The Kirksville Area Chamber of Commerce will be giving out weekly prizes to customers of participating stores during the holiday season, in an effort to encourage residents to "Shop Local" during the holidays.

According to Marie Murphree, director of the local chamber, participating stores will have an elf doll placed somewhere in the store. When shoppers go into the store and see the elf, they can then shoot a "selfie" of themselves and the elf, put it on their Facebook page tagging the store and using the hashtag, "#selfiewithanelfiekv" and they will automatically be entered into one of five drawings the chamber will be holding every Friday at noon in December (Dec. 1, 8, 15, 22 and 29).

Thanksgiving's mixed feelings

hanksgiving. A feast of emotional angst baked in a pie. A 20-pound anchor of stuffed fowl that keeps our families from drifting apart.

There are secret ingredients in that turkey dinner. Spicy, embarrassing moments. Bland, tired storied. Subtle hints of bitterness.

And just a pinch of love-to make it all palatable.

Don't feel guilty if you are dreading Thanksgiving. Nobody wants to admit that their Norman Rockwell get-together is less than picturesque.

Your friends clasp their hands together in Pilgrim solemnity and spew a syrupy itinerary of holiday plans, complete with guest lists and seating charts.

Your Thanksgivings have never been so blissful.

But don't envy your friend as she warbles her song of joy. Her family tree may seem a wonderful place to nest, but its limbs are every bit as gnarly as your own roosting place.

You paint on a smile, tie on a bib of tolerance, and chuckle at punch lines you know by heart. You cuddle babies, hug siblings, and smile warmly at freshly washed, neatly dressed children as they run screaming around the kitchen.

Women bustle about the kitchen in radar-precise grid patterns, stirring this dish and moving that plate over to make room for more. The air is fragrant with the aroma of sage and onions.

The timer on the turkey hasn't popped up. Everything else needs to be reheated. The glasses need ice. How many places do we need? Lawn chairs and high chairs and booster seats circle the table, providing added seating and assuring clunked elbows.

Then. Finally. It's ready. Everyone lumbers toward the table, discussing hunger levels and mumbling compliments to the chefs.

The food is the same every year: Aunt Mable's cranberry relish, Grandma's burnt, (I mean, browned) yeast rolls. And Mom's famous stuffing (affectionately called 'Play-Doh on a spoon', but Oh So Good).

Fork-wielding children are wedged between monitoring adults. Shiny, salivating faces surround a meal that is as predictable and comforting as a Jimmy Stewart holiday movie.

And then, Grandpa reminds everyone of his problem with corn and the eventual gastric emergency that will follow if he indulges. A little David slingshots mashed potatoes across the table and emits a Goliath giggle.

Your sister-in-law asks if you're working anywhere or if you're still 'just a mom'.

Who wouldn't squirm against the crushing weight of all this togetherness?

The love of a family is a curious thing. It stretches across time and space like the sticky tentacles of an octopus, holding us safe with suction cups of memories that can leave irritable imprints on our skin and souls. We wriggle against its hold in our youth, only to look back with wiser eyes as life gives us greater vision.

Thanksgiving dinner, with all its chaos and complexity, helps us realize that the tattoos of those smothering hugs and less-thanperfect holiday memories are what make us who we are. Good or bad, we're tethered to this group of people with frayed emotional ties and knots of mutual memories.

So, once a year, we dress up to eat turkey with the people who know us best. Who remember everv stumble we've ever made and every dream we didn't realize. Who were there, throughout our lives, to share our joys and console us in our disappointments.

It is this mixture of ingredients that make the best meal, even if it IS served up with teasing stories about that crush you had on your science teacher, and tactless barbs of criticism at your selection of mate/career/lifestyle/hair color/clothing.

That's the price we pay for the feast of conflicting emotions that fill our hearts at Thanksgiving each year.

God bless us, every one. And pass the Play-Doh—I mean, stuffing.

The secret to training an animal

he secret to training any animal is simply timing, says the former cowboy who was unable to teach his horse to jump a twoby-four. But that was long ago, of course, and today, the wisdom age gives us makes these training secrets available to those who will accept them.

Just take our beagle, Minnie. To be fair, she lives in a one-dog house. But she also lives with three cats. It's not that Minnie is intimidated. When she is approached by a cat who isn't sufficiently awed by her wonderfulness, what she's doing isn't cringing, she's merely practicing her third-grade atomic attack position in the middle of the living room.

And we recently went through yet another of our famous Albuquerque hot air balloon fiestas. I'm sure you know about our fiesta, where hundreds of migratory birds are frightened out of their minds, the locals make millions selling champagne and propane, and the restaurants try to see who can kill the most tourists with their special mix of green chili.

Now Minnie, who can view millions of miles of sky from our yard, has a very simple solution to the balloon problem: shoot them down and kill them all. Why? Because these aren't balloons that are fun, or kind to dogs. If you listen closely, the translation is clear ..." I SEE YOU, YOU BLOATED FIRE BREATHING DOG EAT-ER! Come down here and show me your permit to fly over our house! Or come down and fight like a dog!"

Multiply that by 840 balloons, and the message makes it all the way up to the invading pilots.

Grandchildren deserve to be impressed by an ancestor's animal training abilities as well. Just ask mine about Fluffy. Fluffy is my well-trained lizard in the back yard.

