Ice racers riding vintage Honda three wheelers await for the bungee cord starting line to be released. Partridge Lake in Fremont is considered a good venue for racing because the ice fishing activity is concentrated at one end of the lake, leaving a large smooth expanse free of holes which create ruts and bumps for the racers.

Racing is good where the fishing is bad

FREMONT - The Manawa Snodeo was cancelled on Bear Lake because of deteriorating ice conditions but on Partridge Lake in Fremont, the ice was thick enough for participants to park trucks and trailers on the lake and race motorcycles, ATVs, UTVs, and vintage three wheelers.

The tracks were arranged in front of the Blue Top Resort on Wolf River Drive. A Fremont-Wolf River EMS ambulance was parked onshore.

The Central Wisconsin Ice Racing Association held races in front of the Blue Top Resort on Partridge Lake in Fremont. Riders raced motorcycles, ATVs, UTVs and three wheelers.

During the morning Saturday warm-ups, one motorcyclist wiped out but he got back on his bike uninjured. Saturday was for informal racing, Sunday was for official scores.

The Central Wisconsin Ice Racing Association has held races on Partridge Lake for the past 25 years. They hold other races throughout the winter on Lake Arbutus, Lake Petenwell, Lake Tomah and Lake Dexter.

According to CWIRA race organizer Jim Falkes, Partridge Lake provides a smoother ride because of where the ice fishing is concentrated.

New option for concussions

Treatment puts balloon into nose

BY JAMES CARD STAFF REPORTER

WAUPACA - Freshman Max Dolski spent part of his basketball season out with a concussion when a rebounding opponent planted an elbow into his skull.

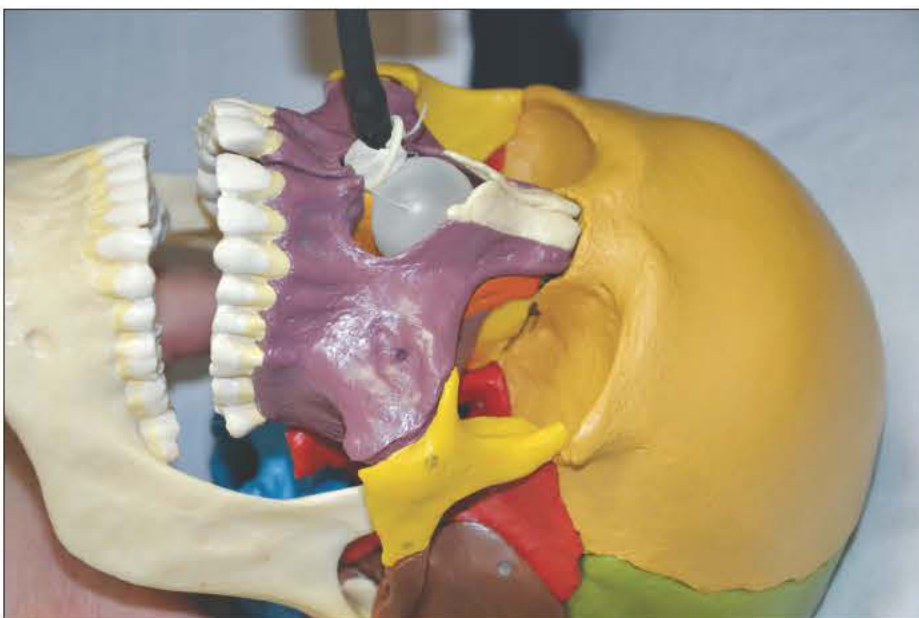

He sat on the sidelines per school protocol but after undergoing a nasal release technique at Spine and Sport Physical Therapy of Waupaca he was back on the court.

The technique reset his pain threshold. The concussion left him with low-grade headaches that eventually became the new normal for him.

Dolski realized after the treatment what he thought previously was zero level of pain was actually a three (on a 0-10 scale).

His symptoms cleared and he recently set a personal record of scoring the most points he ever had in a game.

Physical therapist Mike Koch treated him with a technique that involves inserting a latex finger-sized balloon (called a "cot") into a nasal passage, pumping it up with a blood pressure inflation bulb.

The patient takes a deep breath and the opposite nostril is compressed to prevent air from escaping. The cot expands into the nasopharynx causing it to widen and the balloon pushes against the bones of the sphenoid, a compound bone that forms the base of the cranium.

