Missouri State Highway Patrol encourages parents to talk to kids about safety as school year approaches

By Missouri State Highway Patrol

It's Time For School! August has arrived and with it the 2023-2024 school year. The Missouri State Highway Patrol would like to encourage parents to include conversations about safety when preparing their student for school. It's also important that drivers be prepared for the change in traffic patterns as students begin another year of instruction. In 2022, two people were killed and 361 injured in traffic crashes involving a school bus. In Missouri last year, a total of 884 traffic crashes involved school buses.

Troopers hope everyone will review these safety tips:

Motorists

Always be vigilant, but especially near school zones, playgrounds, bicycle paths, and crosswalks when schools are in session. Expect pedestrian and bicycle traffic to increase near schools on days where the weathnaling. It's important to maintain your bicycle in good condition.

If you ride a school bus, check the weather and dress accordingly. Wait in line for the bus on the shoulder or sidewalk. Use the handrail when getting on or off the bus. Never try to retrieve items that fall under the bus and walk at least 10 feet in front of the bus when crossing the street. Sit quietly on the bus and keep the aisle clear. If anything goes wrong, stay calm and follow the instructions of the bus driver.

Most traffic crashes involving young drivers (under the age of 21) occur between 3 p.m. and 4 p.m., when school typically lets out. Many of these drivers are young and inexperienced. Parents: It is important to encourage those young drivers to remember driving is a full-time job. Using a cell phone, texting, or adjusting the radio can be the distraction that leads to a traffic crash. It's also against the law for this age group.

Missouri railroad safety crossing plan unveiled one year after Mendon crash

Focus on 47 passive crossings on the three passenger rail lines in Missouri

By MoDOT

JEFFERSON CITY - The Missouri Department of Transportation, on Aug. 3, unveiled an independent report with recommendations to address passive rail crossings in Missouri, specifically on the three rail lines that carry passenger rail. Following the June 27, 2022, tragic Amtrak crash near Mendon, Mo., that took the lives of four people, Missouri has responded with the new FY2024 budget signed by Gov. Mike Parson providing an historic $50 million General Revenue investment. The data-driven report outlines the plan to work with the railroads and the communities who own the local roads at the 47 remaining passive public rail crossings in Missouri.

"Railroads in Missouri serve as a vital component sustaining and growing the economy in Missouri, but there are more than 1,400 locations in Missouri where roads cross these tracks without warning lights and gates," said MoDOT Director Patrick McKenna. "This new historic level of general revenue approved by the governor and general assembly provides an opportunity to focus on the highest priority needs

The three passenger rail routes operated by Amtrak through Missouri are the Southwest Chief on BNSF line and Missouri River Runner and Texas Eagle on the UP lines. The study recommends various improvements to enhance safety, reduce exposure and eliminate grade crossing conflict points. Recommendations vary for each location, in terms of complexity and cost, ranging from advanced warning enhancements, crossing realignment, approach grade improvements, flashing lights and gates upgrades, closures, new roadway connections, and ADA sidewalk enhancements.

"These changes are critical to address safety along these passenger rail lines in Missouri," said Director McKenna. "We look forward to working with er is good. When schools are in session, drivers should expect a change in traffic patterns school buses, parents taking their children to school, and many young drivers will join other motorists on the road and affect the morning and afternoon commute. Whatever route you drive, expect this additional traffic and prepare by allowing extra time to reach your destination.

Missouri law states that on a two-lane road, if a school bus is stopped and displaying warning signals while loading or unloading children, drivers must stop when meeting and following the bus. However, it is only necessary to stop on a four-lane highway when following the bus. Drivers, when you see a stopped school bus, stay alert and follow the law. Children may not be aware of traffic and dart unexpectedly into the roadway.

Students

If you're walking to school, stay alert! Cross the street at intersections or marked crosswalks and never between parked cars. Use sidewalks when they are available. If it is necessary to walk on the roadway, stay close to the left edge and step off to the left when traffic approaches. Never dash into the street after a friend or to retrieve something.

Riding a bicycle to school is a fun way to travel. If you're riding your bike, be sure to wear a helmet and obey all traffic signs and signals. Ride as near to the right side of the roadway as is safe and use the proper hand signals when you plan to change directions, slow, or stop. Never carry passengers. Keep both hands on the handlebars except when sig-

Parents

Parents are encouraged to talk to their children about riding a bus, walking, or driving to school in a safe manner. If they ride a bike, please make sure they wear a helmet and follow traffic laws.

PUBLIC HEALTH CORNER

Vaccines help to prevent diseases

By Brandon Carlyle, B.S., CHES® Health Educator, Adair County Health Department

Welcome to this week's Public Health Corner, where we raise awareness for healthy living. community resources and pressing issues that may affect the health of our community. This week we are going to talk about the importance of immunizations because August is National Immunization Awareness Month!

