Lene wins Republican sheriff's primary by five votes; recount is still a possibility

By Marty Bachman
Daily Express

Jason Lene, by five votes, won the Republican Primary for the Adair County Sheriff's Office race, after a grueling week in which he was behind by three votes after the Tuesday primary election but had to wait until Friday for provisional and military ballots to be counted.

The meeting of Adair County's election commission on Friday, stretched late into Saturday before Lene was declared the winner, garnering 1,826 votes (50.03 percent) to Jason Underwood's 1,821 votes (49.97 percent).

"The voters, I guess, went in my favor at this point," Lene said, acknowledging he expects a recount. "We'll wait for the recount, I'm sure, and we'll move forward with whatever they decide."

This is Lene's second campaign for sheriff, as he ran a campaign 12 years ago that fell short. As the Republican nominee, Lene faces no Democrat in November.

"It was long, long," Lene said of the current campaign. "That's the process, everyone goes through it and we hope for the best."

Should he survive a recount, Lene said that a primary objective of his is to bring in more officers.

Bill King won the 1st District Republican County Commissioner Primary.

"That's my whole goal," he said. "We need some more help out here, more patrols — and we just want to serve the citizens of the county the best we can."

Underwood said that he hopes to make a statement on Monday concerning his campaign's future options and if he will seek a recount.

"I'm not done," Underwood messaged.

In other races, 1st District County Commissioner Bill King retained his Republican primary seat on Tuesday, winning 836 votes (65.57 percent) to Larry Logston's 439 votes (34.43 percent). No Democrat ran in the primary and King will be unopposed in November.

Gayla McHenry led the pack of 2nd District Republican county commissioner candidates, accounting for 945 votes (43.11 percent) over Joseph Shoop, who finished second with 681 votes (31.07 percent); and Jeff Gottman in third with 566 votes and (25.82 percent). McHenry will face Democrat Harley Harrelson, who ran unopposed, in the November election.

Dreamline Pathways receives award

A.T. Still University's Dreamline Pathways program receives 2024 Inspiring Programs in STEM Award

By A.T. Still University

A.T. Still University's (ATSU) Dreamline Pathways program received the 2024 Inspiring Programs in STEM Award from INSIGHT Into Diversity magazine, the largest and oldest diversity and inclusion publication in higher education. The Inspiring Programs in STEM Award honors colleges and universities that encourage and assist students from underrepresented groups to enter the fields of science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM). ATSU's Dreamline Pathways program will be featured in the September 2024 issue of INSIGHT Into Diversity magazine.

This is the fourth consecutive year ATSU's Dreamline Pathways program was recognized by INSIGHT Into Diversity.

Inspiring Programs in STEM Award winners were selected by INSIGHT Into Diversity based on efforts to inspire and encourage a new generation of young people to consider careers in STEM through mentoring, teaching, research, and successful programs and initiatives.

"We are grateful to INSIGHT Into Diversity magazine for this recognition, and congratulate Clinton Normore, MBA, chief diversity officer, and his team for their continued success with ATSU's Dreamline Pathways program," said ATSU Chancellor Craig M. Phelps, DO, '84. "Providing support and guidance to young students interested in pursuing an education and career in health sciences is vital in realizing a future with more diverse and inclusive networks of healthcare professionals."

"ATSU's Dreamline Pathways program works with community partners, parents, colleges, school districts, teachers, and campus constituents to introduce the health professions to K-12 students, nurture their journey towards a health profession, and support an atmosphere of mentorship for those who have achieved their dream of becoming a health professional," Normore said. "Receiving the 2024 Inspiring Programs in STEM Award highlights the significance of such initiatives and recognizes the dedication of Stephanie McGrew, MHA, assistant director of diversity and inclusion, along with many others. ATSU is honored to receive this recognition."

Truman State Speech and Hearing Clinic receives grant for Parkinson's therapy

By Truman State University

Parkinson Voice Project has awarded the Truman State University Speech and Hearing Clinic a 2024 SPEAK OUT! clinical education grant to help clients affected by Parkinson's disease.

Parkinson Voice Project is a nonprofit organization solely dedicated to improving speech and communication in individuals with Parkinson's disease. The organization is headquartered in Richardson, Texas, and has trained more than 10,000 clinicians in more than 40 countries.

"The faculty and graduate students of the Truman State University Speech and Hearing Clinic, as well as a trained therapist at Northeast Regional Medical Center in Kirksville, have proudly served individuals in our community who have a diagnosis of Parkinson's disease with SPEAK OUT! since 2019, thanks to consecutive grants," said Julia Edgar, professor of communication disorders. "Following the completion of SPEAK OUT! clients can maintain and continue their progress while working with others in a weekly SPEAK OUT! group session, which is only provided at the Truman State University Speech and Hearing Clinic."

The SPEAK OUT! Grant Program honors the late Daniel R. Boone, Ph.D., a world-renowned speech-language pathologist who recognized in the 1950s that individuals with Parkinson's disease could improve their communication by "speaking with intent." Based on Boone's teachings and developed by Parkinson Voice Project, SPEAK OUT! is a highly effective, comprehensive program that helps people with Parkinson's disease and related neurological disorders regain and retain their speech and swallowing. By combining individual and group SPEAK OUT! therapy with ongoing patient and family education, people with Parkinson's disease learn to transition speech from an automatic function to an intentional act.

Grant recipients include hospitals, universities, private practices and other organizations providing speech therapy across the United States and abroad. Each clinical education grant recipient receives training for their speech-language pathologists and students, SPEAK OUT! eLibrary access and the opportunity for SPEAK OUT! workbooks and other materials.

Truman's Speech and Hearing Clinic, in collaboration with partners at Northeast Regional Medical Center, can provide a structured evaluation to determine if individuals are a good match for the treatment program. Treatment requires eight to 12 sessions spread over four to six weeks, along with daily practice sessions. Due to the progressive nature of Parkinson's disease, and to maintain the full benefit of the program, joining and participating in a SPEAK OUT! group for ongoing practice is strongly encouraged.

The Speech and Hearing Clinic is located in Truman's Health Sciences Building. For more information about the clinic, including available services, hours and details about making appointments, can be found online or by calling (660) 785-7255 or emailing jedgar@truman.edu.

