Public's help identifying tire slasher suspect leads to charge

By Kirksville Police Department

The Kirksville Police Department would like to make residents aware that their help identifying a suspect regarding several reports of vehicle damage last year has led to a felony charge.

On April 12 and 13, 2022, Kirksville Police received reports of slashed tires on seven vehicles in the 400, 500 and 800 The damage to these vehicles totaled just under $2,200 to repair. Police were able to identify a suspect, Michael Douglas Thomas, 50, formerly of Shelby County, with the aid of the public after releasing the suspect's photo. Kirksville Police applied for an arrest warrant for Thomas in May 2022, however, he had already fled the area.

Thomas was since charged in

Power outage triggers fire alarms

Staff Reports

A power outage in Kirksville on Tuesday, Sept. 27, set off the fire alarms at Truman State University, causing McClain Hall to be evacuated and the Kirksville Fire Department to respond. According to university officials, there was no incident on the campus. According to Ameren Missouri, the outage began at 1:50 p.m. when a bird flew into a substation and caused some equipment damage. All customers were restored by 3:10 p.m.

Build My Future

Missouri high school students attend giant construction career day event in Macon

Staff Reports

Over 1,800 area high school students attended the "Build My Future, a Construction Career Day & Industry Showcase" held at the Macon County Fairgrounds on Sept. 20. The full-day expoincluded construction demonstrations and industry representatives.

According to The Associated General Contractors of Missouri (AGCMO), which put on the event, Build My Future provides students the opportunity to spend a day in the construction industry — beginning with a safety talk followed by "hands-on" experiences.

High school students from 56 upstate Missouri high schools plus two home schools, were present at the event, while 43 construction industry exhibitors and industry officials and representatives from 33 sponsor organizations provided an "interactive industry experience" for students. A total of 155 teachers, advisors, parents and volunteers attended.

Throughout September and October (Construction Careers Month), AGCMO is highlighting the current construction climate in Missouri, discussing today's construction workforce needs and available training opportunities.

The construction industry serves as an important engine to Missouri's overall economy. At the same time, there is a critical workforce shortage in the industry. There are exceptional workforce development and training programs in existence along with good-paying career opportunities immediately available.

United Way of Northeast Missouri holds their 2024 Campaign Kickoff & Cork Pull

Staff Reports

The United Way of Northeast Missouri (UWNEMO) held their Campaign Kickoff & Cork Pull on Wednesday, Sept. 27 at the White Oak Barn in Kirksville. Luminaries from throughout the local area attended the event, which included a buffet of free food, raffles and giveaways.

Representatives of all 11 agencies that United Way supports set up at tables along one wall where they answered questions and talked about how they use the monies they receive from the proceeds of the campaign. Attendees were given an "Agency Passport" when they arrived, which they had signed by the agencies involved when they visited their tables. A drawing was held after the passports were returned and Gina Shorten won four movie tickets donated by the Downton Cinema 8 and a pizza donated by Pagliais Pizza.

For children attending, there was face painting and airbrush tattoos from Hollywood Face Painting, which offered their services for free. The program, which was hosted by United Way of Northeast Missouri President Chade

Shorten, began with the 2024 campaign film: "The Faces of the United Way", which was produced by Ryan Halstead of Halstead Photography.

The video featured beneficiaries of the United Way agency's services and en-tee Chair Ramey Weichelt.

After the video, guests were entertained by a performance of the Illusion man State University. Six students from the school, dressed in black, danced in a short musical presentation in front of the attendees.

Following the performance, a Wine Cork Pull was held where 31 lucky winners who bought $25 raffle tickets at the door, received a bottle of wine purchased by the United Way board members and gift cards donated from local restaurants and businesses.

At the end of the evening, President Shorten and Drive Chair Selby unveiled the 2024 year's goal, $180,000, and a thermometer showed they had so far reached 40 percent of that goal. (United Way members at A.T. Still University have been raising funds since Sept. 1).

Truman State University Planetarium to host Short Film Festival

By Truman State University

The Del and Norma Robison Planetarium will participate in a global short film festival that will allow attendees to vote for their favorite picture.

Manhattan Short 2023 will screen a worldwide lineup of films linked by a common theme: how we face adversity, whether it is imposed by others or arises from personal circumstances. The 10 featured films are dramatic, sometimes humorous, occasionally magical and always inspirational.

The planetarium is one of more than 500 locations around the world to participate in the screenings. The 10 films range in running time from eight to 18 minutes. There will be four opportunities to watch, with the planetarium hosting screenings from 7-9 p.m. Sept. 29, Sept. 30, Oct. 6 and Oct. 7.

All 10 films will be screened at every showing, and attendees will be allowed to vote for Best Film and Best Actor. There is no cost to attend the festival.

The finalists hail from seven countries with films from Australia, Afghanistan, Finland, Iran, Switzerland, the United Kingdom and Canada alongside three films from the United States.

"Sunless" — U.S.

Trapped in the confines of a tiny submarine, two men disagree on how to navigate a potentially perilous issue with their vessel.

"Voice Activated" — Australia

A florist with a stutter is forced to cooperate with a voice-activated car on the way to an important delivery.

"Yellow" — U.K./Afghanistan

In Taliban-controlled Afghanistan, a woman walks into a chadari store in Kabul to buy her first full-body veil and face an uncertain future.

"Tuulikki" - Finland

When a young woman dominated by an over-protective mother plots her escape, their relationship dissolves into one of mutual suspicion. "The Family Circus" — U.S.

A Vietnamese-American family's plan to cover up a drunk-driving incident begins to unravel when their emotional baggage spills out in front of the police.

"Career Day" — U.S.

A once promising '90s pop star and his aging boy band reunite for his daughter's elementary school Career Day. They go viral. "Snail" — Iran

A loving mother strives to make her young son's singing dreams come true, but an audition takes a dramatic, unforeseen turn.

"The Record" — Switzerland

An antique musical instrument dealer obsessively plays a magical vinyl record that "reads your mind and plays your lost memories." Even the forgotten ones. "Stupid Boy" — U.K.

In London, a broken man groomed for a terrorist attack confronts a local lad who sees things differently. That can be dangerous.

