Family Health Center, Mid-State launch Dental Assistant program

BY MIKE WARREN
EDITOR

MARSHFIELD – A new partnership, funded through a grant from the Wisconsin Department of Health Services, is allowing Family Health Center of Marshfield and Mid-State Technical College to launch a search for the next generation of dental assistants. The partnership, supported by the Allied Health Professional Education and Training Grant, was the catalyst for the launch of a new Dental Assistant program from Mid-State. The grant provides tuition support for several cohorts of dental assistant students to participate in the one-semester technical diploma, with the first cohort of students slated to start the program in January 2024.

“Over the years Family Health Center has been faced with a chronic shortage of dental assistants who are critical members of our dental teams,” said Greg Nycz, chief executive officer for Family Health Center. “Without them, fewer people in our communities will get the dental care they need. We are excited about our partnership with Mid-State to help us address this issue, as it will lead to more access to dental care for those in need,” he said. “The enthusiasm Mid-State’s leadership has had for this partnership is inspiring and demonstrates the critical role our technical colleges play in addressing workforce challenges.”

“You can find partners, but they have to be the right partner,” Mid-State President Dr. Shelly Mondeik said, during an agreement signing ceremony Sept. 26, held at Family Health Center of Marshfield, 1307 N. St. Joseph Ave. “And I think from day one all I heard was, ‘This is one of the partners we want.’ We feel really privileged and we feel very honored that you would enter into this partnership and collaboration with us.”

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the projected job growth for dental assistants nationally is 8 percent through 2031. That increase is tied to an overall increase in demand for preventive dental services, especially as baby boomers continue to enter older age groups and require more oral health care. According to Wisconsin Department of Workforce and Development data, central Wisconsin’s growth rate in the profession is even higher, at 9.1 percent, with many upcoming vacancies due to retirements and transfers.

Mondeik said Mid-State has been wanting to get into serving the dental industry. “And we just haven’t been able to do that because of lack of resources, not because of lack of need,” she said.

Now, a $150,000 grant will help launch the program. “Through this funding, it’s going to allow us to serve 24 students, three cohorts of eight,” said Mondeik. “And for these students, it’s going to make it affordable. They’re going to be able to get their tuition funding. They’re going to be able to have the money to buy the books and the supplies, and I’ve heard even the dollars to take that

Chestnut Center fundraiser returns

There is always something to see and do at the Chestnut Center for the Arts, located at 208 S. Chestnut Ave., Marshfield. The center's biggest fundraiser, "Lift Up the Arts," is Oct. 21.

MARSHFIELD – Area residents have a chance to support the arts in Marshfield, and have some fun in the process.

The Chestnut Center for the Arts is bringing back its "Lift Up the Arts," or "LUTA," fundraiser on Saturday, Oct. 21 from 6-10 p.m.

Organizer Edie Smazal says they're bringing the event to the Chestnut Center this year.

"This is the fifth annual 'Lift Up the Arts' fundraising dinner and dance event and we have traditionally done it at Hotel Marshfield, but we are excited about sharing our building with the community, and give them an opportunity to see what we do at the Chestnut Center," Smazal told Hub City Times.

Smazal says organizers are using the event, not only as a fundraiser, but as a way to showcase everything the Chestnut Center for the Arts has to offer.

"The same weekend we are doing 'Lift Up the Arts,' Marshfield Area Actors are putting on Swan Song, so people will have a chance to see behind the scenes a little bit with their production and see what they do up in the performance hall," said Smazal. "We're also going to be sharing some of what our classes are. We have a display case that identifies what our programming is for education. We have evening classes. We have Sunday afternoon classes and fun events that people can come to," Smazal added. "We are going to be promoting the weekend after this fundraiser, we want people to come to our murder mystery dinner. It's the Jazz

She also said the "Lift Up the Arts" evening will provide attendees a chance to tour the Chestnut Center and look around to see how the space is being used.

"The LUTA event is meant to help us provide the funds that we need to keep our building up and running, and to provide the programming that we like to have," Smazal told us.

Food will be provided by Jamaican Kitchens and Stevens Point DJ Joe Miller will provide music for a dance following the dinner. There will be live and silent auctions, in addition to a wine cork pull. Auction items include handmade furniture and two tickets to the Green Bay Packers' game versus the Los Angeles Chargers on Sunday, Nov. 19 at noon.

