Memorial Day ceremony held at Rieger Armory

By Marty Bachman
Daily Express

A Memorial Day ceremony was held at the Rieger Armory on South Elson Street in Kirksville, Monday, May 29. Over 50 people attended and took part in the solemn ceremony that honored the nation's soldiers that made the ultimate sacrifice. The event was coordinated by local chapters of the Disabled American Veterans, the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

American Legion Post 20 Commander Von Abbott hosted the event which Pastor Jeremy Broach of Cornerstone Church opened with an invocation. Abbott then led the Pledge of Allegiance and the recognition of POW/MIA veterans. Abbot also recognized Blue Star and Gold Star families.

The guest speaker for the event was Lt. Col. (Retired) John R. Buckwalter, an engineer and former public works director for the city of Kirksville. Buckwalter was a distinguished military graduate of the Army ROTC program at Missouri University of Science and Technology, where he earned a degree in mechanical engineering. He served as an engineer officer until his retirement as a Lt. Colonel in July 1996. He served in Germany, Korea, the Netherlands and across the United States. His last assignment was as a professor of Military Science at the University of Missouri-Rolla. He retired from the city of Kirksville in 2013.

He spoke of the sacrifice of hundreds of thousands of U.S. veterans since World War I that gave their lives for the sake of the country, naming off many from Adair County.

"This, ladies and gentlemen, is the cost of war," he said. "The men or women who died for our freedom represent a diverse patchwork that is the United States. They were rich and poor, black and white, male and female. They were from cities, from farms and suburbs. They came from every ethnicity, background and political spectrum. In short, they look like any one of us."

He spoke of losing a classmate to suicide and noted that many veterans have died due to lingering wounds, both mental and physical.

He spoke of others that continue to suffer the effects of Agent Orange used in Vietnam as well as other chemicals soldier have been exposed to in many war theaters. He gave the number to the Veteran's Crisis Line, 988 then press one, he said, noting it would connect straight to a counselor.

"We must end the stigma of seeking mental health care for our veterans" he said. "Suck it up is no longer the solution." He spoke of the importance of Memorial Day and preserving the memory of those who lost their lives in battle. He said that Memorial Day is not a symbol of what is lost, but a reminder of living legacies.

After Buckwalter's comments, a wreath was placed at the podium by veteran organization commanders. A benediction was given by Broach and then the Adair County Veterans Honor Detail from VFW Post 2508 held a 21-gun salute, followed by Taps.

encouraged the council to accept the tournament project rankings.

"We were glad that this process got people engaged and will allocate the available funds based on the community's rankings," said Mayor Zac Burden.

Based on the rankings, the city will allocate funds to support six projects: North Park Soccer Fields base funding ($1,000,000), Housing Demolition ($200,000), Trail Funding ($450,000), Sidewalk Improvements ($450,000), Purchase and Improvements to the Armory ($750,000), and the remaining funds to Housing Restoration Projects ($724,148).

The council will meet soon to discuss implementation plans and the city will work to share updates with the community as progress is made.

Colleague notes what is really going on at work

DEAR ABBY: A guy at work, "Leon," is my age, very friendly and down-to-earth. When we've worked together, we have had great conversations, and he has told me a lot about his girlfriend who he's been with for years. I feel guilty knowing this because Leon is having an affair with a girl here at work who's almost a decade his junior, and they've started getting very brazen about it. He tells people he's tempted by her but would not cross the line. The girl, however, tells very different, detailed and personal stories about their rendezvous. I'm not friends with Leon on Facebook, but I looked at his profile to read a tribute to his recently lost friend and saw his girlfriend's name, and

I'm tempted to reach out. This woman doesn't know me, but I know that at my age, if my boyfriend of three years was messing around at work and everybody knew but me, I'd be livid at them almost as much as I would be at him. As someone who has been cheated on before, I feel I have a duty to his girlfriend because I wouldn't want to waste another second in the dark or with a cheater. Then again, since Leon and his plaything aren't subtle, do you think I should approach him instead and ask if he's still with his girlfriend or if she knows about the mistress? I've always thought honesty was the best policy and straightforwardness got the most honest answers. Any advice would be much appreciated. -- WITNESS IN VIRGINIA

DEAR WITNESS: I understand your impulse to intervene on behalf of Leon's wronged girlfriend, but for your own sake, please resist the urge. If you start a firestorm, your workplace could become unbearable. So, with the understanding that Leon is a cheater and a liar, stay out of it.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD...

