Q&A with local Bellin Run participants

In just two weeks, runners will come from far and wide to participate in the 47th annual Bellin Run 10K and 5K. Some runners, though, don't have to come from far and wide.

Get to know some of the Bellin Run's local racers:

▲ Noah Jahnke

Noah Jahnke

Where are you from?
Green Bay, Wisconsin.

What years have you participated in the Bellin Run?

I have participated in three Bellin Run Races, but two of them were virtual races during the COVID-19 pandemic, so the 2022 race was my first chance to experience what the Bellin Run is all about.

Do you have any goals for this year's race?

Unfortunately, I will not be racing the Bellin this year due to a stress reaction that I have in my left femur, but I hope to be back next year!

What advice would you give to new runners or first-time Bellin Run participants?

To any new runners and first-time Bellin Run participants, I would say really just try to take it all in and enjoy it. Of course you want to get to the starting line as fit and as fresh as possible in order to give yourself the best chance of having a good race, but after the race, there are so many activities to enjoy, such as live music.

How do you stay motivated to run?

My personal motivation for running comes from a variety of sources. For example, staying committed to running keeps me on the path to live a healthy lifestyle. In addition, I love the sense of freedom when I am out on the roads or trails and the sense of accomplishment once I have completed my workout. I also just love the process of training and racing and trying to push myself beyond my previous performances.

Do you listen to music while you run?

When I run, I very rarely listen to music; I like to stay in the present moment with nothing but my own thoughts and the sound of the surrounding world to keep me company.

▲ Matt Cooper

Matt Cooper

Where are you from?
Green Bay (Ashwaubenon, more specifically).

What years have you participated in the Bellin Run?

Just this past year (2022).

What advice would you give to new runners or first-time Bellin Run participants?

Take the race one mile at a time. If you experience a rough patch, stay patient and feed off of the crowd's energy. If it's a hot day, run through any sprinklers set up by Green Bay locals!

How do you stay motivated to run?

I always try to keep a growth mindset within the sport of running — looking for new challenges and participating in races that excite me.

Do you listen to music while you run? What's at the top of your playlist?

Yes, I enjoy listening to music and podcasts while running. Right now, Zach Bryan is at the top of my playlist.

▲ Erin Moldenhauer

Erin Moldenhauer

Where are you from?
Ripon, WI.

What years have you participated in the Bellin Run?

2018 and 2022.

Do you have any goals for this year's race?

My goal is to have fun at the Bellin Run because I am racing Grandma's Marathon the following weekend.

What advice would you give to new runners or first-time Bellin Run participants?

Enjoy the crowds and embrace the energy off of the other runners.

How do you stay motivated to run?

Honestly I don't need motivation. Running is my passion.

Do you listen to music while you run? What's at the top of your playlist?

On training runs, I listen to Twenty One Pilots, Fall Out Boy and Imagine Dragons, but on race day I don't listen to music.

▲ Nicole Strutz

Nicole Strutz

Where are you from?
Two Rivers, WI.

What years have you participated in the Bellin Run?

2011-Present-running 13th Bellin in 2023.

Do you have any goals set for this year's race?

Break 39 minutes at Bellin.

What advice would you give to new runners or first-time Bellin Run participants?

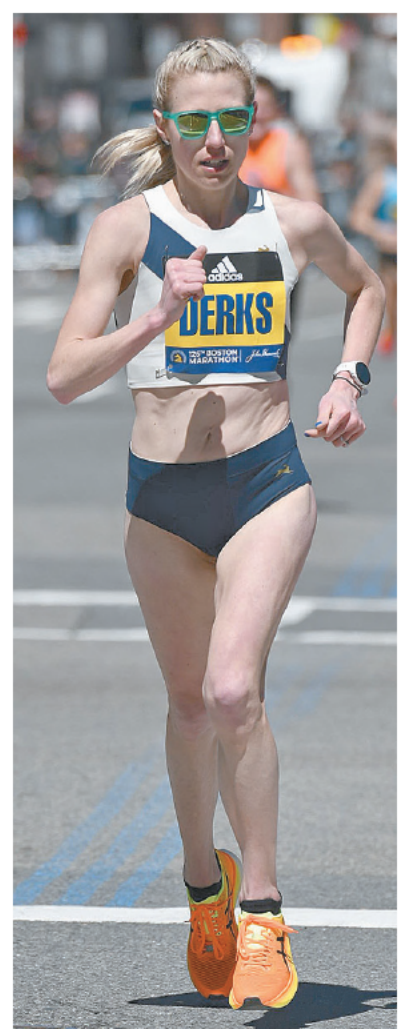

Take it easy for the first mile or two of the race, it will be congested. The real race of Bellin starts at mile four after you see the Packers alumni cheering for you.