Pressure is felt in the nose and head and some patients report hearing clicks in their skull, like knuckle cracking sounds or their ears pop. It isn't painful but it is strange.

When the cot was removed, Dolski said it was like he was coming up for air from underwater. He also reported feeling very light on his feet, like he was walking on the moon and all of the tension was gone.

Beyond concussions

Koch is one of two practitioners certified to do the technique in Wisconsin. He was trained by Cynthia Stein, the founder of Conquer Concussion, a training center for alternative concussion treatments. Koch also includes cranial sacral therapy to the treatment that relieves compression in the head, neck, and back.

Koch learned the nasal release technique at the request of his patient Glen Hollatz. He got in touch with Stein at Conquer Concussion and performed the technique on himself.

New London restricts horror books at schools

BY SCOTT BELLILE CORRESPONDENT

NEW LONDON - Two children's books became harder for New London's youngest students to borrow from elementary school libraries.

The New London School Board on Monday, Feb. 13, voted 4-3 to limit the checkout of two horror titles to third- and fourth-grade students.

Second graders and below now must obtain permission from a parent or guardian to check out "Scary States of Mind: Horror in Maryland" by Rachel Rose and "Tiptoe into Scary Places: Deserted Prisons" by Joyce Markovics.

The board did not run the policy past the district's lawyer prior to its passage.

"It's not our legal responsibility to make every book in the world available in the library," said Board President Chris Martinson, who backed the restriction.

After the vote, he told the board legal counsel can still review the policy.

District Administrator

Scott Bleck responded it is too late once a policy is enacted.

"So if legal tells us we broke the law, guess what. We'll be sued," said board member Terry Wegner, who joined Mark Grossman and Mandy Wilz in voting against the policy.

"If we're going to prevent children from seeing something, it is in fact censorship," Wegner said. "We should have had an attorney's review of this before we made that decision."

Voting with Martinson were John Heide-man, Katie Batten and Holly Schweitzer.

The action followed a complaint filed in November by Hailey Oehlke, a parent whose second-grade children checked out both books from Readfield Elementary School. She requested the books be banned altogether.

Oehlke's complaint against "Horror in Maryland" cites two references to suicide and a mention of a sailor being "blown to bits" by a cannon.

Robbery suspect arrested in Iowa

COUNTY - The suspect in the Feb. 8 armed robbery in Clintonville was arrested in Iowa.

Clintonville Police Chief Craig Freitag said in a press release that Polk County sheriff's deputies arrested a 16-year-old Marion boy shortly before 1:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 9.

Charges of armed robbery and theft will be forwarded to the Waupaca County Juvenile Intake and the Waupaca County District Attorney's Office.

According to police, a male suspect wearing a mask entered the Kwik Trip in Clintonville around 11:45 p.m. Wednesday, picked up some items, then approached the clerk.

He demanded money and pulled up his T-shirt, revealing a handgun in his waistband.

The robber then fled the scene on foot.

Due to the age of the suspect, law enforcement is unable to provide his name.

No further information has been released at this time.

"People like it because not a lot of fishing goes on at this end of the lake so there are not a lot of rough spots. Most people on this lake fish over there," he said as he pointed to the north side of the lake where ice anglers were small specks in the distance. "So we don't have to mess with ice fishing holes because they leave a hump. People like to race here cause its usually smooth ice. On other lakes it's a problem. Every time a bike hits, it makes that rut worse," he said.

A truck with a snow plow cleared the track at the mid-day intermission. The track was churned with a fine dust of snowcone-like shaved ice from the metal studs embedded in the tires. The races have classes for studded and non-studded tires. An image of a stud screw is part of the CWIRA logo. Racers that do not have studded tires cut their own treads in various patterns and swap out the tires for changing surface conditions.

"The rubber-tire ATVs were not that popular years ago but it just got more popular because they're finding out there's a ton of traction out there and its fun to race. Everybody thinks, 'Well, you don't have any studs—you can't go anywhere,' and that's far from the truth because there is a lot of traction," said Falkes.

Fire on Ice ends

Weyauwega's Fire on Ice snowmobile races will no longer be held. The annual event was held every February at the Waupaca County fairgrounds for 16 years.

