White deer captivating audiences

Two spotted, one missing

BY JOHN FAUCHER
STAFF REPORTER

NEW LONDON – Two all-white whitetail deer have been the talk of the town lately. They're often spotted in the field south of Beckert Road in the Township of Mukwa. On any given evening a half dozen or more cars and trucks pull off the side of the road to view the herd of deer in the field, sometimes crowned by not one, but two all-white whitetail deer.

Beckert Road is the town line between the City of New London and Mukwa. Tyson Foods owns the fields and John Mares farms the fields.

"We watch them right out the window from the living room chair, you can see them come out in that field," said Gary Burmiester. "They stand out like a spark plug. People drive-by, stop and take pictures all the time."

Burmiester says both deer aren't always together. Most of the time there is just the one, but occasionally you'll see them both out at once.

On Sunday night, Anthony Brandt and Josh Muskevitch of Hortonville were headed home from a walleye outing on the Wolf River and saw both bucks 20-yards off the road near the intersection of Beckert Road and Wyman Street. It was right at dark.

An all-white whitetail deer stands in a field south of Beckert Road in New London on April 2. There have been two frequently seen in the field but one was believed to be hit by a car on April 7.

"You could see them plain as day," said Muskevitch.

He and Brandt are among hundreds who have seen the two deer in those fields.

Jim St. Marie and his son Michael own 140 acres just a couple 40 acres south of the field. They began seeing the bucks last year.

"There were definitely two of them," said St. Marie.

There's an 8-point and then there's a fork buck [as of last fall], he said.

The St. Maries photographed the fork buck in June of 2024 on trail cameras, and Michael took a video of the 8-point from 30-yards away while bow hunting in the fall.

In Wisconsin, albino and all-white deer are protected under NR 10.02 and may not be harvested.

According to the UW-Stevens Point Museum of Natural History, albino deer are rare. They have pink eyes, noses, ears and hooves. Their birth rate could range from 1 in 20,000 to 1 in 100,000.

White deer with brown spots, known as piebald deer, are still rare but a bit more common. The current law does not protect a piebald deer.

Recently the UW-Stevens Point Museum of Natural History attained a rare true albino buck that was hit by a car and was received through the Wisconsin Department of

Switching sports conferences

Not so easy for Clintonville

BY BERT LEHMAN
STAFF REPORTER

CLINTONVILLE – The Clintonville Board of Education heard the pros and cons of the possibility of the Clintonville School District switching to a different conference for sports, as well as the challenges it would have to overcome to make such a move.

The topic was discussed in detail at the board's March 31 board meeting.

"There's been some frustration from parents that have gotten in contact with me about their daughters or their sons coming home and they're just sick of just getting beat night and night and night again, and they don't want to play athletics," said Troy Kuhn, Clintonville superintendent.

Kuhn said he asked Shaun Liesch, the activities director for the Clintonville School District, what he thought about the district switching conferences for sports.

"We talked about it, because it's not just always about winning and losing," Kuhn said.

If the district would explore moving to a different conference, Kuhn said the "ideal option" would be to joining the CWC (Central Wisconsin Conference). This would mean the district would compete against Weyauwega-Fremont, Shiocton, Manawa, Amherst, Bonduel, and Wittenberg-Birnamwood.

One of the positives of such a move, would be less travel, Kuhn said.

Another positive would be Clintonville would be competing against students of the same demographics, such a poverty level and needs of the district.

Kuhn said a negative of such a move would be the fact that the CWC does not offer all the sports that Clin-tonville's current conference offers. For example, CWC does not offer girls soccer.

"There would be a couple of other things that we'd really have to put our thinking caps on and say, 'How would this work?,' Kuhn said.

Kuhn said the coaches in the district were asked their opinion on switching conferences, and some coaches were adamant about not switching. They said they like the tough competition, and the athletes realize they are playing against "high-level" opponents.

"Even though they lose, it makes their program better," Kuhn said.

Other coaches said they struggle to get students to play sports because the students know that the team doesn't have a chance to win a conference championship, Kuhn said.