The cost for the LUTA event is $35/person. Tickets are available online or at the door.

"The theme of the evening will be 'Mythology,' so if people want to wear a costume they're welcome to do that. It's not required," Smazal said.

Sponsors for "Lift Up the Arts" include Century 21/Gold Key Realty, Team Schierl Team, RE/MAX American Dream Realty, Chips Hamburgers, Wildwood Animal Hospital & Clinic, Staab Construction Corporation, China Chef and Bents Chiropractic Center.

Event donors include Mueller Local, Hospital Gift Shop, Sports Scene, Melody Gardens, Stone Press Food Truck, K T Massage, Patricia Stuhr/Anthony, El Mezcal, Central Café, Carpet City and Victory Apparel.

JOHANNES (JACK) KOOPMAN
Johannes (Jack) Koopman, of Auburndale, peacefully entered eternal life on September 30, 2023.

Together with his wife, Janet, they opened up their home to over 30 foster children. United Way kicks off campaign

Local businesses 'United In Purpose'

FOR HUB CITY TIMES
MARSHFIELD – Marshfield Area United Way's annual community fundraising campaign is underway. Funds collected during the campaign will be used to support community programs working to improve health, expand education, grow livelihoods and address essential needs.

Each year United Way highlights businesses or individuals that stand out as active examples of the many ways United Way partners with local organizations and volunteers, working together to make the Marshfield community a better place to call home. The campaign this year will feature three local businesses: Nelson-Jameson, Staab Construction and Mid-State Technical College. All three of these organizations have a long-standing commitment to the community and making it a better place for everyone to live, work and play.

"Mid-State Technical College is proud to be a Marshfield Area United Way featured business," said Dr. Alex Lendved, Marshfield campus dean. "Our continued support for United Way stems from our long history of aligning with like-minded partners who share our mission to transform lives and make a positive impact in our community. We know we are stronger together," Lendved added.

"At Nelson-Jameson, we sincerely value and appreciate the work the United Way does in our communities," added Mat Bartkowiak, VP of Corporate Responsibility and Development. "The United Way provides an impressive breadth of programs and services to so many, and makes our community stronger because of it."

United Way chose the campaign theme "United in Purpose," sharing a vision for the community where every person – no matter their background or circumstances – has an equal chance at a bright future. Along with its partners, United Way works to ensure households are able to keep a roof over their heads, have enough nutritious food to eat, a safe place to call home, access to physical and mental health care and a strong start with a good education including quality childcare. Working to address these needs not with hand-outs, but a hand-up when households find themselves in a crisis, United Way and its partners work to provide a bridge through hard times. Making sure all community members have access to the tools they need to build toward a better life – that's the mission of United Way.

Every donation – big and small alike – is important. Support for the United Way delivers necessary funds, not just to United Way programs, but also to numerous partner agencies throughout the community, addressing both long- and short-term needs. Join Nelson-Jameson, Staab Construction and Mid-State Technical College as they lead the way to raise essential funds to help community members move forward through adversity and continue building toward a brighter future.

To learn more about United Way's work, to watch this year's video, "United in Purpose," featuring Nelson-Jameson, Staab Construction and Mid-State Technical College, and to make a generous donation, please visit www.marshfieldareaunitedway.org.

Actors to stage ‘Swan Song’

MARSHFIELD – Marshfield Area Actors invites you to join them for a theatrical experience with their latest production, “Swan Song.” This drama will be performed at the Chestnut Center for the Arts in Marshfield, Oct. 20-22.

“Swan Song” tickets can be purchased online at Eventbrite.com or at the door. Given that seating is reserved, we recommend securing your tickets in advance for the best possible seating options.

In “Swan Song,” we meet Tryphosa Swan, a retired soprano of immense wealth and a tempestuous personality. Her sole regret in life is never having discovered the identity of her birth mother. When an unexpected clue emerges, she confides in her closest friend, Marianne, who advises caution. However, Tryphosa’s impulsive nature leads her to hire a genealogist, setting off a chain of events she could never have foreseen.

As her relationships with her two daughters deteriorate, Tryphosa’s decision will spark the appearance of a grim specter—Death itself. From this point, the tale takes a dark and unexpected turn.