OBITUARIES

Jane Ann Foglesong Correia

Jul 27, 1954 – Jul 20, 2024

We are deeply saddened to share the passing of Jane Ann Correia, fondly known as Kini, to her grandchildren. She passed away unexpectedly at her home in Kauai on July 20, 2024.

The shock and sadness we feel today are a testament to Jane's special place in our hearts. Her kindness, compassion, and selflessness were rare and precious qualities. Jane had the remarkable ability to make those around her feel loved and valued, and we are all better for having known her.

Even more than the love she poured into us, the example she lived truly set Jane apart. She showed how we could also live a life with purpose, not focused on personal ambition. Jane served as a model of selflessness to all of us and her model was Jesus. Jane lived out her faith by thinking of others as more important than herself. Everything she touched turned beautiful, including all of us.

Jane was born in Kirksville, Missouri, on July 27, 1954, to Howard and Patricia Ann (McConkey) Foglesong. She grew up in Kirksville, where she met her husband, William (Billy) Correia, Jr. while working at International Tours Travel Agency, where he came to pick up a plane ticket to Hawaii. They were married on November 26, 1977, and had two daughters, Kellen Lewis and Caroline Buersmeyer — the loves of their lives until the grandkids came along!

She lived every day with pride, joy, and "Kini love" for her grandchildren, Simone, Harlee, Will and Kai. Her everyday presence, no matter where she was, made her much more than a grandma. Jane also cherished watching Billy play softball, visiting family in Missouri, and spending time with friends in Oklahoma and Kauai.

Her legacy lives on through her daughters, Kellen (Steven) Lewis and Caroline (Alex) Buersmeyer; and grandchildren, Simone and Harlee Lewis and Will and Kai Buersmeyer. Jane will be missed every day by her husband, Billy; brothers, Richard (Carol) Foglesong and Patrick (Christina) Foglesong; sister, Betty Clark; adoring nieces and nephews; and many dear friends and extended family.

Jane was preceded in death by her parents, Howard and Patricia Foglesong; brother, Mike Foglesong; favorite aunt, Ruby Reed; mother-in-law, Alice Correia; and father-in-law, William Correia, Sr.

As we celebrate Jane's life, let us hold onto all the beautiful moments, memories, conversations, and laughs we had with her. Let us all strive to honor her memory by living our own lives with the same kindness and selflessness that she showed us every day. Goodbye for now, dear Jane, until we meet again. You will be deeply missed.

A Celebration of Life will be held Saturday, August 31, 2024, in Edmond, Oklahoma.

A Celebration of Life was also held at her home in Kapaa, Kauai on Friday, August 2, 2024.

E. Wayne Newman

First and foremost, Wayne was a beloved husband, father, grandfather and great-grandfather. He lived a life of service to his country, community and church; as an Army veteran, respected educator/administrator, a faithful Christian and servant of Christ and His church. He was loved by many and left an indelible mark on all who knew him.

The son of Elmer and Lou Ella (Hern) Newman, he was born October 14, 1931 in Higbee, Missouri. On August 31, 1957 in Moberly, Missouri he married Jo Westfall.

He was preceded in death by his parents; two brothers, Thomas Newman and Donald Newman; and one sister, Hilda Burgin.

He graduated from Northeast Missouri State University under the GI Bill where he earned his Bachelor's in Business Administration and Master's in Guidance and Counseling. He was a teacher from 1958 to 1965 and then in Administration at Truman State University from 1965 until 1995, as Financial Aid Director, Director of Upward Bound, Head of Division of Professional Development and Director of Community College.

Wayne described himself as mildly easy to get along with, didn't worry about a lot and take things as they come. He also said he had good administrative ability to organize and provide direction, good critical thinker, and thoughtful decision maker.

He was a member of Missouri Financial Aid Association (President), School College Relations (President), Cap Board of American College Testing (Member), Federal Government Committee to determine Financial Allotments to Schools of Higher Education throughout Missouri (Member), Committee the set guidelines for Missouri Program (member), and Committee to set guidelines for Academic Progress (member). He was a member and deacon for 40 years of First Baptist Church, where he was a chairman and member of many committees. said Lenore Pearlstein, owner and publisher of INSIGHT Into Diversity magazine. "We want to honor the schools and organizations that have created programs that inspire and encourage young people who may currently be in or are interested in a future career in STEM. We are proud to honor these programs as role models to other institutions of higher

ROBIN WRITES

Clothesline memories

A clothesline is one of the best things a back yard can have. You can keep your pools, rock gardens, and landscaped, manicured lawns. None of them can match the contentment and serenity I feel when I see those two metal poles with rope strung between.

Those of us who grew up with a clothesline remember the tapestry of colors and shapes that hung there when we were young. Whipping in the wind like pennants. Snapping and twisting with each warm breeze. Our lives were on display every washday. All we had to do was look at what was pinned to the clothesline.

There was Dad's favorite shirt, the one he wore after working all day. Mom's polyester tops all looked the same; the explosions of bright flowers and big round buttons waved warmth from where they hung.

Clothes of varying sizes showed what you and your brothers and sisters had done that week. From fancy church clothes to tattered t-shirts, Mom had gathered up your past and washed it clean; next week's wardrobe was on parade across the clothesline.

ROBIN WRITES

There were no secrets when you had a clothesline. News of your Superman Underoos flew through the neighborhood faster than a speeding bullet. The addition of a tiny training bra to the clothesline filled every swing set and tree house with whispers and guffaws.

Holey socks. Mom's giant "Cross-Your-Heart", hung for all the world to see. Your Dad's briefs looked as tired and worn as he did each day after work.

But it was okay. The neighbors hung up the same things; you and your friends ignored it all as you played "Tag" and "Red Rover" within peaking distance of the stretched-out nylon and graying cotton.

The sight of sheets on a clothesline was magical to a kid. Temptation clouded your better judgment: you ran toward the line like a charging bull. SMACK! Your face hit the still-damp sheet, and you were lost in a sea of fresh smells wrapped in cotton.

Then, out you flew from the flapping fabric—your arms stretched out, airplane straight, and your hair smooched back from your head like a horse's mane.

The rough, nubby feel of damp, stiffening towels against a sweaty, freckled smile is a memory every child should own. You stepped into each one as it hung at face level. Colors—yellow and green and faded pink—streamed past your scrunched up eyes, and the sharp smell of clean was thick in your nostrils.