While training for a moon landing, a group of Canadian astronauts are tasked with an added mission by a Native American elder.

Agent Afield: Early firearms antlerless deer season

By Adair County Conservation Agent Kevin Powell

The Missouri Department of Conservation (MDC) will have an early firearms antlerless deer season Oct. 6-8 in designated counties. This new season will allow hunters to harvest antlerless deer prior to the regular November firearms season in counties where the overall deer population has grown in recent years. The deer harvested by hunters is a key factor in managing the state's deer population.

During the early antlerless season Oct. 6-8, hunting methods allowed include longbow, compound bow, recurve bow, crossbow, atlatl, centerfire rifle or shotgun (including .410) with slugs only, centerfire handgun, air powered gun, and muzzleloader or cap and ball firearm .40 caliber or larger capable of firing only a single projectile.

The deer population trend for many northeast Missouri counties is growing. Adair and all adjoining counties will be open for this early antlerless season. The number antlerless permits has also increased from two to four. Youth hunters are still only allowed one deer during their early designated season.

Chronic wasting disease (CWD) continues to be a top priority in herd management for Missouri. It remains illegal to place grain, salt/mineral, or other food based attractants that are designed to concentrate deer. CWD counties include Adair, Knox, Macon, Putnam, Schuyler, and Sullivan. For more detailed information on your hunting are regulations the Fall Deer and Turkey booklet is available at a permit vendor near you.

For more information, call MDC's Northeast Regional Office in Kirksville at 660-785-

2420. A complete overview of Missouri's deer hunting seasons and regulations is available in the 2023 Fall Deer & Turkey Hunting Regulations and Information booklet. The booklet is available at MDC offices and retail outlets, or online at https:// short.mdc.mo.gov/4ep hen he retired, my husband was happy to have the relaxation time he'd dreamed about. He took walks. He went fishing. Visited friends. Even drove places and stayed there for a time.

That lasted about six months. Then, John decided to become a homebody. He is within 15 feet of me and constantly visible every day. He sits. Watches TV. A lot of TV. He snacks. He naps on the couch.

I ask if he was depressed. "Nope. Just relaxing."

I suggest he get a part-time job.

"Nope. I've worked enough."
So, we have become conjoined old people. My first glimpse of sunlight each day points toward his shiny face as he waits to say good morning from his chair at the kitchen table.

I am not a morning person. My lack of response and disgusted face should give him a hint.

He says he's been 'quiet as a mouse' so I could 'sleep in' until 8 a.m. He is always up by dawn, of course.

Various tasks fill his day.
The trash is his favorite job.
He breaks down tiny boxes, smashes milk cartons with a stomp, and builds a Jenga tower of refuse inside the can.

When the trash can is full to a predetermined height and heft, he pries the edges of the plastic liner from the can as if swaddling a baby. The liner is knotted—always twice—and carried with great ceremony to the larger bin outside.

Precision and neatness are virtues. John is so virtuous. I watch him straighten the edges of books in perpendicular precision to the edge of the coffee table. Line up the remotes in order of size and use. He is often rummaging in the frig, checking expiration dates.

John watches the grass growing and offers daily reports on its height. He wants to mow but waits for a measurement that justifies his doing so. And when it's time, he announces his decision as if decreeing a heraldic event.

"I'm going out to cut the grass." I don't know whether to smile at the minutes of solitude this will gain me or remain stoic to commemorate his noble intention.

Sometimes, I suggest hobbies for him. He isn't interested in hobbies, he says. A waste of time, he says.

He IS interested, however, in reporting on the squirrel activity/ neighbor movement/cars speeding outside the front windows that I can also clearly see through.

During retirement, John has developed a few other quirks I am finding to be detrimental to my sanity.

John blows his nose the moment I walk into the kitchen each morning, heralding my arrival. I imagine him waiting from dawn, building up nasal bulk. He pulls out his handkerchief with a magician's flourish and honks proudly.

The minute I take the last sip of coffee or tea, he is there, reaching out a hand to take the cup to the sink. I feel him following me, as if I'm a whirling dervish of dirt and he's a human Dustbuster.

When the final moments of a streaming mystery begin to reveal the damning evidence that identifies the killer, John coughs loud and long. His cough timing also seems tailor-made to disrupt any moment I need to hear the news or the voice on a phone call.

We should be used to each other by now. I'm sure I'm no picnic to live with, either. But retirement is a serious test of even the best marriages.

I am alternately happy to have John around and pray that an earthquake will create a fissure in the back yard that drops him and his lawn chair down to a depth that will take him a couple hours to crawl up from.

Once a day.

t was just one of those crazy mix-ups, you know. Like when one thing goes wrong it triggers another thing that goes wrong and that sets off a multiplicity of crash-and-burns that are remembered long after people are dead and nations fall to Visigoths and such.

That's what happened with our buddy, Dud. You see, he was there at a time when something was needed, and he stepped forward and assumed the role.

It was the high school band, of course. We love them. There aren't that many of them, but they're great kids and try hard, and Mr. Garcia has really whipped them into something that can carry a tune. Every honk and wheeze was special to us. So when the planets lined up the wrong direction and Sagittarius was in the outhouse or something, Dud was there.

It began when Mr. Garcia got called away on a family emergency. His dad, I think. So he wouldn't be at the pep rally before the football game. Another teacher was planning to step in and lead the band through the cheers, but the entire horn section, all four of them, came down sick.

So it was decided that the band wouldn't play at the pep rally this time, and the cheerleaders would just cheer a capella, as it were.

We were surprised when Dud walked into the auditorium carrying his accordion and waving to the crowd. He sat down out front and began to play waltzes and a couple of polkas. The cheerleaders didn't know what to do to "The Tennessee Waltz," so they just sat down and waited for Dud to run out of tunes. It didn't take

We sorta clapped at the end there, mostly from relief. Later, over coffee, Dud was still on a high.

"Did you guys like the music? I knew I could help."

"Well," said Doc, "maybe if you could find some Sousa marches for the accordion."

"That would help, eh?"
"Well, that, and having
Mr. Garcia back."