In summer, I'll often look at him on the concrete block wall and order him to do push-ups for the kids. He's good at it, too.

Holidays Were Always the Best

Growing up... there was so much... I took for granted without a single thought,

Now that it's gone... I really miss it ... you really know what you haven't got.

Family reunions... playing with cousins... holi-

'm not a Black Friday shopper. I'm a Black Friday sleeper. While the stores see black on the bottom line, the only black I see is the inside of my eyelids while I dream about which Thanksgiving leftovers to eat first.

Tom and I did shop on Black Friday once. It was the first Thanksgiving after we got married, and we went to Tampa, Florida to spend the holiday with his parents. His mother had been through reconstructive surgery to have one of her feet rebuilt, so she was getting around slowly on a medical scooter — the kind where you kneel on it with one knee and push with the other leg.

As we ate pumpkin pie, my fearless, practical mother-in-law announced she would get up early on Black Friday and go to Walmart to buy scooters for two of her granddaughters. Tom and I glanced nervously at each other, imagining her weaving in and out of the massive throngs of people, attempting to carry two scooters to the checkout lane while on a medical scooter herself. Tom immediately said we'd go with her to help.

The three of us got up before dawn and arrived at Walmart a half-hour before it opened, marveling at the long line of human dominoes stretching from the doors around the perimeter of the parking lot. Tom didn't want his mom and her post-surgery foot to have to stand and inch along the long line, so he suggested we wait at the front of the store until it opened and go in after the line of people had filed inside to shop.

We walked to the front of the store and stood several feet away from the antsy mob, only to have several cranky people shout line-cutting accusations at us. Tom and I glared back at them and stopped ourselves from yelling, "Oh no! You caught us! We're using this sweet, crippled grandmother as a big ruse to get into Walmart two minutes before the rest of you. Ha ha! We're evil geniuses!" (We didn't say it, mainly because sarcasm doesn't translate well at 4 a.m. and some of those Black Friday shoppers are a little crazy.)

After the doors opened and the line flooded in, we shepherded a determined 72-year-old grandma inside to accomplish her mission. Tom and I stayed close to her, serving as a human shield so the surging crowds wouldn't bump into her and make her fall. We did get the toy scooters, but during the time it took to stand in line and pay for them, I probably could have gone to welding school and learned how to make a scooter myself.

That was my first and last Black Friday experience. I'm just not cut out for it. It's a high-pressure game that doesn't let you mull over a decision. If you mull, you might get mauled. On Black Friday, you must snatch and sprint.

I know several skilled Black Friday shoppers who treat it like an exciting group adventure, kind of like white water rafting inside a Target. It's a high-stakes safari with the thrill of hunting down something huge, tinged with the threat of the occasional stampede. It's basically a retail "running of the bulls."

But I'm a Cyber Monday kind of girl because crowds scare me and I've got the quickest click in the West. One of the things I'm most thankful for this year is the fact that there's nothing - nothing -I need or want so badly that I'm willing to run the retail gauntlet of Black Friday to get it.

National COPD Awareness Month

By Brandon Carlyle, B.S., CHES® Health Educator, Adair County Health Department

Welcome to this week's edition of Public Health Corner, wherex we are committed to shedding light on critical health issues, community resources, and the pivotal matters that shape the well-being of our community. In recognition of National COPD Awareness Month, we direct our focus to an issue of great importance-chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD).

COPD is a significant public health challenge affecting millions globally, and it's imperative to comprehend its profound impact on both physical health and overall quality of life. This complex respiratory condition poses challenges not only to individuals diagnosed but also to their families and communities.

Various factors contribute to COPD, with tobacco smoke being the primary culprit. Other risk factors include exposure to environmental pollutants, occupational dust and chemicals, and genetic predisposition. Early detection and preventive measures are crucial in alleviating the burden of COPD.

National COPD Awareness Month provides a unique opportunity to increase understanding about prevention and early detection. Recognizing the risk factors and symptoms empowers individuals to take proactive steps to safeguard their respiratory health. Initiatives promoting smoking cessation and advocating for clean air policies play pivotal roles in COPD prevention.

It's crucial to acknowledge that COPD extends beyond a health concern; it permeates social and environmental spheres. The impact reverberates through families, workplaces, and communities. We must collectively combat the stigma associated with COPD, extending support and empathy to those affected.

The statistics are alarming: COPD is a leading cause of morbidity and mortality globally, with a substantial portion of cases being preventable. This underscores the urgency of proactive measures against this disease. Prioritizing respiratory health and raising awareness about available resources for those at risk or diagnosed with COPD is paramount.

National COPD Awareness Month beckons us to unite as a community, educate ourselves about the risk factors, and offer support to those grappling with this condition. By dismantling stigma and fostering a supportive environment, we empower individuals to seek early diagnosis and access appropriate care.

For those dealing with COPD, resources and healthcare providers are available to provide guidance and support. Your physicians and local health department, COPD organizations, and support groups are invaluable sources of information and assistance.

This National COPD Awareness Month, let's stand together as a community to deepen our understanding of COPD, support those affected by it, and strive towards a future where COPD no longer poses a significant threat. Together, we can make a meaningful impact on the lives of those dealing with COPD and champion respiratory health for all.

Thank you for your unwavering commitment to the health and well-being of our community.