“Swan Song” explores family dynamics, legacies and the far-reaching repercussions of unearthing long-held secrets. The production marries exceptional storytelling with outstanding performances, ensuring a theatrical experience that will linger in the minds of our audience.

Join them at the Chestnut Center for the Arts Oct. 20 and 22 at 7 p.m. and Oct. 21 at 2 p.m. Brace yourself for an evening of suspense, drama and an exploration of the complex world of Tryphosa Swan.

complicated disease involving the heart, nervous system, or joints.

Currently, there are no approved vaccines available to prevent Lyme disease. The VALOR research study is evaluating if an investigational (study) vaccine is safe and effective for preventing Lyme disease in people who have been exposed through tick bites.

“Ticks are common in the Midwest and Lyme disease is a threat for everyone who enjoys being outdoors in summer,” said Dr. Ray Haselby, a Marshfield Clinic infectious disease physician and researcher. “The potential for a vaccination that could provide protection against Lyme disease is significant for many people.”

This is the second enrollment the Research Institute has held for this study; the first having started in October 2022. The latest enrollment will take place through December at Marshfield Medical Center in Marshfield. Healthy adults and children 5 years of age or older who live in or often visit outdoor areas that may expose them to ticks may be eligible to participate. Trial participants cannot have been diagnosed with Lyme disease within three months of enrollment.

Activities that may increase the risk of Lyme disease include: live in or frequently visit areas where ticks that carry Lyme disease are found, such as wooded areas, tree lines, open fields, lakesides or riversides; outdoor occupations such as landscaping, forestry, wildlife or parks management; hiking, camping, fishing, hunting, or gardening; owning a pet that has returned with ticks attached after being outside.

Study participants will be randomly assigned to receive the study vaccine or a placebo (shot with no active ingredient).

This study will last about 30 months. During this time, participants will have at least seven in-clinic study visits, including 4-5 visits with blood draws. Additional blood samples may be needed if participants develop symptoms of Lyme disease. Over the course of the study, participants will need to report any changes in their health to the study team.

The study vaccine and study-related procedures will be provided at no cost. You do not need health insurance to take part in this study.

To learn more about this trial and to find out if you are eligible to participate, visit <https://www.valorlymestudy.com/>. Alternatively, contact the study team at 715-389-7527 or 2valorlymestudy@marshfieldresearch.org.

The randomized, placebo-controlled, Phase 3 VALOR study has already enrolled more than 6,000 adults and 800 children in areas where Lyme disease is highly endemic in the United States and Europe.

PUBLISHER’S LETTER

An open letter to the Senators and Representatives of the United States

Dear Senators and Representatives,

I write to you today as a concerned citizen and a newspaper publisher who believes in the importance of a functioning government that serves the interests of all Americans. It deeply troubles me to witness the recurring threats of government shut-downs due to your inability to reach a consensus and your unwillingness to put aside partisan differences for the greater good.

American people, should remember those among you who put your personal agendas before the well-being of our nation. We must exercise our right to vote and elect Senators and Representatives who prioritize the interests of their constituents and the nation as a whole over their own partisan interest.

If you are willing to entertain the notion of a government shutdown, I propose a simple solution: Fine each of you for every day the government remains closed, and suspend your salaries until you do what is right for the American people. Perhaps this financial consequence will serve as a reminder of your responsibility to your constituents.

In closing, I urge you to reflect on your roles as public servants and the trust that the American people have placed in you. It is time to set aside your differences, engage in respectful dialogue, negotiate, and compromise in order to prevent further harm to our great nation. The welfare of America should always come first.

Sincerely,
PATRICK J. WOOD

School supplies, meals supported by Prevail Bank

CENTRAL WISCONSIN – Fifteen-hundred dollars ($1,500) was donated by Prevail Bank to various school districts, United Ways, and Meals in a Backpack programs to support those children who don't have all the supplies or nourishment they need to be successful in school. An additional $750 was used to purchase school supplies needed.

"Prevail Bank is very proud to contribute to the well-being of our local children," said Nathan Quinnell, Prevail Bank President. "We want to ensure no child is hungry and that they have all the materials needed to be successful in school."

The U.S. Census Bureau (American Community Survey 2022) and the Annie E. Casey Foundation estimates 13.4 percent of the children in Wisconsin live in households below the poverty level.