If the district would want to pursue switching conferences,

Hundreds protest in Stevens Point

BY KATIE SCHIMKE
STEVENS POINT – An estimated 700 people protested on Main Street near and around the Stevens Point Post Office on April 5 as part of the National "Hands Off" protest, a movement against the current presidential administration. The "Hands Off" protests appeared across Wisconsin, from Eagle River to Madison where it was estimated over 10,000 participated in protests around the state capitol.

Paper mill changes ownership

BY KATIE SCHIMKE
STEVENS POINT—The Stevens Point paper mill will soon begin the process of changing ownership. Pixelle Specialty Solutions has operated the Stevens Point paper mill since 2020. Ahlstrom announced on April 3 that an agreement has been executed to acquire the Stevens Point facility. This transaction will be financed through a $600 million senior-secured financing package, with excess funds available for general corporate purposes.

Ahlstrom is based in Finland, but operates in more than 20 countries.

The Stevens Point paper mill has turned over ownership several times in the last two decades, prior to Pixelle's ownership beginning in 2020, the mill was owned by Verso Paper since 2012, then previously NewPage began ownership in 2007, and a handful of owners before that in the mill's 107 year long history.

The organizational change is expected to take effect on May 1, 2025. Pixelle Specialty Solutions said they are committed to working with Ahlstrom to support a smooth transition for employees and customers.

Natural Resources. The museum will include the rare addition to its collection of mounts.

In the meantime, if people want to see the living versions they'll have to drive down Beckert Road and hope for the best.

Lee Besaw, who lives on Bean City Road, first saw one of the bucks last year across from his house in John Rowls' field near Most Precious Blood Cemetery. He saw it again last Wednesday off Beckert Road on his way home.

Besaw called the newspaper and a photographer was dispatched.

That day, last Wednesday, about a dozen other cars stopped along the road to watch and take photos.

Two traveling custodians for the City of New London have parked their vehicle along the road and watched the deer during their lunch breaks a few times.

"It's kind of a highlight of our day," said one of them.

St. Marie explained the deer have definitely made their presence known in the area.

We've seen them throughout the property bow hunting. Obviously, they stan right out. "You can see them coming from a mile away," he said.

"The one has been in Casey's pit off Bean City Road near the cemetery. He's been as far south as us, I'm sure he's been over on Manske's Dairy Farm near Bean City Ballroom. He's been around," said St. Marie.

Dale Stiebs, a retired Tyson Foods worker, has seen them often in the field on his way fishing or checking trap lines.

"I saw one standing out on the lawn in front of the high school Monday morning," he said.

That same morning, April 7, Doug Dey who lives on County Trunk W saw one dead near the intersection of County W and Lyons Road.

"It was one of them," Dey said in a text exchange Monday night with the Waupaca County Post. "That sucks, I was looking forward to seeing horn development this summer," he said.

Stiebs said he saw one in the field along Beckert Road again Monday night, April 7. "So I know that at least one is still alive."

PUBLISHER’S LETTER

Little Bursts Of Happiness

Dear Reader,

In a world bustling with deadlines, distractions, and the unrelenting hum of routine, it's easy to overlook the extraordinary in the ordinary. Yet, it's in those fleeting moments — at the checkout line, on a flight, or in a quick business transaction — where we hold the power to create something profound: a little burst of happiness.

It doesn't take much. A smile, a kind word, or a genuine question like, "How's your day going?" can transform an interaction from transactional to meaningful. Sometimes, though, a small token — a physical reminder of goodwill — can spark a ripple effect of positivity. My favorite? A $2 bill.

The $2 bill is iconic, rare enough to feel special but common enough to be accessible. Handing it to someone with a simple message — "This is for luck, and I hope it brings you good fortune" — does more than exchange paper. It says, I see you. You matter. I've passed them to retail clerks who look weary from hours of scanning barcodes, to pilots who ensure our safe passage through the skies, and to business associates navigating the grind. The reactions vary — some are puzzled, others light up with surprise — but almost always, there's a smile.

What happens next is where the magic begins. That $2 bill becomes a conversation starter, a keepsake, or maybe even a nudge toward dreaming bigger. It's not about the monetary value; it's about the gesture, the reminder that hope and good fortune are still within reach. The beauty of these small acts is how they inspire us to try harder, be better, and dream more. They remind us that life, for all its unpredictability, holds space for kindness. And perhaps, with enough of these little bursts of happiness, we can create a world where the ordinary feels extraordinary.