How do you stay motivated to run?

I always find new challenges. Last year, I challenged myself to run another 50-mile race. This year? Running more trail races.

Do you listen to music while you run? What's at the top of your playlist?

I normally don't race with music, but a top song I love to listen to during training right now is "Nothing I Can't Do" by Tedashii, Lecrae and Trip Lee.

▲ Kathy VanDehy

Kathy VanDehy

Where are you from?
Greenville, WI.

What year have you participated in the Bellin Run?

2022 was my first time participating!

Do you have any goals set for this year's race?

Yes! I'm looking forward to running Bellin again this year. This is a very well organized event and they do a great job involving all participants and the community! This year I will be using Bellin as my last workout before racing the Grandma's Marathon on June 17. So, my goal is to comfortably lock in at goal marathon pace and kick it the last 1-1.5 miles.

What advice would you give to new runners or first-time Bellin Run participants?

The first two miles of the course is on a steady incline but the rest of the course is a breeze. Focus on effort versus pace on the inclines and know the worst part of the race is over in the beginning! But most importantly, have fun!

How do you stay motivated to run?

Always staying focused on the bigger goal — reminding myself that on the days that it's hardest to get out the door are often more important than the days you can't wait to put on your shoes or you crush a hard workout. Personally, I like racing but I LOVE training and the daily grind — pushing my body and mind to new limits and putting in the work when nobody's watching. Proving to myself first that I can do hard things (training) and then celebrating the progress made at the end of each training cycle (racing)!

Do you listen to music while you run? What's at the top of your playlist?

Music when training but not racing! I have a mixed playlist from '90s country to Blink-182!

▲ Sue Pierson

Sue Pierson

Where are you from?
Waupaca, WI.

What years have you participated in the Bellin Run?

2000-2004, 2008, 2022 and 2023.

Do you have any goals set for this year's race?

Now, as I am getting older, it's to be close to the previous year's time.

What advice would you give to new runners or first-time Bellin Run participants?

The atmosphere has so much energy, soak it up!

How do you stay motivated to run?

I am always looking for that run that just feels perfect.

▲ David Schneekloth

David Schneekloth

Where are you from?

I currently reside in Appleton, WI.

What years have you participated in the Bellin Run?

2007, 2009, 2010, 2014, 2016, 2017, 2019 and 2022.

Do you have any goals for this year's race?

Yes, to break 34 minutes.

What advice would you give to new runners or first-time Bellin Run participants?

You don't need to follow a training plan to perfection to be successful. Listen to your body and how it is feeling and adjust training as necessary. If you enjoy most of your runs, you will be more likely to stick with it.

How do you stay motivated to run?

Running is a nice stress reliever, and I usually feel better when I am running consistently. I enjoy pushing myself and knowing I gave it my best.

▲ Zach Jindra

Zach Jindra

Where are you from?

Born and raised in Green Bay, currently residing in Milwaukee.

What years have you participated in the Bellin Run?

Almost every year as a kid from about 2004-2012, 2016, and then I finally got back up here last year again.

Do you have any goals set for this year's race?

Yes! I'm hoping to best my result from last year and see how close I can get to that top 10.

What advice would you give to new runners or first-time Bellin Run participants?

Soak in the atmosphere from the crowds and let their cheers power you through the home stretch.

How do you stay motivated to run?

I love racing and dream of racing, so I keep the event at the front of my mind on days when I'm not feeling so motivated to train, knowing that getting in consistent sessions is necessary for long term success!

Do you listen to music while you run? What's at the top of your playlist?

I typically only listen to music when I'm on a treadmill. When I am listening during a run, it's typically something with a fast tempo — a lot of hip hop and R&B. My guilty

▲ Sophie Bolich

Sophie Bolich

Where are you from?

Milwaukee.

What years have you participated in the Bellin Run?

My first year was 2010, when I was 11 years old. I've done it a fair handful of times since, including last year.

What advice would you give to new runners or first-time Bellin Run participants?

The spectators at Bellin are a big part of what makes the race so special. Don't forget to look around and take it all in!

How do you stay motivated to run?

Finding time to run with friends and teammates always gives me the motivation I need to get out the door.

Do you listen to music while you run? What's at the top of your playlist?