"This announcement stems from the hardships faced with finding volunteers and the ever increasing costs that make it difficult to continue providing fundraising dollars to our area youth as intended and like we have done for so many years previously. The decision was not made lightly and our 9 person board spent many hours mulling over the logistics, both individually and together. It takes an average of 1,500 volunteer hours and over $30,000 of sponsorship and advertising dollars to make an event like this successful. We are heartbroken that Fire on Ice has come to an end," the organizers wrote on their Facebook page.

Her opposition to "Deserted Prisons" stems from a photograph of the dead bodies of gangsters killed in the Saint Valentine's Day Massacre in 1929.

"I feel grade school is a bit young to allow books with such graphic pictures and words to be viewed by all ages," she wrote.

An ad-hoc Material Reviews Committee comprised of four district employees and a parent reviewed her complaint in November.

The committee recommended the horror books stay in the library due to the genre's popularity among "reluctant readers" as well as the fact parents may ask librarians to bar their child's access to certain titles or genres.

Following the committee's recommendation, Oehlke in December filed the appeal that appeared this week before the school board.

"Horror in Maryland" is available at Parkview, Readfield and Sugar Bush elementary schools.

Parkview, Readfield and Lincoln schools offer "Deserted Prisons."

Outside the schools, "Deserted Prisons" is available at Waupaca and Outagamie counties' public libraries through inter-library loan. "Horror in Maryland" is not.

Neither book is taught in classrooms.

The restriction is not the district's first. New London Intermediate/Middle School forbids the checkout of young adult literature until seventh grade unless a student provides permission from a parent.

Promotional materials for "Horror in Maryland" and "Deserted Prisons" supplied to the school board rate the books at around a third-grade reading level.

"If the recommendation is grades three and up, why are we [lending] it to under grade three?" Wilz asked.

"All the books at the elementary are, say if you will, open to all students in the elementary," Bleck said.

Librarians sometimes suggest more age-appropriate books for the "littlest learners" but up until now did not deny them materials, Bleck said.

Batten argued the schools are not censoring the horror books if they still grant younger students access with parental permission.

Wegner disagreed, adding such limitations put the burden on all readers.

"We're now saying no, nobody can read this unless they opt in, and that's not how [our system] has been developed," he said.

PUBLISHER'S LETTER

"Cuba Libre"

Dear Reader,
Recently I visited Havana, Cuba with a few friends. I traveled there five years ago and was interested in seeing how things had changed. From what I could see, things were not better for the people living there for a number of reasons, starting with the peso's devaluation against the dollar last year.

A peso doesn't buy what it used to, and the people are suffering from the decline. The devaluation resulted in a huge drop in pay for ordinary people trying to get by on an average income of just $40 to $60 dollars a month. That's not a typo; that's what an average Cuban makes in a month.

Because Cuba is a communist country, it doesn't matter if you are a highly trained doctor working in a medical center or an unskilled laborer toiling in the tobacco fields. Most of the people - 90% of the population - work for the government, because nearly all employment is regulated and controlled by the state. It's even illegal to go fishing. You get the feeling that the dictatorship would regulate the use of air if they could.

We hired a car and driver who had his own business to help us navigate. He had been a doctor but was unable to prescribe medicine because none was available. The $60/month he made helping tourists get around was more than he could make as a doctor. Similarly, a woman who had a degree in finance was making $3/day for cleaning rooms, which was more than she could get if she had worked in her field.

Cigars were offered by hotels, which were government businesses, at $60 to $80 per cigar. That also is not a typo; one cigar costs $60 to $80. Obviously the Cuban people can't afford to pay a month's wages for a cigar from their own country, unless they buy it on the black market. But that is a risk that many do not want to take.

I would recommend going there to see how this vibrant culture still flourishes under the thumb of a few selfish authoritarians. The people living there make possessions last for a long time; dishes of paella were creative and delicious; our driver ferried us around in a 1957 Chevy Belair; music groups sang beautiful harmonies; and the jazz and salsa dancing were exceptional. Yes, the Cubans are not free. But they are masters of the workarounds needed to survive and even celebrate life.

I learned two lessons from this trip. First, that a person can make a happy life with whatever one has on a beautiful country island. And second, that we must appreciate the abundance of riches we earn in this beautiful land of opportunity. We must not take our freedom for granted. Not everyone has the opportunity to live with the individual self-determination and personal autonomy that we do.

