By Marty Bachman

The 76th Annual NEMO Fair opened Monday evening with well-attended opening ceremonies being held at the flag pole on the fairgrounds. FFA and 4-H members, the fair queens, fair board members and many others watched as a military color guard marched to the front of the flagpoles and the National Anthem was played while the flags were being raised.

The audience heard from board members and others before adjourning to a pie eating contest that was held afterward in the multi-purpose building followed by a band that entertained fair-goers.

The carnival opened on Tuesday and a rodeo was held at the newly renovated arena on Tuesday night. The fair will continue through Saturday at midnight.

Multi-platinum entertainer Sara Evans will headline the fair, performing Saturday at 8 p.m. at the fairgrounds. According to her bio, she is the fifth most-played female artist on country radio in nearly the last two decades. ### Elen Wallace Hanks

Jul 2, 1928 – Jul 16, 2023

Elen Wallace Hanks, formerly a resident of Kirksville, Missouri passed away on July 16, 2023, in Garden City, Idaho at the age of 95.

Elen was born July 2, 1928, in Driggs, Idaho to Wilda Buxton and William Howard Wallace.

She lived much of her life in the shadow of the Teton Mountains which she said gave her a feeling of awe, stability and peace. She spent many hours enjoying the beauty of nature, especially flowers and birds. Her early years were spent with her family, working on the farm with her father and helping her mother with the cooking and cleaning. They sold milk, eggs and butter. They also grew certified seed potatoes. She remembers their first telephone (a square box on the wall), washing clothes with a ringer washer, and ironing clothes with a heavy iron heated on their kitchen stove. At the age of 8 she learned how to cook on the big cast iron wood burning stove. She was a gifted seamstress and at the age of 10 she cut out her own pattern and made her first dress using colorful chicken feed bags for fabric. In the cold winter months, she remembers getting a glass of tomato juice with cod liver oil in it after music class which was their only source of vitamins in the winter.

When she graduated from high school, she attended Utah State University majoring in Home Economics.

She married David LaWayne Hanks on June 15, 1949. They are the parents of 7 children: Lecia (Mike) Johansen, David (Joyce) Hanks, Steven (Jean) Hanks, Aaron (Jenny) Hanks, John (Debra) Hanks, Byron (Patti) Hanks, and Richard (Carrie) Hanks. Their posterity also includes 40 Grand Children; 109 Great Grand Children & 2 Great-Great Grandchildren. Together with her husband she served 3 missions for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. She was very faithful in her service to family and to Heavenly Father.

She was preceded in death by her husband David LaWayne Hanks, her brother Donald (Naomi) Wallace, her sisters Lora (Van) Myers and Wanda Wallace.

She is survived by her sister Lu Wallace of Orem, Utah.

Like the Teton Mountains, her legacy to her family is one of awe, stability and peace. She was the quiet influence for good shaping their home into a place of safety filled with love. She extended her love and hospitality to many throughout her life. She has been a great example of positive thinking, courage, and integrity. She will be greatly missed.

Kirkville City Council approves four ordinance at regular meeting

By Marty Bachman
Daily Express

The Kirksville City Council, at their regular meeting held on Monday, July 17, began their meeting by unanimously approving an ordinance granting an additional 90-day extension to a special use permit to allow mini-warehouse and self-storage facilities (interior access) at 2104 and 2206 S. Baltimore Street.

Assistant City Manager Ashley Young told the council the ordinance is an extension of the special use permit granted Smartlock Self Storage at the Kirksville Renaissance Shopping Center for those two locations there that have indoor climate controlled storage.

Young said that the city's planning and zoning commission considered the request last week and unanimously recommended that it be approved by the city council.

A second ordinance approved authorized City Manager Mari Macomber to execute an agreement with Benton & Associates, Inc. for engineering services to develop a wastewater collection system improvements facility plan.

Public Works Director Adam Dorrell told the council that the city went through a Request for Qualifications (RFQ) process in choosing the engineering firm. Six firms submitted for qualifications., the city narrowed that down to three and then interviewed Benton and Associates before selecting them as the most qualified firm.

Dorrell told the council that the city is experiencing high flows during rain events to the northeast lift station and that the report is to identify the reasons for that, whether it's groundwater inflow, rainwater coming in through cross connections with the stormwater system or other methods.

"There's lots of different methods for why that water can get in there," Dorrell said.

He said that with normal flows they've seen about a 10 times increase at that lift station by the time it gets there.

"Hopefully we can find those sources and eliminate them and minimize improvements that we'd have to make to that lift station in the future," he said.

He said that once they had selected Benton & Associates, city staff met with them, solidified the scope and budget and was now recommending the council authorize the city manager to approve the ordinance.