According to the Center for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), thousands of American adults are getting sick each year from diseases that vaccine can prevent. For patients with asthma or COPD, vaccines are an important step in protecting themselves from the serious implications that can arise from diseases like the flu or pneumonia. Getting Vaccinated also helps to protect the greater community by helping stop the spread of potentially life altering or threatening diseases. Some diseases have been completely eradicated, thanks to the disease mitigating effects of vaccinations.

State laws establish vaccination requirements for school children. These laws often apply not only to children attending public schools but also to those attending private schools and day care facilities. All states provide medical exemptions, and some state laws also offer exemptions for religious and/or philosophical reasons. Below is a quick guide to help you find out what vaccines your child might need before the school year:

Students entering Kindergarten, 8th, and 12th grade will need vaccines.

Kindergarten: Required: Dtap, Polio, MMR, Varicella

(Vaccines protect against: Diphtheria, Tetanus, Acellular Pertussis, Polio, Measles, Mumps & Rubella, Varicella)

Your child can receive Kindergarten vaccines any time after their 4th birthday.

8th Grade: Required: Tdap & MCV4

(Vaccines protect against: Tetanus, Diphtheria & Acellular Pertussis, Meningitis ACWY)

Recommended: HPV9 (Vaccine protects against 9 different strains of Human Papilloma Virus)

Your child can receive 8th grade vaccines any time after their 12th birthday.

12th Grade: Required: MCV4

(Vaccine protects against Meningitis ACWY) Recommended: Men B (Vaccine protects against Meningitis B)

Your child can receive 12th grade vaccines any time after their 16th birthday.

If you are unsure if your child needs vaccines or would like to schedule an appointment with the Adair County Health De partment Clinic, please call (660) 665-8491 Option 1. Many other local clinics, pharmacies and hospitals also offer vaccinations. The Adair County Health Department provides vaccines for children, the uninsured, Medicaid programs, and private insurance.

ROBIN WRITES

Drive big or go home

y car is evidently out of style. I didn't think so until I began looking around at stoplights and on the highway.

I drive a sedan. It is the shape of cars most of us have owned at one time or another over the last 50 years or so; long front, low roof, long bumper, four doors. It's the car kindergarteners draw.

It isn't that old. I still have a warranty on the drive train (whatever that is). My odometer has a sensible, sedan-sized number showing, and my tires still have good tread.

But my car is just that. A car. Now, every vehicle I see has a different shape than mine. And all of them promise more excitement strictly by virtue of their names.

SUVs have taken over the world. While I was rolling along in my Sonata, enjoying a smooth, sensible ride, the rest of the driving population decided they needed something different.

A SPORT. UTILITY. VEHI-CLE. A car with a square back and a taller top to project a more progressive traveling experience.

They putt past me in various sizes, but all have given up the sleek, gradual slope of a back bumper. They don't have a trunk; they have an open area behind the back seats to accommodate their groceries.

It's not that I don't like the style of these vehicles. I've just never entertained the idea of my needing a utility vehicle. I need my car for driving on pavement. I don't plan to suddenly scale a mountain or navigate a dusty trail, searching for adventure.

Where are all these drivers going that require a bigger, sturdy block of metal? Is the mileage better? Is the ride smoother? Am I missing something?

The people in the SUVs around me are not outfitted in shades and safari hats. Their arms are not planted akimbo on an open window frame, tan from off-roading. They're not hauling heavy equipment atop the inevitable hitch on their flat back bumpers.

Most drivers around me look middle-aged, many are toting children. Some are my age, looking cooler and somehow more substantial than I do inside my round car.

They're sitting higher than I am on their bucket seats, and I wonder if the world looks/feels different up there.

And even though some of these cars are mini or mid-sized, they intimidate me in the way their Lego-like bodies border my turtle-like car on every side.

It's not just the style of car I'm driving that makes me feel out of fashion in the motoring world. The color of my car clashes with today's palette.

My Sonata is bright blue. It gleams its vivid primary color and stands out in the sea of dull hues around me.

The SUVs everyone seem to be driving are painted in colors that make my eyes sad. Gray. Black. Dull silver. Midnight blue. persona-bereft white.

Oh, there are occasional flashes of red out there on the road. And even an occasional lime green KIA Soul will flitter past. But when did we strip our vehicles of individuality?

So, here I am, driving my pretty sedan, sitting just inches from the striped highway line, and wondering when my car became so outdated. Do people around me see me as a granny in her jalopy (God love her)?

Now that I see how the driving landscape has changed around me, maybe I need to catch up. I guess it's time to enjoy this new car-shape experience.

I have a hankering for SPORT. I want the option of UTILITY capabilities. And all that comes in a new VEHICLE.

There's no way I'm getting a dull color, though. I'd pay good money for a purple SUV.

Fireflies or lightning bugs?

By Caleb Jones | cjones@amec.coop

his past weekend our kids were up way past their bedtimes running through our yard chasing insects that light up. While I believe this should be a summertime requirement for every child (and most adults), it sparked an argument between Lindsey and me.