When the afternoon sunlight faded, it was time to unpin the laundry and fold it back into your home. Mom lugged the basket, toppling-full, across the yard and toward the back door.

You held the screen open for her, welcoming the snapshot without even realizing what a beautiful picture it would become as the years passed.

The clothesline. Just two posts and a few lines of rope. But it made laundry day a wonderful memory, lasting long after little bodies had outgrown the clothes that hung there. All that joy, right there in your own back yard.

Waal," said Windy, stirring his coffee. "I hate to do this here, but I'm afeerd a whole bunch of it's Doc's fault."

This announcement coincided with Doc coming to join us at the counter here at the Mule Barn Coffee Shop and Desperate Dilemma Depository. Yeah, it's kinda like that.

"So Windy," Doc asked, flipping his coffee mug to the upright and fillable position, "what have I done now?"

"Oh, Doc," Windy said, "ain't so much you as it is doctorin' in the general, you know. You guys go to school until you're 72 and have to stick us with words we don't know, can't say, and don't need."

Doc waited and looked at his old friend before adding sugar.

"Ya see, Doc," said Windy, "ever since I found my ownself approachin' middle age ..."

"Yeah, Windy, but from which end?"

The laughter eventually subsided a little. Enough to allow for more ideas.

"Wellsir, them doctor guys come up with diseases and pills nobody else can say proper like, and not even the girl at the drugstore kin spell 'em right. Like flutteraginatc flim-flams. Heck, it you had 'em you'd have to write down how to spell them, and it still wouldn't tell ya what the pills do."

Windy looked around. "So I'm gonna fix that. Yessir, ol' Alphonse Wilson's gonna straighten out the wonderful world of medicine and make it easier on real people. Got a couple examples here of my real people translations. Like 'Quitchee.' See? It's a real people translation of stomach pills. It's short for Quitchee Bellyachin'."

Doc nodded. "I think you've got something there, Windy. Let me know when you get to 'Migraine is Just Like Yore Grain,' Will you? And I'm buying the coffee this morning."

Sometimes science can be amazing.

THE ROCKWOOD FILES

C is for capable

A letter to my younger self

Friends, I'm beyond words today. My 20-year-old middle kid just drove out of our driveway heading back to Michigan for his third year of college. And now I'm packing up the last of our youngest daughter's things so we can move her into a dorm for her first year of college. I'm not good at goodbyes, so it's a struggle to keep my head above these emotional waters.

But when I ran across the following essay I wrote 10 years ago, it helped. It made me remember how miraculous this journey is - raising humans to go out in the world and find their own unique and wonderful lives. So while I spend the day unpacking boxes, installing drawer liner, and trying like crazy not to dissolve into the ugly cry as our youngest baby moves to college, I'll let the person I was a decade ago remind me of how lucky we are, right here and now:

From 2014...

A remarkable thing is happening at our house. The kids are becoming... capable. That sounds weird, I know. It's not like they were helpless blobs all this time, but lately I've noticed they can really do things - helpful things, necessary things - things Tom and I have been doing for them for more than a decade now.

Today I was busy cleaning up the kitchen and making a mental checklist of the things I'd need to get done before morning. I caught 12-year-old Adam as he was on his way up the stairs to play video games and said, "Before you play, I need you to make three sandwiches to go in tomorrow's lunchboxes, okay?"

"Okay," he said. Then he pulled out the sandwich-making supplies and I heard him call out to his little sister, "Kate, do you want cheese on your sandwich?" She answered and he continued his work. Moments later, I opened the fridge and found three bologna sandwiches sealed up in sandwich bags, ready to put into lunch bags the next morning.

Here's the surprising part: He didn't need my help. He didn't complain. He didn't act like I was asking him to perform brain surgery on the cat. The sandwiches looked as if I'd make them myself, and he put the bread, mustard and sandwich meat away when he was done.

It's odd to be surprised by evidence that your kids are growing up because that's what they're supposed to do. That was the plan all along. But it feels like a minor miracle when you notice it's really happening.

GWEN ROCKWOOD
THE ROCKWOOD FILES

We spent so much time doing things for them when they were little that it became our new normal - tie the shoes, wash the clothes, make the meals, cut their meat. We've taught them things along the way, but there was a small part of us that assumed they'd always need us to help them navigate daily life.

Then today, either through instruction or observation or just household osmosis, the kid suddenly makes the sandwiches and cleans up the mess. No biggie. And it's so... rewarding.

If I could, I'd send an email back in time to my younger self - the frazzled young mom who spent much of the day chasing a 5,3 and 1-year-old around the house, changing diapers and wiping noses. Here's what I'd tell her:

Dear Younger Me,

You know this parenting thing that keeps you sprinting around 12 hours a day? It gets easier. One day they're not only going to be able to find their own shoes but also put them on and tie the laces. They won't need you in the bathroom anymore. They'll stop watching Barney the Dinosaur and occasionally even watch the news and ask questions about the world. They'll start to crack jokes - funny ones - not just that tired knock-knock joke about the banana and the orange.

Then one day, seemingly overnight, you'll ask your oldest to make the sandwiches and he'll just do it. Your middle child who refuses to change out of his Superman t-shirt for days on end? He's going to be able to start and finish a load of clothes.. And that sweet baby on your hip? She's going to be 7 one day, and when you accidentally cut your finger in the kitchen, she'll get the first aid kit and put the Band-Aid on for you.

So hang in there, mama. You're doing good and important work. All this time spent in the not-so-glamorous parenting trenches is going to pay off. They get bigger and smarter and even more interesting. One day you're going to look at them and realize that, not only do you love them intensely, you also respect and admire the people they're turning out to be - capable people who can do things, partly because you loved and helped them through all the years when they couldn't.

PUBLIC HEALTH CORNER

Children's Eye Health and Safety Month

By Kirstyn Dietle, CHES®
Health Educator
Adair County Health Department

Welcome to the Public Health Corner: Children's Eye Health and Safety Month

Eye care for children and the promotion of best practices to keep their vision and eye health in tip-top shape are the core of Children's Eye Health and Safety Month. Vision plays a crucial role in a child's development, learning and overall well-being. This month serves as an opportunity to educate parents, caregivers, and communities about the importance of regular eye exams, injury prevention, and early detection of vision problems in children.