Doug Erickson, vice-president of Benton & Associates, a Kirksville-based engineering firm, said they have been located here for a considerable amount of time and were excited about the opportunity to "take care of the community." He noted the firm's background in sewer collection services and felt they were "super qualified." He also said they would bring value to the project at the price the city was paying.

"Whether it's discussions with your staff, them training us, us training them, involvement with the city community members, we're gonna make a concerted effort to get out into the community, explain what's happening with this sewer study and hopefully get their input," Erickson said. "The more eyes on the system means more data that we can get and help identify these needles in the haystack that causes us to get these 10-time flows."

Mayor Zac Burden thanked Erickson, saying, "Talking about your approach on this, when you mentioned needles, this is something with a lot of needles in a very big haystack."

Dorrell clarified that the study would not be looking at the quality or the quantity of water coming in but rather the inflow and infiltration, which is typically surface water entering the system through some connection or groundwater entering the system through manholes, brick manholes, or leaking pipes or things like that letting water in.

"That's specifically what what this study is looking to address," Dorrell said.

The ordinance passed unanimously.

The council approved a third ordinance authorizing the city manager to enter into agreements for on-call engineering services with engineering firms Allstate Consultants, Benton & Associates, Inc., Howe Company, and McClure Engineering Company.

Dorrell said that the agreement was intended to supplement the city's engineering staff, not replace them. He told the council that the city has a lot of projects coming in, lots of grants, and that they need some additional assistance.

"We solicited qualifications from four firms that were within a 60 mile radius of Kirksville," Dorrell said, noting that Allstate Consultants is out of Marceline, Howe Company, and McClure Engineering Company are both out of Macon and Benton & Associates, Inc. has an office in Kirksville.

"So those four firms are able to cover basic general municipal engineering things that we would need help with; trails projects, streets projects, water and sewer projects," Dorrell said.

He said that the city would not use engineering consulting firms for larger projects without going through the RFQ process. He said the ordinance will allow the city to access these consultants as they need to beginning in 2024. In response to a question from Council member Jennifer Walston, Macomber said that the city is still searching for a city engineer and that the hiring of consultants would not replace that.

"If you follow the projects that we do, where we get behind is on the design of the projects, and then the more delay that we have there, the higher cost of the project," Macomber said. "So we want to be able to call a firm and say, 'we've got a sewer project that we need to have designed' because we have a problem and we need to get it fixed and our staff is already working on some things."

She said the city was not eliminating the city engineer but using these firms to help move things forward and stop the delays the city continues to run into.

A fourth ordinance approved by the city council authorized the city manager to execute a lease agreement with Contour Airlines, Inc. for the use of Kirksville Regional Airport terminal to provide essential air service for the Kirksville community.

Kirkville Regional Airport Director Jeff LaFountain recapped the history of how former essential air service provider Cape Air had terminated their contract with the airport and that MoDOT Aviation, with the council's recommendation, had approved Contour Airlines, Inc. to provide service to Chicago's O'Hare Airport, beginning Aug. 1.

The ordinance would approve Contour to lease out the terminal building so they could begin service on time. The council unanimously approved the ordinance.

ROBIN WRITES

It is swell with my soul

Children's church didn't exist when I was young. We sat in "big church", first on our mother's lap and then on our own bottoms. Learning how to behave in church was as much a part of our growing up as learning to use a cup or making rabbit-ear ties on our shoelaces.

When services started, each of us began our struggle to tame the giggling/crying/whispering monster that bubbled just beneath the scabbed skin of every kid who ever sat on a wooden pew.

Little kids were given some leeway. An occasional giggle or whine was excused in toddlers. But sheer boredom and curiosity made us all crane our necks to see what all the hubbub was about.

Nothing big was ever happening. A dropped shoe. A nose being wiped. Stuff like that.

It was all hugely interesting, though. And eternally hilarious. Young minds scrounged the hallowed air of the sanctuary for any misstep of decorum, and turned the moment into gut-busting comedy.

If somebody dropped a hymnal, we poked each other with our razor-sharp elbows and rolled devilish eyes at the sound. One of us invariably mimicked the drop; he'd plead butter-fingered innocence and feign penitence.

That was enough to fling us all into smothered chuckles. Song lyrics took on special variations among those of us old enough to read. "Bringing in the Sheaves" became "Bringing in the Sheets". "Toiling On" was (and in my mind continues to be, shamefully) "Toilet On".

We belted out our mangled renditions with an insincere gusto that always tipped off the moms around us. They would turn our way and convey utter dismay at their offspring's lack of reverence.

Brimstone stares settled us down; we took sticks of gum as bribes and smiled penitently.

Prayer time was always our favorite. Pious eyes were sealed against the world we kids still inhabited. Nobody who truly loved the Lord was watching us. We could make faces and pinch and grab toys from toddlers around us without detection.

Or so we thought.