Empty fields and blackouts

By Caleb Jones cjones@amec.coop here is nothing more stressful to a farmer than a field of square hay bales all lined up in rows with dark storm clouds in the sky. Growing up, I spent many hours chasing square balers through fields, and all too often spent what felt like days squirreled away in some loft, shoving hay bales in between rafters.

It takes a certain skill set, not usually taught in schools, to load that truck bed full of hay so you don't have to come back with another trailer.

Each bale had a very specific place it had to go in the truck bed to make sure you weren't reloading it halfway home.

For my brother and I this was a science. At one point the Jones brothers were back-to-back hay hauling champions at the local fair.

This year, the drought in many areas caused a hay shortage. Empty barns forced folks to ship in hay from other counties and states. All too often the talk around the local coffee shops was focused on important questions: Do I have enough hay to feed through winter? Are there enough hay fields for everyone?

Similar discussions are going on with the electric grid. Across the country we are seeing utilities shutting down coal and gas plants and building solar farms. This looks like a great opportunity, but what happens when the sun isn't shining?

The answer is scary. Utilities all around us are sending out warnings to their customers preparing them for blackouts. Just last week a friend told me his electric company shut off his air conditioner for a couple of hours in the middle of the day (we can talk about how a utility shuts off air conditioners later). We live in the greatest country in the world — how did we get to a place where power for some can't be taken for granted?

The right explanation is often the simplest. We have more cows than ever but are getting rid of hay fields, expecting someone else to supply us with hay. Likewise, why would large parts of the nation shut down reliable generators and hope someone else can help them through crisis times?

The good news is Missouri's electric cooperatives know why electricity is vital. Rather than shutting down power plants and replacing them with something that only works when it's sunny, we are building two new gas generation plants to provide you, our member-owners, reliable electricity.

Good farmers do whatever it takes to make sure their cows eat. Likewise, your local electric cooperative is doing everything it takes to make sure you have the electricity you need — on sunny and cloudy days.

Flu vaccine is the best way to protect yourself

By Brandon Carlyle, B.S., CHES® Health Educator, Adair County Health Department

Welcome to this week's Public Health Corner, where we raise awareness for healthy living, community resources and pressing issues that may affect the health of our community. This week we are going to discuss the importance of getting the Flu shot to protect yourself and your community from the harmful health consequences of getting sick with the Flu. Next week on October 4th from 11am to 6pm the Adair County Health Department will be hosting the Annual Drive Thru Flu Clinic at the NEMO Fairgrounds. This will be an excellent FREE opportunity to get a Flu shot for Adair County Residents and Students.

The best way to protect yourself and your loved ones against influenza (flu) is to get a flu vaccine every flu season. Flu is a contagious respiratory disease that can lead to serious illness, hospitalization, or even death. Most people who get the flu have a mild illness. But for some, it can be very serious and even deadly. Serious complications from the flu are more likely in babies and young children, pregnant women, older adults, and people with certain long-term health conditions, such as, diabetes or asthma. The CDC recommends that everyone six months and older get an annual flu vaccine.

Flu vaccines have a good safety record. Hundreds of millions of Americans have safely received flu vaccines over the past 50 years. Extensive research supports the safety of seasonal flu vaccines. Each year, CDC works with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and other partners to ensure the highest safety standards for flu vaccines.

Getting vaccinated every year is the best way to lower your chances of getting the flu. Flu viruses are constantly changing, so flu vaccines may be updated from one season to the next to protect against the viruses that research suggests will be common during the upcoming flu season. Over time, your protection from a flu vaccine will decline, which is why yearly vaccination is needed to achieve the greatest protection. The flu vaccine itself does NOT cause the flu. Keep in mind that getting the flu vaccine also protects the people around you. So, when you and your family get vaccinated, you help keep yourselves and your community safe and healthy.

The Adair County Health Department urges you to consider getting the flu shot to protect yourself, your family, and your community from the potential health consequences of the flu virus. If you have questions or are seeking additional information about our upcoming Drive Thru Flu Clinic on October 4th, please call us at (660) 665-8491.

The Big Drop

A nice warm day... the bird seed's spread out... I thought I'd sit and watch everyone fly in.

everyone fly in,
Something I've done... every day... again and again and again.
Just like clockwork...

the birds came swooping down.... this part of the day I love, It couldn't be better... there were cardinals and chickadees... nuthatches, finches, and doves. A day so perfect... was about to change... sprinkles started dropping all around,

But it didn't bother the birds... they kept eating the seed... the seed spread all over the ground.

And then a big drop... it hit the top of my head... it was bigger than all of the rest,

But what the heck...
it was a lovely rain...
you know I felt so totally blessed.

But then that drop... it started sliding down... it was sliding down my chin, As I looked up... I couldn't believe it... there was a pigeon with the biggest grin.

The funeral of a two-year-old girl who died from choking on a piece of an apple was held in Kirksville. County Physician L. J. Conner who was called to see the child's body before arrangements for burial were made, stated that it was his opinion that the child had choked to death. According to Dr. Conner, the mother said that she had been peeling apples in the tent in which the family lived. She left a pan of peelings and apple cores in the tent and stepped outside. Upon her return she found the child gasping for air and in a few minutes was dead. Conner stated that the visit to the tent was a sad one. The tent was pitched on the bank of a small stream just west of the Kirksville city limits. He said there were a few old tubs and boxes lying around including a cardboard box for the burial of the child. Upon entering the tent Dr. Conner found the mother with the body of the girl stretched out on a rough board. Also in the tent were four other children including a baby. The father of the girl was an unemployed miner and was a member of the Miners Union. The union was thought to be paying for the burial of the girl.