Are these light-producing insects that grace our yards and farms fireflies or lightning bugs?

As it turns out, where you live likely determines what you call them. I even found a map explaining it. My wife is from Smithville, on the western side of the state, which makes her Team Fireflies. My central Missouri roots have me on the right side of the divide, where we call them lightning bugs.

I kept digging and found out firefly is more common in the West, where wildfires are prominent. Along those lines, the lightning bug label overlaps with the region of our country that receives the most lightning strikes.

These debates remind me of our electric cooperative system. I had a co-op board member tell me, "If you have seen one co-op, you've seen one co-op." What does that mean? Well, it goes along with one of the seven cooperative principles - autonomy and independence. These big and fancy words really just mean cooperative member-owners (each of you) drive the success and future of your local cooperative.

What makes this successful is each of our electric cooperatives do things a little different because each cooperative service area is different.

Whether it's ensuring your electricity stays affordable and reliable, supporting economic growth, helping our youth become leaders or promoting broadband, your electric cooperative is trying to help its local community in the most impactful way possible. Your electric cooperative can do this because the leadership, employees and board of directors live and work in the same communities they serve. They know the local needs, and the decisions they make affect their family, friends and neighbors.

Wherever you live, whatever you call it, your electric cooperative is focused on one thing — improving lives in rural Missouri. Now if we could just get those little bugs to generate electricity.

Ripples in time and space

Sitting on the bank... of a park pond... I chuckle when it's called a lake, I threw in a rock... out to the center... just to watch the ripples it'd make. Those ripples... they rhythmically moved... slowly 'till they reached the shore, Each rock I threw... kept it going... kept it going more and more.

Everything that you do... every person you touch... creates a ripple in time and space, And the ripples you make... can make things better... making this world a better place.

The Linder Building looted, shot at and sold

By Blytha Ellis, President Adair County Historical Society and Museum

In Part 61 of this history we learned about the life of the original William Parcels

Linder (1819-1885) who was one of the two horseback-riding young men who came to pre-Adair

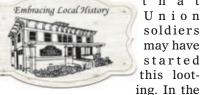

County, Mo., in 1838 to check out the land. He settled in Adair County in 1841 and was later able to purchase extensive land around Kirksville. One of his greatest achievements was the construction of an impressive three-story building in 1858 on the southeast corner of the Kirksville square known as the Linder Building. In Professor E. M. Violette's "History of Adair County" (1911), he states that the Linder Building was "considered a very fine building in those days."

When the Kirksville Branch of the Bank of St. Louis did not use the ground floor of his building as he had hoped, he established his own dry goods store there, probably the biggest store of its kind in Kirksville. The second floor was used for various offices over the years, and the third floor was home to the Odd Fellows Lodge No. 96.

Then, the Civil War came along, and it was a very troubled and unruly time for the City of Kirksville. We have probably all heard about the Battle of Kirksville in 1862 (and this will be discussed in detail later), but trouble was afoot in Kirksville even in 1861.

In August 1861, a group of Confederates northeast of Kirksville had a skirmish with a Union detachment, and this is where the first Civil War death occurred in Adair County, that of Corp. Hervey Dix (who will also be discussed later; and, yes, Hervey is spelled correctly). After this, Brig. General Stephen A. Hurlbut entered Kirksville in defense of a Union detachment here. He wrote a report on August 21, 1861, to Brig. General John Pope in St. Louis describing his actions. In the book, "War of the Rebellion" (Official Records of the Civil War), Series I, Vol. III, page 134, we learn some important information about William Parcels Linder. General Hurlbut ends his report with, "I send this by messenger who is visiting St. Louis to see Mr. William P. Linder, cashier of the Branch Bank [of St. Louis] of this city [Kirksville], who has FOOLISH-LY FLED." Of course, William had a good reason to flee from Kirksville. He was a Southern sympathizer and knew he was in danger when the Union force came into town. An Adair County lawyer named Peyton F. Greenwood, wrote a memory in Violette's "History of Adair County." He described how he himself left Kirksville with his uncle and stayed in a hotel in the small town of Nineveh in Adair County for about a week while General Hurlbut's troops were in Kirksville. Mr. Greenwood said when he returned to Kirksville, "I saw that the store building of William Linder, on the southeast corner of the square, broken open and looted ... I saw farmers, whom I regarded as good honest citizens, put into their wagons goods of various kinds, such as domestic and calico, taken from Linder's store, and carry them home."

It is believed that

ing. In the "Kirksville Democrat" newspaper dated August 23, 1861, issued by the 3rd Iowa Regiment, it reports that "our boys have taken certain liberties with the property of absconded traitors." This seems to refer to William Linder without mentioning his name.

Of course, by leaving Kirksville, William also lost his job as cashier at the Kirksville Branch of the Bank of St. Louis. In about 1863, the Linder Building was purchased by the bank. Writings indicate that at this time the Bank considered moving into the Linder Building, but it does not appear that this ever happened.

