City recognizes July as Parks and Recreation Month

By City of Kirksville

Kirksville Mayor Zac Burden has signed a proclamation recognizing July as National Parks and Recreation Month. Parks and recreation programs are an integral part of communities throughout this country, including the city of Kirksville.

City officials said that the parks and recreation programs are vitally important to establishing and maintaining the quality of life in communities, ensuring the health of all citizens, and contributing to the economic and environmental well-being of a community and region.

"Parks and recreation programs build healthy, active communities that aid in the prevention of chronic disease, provide therapeutic recreation services, and improve the overall mental and emotional health of all citizens," stated a proclamation issued by Burden and the city council. "Parks and recreation areas are fundamental to the environmental well-being of our community by improving water quality, protecting groundwater, prevent flooding, improve the quality of the air we breathe, providing vegetative buffers to development, and producing habitat for wildlife."

City officials said that parks and natural recreation areas ensure the ecological beauty of the community and provide a place for children and adults to connect with nature and recreate outdoors.

"Make sure to enjoy some time or an event in one of Kirksville's parks this July," city officials said in a press release.

76th Annual NEMO Fair

4-H and FFA Horse Show will set the stage for the 76th Annual NEMO Fair

By Marty Bachman
Daily Express

On Saturday, July 15, three days prior to the opening of the NEMO Fair, the 4-H and FFA Horse Show will be held on the newly renovated arena, featuring 4-H and FFA members from throughout Missouri.

According to Penny Kittle, an organizer of the event, between 25 and 30 kids usually participate in four divisions: Senior Division, which is 14 and older; Junior Division, which is 13 and under; Junior Division ages 13 and under for horses 56 inches and under; and Novice Division, which is a walk/trot only division for first and second year horse project members.

There will be a variety of events and classes and the show is not limited to any certain breed or discipline.

"It give our kids an opportunity to participate however they want to with their horses," Kittle said.

Kittle said there will be halter classes where they look at the conformation of the horse, how the horse is put together and how the horse traveled; showmanship classes that showcase how the horse is handled on the ground with specific pattern maneuvers like walk, trot, and maybe a 360 or 470 turn; and horsemanship, a riding class where the youth are required to do a pattern, walk, trot and canter in different ways. Other classes include Western Pleasure and Ranch Pleasure, where the horse is judged, not the rider, and speed events that include barrels in a typical cloverleaf and flag grades, where a rider grabs a flag from one barrel and drops it in another, both events which are judged on time.

Kittle said that Ashlea Sidwell is the superintendent this year. "She's done a great job," Kittle said, estimating there are some 43 different classes to be judged at this year's show, which begins at 11 a.m. on July 15 at the fairgrounds arena.

The 76th NEMO Fair runs from July 18-22 with opening ceremonies being held on Monday, July 17 at 7 p.m.

Leading up to this year's fair is the annual Baby Show and the NEMO Fair Queen, Teen Miss and Young Miss pageants, both of which will be held on July 16 in the multi-purpose building at the fairgrounds. The Baby Show begins at 10 a.m., and the Fair Queen pageant at 4 p.m. Both events are free to the public.

A full rodeo will be held on July 18 at 7:30 p.m. at the arena.

The 2023 NEMO Fair also has a great lineup of musical entertainment that includes Sara Evans with special guest Jarrod Turner on Saturday night. Friday night will feature Darryl Worley, with special guests Ashley Barron and Chad Brock. Bon-Jour, a band that combines the hits of Bon Jovi and Journey, will perform on Thursday. All shows are at 7 p.m. at the grandstand.

OBITUARIES

Joyce V. Hammons

Nov 27, 1953 – Feb 27, 2023

Joyce V. Hammons, 69, of Novinger, Missouri passed away unexpectedly on February 27, 2023. The daughter of James Paul & Betty Anne (Young) Hammons, she was born on November 27, 1953 in Kirksville. Growing up on the family farm she was assigned chores but found membership in the Novinger Town & Country 4-H Club much more fun. Joyce made lifelong friendships while attending the Novinger R-1 School where she participated in several activities and organizations and graduated with the Class of 1971. Joyce began college in Kirksville then transferred to the University of Arizona before returning home when her mother passed away.

Over the years she was employed at the Thousand Hills State Park, the Arizona Department of Health, the March of Dimes, Old Towne Clothing, and Party Mart as well as working on the family farm, but her favorite time was spent volunteering in organizations to benefit her hometown. Joyce served in various roles within the Novinger United Methodist Church which she attended from age six months until the time of its closing in 2021. She served on the Novinger Housing Association Board for more than twenty years. In addition, Joyce joined Novinger Renewal not long after its inception in 1986 and hardly a project or event happened that she wasn't a part of – from adopting-the-highway to co-chairing the annual craft festival bake sale. She loved her hometown and wanted to help make it a better place in which to live.

Joyce loved history and genealogy. She was proud that her family had donated the log cabin to Novinger Renewal and spent a lot of time helping with the restoration process, giving tours, cleaning it, etc. Joyce felt strongly about saving the historic structure when the Methodist Church closed and was among the congregation leading the campaign to find a way to preserve it. She loved visiting with people and could remember area residents and family connections from long ago.