Waupaca values its urban forest

BY ROBERT CLOUD
SENIOR EDITOR

WAUPACA – An aerial photo of Waupaca shows a canopy of trees covering about one-third of the city's surface.

Public Works Director Justin Berrens discussed Waupaca's urban forest at the common council's Feb. 7 meeting.

Since Russ Montgomery's retirement, Berrens has taken responsibility for Waupaca's forest management. He has enrolled in the Community Tree Management Institute, a Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources program that trains municipal staff on urban forestry.

Berrens said the city has approximately 500 street trees and 600 trees in its parks.

He noted the many benefits of trees in the city.

Trees produce oxygen, absorb carbon dioxide, filter particulates and remove nitrogen oxides, ammonia, sulfur dioxide and ozone from the atmosphere.

They also contribute to water conservation and soil preservation. During storms, rain trickles through the leafy canopy, rather than immediately striking the ground and going directly into storm sewers or flooding streets. The soil has more time to absorb the rain.

Trees also provide shade and reduce temperatures, as well as enhance property values and the quality of life in a community.

Waupaca's tree canopy covers about 1,139 acres. Impervious surfaces, such as streets and parking lots, cover 282 acres, Berrens said.

Berrens noted that while the purchase of new equipment or the construction of new buildings depreciate over time, the value of planting trees appreciates as they mature.

He estimated the value of the city's trees at more than $1.5 million.

The city's forestry budget is $39,500, which comes from Public Works' $1.1 million total annual budget.

Public Works plants 20-50 small trees per year. The budget also pays for trimming and tree removal, especially after a storm.

Friends of Waupaca Parks, the DNR, the Arbor Day Foundation and the Waupaca Rotary Club contribute to the city's forestry efforts.

American Transmission Co. also provides grants to municipalities to pay for planting trees.

Lead water lines

In August 2022, the Waupaca Common Council authorized $280,000 for replacing private lead water lines.

Most of lead laterals were on High Street and Harrison Street, which were under construction last year.

At the Feb. 7 meeting, the council authorized an additional $64,640 for five laterals. The funds will cover the private owners' expenses for replacing the lines.

Ald. Henry Veleker asked Berrens how many more lead laterals remain in the city.

Berrens estimated 450 more residential service lines may need to be replaced.

Upcoming events at library

WAUPACA – The Waupaca Area Public Library will celebrate Youth Art Month with an exhibit that will be open from Feb. 13 to April 1.

Artworks from Waupaca School district students will be on display in the lower-level exhibit room.

The library's adult book group will discuss Stamped: Racism, Antiracism and You by Jason Reynolds and Ibram X. Kendi at 10 a.m.

Saturday, Feb. 18.

Although the authors describe their work as "not a history book," but a "present book," readers will learn the historical origins of racism, its roots in slavery and its ongoing presence in American society.

The library's Lunch and Learn will return with a program at noon Wednesday, March 1.

Detective Sgt. Nate Nelson, with the Waupaca

County Sheriff's Office, will discuss the role of the county's dive team in search and rescue efforts.

Registration is required. Go to the library's website.

The Waupaca Arts Hub will host No-School Art Time from 10 a.m. to noon Monday, March 20.

Participants will also have an opportunity to help with the community art project: Woven All Together.

Law journal honors SPD staff

STATE – The Wisconsin Law Journal recognized the appointment staff of the Wisconsin State Public Defender's office for their work in the legal field in 2022.

The Unsung Legal Heroes award recognizes those who provide exemplary supportive services to attorneys and the legal community as a whole.

According to the nomination statement:

"For these clerks – in my opinion, heroes – the task of finding that person an attorney matters. They know what's at stake. They know this person's liberty is at stake and they need an attorney – not just to defend him but to counsel and support them.

"Yet despite those challenges, the appointment clerks soldier on because they are the bridge between the Sixth Amendment's promise of legal representation and the difficulties in implementing that promise.

"The appointment clerks (in my opinion) have the hardest job in the law, and the most necessary. Without them, people just languish in jail."