Our parents had evidently chosen in advance to forego this time of prayer. He or she was usually seated in the pew behind us. Thumps to the head and mumbled directives, warning us of future punishment, toggled each fidgety body.

We were instructed to bow our heads and be quiet while other prayed. We tried.

Nearly over, we were sweaty, defeated clumps of worship-shackled energy. We had passed notes with inmate fervor. The gum in our mouths had lost its flavor and been discarded in places we'd only confess to God.

Nothing was funny anymore. We had been lulled into a

ROBIN GARRISON LEACH

sanctuary stupor.

Invitation time signaled the end of preaching. The entertainment level of the service swelled again. Older bodies creaked and popped in their attempt to stand for the final song.

Every mom in the building reached behind her flouncy dress—unconsciously and in unison—to separate it from the sweaty bottom it had molded against.

We sang and prayed that three verses of "Just As I Am" would be enough. Finally (unless someone went to the alter) the music ended.

Closing prayer. The most long-winded deacon was always chosen to lead it, thanking God for EVERY blessing EVER given to ANY human on the planet.

At "Amen" we bolted for the door, squirming through the hand-shaking line and flying down the outside steps into freedom.

Church was over, all of God's creation waited for us, and we were SO THANKFUL to see it again.

Calming an upset horse

Steve, the tall cowboy of us philosophy types, was riding a young horse through town the other day to get him used to "boogers."

To gentle a horse, he explained, you give them something to booger at, and then talk them out of it. You keep coming up with new boogers and calming the horse until screaming fire engines and jet exhaust are no problem at all.

He rode up to the Campbell house and saw Anita, Dud's wife, shaking out a throw rug. The young horse began blowing nuclear snot all over the front yard and his eyes bugged out.

"Anita," Steve said, "would you mind coming over here with that rug for a minute?"

She walked slowly up to the young horse, who was crouched in the starting blocks preparing for an elliptical orbit around the sun.

"I don't want to frighten him," Anita said.

"That's why I'm here, actually," Steve said. "Would you let him smell the rug?"

She carefully and slowly held the rug up to where the colt could sniff it. He sniffed and snorted, sniffed and snorted ... then sniffed, and sniffed. Then he eyed it carefully and touched it with his nose.

"If you wouldn't mind," Steve said, running his hand along the horse's neck, "could you back up about three steps and then start wiggling it?"

She backed up and gently wiggled the rug. Snort, snort, legs in starting blocks. Ready to booger.

"That's it," Steve said, calmly, rubbing the horse's neck. "Now shake it a little harder."

More snorts. More rubbing. "Now shake it really hard."

It took the best part of a minute before the horse calmed down and just watched Anita with curiosity instead of fear.

"Thanks, Anita," Steve said. "You've helped a lot."

She looked up at him. "But why did you want me to shake a rug at him, Steve?"

And Steve grinned and said, "I'm thinking about getting him a job in a carpet cleaning business and I want him to learn the ropes."

You need to have it your way... be stronger than dirt... and never give up on your dreams,

How to prevent tick bites

By Brandon Carlyle,
Health Educator
Adair County Health Department

Welcome to this week's Public Health Corner article, where we raise awareness for healthy living, community resources and pressing issues that may affect the health of our community. This week we will be focusing on Tickborne Disease and how to prevent tick bites in Missouri. Cases of Human Tickborne diseases have been on the rise across the nation. This is why it's important to take steps to protect yourself and your family from tick bites and tickborne disease! Use insect repellent, check for ticks daily, and shower soon after coming indoors.

The most commonly reported tickborne diseases in Missouri are Ehrlichiosis and Rocky Mountain Spotted fever (RMSF). There have also been reported cases of other tickborne diseases as well. These include Tularemia, Lyme Disease, Heartland Virus, and Bourbon Virus. The signs and symptoms of tickborne disease can be different amongst individuals. Common symptoms include fever, headache, muscle and/or joint aches, nausea, vomiting or diarrhea. If these symptoms occur following a tick bite, or even after exposure to a tick habitat, talk to your health care provider right away.

Exposure to ticks and tick bites can occur year-round, but ticks are most active during warmer months (April – September). To protect yourself and help others protect themselves you needs to know where to expect ticks. Ticks live in tall grassy, brushy or wooded areas and they also live on animals. Spending time walking your dog, camping, gardening, or hunting could potential put you in close contact with ticks. Many people even get ticks in their own yard or neighborhood. Wearing light colored clothing makes the ticks easier to spot while outdoors. When returning indoors, always place clothing in a dryer on high heat for several minutes to kill any ticks that might be on the clothing.

Carefully, check your body for ticks. Ticks attach on people in many places but are most frequently found around the head, neck, underarms, between the legs. Remove any attached ticks immediately using clean, fine tipped tweezers, grasp it as close to the skin as you can and pull the tick away from the skin with even, steady pressure. After removal, clean the bite with soap and water or another disinfectant.