Sadly, Joyce lost several family members at an early age – her mother in 1974, her father in 1988 and brother Larry in 2009. Joyce is survived by a sister, Beverly Hammons and husband Preston Wilson, niece Emily, nephew Paul, two great-nephews and a great-niece, all of New York State. Also surviving are a maternal aunt, Henrietta Darnel, of Blue Springs, Missouri, many cousins and a host of long-time friends.

A memorial service will take place on Sunday, July 16 at 2:00 p.m. in the former United Methodist Church, 606 Davis Street, in Novinger. A private interment will take place at Maple Hills Cemetery in Kirksville. Memorials are suggested to Novinger Renewal, P.O. Box 24, Novinger, MO 63559.

ROBIN WRITES

The Sunday Drive

Sunday afternoon drives were torture for my brothers and me. As desperate as we were to get away from the familiar routes of our daily lives—school bus paths, the road to church, trips to the grocery store—we still hated piling into the car for our family’s weekly outing.

Mom was always excited at the prospect of the Sunday drive. Without a driver’s license (a condition almost incomprehensible nowadays), she depended on Dad and friends for every trip she needed to make.

Traveling new roads, even ones that led nowhere, was a treat for her.

Mom went to the driveway early and opened the door of the old black Buick to “let it air out”. The stench of Dad’s cigarettes was as familiar to us as his voice, but she always thought a little breeze could whoosh it away.

The seating arrangement starting off was always the same. Mom in front. Brothers on either side of the back seat, by the windows. Me in the middle. I was crushed between the sweaty, knobby, scabby knees of two brothers I could barely tolerate the rest of the week. This was as close as we were ever forced to sit, and it was agony for us all.

Mom had such high hopes for each trip. She flashed a “won’t this be fun” grin toward the back seat, and then turned and scooped around in her seat to get comfortable.

But this was, as were most adventures of my childhood, a serious undertaking. No silliness. We would ride and look and like it.

Dad lit up a Kent and started the car. The brother on the driver’s side propped a protective forearm against the frame of his open window to deflect the inevitable ashes that would fly like glitter into the wind.

We left the driveway and turned toward the river. Or toward town. It didn’t matter. Dad knew lots of back roads we’d never noticed. In minutes we were rolling along a dusty road that tied houses and barns together in curvy loops and rutted hills.

The miles floated past. One tree looked like all the others. Cows. Rusty, barbed wire fences. Occasionally, we’d pass a house and see a family sprawled across their front porch in swings or atop steps. Our mobility made them envy us, while we wished we were settled there on that porch.

Conversation was limited during our drives. Dad would mumble to Mom, but the words sailed outside and missed our ears. My brothers and I had nothing to say, except “Scoot over!” every few miles, or “Who stinks?” when we passed a field of cows.

After hours of riding, the anonymous road we traveled brought us to a familiar crossroad. Like baptized believers rising from murky waters, one of us would shout for joy. We knew where we were! Maybe the bus took us that way...or maybe a friend lived on this turnoff.

We were back in the familiar back yard of our daily lives.

By the time we rolled to a stop at our house, everybody had to go to the bathroom. Sweaty legs were stuck to the vinyl seat covers; they peeled away with stinging squeals. My brothers and I elbowed for position up the front porch stairs, racing for relief and drinks of water.

Mom was last to get out—she opened her door and sat inside the car for a minute, as if committing to memory the dusty world she’s just seen.

Dad waited until she lumbered from her seat before turning off the car. The exhausted engine ticked like a racing heartbeat. With one last, lung-popping drag of his cigarette, he opened his door, stepped onto the driveway, and tossed the butt into the gravel.

He had done his duty. We had taken our Sunday drive.

Looking up answers

Doc smiled and felt really good inside when he heard the familiar bird song.

“Hey there, Wheezer,” he said, “happy nesting!”

For some reason, this mourning dove with the speech impediment comes around to Doc’s back yard every spring, and Doc thinks that’s just all right. If ol’ Wheez didn’t have that distinctive voice, Doc would never know if this bird favored his yard or was just another bird looking for a home. Let’s face it, Wheezer looks just like every other dove in town.

But he was back and flirting with a good-looking lady dove up on the branches of the locust tree. Doc always wondered whether doves mate for life, and this was the same Mrs. Wheez he sees every year, or if Wheezer had to court a new lassie each spring.

“I’ll have to look it up,” Doc said, knowing that he wouldn’t.

But he did go over to the concrete block wall and clean out the crud from the hollow in the top block by the gate. Doc had put dirt in it years ago, and each spring, the Wheezer family hauled in twigs and grass and made a place to raise their family.

SLIM RANDLES

And each spring, as Mrs. W. sat on her eggs, it would take Doc a few days before she would tolerate him coming and going through the gate. This was the dove family he was close to. They let him get right up to maybe a foot from the ugly little baby birds each spring, and he was careful never to move quickly or make a noise. That was his contribution, you see, to the putting together of the “Doves in the Concrete Block” family.

Wonder how long doves live? Doc thought. Wonder how long old Wheezer will last? I’ll have to look it up. No he won’t.