A real estate boom was taking place in Kirksville. All sixty-nine lots in the Fairview Addition to Kirksville were sold within four hours after they were opened for sale. The average sale price per lot was $100, and many of the buyers paid in cash. An easy pay plan of $1 down and a $1 a week was available. The new addition was nine blocks north of the public square and three blocks west of Willard School. A brick sidewalk was built in the addition, and it had been platted and laid off in streets. The Kirksville City Council formally accepted the addition as part of the city of Kirksville. The addition was owned by the Kirksville

When the congregation gathered in the First Methodist Church in Kirksville, members were surprised to see two whisky bottles, one full and the other half empty, sitting on the preacher's pulpit. The minister, Rev. Dr. Jones, could see the wonder written on the faces of the audience but did not offer an explanation until the end of his sermon. The sermon topic focused on maintaining a happy home which included assuring a "wall of sobriety around the family." At the conclusion of the sermon, Rev. Jones picked up the two bottles and held them out to view as he told of a disturbance which took place near his home the day before. He related how a neighbor and his nephew, ordinarily nice, quiet fellows, had gotten to drinking and then got into a bloody fight. Both were held in jail. The bottles were the ones they had, he said, and the stuff in them was at the bottom of the trouble. Rev. Jones made no attempt at sensationalism at the climax of the sermon, but the audience was strongly While members of the Presbyterian Church and visitors were enjoying a program in the auditorium of the church, thieves entered the dining room of the church and stole the cakes intended to be served with the refreshments at the conclusion of the program. There was much speculation as to who the culprits were. The loss of the cakes did not amount to much, aside from causing a delay while more cakes were obtained.

Five railroad freight cars went off the track and tore up the rails on the sidetrack and mainline of the Wabash at the Elizabeth Street crossing. Indications were that the track would be blocked for several hours. The 8 a.m. northbound Wabash passenger train was held for several hours, and it was likely that the southbound trains would be delayed for several hours as the track was torn up for a considerable distance. Several freight cars were damaged, but no one was injured in the accident.

Drs. H. D. Rodabaugh and O. H. West, Adair County veterinarians, estimated that approximately 300 horses had died of the sleeping sickness disease. Also known as encephalitis, it is a mosquito borne viral disease that primarily affects horses. The disease causes swelling of the brain and spinal cord. The two animal doctors said they were earlier unable to take care of all the calls they received, but because of cooler weather, were getting "caught up." They said that while the disease was on the decrease it would not become extinct until ten days to two weeks after the first freeze. Horse owners were advised that if they had a horse with sleeping sickness, they should call them and keep ice packs on the horse's head to prevent swelling. Farmers were encouraged to have their horses vaccinated prior to June 1 of the following year to prevent another serious epidemic.

A public reception for Lt. Dale Moritz, a navy flyer who was freed from a Communist prison camp in North Korea in late August, was going to be held in the dining room of the Travelers Hotel. Lt. Moritz was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Moritz of rural Kirksville. The young naval officer, his wife, and two-year-old daughter, Elaine, arrived in Kansas City a few days earlier and were back in Kirksville. The elder Moritz had heard no direct word from his son since he was shot down November 21, 1951. Among those expected to attend the reception was the commanding officer of Lt. Moritz's squadron, Lt. Cmdr. Herb Wiley. Several of Moritz's squadron buddies from Columbia were also expected to attend. Lt. Cmdr. Wiley was the last American to see Moritz before he became captive. After an unsuccessful attempt by a helicopter to rescue Moritz who parachuted from his plane, Lt. Cmdr. Wiley saw him roll down a hill thinking he had been hit by enemy fire. Actually, Moritz fell to escape being hit. Planes from Moritz's St. Louis installation were planning to buzz Kirksville in honor of Lt. Moritz's return from captivity.

Rainbow Basin Ski Resort was scheduled to go on the auction block at noon, October 15 at the Adair County Courthouse steps. Owner, Jack Pickett of Novinger, said there were some unpaid back taxes, but that was not the reason for the sale. He indicated that a shortage of operating capital and mild winters dealt the business a death blow. The resort was originally developed in the early 1980s by Dick Marrs, Jeff Turner and associates. In retrospect, Pickett said he was convinced that the resort could and should succeed in Kirksville. He indicated that the resort should have been organized as a corporation with the sale of stock. It was a bigger project than most individuals could handle financially. According to Pickett, when it was operating in a cold winter, the resort drew as many as 20,000 people a season, including skiers from neighboring states like Arkansas and Oklahoma.

Muddy roads cause 2 horseback riders to settle in Kirksville

By Blytha Ellis, President

Adair County Historical Society and Museum

Early in 1857, two men left Kentucky intending to make Kansas their home. They were 22-year-old William Thomas Baird and his friend and former teacher, 33-year-old William Pinckney Nason. Kansas was then just a territory. It did not become a state until 1861. In 1854, the Territory of Kansas had been opened for white settlement. The two men were at least planning to check out this Kansas land and perhaps stake a claim there. So, the two Williams struck out on this adventure together.

They first took a steamer on the Ohio River, then up the Mississippi, landing at La-Grange, Missouri. From there, they obtained horses and traveled west through Missouri, intending only to pass through the state.

But, it was a very rainy March, and the riders found the primitive roads excessively muddy and nearly impassable. The horses had difficulty carrying them through this kind of terrain. So, this made the two young men change their minds about just passing through. One friend turned to the other and said, "Why don't we stop for a bit at the next decent town and wait until this mud dries up." The other said, "That's my thoughts exactly!"

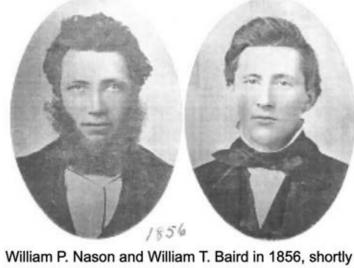

They soon came upon the developing town of Kirksville and stopped to find a place to get out of the rain, attend to their horses and clean up a bit. They only intended to stay a short while, but as it turned out, they would spend most of the rest of their lives in this place. They never did make it to Kansas!

William Pinckney Nason (1824-1909) was born in South Carolina, the 7th of 9 children. His father had come to this country from Dublin, Ireland. The family moved to Georgia when William was a year old. He attended a country school near Franklin College (now the State University of Georgia). In 1839, his parents moved to Mississippi where William worked on the family farm. But, his heart was not in farming. He rather preferred education. However, he was very unsettled, not really sure of his direction in life, so he wandered around for a while.

He tried a term of college in Tennessee, attended an academv back home, then taught his first school in Mississippi. In January 1850, he went to Texas on a steamboat, purchased a horse and traveled around the state. In August of 1850, he started back home to Mississippi going through the forests of Louisiana and the Mississippi swamps all alone except for his faithful horse. Back home, he taught again until the spring of 1852. He then went to visit his youngest brother, Dr. Richard Calvin Wilson Nason, a physician who practiced in the Louisiana swamps district.