The Importance of Regular Eye Exams

Regular eye exams are essential for detecting vision problems early in a child's life. Children may not always realize they have a vision issue, and without regular check-ups, problems like nearsightedness, farsightedness, astigmatism, or even more serious conditions can go undiagnosed. Early detection allows for timely treatment, which can improve vision and help prevent long-term complications. It's recommended that children have their first comprehensive eye exam at six months, another at three years, and then before they start school.

Recognizing Signs of Vision Problems

Parents and caregivers should be aware of signs that may indicate a child is experiencing vision problems. These signs can include squinting, holding books or devices too close to their face, frequent eye rubbing, difficulty concentrating, or complaints of headaches or blurry vision. If any of these signs are noticed, it's important to schedule an eye exam with an eye care professional.

Promoting Eye Safety at Home and School

Protecting children's eyes from injury is just as important as ensuring they have clear vision. Eye injuries can happen at home, during sports, or at school. Simple precautions, such as using protective eyewear during sports, ensuring toys are safe and age-appropriate, and teaching children about the dangers of sharp objects and chemicals, can help prevent injuries. Parents should also be mindful of the time children spend on digital devices, as prolonged screen time can lead to eye strain and other vision issues.

Understanding the Impact of Screen Time

With the increasing use of digital devices among children, it's important to be aware of the potential impact on their eye health. Prolonged screen time can lead to digital eye strain, characterized by dry eyes, headaches, and blurred vision. Encouraging regular breaks, maintaining proper posture, and ensuring screens are at a safe distance from the eyes can help reduce the risk of digital eye strain. Additionally, outdoor play and exposure to natural light are important for healthy eye development.

Encouraging Healthy Eye Habits

Teaching children healthy eye habits early on can set the foundation for a lifetime of good eye health. This includes wearing sunglasses with UV protection when outdoors, eating a balanced diet rich in eye-friendly nutrients like vitamin A, omega-3 fatty acids, and lutein, and practicing good hygiene to avoid eye infections. Instilling these habits in children can help protect their vision and overall eye health as they grow.

Children's Eye Health and Safety Month is a time to focus on safeguarding the vision and eye health of our children. By advocating for regular eye check-ups, emphasizing safety measures, and fostering healthy habits, we can help children preserve their vision and prevent avoidable eye injuries. This month, let's raise awareness, inform others, and take action to ensure the eye health of every child.

If I Could Just Be a New Me

As time marches on... as the years roll by... I seem to look back more than ahead, Quite often ... I look at the decisions I've made ....and where those decisions have led.

There is so much... I would like to do over... just to make a wrong a right,

Not focusing on who I was... but who I should be... when tomorrow becomes tonight.

I can't help but wonder... what could have been... if only I'd traveled a different road,

How much weight.... would I no longer bear?..

How much would I have lightened my load?

The answer to these questions... I will never know... what could have been will never be,

But I can't give up.... If I could just be a new me... what could have been, someday I may see.

The Adair County Health Officer, Dr. L. J. Conner, had his hands full with a multitude of summer diseases. Dr. Conner stated: "Bowel troubles, dysentery and kindred diseases take up most of my time and I believe I have on hand no less than twenty cases of typhoid fever. The ailments are the result of carelessness in eating and drinking. During these hot days the people should be careful of their diet." Conner attributed much of the typhoid fever to the carnival and Chautauqua that had been recent attractions in Kirksville. Scores of people sat in cramped conditions for hours, and drank ice water, lemonade, ate peanuts, ice cream, and candy. He also attributed much of the diseases to the filthy conditions found in Kirksville. Typhoid fever is caused by the salmonella typhi bacteria which is shed in the urine or stools of infected persons. The disease is spread by eating or drinking contaminated food or water or by direct or indirect contact with fecal material from infected people. People with typhoid fever carry bacteria in their bloodstream and intestinal tract. Symptoms included prolonged high fever, fatigue, headache, nausea, abdominal pain, and constipation or diarrhea. Some patients may have a rash, and severe cases may lead to serious complications or death.

Amidst the pomp of the Masonic ceremonies, the cornerstone of Kirksville's new $80,000 high school building was laid. The official ceremonies were conducted by the Grand Master of the Missouri Masons and several other high-ranking officers, and members of Kirksville's two Masonic lodges. Members of the Masonic lodges gathered on the northwest corner of Kirksville's downtown square and were accompanied by the Military Band to the site of the new high school at the corner of McPherson and Mulanix Streets. A large crowd had gathered to observe the ceremony. After a musical number and prayer, the Masonic officials conducted the cornerstone laying. The copper box and its contents were placed in the stone and a list of the contents in the box was read to the audience. The ceremony ended with a benediction and the singing of "My Country Tis of Thee."

The effects of the severe drought and hot weather of 1934 as well as the Great Depression were readily seen in Adair County. The slaughter of Adair County cattle that were purchased by the federal government to ease the feed and livestock crisis had been started at the Anesi Packing Plant. The first loads of cattle that were received numbered 105 head, and between 60 to 70 head more were awaiting slaughter. The packing plant was operating on a 24-hour day schedule to keep up with the influx, which was expected to last for several weeks. The plant was equipped to kill 1,000 head weekly, although the plants normal capacity was 600 head. An accumulation of soup bones, for which no provision had been made for disposal, was resulting from the increased slaughter operations. To alleviate the problem, the packing plant announced that the bones, which still held some meat, were excellent for making soup. The plant was giving the bones away to those who needed them. All people had to do was make arrangements to pick them up. The plant was prepared to supply large numbers of bone to people if there was a rush for the product.

