Brown County Library East Branch opens new building, starts new chapter

BY JANELLE FISHER
CITY PAGES EDITOR

GREEN BAY – The doors officially opened to the newly constructed East Branch of the Brown County Library, located right next to the old East Branch at 2253 Main St. in Green Bay on Saturday, Sept. 16.

Local leaders, government officials and community members were invited to attend a ribbon cutting ceremony and celebrate the opening of a new branch in a time when the public discourse surrounding libraries has not always been so favorable.

John Van Dyck, library board chair in the Brown County Board of Supervisors, addressed those who questioned the need for the county to invest in its libraries.

“Why libraries? That is a question that I’ve been asked on a number of occasions while serving on the county board,” he said. “Why should the county spend almost seven million dollars a year on library operations? And why is the county spending almost 30 million dollars upgrading and renovating our library facilities? To be honest, I asked those same questions when I was first elected to the county board.”

While Van Dyck noted that while each individual may garner their own personal value from Brown County’s libraries, there is a universal benefit to be found in the services they provide.

"There are many different answers to the question unique to each of us — reading, education, relaxation, entertainment, social interaction, business solitude and so on," he said. "But I would offer that maybe, just maybe, there's one not-so-obvious answer that is vitally important. In our area of politically charged and increasingly biased news or fake news, libraries offer a safe haven for uncensored, thoroughly researched information that is available to all of us who are willing to make that effort."

Dr. Darrell L. Williams, Assistant State Superintendent of the Division for Libraries and Technology, commended county staff, library staff and community members for the dedication to their community that is shown through their willingness to invest in libraries and follow through with projects like the East Branch renovation.

"I know all about some of the conversations that you probably had in front of the scenes and behind the scenes — all the struggles and so forth to get to where we are today," he said. "But I'm going to tell you, this is what it's about — coming together as a team to do what's right on behalf of this community and on behalf of its kids. The fact that we're here today just provides some evidence of the community's commitment to our children right here in Brown County and throughout the state of Wisconsin... You're showing here today that libraries are truly the heartbeat of our communities and our schools. They are the vessels by which students and adults gain access to the real world."

"I tell people all the time that the library is the most important place in any school and in any community," he said. "It is the only place where you can go everywhere, without really having to go anywhere... On the academic side, I don't have to tell you that many of [Wisconsin's] students are struggling — not only here in Brown County, but across the state of Wisconsin — in the area of literacy. And I will tell you, the library serves as a critical resource to help enclose the academic information and opportunities gap across the state. It also provides an area where people can feel safe, an inclusive environment, and it's educationally encouraging. It provides a space where literacy and technical skills, cultural awareness and overall knowledge can not only be enhanced, but expanded. Libraries played a key role in my education, and they will for the children here in Brown County."

Brown County Executive Troy Streckenbach echoed those sentiments, thanking members of the Brown County Board of Supervisors for the role they played in ensuring continued investment in Brown County's library system, even in the face of opposition.

"I think those words resonate with our library board and our Brown County Board of Supervisors and ultimately, it was the reason why we decided back in 2018 to make the decision to make a significant investment into our libraries," he said. "There were a number of people in our community who said, 'We don't want you to make that vote. They even threatened to throw us out of office because we were taking that historic vote. The reality is this: in order to have a vibrant community, you have to make investments. We all know the important investment in our children and our broader community is in libraries.'

Van Dyck noted that the investment made in the East Branch renovation project not only benefits the community now, but will continue to do so for years to come.

"I'd like to thank you, the members of the community," he said. "This is your library, made possible by your financial support, provided by the taxes you pay. This is a gift to yourself and to future generations that you should be proud of."

And with the cutting of the ribbon, that gift has officially been bestowed upon the patrons of the East Branch library.

Packer fans asked to update Packers app before home opener

Ticket holders must use new version of the app when accessing tickets

FOR THE PRESS TIMES

GREEN BAY – Ahead of this week’s home opener at Lambeau Field, the Green Bay Packers are asking fans and game attendees to download the latest version of the Packers mobile app on their mobile device.

Aside from a fresh look and enhanced functionality, the newest version of the app features critical updates to the app’s integration with Ticketmaster.

Because of these changes, fans and ticket holders must update their Packers app prior to arriving at Lambeau Field in order to access their tickets to Sunday’s game through the app.

Fans who do not update their Packers app before gameday will not be able to access their tickets through the app.

Those who cannot update the app can still access their tickets via web browser.

To avoid internet connectivity issues, Packers fans should download the latest version of the Packers app prior to arriving at Lambeau Field on gameday.

The app is available for download in the Apple App Store for iOS devices or the Google Play Store for Android phones.

Once fans have their app updated, they should ensure they are logged in to their account by tapping “Account” at the top right of the app and selecting “My Packers Account.”

Please note, the location of the “Account” button was moved from the app’s bottom tile to the upper right corner in the new version of the app.

Next, fans must tap “Sign in to Packers” and follow all login prompts using their Ticketmaster account information.

Game attendees should add any tickets they plan to use for upcoming games to their smartphone’s digital wallet if available to ensure their tickets are accessible regardless of the internet connection at the stadium gates.

To use the app’s “Add to Wallet” function, users should ensure their mobile devices have the most up-to-date operating system installed before coming to Lambeau Field on gameday; iOS 16.4 or later or Android 8 or later are required to use Add to Wallet.

If mobile tickets are not saved to a digital wallet, fans can still access their tickets via the Packers app or a web browser.

Additionally, iPhone users must ensure that no tickets within their Ticketmaster account have been downloaded to another user’s Apple Wallet.

Ticketmaster accounts can only be linked to one Apple ID. If ticket holders want to allow someone else to use their tickets, they should transfer the tickets using the instructions listed at packers.com/tickets/mobile-ticketing.

The Packers app includes plenty of game information for ticket holders to help make their game-day experience as smooth as possible, including an interactive stadium map, stadium A-Z guide and carry-in information.

Fans can also use the app to earn and redeem points for unique prizes and exclusive fan experiences with Packers Perks, as well as register for the opportunity to win prizes with Packers Pass.

The new version of the Packers app also enhances the user experience for fans in a variety of ways, with a new video-viewing experience that puts fan-favorite content front and center.

App users can easily discover their preferred shows, catch up on game highlights, watch player interviews and features and delve into in-depth analysis of the Green Bay Packers.

Fans can also use the app to get live play-by-play game updates with Live Activities on supported iOS devices.

Tremble School was built in 1916 at a cost of $3,200. It became part of the Howard-Suamico School District in 1961. It ceased being used as an instructional facility around 1964. Green Bay falls in love with football

BY KRIS LEONHARDT
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

UW-Green Bay began the inaugural session of its "History of the Green Bay Packers Certificate" program on Sept. 6. The virtual, eight-week, two-hour class allows participants to "uncover the team's storied history and get an inside look at the Packers Hall of Fame." Over the next eight weeks, we will provide a glimpse of the class experience through Titledown 101.

"The town team started up in the 1890s here in Green Bay," Packers Hall of Fame Curator Brent Hensel said during our second class.

"[There's a quote] from the Green Bay Sunday Gazette. I love this quote because it's just kind of the irony to it. But, the quote goes 'Football has received its introduction to Green Bay and henceforth the great iron field will be the meccas of the amusement-loving public until the snow flies.

"So, of course, the last line; it's pretty fantastic when you think about now football being played in December and January.

"And TV can't get enough of when there's snow flying at Lambeau Field in Green Bay.

"So, Green Bay falls in love with football in the area. In the 1890s, Green Bay was really kind of a hard-living town.

"They work hard, they live a hard life and so they're automatically kind of drawn to these, brutal and bloody contests.

The first Packers team consisted of all local boys, with 18 of the 25 original players coming from East High School. Packers Hall of Fame photo

"Football is growing exponentially over the next quarter century in the United States overall. Green Bay, loves it right from the start."

The first Packers team consisted of all local boys, with 18 of the 25 original players coming from East High School.

Most were fresh out of high school.

Hensel said Nate Abrams was the smallest player, at 5'4" and 145 pounds; Carl Zoll was the heaviest at 5'9" and 215 pounds; and Gus Rosenow was the tallest at 6' and 170 pounds.

Rosenow, a former West athlete, played at halfback and was missing his left arm from his elbow down.

He later coached and served as a teacher at Green Bay area high schools and later served as a superintendent in Niagara.

In addition to Curly (Lambeau), players had colorful nicknames like Cowboy, Tubby and Dutch.

"In fact, there were a set of cousins on that first team, Dutch Dwyer and Riggy Dwyer," Hensel said.

Hensel said that the first home field was just a Sandlot.

"There's no fence, there's no bleachers; so, there's no way to charge admission," he added.

"So volunteers came; they built the fence. They built the seats that they can sit in."

The team could now start charging admission to the games.

Unified School District of De Pere votes to limit flags

BY LEE REINSCH
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

DE PERE — The Unified School District of De Pere school board voted in favor of limiting the kinds of flags flown outside its buildings and put on hold the matter of what kinds of flags can be displayed inside school buildings.

The board acknowledges it still needs to narrow its definition of what constitutes a flag, as well as clarify what 'on behalf of the school district' means.

The district's attorney, Robert Burns, said developing a policy governing a building's exterior was much easier than one governing its interior.

"Anything displayed outside the building is assumed to be on behalf of the district, but still raises the question of displayed by whom," Burns said.

Even if a policy doesn't cover student apparel, gray areas abound.

"Unless we are limiting the (definition of) a flag to a piece of fabric that is outside flying in the wind — which would be the general definition of a flag, the common definition of a flag — what about depictions of flags, pictures of flags, pins with flags on them, are those being displayed on behalf of the school district?" he said.

Inside school buildings, the universe of exceptions to the policy can expand infinitely, according to Burns.

"Without going room by room, building by building, the multitude of exceptions could consume so much time and energy that enforcing that policy becomes counter-productive," Burns said.