Ewwwww!

A visitor at Wonderland amusement park in Toronto, Ontario, was filled with more than wonder as he rode the Leviathan roller coaster on May 16, the Toronto Sun reported. Hubert Hsu of Toronto said as his coaster car neared the top of one of the ride's loops, it collided with a bird -- possibly a pigeon. "I looked down and saw blood on my hands and my face," Hsu said. "There was a feather on my hand, and feathers on the girl next to me's shirt. It seemed like the coaster car hit the bird and then it sort of exploded on us." Hsu said attendants gave them a roll of industrial brown paper towels, and he ended up washing up in a restroom. "The kids who worked in the park seemed like they had no idea what to do, and that might be an issue," he added.

It's Come to This

Two Louisville, Kentucky, roommates got into a heated dispute at their home on May 20. The Charlotte Observer reported, over an unlikely subject: Hot Pockets. Clifton Williams, 64, was charged with second-degree assault after he allegedly shot the victim. Williams "got mad he ate the last Hot Pocket and began throwing tiles at him," police said. When the victim moved to leave the home, Williams retrieved a firearm and shot the man in the posterior. He remains in the custody of Louisville Metro Corrections.

Clothing Optional

-- After crashing his truck into a Volusia, Florida, utility pole around 2 a.m. on May 21, completely severing it, 39-year-old Kevin Gardner did the obvious thing: He took off all his clothes and started banging on the front door of a home nearby. ClickOrlando reported that when officers arrived at the home, Gardner had injuries on his face and legs. The truck was registered to him, but he said it had been stolen ... and that he'd had seizures and didn't remember anything. A breath test revealed an illegal blood-alcohol content, and Gardner was held on multiple charges.

Morris participated in two events at nationals, with the first being the hammer throw. He placed 13th in the event with a throw of 59.6 meters. This came up short of his season and career high of 61.51 meters which had him ranked ninth in the nation.

Morris also competed in the discus, where he fared slightly better.

He placed eighth in the event after registering a throw of 53.18 meters on his fourth attempt. His season and career high in the discus is 58.37, set at the Miner Invitational in March. He joined Weltha in earning All-American honors.

Royals' Staumont, Mayers within 6 outs of perfect game in 7-0 win over Cards

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ST. LOUIS — Josh Staumont and Mike Mayers came within six outs of the first combined perfect game in major league history before Nolan Arenado lined a leadoff single in the eighth inning of the Kansas City Royals' 7-0 win over the St. Louis Cardinals on Monday.

"You're definitely aware of it," Mayers said of a perfect game. "I tried to keep it business as usual. The goal was to throw up as many zeroes as you possibly can and that's the mindset I stayed in."

Staumont, a 29-year-old right-hander, served as the opener in a planned bullpen game for the Royals. He made his first major league start in his 167th appearance and struck out two in a 1-2-3 inning, throwing 14 pitches.

"That was one of the most exciting moments for me of the year," Royals manager Matt Quatraro said. "For him to set the tone like that was unbelievable."

Mayers, a 31-year-old left-hander who pitched for the Cardinals from 2016-19, made his third appearance for the Royals this season after eight starts at Triple-A Omaha. He retired 18 consecutive batters before Arenado lined a 1-0 slider to left on his 72nd pitch.

"He did a great job today," Arenado said. "We just couldn't get anything going."

Willson Contreras followed with a single to center that stopped an 0 for 29 slide.

"I can't say what I was thinking there," Mayers said with a chuckle. "I made two very bad pitches in that inning and they're good hitters. They made me pay for them."

Taylor Clarke relieved and retired Brendan Donovan, Paul DeJong and Alex Burses in order. Amir Garrett pitched a perfect ninth to finish a two-hitter and Kansas City's second shutout this year.

St. Louis was shut out for the sixth time and has scored 13 runs in its last six games.