Milkweed pods in Adair and adjoining counties were expected to be ready for picking in the middle of upcoming week. This would coincide with the launching of a two-week campaign to gather the wild product which had recently become of great value in making life jackets and belts for members of the armed forces serving in World War II. Uncle Sam wanted a million and a half pounds of milkweed floss, and pickers would be paid 20 cents per bag for picking and drying milkweed pods from each of the 2,209 farms in Adair County. Similar "Save a Life" campaigns were being conducted in other counties in this area of the state. The Adair County Extension Office was coordinating the project, and Smith T. Powell Jr., county agent, was the county chairperson. The campaign was being organized through the local school districts throughout Adair County. Special picking bags were provided for picking and drying the pods. Many

The cornerstone of the Kirksville High School that was laid in August 1914 now rests in the garden in front of the Adair County Historical Society (ACHS) Museum. When the demolition of the high school building was taking place in May 2019 the cornerstone was recovered. Inside the cornerstone was found the sealed copper box proving a time capsule had been placed there. The city of Kirksville placed the cornerstone in the care of the ACHS. On July 27, 2019, the community was invited to the opening of the sealed box by Mayor Zac Burden and the Kirksville City Council. At that time the contents of the box were publicly examined. By a vote of almost nine to one in favor, Adair County voters approved a proposal for a water impounding reservoir on Big Creek, west of Kirksville (eventually to become Forest Lake). The vote was 2,129 in favor and 284 against. Most of the opposition votes were cast by landowners in the area who would have to give up title to their land for the reservoir. Kirksville Mayor I. E. Markham listed the benefits of the new reservoir to Kirksville, Adair County, and the surrounding area. The new reservoir would increase the available water supply which had been needed for years. The current water supply for Kirksville was the Chariton River, which was severely limited in dry conditions and becoming increasingly contaminated. The reservoir would lead to the establishment of a state park for northeast Missouri which, in turn would increase recreational activities, boating, fishing, camping, vacationing. The project would also increase industrial expansion which was previously hindered by the lack of a consistent water supply. The construction of the reservoir would utilize local construction labor as the project was slated to cost $561,600 and supplies for the construction project would be purchased through local firms. Construction of the big reservoir, estimated to contain five billion gallons of water when full, was expected to begin the following year. Work with the local banks and representatives of the bonding companies was being conducted to complete the details of the financial plan for the project. Some obstacles remained to be resolved. One obstacle that was anticipated was that the city might have to institute condemnation proceedings to acquire the needed 600 acres of property for the reservoir site.

The Kirksville City Council was considering the adoption of an ordinance requiring the inspection of restaurants in the city. The action was prompted by a fire investigation at the Peking Chinese Restaurant at 1217 S. Baltimore. Earlier in the week the Kirksville Fire Department responded to a fire in an apartment in the upstairs of the building. The fire was reported as "suspicious" to the State Fire Marshall's office. Upon investigation by that office, local authorities were called to the business after atrocities in the kitchen were discovered. The restaurant had closed for vacation ten days earlier. Restaurant owner, Hsu Chin Ying ordered the water shut off. The business had been unoccupied during that period and conditions there were reported as "hideous." City Health Inspector, C. B. Bland described the conditions. "It is without a doubt the worst mess I have ever seen. It is absolutely filthy. We found maggots, grease and food all over the stoves and appliances. Pans are caked with grease and maggots and haven't been washed for months. There's old food all over everything. Tables and surfaces are filthy. There's grease dripping from the ceiling. And the odor when you open the refrigerator will just floor you." The City of Kirksville condemned the restaurant.

EMBRACING LOCAL HISTORY

Part 115

The Smith-Kellogg Mansion – Chapter 3 – Capt. John T. Smith Is Infatuated With Montana

By Blytha Ellis, President
Adair County Historical Society and Museum

Last week, we learned that John Thompson Smith had left his wife and younger children in Kirksville in 1864 and had taken his oldest sons to Montana Territory, along with a nephew, a servant, and a friend. At Nebraska City, John secured a job as captain of a company of westward pioneers.

When they heard about gold being discovered in Alder Gulch near Virginia City, the company headed in that direction. At Reshaw's Bridge, Capt. John T. Smith met Capt. John Bozeman, the frontiersman who would become known for blazing the Bozeman Trail and for founding Bozeman, Montana.

Captain Bozeman had formed a company of pioneers going east of the Big Horn Mountains to Idaho. Bozeman was charging each wagon in his company $5.00 for being their guide. John wrote this about Bozeman: "He told me he needed assistance in looking out the route and that having heard that I was a good woodsman, he hoped I would join him as he had no one who could be of any assistance in this wagon train, and besides, he expected trouble with the Indians."

Bozeman asked that John's company join his, but John's men would not consent to pay the $5.00 each. The two men then agreed to travel on the same trails in what they described as a "supporting distance" of each other, and they would camp together at night. They all felt safer from Indians in a large group.

The second night, they camped on Piney River where Fort Kearney was later located. John wrote the following about their travels: "Our journey for some days was across a beautiful country, dotted with buffalo as far as the eye could reach. Crossing Goose Creek, Tongue River, the Muddy, and the Little Big Horn, we reached the Big Horn on the 4th of July. The men celebrated by killing over 100 buffalo.

"The next morning, we crossed the Big Horn and took a northwestern direction along the base of the mountain, crossing many rushing mountain streams and beautiful vales until we reached the Yellowstone River at a point about two miles below the present site of Billings, Montana.

"We traveled up that river to Clarke's Fork, and not being able to go further along the south bank of the Yellowstone, we turned our wagon train up the Clarke's Fork until we struck the trail of that veteran pioneer, Jim Bridger, who had just passed through a few days before with a train. We were now out of danger of Indians."

At the mouth of the Shield's River, the people on the two wagon trains, the Smith group and the Bozeman group, parted ways. Each went to their desired destination.

"Bozeman, with a party, went over the Jacob's Route, as it was then called, but it is now known as the Bozeman Pass. My detachment went up the Shield's River and followed Bridger's Trail westward through Bridger's Canyon and came into the Gallatin Valley.

"When we came in full view of the Gallatin Valley, we felt that our long journey had not been in vain. We passed on to Virginia City where we found Alder Gulch crowded with emigrants. Many men could not find employment, although the gulch was then being worked for 6 or 8 miles [in search of gold]." Capt. Bozeman made "very gracious acknowledgments" for John Smith's assistance on the journey, and he offered to accompany John to any part of the country he might want to visit.

At Virginia City, Old John, the former slave of John T. Smith, who had accompanied the group from Missouri to Montana, decided he liked this country and wanted to stay. John saw to it that Old John got a job before they parted ways. Old John was hired in a restaurant, working for $5 per day. Eventually, Old John moved to Helena, Montana. He outlived John T. Smith, and nearly reached 100 years of age, dying in 1902. He was reportedly often called Captain John, and he took the last name of Smith, from the family with whom he had lived so long. He is buried in the Lewis and Clark Cemetery in Helena.