Making a difference, helping others prevail, is the essence of Prevail Bank.

Prevail Bank was founded in 1934 with offices in Marshfield, Wisconsin Rapids, Stevens Point, Owen, Medford, Wausau, Eau Claire, Phillips and Baraboo.

NOMINATED BY THE NORTH WOOD COUNTY HISTORICAL SOCIETY

John P. Adler, "JP," associated himself with the entertainment industry at an extremely early age and became a prominent member of that business around the state. In Marshfield he was the personification of the entertainment industry, and the success of his theaters reflected the growth and prosperity of the city and its trade area.

Adler, one of the thirteen children of Philip and Margaret (Hoffman) Adler was born Sept. 28, 1887. At the age of nine years, he had a hand in hauling the bricks used in the construction of the opera house his father built on East Second Street.

The first "moving pictures" show in Marshfield debuted at the Adler Opera House in 1897. Young JP helped set the chairs for his father, and peddled bills about the city to advertise the big event. Two years later he was captain of the boys who posted advertisements for the attractions brought to the city by the various traveling companies. During this time, he also became stage manager, and at the age of 21, leased the opera house from his father, and renamed it the Adler Theater.

During the early years, all the motion pictures of the time appeared on the screens of the Adler Theater, as did the stars of the stage. With Marshfield strategically placed between Milwaukee, Chicago and the Twin Cities, the Adler Theater was a fine "one-nighter" for big city companies in transit. Theater-goers here saw such classics as The Virginian, The Chocolate Soldier, and The Cow and the Moon, and they saw such stars as John Barrymore, Boris Karloff, and May Robson.

The old Adler on Second Street operated until 1952. Then, before being razed in 1964 to make way for the new Woolworths Store, served as the Reserve Armory and the Marshfield Youth Center.

In June 1921 Adler purchased the Trio Theater on Central Avenue between Second and Third streets. In succeeding years, he remodeled the theater with the best seats and projection equipment and featured the best newly-released films. He brought the first part-talking motion picture to the Trio on April 30, 1929.

Honoring Marshfield's 150th

Marshfield 150 for 150: John P. Adler

That same year in June, Adler held a contest to rename the theater. Three individuals suggested the winning name, Relda (Adler spelled backwards) – they were A.E. Beebee, Mrs. M. Rowells, and Madeline Tuchsher. By the end of the month, a huge new electric sign for the Relda, containing 1,280 colored lights, graced the façade of the building. The Relda was a downtown landmark until closing on May 23, 1956, to be remodeled for the Three Sisters Store.

Adler observed his 50th birthday on September 28, 1937, by dedicating the New Adler Theater, today's Rogers Cinema. It was described then as, "one of the most modern theaters in the Mississippi Valley." When patrons entered the lobby they were greeted with a terrazzo floor and crystal chandelier, before heading into the carpeted foyer. The area was also furnished with upholstered oak furniture, lamps, sofas, and chairs. JP's idea was to "make it so comfortable at the theater, you would leave your home to go to the movies."

The new theater was one of the first in the nation to have stadium-type seating and reclining seats, and there were double-wide chairs without arm rests for couples to sit on, too. The theater also had an air-cleaning system and air conditioning.

Adler opened an outdoor drive-in theater in April 1953, at the northeast corner of the junction of Highway 10 and 13 south of Marshfield. The outdoor theater accommodated 420 cars on ten granite-surfaced ramps, each with "in-the-car" speakers that could be adjusted for volume in the individual autos.

As Adler's theater interests grew in Marshfield, they also spread throughout the state with the addition of the Rosa and Palace theaters at Waupaca, the Adler and Armory theaters at Neillsville, and the New Badger Theater at Merrill, where he also held an interest in the Badger and Merrill Hotels. He was also invested in partnerships in Milwaukee theaters, too.

At the time of his death four of his theaters were operating, the New Adler and 10-13 Drive-In here, the Rosa at Waupaca and the Adler at Neillsville.

Besides his entertainment interests, Adler was prominent in civic activities here. He served four-and-a-half years as an alderman, two years as president of the Board of Education, and six years as chairman of the swimming pool commission.

He was a former president of the Marshfield Rotary Club and served a year as district governor of the service organization. For several terms he was president of the Independent Theater Owners of Wisconsin and Upper Michigan.