Life is Full of Mysteries

Life is full of mysteries...
it’s full of things... completely out of your control,
It’s full of good things... and things that are bad... it’s full of things that tear at your soul.
If only there were directions... in the back of the book... as to how to

But the answer is there... it’s in your

PUBLIC HEALTH CORNER

Strategies to reduce exposure to wildfire smoke

By Brandon Carlyle, Health Educator
Adair County Health Department

Welcome to this week’s edition of the Adair County Health Department’s Public Health Corner, where we raise awareness for healthy living and shed light on pressing issues affecting the health of our community. This week we will focus on Wildfire Smoke Exposure. Wildfires continue to rage on in Canada and smoke from them is spreading down into the United States and the Midwest. We must be prepared and aware of ways to limit our smoke exposure and keep our families healthy and safe in this potential crisis.

Wildfires produce high volumes of smoke each year, which lead to unhealthy air qualities that can reach hundreds of miles out from the source of the fire. The smoke from wildfires is a mix of gases and particles from burning trees, plants, buildings, and other material. Individuals who are very near the fire’s source may develop a smoke inhalation injury, which is caused by thermal (extremely hot gas), chemical, and toxic effects of the products that have been combusted by the flames.

Although less extreme, wildfire smoke can greatly impact the health of people who are not near the source due to exposure to particles of PM2.5 which are inhalable air pollutants with an aerodynamic diameter of greater than or equal to 2.5 microns. People who have asthma, COPD or cardiovascular disease are more at risk for severe health outcomes from wildfire smoke exposure. Children, elderly and pregnant women are also more susceptible.

Strategies to Reduce Exposure to Wildfire Smoke include:

- Staying indoors, including closing windows and doors, using HVAC systems effectively to minimize exposure to wildfire smoke.
- Preventing further indoor air pollution by not smoking or using candles, gas, or aerosol sprays; not frying or broiling meat; and not vacuuming.
- Staying aware of current and predicted local air quality conditions using airnow.gov or other tools.
- Using a portable air cleaner or creating a cleaner air room in the house.
- Going to a designated cleaner air shelter during times of poor air quality if available.
- Selecting and using an N95 respirator when it is possible to avoid exposure to wildfire smoke.
- Advise those at higher risk for severe outcomes to closely monitor symptoms and keep their medication prescriptions up to date and available.

Thank you learning more about the risk of wildfire smoke exposure. I hope that this information will help you take the necessary actions and preparations to keep you and your family safe.

This Week in Local History

By Larry Evans

110 Years Ago, July 2, 1913

Four marriages performed in the Adair County Recorder's office in 24 hours, three of them in little more than an hour's time, broke the county record. It was by chance that the Justice of the Peace Hamilton happened to be in the Recorder's Office searching for information when a couple came in and secured a marriage license. He united the two in marriage, and just as he was finishing, another couple came in wanting to be married. This continued one more time before he concluded his work. The local couples he married were Fred Adams of Connelsville and Leona Ball of Greencastle; David A. Bishoff of Novinger and Gladys Kizer of Humphreys, while the other two couples were from Iowa. Justice of the Peace Hamilton married three of the couples, and the other couple brought their minister with them.

100 Years Ago, July 8, 1923

Adair County Sheriff Waddill was planning a "hooch party" for the following Monday afternoon at 4 p.m. at the southwest corner of Kirksville's square. He invited everyone in the county to attend. He was going to dispose of 25 gallons of whiskey and a large amount of beer by pouring it in the sewer. The "hooch" that he was disposing of was harvested in raids the past few weeks by county officials. County officials indicated that more liquor might be acquired and ordered by the county court to be disposed of by the date of the party.

80 Years Ago, July 4, 1943

The farming season in Adair County was delayed because of inclement weather in the spring. Due to wet and cold conditions, crops were planted late, and farmers were well behind in their work. Some farmers were getting along much better with their work than they had expected, due to the help that was provided by KCOS (Kirksville College of Osteopathy and Surgery, now A. T. Still University) students and a few Kirksville people. The students were doing a fine job of helping farmers in their efforts to grow all the feed possible, according to Smith Powell, Jr., county agent, whose office was acting as an employment office between farmers and volunteer workers. Some farmers did not think the students would be of much assistance in farmwork, but Powell reported that the farmers found out differently. He reported that Myron Propst, living east of Bullion, had 35 acres of wheat to be shocked. Ten KCOS students went out to the Propst farm at 4:40 p.m. and by 8 o'clock that night the wheat was all in shocks. Among other farmers who used the student's help were Frank Bragg, Clifton Crow, Floyd Collop, John P. Garth, Lawrence Newman, Howard Rolston, J. A. Shockey and E. M. Turner. Farmers paid the students 40 cents an hour, gave them supper, and brought them back to Kirksville.

80 Years Ago, July 6, 1943

Kirksville experienced an unusually quiet Independence Day. There was almost total absence of noise from fireworks and no accidents or disturbances. During World War II there was a scarcity of fireworks due to government regulations, and the only people who had fireworks were those who had some left over from the prior years. Because of wartime shortages and the maximization of the nation's production for the war effort fireworks were scarce. President Franklin Roosevelt told the nation that Independence Day would be honored "not in the fireworks of make-believe, but in the death-dealing reality of tanks and planes and guns and ships." Kirksville's beer parlors, however, did a robust business as it was necessary for the city police officers to take into custody a few persons who had too much to drink.

