Remembering Marilyn

Hardacre's influence rolls on four years after death

BY THOM GERRETSEN
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

MARSHFIELD -- It's been four years since Marshfield lost its most influential modern-day leader. It's just a blink-of-an-eye in the overall scheme of things, but Marilyn Hardacre's death on Nov. 29, 2019 at age 84 sometimes seems like an eternity to me.

I feel bad that she's not around to celebrate the 20th anniversary of her crowning accomplishment; a boulevard that later led to faster and more efficient highway connections to much of Wisconsin and beyond. No one can really measure the benefits of what she did.

If you want to know why I'm such a fan of Hardacre -- well, timing is everything. It was blind luck that I started a new reporting job at WDLB Radio just 10 days after she became Marshfield's mayor in the spring of 1978. It gave me a front row seat to virtually all her accomplishments -- and many of her passions behind them. We talked so candidly during our near-daily meetings in her City Hall office.

The ways Hardacre grew into numerous roles on both the city-and-state levels helped fuel my knowledge of Wisconsin's governing and leadership systems. That helped me play my own larger roles in whatever success I've achieved in my own career.

A painting of Marilyn Hardacre, portraying her view into the mini-park that carries her name and celebrates her legacy on South Central Avenue at Fifth Street. This was photographed as the sun was rising Nov. 21. Thom Gerretsen photo

Many people have pointed to a vast array of local assets that still carry her fingerprints. Starting the Leadership Marshfield leader training program. Creation of the city's Dairyfest celebration. Tireless efforts to grow the local business climate during her 8 years as mayor (1978-86) and during the following 11 years as she led the Marshfield Area Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

And she kept going. Hardacre lent her good name to raising funds that built the Marshfield Area YMCA and the Hope Lodge home-away-from-home for families of cancer patients. The American Cancer Society couldn't keep Hope Lodge going through the COVID-19 pandemic, but Marshfield Clinic Health System is bringing it back with a new name of "Cattails Place."

Have you ever thought about how much of this may never have been built if Hardacre's leadership did not achieve the millions of dollars invested in new and improved streets?

You may not recall how many Marshfield streets had rougher-and-outdated asphalt in the 1970s -- and some were gravel. In addition, we're now seeing many of those new streets of the 1980s and '90s needing major repairs or rebuilding. It's a stark reminder that nothing lasts forever: BuilderSpace.com says even the most properly-maintained city streets last 30-50 years depending on traffic, weather, etc.

Honoring Marshfield's 150th

Marshfield 150 for 150: Donald W. Schnitzler

NOMINATED BY HIS CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN, WRITTEN BY KIMBERLY ZIMMERMANN

"We need not go to college, or even high school...Each of us can learn that the real riches of life are the eternal reward of those who learn to love God and do His will, and who cherish the liberty of other people to worship Him as they see fit." Robert E. Emery delivered those words as the keynote speaker as he addressed Donald Schnitzler's 9th grade class during the Purdy Junior High School commencement ceremony in 1948. Whether or not this message influenced Don, the words flawlessly describe how he spent his life in honoring his hometown of Marshfield.

Don was born March 11, 1933 to Roman and Eleanor (Bores) Schnitzler. As a child, he attended Sacred Heart Parochial School followed by Purdy Junior High School. After, he married Gloria Spencer on October 15, 1952. They lived in Janesville until returning to Marshfield in 1955 where Don managed and soon after owned the Standard Service Station located at the intersection of Fourth and Maple.

Over the years, Donnie used Don's Standard Station and U-Haul, not only to support his growing family, but also to serve his community. When not turning wrenches, he spent his efforts getting to know his customers, helping him best meet their individual needs. Families experiencing economic hardships found their bills to be unexpectedly lower than what was typical for such repairs. Doctors who were frequently on call found their driveways plowed earlier than others to ensure they were able to make it to the hospital quickly in the event of an emergency. On a few occasions, he loaned his personal vehicles to out-of-town strangers who were otherwise stranded due to vehicle breakdowns. Through his simple actions, he demonstrated true respect and value for those he encountered.

His philanthropic efforts certainly did not stop at the doors of his service station. Don leveraged his relationships within the community along with his influential personality and tenacious drive to serve the City of Marshfield as a whole. During his service with the Knights of Columbus, the Elks Lodge, and the Fraternal Order of the Eagles he embodied the motto, "Leave No Neighbor Behind." Donnie sought opportunities to extend scholarships, financially lessen the burdens of unexpected hardships, and aid and support mothers and babies after pregnancy. He was ready to present any worthy opportunities to his fellow Knights, Elks, and Eagles, knowing that the support of many could help all. Although he took pride in his accomplishments within the organizations, his altruistic nature caused him to rarely accept recognition.

Donnie's consistent service to others continued outside the confines of his business, religious, and civic organizations. He attended daily mass to pray for causes and people near to him. When friends and acquaintances experienced illnesses or injuries, Donnie could be counted on to visit regularly. In time, he became a familiar face as an usher for funerals at St. Johns, leading the Rosary prior to burials, and visiting many at local nursing homes. Regardless of circumstances, Donnie showed up for all he could during their times of need.

In 1998, when a Madison-based group challenged the City of Marshfield's ownership of the statue of Jesus Christ in Prashak Wayside Park, Don spearheaded the effort to establish the Henry A. Prashak Memorial Foundation. The foundation raised funds to purchase the statue and surrounding property and provide an endowment for ongoing maintenance of the site. The legal battles ended in November of 2000, and today, the foundation owns and maintains the statue and surrounding property.

"We need not go to college, or even high school...Each of us can learn that the real riches of life are the eternal reward of those who learn to love God and do His will, who cherish the liberty of other people to worship Him as they see fit." Donnie served the City of Marshfield through his love of God and his eagerness to serve His will. He sought opportunities to encourage people to become the best versions of themselves by supporting them through hardships. His impact and legacy within our community are everlasting and broad, and for those reasons, he deserves to be among the city's 150 recognized people.

The dancers and choreographers work each week in their regular classical ballet classes, as well as Sundays leading up to the final days before the performance. Meanwhile, there are many parent volunteers and friends that handle the behind-the-scenes jobs like costumes, lighting, makeup, and publicity to ensure that everything runs seamlessly. The week before the performance, dancers spend each night at Marshfield High School's auditorium running and re-running their pieces to get a feel for the stage.

On opening day, a strict schedule is followed to make sure everything runs accordingly. Dancers do their warm-up traditions and make last-minute makeup touch ups before getting in their places for backstage tours. Backstage tours run through stations led by the dancers that give audience members a chance to see all the pieces and parts it takes to execute this performance. Each station follows a path that, in the end, leads to the stage where soloists are standing as statues, coming alive with just a touch and performing a sneak peak of their solo.

When asked about her favorite aspect of "The Nutcracker," Conrad replied, "I enjoy seeing the younger students from the studio come and do the backstage tours and get to see what they have to look forward to."

Right before the first show begins, dancers get into their places, anxiously waiting for the music to start and for the curtain to open, signifying – as they like to call it – the beginning of Christmas.

This year's shows are Saturday, Dec. 9 at 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. and Sunday, Dec. 10 at 2 p.m. Tickets are available for $12 online at <https://www.danceticketing.com/28219/> and at the door at Marshfield High School.