Sometimes, but not always. I listen to a little bit of everything, but I really like classic music like Vivaldi.

▲ Riley Siltman

Riley Siltman

Where are you from?

Evansville, WI.

What year have you participated in the Bellin Run?

2022.

Do you have any goals set for this year's race?

I will be participating this year. I am hoping to run around 31 minutes over 10K!

What advice would you give to new runners or first-time Bellin Run participants?

Go out conservative and really push yourself the last half of the race.

How do you stay motivated to run?

I am always seeking ways to better myself, and in running, the more work you put in, the better runner you are!

▲ Paul Gutmann

Paul Gutmann

Where are you from?

Born in Menomonee Falls and currently live in Franklin.

What year have you participated in the Bellin Run?

2022 was my first and only Bellin Run

Do you have any goals for this year's race?

Yes, I am participating in the 10K this year and have a goal to run a lifetime PR (personal record).

What advice would you give to new runners or first-time Bellin Run participants?

Push only so hard that you still enjoy running and will feel good enough to do it again tomorrow.

How do you stay motivated to run?

Running makes me happy through the constant progress towards goals that range from setting PRs, increasing mileage, recovering from injury to exploring new areas.

▲ Jason Ryf

Jason Ryf

Where are you from?

Oshkosh.

What years have you participated in the Bellin Run?

A lot, I think I missed a couple years since 1999.

Do you have any goals for this year's race?

Yes, to run faster than last year.

What advice would you give to new runners or first-time Bellin Run participants?

To enjoy the experience of running with so many other runners.

How do you stay motivated to run?

I don't really think about it. I just do it. It's part of my daily routine.

Do you listen to music while you run? What's at the top of your playlist?

I don't, I like to hear things going on around me and my breathing.

Meet Green Bay actress Jolee Jackson

By Freddy Moyano
Contributing Writer

Born in Milwaukee but a Green Bay resident since she was three years old, Jolee Jackson can say acting on stages — and most recently on the set of a movie — has changed her life for the better.

“I started acting about six years ago. My daughter was around 11 years old at the time. I did a lot of costuming and behind-the-stage stuff at the time, but I would never go on stage,” Jackson said.

She said that eventually her daughter, Ritter, who was 11 at the time and had some acting experience, made her promise she would audition for a role.

Out of love, Jackson delivered on that promise after she learned of a play at a theatre in Sheboygan. “I figured a few things: one, it’s far away so I’m not going to know anybody, and two, if I fell on my face, again, nobody would know me.”

She booked the role and the rest is history.

“It feels like I’ve been acting all my life,” Jackson said.

She says she loves everything theatre-related, the scripting part, seeing the finished product come together.

One show Jackson loves working every year is Broadway Theatre’s “A Christmas Carol: The Musical” in De Pere. She has also worked “Elf” around the holiday season and said that was a lot of fun.

Jackson said the change of pace from stage to a movie set is something she said she enjoyed, and something she got to experience in December of 2022.

On December 5, she worked both “Elf” and a scene of Room 108 at De Pere’s Wine Cellar in the same evening.

“Those are two different breeds, but a lot of fun to go from one to the other,” Jackson said.

Whether on stage or on screen, Jackson said one aspect of acting she always takes seriously is learning her lines.

For a long time, Jackson said she would write down all of her lines for a given role over and over until she remembered them well.

“To be able to have fun with your character and make things look real, you have to bring to your character a little bit of who you are in real life,” Jackson said.

Sometimes, though, Jackson said the opposite can occur, and playing a character can change you.

An example Jackson cited is acting on set

▲ “My favorite ‘Room 108’ looks are those at the early 1900s funeral scene in Luxemburg.” Jackson (right) said, indicating the veil she borrowed from fellow cast Menasha actress, Melissa Lopez (left), made them look their parts accurately. MLC Productions movie frame at the Green Bay airport (Jet Air hub) for Room 108 in January of this year, wherein she played a flight attendant role and even went up in the air with the cast and crew for some scenes.

▲ “I never thought I could act. Now it feels like I’ve been acting all my life,” Jackson said.

Jackson said she did not share with anyone that she was scared of flying and that she had not flown in many years.

“It was neat, we got to see Lambeau Field from above while working the scene,” Jackson said.

When it comes to getting started in acting, Jackson said her best advice is to “just do it, don’t wait.” CP

the START OF SUMMER with TITLETOWN

Flo Rida brings the heat to Summer Fun Days

By Janelle Fisher
City Pages Editor

With June just around the corner and the start of summer in sight, plans are underway for Tittletown's summer kick-off event, the Summer Fun Day Showcase.