70 Years Ago, July 2, 1953

A drive to sell $200,000 in stock in the Kirksville Industrial Development Corporation (KIDC) was expected to begin soon as representatives of the McGraw Electric Co. reiterated their intention of establishing a plant in Kirksville if a building was provided. The McGraw Electric representatives told KIDC officials that Kirksville had been selected for a plant over several other Missouri towns. McGraw would pay $14,000 a year rent on the building. The plant was expected to be similar to the Moberly plant, which employed 250 people and had a payroll of between $600,000 and $700,000 a year. About 40 percent of the employees at the Moberly plant were women.

70 Years Ago, July 6, 1953

It was a noisy July 4 in Kirksville as a large crowd estimated at as many as 15,000 celebrated with the Shriners at the Northeast Missouri fairgrounds. The Shriners sponsored free acts in the afternoon including a concert by the Northeast Missouri Fair Band, performances by an acrobatic troop, comedians, a magician, and a ventriloquist. Also featured during the afternoon performance was horse racing and competition for green horses and farm horses. In the evening a grand display of fireworks was sponsored by Kirksville merchants and professional people. Sutton Shows were also on the grounds. Thousand Hills State Park and Forest Lake were also the scene of much activity. The lake was crowded with boaters and fishermen throughout the two-day weekend. Many people from out-of-state visited the park considering it had just opened to the public on July 1. Despite the number of people celebrating, the local police department and highway patrol reported only minor incidents. One minor injury involving fireworks was reported. Pat Laughlin, son of Dr. and Mrs. George Laughlin, received a burn on his thumb and the first two fingers of his right hand when he lit a cherry bomb which had been cut up and the powder exploded in his hand.

30 Years Ago, July 1, 1993

Kirksville residents were cleaning up after a thunderstorm drenched the area with from five to seven inches of rain, stranding motorists on car tops and sweeping away a NMSU (Northeast Missouri State University now Truman State University) student. Brian Jones was with some friends behind Centennial Hall on the NMSU campus when he was swept away in a nearby swollen creek. He washed up behind the Grim-Smith Hospital parking lot. A Kirksville police patrol car was carried into a ditch with a police officer clinging to its top near Westlake Hardware. Seventy-five percent of the merchandise at Heilig-Meyers Furniture store was damaged by flood waters. Furniture was floating out the back door of the building. The heavy rains were widespread across the Midwest, and the ground was already saturated. It was the beginning of "the five-hundred-year flood of 1993" that ravaged the Missouri and Mississippi River Valleys that summer.

EMBRACING LOCAL HISTORY

Part 58

What happened to the Miller family after they left Adair County? — Chapter 1

By Blytha Ellis, President

Adair County Historical Society and Museum

Remember all the letters Sarah (Ferguson) Miller had written from her pre-Adair County home on the west side of the Chariton River trying to convince her two sisters, Catherine Parcels and Jane Linder, to move near her? And, then, they both finally did! The joyous reunion of these three sisters was only surpassed by the heartwarming interactions of the large extended families of the Parcels, Millers and Linders, and the intermarriages among these families in the early 1840s. The Ferguson sisters thought this togetherness would last forever, but, in fact, it would only last for five years.

Who would have ever thought it would be Sarah, the letter writer, who would break up this blissful reunion of the sisters! But, it was actually her husband, Robert Emmet Miller (1783-1856), who was not satisfied to spend the rest of his life on the west bank of the Chariton in Missouri which his wife had so highly praised. Yes, he had seen the creation of Adair County, and yes, he had seen the establishment of the town of Kirksville as its county seat. And, he had seen his nephew, William Henry Parcels Jr., marry his daughter, Eliza Jane, and move to that town. Were things becoming too urbanized for him? We don't know, but certainly his adventurous spirit was leading him further westward.

In the spring of 1845, the Millers packed up their children and their belongings into wagons drawn by ox teams, said tearful goodbyes, and joined a wagon train of 80 wagons headed for Oregon which was led by the well-known fur trapper and guide, Stephen Meek (1807-1889).

As with many other pioneers traveling the Oregon Trail westward, the Millers and others on this journey endured many hardships as they crossed the mountains and plains between here and Oregon. The company came into the Oregon Territory by what was known as the Meeks Cut-Off which, at best, was described as a blind trail. It had previously been created by their guide, Stephen Meek. The wagon train reached the Willamette Valley in the fall of 1845. The Miller family first located on Sauvie's Island west of the Columbia River. However, Robert Miller was never able to be satisfied in one place even after he arrived in Oregon. He moved his family to several different counties in Oregon before he finally seemed to settle down. He and Sarah did live to see some of the good things their children accomplished in Oregon, but not all. Robert Miller died in 1856 and Sarah in 1867. Both are buried in Jackson County, Oregon. Robert's grave displays an emblem honoring him as a veteran of the War of 1812.

The oldest Miller child was Nancy Ann Magatha Miller (1817-1899). She was the only child of the Millers who was already married when the two cousins first visited the Millers in pre-Adair County on horseback in 1838 (as related in Part 55 of this history). Nancy Ann had married Jesse Walker (1815-1855) in 1835 when the future Adair County was still in Howard County. They had five known children and all went on the wagon train to Oregon with the Millers in 1845. Nancy Ann and Jesse Walker are buried in Jackson County, Oregon.