While visiting this brother and seeing his selfless ministry to the swamp people, William Nason thought maybe his calling was to become a physician and work with his brother. So, he took a steamer up the Mississippi and the Ohio Rivers to Louisville, Kentucky, where he planned to attend medical school. However, before he entered school, he visited some friends in Indiana and there discovered a physician with an excellent medical library, so he read under this doctor. In the fall of 1852, William received a letter informing him of his 24-yearold physician brother's death of malaria. This great sorrow ended William's zeal for the medical profession.

William again turned to teaching and stayed in Indiana

before they came to Kirksville winter. In the spring of 1853, William suffered some health problems of his own. He spent the summer on a farm, then went to Carroll County, Kentucky, where he taught until the early part of 1857. Here, he had a student named William Thomas Baird who became his friend. When he learned of Mr. Baird's intention of going to Kansas to make his fortune, Mr. Nason decided to go with him.

Embracing Local History

William Thomas Baird (1835-1912) was born in Carroll County, Kentucky, the 3rd of seven children and grew up on his parents' farm. His mother died when he was 11, and his father remarried and added seven younger children to the family. In his youth, William excelled at cradling wheat and splitting rails, two skills of the long-ago past. In the winter months, he attended the district school in that area and for a time had Mr. Nason as a teacher. As a young man, Mr. Baird taught school himself for a short time in Grant County, Kentucky.

It was early 1857 when Mr. Baird decided to seek his fortune in Kansas Territory where good farmland was reportedly abundant, and when Mr. Nason decided to accompany him. After they made their muddy stop in Kirksville in March of 1857, both William Baird and William Nason sought jobs to support themselves until they could continue on to Kansas. Both obtained jobs in a field they knew best and that was teach-

Mr. Nason taught two terms in a school northwest of Kirksville, then the next fall opened his own school in town and taught there until the fall of 1860. Mr. Baird taught for seven months in what was then called "Fly's District" in Adair County, then for four months conducted a school in Wilson Township.

Both Mr. Nason and Mr. Baird were devoted Presbyterians and soon became involved in the local church. There, William Baird met a girl, 19-year-old Martha Catherine Hannah, whose father ran a mercantile store in Kirksville. This pretty much ended his plans to go to Kansas. They were married August 24, 1858. Soon after the marriage, Mr. Baird took a position as a store clerk for J. C. Thatcher in Kirksville making $15 per month. He was such a good worker that his wage was soon increased to $20 per month. Mr. Baird said he really thought he had "made it" when he got that

In August 1858, Mr. Nason, who was quickly making a name for himself in the field of education, was elected School Commissioner of Adair County. By then, he was courting a good Presbyterian young lady named Sarah Cowan, daughter of Canadian-born parents. They were married in January 1859. In March of 1859, Mr. Nason was licensed to preach by the Kirksville Presbytery of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. He became Rev. Nason when he was ordained the next fall.

Around this time, the Kirksville Presbytery of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church established a school in Kirksville called the Cumberland Academy. They purchased a plot of land which is now the west end of Memorial Park and in 1860 began construction on a two-story academy building. While staff and students were waiting for this building to be completed, they approached William Nason about using the school building he had established in Kirksville. In the fall of 1860, Rev. Nason rented his school building to the trustees of the Cumberland Academy, and he taught in the Bryant School District six miles northeast of Kirksville through the next spring.

In the same year that Rev. Nason was getting married, Kirksville was getting a branch of the Bank of St. Louis, thanks in part to William Henry Parcels Jr. who was serving in the Missouri Legislature and whose life was discussed in the last two episodes of this history.

Adair County Judge B. D. Barrow was on this bank's board of directors and was a friend of William Baird. Wanting to help his friend who had just become a new father to a baby boy named Frank that year, Judge Barrow told William he should buy one share of stock in the new bank at $50, and he might get the job of bank clerk. William said he would like to, but he didn't have $50. The Judge said it would only take $10 to secure the stock, and then he could pay $40 more at the time of the bank opening. So, William paid the $10 and promptly wrote to his father in Kentucky to loan him the rest.

Sure enough, William was soon elected clerk of the new bank. This was probably due to Judge Barrow's influence and also to the fact that Matthew Hannah, the father of William's wife, Martha Baird, was also on the bank board. This was the beginning of William Baird's long banking career.

In May of the next year, 1860, William Nason and his wife also had a son. Rev. Nason named him after his old friend. The child became William Baird Nason and would live a good long life.

Now, these two long-time friends, both named William, figured they were set for life with families and careers in this location. They never regretted those muddy roads that brought them to settle in good old Kirksville, nor that they never got to see Kansas. But, then, there's much more of the story to come.

CRC's Kirksville center holds ribbon cutting celebration

Staff Reports

Local business "The Cooperative Response Center" (CRC) held a ribbon cutting ceremony at its office in Kirksville on Thursday, Sept. 28, to kick-off the introduction of dispatch service training at the facility.

From Sept. 17 to Oct, 7, 16 employees (with a combined 101 years of experience from CRC's Austin, Minn., Dunlap, Tenn. and Abilene, Texas, offices) traveled to Kirksville to help train dispatching to eight Kirksville Center employees. Once trained, the new Missouri dispatchers will work with dispatch teams at CRC's other sites.

According to CRC officials, Kirksville Center Manager Kristy Mueske, who has worked for CRC for over seven years, is also a seasoned dispatcher and will be a great resource for the training group. Mueske is looking forward to this new opportunity for the center, officials said.
"We're continuing to develop and grow the services provided by our Kirksville Center staff with the addition of CRC's dispatch services," Mueske said. "Adding the dispatch role to the services we provide here will positively impact both our membership and local community by building this additional staffing.

"The dispatch role is an integral part of CRC's importance to our membership and offers great career advancement opportunities for our employees," she added. "The drive and dedication of our staff has evolved impressively since we joined the Kirksville community in January 2022, and I'm excited to support them through this next stage of their careers."