He said that policies generally get challenged due to two factors: vagueness and inconsistent enforcement or application.

Student expression has a level of constitutional protection that staff expression does not have, he said, although protections for staff expression aren't completely eradicated, either.

The district already has protocols in place to deal with the general topic of disruptions to the classroom or learning environment, he added.

Of the 20 people who spoke before the board took up the matter, seven favored narrowing the policy.

The sole student to speak, Ingrid Nohara, got a round of applause before board president Adam Clayton told the audience they weren't to respond to speakers, whether favorably or unfavorably.

Nohara noted the 27 international flags in the lunchroom that recognize and welcome foreign exchange students even if they don't represent the entire student body.

Then she cited from the district's anti harassment policy, which states that there are no grounds to discriminate based on race, color, national origin, age, or sex, including gender status, change of sex, sexual orientation or gender identity. "If you wish to implement this flag policy, you would be placing yourself as the arbitrator of what is allowed to be flown, and therefore it would fall under this anti harassment policy that you are all subject to," she said. "This would mean that there are no grounds to allow certain flags (such as the flags in the cafeteria) without other flags (such as allowing the pride flag); that would be an act of discrimination, which the board is 'vigorously against.' Your ability to limit any flag would be seriously in question."

In other business, the board heard from the 14 district residents — six women and eight men — vying to fill the remainder of the term of former board member Dan Van Straten, who moved out of the district.

The board whittled the 14 down to three men: Matthew Petersen, Justin Samuels and Scott Hemauer.

The trio will return for further questioning Sept. 25, with the finalist serving at his first board meeting on Oct. 2.

Fast start to 'bow' deer season

In the Outdoors

BY KEVIN NAZE
GUEST COLUMNIST

Bow and crossbow deer hunters registered 1,645 bucks and 2,100 antlerless deer the first three days of the 2023 season, a significant increase over last year.

The reported buck harvest was up 8%, while the antlerless kill was up 18%.

Statewide, there were 1,049 bucks and 1,101 antlerless (2,150) reported by crossbow users, and 596 bucks and 999 antlerless (1,595) by vertical bow shooters.

Kewaunee County was one of the few where archers reported more deer than crossbow users, 17-12.

A total of 11 bucks and 18

antlerless deer were registered there.

Brown County had 22 bucks and 22 antlerless, with crossbows outpacing vertical bow harvests 23-21.

Eleven bucks and 22 antlerless were registered in Door County, with 19 of the 33 deer taken with crossbows.

Other area whitetail totals included 48 in Manitowoc County, 24 in Calumet, 61 in Outagamie, 137 in Oconto, 148 in Shawano and 155 in Marinette.

The lowest numbers statewide were reported in Iron and Milwaukee counties, with one deer each; Kenosha had two, and Ashland and Racine each 10.

Of the 3,745 total, Central Farmland hunters tallied 2,426 deer.

The Southern Farmland zone produced 633; the Northern Forest, 569; and the Central Forest, 117.

Pushback on plan

The Biden Administration is receiving pushback on a plan that could withhold federal funding in schools that offer archery or hunter education programs.

National Shooting Sports Foundation Senior Vice President for Government and Public Affairs Larry Keane said the decision to block millions of dollars of federal funding from scholastic programs that benefit youths is wrong.

Scholastic hunting education and target shooting programs foster generations of the nation's safest and most responsible gun owners, Keane said.

Writing for Forbes.com, Chris Dorsey said the Administration appears to be twisting the intent of the Bipartisan Safer Communities Act (BSCA) passed last year by blocking funding from the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA) to schools that offer hunter education and archery programs.

BSCA prohibits ESEA funds from being used to provide training in the use of a "dangerous weapon."

Since much of the funding for shooting sports programs comes from student fees, donations, organized fundraisers or state funds, this could just be more political theater.

However, Senator Jon Tester, a Montana Democrat, is also concerned about how the interpretation of the gun law may affect school archery and hunting programs. "In Montana, our schools have long offered shooting sport and hunter safety classes that play an important role in teaching safety and personal responsibility to students," Tester said in his letter to the Administration. "Outdoor recreation is foundational to our western way of life and any reduction of federal support for these educational programs is unacceptable."

The National Archery in the Schools Program had 1.3 million students from nearly 9,000 schools across 49 states enrolled last year.

Meanwhile, nearly a half-million students are trained and certified in hunter education courses annually, though most are done outside of school hours.

Salmon run is on

Low flows from lack of rain has kept many of the spawn-minded Chinook salmon swimming in the lake, harbors or lower to middle stretches of the rivers while they await better conditions.

The next significant rain — an inch or more is ideal — should trigger a massive movement farther upstream, as well as lure some early brown trout and coho salmon.

Once the pumps are turned on at the Besadny Anadromous Fish Facility (typically around Oct. 1), action at the viewing windows west of Kewaunee will heat up.

This year's Department of Natural Resources Open House at Besadny is set for 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 7.

There will be wagon rides, guided tours, Adopt-A-Strurgeon opportunities, games, displays, demonstrations, fish art T-shirt printing, and food and beverages available for purchase.

The facility is located at N3884 Ransom Moore Ln. in Kewaunee.

Water levels update

Green Bay and Lake Michigan water levels have dropped two inches in the past month and are three inches lower than they were last year in mid-September.

Water levels are down more than 30 inches since 2020, but are still about five inches above long-term averages.

As the lake continues its seasonal decline, levels are expected to drop another three inches by mid-October.

Office of School Safety in 2020, Speak Up Speak Out has been available in the GBAPS, as well as other schools across the state.

The program offers services, such as an anonymous tip line, incident response teams, as well as threat assessment consultations.

"As more of these threats or incidents have occurred, we're finding out that people knew what was happening, or they had some awareness that it could happen, but they weren't coming forward [beforehand] to prevent it," says Chris Collar, safety and security manager for the GBAPS. "Sometimes people don't always want to say something

... because they're afraid of what would happen if people found out — but [Speak Up Speak Out] gives them an anonymous way to 'see something, say something' and get the information to the people who need to know it quickly."

The staff at the GBAPS has made great efforts to make sure the Speak Up Speak Out program is easily accessible and available to everyone in the district.

One way they've done this is by adding the SUSO app to the launchpad that students and staff use every day.

"Our staff [and students] have quick access — they can find the app, click it, and submit a report," said Collar.

With national bullying prevention month approaching in October, the GBAPS is making sure that students are aware of this resource.

"We use that month to put the information out to our students," Collar added. "We've got different posters and promotions [for SUSO] in our buildings so that when kids see it they recognize what that is."

According to the 2021-22 annual report for SUSO, the program has received over 3,000 tips since its inception in 2020.

While these tips span across many categories, the two most common are bullying (26.4%) and suicide threats (6.7%).

"In the school district safety is our No. 1 priority. So we do everything we can to keep our students safe," Collar stated. "It comes down to the human element. There's a lot of things that people see, hear or read, and the biggest thing we try to get people to understand is: tell somebody."

UW-Green Bay to receive monetary award from Freshwater Collaborative

GREEN BAY – UW-Green Bay has been awarded $478,275 from the Freshwater Collaborative to be used for research and training opportunities for high school and undergraduate students and address Wisconsin's biggest water challenges, including contaminants such as PFAs and agricultural water management issues.

The funding will provide support for the following student-involved projects at UW-Green Bay:

- Quantifying the impact of spatial and temporal variation in hyporheic zone fluxes on phosphorus transport and release in Wisconsin streams and rivers. ($86,879, joint UW-Green Bay and UW-Madison)
- Mitigating PFAs contamination of groundwater: Biochar Sequestration of PFAs in Biosolid Leachate at the Field Scale ($97,036, joint UW-Green Bay and UW-Milwaukee)
- UW-Green Bay pre-college student experiences in freshwater, 2023-2025 ($281,794)
- Water, health and habitat interactions: building capacity for water careers and education ($12,566, joint UW-Milwaukee, UW-Green Bay, UW-La Crosse, UW-Parkside, UW-River Falls and UW-Whitewater)

"This new funding will support student-engaged research and educational programs to better understand two pressing water quality challenges in northeastern Wisconsin: nutrient runoff and PFAs," said Emily Tyner, director of freshwater strategy for UW-Green Bay. "With these funds, faculty, staff and students will improve our understanding of how land-based nutrients and chemicals impact waterways, provide tools for local educators to teach about water quality threats and prepare students for statewide water-focused careers."

Students involved in the projects and programs funded by this award will study riverbed sediments as an important source of phosphorus in Wisconsin waterways, evaluation and mitigation of PFAs contamination in groundwater, enhancing freshwater-focused learning opportunities for pre-college students and teachers and a collaboration between multiple UW campuses to implement hands-on courses for undergraduate students to conduct research and field work on Lake Michigan.

"The most exciting thing about this latest round of funding is seeing how programs are becoming more interconnected. For example, high school students attending a summer camp in western Wisconsin are interacting with undergraduate students and faculty who are working on other Freshwater Collaborative-funded projects throughout the state," said Marissa Jablonski, executive director for the Freshwater Collaborative of Wisconsin. "We can really see how these connections are building a pipeline from college recruitment to jobs in freshwater in Wisconsin."

34th annual CP Auction coming up

GREEN BAY – The 34th annual CP Auction is scheduled for Friday, Oct. 13, at a new location — the Green Bay Distillery, 835 Mike McCarthy Way.

"We are really excited about this year's event in a new location," said Maddy Szymanski, Annual Giving Coordinator for CP. "The night will feature silent auction items including Milwaukee excursions, gourmet food baskets and unique handcrafted items. There is something for everyone to bid on."

The live auction portion of the event will be led by Bill Jatz from WBAY-TV2.

Attendees will have the opportunity to participate in a number of activities in addition to the auction, including several raffles, a beer pull, a mystery box raffle and a wine toss.

CP is also offering the opportunity for the community to sponsor the event, with Community Auction Sponsor donations being matched by an anonymous donor.