The second Miller daughter was Eliza Jane who married William Henry Parcels Jr. They did not go to Oregon but made their home in Adair County for the rest of their lives.

The third Miller daughter was Julia Ann (1820-1899) who married James Francis Bybee (1818-1901) in 1842 in Adair County. They took two infants with them on the journey to Oregon, Robert Emmet and Ann Elizabeth. James Bybee is credited with bringing the sport of horse racing to Portland. He was also a politician and once ran for Governor of Oregon. He won and lost a fortune in his lifetime from gambling, horse racing and land prospecting. The Bybees owned a large, beautiful home on Sauvie Island, Ore., of which the Historical Society has a photo, but after having 12 children, Julia Ann and James Bybee became estranged. However, family letters indicate they were still on friendly terms. Both are buried in the same cemetery in Portland.

The fourth Miller daughter, Narcissus Marie (1822-1887), as mentioned in our previous episode, married her 1st cousin, once removed, Horace Jacob McIntire in 1842 in Adair County. They crossed the plains to Oregon in 1850 with two little boys in tow, John M. McIntire and William Parcels McIntire, born in 1848 and 49. Along the way, they had the unusual experience of having Indians offer them ponies in exchange for their two little boys. They were quite surprised by this offer, and, of course, quickly refused. They had several more children in Oregon where Horace raised cattle and was a horse breeder. Horace and Narcissus are buried in Portland.

The fifth Miller child was their first son, John Ferguson Miller (1825-1901), named for his Revolutionary War grandfather. He was 13 when he entertained his horseback-riding cousins with hunting and fishing, etc., during their 1838 visit to pre-Adair County. When his parents moved to Oregon in 1845, he stayed in Missouri and served in the Mexican War of 1846-48. John served under Capt. Hancock Jackson, and after the war, married his daughter, Zarilda Jackson (1828-1913), in Randolph County in 1849. Hancock Jackson went on to serve in the Missouri Senate, as a U.S. Marshal, as Lt. Governor and finally as Missouri Governor in 1857.

John and Zarilda Miller immigrated to Oregon in 1851, and her father, former Governor Jackson, followed in 1865. In Jackson County, Ore., the Millers took up a Donation Land Claim, and John Miller served as an Indian Agent for six years as well as being elected to the Territorial Legislature. John was nominated for Governor of Oregon in 1862 but was defeated. He then devoted himself to his large farming interests in Oregon, where he at one time owned 11,000 acres of land, raising and selling cattle and horses. John Ferguson Miller was promoted to General during the Indian wars in Oregon. He also served as president of the first woolen mill in Salem, Ore. John and Zarilda had four known daughters and are buried in Salem Pioneer Cemetery in Salem, Ore. Space does not permit us to cover the younger Miller children in this episode. Look for them next time.

Be alert for MoDOT mowing crews

By MoDOT

JEFFERSON CITY – Though it's been a drier start to summer than usual, seasonal growth along Missouri's roadways still needs to be mowed. The Missouri Department of Transportation urges motorists to use caution when encountering tractor mowers near the shoulders of interstates and other busy roadways.

"Mowing roadsides increases visibility for motorists along Missouri roadways," said MoDOT State Maintenance Director Natalie Roark. "We ask motorists to please watch out for our crews and help keep them safe too. Pay attention, slow down when approaching mowing crews, and never drive distracted."

Major and minor routes will be mowed at least three times through the end of October. MoDOT mows about 400,000 acres of grass each year, which is equivalent to 300,000 football fields.

Crews use a protective "follow" truck to alert motorists they are approaching slow-moving mowers. Drivers are advised to use the following tips to safely pass mowers on rural two-lane roads:

- Be alert for trucks and tractors with lights flashing and moving slowly, 2-5 mph.
- Slow down and focus on the road ahead of you. Put your cellphone down and avoid other distractions.
- Be prepared to stop or drive very slowly behind a "follow" truck, especially approaching a hill or curve on a two-lane road.

- Obey the no-passing zone stripes, and only pass when you can see far enough past the "follow" truck to avoid meeting oncoming traffic.

Between mowing cycles, you can report grass and weeds blocking visibility at intersections along state-maintained roads by calling MoDOT's 24/7 Customer Service Center at 1-888-ASK-MODOT (275-6636) or by going to modot.org/report-road-concern.

Water deeply and wisely during drought

By University of Missouri Extension

HILLSBORO — During drought, proper watering can help plants survive dry spells, says University of Missouri Extension horticulturist Debi Kelly.

Kelly gives 10 tips to help your plants survive lack of precipitation.

1. Water in the morning. Watering in the evening lets water remain on leaves, making the plant susceptible to disease.
2. Water at the base of the plant. Water at soil level to avoid waste and prevent foliar diseases.
3. Water slowly and deeply. Plants need at least an inch of water weekly. Watering slowly allows water to infiltrate the soil and reach the roots.
4. Know your garden areas. Within each yard is a microclimate with varying degrees of shade and soil. Each requires different amounts of water.

5. Don't fertilize when it's dry. Fertilizer encourages plants to grow, and the extra growth requires more water. Also discontinue herbicides or insecticides, which can volatilize during high temperatures and drift to desired plants.
6. Weed. Weeds rob wanted plants of water.
7. Deadhead flowers. It takes water and energy for the plant to form a seed head.
8. Mulch. Use mulch around root zones to hold moisture and cool the roots.
9. Water some plants more often. Plants in containers and raised beds need more frequent watering because they dry more quickly.
10. Water trees and shrubs. Some recommend watering these for three years after planting.