"It was just hard to get anything going offensively," St. Louis manager Oliver Marmol said. "Today was a tough one."

There have been 23 perfect games, the last by Seattle's Félix Hernández against Tampa Bay on Aug. 15, 2012. All perfect games have been complete games.

Kansas City had not shut out the Cardinals since May 22, 2015, and had not blanked them in St. Louis since June 2, 2014.

In the opener of a two-game series, the Royals tied their season high with 16 hits and stranded 14 runners, one shy of their high.

Nicky Lopez matched his career high with four hits, and Nick Pratto and Vinnie Pasquantino had three each. Mike Massey hit a two-run homer and Bobby Witt Jr. added a solo homer.

Adam Wainwright (2-1) allowed three runs and nine hits in five innings for the Cardinals, playing their 18th game in a stretch of 19 days in a row. The Cardinals and the Royals have back-to-back days off Wednesday and Thursday.

"The stuff's OK. The location's OK," Wainwright said. "Nothing great. We're in one of those funks right now. Baseball is a crazy game like that. I'm trying to take a big picture view. The little moments, I'm not winning right now."

Pasquantino hit an RBI

double in the third.

"I'm feeling solid and ready to go tomorrow," Pasquantino said. "It was kind of a weird game because it was tougher to score runs early and then we were able to break it opener later."

MJ Melendez hit a run-scoring triple in the fifth and scored on Freddy Fermin's bunt down the first-base line for a 3-0 lead.

Pasquantino had an RBI single off Steven Matz, who turned 32 Monday, in the eighth, and Witt and Massey homered in the ninth against Drew VerHagen. Witt snapped an 0-for-12 skid with the home run. He became the second Royal to hit 30 career homers before turning age 23.

NOOTBAAR HURT

CF Lars Nootbaar left after Pratto doubled leading off the third inning, appearing to pull up near the wall. Nootbaar has slammed into the wall catching a Massey drive in the second. The Cardinals said Nootbaar had back spasms.

Blaney wins Coca-Cola 600 at Charlotte to end winless drought

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CONCORD, N.C. — Jumping into the crowd to celebrate a big race victory appears to have become a Team Penske thing.

Ryan Blaney held off William Byron to win the rescheduled Coca-Cola 600 on Monday at Charlotte Speedway, giving team owner Roger Penske a sweep of the Memorial Day weekend's top races in the United States.

Josef Newgarden won a record-extending 19th Indianapolis 500 on Sunday for Team Penske. Like Newgarden, Blaney jumped out of his car and climbed into the crowd to celebrate the win with fans.

"I only did it because Josef did it," Blaney said. "I was pretty fired up. I don't get that excited very often, but I was super pumped. I loved how Josef did it Sunday. ... I said, 'I am going to go in the stands like Josef did and have some human contact.'"

Blaney compared it to jumping into a mosh pit at a metal concert.

A few moments later, he tried to hold back tears with the weight of 59-race winless streak lifted from his shoulders.

"You start to get to feel like you can't win anymore," Blaney said. "We hadn't won in awhile and that can get hard. I want to thank the 12 (team) for believing in me."

Blaney took the lead from Byron on a restart and led the final 26 laps to win his first Cup Series race since the Coke Zero Sugar 400 at Daytona in August of 2021.

Byron finished second, followed by Martin Truex Jr., Bubba Wallace and Tyler Reddick.

Truex said Blaney's emotions are understandable.

"He's under a lot of pressure to perform," Truex said. "They've won a lot of races since his last race. I'm sure he questioned himself through some point during that streak that he was on. He's had many opportunities to win and they've slipped away. Those are the hardest to think about so he's probably thinking, 'we finally did it.'"

It is the first time Team Penske has swept the Indianapolis-Charlotte doubleheader.

"The pressure was on us to try to sweep the weekend," said Blaney, who said he texted Newgarden after the Indy 500 win. "So that was the goal. Fortunately we executed well enough to get it done."

Blaney's win came just days before Penske hosts a weekend of racing on the downtown streets of Detroit. The return of racing in downtown Detroit is Penske's gift to the city he calls home. Then, the 86-year-old heads to the 24 Hours of Le Mans, one of the very few events he's yet to win.