Socket connects more Kirksville residents to fiber network

By Socket

Socket, longtime Internet provider in Kirksville, kicked off its residential fiber build earlier this year. Since then, about 18 percent of city residents have been connected to their ultra-fast fiber network and another 12 percent is currently under construction.

With speeds up to one gigabit per second (or faster), fiber-optic technology is the fastest, most reliable connection available. Its large bandwidth capacity is considered future-proof and will accommodate increased internet usage for decades to come. Access to high-speed internet is an acute need for many rural Missouri towns and Socket continues to connect more Kirksville residents, with plans to cover the entire city.

The next phase of fiber construction will reach 1,752 more addresses, which will bring the coverage to nearly 50 percent of the city. Residents in neighborhoods west of Truman State University, and those west and south of the Kirksville Aquatic Center will begin seeing Socket trucks, equipment, and construction personnel preparing for and initiating these next fiber builds.

"We're excited to continue construction to the entire city of Kirksville, allowing more Missourians to connect to our fast and reliable network and do the things they need to: Work, go to school or do homework, and even schedule telemedicine visits. Socket is committed to its investment in constructing critical internet infrastructure to as many residents as we can." said Carson Coffman, Socket COO.

Founded in 1994, Socket is a Missouri-based telephone and internet service provider with the largest service area in the state. Socket is a privately held company that provides families and businesses a choice for local and long-distance phone and internet service. It combines the highest quality customer service with indepth technical knowledge. Socket's customers enjoy simple billing and quick, friendly service. Each winner will receive $50 in Kirksville Cash as well as a gift certificate for the restaurant "Bonzai" and a combination of other gift certificates. "Every Friday there will be a pretty decent-sized prize," Murphree said. "It is our way of encouraging people to shop local and promote local businesses for the Christmas season."

The kick off date for the contest will be on Shop Small Saturday, Nov. 25, which is also the day of the Hometown Holiday activities that include the annual Kiwanis Christmas parade and tree lighting ceremonies.

"We are encouraging people to shop small that day but we're also encouraging people to shop local throughout the Christmas season," Murphree said, noting that at the present, 32 Kirksville small businesses will be participating in the elf promotion, including several restaurants, stores, auto repair shops and insurance agencies. She said that the response from local businesses has been "tremendous" and that businesses have until next Wednesday, Nov. 22 to sign up.

"We're trying to make it simple for both the businesses and the shoppers this year," Murphree said, noting that business customers will be allowed to post one entry for each store they visit and take a picture with the elf. "The more stores you shop, the more entries you get. I encourage people to shop locally because we have a lot of great shops here."

Since the Daily Express began organizing the fundraiser in 2001, it has raised more than $132,576 for the kitchen. Last year's fundraiser raised more than $5,675. That money goes directly into feeding folks who need it. Approximately 150 meals are made each time and they are available for pickup or delivery. The kitchen began in 1999 when Kirksville High School students Rachel Higgins and Megan Lesczynski started the volunteer effort. Today, more than 100 ATSU students volunteer to cook, man the phones taking orders and delivering the meals.

To donate, people can bring a check to the Daily Express office, located at 701 E. LaHarpe Street, Suite C. Money can also be mailed to "The Kirksville Daily Express," PO Box 809, Kirksville, MO 63501 or ATSU (800 W. Jefferson Street), with "ATSU/Hope's Kitchen" in the address line. And there is also a Paypal link on the kitchen's website (hopes-kitchen.com). Donations are tax deductible.

With a minimum donation of $1, donors can have their names published in each week's Daily Express fundraising summary, as well as in a giant Christmas card that will appear in the Dec. 24 Daily Express, so include your name, business or organization when you donate and include at least $1 for each name you would like to see published. The list for that card will be finalized on Dec. 16.

New local co-ed Scout program allows girls to participate in scouting activities

Kirksville's Teagan Nolan, 10, used to stand, hold two fingers up in air — mimicking her older brother, and recite the Scout Oath and Law along with him when he was a Cub Scout. At the time, there was no opportunity for Teagan to join scouts — but that changed when Cub Scouts went coed in 2018 and Boy Scouts became Scouts BSA in 2019.

"It would have broken her heart if we had had to tell her she couldn't be a Scout," said Erin Nolan, Teagan's mother. "Fortunately, [Scouts BSA] began accepting girls into Cub Scouts, and that year was the first year she was eligible to be a Lion, which is kindergarten age."

In October, Friends of Troop 404, which is the chartering organization for Pack 404 and Troop 404 (a boys troop), received approval from Great Rivers Council to activate a new girls troop: Troop 660.

Four girls from the Northeast Missouri area came together to form Troop 660 and begin their Scouting trails. In less than a month, the new troop has grown to six girls.

The girls hit the ground running with a campout, putting up flags on Veteran's Day, and working on a number of merit badges.

The girls are planning to raise money for tents, summer camps, training equipment and other good causes.

The parent organization of Scouts BSA remains known as the Boy Scouts of America.

"We wanted to land on something that evokes the past but also conveys the inclusive nature of the program going forward," Chief Scout Executive Mike Surbaugh said of the new name in 2019.

The girls of Troop 660 are indicative of the resurgence of Scouts BSA in the post-Covid era. Troop and pack memberships across scouting are increasing and more and more youth are rising to the challenge of becoming the best versions of themselves and choosing the adventure, education, and lifelong friendships, only available through Scouts BSA, said Patrick Nolan, executive officer for the Troops 404 and 660.