Kelly recommends against watering edible plants with water caught in rain barrels, which can contain contaminants from roofing materials and birds. Use instead on flowers and shrubs. Drip irrigation and soaker hoses that automate watering are a good investment, she adds. These slowly and steadily deliver water to the plants.

Check your soil's moisture level. Soil may appear dry on top, but there might be adequate moisture beneath. Kelly recommends the "screwdriver test." Poke a screwdriver into the soil and pull it out. If it comes out clean, the soil is dry and it's time to water.

Kelly recommends checking the U.S. Drought Monitor at droughtmonitor.unl.edu.

Truman volleyball team ramping up for 2023 season

By Adam Tumino

Truman State has its fall sports season quickly approaching. Schedules are set for the volleyball and men's and women's cross country teams, and now is a good time to take a look back at what these teams did last season and what to expect from 2023.

The volleyball team found itself in last place in the GLVC in 2022 with a 1-11 conference record and overall record of 3-20. With a heavier schedule in 2023, the Bulldogs went 6-24 and 2-16 in conference play. They had made it into the GLVC Tournament as the eighth seed the season prior to that.

Despite the struggles in 2022, there were still plenty of bright spots for the Bulldogs.

They did lose their first 12 matches of the season but came close to their first win in a 3-2 loss to Missouri Southern State in the second match of the season on Aug. 26. They also had a 3-2 loss to Augustana on Sept. 3. Truman held 2-1 leads in both of those matches before dropping the final two sets.

They were able to break through in their fourth conference match of the season, which was at home against McKendree on Sept. 30. The Bulldogs jumped out to a 2-0 lead, winning the opening set 25-21 and the second set 25-16. But McKendree responded by taking sets three and four, putting Truman in danger of blowing the early lead.

Truman led the decisive fifth set 14-10, needing just one more point to get the win, but McKendree managed to come back and tie it 14-14. A pair of McKendree misplays gave Truman two points and the win.

That was of course the lone conference win for the Bulldogs, but they did manage to find more success in October. While competing in the Midwest Region Crossover in Hammond, Indiana, Truman managed to pick up a pair of wins on Oct. 15. First they beat Lake Erie College 3-0 and Ursuline College 3-1 later on in the day. Just four more matches remained on the schedule after that, all conference matches, and all losses for Truman.

With the aim of improving in 2023, Truman will have the benefit of its top three scorers returning. In fact, five of the team's top six scorers from 2022 will be back this season.

The team's leader was freshman Jessica Prosenyak with 3.11 points per set. Juniors Hanna Berry and Allison Beaton were right behind her with averages of 2.65 and 2.62 points per set respectively.

Senior Ainsley Heise ranked fourth on the team, but the team's fifth and sixth leading scorers, Annabelle Crowder and Maura Ploesser were a freshman and a junior last season. Freshman Emma Baierl led the team with 6.63 assists per set and ranked eighth in the conference in that category.

The Bulldogs will open up the 2023 season on Sept. 1 and Sept. 2 in the Blossom Classic Invitational in Monticello, Arkansas.

After that tournament, they will compete in the Hampton Inn Invitational in Kenosha, Wisconsin, from Sept. 7 through Sept. 9. The following weekend will be the Reddie-Tiger Invitational in Arkadelphia, Arkansas.

After that, the Bulldogs will head home to open GLVC play on Sept. 23. Their first conference match of the season will be against GLVC newcomers Upper Iowa. Other home conference matches will be on Oct. 6 against Southwest Baptist, Oct. 7 against Drury, Oct. 26 against McKendree, Oct. 27 against Missouri-St. Louis, Nov. 9 against Maryville and Nov. 11 against Missouri S&T.

Truman State women's basketball adds two graduate transfers

By Truman State University Athletics

KIRKSVILLE, Mo. — The Truman State Women's Basketball team has added two graduate transfers, Bailey Kliewer and Ainsley Tolson to the 2023-24 roster.

"We are so excited to add grad-transfers Bailey Kliewer and Ainsley Tolson to our Bulldog Family," said Head Coach Theo Dean. "These two young ladies will bring a tremendous amount of consistency and experience into our program. I would like to thank former Associate Head Coach Amy Briggs and Graduate Assistant Coaches Maggie Beem and Jacob Robinson, who were all instrumental in helping us bring in two very strong transfers."

Bailey Kliewer

Rogers State (Okla.)
Harrisonville, Mo. (Harrisonville HS)

Kliewer became only the fourth player in Rogers State women's basketball history to achieve over 1,000 career points as she scored 1,065 in 106 games played over the course of four seasons. She earned honorable mention all-MIAA accolades after leading the Hillcats with a 12.1 points per game scoring mark and 5.9 rebounds per game. She was fourth in the MIAA in minutes per night at 33.1 and was 10th in free throw shooting at nearly 77%.

Kliewer scored 1,175 points in four seasons at Harrisonville High School and averaged 18.2 points and 11.1 rebounds as a senior. She was a three time all-conference honoree and helped lead her team to a district championship in 2017.