John Smith and John Bozeman returned to the Gallatin Valley and went to the ranch of Daniel E. Rouse (1834-1912) who had settled in Montana in 1861. There, John Smith purchased a ranch from Mr. Rouse for $50. However, this price was not paid in currency. John Smith paid by having his two sons work for Mr. Rouse for 10 days.

While John Smith was living on his ranch in the Gallatin Valley, three men he knew were planning to start a town. The story goes that a man named William J. Beall, originally from Pennsylvania, was on his way to sell potatoes to gold miners in Virginia City when he met John Bozeman and Daniel Rouse. The three men talked and decided they had all given up on finding any gold for themselves, so they thought they would try another venture. They would create a town in the Gallatin Valley "standing right in the gate of the mountains" as they described it.

In this same year of 1864, Bozeman, Rouse and Beall, went up the East Gallatin River and platted out a town. Rouse had experience in laying out towns in other locations, so he knew what to do. They named this new town Bozeman on August 9, 1864. Beall built the first church and school in Bozeman, and Rouse built the first cabins and hotels. Although Bozeman reportedly helped with these building projects, he was described as a risk-taking, gambling man who did not respect the treaties which had been made with Indians of the area. At age 32 in 1867, he was found murdered along the Yellowstone River. Indians were suspected but so was his traveling companion, Tom Cover, who was a jealous husband. (Bozeman was accused of habitually flirting with married women.)

Bozeman had left his wife, Lucinda (1837- 1898), and three daughters in Georgia in 1860, originally to join the Pike's Peak Gold Rush, but never found any gold, and also never returned home. Lucinda remarried the year after John Bozeman died.

John Smith continued his narrative of life in Montana: "The following winter, I remained on my ranch and enjoyed the splendid opportunities for hunting. The valley was full of game, and I killed a very large grizzly bear, a moose and numbers of deer and antelope."

In early spring, John was without bread and he said none could be bought for any price, so he bought a plow, five bushels of seed wheat, some oats and barley and planted his own crops in 1865. In the fall, he decided to return to Missouri. He left his sons on the Montana ranch to harvest the wheat, and he took passage on the Yellowstone River with a fleet of 55 boats which continued into the Missouri River; and in 23 days, he was in St. Joseph, Missouri, "having rowed day and night throughout the journey."

This time, John only stayed in Missouri a few months. In the spring of 1866, he led another wagon train to Montana. This time, John brought a small herd of high-grade cows with him for his ranch.

The following year, 1867, John said he sent his sons back to Missouri so they could attend college. In 1868, John reluctantly returned to Missouri himself stating, "Though greatly infatuated with Montana and impressed with my opportunity to make a fortune raising cattle, I determined to remain east [in Kirksville] and educate my seven children, all of whom were of school age." His children were Mancil, Robert, James, John Jr., Marthena, Wilmoth, and Tilden. His 8th child, Mary, died in 1860 at age 10.

"In 1869, I returned to Montana to close out my affairs. My little herd of 20 cows had increased so rapidly that they brought me $4,500."

John would remain in Kirksville for 10 years and build his iconic mansion, but that's not the end of the story.

George Hull Chapter (National Society) Daughters of the American Colonists hold July meeting

By George Hull Chapter (National Society) Daughters of the American Colonists

The George Hull Chapter (National Society) Daughters of the American Colonists held their regular July meeting at The Annex in Kirksville.

Mettie Davis, registrar, continued her committee report on Native Americans: Along the "Trail of Tears". After the tribes crossed over the Mississippi River, they were met with newly appointed William Clark. Clark was a commander along with Meriweather Lewis of the Corps of Discovery Expedition. Clark had returned home to St. Louis and had been appointed Superintendent of Indian Affairs by President James Monroe.

William Clark was the most important man to Native Americans west of the Mississippi. Although Clark tried to maintain peaceful relations with the various tribes inhabiting or crossing through Missouri, like the Cherokees, he was still expected to implement President Jackson's Indian removal policy of 1830. Clark expressed sympathy for the uprooted tribes and promoted their interests by negotiating many peace treaties. Nevertheless, the tribes were pushed out of the Missouri Territory. William Clark died in St. Louis on Sept. 1, 1838, at the age of 68.

The second report was delivered by Vice Regent Mary Ann Farmer — "Hygiene during Colonial Times". The American Colonial period began in the 1600s until the end of the Revolutionary War. Historians surmise that many colonists bathed only a few times a year. The Colonists would often use herbs and flowers in attempt to cover up body odors in their clothing. Many had severe dental problems like George Washington. Some colonists even felt that bathing created a real risk for catching diseases. Gradually as people became more concerned about personal hygiene, they began washing themselves and their clothing more often.

The next meeting will be at the Novinger Coal Museum.

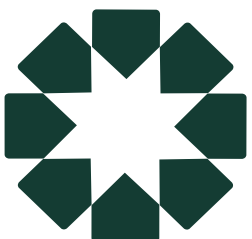

Roxy Castles, historian, along the Trail of Tears in Hopkinsville, Ky. Two respected Cherokee Elders, Whitepath and Ely Smith, buried in well-marked graves.

Best individual performances and recap of 2023 Kirksville football

By Shane Gravlin

KIRKSVILLE, Mo. — Kirksville Tigers football is just weeks away, so let's rewind to 2023 to see who had some of the biggest performances of the year, and how those players will be expected to step up in 2024.

Headed into this season, the Kirksville Tigers are ranked 180th overall in the state, 31st in Missouri Division 4, and fourth in the Ottumwa area according to MaxPreps. The Tigers are coming off of a 5-6 year overall in which they went 3-2 in district play. Kirksville fared much better at home, going 4-2 at Spainhower Field but 1-4 away from it.

Having a new coach with experience at the NCAA level being in rowdy away environments should hopefully help that.

Aside from scheduling and standings patterns, and new staff in place, there were some true bright spots who suited up for Kirksville last fall.