"Even with our strong STEM focus through 3D-printing, laser engraving, robotics, and such, these Scouts are rediscovering the outdoors in new ways," he said. "Kirksville's Scouts are going to make a difference in our future."

The Holiday Marketplace provides an opportunity to purchase unique, one of a kind, hand crafted gifts. By Northeast Regional Medical Center

Most consumers pay significant premiums for their health insurance, but not everyone takes full advantage of the benefits of insurance coverage, especially once the annual deductible has been reached.

Using your health plan benefits for medical visits, screenings and procedures is the best way to support your overall health. And, as the current plan year comes to an end, right now may be the best time to address any outstanding medical needs, by taking advantage of paid-up deductibles or funds available in your flexible spending account (FSA).

Most health insurance plans have a deductible requirement-a predetermined amount of healthcare expense that you must cover out of your own pocket before the plan begins paying the majority of (if not all) remaining expenses. Procedures such as mammograms and other diagnostic imaging studies, colonoscopies, surgeries like joint replacements and hernia repairs, vision care, and physical therapy may cost you less if vour deductible has been reached.

Review your plan to see how close you are to meeting your deductible, or if you've already met it, because once the threshold is met, your plan may cover the expense for most additional health care services received before year end. On Jan. 1, you'll be starting over at zero towards your deductible.

"This is the time to access the medical care and services that keep you healthy by using all of the benefits in your plan," said Patrick Avila, Northeast Regional Medical Center chief executive officer. "Many people have met their deductible by this point in the year so it may be a good time to schedule any recommended procedures or medical visits before the deductible resets." The end of 2023 also affects individuals who have flexible spending accounts (FSAs) which are pre-tax dollars set aside primarily for health-related expenses. The Internal Revenue Service requires those funds to be spent, or forfeited, by December 31.

"Money in your flexible spending account is yours to use for medical expenses through Dec. 31," Avila said. "We encourage you to schedule your appointments now, allowing for time to have the test or elective procedure performed before the end of the year."

Health plans can vary in many ways, so learn how your plan works to get the most from your benefits.

Hitchracks were being installed in locations near the Kirksville public square. Once installed there would be about 3,000 feet of hitchracks for the use of farmers to tie up their horses. The farmer's agitation for hitchracks started at the time the brick pavement was laid around the public square a few years earlier. The new hitchracks were purchased by the Kirksville Commercial Club.

105 Years Ago, November 25, 1918

The Adair County Prosecuting Attorney's office received instructions from the Missouri State Highway Engineer to begin condemnation proceedings on certain sections of land needed for a new north-south state highway in Adair County running from LaPlata to Greentop. For the most part, the new highway would follow the Wabash Railroad bed. The county court had secured practically all the right-of-way for the new section of road except in a few instances where landowners would have to be sued. As soon as condemnation proceedings were completed, construction was expected to begin on the new road. Plans were also being made for an east-west road across Adair County.

90 Years Ago, November 21, 1933

Adair County had been notified by the U.S. government that through the federal civil works administration it would be the recipient of between $30,000 and $40,000 for the improvement of public works in the county. A committee, the Adair County Civil Works Improvement Committee, representing Adair County at large was selected, and it developed a tentative plan for the improvement projects in the county. The plan provided for projects not only in Kirksville but in other parts of the county, particularly Brashear and Novinger. All projects had to be approved by the county committee. The committee was composed of H. B. Young, chairman, C. J. Baxter, Dr. H. M. Still, and the judges of the Adair County Court, Sleeth, Miller, Novinger, and Traylor. The plan that was adopted by the committee included the following: 1. To grade the slopes and clean ditches on the highways; 2. To operate a rock quarry near Yarrow to crush the rock and pile it for future road work; 3. To repair brick streets in Kirksville; 4. To repair high and low crossings in Kirksville; 5. To repair and resurface roads near Novinger; 6. To repair and resurface streets and roads in and around Brashear. Many of the county roads, particularly in the western part of the county, could utilize shale for road resurfacing. The shale was available in a plentiful supply at the coal mines (mostly in the Chariton River valley) from which it had been taken.

and another thirteen were to be visited later. The trucks and gas were furnished by various organizations in the county. A representative of the War Production Board was on hand to thank all the organizers and participants in the scrap iron and metal drive.