Kirksville volleyball team beats Marshall for 3rd win in 4 matches

By Adam Tumino

The Kirksville volleyball team got back above the .500 mark with a 3-0 win over a winless Marshall team on Thursday. After a brief two-match losing streak, their first time dropping consecutive matches since the third and fourth matches of the season, the Tigers have won three of their last four to improve to 8-7 on the season.

The Tigers now have as many wins in 15 matches this season as they had in 29 in 2022. Head coach Melissa Dempsay, now in her second season, said she was happy with the team's performance of late to bring the team back over .500.

"We played well over the weekend," she said. "We talked a lot about how every point matters, which seems like something you wouldn't need to talk about, but every point matters."

With that in mind, the Tigers have been working on steadily improving throughout the season and, in particular, focused on a phase of the game that came in handy Thursday.

"Yesterday in practice we really started working on our blocking, and I thought our blocking was a lot better tonight. They're all just coming together, and hopefully we're coming together at the right time. We're going to start districts here in about two weeks, so this is hopefully the time that your team all comes together and you're starting to gel."

The Tigers go off to a strong start against Marshall, going up 4-0 and then 5-1 before Marshall cut the deficit to 5-4. Kirksville then pulled away with a 7-0 run to go up 12-4 in the set. They led by as many as 12 points in the set up 21-9, but Marshall did manage to push back before Kirksville ended the set with a 25-17 win.

The second set saw Marshall build on the momentum they gained late in the first set, and the Owls scored four of the first five points in the set. Kirksville managed to tie things up 5-5. Marshall pulled away a little more and then held their biggest lead at any point Thursday when they went up 11-8. Kirksville soon tied the score 11-11 and would not trail again, maintaining control and taking the set 25-17.

The Tigers went on a roll to start the third, holding an 11-point lead before Marshall got on the scoreboard. Marshall kept pushing and pushing, and got as close as 17-15 before Kirksville went on a run to go up 22-15 and then win the set once again by a score of 25-17.

Marshall entered the match on Thursday with an 0-15 record on the season, with the first loss of the season coming 3-2 against Kirksville. Despite their struggles this season, and over the last few years, the Owls did not make things too easy for Kirksville.

Dempsay said that she felt Marshall had improved since the first matchup a month ago, but since the Tigers were able to focus on what they needed to do with the ball, they were able to pick up the win.

"Marshall has improved since the first time we played them," she said. "We're going to play our game on our side and make sure that we do our stuff first, and then we'll adjust our defense to where they're hitting, where they're tipping, what they're doing.'

There are now four matches left on the schedule before the start of districts. The Tigers will be at home Oct. 2 against Boonville for the annual Pink Out game. Boonville is 5-5 so far, and based on record, is the easiest opponent remaining for Kirksville.

The Tigers will be on the road to play Hannibal on Oct. 4. The Pirates are 12-4-3 on the season and beat Kirksville 3-0 back on Sept. 21. Then is another road game Oct. 5 against a 11-3-1 Fulton team that beat the Tigers 3-0 on Sept. 12.

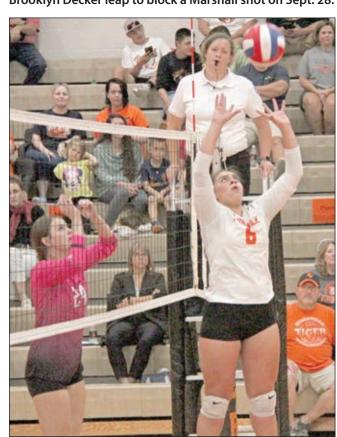

The Tigers will be back home on Oct. 10 to wrap up the regular season against Centralia. The Panthers are 10-4 and beat Kirksville 2-0 in the Hallsville Invitational on Sept. 23.

Dempsay said that those final three games will definitely be tough, but it gives the Tigers a chance to face solid competition heading into postseason play.

"We definitely have to pull it together and hopefully every rep that we we have to play without to help us in the end," she said. "We've watched film and we know those three teams pretty well. We don't have to play flawless, but have and every ball touch mental mistakes. Volleythat we have is just going ball is such a mental game. The crowd can get the best of you, even you can get the best of you. We talk about how the most important play is the next one."

Previewing upcoming conference openers for GLVC football teams

Saturday marks the start of conference season for the football teams of the GLVC. There will be four conference games featuring all eight GLVC teams on Sept. 30 as the mixed results from non-conference play will soon be in the rearview mirror. Let's take a look at each game coming up Saturday and what each team has done up to this point.

Truman State at McKendree, 2 p.m.

One of two 2 p.m kickoffs will begin a game between the conference's top-ranked and bottom-ranked scoring defenses so far this season. Truman wrapped up non-conference play with a 4-0 record, the best in the conference, while McKendree comes into the game with a record of 0-3.

The Bulldogs have allowed just 12 points per game so far this season, surrendering six touchdowns and two field goals in their four games. Their last two games were 21-7 Saginaw Valley State and 41-7 over Wayne State.

McKendree has had a tough schedule to be sure, and the results have been tough as well. They lost their first two games to Tiffin and West Florida. Tiffin got the 30th-most votes in the AFCA Coaches Poll last week while West Florida is currently ranked sixth in the nation. The Bearcats then lost to Minnesota State Moorhead.

McKendree's offense has struggled without quarterback Turner Pullen, who had one of the best seasons in school history in 2022. Without him, the Bearcats rank last in the conference in passing offense, averaging 181 yards per game. Truman is just above them with 201 yards per game, but Bulldog quarterback Nolan Hair's completion percentage of 70.4% compared to McKendree quarterback Caleb Fisher's completion percentage of 59.8%. They are averaging just 11.3 points per game this season.

Truman quarterback Nolan Hair scrambles downfield in the game against Saginaw Valley State on Sept. 16.

McKendree also ranks last in the conference in rushing yards per game, while Truman ranks third with an average of 164.5 rushing yards per game. Bulldog running back Mason Huskey leads the conference with seven touchdowns, five rushing and two receiving. He ranks fifth with 122 all-purpose yards per game.

Southwest Baptist at Quincy, 2 p.m.