"Our goal is to share that the CP Auction is proudly sponsored by the greater Green Bay community," Szymanski said. "CP and the auction is really all about community and we wanted to celebrate that... Funds raised from Auction will support the therapy and life skills services CP provides to more than 2,100 people throughout Northeast Wisconsin each year. We are grateful that our community continues to show its support for CP year after year."

Auction tickets are $30 through Oct. 2 and increase to $40 on Oct. 3.

More information about the CP and the auction, including how to purchase tickets or sponsor the event, can be found at wearecp.org.

NEW Zoo earns AZA accreditation

SUAMICO – The NEW Zoo and Adventure Park has once again earned accreditation by the Association of Zoos and Aquariums (AZA), widely regarded as the "gold standard" of zoological accreditation.

AZA's independent Accreditation Commission recently reviewed 30 applications for accreditation and granted accreditation to 22 facilities, including the NEW Zoo, at the AZA's 2023 Annual Conference.

AZA accreditation involves a detailed application and a meticulous, multiple-day, on-site inspection by an independent team of zoological professionals.

The inspection covers all aspects of the facility's operation, including animal welfare and wellbeing, veterinary care, keeper training, safety for visitors, staff and animals, educational programs, conservation efforts, financial stability, risk management, governance and guest services.

AZA-accredited facilities must complete the accreditation process every five years.

"Every year, AZA sends over 200 accreditation inspectors around the world to review 60 to 70 applications for accreditation," said Dan Ashe, president and CEO of AZA. "AZA's standards are continuously revised to reflect cutting-edge zoological practices based on the latest animal wellbeing science and research. Clearly, the best-of-the-best zoos and aquariums want to be part of our association."

"Earning AZA accreditation is a significant accomplishment – and it's one we've held now for 27 years," NEW Zoo & Adventure Park Director Carmen Murach said. "There are only 237 AZA-accredited facilities in the United States. We're proud to be members of this respected community dedicated to conservation, education, and to providing the best for the animals in our care."

De Pere works toward foundation drain disconnection program

BY LEE REINSCH
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

DE PERE — Money from the American Rescue Package Act (ARPA) may fund up to 80% of the cost of a sump pump for qualifying homeowners under the city's pending new foundation drain disconnection program (FDDP). About 800 residents have already reached out to the city in response to a letter sent out in spring, according to Chase Kuffel, assistant city engineer for De Pere. The De Pere Common Council passed a draft of the FDDP at its Tuesday meeting.

The program aims to encourage those with homes older than 50 years to replace their foundation drains in favor of sump pumps, with the goal of reducing how much clear water enters the sanitary sewer system. Reducing the amount of clear water in the sanitary sewer system can improve capacity and reduce the overall pressure on the NEW Water sewage treatment plant, according to Kuffel. It aims to save taxpayer money by extending the capacity of the sanitary sewer system and treatment plant facilities before needing to be expanded and upgraded, according to Kuffel.

Wolter growing

Wolter, Inc., formerly known as Wisconsin Lift Truck, has its eye on expansion with an $8 million facility in the De Pere Business Park.

Wolter currently leases its 102,000-square-foot building at 1776 W. Matthew Dr. in the business park. It plans to purchase adjacent property, an 8.596-acre parcel, from the city and build a new facility on the site.

The new facility will be a single-story, 88,000-square-foot building, which will consist of about 10,000 square feet of office space; 6,000 square feet of flexible space; and 72,000 square feet for a workshop, warehouse, and service areas.

The site also includes exterior fencing, loading bays and 76 total parking stalls.

The site will house Wolter's existing material handling business already operating in the business park.

Wolter is purchasing the land parcel for $257,880 and will spend an estimated $8 million on construction.

The city will provide the developer, Wolter Investment Company, with a site assembly reimbursement grant of $257,880 for costs associated with site assembly, and a project reimbursement grant of $320,000 for project and construction costs, according to the contract.

Wolter's current lease ends in 2024.

The company plans to start construction this November, with completion next fall.

Pavilion moving ahead

In other business, the board voted unanimously to approve a bid of $1,518,281 by IEI General Contractors of De Pere for construction of the Nelson Family Pavilion at Voyageur Park.

Mayor James Boyd said this meant that scheduling a groundbreaking ceremony wouldn't be too far off.

"This is exciting news for the city of De Pere," Boyd said.

Current and projected expenses for the Nelson Family Pavilion project amount to a total of $1,795,225. Donations and funding from the city thus far total $1,642,808, leaving $152,417 left to fundraise.

The board also voted unanimously to:

- Approve a bid of $73,335 from Bluemel's Garden & Landscape Center for fall surfacing for playground projects at Kelly Danen and Legion Park. Fall surfacing is ground surface coating meant to minimize injuries to children on playgrounds.

- Approve a 21-lot and two-outlot extraterritorial final plat of Lawrence Parkway First Addition in the 2200-2300 block of Little Rapids Road in Lawrence.

- Approve a 35-lot and two-outlot extraterritorial preliminary plat of Little Rapids Subdivision in the 2700 block of Lawrence Drive in Lawrence.

Allouez discusses options for pond at Riverview Park

BY JANELLE FISHER
CITY PAGES EDITOR

ALLOUEZ – The village of Allouez hosted a public involvement meeting Thursday, Sept. 14, to discuss a proposed wet detention pond to be located within Riverview Park.

In 1972, the Federal Clean Water Act was passed, requiring states to identify polluted bodies of water — bodies of water that are not fishable or swimmable.

States are also required to identify which pollutant(s) is responsible for the impairment of the body of water and establish a plan for mitigating the pollution.

As a part of that mitigation, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) requires that states develop total maximum daily loads for the pollutants of concern.

In the Fox River and East River, the primary pollutants of concern are phosphorus, which can cause excessive algae growth and harm to aquatic life, and sediment, which can disrupt aquatic habitats and create low visibility/low sunlight penetration, causing harm to aquatic plants.

“The DNR developed this study where they went through and quantified the amount of sediment and phosphorus coming into the rivers and where it’s coming from, whether agricultural or urban runoff,” Nick Vande Hey, senior municipal and water resource engineer at McMahon Associates, said. “Then they said, ‘Okay, in order for the river to get back to a good condition where you can fish and swim without concern, everyone’s got to reduce their pollutant load for sediment and phosphorus by a certain amount.”

Option 2

Vande Hey said that the way the DNR implements and enforces the established total maximum daily loads for pollutants is through municipal stormwater permits.

“The DNR says, ‘Hey village, you need to get a permit from us, and as part of that permit, we want you to meet these requirements and this report,’” he said. “So the village is regulated by the DNR, and the EPA actually requires the state to do this... So we need to address these pollutants of concern through the permit.”

The village of Allouez received its initial municipal stormwater permit from the DNR in 2006, and it was renewed in 2019.

Municipal stormwater permits come with requirements in the areas of public education, public involvement, illicit discharge detection and elimination, construction site pollutant control, post-construction stormwater management, municipal pollution prevention and stormwater quality management.

Allouez is divided into two watersheds, with areas of the village draining to both the East River and the Fox River.

The DNR requires that Allouez reduce its phosphorus pollutants by 41% in both the

UntitledTown offers opportunities for local readers and writers

By Janelle Fisher
City Pages Editor

In 2017, UntitledTown hosted its first weekend-long book and author festival, drawing in readers and writers alike for panel discussion, author readings, book signings and workshops.

That weekend-long festival was thwarted by the pandemic, but UntitledTown organizers have found a way to keep the spirit of the organization alive.

"UntitledTown was originally a separate 501c3 organization that was started several years ago and ended up having a big book and author festival over a weekend," Sherrill Revolinski, board president for the Friends of the Brown County Library, said. "When the fourth year was going to happen, COVID hit and kind of put everything on hold.... In part of a discussion of the synergies of the Brown County Library and the volunteers that were running UntitledTown, we made the decision to fold UntitledTown, the actual 501c3, into the Friends of the Brown County Library."

With that change, Revolinski said, also came a change in the programming offered by UntitledTown.

"We kind of took a step back," she said.

Evergreen's production of Gilligan's Island sets sail

By Josephine Hinderman
Contributing Writer

"Welcome, our tropical tour guides will be checking your boarding passes and directing you to your cabins on the S. S. Minnow's exotic three hour tour... We hope to recreate the fun and share the steadfast spirit that united the castaways on that little island."

These are some of the director's notes for Gilligan's Island: the Musical that will be put on by Evergreen Theater starting Sept. 22.

Based on the classic 1964 sitcom of the same name, this production revitalizes the television show into a lively, interactive, immersive and familiar musical for those that grew up with or are fans of the Gilligan's Island program.

Gene Guenther, director of Evergreen Theater's production of Gilligan's Island: The Musical, said, "I was nine years old and in third grade when my parents and siblings would anxiously gather around our black-and-white TV to watch the weekly installment of Gilligan's Island."

This is a memory that can seemingly be shared throughout many households in the Green Bay area and led Gilligan's Island: The Musical to become a performance of beloved nostalgia.

"I will talk to people around town and they've at least heard of it," Guenther said. "It appeals to memories and nostalgia for those who have watched it and grew up with it. Because of that I thought it was a great choice for Evergreen! It was something we've been enjoying doing in rehearsals. The music is catchy, and it engages with the audience... It's something that we thought would be fun and would appeal well to an older demographic... [With younger people], there's an age of innocence. We also want this performance to be educational and entertaining to younger people because we're going back to the 1960s with patriotism and how people interacted with one another and the attitudes of the time."

Guenther said the musical will be immersive, with guests being greeted by tropical tour guides and being treated as though they're fellow guests on the fateful S.S. Minnow, and are shipwrecked alongside the musical's main characters and are involved with trying to get off of the island.