75 Years Ago, November 19, 1948

The bodies of two Adair County servicemen who were killed in action in World War II were being returned to their native home for burial. Tech/5 James H. Robertson, the son of Clarence L. and Mary Anne (Shanks) Robertson of Brashear, was born May 11, 1924, in Linn County, Missouri. He died in France December 4, 1944. He was originally buried in the Heckenfelden, Cemetery in France and upon return of his body to the United States, he was interred in the Brashear Cemetery. The remains of the other Adair County serviceman, T/Sgt. Robert Eugene Barnett, was being returned from Europe aboard the U.S. Army Transport Carroll Victory, scheduled to arrive in New York and then forwarded to the American Graves Registration Distribution Center in Kansas City. From there the body would be transported to Kirksville for final disposition. Robert E. Barnett of Yarrow, Missouri, was the only child of Robert J. and Laura (Carnagey) Barnett, and was born at Yarrow in Adair County, September 26, 1918. At the time he entered the service on June 8, 1942, he was employed with the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC). Barnett was killed in action in Germany on March 24, 1945, while serving with the 315th Infantry, 79th Division of the 9th U.S. Army. His father was the postmaster at Yarrow and ran a general store there. T/Sgt. Barnett's body was interred in the Yarrow Cemeterv 50 Years Ago, November 20, 1973 The nation was in the throes of a gas shortage that threatened to leave the country paralyzed. Extreme measures for conserving gas at the national level were being considered by the Nixon Administration and Congress. Among the possible conservation measures being considered were, a ban on Sunday driving; a ban on sale of fuel for private boats and aircraft; closing public parks to automobiles, closing service stations on weekends; and blue laws to close all businesses on Sunday. In Kirksville, the local school district was considering its options in case the gas shortage became more critical during the winter. Dr. Charles Barker, Assistant Superintendent of the R III Schools, said there was a chance that schools might have to close during a prolonged cold spell if the supply of natural gas, the main fuel supply for the schools, were exhausted. The schools had the capability of switching to a standby fuel oil system, but fuel oil was also expected to be in short supply. Barker expressed optimism that Kirksville would have a relatively mild winter like the year before, in which case he said he thought the supply would be in good shape. But he did not discount the possibility of having to close schools if the fuel situation became critical. If that became the case the school year would have to be extended in the spring to fulfill the state's minimum days in session requirement.

John Luther Porter - Shaping Adair County - Chapter 3

By Blytha Ellis, President Adair County Historical Society and Museum

John Luther Porter's early history would not be complete without mention of a very heroic deed for which he is known. In 1860, his older brother, William, had been elected to the office of Circuit Clerk in Adair County. William hired his brother, John L., as Deputy Circuit Clerk. They worked together in this office through 1865, although they also served with the Missouri Militia on the home front during the Civil War, which was going on at this time. Needless to say, their public service was chaotic during this time, particularly when the Confederate recruits commandeered the Adair County Courthouse during the Battle of Kirksville in 1862 and were using the offices within that building from which to shoot at their enemy.

When the Civil War finally ended on April 9, 1865, when Robert E. Lee surrendered the last major Confederate army unit to Ulysses S. Grant, there must have been great relief in Adair County as in all the country. However, only three days after this major victorious event, Kirksville suffered a significant tragedy!

On April 12, 1865, someone discovered a fire in the Adair County Courthouse and alerted authorities. Of course, fire-fighting services were quite primitive in those days, and flames quickly consumed the building. To this day, no one knows the cause of the fire. Some speculated at the time that it was arson, but no one really knows. When it was over, only the barest of a brick framework was stood an old, abandoned house. Seeing the potential for the old house to catch fire and spread to the factory, John L. immediately enlisted others to help him tear the house down! Thus, the plow factory was saved.

Because of the many successful enterprises in which John L. was involved after the war, he was becoming a very wealthy man. In 1881, he financed the building of what seems to be his crowning achievement on the Kirksville square, a large and ornate business building on the north side. He named it Porter's Corner. This is the building which still stands today on the northeast corner of Elson and Harrison Streets. When built, it was the largest, most elaborate structure in town. Built in the Romanesque style with a metal facade, the front of the building had five large imposing windows on the top floor. Each of the windows consisted of six separate glass pieces with rounded tops and ornate trim. It was the only example of this style of architecture ever used on a commercial business in Kirksville. It was also not common to use cast iron as a building material. These front windows can no longer be seen today as they were covered over with corrugated aluminum in 1970. However, the west side of this building which faces Elson Stret was designed with seven large windows on the top floor which matched the front. The first window around the corner from the front contained the same metal detail. However, the other six windows were surrounded only by brick. High on the ground floor were six half-circle windows on the west, replicating the tops of the large windows. The building was constructed of brick and was designed to accommodate three separate store buildings, the corner one being the largest.

small finials. In the top center of the front which faces Harrison St., there was one large metal piece which declared the name of the building as "Porter's Corner." There was an elaborate cornice surrounding the top of the building, followed by a stately dental molding. Some of the ornamentation around the curved windows imitated small Roman Columns. Previously, the location of Porter's Corner had been a row of old wooden store buildings which had burned. John L. purchased this property and turned it into the marvel which it became for the city of Kirksville.

The first known business to occupy the corner store front was the Joseph Baum Emporium which sold clothing, dry goods, boots, shoes, hats, etc. Joseph Baum (1836-1903) was born in Germany and came to the United States as a young man where he was successful in business. When Mr. Baum retired in later life, he sold his emporium to the husbands of his two oldest daughters. Jennie Baum married Harry Marks and Matilda Baum married Ben Lowenstein. The emporium then became Lowenstein and Marks in the same location. Some of the stores which would follow over the ensuing years were Kahn Furniture Store, Jones Candy Kitchen, Mackie & Williams Grocery, Western Auto, R & R Western Wear, an attorney's office, and now Sip Downtown. In the other two store fronts to the east, which are a part of this building, there were such stores as Helme Hardware, Clark Hardware, Hunsaker Hardware, a paint and wallpaper store, a lady's hat shop, Sneed's Tot Shop, Sneed's Fabric Shop, a flower shop and a jewelry store. The upstairs of Porter's Corner has also been rented out as a photographer's studio, a Labor Hall, and to serve as court rooms during the time when Adair County was without a courthouse. The latter was after the 1865 fire up to the time of the construction of the present courthouse in 1898-99. Porter's Corner was definitely not John's final achievement. He had more things planned for Kirksville, as we will discuss in our next segment.