Coach Dean on Kliewer: "Bailey is a player that we're very excited about! She really impressed us with her ability to be a strong, dominant forward in a tough MIAA conference. Bailey is a very versatile player who can produce both inside the paint and out on the perimeter, and gives us a lot of strength and athleticism in the post. We feel very lucky to have Bailey, and she will be a great addition to our Bulldog Family!"

Ainsley Tolson

Baker (Kan.) University
Avila (Mo.) University
William Jewell (Mo.)
Trenton, Mo. (Trenton HS)

Tolson started her collegiate journey at GLVC member school William Jewell College where she was named to the 2020 GLVC All-Freshman team and started 30 of the 47 games for the Cardinals in two seasons. She averaged 10.1 points with 2.7 assists and 2.3 rebounds while knocking down 45 three-pointers. She transferred to Avila University in 2021-22 and earned all-conference honors in the KCAC while averaging 17.8 points per night and shooting 51.5% from the field. Last season, Tolson played and earned first team all-conference honors at Baker University and led the Wildcats in scoring with 14.8 points per game and a team-high 5.1 assists. She has scored 1,422 points during her four seasons of collegiate basketball.

Tolson was a four time all-district selection in basketball at Trenton High School and was twice named the Player of the Year by KMZU and KKWK radio. She left the Bulldogs as the all-time leading scorer with 1,685 points and was ranked second in assists (408) and third in teams (290). Her Trenton program went 101-14 in her four seasons with a second and fourth place state finish.

Coach Dean on Tolson: "Ainsley is someone we feel very lucky to add to our team! She's a tenacious guard who gives it her all on both sides of the floor. Ainsley is a workhorse, who continues to develop year after year, and is a guard who truly knows how to create for herself and for her teammates. I look forward to watching Ainsley fit our system, and she will be a wonderful addition to our Bulldog Family!"

SUDOKU

Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) -- Get together with intelligent people who make you think. An interesting social event will lead to an opportunity that allows you to broaden your financial possibilities.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) -- Select your words carefully. Choose peace and love over discord and chaos. Put greater emphasis on personal growth instead of trying to change others. Don't share too much information.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) -- Live with what you've got and simplify your life. Make decisions that suit you. Take nothing for granted and verify information you receive before passing it along.

Wife eager to enjoy hobby with longtime male friends

DEAR ABBY: I am in a committed relationship with a wonderful man. We are not married, but we call each other husband and wife and have two beautiful children together. Our relationship is great.

JEANNE PHILLIPS
DEAR ABBY

My husband had a different childhood than mine. He didn't have many friends of the opposite sex. I, on the other hand, had a lot of guy friends growing up. I cherish many of these platonic relationships. There is a lot of history with them (some more than 20 years), and I enjoy their company greatly. We don't have any romantic histories.

I don't hang out with them often because I know my husband would be upset if I were to see another man one-on-one, even just as friends. I understand his point of view. I know I might be jealous if he were to hang out one-on-one with another woman, and I would wonder. I guess we both have trust issues.

There are some hobbies I would like to engage in, and a few of these guy friends have expressed interest in joining me on occasion. One of those activities is metal detecting. I have the two kids in tow most times and would need help digging. Even without the kids, I don't think it would be as much fun doing this by myself. My husband would join me if he weren't so tired from his 12-hour workday and getting up at 4 a.m.

I am going stir-crazy with the kids, and I need an outlet. This is something that excites me, as it will get me outdoors, and is steeped in local history. These men are some of my best friends and we would never fool around, but I'm afraid my husband won't understand. Is there any hope? -- TREASURE-BLOCKED IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR T R E A - S U R E - B L O C K E D: If this is going to happen, you and your husband first need to resolve your trust and insecurity issues. There's hope if you discuss this thoroughly with him and he trusts you enough that it won't excite his insecurities. (The same would be true if the situation were reversed.)

He needs to know that when you do this, he is always invited. Have you asked any of your women friends if they might find your hobby to be of interest? It is possible one or more of them would welcome the break, too.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a single, retired woman on a fixed budget. I love to cook and entertain. I would do it more often if several of my friends didn't routinely consume four to six bottles of wine collectively at dinner (at least one bottle per person, plus other drinks).

I can't afford to spend $100 or more on alcohol, but I'm embarrassed to ask them to bring their own beverages, as no one else in the group does it. Any suggestions for how to handle this without offending them or breaking my budget? -- GRATEFUL FOR ADVICE

DEAR GRATEFUL: You are not obligated to go broke paying for your friends' indulgence. Because you are entertaining in your own home, tell them what you have on hand, what you plan to serve and, if they need more, they should bring it with them.

News Of The Weird ...

Awesome!

Emerald Downs racetrack in Auburn, Washington, switched things up on June 25 with a Grandparents Race, WMTV reported. It was part of Grandparents Weekend, where nanas and pop-pops received free admittance and could participate in prize drawings. About 25 grandparents competed in the race, charging out of the horse gates toward a finish line about 40 yards away. Two of the racers stumbled and fell during the sprint, but no one was hurt. Steve Butler of Everett, Washington, was declared the winner.