The regional State Public Defender offices, covering Adams, Florence, Forest, Langlade, Lincoln, Marathon, Oneida, Portage, Price, Taylor, Vilas, Waupaca and Wood counties, celebrated the 10 legal secretaries who received this award for their exemplary service.

In the last two years, SPD staff appointed 21,291 public defender cases.

Cathryn and Christopher Gunst of Pine River recently received the Wisconsin Junior Holstein Association's Young Distinguished Junior Member recognition award. The award rewards youth who demonstrate a firsthand working knowledge of the dairy industry. The award presentation took place in January at the Wisconsin Junior Holstein Convention in Manitowoc. The Gunsts were later selected to represent Wisconsin on the national level, where they will complete a book based on their dairy story, breeding philosophy and animal inventory, along with photos and clippings to support their dairy project. If chosen on the national level, they will travel to Louisville, Kentucky, in June to receive their award. The Wisconsin Junior Holstein Association is a not-for-profit organization that strives to increase knowledge and provide opportunities to youth by involvement through the Registered Holstein Project.

City emergency closing policy scrutinized

BY BERT LEHMAN
STAFF REPORTER

CLINTONVILLE – The city of Clintonville is looking at changing its leave policy when it comes to emergency closings of city hall due to inclement weather.

The Clintonville Common Council was expected to vote on a new leave policy for emergency closings when it met for its monthly meeting Feb. 14.

December Personnel Committee meeting

At its Dec. 29, 2022 meeting, The Clintonville Personnel Committee discussed the ramifications of closing city hall on Dec. 15, 2022 for impending inclement weather and the impact of the city's closure policy.

The decision to close city hall for that day was relayed to the public via a Facebook post on Dec. 14.

"Obviously the weather was deceiving and it was not nearly as bad as we had anticipated," said City Administrator Caz Muske. "So, it kind of drew some questions and concerns from different leadership members, our department heads, of concerns from the financial aspect."

When the Facebook post was made on Dec. 14, there were several Facebook comments from people with questions about city employees being paid for the closure day.

At the committee meeting, the committee reviewed the policy, specifically the financial impact, since the city policy stated that a closure day due to inclement weather would be considered a holiday.

The policy also stated that essential personnel, such as members of the Clintonville Police Department and Clintonville Public Works Department, would be required to report to work during a closure, but they would be paid as if it were a holiday.

"Specifically, the union spells out what a holiday is, and what is that cost pay-wise," Muske said. "For instance, for them, it's triple time we're paying out for that specific shift. And for other departments it can be double time."

Muske said in her internal discussions on the matter, it was brought up about scrapping the policy and allowing departments managers to decide whether or not it makes sense for employees to report to work or not. She added that city departments are not the same, so not having a rigid set of guidelines may be helpful.

"It did cost the city quite a bit of money, this last storm," Police Chief Craig Freitag said. "I think we learned a lot from it, and I think we'll make different decisions next time."

Clintonville Utility Manager Dave Tichinel said in the future, if city hall closes, it should not be considered a holiday.

"We do have holidays already in our personnel manual, we have those days already," Tichinel said. "So, by calling it a holiday you are opening a can of worms. Now you are going to be paying double time to everybody that worked and everything like that. That

Flip pallets, pass on savings

Store expands into food

BY JAMES CARD
STAFF REPORTER

NEW LONDON – It's always Christmas at Family Flippers.

The retail shop purchases pallets of new merchandise from big-box stores at a reduced cost and sells the goods to its customers at bargain prices.

It's Christmas because there is an element of surprise like opening a present: the pallet is usually shrink wrapped so no one can be certain of what is exactly inside. The interior of the pallet could hold a pair of boxing gloves or a case of bug spray.

"Ninety-nine percent of the time we have no idea of what we're getting. You can see what's on the outside but not on the inside," said Alexis Bohman who co-founded the business with her sister, Amber Meyer.

let in April 2021 and opened their storefront in December 2021 in the small strip mall at 1200 N. Shawano St. At first they were tucked behind the Subway restaurant. Now they are right next door.

Their inventory reflects the randomness of pallet flipping: toys, clothes, books, toiletries, hedge trimmers, exercise equipment, school supplies, office supplies, decorations, lawn chairs, pillows, cleaning supplies, kitchenware, wheel chairs, board games and more.

Bohman says the strangest thing they came across were shocks for a golf cart.