80 Years Ago, November 22, 1943

World War II was in progress, and to support the war effort Adair County residents rounded up nearly 80 tons of scrap iron and metal. The drive was sponsored by the American Legion and the War Dads. A few piles of iron and metal remained to be collected and the city of Kirksville drive was to be held in early December. The drive was organized in each of the rural school districts with the Sperry district raising the most iron and metal with 9,160 pounds. Other districts collecting large amounts were Gibbs, Prairie Bird, and Hays. Approximately 150 men met at the Masonic Temple at 7 a.m. for breakfast provided by Kirksville merchants. After eating breakfast, the men left in 42 trucks for the various school districts in the county. Seventy-seven districts were visited left of the Courthouse. John L. Porter reportedly risked his life to enter the Recorder's Office during the fire and save valuable archives, particularly land records. Perhaps because he and his brother were also real estate agents, he knew how important the land records were.

John L. quickly enlisted people to stand near the outside windows as he tossed record books to them. At that time, one must realize that such records were kept in large books, painstakingly hand-written by clerks, and there was no backup system. Of course, by now most of these books have been digitized, and records are kept on computers. But, one of the books saved by John L. Porter is still in existence and is on display at the Adair County Historical Society Museum, 211 S. Elson Street, in Kirksville, open to the public Wednesdays through Fridays, 1 to 4 p.m.

This was not the only fire in which John L. would find himself involved. In 1873, the west side of the Kirksville square burned. This side contained a plow factory, an industry which was important to the many farmers in Adair County. The fire started on the opposite end of the block from the factory. In between the fire and the plow factory

Milan claims district title with 13-12 win over Penney

By Adam Tumino

With a narrow 13-12 win over Penney on Friday, the Milan football team was crowned district champions. The Wildcats got a key stop on a two-point attempt in the fourth quarter to hold on to their one-point lead, and then ran out the final eight minutes on the clock to clinch the win over the Hornets. It was the 11th win in a row for the Wildcats, who are now 11-1 on the season.

Milan head coach Mark Cole, in his second season in that role, said that his players' continued commitment and desire to win has made it possible for the team to become one of the final four District 1 in the state.

"My young men are special, and I love them very much," he said. "They believe in me and they believe in what we're doing here. If I told them to go get me to get some conditioning in right now they'd go do it, because they believe it's the key. They deserve all the credit."

The win over Penney on Friday was the fourth one-score game of the season for Milan, two of which have come in the last two weeks. Milan is 4-0 in one-score games this season. This was also the lowest-scoring game of the season for the Wildcats with just 25-combined points. The previous low was 35 points in Milan's 28-7 win over Polo on Oct. 13.

Milan scored first on Friday when Ahmet Niasse ran into the endzone from 15-yards out, capping off a 41-yard drive that took just 53 seconds off the clock. The extra point was blocked after a low snap slowed down the play. Of the six possessions that started and ended in the first quarter, this was the only one that did not end in a three-and-out and a punt. Milan punted away again to open the second quarter, and despite pinning Penney back at its own 15-yard line, the score was soon tied. The Hornets drove the 85 yards in just over six minutes before a three-yard touchdown run from Clay Finch put Penney on the board. The Milan defense managed to get a key stop on the two-point try to keep the score tied with just over five minutes left until halftime.

With Penney set to receive the second-half kickoff, Milan needed another score before the half. And score they did, orchestrating a 65-yard drive that culminated in a five-yard touchdown run from Carlos Cotto with 31 seconds left in the quarter. This time Jared Gonzales converted the extra point to give the Wildcats a 13-6 halftime lead.

Each team possessed the ball just three times in the second half, with the first four possessions ending in a Penney turnover on downs, a Milan turnover, and a Penney punt and a Milan punt. This gave the Hornets a chance to add a late score and possibly tie the score or take a fourth-quarter lead, and after a 16-yard touchdown run with 8:18 left in the game made the score 13-12, and vital two-point attempt was looming.

But for the second time in the game, Milan's defense turned the Hornets away on a two-point attempt. Cole said that the team expected Penney to score touchdowns and that two-point attempts and extra points could prove to be some of the biggest plays of the game.

"We stressed all week long that they're going to score, so just let the touchdown go and get the two-point conversion," he said. "We did that twice tonight."

But with 8:18 left on the clock, the Wildcats were not out of the woods yet. They began their ensuing drive on their own 40 yards line, and began to grind out the clock. Just over five minutes later, the Wildcats were facing a pivotal fourth-and-two when Penney jumped offsides, giving the Wildcats a first down and taking even more time off the clock. Several plays later, and with Penney out of time outs, a first down run from Cotto officially sealed the win.

Cole said that once that final first down call was made, what the team was on the verge of accomplishing finally set it. "There's a lot going on," he said. "There's things that you think about but you're in the moment and you're just trying to get a first down. Then as soon as you do it's just like, 'oh my gosh, this is really happening."

Milan's defense was of course a large part of the win. The 12 points scored by Penney were their fourth-lowest in a game this season. Also, the Hornets had scored 204 total points over their last four games.

Milan was allowing an average of 15.3 points per game entering Friday's game, but managed to hold a hot team below that mark on a night where it was necessary if the team wanted to win.