We hope that this has help you learn more about tickborne diseases in Missouri and how to prevent them.

The Linder Family - from Europe to Adair County

By Blytha Ellis, President
Adair County Historical Society and Museum

This is the saga of the Linder family as they made their ancestral journey from Europe all the way to Adair County, Missouri.

According to the research of others, the Linder name is thought to have originated from the linden tree and the occupation of wood cutter in Switzerland. However, one of the early Linder couples was Simon and Margretha (Hanover) Linder of Germany. In 1733, they with their five children crossed the Atlantic on the English ship Elizabeth of London traveling from Rotterdam to Philadelphia, Pa. Records show that Simon and his 16-year-old son, also named Simon, signed an Oath of Abjuration to any other country and an Oath of Allegiance to the King of England since the U.S. was still under the rule of Great Britain at that time. This seems to have been the first family named Linder to come to America.

One of their sons, Lorentz (Americanized to Lawrence) Linder, was 9 years old at the time of arrival. In 1744 in Virginia, Lawrence married Rebecca Van Meter who is believed to be the daughter of Henry Van Meter, mentioned several times in George Washington's diary of his 1748 trip, as a boy of 16, to the Shenandoah Valley as an assistant with a surveying party.

During the Revolutionary War, Lawrence Linder served as a "Minute Man." He also provided non-military services for the American cause, such as supplies to the army, for which he made a later claim for reimbursement. Lawrence and his son Jacob (1745-1841) were the first of the Linder ancestors to be citizens of the U.S. rather than subjects of the British crown. This resulted from the U.S. victory in the Revolutionary War.

During this war for independence, Jacob was a major in the Berkeley County, Va. militia, then promoted to Captain in 1782. After the war, Jacob and his father, Lawrence, and their families migrated from Virginia to Hardin County, Ky., near Elizabethtown. Previously mentioned in this history were the forts which were built before Elizabethtown was established, and Jacob Linder helped to construct these forts.

Jacob was a "patroller" in Hardin County, serving with Thomas Lincoln, the father of Abraham Lincoln. These patrollers apparently helped guard the forts from Indian attack. In some references, Jacob is referred to as a "Ranger" which may have meant the same as a patroller. In 1796, Jacob Linder was a major in the 3rd Regular Kentucky Militia. He owned over 4,000 acres of land in Kentucky about 25 miles west of Elizabethtown. Jacob would live to be 96 years old and presumably died in Kentucky.

In Part 54 of this history, it was related that during some Indian trouble around Elizabethtown, Ky., in 1783, Jacob Linder and his wife, Elizabeth (Van Meter), were forced to leave their cabin home and hide in a cave. This hiding place was actually Mammoth Cave which is now known as the longest cave system in the world (a part of Mammoth Cave National Park consisting of over 52,000 acres in south central Kentucky).

Because of the stress of this fearful event, Elizabeth went into premature labor and delivered the couple's first child in the cave. This child was named Jacob after his father, and when grown, he married Jane Ferguson, one of the three Ferguson sisters previously discussed.

This Jacob spent half his life in Hardin County, Ky., where he farmed and for a time ran a tavern. In the early 1830s, Jacob and Jane Linder and their five children moved to Coles County, Ill. This is where we pick up on our story already told in previous episodes when their son, William, and his cousin, William Parcels, were the two horsemen who rode to the home of their uncle and aunt, the Millers, in Missouri in 1838. After that, the Linder, Miller and Parcels families converged on the west side of the Chariton River in pre-Adair County. Jacob and Jane Linder spent their last days in this location as they watched their two sons, William Parcels Linder and Andrew Hynes Linder, and their families grow and become successful contributors to the development of Adair County, Mo. Jacob Linder died in 1855 and Jane (Ferguson) Linder in 1866. They have no known tombstones but are assumed to have been buried in the Salisbury-Parcels Cemetery (as previously discussed). Jane's sister, Sarah (Ferguson) Miller who went to Oregon in 1845, died there in 1867. This left only the third sister, Catherine (Ferguson) Parcels who lived until 1884, dying in Kirksville at the age of 88 (more on her life later).

It is worthy to note here that a brother of these three Ferguson sisters named Usher Ferguson (1783- 1808), married Margaret Linder (1783-1803), a daughter of Jacob Linder of Hardin County, Ky. This made these families even more entwined.

Now, we turn to the history of the two Linder brothers in Adair

County, William Parcels Linder and Andrew Hynes Linder, sons of Jacob and Jane Linder who came to this area in 1839, from Coles County, Ill. These two brothers wasted no time in developing Adair County. In 1842, they petitioned the Adair County Court to erect a 10-foot dam on the Chariton River for a grist mill at what later became Sloan's Point. In the petition, they promised that "no damages will accrue to any ... mansion, house, garden or orchard by overflowing from such dam" and that "ordinary navigation and fish passage will not be obstructed by ... such dam." The petition also stated that "the health of the neighborhood will not be materially annoyed by such."