A day of activities of all kinds will end with a free, non-ticketed concert by none other than Flo Rida.

 ▼ Titledtown District's Summer Fun Day 2022.

Titledtown Residential and Programs Manager Jackie Krutz said providing programming like this is part of Titledtown's ongoing effort to give back to the community which has provided Titledtown and the Packers so much support over the years.

"Really, the history, the reason why we're here and why the Packers remain here in Green Bay is due to the community support that we've had over the years," she said. "Building titledtown has been for many reasons, but one is to give back to the community and take in the goals of not only the Packers themselves, but all of Green Bay and Brown County... We're considered now the number one city to live in in the U.S... What Titledtown likes to do is look at, we have so many different places here within the city that offer amazing programming, events and things to do — what can we add to complement what's already here?"

When it first started, Krutz said the Summer Fun Day Showcase was a way to give people a taste of what Titledtown offers over the summer but has since grown into something much bigger.

"Summer Fun Day has kind of evolved over the last few years, really starting out just showcasing the various programs and events that we'll have here in Titledtown during the summer," she said. "As the various goals within the city change and what we're trying to do and accomplish here in this area, one of the things that we've noticed is it's great to turn this into a very large concert that the community can enjoy... Chicago, the Twin Cities, they all get large concerts and many people tend to buy tickets and drive all the way down there to capture that experience. To be able to bring it here to our community and make it free is very special to us... A lot of what we do here at Titledtown is free and open to the community," she said. "And in doing this, it still holds true to that goal. It's amazing for people, whether they have been raised here all the way or just moved into the city, to be able to experience something like this."

The process for bringing in artists like Flo Rida or Jason Derulo, who performed at Titledtown's Summer Fun Day Showcase in 2022, is one Krutz said involves a large variety of people.

"Every company works with their own middle agent in order to source these kinds of artists," she said. "We tell them what we're looking for and our promoter will give us options and that's kind of how we go about it. Our goal here in terms of bringing people like Jason Derulo and Flo Rida to the area is really targeting that kind of 22-35-year-old range. They're the ones that typically say there's nothing to do in Green Bay. Looking at that, we actually survey people that fall within that range. So we're working with a promoter, we get a list of names and then we pick out the ones internally that we think could be represented here and we push that out to at least 30-40 people within that age range and let them vote."

Krutz said Titledtown has been very intentional about making sure that the more underserved age groups of the community will be excited about the performers for Summer Fun Days.

"Our goal is to really enhance the experience for that age group here," she said. "There's a ton of things for families and there's a ton of things for established adults, but when it comes to the 22-35 age range, it's been pretty consistent that many will say there's nothing to do here. So we've been really intentional in ensuring that when we try to target that demographic, we really talk to the demographic about what they want to see."

Before the big concert, though, Krutz said there will be many other activities and things to do/see around Titledtown.

"Starting at 3 p.m., we have various activities that target our community in general," she said. "These are daily programs that we host all throughout the summer, so there's tons of things for families, there's tons of things for more established adults and there are a ton of things for everyone in between. So during the course of the day, we will have activities out there such as arts and crafts, we'll have some trivia, lots of food and beverages available. Fingers crossed for a beautiful sunny day — people just want to take in the sunshine and socialize and relax and be out there. We'll have everything to kind of engage them in that way... One of our big art projects that we have coming for Summer Fun Days is a very large mural that we worked with Elevate 97 on to create and we'll have the community just come by and paint it."

Attendees of Titledtown's Summer Fun Days Showcase can enjoy food trucks, kids' characters, an art cart, face painting, singo, giant games, henna, a paint-by-number mural, hammerschlagen, caricature artists, photo booths and music by This Side Up, DJ Coleman, DJay Mando and Flo Rida.