The Brewington Dry Goods Store moved into the first floor of the building where William had conducted his own dry goods business before he fled Kirksville. In 1865, the second Adair County Courthouse was destroyed by fire. Another Courthouse was not built until more than 30 years later in 1898-99. Therefore, it was necessary for the offices of the county to conduct their business in rented offices in Kirksville. At least some of these offices used the second floor of the Linder Building. The "Kirksville Journal" newspaper also used part of the second floor.

In Dr. A. T. Still's autobiography, he writes that he had three or four early friends who welcomed him to Kirksville and tried to help him in his quest to develop osteopathy and put it into practice. In those early days, Dr. Still advertised himself as a "magnetic healer" and practiced from the 2nd floor of Charles Chinn's store on the square in Kirksville. Still wrote that Mr. Linder, who knew him as a boy, stayed with him to help him for six months as he believed in Still's philosophy, and they "did well."

One may remember back in Part 55 of this history, the two cousins, William Henry Parcels Jr. and William Parcels Linder on their horseback ride to pre Adair County in 1838 happened to stop at a farm in Macon County to ask for directions. They talked with a man and his 10-year-old son in a watermelon patch. The 10-year-old boy was the future Dr. Andrew Taylor Still. So, indeed, William Parcels Linder had known Dr. Still since he was a boy.

Then, Dr. Still wrote that Linder "had mines of silver in Arizona, and left for them. I never saw him again, but I remember his strong arm and good advice, and will love him with my last breath."

110 Years Ago, August 4, 1913

A Kirksville resident, Mrs. Ivy Chevalier, age 45, and her twelve-year-old daughter, Ella, were criminally assaulted and murdered at their home at 1216 South First Street. The bodies were found about 7 a.m. and were still warm. Officials believed the woman and her daughter had not been dead more than three hours. The couple were beaten to death and their bodies left in a pile on the pallet on which they had been sleeping. Soon after the bodies were discovered, the news of the tragedy spread over town, and a large crowd collected at the scene of the killing. Many women in the crowd were weeping and one woman fainted. Adair County Coroner Gashwiler was summoned to conduct an inquest. Dr. B. B. Parrish, who was first called to the scene of the murders testified at the inquest that he examined the bodies and found that both mother and daughter had fractures of the skull just over the left eye, and it appeared that both fractures were made by the same blunt instrument. A flatiron was found lying on the floor near the bodies of the victims, and it was suspected of being the instrument used to commit the murders.

110 Years Ago, August 5, 1913

An announcement was made that as soon as the new Odd Fellows building was completed on the old Willard Hotel site (north end of the west side of the Kirksville square), a new bank would be opened. The formal contract for the lease had not yet been signed, but there was a verbal agreement among the parties. The name of the new bank was not chosen, but it was later named the Bank of Kirksville. The bank was a state institution and was expected to begin operations with a capital of $50,000.

85 Years Ago, August 2, 1938

A spectacular fire destroyed a Kirksville landmark. The old Wabash depot building located on the west side of the railroad tracks at the Jefferson Street crossing was practically destroyed in an early morning fire of unknown origin. The contents of the building were burned and damaged. The building was owned by the John Young Estate and was not insured. The old building was one of Kirksville's landmarks having been built as a depot for the North Missouri Railroad (later Wabash) when it was completed to Kirksville in July 1868. It was partially burned in April 1885 and again damaged by fire on June 1, 1895. After the second fire, the citizens of Kirksville petitioned the railroad to build a new depot, and one was constructed in the center of West Washington Street near the present-day Travelers Hotel building. It was occupied in November 1895. This building, which was a wooden structure, was destroyed by fire on December 19, 1907. It was replaced by a brick structure that was used as a passenger depot until Kirksville rail passenger service was suspended. In 1966, the brick structure in the middle of Washington Street was demolished to make way for the extension of Washington Street to Osteopathy.

Kirksville's first depot, a wooden structure, was located on the west side of the railroad tracks north of the Jefferson Street crossing. It was a passenger depot from its construction in 1868 until a new depot was constructed in 1895 at the Washington Street site. For several nesses to the assault said Lorton went to the door of the office of Tuttle and asked him to come out as he wanted to talk to him. When Tuttle got to the door, Lorton told him to remove his glasses, then grabbed Tuttle by the shirt collar. struck him in the face and head several times. Tuttle was knocked down twice before bystanders stopped the affair. Tuttle was 65 and Lorton was about 50.

Dianthe Truitt. daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Truitt of Novinger, took first place in the Adair County 4-H "Share the Fun" talent contest at Greenwood School. She presented a revue which included accordion music, singing, and tap-dancing. Miss Truitt was also the winner of the contest the year before. A square dance team from the Fairview 4-H club won second place. The team was comprised of Marjorie Rogers, Cheryl Partin, Treva Helton, Patricia Newman, Ronnie Rogers, John Shockey, Mike Denslow, Noel Lee McClanahan, and Lawrence Newman, caller. These two winning numbers were to represent Adair County in the upcoming district contest. The talent show consisted of seventeen acts that were under the direction of Mrs. Mildred Marrs, county home agent, and Gaylon Fanning, County extension agent.