"We do what's called 'breaking the fourth wall,'" he said, the fourth wall being a common theater definition, referencing an imaginary wall that separates audience from performers; interacting with the audience directly breaks this metaphorical wall, "and talk directly to the audience, as though they're on the island and trying to get off with the main cast. We want the audience to be as engaged as possible and be a part of the performance."

In his director's notes, Guenther declares, "We start the fun tonight by inviting our three hour tour audience to sing along with the opening number. So please join our fun cast, crew and the rest, that I am most thankful for, with those well known lyrics: 'Just sit right back and you'll hear a tale, a tale of a fateful trip...'"

Tickets will cost $25, and performances will be Sept. 22, 23, 28, 29 and 30 at 7 p.m., and also Sept. 24 and Oct. 1 at 2 p.m., and will take place at St. Norbert's Hall of Fine Arts - Webb Theatre at its 315 Third St. location in De Pere.

Wisconsin authors share new novels, experiences and advice

By Janelle Fisher
City Pages Editor

Lion's Mouth Bookstore hosted two Wisconsin authors — Carol Dunbar, a resident of northern Wisconsin and author of A Winter's Rime, and Jill Stukenberg, a professor of English at UW-Stevens Point and author of News of the Air — for an evening of conversation and a shared reading of two new novels set in Wisconsin with an audience of aspiring local writers and book lovers.

A Winter's Rime is Dunbar's second novel — her first being The Net Beneath Us, which won the Wisconsin Writers: Edna Ferber Fiction Book Award.

The novel follows the story of Mallory Moe, a 25-year old veteran army mechanic, as she figures out what the next phase of her life will look like while navigating changing relationships and past hardships.

News of the Air is Stukenberg's debut novel and follows the story of Allie Krane and her family, who trade in their urban life for life in the northwoods — fleeing the ecological disasters and problems of the modern world — until two children come into their lives nearly two decades later, forcing the family to face the sort of news and problems they fled all those years ago.

The evening at Lion's Mouth had both authors reading passages from their novels and discussing them with each other and with attendees, but also discussing the process that brought their novels to fruition, reminiscing on what it was like to find out their work would be published and offering advice to those in attendance looking to do the same.

"Agents are easy to find... They want to be found and they tell you what they're looking for," Dunbar said. "But there's so many of them and it's hard to match an agent with who you are."

A writing conference was where Dunbar finally connected with an agent to handle her book, but she noted that the process didn't go exactly as she expected, offering up her own experience as advice for aspiring authors.

"I went to this conference and I was ready to pitch my query letter," she said. "I signed up for a pitch session — and you have to pay to sign up for this pitch session — and I learned that we get one sentence, and I was like, 'You've got to be kidding me. One sentence to say what your book is about?'... I was taking classes at this writing conference and one of the teachers there gave me some advice. She said that one sentence needs to have a goal, a motivation and a conflict... And my writing colleague and I stayed up all night writing our one sentence... I sat down with the agent and I told her my sentence, and she said she was interested."

That one sentence turned out to be just what Dunbar needed to get her book off the ground.

"I sat down with the agent and I told her my sentence, and she was interested," Dunbar said. "She gave me a card and she said, 'Send me the first 50 pages.' That's called a partial. Normally, when you query cold, you send them the first page or 10 pages, and if they're interested, they'll ask for the first 50. That's the first hurdle. It's a big deal if someone wants to read your first 50 pages. I was so excited."

Stukenberg's path to publication looked a bit different, forgoing the process of finding an agent and instead finding a press.

"I just started writing, thinking this was never going to go anywhere," she said. "I tried for a long time at finding an agent, but I never quite succeeded in getting an agent... I did get as far as having some good conversations with agents and they gave me some feedback, which was really cool... But at the same time I was submitting to small, independent presses and contests."

After several years, Stukenberg's writing caught the attention of a press, earning her the Black Lawrence Press' Big Moose Prize and the publication of News of the Air.

"I was submitting to this press that's located in upstate New York called Black Lawrence Press," she said. "I had heard of their contest for several years and the Big Moose Prize — they just give one a year. I entered it three years in a row before I won. The very first year, I was a semi-finalist and I was like, 'Am I really going to enter again?' Then I entered again, and I definitely remember I was like 'I'm not [entering a third time.] It's just embarrassing.' Then it was the deadline and I was like, 'Yes, I am.

▲ Carol Dunbar and Jill Stukenberg discussed their new novels and their experiences as Wisconsin authors at an event at Lion's Mouth Bookstore Tuesday, Sept. 19. Janelle Fisher photo

I have to do it.' And then that was the year I won... I had won this prize, which was something I had been working toward for years of my life. I was absolutely overjoyed. I was so happy."

Now acting as the co-editor of Midwest Review and having served as a reader for the following year's Big Moose Prize submissions, Stukenberg said an important thing to remember when trying to get writing published is not to take rejection personally.

"It's really fascinating to be on the other side because you realize it's not personal at all," she said. "Here were so many manuscripts that I loved or stories that I loved, but there's just so many other reasons you decide whether you can publish something or not — like even something like, 'Well, we published one sort of like that last year.' It helps so much when I look at something from my editor point of view to understand that if I get a 'no' on something I'm sending out, it's not because everyone hates me and it's not because it's terrible writing."

Both A Winter's Rime and News of the Air are available for purchase through Lion's Mouth Bookstore.

THE FIELD

BAY PORT BAND brings big presence to the field

Students explore a forest of dreams and bridge the gap between band and athletics

By Janelle Fisher
City Pages Editor

Although halftime at a football typically draws people to the concession stand for a mid-game snack, the Bay Port Band's halftime performance gives audiences a reason to rethink that popcorn run as nearly 200 students take their places on the field wielding instruments, flags and other props.

The marching band and color guard, directed by Kyle and Ashley Siegrist, consists of roughly 180 students.

Coordinating a halftime routine for such a large group, the directors said, is no easy task.

"It's definitely challenging, but that's kind of the fun of it, too," Ashley said. "Kyle has taken it upon himself to kind of become a drill writer over the past couple of years and has utilized some newer software that allows you to create the drills. And then, because our school district has been so supportive, we've actually also started to utilize an app on our phones called the Ultimate Drill Book, and that's been really helpful because all the kids just grab their phones and they can see their dot and it really helps us with getting more streamlined through our rehearsals."

Kyle said that the new technology has made learning choreography easier for band members and thus enabled the band to tackle much more complex routines.

"It's a lot different from the days of using paper to learn your choreography on the field," he said. "The kids now can watch animations of their spots and actually see where they're supposed to be moving, synced up with recordings of the music that they're playing. We can write notes to the kids in real time and basically send it out to all of their phones. It's really cool. It's been a game changer as far as what we do. We've definitely upped the level of choreography and of production design that we've been trying to do on the field and we've gotten away from just standing, playing a tune, going into a formation, standing some more, playing a tune and moving a little bit. We've kind of turned into telling a story on the field over the last couple of years."

This turn towards storytelling, Kyle said, is on par with the kind of performances collegiate and professional marching bands are doing, giving Bay Port band students a head start in preparing for band after high school.

"A lot of the competitive marching bands and the marching bands that students would be able to participate in at the next level, either in college or professionally, they're starting to do a lot more of these themed shows," he said. "So last year we did a show, we called it Glow Up, and the theme was lights. So we lit up all these props on the field and flags and backdrops — we had all these things on the field that kind of emphasized that theme. And then all of the music also went along with that theme idea."

This year's theme is centered around a character exploring a dream world.

"This year we called it Forest of Dreams," he said. "The basic storyline is that they have a dreamer character... Somebody falls asleep and awakens basically in this dream world. And the music definitely works — it's "Pure Imagination" from Willy Wonka, "A Million Dreams" from The Greatest Showman and "Enter Sandman" by Metallica... The whole show kind of follows this dreamer character exploring their dream world... We've been kind of upping the demand on our students and giving them a more modern approach to the marching arts."

Not only have Kyle and Ashley been raising the bar when it comes to the band's production quality, but they've also been working to improve a sense of community within the band.

One way they've done that is by selecting four student leaders to serve as drum majors, leading their peers on the field.

"It's interesting because every school seems to do it a little differently," Ashley said. "I have always felt that giving kids a chance to be in a leadership role has been helpful to those kids and this year and last year we had numerous kids audition for the drum major spot and both years we've been really in a bind with making our final decision and picking our drum majors. We really felt like the four individuals that we chose all really needed to be there because they demonstrated through an interview process and a conducting process that they really were fit for the job, but they also hold different characteristics in their personalities and in their leadership styles that sort of help connect to all of the students that are in the band program. When you have a program that is as large as ours, you have kids that are in a whole different set of subcategories. They're woodwinds, brass, percussion and color guard, but they're also freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors. Whether they're just getting started or they like being in band class, or maybe they're die hard kids that are involved in all of our extracurriculars, having four drum majors with their own diverse backgrounds really kind of helps each individual student sort of gravitate towards at least one of the drum majors because they can find similarities in their own lives and connect."

Not only does having four drum majors help foster a sense of connection among band members, but it also helps logistically during performances.

"We really do spread out from about the 20-yard line to the other 20-yard line, so being able to spread out four drum majors across the field means that there's always somebody for our kids to be able to find the tempo from," Ashley said.

While improving the skills of the students in the band, Ashley said she and Kyle have a greater motivation in upping the band's game, so to speak.

"We felt like when we got [to Bay Port,] we wanted to try to bring a little bit of that intensity with us from Texas while still maintaining the heart and the appreciation that Wisconsin schools are so good at producing," she said. "For me, there seemed to be a disconnect — and I think it is pretty common in a lot of Wisconsin schools — there just seems to be, sometimes, a disconnect between band or music in general versus sporting events and sports. Mine and Kyle's goal is to try to bridge that gap and change the perception in our students, in our school and in our community that band is right up there with sports as far as the level of rigor and the intensity that it brings." CP

"Trying to do a weekend-long book and author festival takes a lot of resources. Coming out of COVID and reconfiguring UntitledTown a bit, it just made more sense to do smaller events... Maybe eventually we'll be able to lead up to a full weekend again — that's the ultimate goal — but we are planning to have at least one event every month."