The Maid and the Socialite

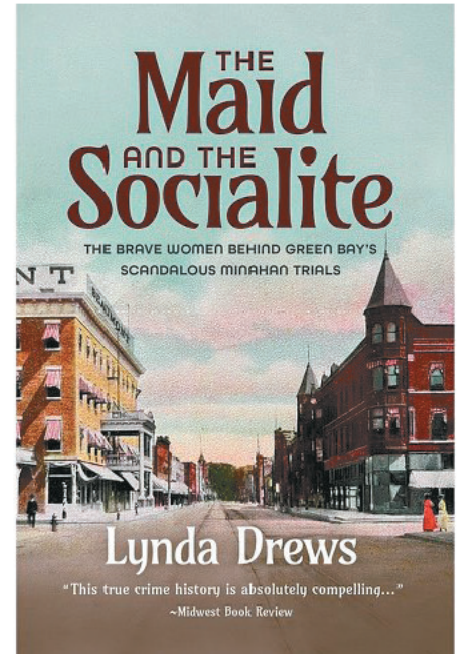

Lynda Drews

By Kana Coonce
 Contributing Writer

A true tale of late-19th and early-20th century scandal, The Maid and the Socialite is Green Bay author Lynda Drews' meticulously researched retelling of two women's personal struggles following their mistreatment at the hands of celebrated local doctor John R. Minahan. For the lower-class Mary Cenefelt, who spent her summers helping tend her family's farm and the latter half of the year working around the Midwest in "help" positions, one false accusation of syphilis — at the time undetectable by any sort of test — was all it took to tarnish her reputation, render her unemployable and force her into squalor. Mollie Bertles, on the other hand, a college-educated, first-wave feminist, fought for her dignity and autonomy in the upper-class domestic sphere after her own husband accused her of the same.

More than 100 years and four waves of feminism later, Drews' book is as timely as ever. In our age of modern convenience and heightened scientific awareness, it can be difficult to imagine how the people who once lived where we do now lived their lives. While much has certainly changed, I could not help noticing certain themes in this story that have popped up time and again in our nation's history and which we see echoes of to this day. The debate over female autonomy, the struggle for survivors of rape and abuse to find proper aid and the overwhelmingly uneven footing between the disenfranchised and those in power remain startlingly present, if lessened in form and intensity. On those grounds alone, The Maid and the Socialite makes for a fascinating read.

Of course, Drews' pacing and prose are nothing to scoff at, either. Drews seamlessly weaves historical record into her narrative without sacrificing pace or intrigue. In fact, the tale is just as much a page-turner as any modern scandal, each new detail providing further insight not only into what happened, but why. Drews is a natural storyteller whose passion for history and attention to detail shines in each page.

The Maid and the Socialite is not a tale that ends happily for many of those involved. But in telling it, Drews places power back into the hands of the women who suffered under Minahan and the power structures of their time. "To give Mary and Mollie a voice to tell their courageous accounts was important to me," writes Drews in her author's note. As a city shaped in part by J.R. Minahan and his family, Green Bay's popular history reflects these men's accounts. In the writing of this book, Drews aims to set the record straight. May this truth set Mollie Bertles and Mary Cenefelt free. CP

This book is for: Fans of history, especially local; true crime enthusiasts; lovers of women protagonists; those looking for a juicy book club read.
This book is not for: Those seeking escapism.

Kegger's and The Lyric Room get new owner and new name

By City Pages Staff

A ribbon cutting ceremony Tuesday marked the start of a new era for Kegger's and The Lyric Room in the Broadway District, complete with a new owner and a new name.

With Alexander Graziano at the helm, Kegger's will now be known as Stage 1 — a rebranding Graziano said he hopes will bring a new vibe to the area.

"The idea behind Stage 1 is that it is just the beginning, for us here and for the individuals who will get their start on our stage, through music, comedy and other forms of expression," Graziano said. "Stage 1 is about collaborating with young artists, creators, entrepreneurs and countless other professionals who are trying to make a lasting impact on our community and our world. We hope to make Stage 1 an awesome place in the Broadway District where anyone can feel welcome and enjoy a beverage (with or without alcohol), while appreciating local art and live music."

The Lyric Room will keep its name with Graziano hoping to keep the history of the location alive.

"It's an exciting honor to take over Kegger's and The Lyric Room, an awesome community spot where people have been connecting for years through live music, drinks and a welcome atmosphere," Graziano said. "Will Liebergen built a great addition to the Broadway District, one that has grown and thrived over the years thanks to his dedication, the dedication of countless employees and the dedication of all the downtown businesses and patrons who continue to make Green Bay an awesome place to be. It's a great responsibility to take over this business in a district that is continually adding new events and experiences to the downtown."

Brian Johnson, executive director of On Broadway, Inc. stated in a release that he is looking forward to seeing what the future holds for Graziano and the two establishments.

"We're thrilled to see this long-time establishment in the Broadway District continue under new ownership," Johnson said. "Will Liebergen built a very successful business that contributed value to the district for many years. Now it's time to let the next generation build upon that success and bring value to new and old consumers that continue to patronize the district." CP