So, the next time you find yourself face-to-face with someone in the course of your day, take a moment. Pass along a smile, a kind word, or even a $2 bill. You never know how far that spark of hope might travel or how brightly it might shine.

CONFERENCE

Kuhn said the district would need to communicate with the schools in its current conference. He added that now would be the perfect time to switch conferences, if that is the direction the district wants to go, because Fox Valley Lutheran just dropped out of the current conference, so now there is an odd number of schools in the conference.

Kuhn acknowledged that the CWC has expressed hesitation about Clintonville joining the conference because many years ago Clintonville was going to join the CWC, but backed out at the last minute.

"The CWC, they have not forgot that, especially many of the principals that were there at that time, and they're still like, 'You wanted to come last time and you pulled the plug on us and we worked over a year on that, so if you're going to do it this time, we going to make you do X, Y and Z before we even consider bringing you here,'" Kuhn said.

Even though Clintonville would be the largest school in the CWC if it switched to that conference, Kuhn said it would not dominate because the current schools in that conference have solid sports programs.

"So, there's a whole bunch of different opinions," Kuhn said.

Liesch added that if Clintonville would join the CWC, it would want to be in the CWC-East. The CWC wants eight teams in the CWC-East, and there are currently eight teams there, so one team would need to be displaced.

"From what I gather, nobody wants to move," Liesch said.

He added that any request from the district to switch to the CWC would have to go through the WIAA, and be approved by a conference realignment taskforce.

"Just because we would request for realignment doesn't necessarily mean it would be given to us, even if we have support from one side or the other side," Liesch said.

Liesch said based on feedback he has received, Clintonville does not have the support needed to switch to a different conference.

Ava's Golden Paw moved in behind Shopko Optical and aims to provide Waupaca residents with healthy dog and cat food options. Emily Doud Photo

New pet shop sells healthy foods

BY EMILY DOUD
STAFF REPORTER

WAUPACA – A new pet shop moved in behind Shopko Optical that is aiming to give pet owners a place to find food that is locally sourced and made within the United States.

Ava's Golden Paw Pet Supplies at 103 Western Ave. North, is giving consumers another choice when it comes to buying their pet food and supplies in Waupaca.

Tiffany Mucha, the manager of Ava's Golden Paw, said she was working in pet retail when she was approached to help manage the new store in Waupaca.

JoAnne Thornell, the owner of Ava's Golden Paws, is no stranger to business ownership with also owning Marley's Smoke and Vape Shop with locations in Appleton, Oshkosh and Green Bay.

Thornell named the shops after her two children, with Marley being her oldest daughter and Ava being the youngest.

Mucha said Thornell had bought the shop and was thinking of ideas of how to use the space, eventually deciding to create a pet food shop that focused on holistic, limited-ingredient types of foods for pets.

They offer Wisconsin brands including Stella and Chewy, American Natural Premium, Tucker's, Vital Essentials and Herb Smith.

"We just definitely believe in the limited ingredient is a better food," Mucha said. "You're not going to have all those fillers and the yucky stuff and we definitely strive for as much American made in anything."

Mucha said they have cat food as well and they are hoping to expand their small-animal section with the eventual addition of crickets, which are used to feed lizards.

"In my previous retail experience, we did not have that because that wasn't in high demand, but it seems to be out

Amherst gets Packer grant

"While many of the participating players are multi-sport athletes, flag football is also opening the door for girls who are still discovering their athletic niche to compete. Since 14 other states already have girls flag as a sanctioned high school sport, it is our goal to have Wisconsin join this list soon. Five new school positions suggested

Help for students slipping behind

BY BERT LEHMAN
STAFF REPORTER

CLINTONVILLE – The administrative team for the Clintonville School District has proposed to the Clintonville Board of Education that the district add five fulltime employees to the district.

The proposal was made at the board's March 31 meeting, and recommended the following positions be added to the district: program support teacher to be paid for with funds from Fund 17; one reading interventionist for grades 4K-5th grade and one math interventionist for grades 6-12, with both positions paid with funds from Fund 10; and two fulltime counselors for grades 4K-12, with both paid with funds from a Department of Public Instruction grant.

No action was taken by the board on the proposal recommendation, except for approving the addition of a program support teacher, which was a separate item on the agenda.