On Sept. 16, UntitledTown put on a workshop focused on memoir writing and journaling.

In the upcoming months, Revolinski said UntitledTown plans to hold workshops/events focused on obituary and grief writing, fiction writing and poetry.

Revolinski said that in addition to those monthly workshops, UntitledTown organizers are also working on events with the Brown County Library — some of which tie back to the early days of UntitledTown.

"We're really focusing on workshops and local authors and then authors that are universally recognized," she said. "R. L. Stein, if you're familiar with his works — he's the author of Goosebumps — he's coming to Pop Con, which is a program the library puts on, but it's sponsored by the Friends and we're actually sponsoring him coming in, so that's going to be really exciting. He was actually at one of the original UntitledTown events, maybe the second year... So we're bringing him back, free, which is kind of one of our key points."

Keeping writing and reading free and accessible is one of the main goals of UntitledTown.

"That's really what the focus of UntitledTown is — trying to bring back that universal ability for anyone to come to an event and for anyone to be a part of an event," she said. "Anybody can read. Everybody likes to read — at least I think they do, or if they don't, they should. We're really trying to keep things affordable for everyone in our community."

Revolinski said that UntitledTown events aren't just for writers, but anyone who enjoys any aspect of the world of books.

"We're not just focusing on people that want to write," she said. "We're focusing on anybody that wants to be involved in literature — anybody that likes to read, that likes to write, that likes to hear about how authors come up with a storyline."

If you're interested in getting involved with UntitledTown, Revolinski said there are always opportunities to volunteer and play a role in planning events.

"We're always looking for committee members," she said. "We have a committee group of about seven or eight people that are really kind of spearheading the conversations about who to bring in and what kind of workshops to have. We're always looking for volunteers for that."

East River and the Fox River watersheds and its sediment pollutants by 52% in the East River watershed and 72% in the Fox River watershed.

Presently, Allouez has achieved a 33% reduction in phosphorus and a 48% reduction in sediment from the East River watershed, as well as a 25% reduction in phosphorus and 36% in sediment from the Fox River watershed.

Although the village has made progress towards these requirements, additional mitigation methods need to be implemented, such as wet detention ponds like the one proposed for Riverview Park to move closer to compliance.

The proposed pond, Vande Hey said, would help in the village's satisfaction of the stormwater quality management requirement and contribute to the reduction of both phosphorus and sediment pollutants in the East River watershed.

The pond would capture polluted stormwater from 150 acres around Riverview Park.

Vande Hey explained that there are many ways water can become polluted.

"When it rains, the water hits your roof, right? There could be bird droppings on the roof that have bacteria and phosphorus and things like that," he said. "And then it might flow across your lawn and pick up grass clippings, leaves, litter, or there could be fertilizer. And then it ends up on our street and then our curb and gutter. And our storm sewer then very efficiently carries away that water and discharges it into the river — the East River or the Fox River."

Routing stormwater to a wet detention pond in Riverview Park, though, prevents the pollutants picked up by the water from reaching the river — much like other ponds already in place within the village which always have water in them, but rise and drain as it rains.

"If you walk by the other ponds in the community, there's always water... We call that the permanent pool," he said. "And that water could be anywhere from five feet to 15 feet, but typically we're in the range of six, seven, eight, even 10 feet with our permanent pool. And that water is always there. Then, when it rains, the storm sewer would bring the water into the pond and the pond slowly bounces up, and then it slowly drains down after a day, two days, three days, and then it's ready for the next rain. Water comes into that pond so that sediment and phosphorus will settle out into that pool of water and it gets trapped in the pond."

Three potential options for a pond at Riverview Park were presented during the meeting — each including additional parking within the park and a new pedestrian trail along the east side of East River Drive, from STH 172 to Broadview Drive, and the north side of Broadview Drive, from East River Drive to its terminus.

The additional parking and pedestrian trails were included in the designs based on safety concerns over an abundance of vehicles parking on the street when events are taking place at the park, creating unsafe situations for pedestrians and drivers in the area.

Allouez residents and adjacent property owners had the opportunity to view each option and offer feedback to aid village staff in creating a more detailed design for the pond.

"We're really just trying to get feedback from everybody about what you like about each option and what you don't like," Vande Hey said. "And then from this meeting, we'll move forward to committee, and then they'll flip through the public feedback that we get and then we'll figure out where we're going next. Most likely, this is not going to be the last public information meeting... but this is like the first one that kind of gets the ball rolling."

Once a plan has been finalized, construction on a pond at Riverview Park is anticipated to begin in April 2025 and end in September 2025, with prairie and wetland planting taking place throughout summer and fall of 2026.

Option 1

The first option presented features a 1.27-acre pond at the south side of Riverview Park, along the East River, and an 83-stall parking lot along Broadview Drive, adding to the park's existing 60 parking spaces.

This option would cost an estimated $830,000, not including the construction of the parking lot, and would be eligible for a grant through the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources in the amount of $150,000, leaving the village responsible for $680,000.

While Vande Hey said this option would likely be deemed most preferable by the DNR and the Army Corps of Engineers (the two entities which regulate wetland areas), it was met with significant opposition by residents of the area who voiced concerns at the meeting over potential safety and aesthetic issues that might arise with having a pond so close to their homes and yards.

Option 2

The second option presented at the meeting includes a 1.13-acre pond in the northeast corner of the park and an expansion of the park's existing parking lot, raising the number of stalls from 60 to 144.

This option requires that two of the park's existing baseball diamonds be relocated to the northwest corner of the park to make room for the pond, and would involve the disturbance of 0.95 acres of wetland to make room for the new ball diamonds.

This option would still be eligible for the $150,000 DNR grant, but because of the ball diamond relocation, this option would still cost the village an estimated $2,000,000 — a total cost of $2,150,000, also not including costs associated with the parking lot.

Because of the wetland disturbance, Vande Hey said this option would not be as preferred by the DNR and Army Corps of Engineers as the first option, but "if we put forward a concept where we're disturbing wetlands, when we apply for that permit, we have to give them a reason why... We can take public comment and include that feedback in our permit application. That doesn't mean they're going to agree with it or give us the permit, but they will consider public input... If the public is behind a certain concept, that carries weight with the DNR."

Option 3

The third proposed option would put a 1.17-acre pond on the west side of the park, at the corner of East River Drive and Broadview Drive and the same parking lot expansion as the second option, and would not require any ball diamonds to be relocated.

The construction of the pond in this location, however, would result in 0.43 acres of wetland disturbance.

Because the pond would be disturbing wetlands, this option would not qualify for the DNR grant, leaving the village responsible for 100% of the estimated $1,070,000 cost, still not including parking lot costs.

Vande Hey said this option would also likely be deemed the least preferable location for the pond by the DNR and Army Corps of Engineers.

Other feedback

In addition to feedback on the proposed options for pond, the parking lot locations at Riverview Park were also discussed.

Although many residents agreed that parking was a concern at the park during sporting events, some questioned whether the few days each season when parking was an issue necessitated the addition of so many parking spaces and suggested the addition of angled street parking instead.

Some attendees of the meeting also encouraged the village to explore other options of several, smaller ponds or a pond more shaped to the contour of the park and surrounding wetland to create a pond that would not interfere with any existing ball diamonds and that also would not impact any wetland areas.

PUBLISHER'S LETTER

Are We The Hope Or The Despair?

Dear Reader,

As parents, we want to give our children a happy childhood. We want them to be introduced to the world in a beautiful and truthful way. In fact, one of the greatest gifts that parents can give their children is a happy childhood.

We want our children to grow up with compassion. We want our children to grow up loving the people in the world around us. We want them to have compassion in their hearts for our fellow man. Some of our children make it that way and some don't.

Those that don't may end up with violence in their hearts. And as Isaac Asimov once wrote, "Violence is the last refuge of the incompetent."

At some point, can't we as adults grow up and act as inspirations for our children and the next generation — rather than showing them the wreckage and violence in the world and lack of respect and disregard for another point of view that is out there right now?

CITY OF GREEN BAY
 FALL LOOSE LEAF COLLECTION

The City of Green Bay Department of Public Works will begin its fall curbside collection of loose leaves, garden waste, and grass clippings on Monday, October 9, 2023. This material should be placed out to the curb in separate piles (leaves/grass together and brush/branches together) and should not be co-mingled. Bagged material will not be picked up.

NOVEMBER 19, 2023 – DEADLINE FOR YARD WASTE ITEMS TO BE PLACED AT THE CURB FOR FINAL COLLECTION.

Yard waste placed to the curb after November 19 WILL NOT be collected by the City.

Residents are responsible for disposing of their own yard waste after the fall collection period, or they will be assessed a fee for collection. Please see Yard Waste Drop-Off Center information below.

Please note that placing yard waste in the road itself is against City ordinance, and residents who do so will be subject to collection fees and/or fines. Similar to past collection periods, Public Works staff will be recording violations.

Residents are reminded that raking leaves into the street (1) increases pollution of storm water; (2) may cause flooding by blocking drainage structures; (3) poses a dangerous attraction to young children; and (4) violates the terms of the City's stormwater permit obligations.

Please refrain from piling yard waste next to trees, poles, mailboxes, or other obstructions as this slows down collection crews and may cause damage to equipment or the obstruction.

YARD WASTE DROP-OFF CENTERS

The City of Green Bay Department of Public Works Yard Waste Drop-Off Centers are open daily (including weekends) April 1 until Thanksgiving Day from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. The winter schedule from Thanksgiving Day to March 31 are Saturdays and Sundays only from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Residents may bring their brush, tree trimmings, loose leaves, grass clippings, and garden waste to either of the City's two yard waste drop-off sites located at 2530 East Shore Drive on the east side and 1470 Hurlbut Street on the west side.

