On Aug. 1, 2021, Johnson transferred to Troop B, Zone 5, Adair and Schuyler counties. Johnson is a native of Kirksville and graduated from Kirksville High School. Prior to his appointment to the patrol, he attended Moberly Area Community College in Kirksville, where he graduated with his Associate of Arts in General Studies. Johnson served honorably in the United States Army Reserves as a military police officer from 2013-2021. Johnson and his wife, Ashley (Playle), have one child, Fletcher Johnson.

Trooper Philip B. Grubaugh will be promoted to the rank of corporal and remain in Zone 13, Marine Operations.

Cpl. Grubaugh was appointed to the patrol on July 1, 2010, and after graduating from the patrol academy he was assigned to Troop B, Zone 3, Linn and Chariton counties. On July 1, 2014, Grubaugh transferred to Troop B, Zone 13, Marine Operations. Grubaugh is a native of Cuba, Mo., and graduated from Cuba High School. Prior to his appointment to the patrol, he attended Evangel University in Springfield, Mo., where he graduated with his Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice. Grubaugh and his wife Alisa (Klingenberg) have two children, Easton and Harper.

Trooper James P. Johnson will be promoted to the rank of corporal and designated assistant zone supervisor of Zone 10, Randolph and Monroe counties.

Johnson was appointed to the patrol on Oct. 20, 2002, and after graduating from the patrol academy he was assigned to Troop B, Zone 8, Marion and Ralls counties. Johnson is a native of Macon and graduated from Macon High School. Prior to his appointment to the patrol, he attended Moberly Area Community College in Moberly, where he graduated with an Associate of Arts in General Studies.

Ameren to lower fuel adjustment clause charge

By Missouri Public Service Commission

JEFFERSON CITY — The Missouri Public Service Commission has approved a filing made by Ameren Missouri to adjust the fuel adjustment clause (FAC) charge on the bills of its electric customers.

Ameren Missouri made two filings with the commission. In its first filing, Ameren Missouri proposed to adjust the FAC to reflect changes in its fuel and purchased power costs, net off-system sales revenues and associated transportation experienced during the four month period of October 2022 through January 2023. The second filing was Ameren Missouri's FAC true-up.

For a residential customer using 1,000 kWh (kilowatt-hours) of electricity a month, the FAC will decrease by approximately $1.01 a month, from a current FAC of approximately $6.27 a month to an FAC of approximately $5.26 a month. The change will take effect on June 1.

The FAC tariff allows the company to pass increases or decreases in its net fuel and purchased power costs to customers outside of a general rate case.

The FAC allows the company to recover most – up to 95 percent – of its costs, but not all, to encourage conservation and prudence in fuel use by the company. Any charges resulting from the fuel adjustment clause must appear in a separate category on customers' bills.

Fuel adjustment charges are intended to help companies deal with volatility in fuel pricing. The FAC tariff requires regular adjustments to reflect changes in prices the company has incurred for fuel and for wholesale power purchased to serve customers.

Ameren Missouri provides electric service to approximately 1.29 million electric customers in Missouri.