The 5 1/2-hour race included five wrecks in the final 50 laps, including one with 26 to go when last week's All-Star race winner Kyle Larson spun and took out defending Cup champion Joey Logano, Kyle Busch and Christopher Bell.

SUDOKU

Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

"You're being charged with"

ASTROGRAPH BY EUGENIA LAST

Pamper yourself. Reorganize your life and your plans, and set goals that excite you. Having something to look forward to can make the difference between success and failure. Refuse to let anyone dictate what you do or how you do it. Take pride in who you are and what you have to offer. Lead the way instead of letting someone else step in and take charge.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) -- Consider what's entailed before you offer help. Protect your reputation, position and key relationships. Refuse to let emotions interfere with your plans and decisions. Do things yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) -- Establish what you want to do before you start. Map out your plan from beginning to end and approach the people you need on your team to be successful. Listen to supporters' suggestions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) -- You'll be prone to impulsive behavior today. Don't jump to conclusions. Listen to what others have to say. A change someone makes will give you insight into how to proceed.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) -- Take care of your responsibilities before moving on to pleasurable pastimes. You'll enjoy yourself more if you don't have to worry about what you left unfinished.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) -- Be careful when dealing with others. Your actions or words will be misconstrued. Make your home or workspace functional. The better equipped you are, the more success you'll achieve.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) -- Don't expect smooth sailing. Take a positive attitude, regardless of how others are acting. Focus on self-improvement, educational pursuits and getting along with people who have something to offer.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) -- Pick up the pace, designate funds to cover your expenses and take a minimalist approach to whatever you do. It's time to please yourself and do what comes naturally.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) -- Spend more time improving your living arrangements. The changes you undertake will ease stress and give you hope for a brighter future. Focus on self-improvement.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) -- You'll encounter a challenge if you share too much information with a friend, relative or colleague. Don't give away your secrets or let someone stifle your dreams. Act on your own behalf.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) -- Push aside negativity. A positive attitude will invite new opportunities and input from people who share your vision. Choose quality over quantity, and you'll be heading down a lucrative path.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) -- Keep your feelings to yourself. Sharing too much information will put you in a vulnerable position and cause problems. Look at every angle before making a big move.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) -- Don't let anger take the reins when action is required. Use your connections to ensure you have a backup plan to reach your target. Fixing your personal space will boost your morale.

ATSU's annual simulation challenge promotes interprofessional teamwork among students

By Courtesy of A.T. Still University

A.T. Still University's Kirksville College of Osteopathic Medicine (ATSU-KCOM) Clinical Simulation Club held its third annual simulation challenge at ATSU's Drabing Human Patient Simulation Center on April 15, 2023.

Five teams consisting of first- and second-year osteopathic medical students, along with Truman State University nursing students, participated in the challenge, which consisted of five rounds of patient simulation cases with different difficulty levels.

Lisa Archer, RN, BSN, director of simulation and performance assessment, and Eric Lesh, DO, '18, assistant professor, family medicine, are the club's faculty advisors and worked with students both in preparation for and during the challenge.

"Students actually created the cases. They've got to be based on current standards of care, clinic protocols, and the latest literature, and they show those to Dr. Lesh and get his feedback and see if they're approved before they move forward to the actual challenge," Archer said. "So it's another level of involvement with the simulation center, they get to program it."

The first four rounds consisted of a thyroid toxicity case, a pediatric dehydration case, a precipitous newborn delivery case, and a drive-by shooting case, which took place in the simulation center's immersion room.

By the championship round, only two teams remained, and in the end, only one team would complete the simulation by correctly diagnosing the final case as purulent pericarditis, a rare infection of the pericardial space.

The championship winners included ATSU-KCOM students Erin Martin, OMS I, Alaina

Henry, OMS I, Maggie McCarthy, OMS II, Jacob Ayers, OMS I, and Truman State University students Kristen Chavana and Namuna Sunar.

"They had to really rely on each other for their team experience and their strengths and weaknesses. They had to figure that out, that was all part of the team dynamics, working together as a team, recognizing each other's strengths, and then actually listening and valuing what they said. We're really working hard on that across the board for all of our simulations, even outside of this sim challenge," Archer said.