Contractor generated yard waste debris is NOT acceptable at these sites or at the curb for City collection.

Further information may be obtained by calling the Department of Public Works – Operations Division at (920) 448-3535 or visiting the City's website at www.greenbaywi.gov/publicworks.

 how composed he was, how he led. That is encouraging," said LaFleur.
 "I love it. I think it's inspiring and brings the whole team together. It really galvanizes that locker room — and not just offense, I'm talking all three phases. You really want to see that spirit and that competitive fight from your quarterback."
 However, there is not just one player that needs to perform well in order to win games in such a competitive league.
 "I think, more or less, we've got to do a better job with our details — and that's across the board, not just with our running. Whether you're an offensive line, tight end, running back, we've got to be more physical at the point of attack. There is just so much that goes into it, so it's never just on one person," said LaFleur. "We are looking at everything under a microscope."
 One of the most disappointing factors of the Packers' loss this past weekend was losing a lead that spanned the majority of the game within the final few minutes of play.
 "There's a lot to correct in the first three quarters. I know that we had a 12-point lead going into the fourth quarter, but there are still plenty of situations where we could have had a bigger lead had we made a few more plays. We dropped two interceptions, the first drive of the game we had a false start penalty, we had a delay of game lining up to take the field goal," said LaFleur.
 According to LaFleur,

Green Bay Packers Head Coach Matt LaFleur said that although the team faced a disappointing loss in Atlanta this past weekend, he is satisfied to be able to see some progress with the team's performance and the depth of the roster.

cleaning up the little things is the biggest form of progress the team can make in the coming weeks.
 "It's just a chess match, it always is. Good plays are going to happen on both sides of the ball, and some bad plays are going to happen on both sides of the ball. That's going to happen in football. Credit to them."
 Not only does individual performance and accountability lead to wins, but LaFleur said that depth of the roster, accountability of the coaching staff, and a myriad of other factors result in wins.
 "There are a lot of things throughout the entirety of the game, some good and some bad, and unfortunately it caught up to us in the fourth quarter," said LaFleur.
 "I've got to be better. I've got to keep an eye on the shot clock, our operation has got to improve. It's never an excuse, but we've got two young players out there. I think it was a learning experience but a hard one to learn, and we've got to be better."

 Although the Packers are used to a passionate fan base at home in Green Bay, playing in a loud environment at Mercedes-Benz Stadium in Atlanta was a major deterrent in their ability to perform on Sunday as well.
 "Credit to their fans and that environment. It was loud, and things get miscommunicated. We had a bunch of miscommunications, really on both sides of the ball," said LaFleur.
 LaFleur said that he was frustrated with the team's loss, explaining that it felt like they didn't take full advantage of every chance they had to make a play.
 "You only get so many opportunities in this league, and when you feel like you missed an [opportunity], that is extremely frustrating. I don't wanna ever take any credit from Atlanta, they did what they had to do, but we've just got to look at what we can control and what we can do better. We've just got to capitalize."
 Unfortunately, it just wasn't enough to secure a win in Georgia.
 "We've got to stay ahead of that stuff so it doesn't cost us, and unfortunately, yesterday, it cost us. It wasn't just one play in particular. You've always got to stay ahead of the competition, granted, they get paid too. I've got a lot of respect for the coaching staff over there, and they've got a lot of good players, but you are always trying to stay one step ahead, and we obviously weren't."

St. Norbert began the final drive on its 31-yard line with 43 seconds remaining.

After Lyon hit Owen Kudick and Austin Miller on back-to-back pass play, the Green Knights were at the Wisconsin Lutheran 47, setting up the final TD two plays later.

"I'm happy we won," Coach Dan McCarty said. "That was a big-time play and a big-time throw by Peyton — we executed. We have a lot to clean up, but I'm overjoyed we pulled out the win."

What makes the win even more improbable is the fact St. Norbert led 31-20 late in the game before the Warriors scored a pair of touchdowns in a nine-second span to jump ahead 32-31.

Wisconsin Lutheran pulled within 31-26 with 52 seconds remaining before recovering the ensuing on-side kick.

On the first play after recovering the kick, Warriors quarterback Bryce Barbian connected with Emmitt Hawkins on a 38-yard TD pass with 43 seconds showing on the clock.

In a wild fourth quarter, the teams combined for 38 points — 19 by each team.

The 32 points allowed by the Green Knights defense comes on the heels of allowing 31 in a nonconference loss at Stevens Point on Sept. 9.

"That's two weeks in a row we've given up quite a few points, which is something traditionally we haven't done here," McCarty said. "But at the end of the day, we got the win."

Both teams had difficulty stopping the opposing offense — with St. Norbert amassing 530 yards of total offense (74 plays) while Wisconsin Lutheran gained 453 yards (80 plays).

As part of the big offensive output from the Green Knights, Kewaunee High School alumnus Owen Kudick gained 261 yards of total offense with two touchdowns.

The senior running back bruised his way to 170 yards rushing on 20 carries and hauled in three receptions for another 91 yards.

"I challenged Owen last week, and he responded this week — in a big way," McCarty said. "We run with the two-back system — it's a long season, so we need both Owen and (Delton) Zuleger. We haven't rushed the ball a lot in the first two games, but today we did — that's what Wisconsin Lutheran gave us."

St. Norbert rushed for 279 yards while Lyon was 15-of-25 for 251 yards passing.

The Green Knights struck first when Lyon connected with Bageanis on a seven-yard TD pass late in the first quarter.

After the Warriors jumped ahead 7-6 two minutes later, Zuleger scored the first of his two TDs on a 14-yard run early in the second quarter.

A key moment in the game came late in the first half with Wisconsin Lutheran driving, trailing 12-6.

Failing to score six points despite having a few cracks from the three-yard line, the Warriors lined up for a field goal with seconds remaining.

Arnulfo Ortega's 20-yard attempt was blocked by Bryan Boockmeier to end the half.

"That was a big play — a huge defensive stand," McCarty said. "For our defensive to hold them there, that was huge."

Zuleger rushed for another score (nine yards) in the third quarter before Kudick hauled in a 56-yard TD pass from Lyon to make it 25-13 early in the fourth quarter.

Kudick gave St. Norbert a 31-20 lead with 5:15 remaining, setting up the wild finish.

Defensively, Kyle Santos had 10 total tackles; Logan Dorner collected seven; Oliver Sgrignuoli had two sacks; and Daylan Lujan recorded 1.5 sacks.

The Green Knights are back in action on Sept. 23 when they travel to Eureka for another NACC game.

Hendry

Who first introduced you to your sport?

My dad encouraged me to play soccer and at one point, he was even my coach.

What was your favorite and least favorite part about your sport?

My favorite part is the adrenaline that comes with every game. My least favorite part is losses and ties.

How has balancing academics and athletics been different for you from your freshman year to your senior year?

As a freshman it was hard to get used to juggling school and soccer, but as the years went on I have been able to establish a good routine.

What has been the most important aspect of your training while preparing for your senior season?

I think the determination and discipline is what you need to push yourself through a productive offseason.

What, to you, is the most challenging aspect of your sport?

The mental aspect of soccer is the most difficult aspect, to me the best players are the smartest players.

What is the best advice you have ever gotten from a coach or parent about your sport?

"If you think you're ready, you're not working hard enough."

What has been your most memorable experience in high school sports so far?

Going to an invitational tournament in Iowa last year, where our team played extremely well.

What is one thing that your sport has taught you that you don't think you would have been able to learn anywhere else?

Mental toughness — as a defender it is so important to be able to keep your composure mentally. If it weren't for soccer I wouldn't have learned to just play my game.

Would you prefer to perform in extreme cold or extreme heat?

Definitely extreme cold — I can't stand the heat!

What are you most excited for with your senior season?

I am excited to build relationships with the younger players on our team like I had when I was a freshman or sophomore.

Are you involved in any extracurricular activities outside of sports?

I participate in a few clubs at school. I also serve on the student government at Notre Dame.

Favorite pre-game snack?

I always have my energy drink or pre-workout before a game.

Any rituals or superstitions when it comes to your sport?

I have to put my right sock on before I put on my left sock.

What are your plans for the future?

I plan to go into the medical field. My plan is to go into pre-dental at a four year university.

practices," he said. "Practice squad players normally don't travel to away games unless you have a chance of being elevated. For home games, we will be on the sideline, but not suited up."

The chance to join the Packers is a dream come true, according to Welch.

"It's always been a dream of mine," he said. "I went to some games when I was a kid growing up and was a fan until I started playing in the NFL. It's a very surreal feeling to now be a part of the team. It all happens so fast. One second I'm in Baltimore, the next day I'm in Green Bay."

Welch said he will always remember his time with the Ravens.

"There are so many things that come to mind when thinking about my time in Baltimore," he said. "I was surrounded by great teammates, coaches and a great organization. I have nothing but respect for them."

For now, Welch is just going to take one day at a time.

"I will focus on improving 1% every day, have fun along the way, never take anything for granted and help the team win in any way I can," he said.

Welch said there isn't one thing about his job as a professional football player is not one thing that he doesn't enjoy.

"If you don't love football, even the hard parts about it, you won't last long in the NFL," he said. "There's so much effort and sacrifice on and off the field that goes into it. If you're not committed, you won't make it very long."

Welch said he is honored to represent Iola-Scandinavia High School on the team.

"I certainly haven't forgotten where I came from," he said. "I dearly miss the days when I played on Thunderbird Field."

Dorchester's big night leads De Pere to win over Ashwaubenon

BY RICH PALZEWIC
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

ASHWAUBENON – The De Pere boys' soccer team showed it's a force to be reckoned with in the Fox River Classic Conference (FRCC), while Ashwaubenon showed its growing pains.

Backed by a big first half, the Redbirds dominated the conference clash at Ashwaubenon High School on Sept. 19, 8-0.

De Pere (7-2-1 overall, 2-0 FRCC) scored five first-half goals before netting another three in the second half to pull away for the victory.