25 Aug. 2023; Kirksville Tigers vs. Macon Tigers: 42-26, W, 1-0

Kirksville got out of the gate with a bang and the offense was firing. It was led by Tony Toberi-Ramos, since graduated, who hauled in two receiving touchdowns and had over 50 yards receiving on seven catches. It was the only multi-touchdown game of his career, but it paid off majorly against Macon.

01 Sept. 2023; Kirksville Tigers at Chillicothe Hornets: 26-42, L, 1-1

Kirksville had the same exact score in Week 2 as they did in Week 1, but they were on the wrong side of it against Chillicothe. Running back Jace Kent was a positive; he carried the ball 22 times, tallied 137 yards on the ground, and scored a touchdown.

08 Sept. 2023; Kirksville Tigers at Savannah Savages: 0-42, L, 1-2

Kirksville got it handed to them and allowed 40+ points for the second week in a row. There's not a lot to remi-nise about from this one, but middle linebacker Jack Thomas who has graduated racked up 13 total tackles.

15 Sept. 2023; Kirksville Tigers vs. Moberly Spartans: 6-35, L, 1-3

Kirksville's September losing streak hit a peak at three straight with a home defeat against a solid Moberly team. The Tigers' offense struggled once again, but defensive tackle Sean Payton who has graduated led the team in solo tackles with 10.

22 Sept. 2023; Kirksville Tigers vs. Marshall Owls: 28-10, W, 2-3

Kirksville needed a bounce back win and got one thanks to the offense breaking out of its cold stretch. Junior quarterback Ryder Lyons did enough for the Tigers, scoring two touchdowns in the air, throwing for 101 yards and rushing for 64 (165 all-purpose).

29 Sept. 2023; Kirksville Tigers at Hannibal Pirates: 0-53, L, 2-4

Kirksville came crashing down to earth with a humbling loss on the road in which they trailed 47-0 at halftime. Hannibal was all over Kirksville in all three phases of the game.

06 Oct. 2023; Kirksville Tigers vs. Mexico Bulldogs: 24-13, W, 3-4

Kirksville sent fans home happy with a hard-fought homecoming victory. The defense recovered in a huge way after an embarrassing performance a week earlier. Greysen Houser was the story in this one, snagging two interceptions. He'll be a senior in 2024.

13 Oct. 2023; Kirksville Tigers at Fulton Hornets: 44-7, W, 4-4

Kirksville kept the mini win streak going with its biggest victory in terms of scoring margin all year. The Tigers scored all 44 points in the first half and their secondary defense had Fulton's quarterback in a jail cell all night. Linebacker Brantley Kottwitz, who will be a junior this fall, led his team with five tackles.

A tackling dummy waits for its next victim at the Kirksville High School practice field. SHANE GRAVLIN

20 Oct. 2023; Kirksville Tigers vs. Capital City Cavaliers: 20-35, L, 4-5

Kirksville couldn't keep the momentum going to close out the regular season and the defense wavered once again. Malik Rodriguez, now graduated, caught one of the Tigers touchdowns.

27 Oct. 2023; Kirksville Tigers vs. Excelsior Springs Tigers: 28-13, W, 5-5

Kirksville opened up district tournament play by advancing past Excelsior Springs who went 1-9. Running back Cole Kelly got the scoring started with a touchdown that tied the game at 7-7. Kirksville would take the lead a few drives later and not give it back up.

03 Nov. 2023; Kirksville Tigers vs. Smithville Warriors: 8-49, L, 5-6

Kirksville's season and playoff hopes ended abruptly when they ran into the buzzsaw of Smithville, who put up 21 points in the first quarter. Kirksville's score was a touchdown and two-point conversion in the third quarter from Jace Kent, who will be para-mount for the Tigers' back-field in 2024.

It will be interesting to see how Kirksville fares this fall, and they begin practice Monday.

Best individual performances and recap of 2023 Truman State football

By Shane Gravlin

KIRKSVILLE, Mo. — The 2023 Truman State Bulldogs football team went 9-2 overall. Last year's success can't be credited to just one single player, so let's take a look at who had the most exceptional performances from last fall.

02 Sept. 2023, 12p; Truman State Bulldogs at Findlay Oilers: 20-10, W, 1-0

The Bulldogs opened their 2023 campaign by flexing their defense against a very solid Findlay team that has consistently finished over 500 the past few years and went 7-4 last year. Findlay averaged over 28 points per game scored last year and Truman held them to just 10, so the exceptional player award for Week 1 belonged to Isaiah Estes who has since graduated. Estes completed the day with five total tackles and an interception. From Fayette High School in Fayette, Mo., Estes played in 48 games across five seasons for the Bulldogs and recorded 299 total tackles. He scored a defensive touchdown during the shortened 2020 season, too. According to his Instagram, Estes participated in a workout this summer for the St. Louis Battlehawks of the UFL who have multiple DII guys on their roster.

09 Sept. 2023, 12p; Truman State Bulldogs vs. South Dakota Mines Hardrockers: 28-24, W, 2-0

Truman State arguably needed the momentum from their first win in this back-and-forth thriller over an opponent from the elite Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference. Even though South Dakota Mines had a 5-6 record, they're a member of one of the toughest conferences in DII football, so this was impressive. After heading into the locker room down by a field goal, Truman stole the lead late in the third quarter, but with just over 10 minutes remaining in the fourth quarter, Truman found themselves trailing by three points. What ensued was a 74-yard, 12-play drive that ended with what would be a game-winning touchdown run from Mason Huskey. While Huskey had a great day, it's noteworthy that all four of the touchdowns scored by Truman in this game were rushing touchdowns, so the entire offensive line got the exceptional player(s) award in this game for flat-out being more physical than the Hardrockers defensive front.

16 Sept. 2023, 2p; Truman State Bulldogs vs. Saginaw Valley State Cardinals: 21-7, W, 3-0

The Bulldogs kept the good vibe train rolling into Week 3 and took care of business against a satisfactory Saginaw Valley State team that had more wins than losses in 2023. This was the only game on the Cardinals' schedule in which they were held to just a singular score, another testament to how sound Truman State's defense was under then-defensive coordinator now-head coach Kellen Nesbitt. This game was closer than the final score may indicate; it was tied 7-7 going into the fourth quarter. Holding a team to under 10 should mean that a defensive player is recognized, so the exceptional player award against SVSU went to Kendall Hutchison who will be a senior this fall and play a key role for the Bulldogs secondary. He concluded the day with five total tackles including a sack. In close, defensive battles like this, sacks and turnovers can be the margin that leads to victory as his play potentially was the difference here.