"It's brand-new items at a thrift store price. We try to keep everything at least 50% of retail," said Bohman who has a bachelor's degree in accounting and invented a spreadsheet that tracks the costs and helps determine the pricing.

Besides the pallet merchandise they also do bulk sales of common household items of laundry detergent, fabric softener, toilet paper and paper towels. This includes refills name-brand laundry detergent which equals out to half the normal retail price at 8 cents per ounce. They have a rewards program and also a layaway program.

New food offerings

They recently started offering food this week. They will stock non-perishable food with the opportunity to purchase frozen foods. The non-perishable foods will range from cereals, condiments,

Mayor to speak at forum

NEW LONDON – Mayor Mark Herter will speak at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 23, at the Washington Center.

Herter will discuss what is happening in and around New London and answer questions.

Sponsored by Wolf River Area Patriots, the forum is free and open to the public.

The center is located at the corner of Washington and Dickinson streets. Forum attendees should snacks, canned goods and microwaveable meals.

"In New London, we have Festival Foods and that's it. We have no other grocery store unless you're going to drive to Appleton or Waupaca or Clintonville. In New London, there are a large number of low-income families as well as elderly. It's not fair that they have to travel and that's why we started bringing in the food. We're here for the community. That's what we're here for," said Bohman.

For frozen foods, the variety is about anything a supermarket will carry. A customer orders ahead of time and pays 75% of the bill. "For frozen items we don't have the capability of keeping everything here. So anybody that wants frozen food they are required to be here within an hour of truck coming," said Bohman.

She said if a customer cannot pick up their order when the truck arrives, they can drop off coolers ahead of time and Family Flippers can hold it until later pick up.

HR reps grill W-F seniors

Students put in the hot seat

WEYAUWEGA – Human resource managers, administrators and business owners visited Weyauwega-Fremont High School to participate in mock interviews with the senior class.

The goal for the students: gain insight into what qualities they possess that make them ready for their future careers and to figure out how to sell themselves as a valuable employee.

Leading up to the day of the mock interviews, seniors in English classes researched careers of interest and applied the skills they learned in class to properly fill out applications, resumes, and cover letters correctly.

The unit culminated with a mock interview coordinated by Connie Peterson, the Youth Apprenticeship/Work Experience Coordinator. She networked with community members and area businesses to invite individuals to interview the seniors.

Business representatives participating were Wendy

On the day of the interviews, the students met in small groups with the human resource managers and business owners to participate in interviews and observe others while they interviewed. The small groups allowed for critiqued feedback and discussions on helpful hints.

To conclude the project, all participants gathered in the auditorium to ask questions to the panel of interviewers, hear overall impressions on their interviewing skills and to network for potential job opportunities.

Celebrating Scout History

With the help of Howard Quimby, the Weyauwega Area Historical Society assembled a museum display of Boy Scout artifacts that is located on the second floor of city hall. Scouting has a long history in Weyauwega. In 1916, a troop was composed of three patrols: Eagle, Beaver and Wolf. Scout troops have been continuously chartered since 1923 to the present day. In 1953, Abe Cohen donated land where the Scout House would eventually be built on E. Ann Street. The display has news clippings of its construction, along with the original charter sponsored by the Lion's Club and camping gear that scouts used over the years. The Scout House gets used every week by both boy and girl scouts. Recently Eagle Scout candidate Robert Wisner built a park sign for the rededication of Maasch Community Park.

Neuvill, Catherine

Cathy Neuvill, age 65, passed into eternal life on Saturday, January 28, 2023. She was surrounded by family during her last days in the hospital, and died peacefully in the evening.

Cathy was a proud graduate of Appleton West High School. She enjoyed Special Olympics bowling and softball. In adulthood, she enjoyed water aerobics at the YMCA.

She worked in food service throughout her life, most recently over 20 years at Burger King. She loved the Green Bay Packers, the Milwaukee Brewers and the Milwaukee Bucks. Cathy consistently took pictures with her Polaroid camera over the years. She left a legacy of our family's life in photographs. Cathy had an incredible memory for names and dates and was an excellent resource for reminiscences. She was a faithful member of St. Mary and then St. Therese Catholic churches.