At the time of his death, he was vice president of the Citizens National Bank and had been a director of that institution for more than twenty years.

A member of the Second Regiment of the Wisconsin National Guard for seven years during his youth, he organized the local selective service office during World War II and after two years as chairman was named appeal agent to that body. For fourteen years he was active in the Marshfield Volunteer Fire Department.

He was also a former officer of the Marshfield Old Settlers Club. His fraternal and service affiliations included the Elks and the Fourth Degree Assembly, Knights of Columbus and the Catholic Order of Foresters.

Adler understood the entertainment industry and recognized the value of community involvement. Marshfield in multiple ways was a beneficiary of his acumen and service.

Marshfield's 150 list approaches 100

Still time to nominate difference-makers

This fall, the number of honorees in Marshfield's 150 will have surpassed 100. At the current pace, the list will be finalized sometime in 2024. There's still time to nominate your favorite candidate.

Marshfield's 150: Honoring Heroes and Leaders, Past and Present is a lasting tribute that started during the city's sesquicentennial in 2022. Each Wednesday, the Hub City Times unveils an individual or group of individuals related by family or institution. They've all made a difference, large and small, ever since the city's incorporation in 1872. A Facebook page also posts weekly profiles: You'll find it by entering Marshfield's 150 in the search box.

The only Marshfieldian who's ever been a Wisconsin governor – industrial pioneer William Upham – was the first nominee, soon followed by the six founders of Marshfield Clinic. A variety of community servants, business persons, educators, family men and women, and others followed. The full list to date is at

Slow moving vehicle signs available to Wisconsin farmers

Project aimed at increased visibility of agricultural traffic

FOR HUB CITY TIMES

MARSHFIELD – Harvest season is underway in Wisconsin, when motorists and farmers encounter each other more often on public roadways.

To raise safety awareness and potentially save lives during this busy time of year, Slow Moving Vehicle (SMV) signs are being distributed to farmers free of charge through a partnership involving Marshfield Clinic Research Institute's National Farm Medicine Center (NFMCC), Rural Mutual Insurance Company, the University of Wisconsin-Madison's Agricultural Safety and Health Program, the family of Mike Biadasz and the Auction of Champions.

Limited quantities of SMV signs are available now at Marathon Feed in Marathon, and Allied Cooperative (formerly known as ProVision Partners) in Stratford, Auburndale and Hixton.

According to the Wisconsin

Department of Transportation, there were 136 crashes involving motorists and farm vehicles in Wisconsin last year. This resulted in 50 injuries and two deaths. The most recent Wisconsin Farm Related Fatalities reports show roadway deaths accounted for 15 percent of all farm-related fatalities (six out of 40) in 2019 while in 2020 they accounted for 18% of fatalities (five out of 28).

An SMV sign is a reflective orange triangle bordered with red that warns other road users that the vehicle displaying the sign is traveling slower than the normal speed of traffic.

"It's imperative that farmers make their equipment as visible as possible on public roadways through the SMV emblem and functional lighting systems that include flashers and turn signals," said John Shutske, University of Wisconsin professor and agricultural safety & health specialist. Shutske has investigated hundreds of tragic farm-related incidents in multiple states during the past four decades.

The SMV distribution program is expected to sustain through 2024, as supplies last. "We're so glad to see such broad interest in agricultural safety on our public roadways, and are encouraged by the growing support and partnerships across the state, from Fire/EMS to farmers to feed mills," said Bryan Weichelt, SMV program lead and Farm Medicine research scientist. If interested in supporting the program financially or as a distribution site, please contact the Farm Medicine team at nfmccsh@marshfieldresearch.org.

profiles: Even if you don't know who some or most of these people are, you'll find out why Marshfield is ... well, Marshfield.

That site also has instructions on how to nominate new honorees. If you don't use Google Forms, write the requested information in an email and send it to the address listed in the previous paragraph.

Don Schnitzler, a key leader in both the 2022 sesquicentennial celebration and Marshfield's 150, knows of some notable figures in the military, local sports, and female influencers who haven't been nominated yet. "There are so many more deserving individuals that a last call for nominations seems only appropriate."

Anyone who has been touched by a worthy nominee can step forward. It especially helps when the nominator is someone close who can provide background and stories of what makes a nominee special. If you need help, just look through some of the profiles of those already honored. You'll find acute observations from ordinary people who've told some very extraordinary stories.