Quincy posted the thirdbest record in the GLVC in non-conference play at 3-1, although only two of their games have come against NCAA DII opponents. The Hawks opened up with a loss to DII Chadron State before beating NIAA opponent and NCCAA opponent University of Fort Lauderdale. Those wins came by scores of 89-0 and 49-0 and skew Quincy's season stats quite a bit. The Hawks did beat DII opponent Northern Michigan in their last game.

Those two blowout wins give Quincy the highest-scoring offense in the conference so far with an average of 54.3 points per game, while their defense ranks third at 15.5 points allowed per game. Quarterback Drake Davis is second in the conference in passing yards with 883 and is tied for the lead with 10 passing touchdowns .He only has one interception on the season.

Southwest Baptist is 1-3 so far, with a win over NAIA Oklahoma Panhandle State in the season opener being the lone victory. They have since lost to Black Hills State, Texas Permian Basin and Tarleton State. The loss to Permian Basin was 86-7.

The Bearcats rank secondto-last in scoring defense, allowing an average of 39.8 points per game. Running back Abel Carter ranks fifth in the conference in rushing yards per game while quarterback Collin Sutton, a transfer from Truman, ranks fifth in the conference in passing yards per game.

Upper Iowa at William Jewell, 5 p.m.

GLVC newcomer Upper Iowa will get its first taste of conference action on the road against William Jewell, who will in turn be looking Truman linebacker Jacksyn Miller (43) and defensive back to win a conference opener for the first time since 2014.

Brock Jones celebrate a defensive stop against Saginaw Valley State on Sept. 16. PHOTOS BY ADAM TUMINO

William Jewell won the season finale against Quincy last year to snap a 26-game conference losing streak. The also won the season opener this year, beating Fort Lewis College 42-6. It was the most points the Cardinals have scored in a game since April 17, when they lost to Quincy 55-50. The Cardinals then lost to Kentucky Wesleyan 41-34 and Davenport 55-27. Davenport was ranked 21st at the time and is now at No. 18. Despite the two losses, the start to the season is certainly a vast improvement over recent years for William Jewell. They have the second-ranked scoring offense in the GLVC with an average of 34.3 points per game, 0.3 points per game ahead of reigning conference champions Indianapolis.

Running back Keaundre McCullough has been a big part of that success. He leads the conference with 108 rushing yards per game and has the most rushing yards overall at 324, despite playing one-fewer game than the conference's second and third leading rushers.

Upper Iowa is off to a 2-2 start, including a 38-26 win over GLVC member Missouri S&T in a previously scheduled matchup that did not count toward conference standings.

The Peacocks rank fourth in the GLVC in both scoring offense and scoring defense so far. Quarterbacks Marcus Orr and Darryl Overstreet Jr. have split time, but combined they have the Peacocks atop the conference in passing offense. They are averaging 282.5 passing yards per game while their completion percentage of 68.1% ranks second. Orr leads the GLVC with a 75.4% completion percentage.

Indianapolis at Missouri S&T, 7 p.m.

The final conference game of the day will feature reigning conference champions Indianapolis facing off against a struggling Missouri S&T team. Indianapolis is currently ranked No. 14 in the AFCA Coaches Poll after a 3-0 start to the season, with all three wins being rather convincing.

The Greyhounds won the opener 39-20 over Hillsdale before beating Wayne State 28-7 and Saginaw Valley State 35-10. They have the third-best scoring offense and second-best scoring deeraging 34 points per game while allowing 12.3

Ouarterback Gavin Sukup ranks third in the GLVC with 253.3 passing yards per game while wide receiver Derrick Alonzo ranks second with 383 receiving yards. He is also tied for the conference lead with four receiving touchdowns.

As a team, they lead the conference with 197 rushing yards per game. They have two of the conference's top rushers in terms of yards per game Jon Lewis ranks second with 84 yards per game while Jaden Schlabach ranks fifth with 66 yards per game.

Missouri S&T has had a rough start to the season with a conference-high four losses under their belts. The Miners lost 48-20 to Delta State, currently ranked No. 8 in the nation, in the home opener, before losing to Wayne State (Michigan) in week two by a score of 31-24. Upper Iowa then bested them 38-26 before they lost to Wayne State (Nebraska) 38-35. Thankfully, there are no more Wayne States on the schedule for the Miners.

They rank seventh in the conference in scoring offense, averaging 26.3 points per game, while their defense ranks sixth with an average of 38.8 points allowed per game. Their offense has been productive, ranking third in yards per game, but has been unable to find the endzone quite as effectively yet.

Running back Cameren Smith ranks fourth in the conference with 71 rushing yards per game. Quarterback Tyler Gioia leads the conference with 277 passing yards per game. His 10 passing touchdowns are tied for the conference lead, but he also leads the conference with seven interceptions.

Shutout win over Chillicothe puts Kirksville boys soccer team above .500

By Adam Tumino

The Kirksville boys soccer team climbed above the .500 mark for the second time this season with a 2-0 win over Chillicothe on Tuesday. The Tigers got a pair of first half goals and were able to hold on for the win over the Hornets to improve to 4-3. Chillicothe dropped to 3-9 with the loss.

The win was a bit of a bounceback for the Tigers after a 1-0 road loss to Missouri Military Academy which was the only game so far in which Kirksville was shutout. Even with that shutout loss, the Tigers are averaging the same number of goals per game, 1.9, that they did last season.

in 2019. That season Kirksville went 21-3 and won a district championship.

There is still a ways to go until districts this season as 10 games remain on the schedule for the Tigers. Only five of those opponents are over .500 so far, but the Tigers will be playing four of those teams in the next four matches.

First is a road game against Southern Boone on Saturday. The Eagles are 6-5 so far. Kirksville will be back at home Oct. 3 to host an 10-3 Hannibal team that is averaging 3.5 goals per game and allowing just 0.9.