Cathy is survived by her father, Louis Neuvill (Kitty), her sisters and brothers Julie Eidem, Monica Rathsack (Patrick), Ted Neuvill (Patty), Peter Neuvill (Michele), Joe Neuvill, and Tracy Karabelas (Chris). She also had many great nieces and nephews. Cathy was preceded in death by her mother, Theresa Neuvill, and two nephews, Tyler Rathsack and Andrew Neuvill.

A Memorial Service for Cathy will take place at 1:00 p.m. on Saturday, February 18, 2023 at SAINT THERESE CATHOLIC CHURCH, 213 E Wisconsin Ave, Appleton with Fr. Ryan Starks officiating. Friends may visit from 12 NOON until the time of service. Inurnment will take place at St. Mary Catholic Cemetery in Appleton.

The family thanks all of the people and organizations in Cathy's life who helped her to be self-determined and independent, including her many friends and neighbors at Randall Court Apartments. The family would also like to thank the third floor staff at St. Elizabeth's Hospital who were so kind and patient with Cathy and her many siblings during Cathy's final days.

 could be a payroll issue." Freitag said if a day that city staff is off because of inclement weather is considered a holiday, the city's police officers are paid triple time, and the police department doesn't shut down for bad weather. The triple time pay is in the police union's contract.

He also said if the inclement weather is a winter storm, members of the city's Public Works Department will be out clearing streets, and they will be paid double-time if the day is considered a holiday.

Muske said closing city hall is different from closing public schools because, for the school system, one of the concerns is buses traveling on rural roads. Because of that, it's probably not a good practice to close city hall just because the school district is closed.

January Personnel Committee meeting
 The committee discussed the matter again at its Jan. 16 meeting.
 At that meeting Muske recommended that the city remove the portion of the leave policy for emergency closings that declares the day a holiday.
 The committee agreed and recommended that the council approve removing that language from the policy.
 The policy the committee recommended for the council to approve also included the following language: "Employees who desire to call out or desire to leave early when operations have not been shut down may do so with the approval of the department head. Employees will only be paid for the time actually worked, but they may use vacation time or compensatory time to minimize or avoid loss of wages as a result of the absence."

Any chance for a comeback went away quickly in the second half, as the Truckers scored the first seven points and the Panthers never got any closer than 23 points the rest of the way.

Jack Yaeger, Jordan Wegener and Kade Rosenow led the Truckers with 17, 16 and 12 points, respectively, while Caden Birr led the Panthers with 12.

"I've had a headache for 10 years. It's a unilateral pressure headache. I figured we'll give this a try. I would say within the first treatment or two, I was 20 to 40 percent improved. It hasn't gone but I haven't had anything that touched my headache before – whatever pill or whatever thing – but we do this and wham! Now we're doing things," said Hollatz.

Hollatz visited the Mayo Clinic and other hospitals but could not find the relief. His initial nasal release treatments with Koch were in January 2022.

He also said it helped his vision. Hollatz had an eye appointment with a neuro-optometrist a month before his first nasal release treatment and was prescribed low-prism glasses.

In April 2022, he met neuro-optometrist again and he tested better without the glasses.

Hollatz also had braces as a kid.

This actually straightened my top palette. I had a gap in my front teeth and that closed up. You can definitely feel it," he said.

He does the treatment every other week for his chronic headache but for treating concussions only a few visits may be needed.

So far Koch has treated four student-athletes for concussions but also adults who say they never had a head injury but yet have some undiagnosed problem.

"Oh, yeah I fell off the swing when I was 5 or my brother hit me with a skateboard. There are all kinds of stories," said Koch.

The treatment helps with snoring, hearing, migraines, sleep apnea, vertigo and other conditions. "I've had a battered woman had been hit in the face multiple times. One thing she noticed is that she could think clearer. She didn't have to think for words. She could focus and didn't have the brain fog," said Koch.

"Your skull expands and contracts roughly six times a minute. It's a different rhythm than your heart beat or respiration or peristalsis. It's its own rhythm that pumps the cerebral spinal fluid through your spinal cord. All these skull bones move. As a cranial sacral therapist, we're trained to get these sutures to move and to get this bone to move and try to balance the skull that way. The nasal release allows me to mobilize the sphenoid. The idea is, the sphenoid interacts with 19 of the 22 skull bones. So if you can get that sphenoid to move, I can unlock all these," said Koch.