65 Years Ago, July 31, 1958

A violent lightning storm dealt a costly blow to one of Missouri's most widely known Aberdeen Angus herds. Frank Eitel of the Frank Eitel and Sons Catalpa Grove Angus farm southeast of Green Castle said that he found sixteen head of his breeding herd dead in a cluster of cottonwood trees 200 yards east of his house. He went out to check his cattle during a lull in the storm and discovered the strike. Eitel reported that nine cows and seven calves were found under the trees, all killed by the tremendous bolt of lightning which struct around six o'clock in the morning. Eitel told a Daily Express reporter that a conservative estimate of the loss was around $5,000 on the livestock market. The cattle were part of the Eitel breeding herd which was considered by some as the state's best registered Angus cattle. A sister of one of the cows was the champion female at the state Angus sale in Columbia earlier in the year. Steers from the cows killed proved to be valuable animals as one sold for $1,100. It was the champion at the San Antonio, Texas stock show. Eitel was in the process of preparing some of the cattle for the fair circuit.

Odd Fellows until 1871. During the Battle of Kirksville, which was fought around the town square on August 6, 1862, the Linder Building received damage when a Union cannon ball was shot through the third floor and made a direct hit to the lower lefthand corner of the large, framed charter of the Odd Fellows which was hanging on the wall. The hole in this cherished parchment paper charter was repaired by the lodge members as well as could be expected and re-framed. The Odd Fellows Lodge in Kirksville was discontinued in recent years, and this original charter was donated to the Adair County Historical Society Museum. This treasured historical artifact has not been altered since the days when it was patched after the cannon ball damage. It is on display in our museum at 211 S. Elson in Kirksville.

William P. Linder did return to Kirksville after the Civil War. Surely it must have been painful for him to see the grand building which he built and which still bore his name, to no longer be owned by him. In 1875, he became associated with Andrew Taylor Still in an early attempt by Still to use his theories in a professional practice. In a letter written by John T. Hannah, a Kirksville grocery owner, he states that Dr. Still and "Old Bill Linder and Jess Conner tried to develop massage treatment here. It didn't go." However, others had a different opinion.

Kirksville again, but the date and reason are unknown. We know that he was in this county at least until 1877 when he ran as a Republican for Adair County Clerk but lost. His final years remain a mystery. Perhaps he did have investments in silver mines in the southwest as Dr. Still indicated. According to William's descendants, he died in Silver City, New Mexico Territory, on December 9, 1884. His burial location is unknown. However, some believe his body may have been returned to Kirksville for burial in Forest Llewellyn Cemetery because his wife, Lucinda, and two sons, Andrew Hynes Linder II and William Parcels Linder Jr., are buried there.

(Much of this information was taken from the writings of Marvin Dean Linder, descendant of the Linder family in Adair County, available at the Adair County Historical Society Museum.)

Four men were promoting the new bank, but there were numerous smaller stockholders that included wealthy farmers of the area. Three of the primary promoters were W. L Toler, of the Kirksville Hardware Co., C. G. Young, a banker of Connelsville, and H. B. Young of Kirksville.

100 Years Ago, July 30, 1923

Mrs. Thomas Cragg, who resided four miles east of Sublette, was severely bitten by a stray mad dog at her farm home. One hand and arm were badly lacerated. The family heard a commotion in the chicken house, and upon investigating the dog jumped from a clump of weeds and bit Mrs. Cragg several times before it could be beaten off. The animal was killed, and an examination showed symptoms of rabies. Dr. C.M.C. Willcox, county health commissioner, stated that every dog should be watched, and if it showed any symptoms of becoming mad, it should be killed. He added that every dog in cities and towns should be either muzzled or tied up.

Jess Lorton of Kirksville made a vicious attack with his fists on Adair County Collector George Tuttle just outside the collector's office in the Adair County Courthouse. Lorton was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Claib Atteberry and charged with assault. Adair County Prosecuting Attorney, Charles E. Murrell, Jr. stated that the attack was caused by Lorton becoming enraged over a financial transaction between the two men. Wit-

Less than 3 weeks until 1st weekend of fall sports for Kirksville

By Adam Tumino

The weekend of Aug. 25 will be a busy one for several Kirksville teams. That is when the 2023 fall season officially gets underway. Four Tiger teams will begin the season that weekend, which is now just three weeks away. Let's take a look at what to expect from each as the openers near.

Girls Tennis

The first Kirksville team to begin the 2023 fall season will be the girls tennis team. They will host Hannibal on Aug. 25 at 4 p.m. The Tigers are coming off a 2022 season in which they posted a 5-7 team record. Their season ended with a dramatic loss to Chillicothe in the conference title match on Oct. 4.