23 Sept. 2023, 12p; Truman State Bulldogs at Wayne State Warriors: 41-7, W, 4-0

After consecutive narrowly-decided home games, Truman State went on the road and put any doubts about scoring margins to rest by clobbering a Wayne State team that was below average in 2023, but played tough teams well, including against GLVC champion Indianapolis. However, this was a breakthrough game for the Truman State offense, which put 17 points on the scoreboard before the end of the first quarter and cruised to a 27-0 halftime lead. It's easy to win big when your quarterback goes completes 22/25 passes and scores two touchdowns (one on the ground and one in the air) like Nolan Hair did. He balled out consistently all year, but completing 88% of his passes in this game and helping his team put up over 40 points earned him the exceptional player award in this one. The Bulldogs will have a new quarterback this fall to replace Hair who graduated.

30 Sept. 2023, 1p; Truman State Bulldogs at McKendree Bearcats: 56-24, W, 5-0

The Bulldogs offense reached an even higher level against McKendree on the road to prove they can win away from home reliably. While McKendree's defense struggled all season, they managed to have an ok season and went 5-6, so Truman dropping over 50 points against to open up GLVC play sent a strong message. Truman didn't fully step on the gas until the third quarter, when they scored three touchdowns in that period alone. What really swung the game in Truman's favor was a pick-six snagged by Jake Closser which was enough for the exceptional player award. Honorable mention to Ryan Olivias who had an interception of his own which he returned for 67 yards plus a forced fumble. When your defense plays so fantastically, putting up 56 points becomes easily achievable.

07 Oct. 2023, 1p; Truman State Bulldogs vs. Quincy Hawks: 33-27 OT, W, 6-0

Truman State's most exhilarating win of the year, and one of the more special wins in program history came in Week 6 at Stokes Stadium over QU to extend their perfect start to the 2023 season. The Hawks jumped out to a 13-0 lead within the first five minutes of the game by capitalizing off a few unfortunate Bulldogs mistakes. By the end of the first quarter, the Bulldogs had dug themselves into a massive 20-0 hole, but slowly and surely chipped away and outscored Quincy 33-7 from the second quarter on (including overtime). In order to send this game into overtime, Truman State needed a game-tying field goal from kicker Grant Ross, and he delivered. That clutch factor from all players on a team, even down to the kicker, is critical. Ross graduated in 2024 and studied chemistry, but his kick in this game won't be forgotten and it made him the exceptional player of the game.

14 Oct. 2023, 12p; Truman State Bulldogs vs. Indianapolis Greyhounds: 17-38 OT, L, 6-1

The Bulldogs endured their first loss of the year at the hands of the GLVC champs. Had Truman won this game and the rest of their schedule, the Bulldogs would've been crowned champions instead. To say that Truman is looking forward to the rematch against Indy this year would be an understatement. Indianapolis has a target on their back since they were picked to come in first, and even though Truman lost the matchup against them in 2023, running back Denim Cook was a bright spot and the most exceptional player in the game. He tallied 130 yards on 15 carries, and despite not scoring a touchdown, he had one of the biggest Bulldogs plays of the day with a 59 yard run. The junior will be an important part of the offense in 2024.

21 Oct. 2023, 2p; Truman State Bulldogs vs. William Jewell Cardinals: 31-10, W, 7-1

Truman State bounced back nicely with a Week 8 homecoming victory over William Jewell who floundered to a 2-8 record. Recovering to get a win after a frustrating loss showed poise from Truman. The Bulldogs blew this game open quickly and built a 21-0 lead by the end of the first quarter. Quarterback Nolan Hair was able to spread the ball to tons of different receivers, including Tate Crane who hauled in a touchdown that made the score 14-0. By this point, it felt like Truman was in control, and having so many versatile wideouts is valuable. Or having running backs like Mason Huskey who can catch passes, too. The exceptional player of this one, Tate Crane is entering his senior year and is from Iowa City, Iowa.

28 Oct. 2023, 1p; Truman State Bulldogs at Southwest Baptist Bearcats: 17-20, L, 7-2

The Bulldogs suffered a truly "bad" loss against an inferior Southwest Baptist squad that went 4-7. In a September game against Texas Permian Basin, Southwest Baptist allowed 86 points. A little over a month later, somehow, they suffocated Truman's offense and held it to 20 points. There wasn't much to highlight from this game, which ended with a walk-off game-winning field goal from SBU. The weather was chilly and it was a battle of running games, and defensive back Peyton Carr who has since graduated was one reason SBU couldn't be super heavy on the aerial attack; he had 10 total tackles.

04 Nov. 2023, 12p; Truman State Bulldogs at Upper Iowa Peacocks: 14-7, W, 8-2

Truman State didn't let a poor Week 9 performance impact their Week 10 game which a complete defensive slugfest. It's usually difficult to win games if an offense only scores two touchdowns all game, but with Truman's defense, the team was able to perform well in low-scoring games like this. St. Louis native Ulysses Ross was the clear choice for the exceptional player award for this contest, since he ended his day with 10 total tackles, a sack, and a forced fumble. Turnovers in any game, especially low-scoring ones, are massive. Truman didn't turn it over this game, Upper Iowa did, and Truman barely won.

11 Nov. 2023, 1p; Truman State Bulldogs at Missouri S&T Miners: 24-14, W, 9-2

The Bulldogs finalized their remarkable season with another close win over in-state rival Missouri S&T on the road in Rolla. This was just one of several games for Truman State that their defense played phenomenally, and the group deserving of recognition and the exceptional player(s) award is the defensive line in this one. S&T ran it 23 times and only gained 31 yards, for an average of 1.3 yards per carry. Truman also baited them into committing several holding penalties. Holding your opponent to less than 2 yards per carry is a recipe for success, one that the Bulldogs will try to replicate in 2024 under the direction of defensive-minded Kellen Nesbitt.

In conclusion, there were countless guys who stepped up for Truman State at different times last year, and it'll be fun to see who rises to the challenge this season in 2024 with a new head coach in place.