For the Birds

The Cotehele medieval house in Cornwall, England, was all set to be the site of a five-day cherry-picking festival starting on June 28, the BBC reported, but blackbirds foiled the plan. Laura Jarman of the National Trust said that 80 trees were full of the fruits on June 19, but two days later "the gardener came to tell me they'd all gone ... feasted on by the very cheeky blackbirds. They're so cute, we don't mind too much," she added. The site still plans to host an apple-picking event later in the year.

Government in Action

Paavo Arhinmaki, 46, the deputy mayor of Helsinki, Finland, was caught in the act on June 23 as he and a friend spray-painted graffiti in a railway tunnel in the capital city, the Associated Press reported. The Finnish Transport Infrastructure Agency said the cost to clean up the graffiti would be about $3,830, but it's not clear if the deputy mayor will face charges. "I have committed a crime and bear full responsibility for it," Arhinmaki said, calling his actions "stupid fooling around." However, he is refusing to resign his position.

Unconventional Weaponry

Tristan Stetina, 19, was charged with fifth-degree assault (who knew degrees went to 5) after an incident at a Mankato, Minnesota, restaurant on June 23, KSTP-TV reported. Police officers were called to the business after Stetina allegedly arrived there and "began yelling and throwing Skittles at employees and customers." One victim said she experienced stinging on her back after being hit with one of the candies. Officers, who were familiar with Stetina, found him nearby and placed him under arrest; because he resisted, he was also charged with obstruction of the legal process and disorderly conduct.

Inexplicable

Public restrooms are a gamble on the best day, but in Columbus, Indiana, a discovery in the bathroom at Mill Race Park raised the bar: David Lancaster, part of the cleaning crew, found a dead octopus in a toilet there on June 22, with its long tentacles hanging out of the bowl. Fox59-TV reported that Mark Jones, director of the park department, said he didn't know how the octopus had come to be in the toilet, but it had been removed.

Irony

Harvard Business School professor Francesca Gino, who researches dishonesty and unethical behavior, is in the hot seat with her administration for ... submitting work that falsified results. NPR reported on June 26 that several people have alleged that Gino changed data in at least four papers about her studies. She is currently on administrative leave; for her part, Gino did not confirm or deny the claims, but said she is "limited into what I can say publicly. I want to assure you that I take (the allegations) seriously and they will be addressed." Investigators said they found incidents of fraud spanning more than a decade.

Unclear on the Concept

When Oak Park and River Forest High School in Oak Park, Illinois, underwent a cybersecurity audit, TechCrunch reported, the vendor mistakenly reset every student's password, which prevented students from being able to log into their Google account. Naturally, the school wanted to rectify the situation, so on June 23, they sent parents an email: "To fix this, we have reset your child's password to Ch@ngeme! so that they can once again access their Google account. We strongly suggest that your child update their password to their own unique password as soon as possible." What could go wrong? Manning Peterson, an OPRF student's mom, noted, "This is terribly insecure and you have just invited every single student's accounts to get hacked." It took the school a day to realize its mistake, whereupon it promised to send "a special password process that will be unique to your specific student."

It's Good To Have Goals

"Highpointing" enthusiasts seek to find tallest points in a geographic region. The hobby intrigues former Colorado resident Andrew Karr, so it's only natural that in his new home state of Florida, he'd continue the quest. According to The Messenger, Karr has pledged to summit the highest point of every county in Florida -- the flattest state in the country. He studies maps, rents kayaks and asks landowners for permission to cross their property to achieve his goal, and he's almost there: He's summited 61 out of 67 counties.

The Aristocrats

A Brooklyn-based art collective called MSCHF created a teeny tiny handbag that sold for $63,000 at auction on June 28, CNN reported. The neon green bag, measuring less than 0.03 inches wide, is fashioned after an iconic Louis Vuitton bag called the OntheGo tote, but it was not sanctioned by the designer. It was made using technology that prints 3D micro-scale plastic parts and was sold with a microscope so the owner can see it.

News You Can Use

The Bridge of Flowers between Shelburne and Buckland, Massachusetts, draws walkers from both cities to view the flora alongside the footbridge, Mass Live reported. But now the Bridge of Flowers Committee is asking residents not to scatter loved ones' ashes there. "It's not healthy," said Carol Angus, co-chair of the committee. "The gardeners and volunteers are then exposed to the human remains," and the leaves and roots of the plants are damaged. "It's very upsetting," Angus added.

Recent Alarming Headline

At Bangkok's Don Mueang Airport on June 29, a 57-year-old Thai woman was preparing to board a flight when she became caught in the moving walkway in Terminal 2, The Guardian reported. The lower part of the woman's leg was trapped beneath the belt at the end of the walkway; a medical team had to amputate her leg above the knee, and she then was transferred to a hospital to assess the chances of reattaching her leg. Airport director Karun Thanakuljeerapat offered "my deepest condolences regarding the accident" and said the airport would be fully responsible for the victim's medical costs.

Great Art!

German artist Werner Hartl of Reichersbeuern paints stunning agriculture and landscape scenes, mostly of cows, Oddity Central reported. What sets Hartl apart is his medium of choice: diluted cow manure. Hartl places a canister beneath a cow's rear end as it poops, then mixes the dung with water. "I use watered-down dung for the light shades ... I use dung with no water mixed in for the dark shades," Hartl explained. "When it is wet, the 'paint' is a bit funky, but when it's completely dry, it doesn't smell anymore," he said.