A relatively inexperienced team last season, the Tigers graduated just one senior in Brynn Williams. The valuable experience gained by the rest of the team's players will come in handy against Hannibal, which posted a team record of 9-6 last season. The Pirates beat the Tigers 7-2 in the season opener last year.

Boys Soccer

The second team to get underway this fall will be the boys soccer team. The Tigers will play their opener on the road against Southern Boone with the game starting at 6:30. They will then play another road match against Hannibal on Aug. 31 before playing their home opener against Moberly on Sept. 7.

The Tigers went 6-11-3 last season. They opened the season with four-straight losses before bouncing back with back-to-back wins over Moberly and Mexico by a combined score of 8-1. Those two wins began a 3-1-3 stretch for the Tigers. They went 3-6 the rest of the way.

Some highlights include the previously mentioned win over Moberly to snap the losing streak and a 7-1 win over Canton on Oct. 13 in which the Tigers set their season high in goals. Their last win of the season was a 2-1 victory over Fulton on the road. Fulton was 13-11-1 last season and was the winningest team the Tigers bested in 2022.

The opener will be a rematch of last season's opener against Southern Boone, which Kirksville lost 3-1. The two teams tied 1-1 in a matchup later on in the season. Southern Boone was 11-11-1 last season and advanced to the Class 2 District 4 title game before ending the season with a loss to Helias Catholic.

Football

The football team will wrap up a busy first day of action for Kirksville, and for the sixth-straight season they will face Macon for the opener. Kirksville will be the host this time after losing last season's opener 27-14 in Macon. Kirksville last beat Macon in 2020 by a score of 35-25 and have gone 1-4 against Macon over the last five seasons.

Kirksville went 6-5 last season, posting a winning record for the thirdstraight year. They averaged 30.9 points per game on offense and allowed 27.2 points per game. The Tigers will be without some of last season's top contributors, including starting quarterback Isaac Danielson, top receiver Jalen Kent and leading rusher Drew Chrisman.

Macon was 9-2 last season and doubled up its opponents on average, scoring 31.1 points per game and allowing 15.5. They will also be without some of last season's top contributors. The game between the Tigers is set to kick off at 7 p.m. on Aug. 25.

Softball

The last Kirksville team to begin the season in that opening weekend will be the softball team. They will be participating in the Lady Pirate Leadoff Classic in Boonville on Aug. 26. The Tigers went 16-9 last season, and it all began with them going 2-1 in the Leadoff Classic.

They beat Smith-Cotton 4-0 to open the season and blew out New Franklin 15-5 before falling 5-4 in the final game against host Boonville. The two wins were the first of four shutout wins for the Tigers in 2022.

They posted their fourthstraight winning season and have not finished below .500 since 2016. Kirksville averaged 6.8 runs per game last season and have not averaged below six runs per game since 2016. They allowed 4.4 runs per game, their highest in the last four years, but lower than in the five seasons before that.

The Tigers will look to win the district tournament for the first time since winning back-to-back titles in 2018 and 2019. They fell in their first game of the tournament to Warrensburg last season.

Truman football team's top individual performances from 2022

By Adam Tumino

Training camp gets underway on Aug. 8 for the Truman State football team. The Bulldogs are looking to build on a strong 2022 season which saw them finish the year as the No. 25 team in the nation.

As an experienced roster gets back to work in preparation for the season, it is a good time to take a look at some of the top individual performances last season. When a team goes 9-2, there are sure to be plenty of standouts.

Quarterback Nolan Hair, Sept. 10

The running game gained a bulk of the yardage for the Bulldogs in 2022, but quarterback Nolan Hair proved he was capable of greatly impacting the game from the pocket at times throughout the season.

Perhaps Hair's best game came in the Bulldogs' first win of the season against South Dakota Mines on Sept. 10. He set season highs with 228 passing yards and three passing touchdowns. All of his touchdowns came in the first half as the Bulldogs took a 20-6 lead into halftime. They held on for a 27-20 win.

Truman quarterback Nolan Hair evades a pass rusher in the game against Missouri S&T on Oct. 8, 2022. PHOTOS BY ADAM TUMINO

The running game had yet to find its footing early on in the season, but Hair was able to make plays with his legs as well. He led the team with 53 rushing yards in the game with four other players combining for 56 more yards on the ground.

Tight End Chris Kerr, Sept. 10

It is unsurprising that Truman's top receiving performance of the season came in the same game as its top passing performance. Tight end Chris Kerr was behind his fellow tight end Matt Hall in every category in 2022, but that was not the case against Truman defensive back Ben Thomas (21) and linebacker Ulysses Ross wrap up a Missouri S&T player in the game on Oct. 8, 2022.

South Dakota Mines.

He grabbed five catches for 90 yards and two touchdowns in the game. He set single-game highs in receiving yards and receiving touchdowns for Truman players last season.

Kerr will have a chance to build on this production in 2023 with Hall no longer around. Kerr ended last season fourth in the team in receptions and yards and tied for second with three touchdowns.