This dam and mill were started by the Linder brothers but not completed by them. They sold out, presumably for a profit, to a man named Clem. Thus, this water mill became known as Clem's Mill rather than Linder's Mill. Later, this mill was sold to Phillip Sharr (1836-1891) and became Sharr's Mill. This was actually keeping the mill in the Linder family as Mr. Sharr's wife was Emeline (Linder), daughter of Isaac Linder (1798-1879), another branch of the Linder family.

Sharr's mill was swept away by breaking ice and a rise in the Chariton River on March 25, 1875. A correspondent for the North Missouri Register newspaper who witnessed this calamity wrote the following: "Sharr's Mill has floated to parts unknown. The heavy ice knocked the props from under it, and it went. I heard the crash and jumped from my bed and would have stopped it, but I didn't have any stopper!"

There is an interesting side note to this mill story: Andrew Hynes Linder had a son, William Parcels Linder II, born in 1839. This William II, tells the story of helping the Sharr family, after he was grown, to dig a foundation for a building on their property on the east bank of the old channel of the Chariton River. Part of this foundation was dug out of a hillside. During their work, they realized they had inadvertently dug into an Indian burial mound, one of many which have been found along the Chariton River. They found that they were uncovering bones and artifacts in this mound. William II, took a thigh bone which seemed unusually long and compared it to his own. The bone was about four inches longer than his, and he stood over 6 feet tall. He concluded that this must have been a very tall Indian.

A large ax head weighing 3-½ lbs. was also passed down in the Linder family from William II. He said it came from Sloan's Point. It measured 6-¾ inches long, 4-¾ inches wide and was nearly two inches thick. One end was sharp and the other was rounded. It was assumed this was from the Indian mound dig. At least two generations of Linders used this ax head as a door stop. William, II, always said, maybe jokingly, that it was so big it must have belonged to that big Indian whose bones he had once held in his hands!

100 Years Ago, July 16, 1923

Hundreds of cars traveled the country roads of Adair County on a hot summer day. The sultry weather was conducive to such an outing and the county roads were in excellent condition. At about 4 p.m. a thunderstorm producing heavy rain came in suddenly and changed conditions instantly. Several cars slid into ditches because of the greasy roads, and other drivers found traction impossible in the mud and simply abandoned their cars. Stranded drivers and their passengers made their way back to Kirksville and waited for the roads to dry.

90 Years Ago, July 23, 1933

Nine cars of a Wabash freight train derailed north of Kirksville near Floyd's Creek. The locomotive and some cars containing perishable freight continued its run northward. Eight of the freight cars contained shelled corn which was spilled when the cars overturned. Workers went to work shoveling the corn into wash tubs and dumping it back into the cars that had been set upright. Passenger trains employed a unique system to bypass the derailed section. The entire cargo, passengers, and baggage were transferred by trucks and taxicabs and placed on another train that continued its journey by bypassing the destroyed section of rail. The northbound and southbound trains stopped at the wreck site, exchanged loads with each other, and then the two trains backed up to Moberly and Moulton, respectively.

85 Years Ago, July 17, 1938

A group of boy chicken thieves were caught stealing chickens by a group of vigilantes. The group of six boys ranging in age from twelve to sixteen all lived southwest of Kirksville and had been conducting a well-organized theft ring. The boys entered the homes and outbuilding of residents of the Prough community while they were gone and took household items, chickens, and pigs. Mrs. Arkes Munn told the authorities that out of her flock of 200 chickens, she had about 72 left. Fred Luman had two pigs stolen, and Ernest Drury of Kirksville had his pants, a pocketknife, and some money stolen from his automobile while he was swimming in the Chariton River. Another farmer in the area reported that he had a shotgun stolen from his home. A group of angry citizens of the community organized to solve the thievery. The group of residents surrounded and captured the boys in a ravine near the Prough schoolhouse. They had chickens in their possession that they had just stolen.

85 Years Ago, July 22, 1938

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Eichorn, who had been in the grocery business in Kirksville since 1930 opened a new grocery store at the corner of Missouri and Franklin Streets. The building was remodeled, redecorated, and contained a roomy grocery department and a meat department. With three refrigerated meat cases, the store had one of the larger meat departments in Kirksville. They also had a refrigerated vegetable case. In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Eichorn, store personnel consisted of Ray Kopf, meat department, Mrs. Ray Kropf and Kenneth Kellogg clerks. The Eichorns started a business in Kirksville purchasing chickens and eggs and then opened a grocery store. In 1937 they opened a neighborhood grocery store on East Pierce Street. The Eichorns planned to maintain the Pierce Street store with Miss Lola Eichorn as manager.