The Jaguars (0-10-1, 0-2) hung tough for the first 17 minutes of the game, but the Redbirds scored back-to-back goals in a 2-minute, 37-second span to jump ahead 2-0.

Andrew Cartier popped in a goal at 17:39 before James Dorchester added another at the 20:16 mark.

"Patience is key," De Pere Coach Martin Valenzuela said. "Now is the time we have to focus because it's now game after game, and we get into the thick of our conference schedule."

Things stayed close until Dorchester scored two more goals in the 38th minute to push the advantage to 4-0.

The Redbirds added their fifth goal of the half with three seconds remaining when Madden Skurka knocked one in from close range off a corner kick.

"I thought we started off strong," first-year Ashwaubenon Coach Zach Jakel said. "We were communicating well — we've made strides from the beginning of the season. In our (5-0) loss to Notre Dame (on Sept. 12), we also hung in there for a while."

The Jaguars have been shut out five times so far this season and have scored only nine combined goals.

In the second half, Dorchester ended the game via the mercy rule in the 74th minute, 8-0.

"I've not scored four goals in a game before," Dorchester said. "Even with a score like we had, you have to keep playing like it's 0-0 — all games are meaningful. It doesn't matter who the competition is, I keep playing my game."

The Jaguars also came out strong in the second half — something Jakel said his team can build on.

"We had a nice start in the second half, but then lost the momentum and started playing slow-footed," he said. "Against good teams like De Pere, we learn from our mistakes. We have a good group of seniors and a small junior class. We're trying to build our numbers — soccer is a growing sport, so hopefully, in the next few years, we can build the program. I think we're heading in the right direction."

Valenzuela said his team has a nice balance.

"The two losses we've had (against Madison West and Homestead) were against the two best teams we've played, so they were losses we'll take and grow off them," he said. "Our goal is to win every game."

Seymour volleyball sees a win against the Ashwaubenon Jaguars

ASHWAUBENON – The Seymour Thunder defeated the Ashwaubenon Jaguars 3-1 in non-conference volleyball action Tuesday night.

Ashwaubenon (3-7) got off to a hot start in set one, taking a 14-7 early lead.

Seymour (7-5) made a late push, forcing the Jaguars to call a timeout up only two, 22-20.

However, Ashwaubenon rattled off three straight points out of the timeout to win the opening set, 25-20.

The teams went back and forth in set two.

Just as it looked like Ashwaubenon might pull away, Seymour called a timeout, down 12-16.

The Thunder rallied back to tie the set at 19 points apiece.

From there, Seymour went on a 6-1 run to take set two, 25-20, and tie the match in Seymour held a 17-11 set three advantage, but Ashwaubenon put together a 5-1 run to trim the lead to two.

However, the Thunder staved off the Jaguar comeback, taking set three.

Seymour dominated the start of set four, jumping out to a 13-4 lead.

Ashwaubenon made a late push, but the deficit was too much to overcome.

The Thunder won the set 25-18 to take the match in front of their home crowd.

Seymour Head Coach Amber Thompson praised her team's ability to overcome the set one loss: "It's something we're really working on — just digging in and having grit," she said. "Even though we lost the set, being able to come back and prove to ourselves that we can win"

Seymour's outside hitters Hazel Cook and Keira Vandehi led the team with 14 kills apiece.

setback at such a young age, King said that he has learned many valuable lessons from the situation, but one stands above all.

"I learned that no matter what happens in life you can't give up on yourself, and you've just got to keep pushing through," advised King. "You're going to have days when you are going to get down on yourself but you're just going to have to push yourself through it and know that it's going to get better."

Although his time spent on the field in high school was invaluable to him, King said that his favorite memories of football have been in recent years on the sidelines as a coach.

"There are so many good memories. I would say my favorite memory as of right now is going from last year, winning no games, to this year winning our first game and seeing the excitement on the kids' faces and seeing how happy they were," said King.

Giving back to other young men in the community by imparting his understanding of the game of football and of life has become a prominent priority in King's life.

"Just being able to teach the kids the fundamentals and watching them excel and become better young men is really rewarding."

Full circle

King's former high school teammate, and now co-worker, N.E.W. Lutheran Athletic Director Jared Gosse said that King's influence both on and off the field has helped to guide many young players to grow into respectable men.

"That hard work and character from overcoming a traumatic event definitely translates to what he does on the field as a coach with our athletes, how he raises his two boys, and how he helps me become a better person. He is always happy, always smiling and joking around," said Gosse.

"Having an alumni back to help the program he helped shape is a powerful and special thing to have. God has blessed DaVonte and given him a unique opportunity to show our kids that no matter what happens in life, through hard work, commitment and trust in God, you can overcome any situation that is thrown your way."

King said that he has strong respect for those who have stuck by him all these years.

"I met Jared my sophomore year of high school. I played with him for three years, and honestly it was great. Even though we didn't have that great of a winning record in high school, we bonded and made a friendship through it and we are still friends to this day and are now coaching together," King said.

Gosse said that he is honored to be able to coach alongside King, and that they learn from each other every day.

"I know I can rely on him to do his duties as a coach and do those to the best of his ability while also being an accountability partner for me and making sure I am doing the same," said Gosse.

Everything has really come full circle for King and he said that he is very privileged to be able to coach alongside his former coach — Hassler, and his former teammate — Gosse after all these years.

"I was coaching at Allouez for a while while Jared was still in school and Dick was coaching at N.E.W., but I've always just maintained some kind of communication with them," explained King. "I came back in 2020 to coach the middle school football team and then last year I got moved up to varsity and have been there ever since."

Although N.E.W. Lutheran is a smaller school and runs a non-traditional 8-player football team in a partnership with Providence Academy and Oneida Nation United, King said that their program is invaluable to the student athletes who participate.

"I think it's important because kids — regardless of enrollment or whatever the reason may be — are always going to need some type of outlet, whether that be football, soccer, softball, baseball, whatever. I think it's good that these kids have something to look forward to."

Although King primarily works to teach and coach the young athletes he works with, he said that he is constantly influenced by those around him at N.E.W. Lutheran, and at home.

"They all influence my life greatly. I have two little boys and they come to practice with me. If they ever don't want to come to practice then my grandparents or my mom will watch them. Everybody has been pretty great."

Hassler said that King's mark on the N.E.W. Lutheran Blazer's football team is irreplaceable.

"It means a lot to me that he is coaching here, and Jared as well. Those are two guys who mean an awful lot to me and you know he just loves the game of football. He's got passion for football and he's got passion for these kids. They respect him," said Hassler.

"I think right from the beginning he was a young man that was determined to live life the best he could even with a setback like that. He inspires people with the type of disability he has because it's not going to hold him back. He's always going to go for it, and he has learned that you really can do anything that you put your mind to, and for these young kids to see him out there even with a helmet on, running plays with them and stuff, it really just is incredible to see him."

Gosse said that aside from the impact he has had on the young athletes he coaches, King has left his mark on himself as well.

"I played football in high school and college and I can honestly say that DaVonte was the hardest worker I have ever played with or against. As a senior, he received All-Conference recognition at Defensive Line in the Olympian-Packerland Conference which had dominant forces such as Brillion and Hilbert, on only one leg!"

Vernon Stevens, a current senior on the N.E.W. Lutheran football team said that King's influence on him and his teammates is something they never take for granted.

"Coach King is definitely one of the coolest coaches I've ever had. He 100% has a big impact on our team and on this season," said Stevens.

Now, King works as a press brake operator at New Tech Metals, spending any free time he has either on the football field, or at home with his two young sons, thankful for every opportunity that this life has given him.

Shovald hits milestone number in West De Pere win

BY RICH PALZEWIC

DE PERE – West De Pere quarterback Duke Shovald went over 5,000 career passing yards in the Phantoms' 21-13 Fox River Classic Conference (FRCC) victory over Pulaski on Sept. 15.

The senior Shovald threw for a touchdown and ran for another to help West De Pere (4-1 overall, 3-0 FRCC) win its third straight game.

"It's nice, but numbers are numbers — we're looking for wins," Shovald said. "As of right now, the number doesn't mean much."

On the opening drive of the game, barely a minute into the contest, running back Evan Ott scampered 22 yards for the game's first score, giving the Phantoms a 7-0 early lead after Shovald hit wide receiver Langdon Nordgaard on a 43-yard pass play.

With 4:20 remaining in the first half, Pulaski (1-4, 1-2) fumbled on the fourth down at its 47-yard line, which was recovered by Carter Schmitt for the Phantoms.

Nine plays later, Shovald ran in 15 yards to make the score 14-0.

"A lot of people might not realize, but Duke is a great runner, too," West De Pere Coach Chris Greisen said. "We don't run him a lot — we're strategic with it. He always wants to run the ball, and he got his chance before halftime."

The Red Raiders marched down the field on the opening drive of the second half, but an interception by Collin Jindra at the six-yard line thwarted the drive.

After a Phantoms punt, Pulaski went 72 yards in seven plays to draw within a score, 14-6.

Miles Wippel's point-after attempt was blocked.

On the next drive, Shovald hit Joseph Riesenberger on a 66-yard TD pass to bump the lead to 21-6 — a play that put Shovald over the 5,000 career passing mark.

"We were a little sloppy with the ball, but when you play Pulaski, it's always a slobber knocker," Greisen said. "Duke made some nice throws, but we weren't quite as efficient on offense as we needed to be."

The Red Raiders made it a game late when Ethan Schmidt hit Jacob Heston on a two-yard TD pass, after a big play earlier in the drive when Spencer Hakes dashed 70 yards.

After recovering the ensuing onside kick, the Phantoms ran out the clock to seal the game.

Despite the loss, Pulaski Coach Jerad Marsh said he was proud of his team.