Defensive Back Ben Thomas, Oct. 8

Picking a top defensive performance from the Bulldogs last season is difficult. There were often a high number of players making an impact on that side of the ball, but the single-game high in total tackles belonged to Ben Thomas against Missouri S&T on Oct. 8.

Thomas recorded 12 total tackles in the game, 10 of which were solo tackles. He also had a tackle for loss and a pass breakup in the game. He finished third on the team with 58 total tackles last season and led the team with 44 solo tackles. His 10 pass breakups also unsurprisingly led the team, as did his five interceptions. He set the single-game high for the Bulldogs with two interceptions in the season opener against Davenport, starting off the year on a strong note.

Running Back Denim Cook, Oct. 29

Starting running back Shamar Griffith was one of the top rushers in the GLVC in 2022, but freshman Denim Cook posted likely the most impressive game of the season for a Truman runner.

On Oct. 29 against Quincy, Cook gained 154 yards on the ground despite having just 12 carries. He also ran for four touchdowns, the most rushing touchdowns in a game for a Truman player last season. This was part of a late-season push that made Cook the clear number one option in the backfield entering 2023.

Griffith was hardly outshone against Quincy, however, gaining a season-high 177 rushing yards on 29 carries. Griffith also ran for 165 yards and three touchdowns against McKendree the week after Quincy, but Cook's showing against Quincy gets the edge here due to his low number of touches in comparison to his production.

THAT A BABY

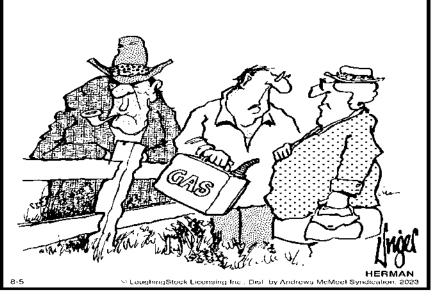

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

"I think we're in trouble. He doesn't even know what a car is!"

ASTROGRAPH BY EUGENIA LAST

Explore the possibilities, but don't sign up for something that stresses your budget or interferes with what's important to you. Balance and integrity will be necessary when faced with peer pressure or unreliable people. Aim to nurture what's good in your life, and set high standards and goals that help you reach your dreams. Make peace a priority.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) -- You can stretch your mind and think big, but ultimately, be practical and do what will benefit you most. Don't follow the crowd. Do your own thing and stand out for your ingenuity.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) -- Focus on each task and ignore what others are doing. Attention to detail is essential. Get the results you require to make your next move. Don't let uncertainty stand between you and your dreams.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) -- Call on your posse and get the collective point of view before sounding alarms or heading in a direction that has its flaws. Refrain from changing anything that isn't in dire need of fixing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) -- Paint an innovative picture of what you plan to do next. Don't expect everyone to like the changes you make. Do your best to accommodate others, but not at the expense of disappointing yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) -- Make judgments calls based on facts. Try to invest more time and money into the lifestyle that makes you happy, but don't overspend if alleviating stress is the objective.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) -- Deal with shared expenses, commitments and matters that can disrupt your life. A sensitive alternative will be difficult for others to reject. Be forthright and make suggestions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) -- Rethink your strategy regarding investments, handling money and what you can offer. Don't let others influence the decisions you make for yourself. Don't pay for others' mistakes.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) -- Attend a reunion or walk down memory lane with someone you haven't seen for some time, and the information you gather will enrich your life. A positive change looks profitable.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) -- Simplify your life, make plans that aren't taxing, stick to a budget and surround yourself with people you love. Protect yourself financially, emotionally and physically.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) -- Someone will lure you down a path that can taint your reputation. Make plans that feed your intelligence and encourage you to do something charitable. What you put out you will get back twofold.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) -- Refuse to let anyone guilt you into something you don't want to pursue. Trust your instincts and put your efforts into personal goals that offer a positive alternative to any negative influence.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) -- Don't trust others to handle your affairs or to lead you in the right direction. A practical choice will encourage positive development that can influence your long-term goals.

Kids stunned and angered by father's secret life

DEAR ABBY: My brother and I recently found out my father, who has been married for more than 30 years, is having sexual relations with other men. This man accused my brother of being gay (he's not), claims to be religious and sleeps next to my mother every night. I am not sure how to approach this because, honestly, I'm still in shock. My brother is furious.

We found a secret email address of Dad's along with messages to men he has been meeting. Some of them describe him bringing men over while our mother is at work. He tells us he is going to a store, to visit a friend in the hospital, etc., but we found out that he's really been sneaking around with other men.

Our mother doesn't know any of this, and it was an accident that my brother and I found out. (We were ridding his computer of a virus.) Should I say something to my father? How do I approach it? How do I forgive him for accusing my brother of being gay when it's him all along? Should I say something to my mother? How do I get my brother to stop being so angry at him?

I feel like I could go on forever with a million questions, but more than anything, I'm heartbroken, confused and angry.

