The Hunt for Wet October

Record rainfall follows September heat wave

BY MIKE WARREN
EDITOR

MARSHFIELD – After record temperatures scorched central Wisconsin throughout much of September, record amounts of rain took their toll on the area in October.

Rain that fell during a 24-hour period spanning Oct. 24 and 25 at the Marshfield Agricultural Research Station broke the record for precipitation. Officials measured 2.4 inches at the Yellowstone Drive weather station Oct. 24, plus an additional 0.09 inches before 7 a.m. Oct. 25, for a 24-hour total of 3.1 inches. That shattered the previous record of 1.59 inches established Oct. 24, 1975.

Marshfield was certainly not alone. Officials in Vesper recorded a two-day total of 4.65 inches, while Stratford picked up 4.11 inches. Portions of Clark County exceeded the four-inch mark as well.

"Along the north end of the county, kinda along the Highway 29 area, it was anywhere between three to four-and-a-half inches," said Clark County Emergency Management Director Jason Thornton, during our Oct. 26 conversation, as much of the rain was ending across the area. "And I think that four, four-and-a-half inches is probably pretty standard throughout the whole county."

Thornton said all that rain led to sporadic flash flooding, which washed out town roads in many parts of the county.

State to host small community forums

FOR HUB CITY TIMES

CENTRAL WISCONSIN -- Over half of Wisconsin's cities and villages are communities of fewer than 2,500 residents. Despite their large number, these small communities represent a wide variety of geographic and economic areas within the state. Because of their small size, these municipalities have unique issues and needs that are often very different from those of larger communities.

A series of Small Community Forums will provide resources and a venue for everyone who cares about the future of Wisconsin's small communities. The forums bring together residents, community leaders, elected officials, business leaders and civic-minded individuals to share best practices and discuss strategies to address the unique opportunities and challenges facing our communities.

The twelfth annual series of Small Community Forums will be held in four locations in October and November, to facilitate dialogue between small communities, address common issues, network, share best practices, and identify strategies to address shared concerns. Representatives from many state and regional resource partners will be on hand to connect with attendees and provide guidance on specific concerns introduced during the sessions.

These forums are about sharing ideas, learning and networking concerning the health and future of rural Wisconsin. People interested in small town and rural Wisconsin are invited to attend, including those involved in quality-of-life issues, business, government, education, the non-profit sector, civic and community development.

The fee for each Forum is $20, which includes materials, morning coffee and light refreshments, and lunch.

The series will come to Wood County on Tuesday, Nov. 14, from 7:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. at the Pittsville Community Hall, 5291 Third Ave., Pittsville. To register, visit <https://www.wiruralpartners.org/event-5418370>.

The series is hosted by local organizations and agencies, like Centergy, and statewide organizations, including: Create Wisconsin; League of Wisconsin Municipalities; UW-Madison, Division of Extension; USDA Rural Development Wisconsin; Wisconsin Downtown Action Council; Wisconsin Main Street Program, WEDC; Wisconsin Rural Partners; Office of Rural Prosperity, WEDC.

"The Township of Hoard, north of Owen and Curtiss on the north end of the county, they had a lot of damage up there," Thornton said. "They had actually one road washed out (Oct. 24) when all the rain kinda hit, and we actually had a vehicle drive into that washout before they could get the road closed off. Thankfully the person involved didn't get injured or anything like that," he added.

Nearly a week's worth of steady rain sent the creek over its banks Oct. 25 at RiverEdge Golf Course just southwest of Marshfield.

Courtesy of RiverEdge Golf Course & Banquet Facility had a lot of road damage," Thornton told us. "County Highway M over by Rock Dam, we got a spot there that, when we get a lot of rain, it's actually the watershed runoff from Mead Lake, so when we get a lot of rain there, that floods all the time. And then, I know County Highway P, kinda between Owen and Curtiss there, that was closed (Oct. 24)."

Thornton said parts of Clark County were also not immune from the brief but heavy hail storms which hit the region the morning of Oct. 25.

"Just north of Neillsville we had golf ball-sized hail," he told Hub City Times. "But it was weird because it was a mile north of Neillsville, but they didn't get anything in Neillsville."

Marshfield was hit with two rounds of quarter- and golf ball-sized hail Oct. 24, as part of intense weather systems that rolled across Wisconsin, prompting severe thunderstorm and flash flood warnings.

The volatile three-day deluge followed 2.08 inches which fell in Marshfield Oct. 13. The Marshfield Ag Station recorded rain a dozen different days in October. That compares with seven in May, eight in June, thirteen in July, ten in August and twelve in September – a month which also ushered in record heat.

Two Marshfield records were broken over the Labor Day weekend.

The 90-degree reading Sept. 2 did not break the record high for the date of 94, set in 1929. However, 98-degree readings Sept. 3 broke the old record of 94 established back in 1929. And the 93 degrees we experienced Sept. 4 was enough to surpass the previous record of 92 established in 1925. The record-high temperature for Sept. 5 – 93 degrees in 1922 – is still on top, after this year's reading of 89 fell short.

The 98 degrees on Sept. 3 goes in the record books as the hottest September temperature since weather has been recorded at the Marshfield Agricultural Research Station, starting in 1912. That mark is closely followed by 97-degree readings on four separate days and years. They are Sept. 6, 1922, Sept. 7, 1985, Sept. 8, 1933 and Sept. 10, 1931.

There were no angels in the outfield on this day, after the Heavens opened up and dropped over three inches of rain on parts of central Wisconsin, including the softball diamonds at Fairgrounds Park in Marshfield. Mike Warren photo

Outside of Labor Day weekend, the only other time Marshfield went above 90 was Aug. 23, when the Ag Station topped out at 94 degrees.

Excluding the 90-plus-degree days, Marshfieldians saw the mercury reach or exceed 80 degrees 51 times between Memorial Day weekend and early October, including several prolonged heat waves.

High temperatures ranged between 83 and 89 for seven straight days from May 30 through June 5.

Hub City hit the same temperature ranges for six consecutive days June 19-24.

The City in the Center endured two eight-day stays above 80 between June 27 and July 4 and July 22-28, when highs ranged from 81 to 88.