"Ultimately, you're judged by wins and losses, but we showed some growth tonight," he said. "We have a relatively inexperienced team, but they were energetic on the sidelines and we showed some urgency," Marsh said. "I thought tonight was as close to a four-quarter game as we've had — it was nice to see."

West De Pere plays De Pere (2-3) on Sept. 22, while the Red Raiders travel to Ashwaubenon (2-3).

Ashwaubenon secures second win of 2023 season

GREEN BAY – On Friday, Sept. 15, the Ashwaubenon Jaguars dominated at the Preble Hornet's home field, securing their second win this season.

Although proud of his team for securing a necessary victory, Ashwaubenon Head Coach Brian Ryczkowski said they still have a lot to work on.

"We, so far, have beaten the two teams we beat last year, but at some point this season we have to beat a team we lost to last year in order to make the playoffs," said Ryczkowski.

On Ashwaubenon's first drive of the game, quarterback Malcolm MacGrath was able to find the endzone from the 10-yard line and put the first points of the game on the scoreboard.

"I saw a lot of good things out of our offense tonight. I'm really proud of our team both offensively and defensively and everything we were able to do. We definitely saw a lot of good plays tonight," said McGrath.

Jacob McVane then carried the ball 59 yards up the field for the Jaguars, scoring their second touchdown of the night.

On their next drive, a fumble by Preble would be recovered by Ashwaubenon at the 13-yard line with eight minutes to go until half, but their defensive line held Ashwaubenon to a field goal by AJ Uhi, which would put the score at 17-0.

The Hornets came back, however, finding a long ball down the field from Gerard to Braylon Schadt, which would bring them from their own 43 to the six yard line. Gerard was then able to find Schadt in the endzone. An unsuccessful point after attempt left the score 17-6.

The Jaguars secured a field goal to make the score 20-6 going into halftime.

It was a quiet third quarter with both teams getting caught around the midfield. However, the fourth quarter started off strong when a blocked Preble punt was recovered by Jaguar Lucas Popp who ran it back for a touchdown, making the score 27-6.

"I think the blocked punt really was the turning point for us," said McGrath about his team being able to put extra points up on the board to secure their win.

Ashwaubenon's Gus Newel finished off their next drive by scoring a touchdown, lengthening their lead to 34-6.

Jack Neumann for Preble, however, was able to secure a touchdown for his team, bringing the score to 34-13.

After Ashwaubenon recovered Preble's onside kick, a strong Preble defensive line held them to a 34-13 final score.

"We definitely have playmakers, and they'll continue to make plays, but we've really got to get control and just clean up the sloppy things we had tonight," said Preble Head Coach Dustin Gresen.

Preble's next game is at Notre Dame on Friday, Sept. 22 while Ashwaubenon hosts Pulaski at 7 p.m.

Progress for the Packers

BY TORI WITTENBROCK

ASHWAUBENON – After a tough 24-25 loss for the Packers on Sunday, Sept. 17, to the Atlanta Falcons, Packers Head Coach Matt LaFleur said that there is a lot of work to be done, but he is satisfied with the work his team put in.

"I was proud of the effort of the guys stepping in and stepping up," said LaFleur.

With a hefty injury report from the Packers, including notable players such as David Bakhtiari and Aaron Jones, LaFleur said that relying on other players to perform has been a heavy influence on their performance.

"We are going to kind of figure out who we are going to roll out there, but it is always a competitive situation. I don't care what position it is, we are going to make it competitive, and if guys aren't performing, then we'll roll out someone else."

Being that the Packers have a relatively young roster, LaFleur said that it is no excuse for their performance on Sunday and that they shouldn't have left that many plays on the field.

"I think there is a lot of learning involved in every game, especially with young players, more situationally, but that film was tough to watch because there were a lot of opportunities left out there," said LaFleur.

"I'm not trying to take any credit away from Atlanta. They did what they needed to do to beat us, but I have confidence in the guys in the locker room that we've got to make some of these plays that are out there for us to make."

Going forward, LaFleur said that injuries should not have any affect on their ability to clinch a win either at Lambeau, or at an away game.

"All 32 teams have the same challenge, so I'm not going to use that as an excuse. It is what it is. You've got to come up with a plan, and you're expected to go out there and execute that plan and go out there and win a football game, period."

The Packers have a lot of learning curves ahead of them, through the young ages of players like quarterback Jordan Love or place-kicker Anders Carlson, according to LaFleur. However, he said that he has no reason to doubt that things will only get smoother and cleaner from here on out.

"All those guys went out there and competed and made some critical plays. So, we've just got to make sure that they continue, and they've got to get better, and continue to learn, whether it's failure or success. You've got to continue to learn from it and get better and better and better," said LaFleur.

"I think there are things we've got to adapt and adjust to and do a much better job."

In a time when the Packers are looking for a leader after their first loss of the season, LaFleur said he is confident in Love's ability to ignite a fire in the rest of his team on the field.

"It's a fine line of being smart but also just bringing that energy and he showed some fire after the run which was pretty impressive in my opinion. I was really pleased with how he competed and

GREEN BAY — At just 29 years old, Green Bay local DaVonte King has become a pillar of support and a mentor for many young men and aspiring athletes in the area.

MRSA survivor

Now an assistant coach for varsity football at N.E.W. Lutheran High School, his alma mater, King is able to use his knowledge of the game of football and his life experiences to guide the young men on his team to be both better players and better people.

"I started playing football in fourth grade, and then when I was in eighth grade I contracted MRSA staph infection and I ended up losing my leg. I continued to play football after I had gotten my prosthetic my sophomore year of high school," said King.

King said that having to cope with the unexpected loss of his leg at such a young age was not an easy feat, especially after never learning the true cause of the infection.

"I honestly don't know. They say it was either from another player or it was from something at one of the football fields," said King about his knowledge of how the infection was originally contracted.

After a tumultuous freshman year of high school while attending Green Bay Preble, some guidance from close friends brought him to the decision to transfer to N.E.W. Lutheran High school for his sophomore year where he would feel at home for the next three seasons of his career as a student athlete.

"I was his football coach in middle school when he got MRSA," explained N.E.W. Lutheran Head Coach Dick Hassler. "I went down as a representative of our team and as the coach and really got to know his family and just saw how much this kid was suffering and how much he needed people by him."

Hassler was a close friend of King's and spent a lot of time around him the year he lost his leg as the coach of his Allouez Buccaneers football team. After convincing him to continue to play football by transferring to N.E.W. Lutheran, Hassler said he was thrilled to see King thrive in the Green Bay athletic community.

A community of love and support

"He recuperated and went back to school and ended up at Preble, and I was like, 'You can come and play football over with us,' and he came over and he'll tell you it was the best thing he ever did. We all really made a big impact on his life when he was a young man," said Hassler of King's support system.

"I've known him since I was an eighth grader and he's honestly had a huge impact on my life. We always had this play called 31-Dive and he would tell me to go out there and run like a train and I would run like a train and get touchdowns and ever since then he's just kind of been my go-to guy," said King regarding Hassler's influence on his life.

However, King said that his support system also spanned far beyond the football community.

"I had a huge support system — I had tons of family, my football team, my soccer team, my whole middle school, but my rock, honestly, was my mom. She was with me every step of the way."

King said that his relationship with his mother is at the core of his life as an adult, and he still depends on her today for her unwavering love and support.

From Iola to Green Bay, Welch making the most of his opportunity with Packers

BY HOLLY NEUMANN

GREEN BAY — After three years with the NFL's Baltimore Ravens Iola-Scandinavia High School graduate Kristian Welch is now part of the Green Bay Packers' practice squad.

"Saying farewell to the Ravens is just part of the business, it's the NFL," he said. "I am excited about the opportunity with Green Bay."

That opportunity has been a whirlwind experience for Welch, who the Ravens released shortly before the season began as the NFL's 32 teams set their final 53-man rosters.

"I was notified by conversations with my agent that I was getting on a flight only a couple hours before that flight was taking off," he said. "It's certainly chaotic, but it's the nature of my profession."

Welch's job now is to play the part of the opponent on any given week to help those who are playing prepare for games.

"Being on the practice squad means you are there to serve the team," he said. "The guys who are going to be playing on Sunday need to practice with looks that they're going to get from their opponent during that week's game."

The Green Bay Packers recently signed Kristian Welch to their practice squad. Welch played for the Iola-Scandinavia Thunderbirds in high school, the Iowa Hawkeyes in college and spent three seasons with the NFL's Baltimore Ravens. Photo Courtesy of Emma Pravecek, packers.com

Welch's goal is not to stay on the practice squad.

"The goal is to at some point be elevated, meaning in that week I become elevated, I can play and get on the field," he said.

Practice squad players can be elevated three times for three games before they are required to be signed to the active roster.

"This happened to me my rookie year when I was elevated starting on Week 5 of the season and played the remaining 12 games, including two playoff games," Welch said.

Welch prepares himself each week as if he is going to be playing in the game.

DE PERE — Seemingly about to lose a heartbreaking conference home game against Wisconsin Lutheran, the St. Norbert College football team showed it has comeback abilities.

Trailing 32-31 with time running down, quarterback Peyton Lyon hit Paul Bageanis with a 47-yard touchdown pass with 13 seconds remaining to help the Green Knights win a wild, 37-32 Northern Athletics Collegiate Conference (NACC) game on Sept. 16 at Schneider Stadium in De Pere.

"That's the craziest game I've ever played in," Bageanis said. "It was a great throw by Peyton — it was kind of a Hail Mary play we've run in practice. Peyton has a great arm, and he gave me a chance to catch it."

Lyon said he had complete faith in his teammates and coaches on the game-winning drive.

"It was an emotional game," he said. "It was easy to go up and down — there were times we put up lots of points and then other times we went three-and-out."

Lyon said his teammates were calm in the huddle needing the final score.

"I have complete faith in my receivers and offensive lineman — it wasn't like I just chucked it up there and hoped for the best," he said. "As soon as the ball left my hands, I had a good feeling about it — it felt good."