Please note that Marshfield's 150 is not a Hall of Fame in which all members must prove high-profile excellence – or reach a certain level of proficiency and/or hierarchy. Anyone who has made a difference in one of our neighborhoods, our community, and/or beyond can deserve a place in what will stand for decades as a great reflection of Marshfield and its life during its first 150 years.

This story was written by Thom Gerretsen, who was selected to Marshfield's 150 earlier this year – with approval from the 150 Selection Committee.

CHS Class of '59 celebrates reunion

FOR HUB CITY TIMES

MARSHFIELD – The Columbus Catholic High School Class of 1959 celebrated its Grand Finale 64th Class Reunion and 80-plus years Happy Birthday Bash Sept. 15-17. Classmates were encouraged to be happy, as they had all outlived their life expectancy and are elite “One Percenters,” as 99 percent of those born between 1930 and 1946 (worldwide) have passed. If you were born in this time span, you are one of the rare surviving 1% of this special group. Their age range is between 77 and 93 years old, a 16-year age span. It is truly a time to celebrate and treasure and remember they are not 80-plus years old. They are still sweet 16 ... with 64-plus years of experience.

Friday evening, Sept. 15 the group gathered for a casual social and dinner at the Rembs Celebration Center. At 1 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 16 a tour was presented at Columbus High School by Athletic Director Joseph Konieczny. At 3 p.m. there was a social hour followed by a 6 p.m. evening dinner at the Marshfield Elks Club. Guest speaker was Columbus Athletic Director Joe Konieczny regarding the Christian, inspirational and motivational values of a Catholic education which have affected our lives. He also remarked how Columbus has flourished and described their dedication to advancement. He thanked the classmates for what they have contributed to the world. The class was applauded and congratulated for setting a historical legacy in 1957 and 1958,

A group photo was taken of the 24 classmates attending the event. Entertainment, with the audience engaged, was enjoyed with an old time sing-along, which was accompanied by the Marshfield Ukulele Club. The highlight was singing the school song, Anchors Aweigh. A balloon release and prayers occurred, recognizing – with condolences – the 38 classmates who have passed away. Sunday morning Mass was celebrated at Sacred Heart Catholic Church for the intention of the living and deceased members of the Class of 1959.

Following the Sept. 17 church services, an “Until We Meet Again” breakfast was held at the Rivers Restaurant.

The Reunion Committee consisted of Chairperson (Marie) Karen Kappel Welniak, Sheila (Ledden) Weis, Ruth (Wartner) Herkert, Nancy (Dohm) Dischinger, Mary Jane (Seubert) Lanning, and Lorraine (Rainy Kipp) Netzer.

The atmosphere was delightfully fun and spirits were high. It was encouraged that this not be the Grand Finale Reunion, but to keep it going until two classmates remain to enjoy a bottle of wine.

professional exam.”

The new Dental Assistant technical diploma is a one-semester program and will launch in early 2024 with initial capacity for eight students. Those entering the program will experience hands-on training in a space provided by the Family Health Center clinic site in Marshfield. The grant-funded tuition program will be available to any student in the first three cohorts who commits to working for one year, post completion, in a rural dental facility that accepts BadgerCare or Medicaid patients.

“When Family Health Center of Marshfield approached Mid-State with a need for staff in oral health, we enthusiastically responded as a partner to support their Allied Health Professional Grant application,” said Mid-State’s vice president of academics, Chris Severson. “The Dental Assistant program we are launching is the perfect blend of classroom instruction and real-world clinical placement, ensuring our graduates will enter the workforce with confidence to go with their in-demand skills.”

Dayne Oertel has been hired by Mid-State to teach the new Dental Assistant program students.

“I’m looking forward to the collaboration between Family Health Center and Mid-State Technical College, and helping our communities,” Oertel said, following the agreement signing ceremony. “The dental assistant is a key component to the dentist’s chair. So, they are going to be hands-on right with the doctor and help with patient assistance,” Oertel added. “So they’re going to be there assisting, to hand instruments, and they’re going to be there to establish a relationship and rapport with the patient.”

Oertel is a registered dental hygienist and has more than 30 years of experience in the dental field. She also has previous experience teaching at the technical college level.