75 Years Ago, July 23, 1948

Mr. and Mrs. Emory Crow, well known residents of Adair County, and John W. Barron of Kirksville were fatally injured in an automobile accident that occurred near Wentzville, Missouri. Mrs. Pauline Siegle, also of Kirksville, who was riding in the automobile was critically injured. The group were en route home from St. Louis when their automobile collided head on with a Trailways bus on Highway 40 just west of Wentzville. Barron, who was driving the car, died at the scene, and the Crow couple died later in a St. Charles Hospital.

According to the Missouri State Highway Patrol, the bus attempted to pass a car and crashed head on into the Barron automobile demolishing it. Joe Burdman, who employed Crow and Barron was notified of the accident who in turn notified relatives who went to St. Charles. Mrs. Crow was the former, Bonnie Barclay. Emory Crow was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crow. The Crows, who lived northwest of Kirksville, were the parents of one son, Gerald Crow. The two couples had gone to St. Louis to attend a double header baseball game between the Cardinals and the Dodgers. The driver of the bus was held responsible for the accident and was charged with manslaughter.

65 Years Ago, July 21, 1958

Day Mangus, nationally known harness horse racer of Kirksville sold his famous filly Lady Ann Reed. The horse was sold to Cecil Rhodes, Jr. of Cranford, New Jersey in a record transaction at Cleveland (Ohio) race track for $50,000. Lady Ann Reed, a 3-year-old daughter of the Volomite stallion, Wayward, and Lady Ann Pottemkin, attracted national attention last June when she shattered the world harness racing record for age, sex, and gait over a half-mile course. Her time of 2:02 minutes bettered the record time of Egyptian Princess set in 1956. The saga of Lady Ann Reed is an amazing one. Mangus purchased her for $600 as a yearling from the Reed Yates Stock Farm, Tonawanda, Illinois. Lady Ann had already won $10,104 in the 1958 season with eleven victories and six second places in twenty starts. The year before she won ten times, finished second four times and collected $10,371.

30 Years Ago, July 20, 1993

Because of continued rain and flooding, Adair County and nine other counties were added to the list of Missouri counties declared disaster areas by President Clinton. The announcement was made Tuesday by Missouri Governor Mel Carnahan's office and by Congressman Harold Volkmer's office. The addition of Adair County to the list of 49 Missouri counties already declared as disasters by President Clinton, qualified individuals and businesses in Adair County who suffered loss or damage due to flooding, to apply for federal and state assistance. Adair County's Presiding Commissioner, Bill Novinger said that he anticipated 100 Adair County residents would file for financial relief due to flood damage to their property caused by flash floods and the Chariton River's inundating crops in the river bottom. Also among those requests for assistance were residents who had sewers back up in their basements due to localized flooding in the city.

25 Years Ago, July 21, 1998

Kenny Chesney, American country music singer, songwriter, and guitarist, was set to take center stage at the 1998 Northeast Missouri Fair. Chesney graduated from college, but soon realized that country music was his calling. He headed to Nashville to launch his country music career. Sales of his 1996 album, Me and You, spurred by his number one hit, When I Close My Eyes, surpassed the half-million mark.

2023 Missouri Women's Amateur Champion Maya Mcvey. MISSOURI GOLF ASSOCIATION

And your 2023 Women's Amateur and Mid-Amateur Champions are...

By Missouri Golf Association

SUNRISE BEACH, Mo. (July 19, 2023) — Maya Mcvey (Blue Springs) is the 93rd Missouri Women's Amateur Champion at The Club at Porto Cima in Sunrise Beach!

Mcvey, who graduated high school in May and will play collegiately for the University of Central Missouri in the fall, shot an impressive two under par, 70, during the final round of stroke play, sinking five birdies and bringing her total score to even par, 144.

Our champion was closely followed by Kiser Pannier (Sedalia). Shooting one under, 71, in the final round of stroke play, Pannier is our runner-up for the Missouri Women's Amateur Championship. Pannier made a birdie on hole 18 to take the second-place spot over the 2022 Women's Amateur Runner-Up Siena Minor (Hannibal). Over the course of the two rounds, she shot one over par, 145.

Minor shot a two over par, 146, to bring home third place in the Amateur Championship flight.

Nine-time Missouri Women's Amateur champion, seven-time USGA champion and reigning Women's Mid-Amateur Champion Ellen Port (St. Louis) is our Mid-Amateur champion for the second consecutive year. Port shot two over, 74 in today's final round to win by two strokes. Over the course of the two rounds, Port shot four over par, 148. Port has been successful in nearly every avenue of women's golf, but this is only her second time as champion of the Missouri Women's Mid-Amateur.

Kallie Harrison (St. Louis) is in second place behind Port. Dannegger shot even par, 72, in the final round and found herself at six over par for a total gross of 150.

