Two-day “Northwoods Fungtion” slated at Northern Waters Resort and Casino

BY NEWS-REVIEW STAFF

WATERSMEET, Mich. — Northern Waters Resort and Casino will be offering a two-day exposition to teach people how to identify and prepare wild foraged mushrooms, as well as a “Food Truck Fun Day.”

The casino has scheduled “Northwoods Fungtion: Forest to Fork” for the weekend of Sept. 14-15, a two-day event dedicated to the world of wild mushrooms.

Led by local mycologist Emily Mae King and Chef Mitch Below, participants will embark on guided foraging expeditions and experience hands-on workshops, along with a wild-foraged dinner.

A board member of the Wisconsin Mycological Society, King has spent her years building connections and promoting intergenerational support geared towards raising a resourceful family with local natural resources. She has also been the director at Terri’s Treehouse Early Learning Outdoor Immersion Center in Woodruff for 19 years and facilitates for the Northstate Mycology Club.

Chef Below is a seasoned culinary artist and dedicated woodsman with 17 years of experience. He says that his interest in wood-fired cooking and deep-rooted connection to the Midwest have shaped his unique culinary philosophy. During the weekend activities, Chef Below will be collaborating with the Sugar Bush Restaurant to deliver a local foraged dinner on Saturday, Sept. 14.

Among the topics brought forth by King and Chef Below will be how to increase the Vitamin D in mushroom finds, making Chaga coffee, mushroom jerky, and even soother salves.

In addition to the foraging and culinary experience, there will be the chance to explore local vendor offerings, including mushroom tools, grow kits and artisanal products.

Following the workshops will be lectures from keynote speaker, Janet Bowen, who will discuss how fungi benefit the gut microbiome.

Bowen has worked in the medical field for over 28 years, working as both a registered nurse and a nurse practitioner. She has been studying more natural ways to improve health and whole-body wellness since then.

When reserving a spot on the excursion, guests can receive $15 worth of casino free play.

Select the 2-day bundle and stay onsite with 20% off at the Dancing Eagles Hotel offering smartly appointed rooms with pool, sauna and hot tub.

Registration and further information can be found by visiting <https://www.eventbrite.com/e/984135835777?aff=oddtcreator>.