Cole said that he was concerned about Penney's superior size in the trenches entering the game, but his defense kept finding ways to make plays.

"I saw a lot of heart. Just a ton, a ton of heart," he said. "We knew it was going to be a battle in the trenches, and quite honestly I knew how good they were and I just worried that my boys were going to get outmanned. There were times where I thought this is where the cookie crumbles, and my tough kids just found a way."

They will have to find a way once again in the state semifinal matchup against North Platte on Nov. 25. The Panthers are also 11-1 on the season, with their lone loss coming against an East Buchanan team that just lost to an unbeaten Bowling Green squad in the District 2 Tournament. North Platte also won a close game against Penney this season, beating the Hornets 22-20 back on Sept. 15.

"We've got a North Platte team that's playing really good football," Cole said. "They're super, super big. They've got some very talented guys in the backfield. We've got to try to handle something new. It's uncharted waters. We've got a break and no school, and the challenge is just getting ourselves ready to play a really good opponent."

The game is scheduled to kick off at 1 p.m. from North Platte, which is located in Dearborn.

Milan head coach Mark Cole gets a victory bath while celebrating with his coaching staff after the Wildcats won the district title on Nov. 17.

Major pieces already in motion during intriguing MLB offseason

Truman basketball teams each split first 4 games of season

he MLB offseason may be a short one, spanning from the end of the World Series in early November until the start of spring training in early February, but this offseason looks primed to keep the winter months interesting for baseball fans.

ADAM TUMINO DAILY EXPRESS SPORTS

There have already been some interesting developments this offseason, with the Chicago Cubs poaching manager Craig Counsell from division rival Milwaukee. The Cubs made Counsell the highest-paid manager in the history of the sport and the highest-paid active manager by a wide margin. After narrowly missing out on the playoffs this past season after a September collapse, the Cubs' hiring of Counsell indicates more spending in the near future and a serious commitment to competing for a ring over the next several years.

As a fan of the Cubs, this is the most excited I've been about the team since the start of the 2017 season when the team was fresh off its first World Series title in more than a century. The addition of Counsell is not a move that will push them over the edge and make them legitimate competitors in 2024, but you don't spend $40 million on a manager if you are not planning on giving him a loaded roster.

It also makes the Cubs rivalry with the Brewers more intriguing, adding interesting new layers to midseason matchups. Also, with the Cubs on the rise and Milwaukee seemingly beginning to decline, Counsell should be able to pick up some nice wins against his former team.

Of course the most anticipated move this offseason is the free agency of Shohei Ohtani, the most talented person to ever wear a baseball uniform. The two-way star is all but guaranteed to sign a contract with the largest total value, highest annual value or perhaps both at once, and is the kind of player that will immediately improve the team he goes to while also electrifying the fan base. He is the face of the sport, and he will take millions of eyes with him wherever he goes.

It is unsurprising to hear that the Cubs are reportedly among the top suitors for Ohtani, along with teams like the Dodgers, Giants and 2023 champion Rangers. The Dodgers make a lot of sense considering that Ohtani has played just across town with the Angels for years. The Dodgers also have deep pockets and roster full of great players in the back halves of their careers. They have come up short of winning the World Series despite being arguably the best team in baseball over the last two years, and need to make another push to win before their veteran core declines.

Although Ohtani will be unable to pitch in 2024 as he recovers from elbow surgery, every contending team in baseball would benefit from his production as a hitter. But other teams need pitching now, and the St. Louis Cardinals might need it more than anyone else.

2023 was a disaster for the Cardinals. They finished below .500 for the first time since 2007 and placed last in the division for the first time since 1990. They still have a good core of position players in their primes, but unlike Ohtani, Paul Goldschmidt and Nolan Arenado are not great pitchers. They finished 24th in the league in team ERA last season, and will need to add pitching if they want to avoid remaining toward the bottom of the NL Central. Aaron Nola has already re-signed with Philadelphia, but Japanese superstar Yoshinobu Yamamoto should be a top target for St. Louis. He will certainly require a major financial commitment, which the Cardinals should be able to meet. NL Cy Young winner Blake Snell and Sonny Gray are also available and are among the top arms on the market.

There are many other good players on the market, but few that will be enough to change a franchise. A resurgent Cody Bellinger could be an upgrade in the outfield or at first base for many teams, and veteran slugger JD Martinez can help push a team that is close to contention over the edge. Other veterans and reclamation projects out there can help fill out rosters, and help make the 2023-24 offseason one for the ages. The Truman State men's and women's basketball teams have tipped off their 2023-24 season, and both teams have split their first four games. Let's take a look at what each team has done so far in the early stages of the season.

Men's Basketball

By Adam Tumino

The Bulldogs began the season by hosting the GLVC/ G-MAC Challenge, and after dropping the season opener against Findlay 82-69 on Nov. 10, bounced back with a 86-80 win over Cedarville the following day.

The opener saw a pair of freshmen lead the way for the Bulldogs. Forward Matt Haefner came off the bench and led the team with 15 points while Guard Kobi Williams posted 14 points. They also tied for the team lead with five rebounds each.

Senior Trey Shearer had 12 points in the game and then led the team with 21 points in the win over Cedarville. Sophomore Brennar Lovette had 14 points and freshman Blaise Porter scored 13.