JEANNE PHILLIPS DEAR ABBY

Our community and culture frown upon gays. I have nothing against the LGBTQ community because my generation is different and I have some close friends who are gay, although I don't tell my father because he says he thinks it's "disgusting." I am not sure how to approach this. Please help! --HOLDING DAD'S SECRET

DEAR HOLDING: If attitudes were less judgmental, I am sure many more LGBTQ individuals would be more open about it. From your description of your father and the community you live in, he must be filled with disgust and self-hatred. It's not your job to assuage your brother's anger at the father who projected shame of his own sexual orientation onto his straight son.

I do think you should have a conversation with vour father about what you discovered, and the sooner, the better. If your father has been doing more than "sleeping" next to your mother, she needs to be checked for STDs -- just as she would if her husband were sleeping with other women. Give your father a deadline by which he has to come clean with her (if she doesn't already know), or YOU WILL. Then follow through.

DEAR ABBY: I was recently married, and I didn't invite several of my cousins, some of whom are quite dramatic. While I care about them, we aren't close, and I rarely hear from them. I don't regard a wedding as an excuse for a family reunion, so I chose to invite friends who are like family and who have demonstrated they wanted to be a part of my life. I'm now getting backlash from those who were not invited. Was it wrong to invite only the people I knew were genuinely happy for me and my new husband? -- NEW BRIDE IN TEXAS

DEAR BRIDE: If inviting emotionally distant relatives would have meant you couldn't invite close friends, you did the right thing. However, if you think the cousins who were excluded were distant before, you will likely find they may not only be distant but also absent in the future. Everything has a price.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD...

Suspicions Confirmed

Zookeepers at the Columbus Zoo in Ohio were taken aback on July 20 when Sully, an 8-year-old western lowland gorilla whom they had assumed to be male, gave birth. Sully has lived at the zoo since 2019, United Press International reported. "It's hard to tell the sex of younger gorillas," the zoo said in a statement. "They don't have prominent sex organs." They said Sully had been healthy and did not need any procedures or medical care that would have clued them in to her gender. "Sully is taking good care of (the baby)," zookeepers said, adding that eventually they'll do a DNA test to find out which of three males is the father.

"Cigarettes can harm the health of all of us," Lo told a meeting of the Legislative Council's health service panel on July 14. "When members of the public see people smoking in nonsmoking areas ... we can stare at the smokers. Everyone on the premises can stare at that person." He believes this behavior would help create a nonsmoking culture in the city. He also said authorities would use surveillance footage to crack down on smokers flouting the rules.

Saw That Coming

... or not. At 11:55 p.m. on July 22, a speeding boat with eight people aboard left the water at the Lake of the Ozarks in Missouri and crashed into a home along the bank. KMIZ-TV reported that Adam Ramirez, 47, was driving the boat when the accident happened. After the boat hit the home, it overturned and ejected all eight passengers, who were taken to a hospital, six of them in serious condition. Two people in the home at the time were uninjured. Ramirez was charged with boating while intoxicated. Travis Coleman with Tow Boat US Lake of the Ozarks said crashes on the lake are common, and alcohol and darkness can play a large role.

Nature Gone Wild

A bird rarely seen in the Northern Hemisphere dropped into Pebble Beach, California, on July 21, KS-BW-TV reported. The Nazca Booby, which at this time of year is usually living and breeding in the Galapagos Islands, was delivered to the SPCA of Monterey County; officials there said it was emaciated, cold and injured. Beth Brookhouser said the bird had to be kept in an incubator and fed through a tube while it recovered. It had wounds on its back that appeared to be from fishing hooks. Once the bird has healed, the SPCA hopes to reintroduce it to the wild.

Bright Idea

Hong Kong's health minister, professor Lo Chung-mau, is urging public shaming as a remedy to unlawful tobacco use, Sky News reported.

like "chewed bubblegum" and has a "smoky" flavor, according to Burger King. CNBC reported on July 13 that the BK Barbie Combo comes with a cheeseburger, a pink vanilla-flavored milkshake, a doughnut sprinkled with pink frosting and an order of Ken's potatoes (also known as fries). The combo is not expected to be offered in the United States.

News You Can Use

Trader Joe's announced on July 21 that it is recalling two types of cookies that may have rocks in them, National Public Radio reported. The Almond Windmill Cookies and Dark Chocolate Chunk and Almond cookies have been removed from the grocery chain's stores and destroyed, the company said, but those who had previously bought them can return them for a refund. "Please do not eat them," they urged customers. The company didn't specify how the rocks came to be in the cookies.

The Golden Age of Air Travel

In late July, a woman on a Spirit Airlines plane hit her limit, the New York Post reported. "The plane is stopped ... I cannot hold the pee!" she shouted in a video as she pulled down her pants and squatted in a corner to relieve herself. "I need to (urinate), two hours ... you close the (bathroom) doors," she said, telling a crew member she should "blame yourself." The video was posted on July 20, but it is unclear where the incident took place.