In third place, Kathy Glennon (Wildwood) shot nine over par, 153, to round out the podium for the Missouri Women's Mid-Amateur Championship. Glennon is the reigning Missouri Senior Amateur Champion.

Taking home first place in the Amateur Open Division is Jacie Pattengill (Cape Girardeau) at seven over par, 151. Behind her and placing second is Stephany Powell (Springfield) at 25 over par, 169. Jennifer Washington (Osage Beach) took third place at 44 over, 188.

Becky Haulotte (Sedalia) won the A Flight Mid-Amateur Open Division. Barbara Blankenship (Jefferson City) was three strokes behind her in second place, and Powell took home third.

In the B Flight Mid-Amateur Open Division, Susan Van Horn (Sedalia) shot the low score to take first place. Christine Tran (Columbia) was right behind her in second, and Becky Pecher (Weldon Spring) placed third.

Storylines aplenty heading into 2023 MLB trade deadline

The MLB trade deadline is one of the most interesting dates on the sports calendar each year, and this year is no exception. The addition of a third wild card spot and a number of wild division races, as well as some high profile players on the block, will potentially make this deadline one for the ages.

Perhaps the biggest storyline is the potential of the Angels trading star Shohei Ohtani, who is probably the greatest baseball player of all time. He is currently on pace to threaten the American League home run record of 62, set by the Yankees' Aaron Judge just last season, and is doing it while being the ace of the Angels' pitching staff.

He is having one of the most remarkable seasons in the history of professional sports, but unsurprisingly, the Angels' season has been wholly unremarkable. They are in danger of finishing with a losing record for the eighth-straight season.

The possibility of the Angels re-signing Ohtani, who will likely receive the most expensive contract in league history as a free agent this offseason, are slim. If Ohtani is traded, the Angels will probably get an unprecedented haul in return, and whatever team acquired him would likely get a huge boost to their World Series odds.

Ohtani trade talk will be the dominant storyline leading up to the deadline, but it will not be the only interesting thing to keep an eye on. The AL East will likely be an active division. Every team in the division is currently over .500, with the last place Yankees holding a 50-47 record.

The phrase "last-place Yankees" is one that stands out, and it will be interesting to see if they make moves to try and climb back up the standings over the last two months of the season. Ohtani is a potential target, but considering how terribly the Yankees are playing lately, that is a risky move. You would hate to go all in on 2023 by obtaining Ohtani but decimate your farm system in the process, especially if they are unable to re-sign Ohtani this offseason. They may be too far out of it to make that move.

The rest of the division could potentially make additions as well. The Baltimore Orioles are one of the most surprising teams in the league and recently took over first place in the division from the scuffling Tampa Bay Rays. They now have the second-best record in baseball and have a ton of young players they can trade to bolster their pitching staff. It seems that a major prospect is debuting every other day for Baltimore. Maybe the Rays will try to gain an advantage through a trade. The Blue Jays and Red Sox are also worth keeping an eye on.

ADAM TUMINO
DAILY EXPRESS SPORTS

There are other teams that expected to compete in 2023, but now approaching the deadline have to make some tough decisions. The Padres and Mets spent tons of money in the offseason, and both currently sit in fourth place in their divisions.

Just a few months after having championship expectations, will either of these teams sell off veterans that were just recently added? The Padres are just 10 games out of first place and have a younger roster than the Mets, and are probably less likely to fully sell. The Mets, however, are 17.5 games out of first place and are led by a pair of starting pitchers, Max Scherzer and Justin Verlander, who are 38 and 40 respectively. If the Mets do not think they will be able to win a championship with these two, it may be time to move them.

The White Sox are also disappointing. They did not spend nearly as much money as the Padres or Mets, but were still expected to compete in a frankly terrible AL Central division. The Central is indeed terrible, but the White Sox are even worse. The first place Twins would be in last place in the AL East, but the White Sox would be near the bottom of every division with their 41-57 record, the fifth-worst in baseball.

Starting pitchers like Lucas Giolito, Lance Lynn or even Dylan Cease could be valuable pieces for trades. Shortstop Time Anderson seems like a viable trade candidate, but is in the middle of the worst season of his career and rates as one of the worst players in the game this year. Still the White Sox are a deeply broken organization, and their failure could help a lot of other teams stock up on pitching for the playoff push.

But Ohtani is the real prize here. There is a chance he commands the biggest haul ever in a trade and then just a few months later signs the richest contract in sports history. What makes that even crazier is that he is actually worth it.