The next was on the road against Emporia State, a team ranked 20th in the NABC Coaches Poll. Truman lost 91-74 to the Hornets. Sophomore guard Xavier Hall set a season high for the team with 25 points in the loss, also setting a career high. Forward Landon Eiland added 22 points to set a new career high as well. He scored 21 points all of last season, albeit in limited time.

The Bulldogs rebounded from that loss by cruising to a 92-62 home win over Avila on Nov. 19. Kobi Williams got back into double figures for the first time since the opener, leading the team with 23 points and going 12-of-12 from the free throw line. Lovette added 11 points while shooting 3-of-3 from the field and 4-of-4 from the line. Sophomore Casen Lawrence scored 17 points off the bench.

Overall, Eiland and Shearer are tied for the team lead with 11.8 points per game, just ahead of Williams and his average of 11.3. Williams, Lovette and Haefner are tied for the team lead with 15 rebounds each, an average of 3.8 per game. Hall is fifth on the team in scoring with 10 points per game and leads the team with 4.5 assists per game.

Women's Basketball

The women's team began the year in Quincy on Nov. 10 in the GLVC/G-MAC Challenge, and like the men, dropped the opener before beating Cedarville in the second game. They lost the opener 66-57 against Ursuline, getting outscored 41-23 in the second half after leading at halftime 34-25.

Forward Ellie Weltha led the team with 23 points and 12 rebounds while shooting 8-of-11 from the field. Graduate transfer guard Ainsley Tolson finished second with 14 points and led the team with four assists.

In the 85-68 win against Cedarville, Weltha once again led the way with 18 points and 14 rebounds. Graduate transfer Bailey Kliewer also recorded a double-double with 15 points and 11 rebounds. Tolson scored 14 points for the second-straight game, this time to go with eight assists.

Looking back at Truman's 2023 season

By Adam Tumino

With the selection of McKendree to represent the GLVC in the America's Crossroads Bowl on Dec. 1, the Truman State football team's 2023 season has officially come to an end.

The Bulldogs finished 9-2 overall and 5-2 in conference play this season. They have won nine or more games in each of the last four full seasons, and including the Covid-shortened 2020 season, have gone 40-10 since the start of the 2019 season. This was the second-best five-season run in program history.

Truman then hosted the GLVC/NSIC Tournament on Nov. 17 and 18. They beat Winona State 83-59 in the first game and then lost to Concordia St. Paul 74-72.

Against Winona State, Weltha once again led the team in scoring with 18 points but came up short of her third-straight double-double with four rebounds. Senior guard Claire Rake scored 17 while shooting 5-of-8 on threes. Kliewer followed up her strong outing against Cedarville with 12 points and five rebounds.

The Bulldogs came up just short of their thirdstraight win thanks to a buzzer beater from Concordia's Ally Gietzel. Before that, the Bulldogs had been led by Rake and Weltha with 15 points each. Tolson scored 14 points and had six assists while freshman Molly Joyce added 11 points in 13 minutes off the bench.

Overall, Weltha leads the team with 18.5 points per game and 8.8 rebounds per game. She is also shooting 65% from the field and is 18-of-21 from the free throw line. She earned the first GLVC Player of the Week honor of the season. Rake and Tolson are just behind Weltha in scoring, averaging 11.5 and 11 points per game respectively. Tolson leads the team with 5.5 assists per game.

SUDOKU

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Show confidence in all that you pursue this year; you'll make headway. Your insight, creativity and desire to bring about positive change will manifest if you take the initiative. Believe in yourself and refuse to let outside influences come between vou and your plans. Get rid of what doesn't matter to you anymore, and you'll have more time and energy to chase your goal.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) -- Do something that motivates you to gain needed inspiration. Trust your intuition and stick to what excites you most. An unusual opportunity will change your life.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) -- Reorganize your thoughts. Refuse to let anyone dictate what you do next. Don't share information or give anyone a chance to manipulate you or make you look bad.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) -- See what's brewing outside your home turf. Let your intuition reveal what's necessary, but don't disregard common sense. A structural change in your life will bring about new beginnings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) -- Take care of your health and well-being. Do whatever will enrich your life. Choose a healthy lifestyle and invest more time and money in pursuing what makes you feel good about yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) -- Create opportunities instead of waiting for things to come to you. Own the stage, and don't be afraid to follow your gut instead of someone else. Only you know what your heart desires.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) -- Learning from your mistakes and observing others will help you figure out how to get ahead. An investment opportunity will change how you make or handle your money. Get expert advice if warranted.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) -- Don't let anyone interfere with your plans or cause you to miss an opportunity. Take advantage of someone else's inability to be spontaneous. Keep your eyes open and your finger on the pulse.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) -- Don't take on debt, problems or responsibilities that don't belong to you. Someone will blame you if you let them. Get your facts straight, but don't take control.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) -- Connect with people you trust to give you good advice. Don't let your emotions get in the way. A physical challenge will help you blow off steam and make better decisions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) -- Stick to your original plan. If you let someone intervene or confuse you, getting back on track won't be easy. Put your head down and don't stop until you are happy with the results you achieve.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) -- You'll be right on point. Raise your energy a notch and head for the top. Your navigation skills and insight into what's possible will help you reach your destination. Don't waste time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) -- Network and use your Libra charm to woo people into seeing things your way. Someone will fact-check you, so don't drift from the truth. Update your image and approach. Love is on the rise.