A trip south to Moberly will follow on Oct. 5 where the Tigers will play the Spartans, currently sitting at 9-4. The final game of this tough stretch will be at home for the Tigers on Oct. 7 against Father Tolton. The Trailblazers are 8-4 and have five shutout wins so far, coming by a combined score of 32-0. Like Hannibal, they are averaging 3.5 goals per game this season.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

My most unflattering photos Employee feels passed over

Medical test wimp decides to be brave

had lime Jello for breakfast today. Guess what I'm having for lunch? Lime Jello. And dinner? You guessed it. Lime Jello is on repeat today unless I get crazy and have a little chicken broth before the Jello. I'm also drinking water, white grape juice, Sprite, and tea. If you recognize this odd diet, you've probably realized I'm 50. And when you turn 50, you don't get your driver's license, vote in your first election, or order your first fancy cocktail. You get your first colonoscopy. Tomorrow is the big event, and I'm a little terrified.

I started the mandatory "clear liquids diet" last night, and I'm continuing it today. Even though my stomach has had its share of lime Jello, I've never been more irrationally hungry. Just knowing I can't have chips and cheese dip makes me want to dive headfirst into a giant vat of queso and eat my way out.

If you're a chronic overthinker like me, the "before times" of a colonoscopy are the most challenging part. The worry. The dread. Unfortunately, I compound these emotions by doing extensive research on medical procedures in a vain attempt to alleviate my anxiety with facts and solid preparation. (I just realized that the phrase "solid preparation" probably doesn't belong in this particular column. Let's move on.)

I even read an article by two British gastroenterologists with tips on colonoscopy preparation. I enjoyed the British version because they use charming phrases, including "nip to the loo," instead of the more American version,

which sounds more like "go

camp out on the toilet." Just a few hours from now, I have to start the preparation protocol by taking the prescribed laxatives. My doctor gave me the option of drinking the medication, as most people do, or taking it in pill form. I'd already heard from a 50-something friend - whose gag reflex is as overactive as mine — that forcing down the unpleasant drink was a challenge. So, I asked for the pills instead. Doctor: "Okay, but your insurance only pays for the liquid, not the pills, which cost 60 dollars out-of-pocket. Do you still want the pills?

Me: "Here's my credit card." If it's possible to be prematurely embarrassed about something, I'm there. I'm painfully aware I'm headed into a highly vulnerable position literally and figuratively. I've scrubbed myself as clean as possible during an extra-long shower, which I'll probably repeat in the morning. And I may have put some self-tanning lotion on my backside, but not because I'm vain. It's a safety issue. What if the doctor's vision gets impaired by my blindingly white booty, and he takes a wrong turn at Albuquerque and ends up in my kidney? Could that happen? What if they find something? What if it's weird? What if pictures of my colon get uploaded to the cloud and then leaked on the Internet with funny captions? What if I'm the one person in the world who's immune to anesthesia, and I feel everything but can't utter the word "stop" for some unimaginable reason? What if, what if, what if. DURING

Me (one minute before procedure): "Are you sure this anesthesia will work on me?"

Nurse anesthetist: "Yes. Anesthesia always wins."

Me: "Zzzzzzzz."

Nurse: "It's time to wake up. You're all done." Me: "Best nap of my life. Do you serve cheese dip here?"

AFTER The doctor says my test is clear of any concerns. He gave me a post-procedure report with photos of my colon, which I unfortunately cannot unsee. (A colon is a highly skilled organ, but it's not winning any beauty contests.) Even better, my colon has the doctor's permission to go back into hiding for 10 years. As someone who avoided and dreaded this test, I can tell you that getting it over with and having the peace of mind that comes with good results is so much better than the unease and guilt of finding excuses not to do it.

If you're overdue to take this test, do it not only because you know you should but because you want your adult kids and other people you love to get the medical tests they need. If I had kept on dodging my own colonoscopy, I wouldn't have a leg left

So, call your doctor, make your lime Jello, and get it done. If a complete scaredy cat like me can do it, I know you can, too.

and stuck in a rut at work

DEAR ABBY: I applied to be a supervisor at the company where I work. Unfortunately, I didn't get the job. One of my co-workers, who held the same position I did (though with significantly fewer years of experience at the company), was given the job instead. Initially, I tried to shrug it off and continued working as usual. Unfortunately, I find I am no longer able to do that. Since this co-worker is now my boss, I sometimes receive dictation/instruction from them, which makes me uncomfortable. I have begun to feel jealous -- I'll acknowledge that. I have worked here for 10 years now, and the fact that I haven't been able to move into a higher position has weighed me down. For financial reasons, I can't resign. Somehow, I have to make this new reality work. How do I rid myself of these feelings of jealousy and learn to proceed with my new boss? -- STUCK AT WORK IN THE WEST

DEAR ABBY

DEAR STUCK: One way to do that would be to remind yourself regularly why you are there. Bottom line: You need the money. Life isn't always fair, so try harder to accept it. While you are doing that, it couldn't hurt to look around to see if any other companies are posting job openings. If you find any, make time for an interview, and -- if you are hired -- give your notice.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD

The Easily Offended

A resident of Trail in British Columbia called police on Sept. 8 to complain of a man wearing camouflage pants, which he believed to be a violation of some rule, the Toronto Sun reported. The caller, 27, said he was "offended on behalf of the military" and requested that an officer find the man and remove his pants. When the officer said he could not do that, the caller said he would remove the man's pants himself "under order of (the) king of England." The local Royal Canadian Mounted Police did look for the camouflage wearer, presumably to warn him about the caller, but -- surprise! -- couldn't find him.

News That Sounds Like a Joke

After the long-awaited capture of escaped fugitive Danelo Cavalcante on Sept. 13, Pennsylvania State Police Lt. Col. George Bivens held a press conference to share the details of the arrest, Huff Post reported. One attendant, a podcaster named Michael Rainey, gets the prize for the most bizarre question posed to Bivens: "Was there any concern he (Cavalcante) would team up with another small man to step inside of a trench coat, 'Little Rascals'-style?" What? On X, Rainey said he "knew no one else would ask the questions that needed to be asked. Also, they were very polite in asking me to leave." Bivens shot a curt "No" back to Rainey's question before the podcaster was encouraged to hit the exit.

What's in a Name?

We'll keep this short: Michael Gordon Dick, 61, of Beaverton, Oregon, was sentenced on Sept. 11 to 90 months in prison following his guilty plea for felony public indecency, KPTV reported. Dick was arrested last year after someone reported him standing on a bench in a backyard, naked from the waist down and looking into neighbors' backvards. He was on probation for the same crime when the incident took place.