SUDOKU

Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

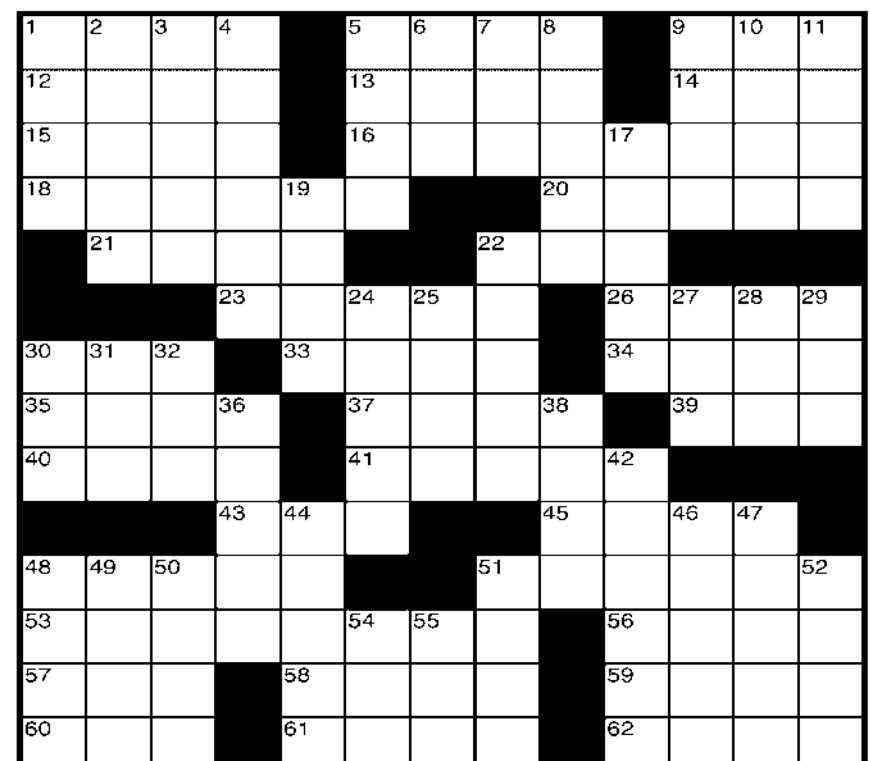

9x9 Sudoku grid with some numbers filled in: Row 1: [ ] [ ] [ ] 8 [ ] [ ] 5 [ ] [ ] 2; Row 2: [ ] [ ] 6 [ ] [ ] 9 [ ] [ ] 7; Row 3: [ ] [ ] [ ] 8 3 [ ] [ ] 5 [ ] 6; Row 4: [ ] [ ] 5 3 [ ] 7 [ ] [ ] [ ] [ ]; Row 5: [ ] [ ] [ ] [ ] 8 [ ] [ ] [ ] [ ]; Row 6: [ ] [ ] [ ] [ ] [ ] 3 9 2; Row 7: 8 [ ] 4 [ ] 7 9 [ ] [ ] [ ]; Row 8: [ ] [ ] 5 [ ] 2 [ ] [ ] 3; Row 9: 2 [ ] [ ] 3 [ ] [ ] 6 [ ] [ ]

How you do things and handle others will be crucial. Use your connections to get the most out of whatever you pursue. An opportunity to improve your living space or make a move looks promising. Take a course or sign up for a class that leads to mental, physical or financial improvement. Don't be afraid to step into the spotlight. CANCER (June 21-July 22) -- Speak up and discuss the possibilities. Open your doors to those looking for answers, and make yourself available. Helping others will give you insight into certain troublesome situations. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) -- Set the standard instead of letting someone else dictate your actions. Look at investments that require discipline but offer high returns. A change of heart is likely. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) -- An open mind will lead to opportunities. Consider what interests you and how to turn it into something that pays the bills. Travel, seminars, reunions and socializing will all be featured. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) -- Do something that will make a difference. Planting flowers or trees, taking up a worthy cause or offering your services at your local food bank will help the planet and people in need. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) -- The knowledge you gain will encourage you to rely on yourself instead of on a certain smooth talker. Simplify your life and broaden your horizons. Learn all you can. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) -- Don't take others' words to heart. Do your research and question anyone trying to convince you to do something that doesn't sit right with your con-

Help out people having trouble seeing the truth. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) -- Rethink your strategy before you overreact, indulge or promise more than you can deliver. Focus more on looking and feeling your best and making the ones you love feel good about themselves. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) -- You'll develop unique ideas. Don't let anyone discourage you from pursuing your dreams or doing things differently. Trust your instincts and follow your heart; everything will eventually fall into place. ARIES (March 21-April 19) -- Cut loose and have some fun, but don't go overboard when it comes to eating, drinking or temptation, especially if you are in an environment that includes professional associations. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) -- Use your energy wisely. Taking on too much will leave you cutting corners and falling short. Plan your actions and execute your intentions with energy, enthusiasm and zeal. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) -- Be methodical when making changes. Don't argue or let emotions cause an unstable situation to spin out of control. Discipline will help you focus on your goals and ease stress. *** COPYRIGHT 2021 United Feature Syndicate, Inc.