"Students need to understand that they're not solo clinicians. They need to understand they're surrounded by a team and each individual brings a different level of experience and expertise," she added. "The interprofessional piece of it is exciting for me, because that's kind of my heart, making sure that we're blending our students with other disciplines."

Archer hopes to continue to incorporate interprofessional collaboration into activities at the Drabing Human Patient Simulation Center, and is looking forward to even more teamwork, and of course more fun, at next year's challenge.

How to prevent a urinary tract infection

By Northeast Regional Medical Center

Urinary tract infections (UTIs) are one of the most common bacterial infections in the United States, resulting in seven million office visits to healthcare providers each year. Additionally, 50 percent of women and three percent of men worldwide will experience a UTI in their lifetime. While most UTIs are not serious, they can cause discomfort, and if left untreated could lead to kidney damage or sepsis.

UTIs are an infection in any part of the urinary system including kidneys, bladder and urethra, often caused by bacteria, like E. coli, entering through the urethra. Symptoms include painful urination, the frequent urge to urinate and pressure in the abdomen or groin.

"Anyone who has had a UTI knows how uncomfortable they can be," says Nancy Rourke, Family Nurse Practitioner at Northeast Regional Family Medicine. "While there are steps you can take to help prevent a UTI, the only treatment is antibiotics prescribed by a doctor."

Rourke suggests these habits to help reduce the risk of developing a UTI:

- Empty your bladder completely and frequently: Holding urine for long periods of time can increase the risk of bacteria accumulating in the bladder.

- Wipe correctly: To avoid bacteria entering the urethra, always wipe from front to back after using the restroom.

- Stay hydrated: Drinking a lot, especially water, helps flush out bad bacteria that can cause infection. Oppositely, avoid liquids that can irritate the bladder like alcohol and excessive caffeine.

- Avoid irritations: Scented feminine hygiene products and sprays can irritate the urethra, increasing the risk of developing an infection.

- Try cranberries: Cranberry juice is often associated with relief from UTIs and according to the National Health Institute, cranberries contain the compound proanthocyanidins that can help prevent bacteria from sticking to the walls of the bladder.

"It is best to avoid an infection as UTIs can become a serious health issue if left untreated," Rourke said. "However, since that is not always possible, I would recommend anyone who is experiencing the symptoms of a UTI to consult their primary care provider as soon as possible before the infection spreads."

Government Contracting Opportunities for Food Service Providers!

By: Anastasia Tiedemann, SBDC, MERIC

Many of our small businesses have heard me talk about the benefits of contracting with the Government. ANY business can register to bid on government contracts. Historically, many of these contracting jobs have to do with manufacturing and construction, but things are changing!

Every year, the Missouri National Guard spends around $800k feeding its Soldiers and Airman during training events throughout the state of Missouri. Previously these transactions were usually a Credit Card transaction, but as policies shift, the use of agency credit cards has been discouraged. The Missouri National Guard is now seeking to register restaurants, caterers, food trucks, and other food service providers on sam.gov so that the agency may award contracts and ultimately set up a multiple award blanket purchase agreement directly with the food service providers in Missouri who have an interest in supporting our Airman and Soldiers during training events. Specific emphasis in Northeast Missouri and surrounding areas include: Boonville, Chillicothe, Columbia, Fulton, Hannibal, Macon, Mexico, Moberly, and Trenton.

Our APEX Accelerator team (our government contracting specialists) is hosting an event to connect food service vendors with the Missouri National Guard Contracting Office in Jefferson City on July 13, 2023 from noon - 3pm at the Ike Skelton Training Sight (ISTS).

You'll learn whether your business is ready for government contracting and what the next steps will be. If your food truck, catering establishment, or restaurant is interested in expanding your scope of services to include government contracting, this would be a good event for you to attend!

You can sign up at this link: <https://missouri.ecenterdirect.com/events/24520>, or contact Kris Bocking at 573-882-9398 for more information. This is a free, in-person event.

Congratulations to all of the local graduates! And if you have any questions about entrepreneurship or small business resources, please feel free to reach out to me at atiedemann@kirkvillecity.com.