During the discussion, Clintonville Superintendent Troy Kuhn told the board that the district's administrative team had been engaged in a needs assessment for the district, particularly what students need and if the district has the staff to support those needs. He said the assessment showed that the district needed to add 10 positions to meet it's needs.

"I looked at the admin team and said, I'm not bringing 10 new positions to the board, that's not happening," Kuhn said.

After continuing to review the needs of the district, Kuhn said the administrative team wanted to inform the board about some of its findings, as well as solutions to meet the needs of the district.

Assessment findings

Madalyn Simonis, Clintonville Elementary School principal, said when she started as principal last year, the district had five fulltime literacy interventionists, but it currently has only three fulltime literacy interventionists.

"I went from having three at the elementary, down to just one," Simonis said.

She added that the new curriculum is working.

"We see the data and we see improvements, but we still need to support our teachers," Simonis said.

She said she would like to see the district add a reading interventionist.

Kuhn told the board that according to the data, there is a high number of kindergarten students who are proficient or above, but as they progress to 8th grade, there are less students who are proficient, basically not keeping up.

Clintonville Middle School Principal Britney Dobratz said the middle school does not have a math interventionist, but it had one in prior years. She said she would like to the district to add a math support position to work with grades 6 through 12. The person would be working with students in the classroom.

Scores show the middle school has a good report card, but Dobratz acknowledged that how the scores are calculated have changed.

"I don't want to just say, 'Hey, we have really good data, we're doing great, lets just keep doing that,'" Dobratz said. "I think we need a 6-12 person to support all the kids, too."

Clintonville High School Principal James Blashe added that the number of high school students in the district who are at a basic level or below for math is high when compared to other districts. He said the district doesn't have any type of math intervention for high school students.

He added that some changes will be made for the next school year to get some help for students who need extra help.

Mental health

The administrative team also addressed student mental health and absenteeism.

Blashe said the district is averaging around 200 students being absent from school each day.

He said one recommendation would be for the district to have one school counselor for every 250 students in the district. He said the high school has 400 students and only one counselor.

Simonis said that when the district seeks counseling help from local medical organizations, it is virtual appointments only.

"We are grossly understaffed in our school counseling department," Simonis said. "Two additional counselors would do our students a lot of good."

She added, "It hurts us to put this data on here for you guys and our community members, but it's the reality of where we are right now."

Kuhn addressed the question of what happened to the positions that are being requested.

"The best and worst thing that happened to school districts was COVID," Kuhn said.

Not sure of the exact amount, but Kuhn said he thought the Clintonville School District received an additional $7 million over a three-year period because of COVID.

"That money was dedicated not just for health and safety of students and staff, but also dedicated to catching kids up from the loss of learning because of COVID," Kuhn said.

During that time, Kuhn said the district adopted a co-teaching philosophy. This had the district hiring special education teachers and para-professionals for every grade so co-teaching could take place. The district also had instructional coaches, as well as multiple interventionists at every level.

"When COVID money went away, it was, I'll say, our job, to figure out who stays and who goes because we don't have that extra money sitting there anymore," Kuhn said. "We proved that it can work if we have the people. But without passing local referendums time and time and time again, we can't afford the personnel to do that."

He said the positions that are being requested existed in the past because of the COVID funds the district received.

"Now that they're (positions) not here, we're seeing that the need that they should exist again," Kuhn said.

Schley wins, two write-ins elected

CLINTONVILLE – Jeannie Schley, who has served on the Clintonville Common Council in the past, was reelected to the council, as well as two write-ins being elected.

Schley defeated incumbent Tom Lederer in District 4, in the only contested council race on the April 1 spring ballot. Schley received 146 votes, while Lederer received 114 votes.

Two council districts that did not have any candidates on the ballots, were filled through the election with write-in votes.

In District 1, incumbent Aimee Ebert, who did not file candidacy paperwork, so she was not on the ballot, but she did receive 10 write-in votes, which was enough to get her elected. She has accepted the council seat.

District 3 also didn't have any candidates on the ballot, but Thomas Behnken received the most write-in votes. He has accepted the council seat for District 3.

Incumbents Tammy Strey-Hirt in District 2 and Greg Rose in District 5 were each elected unopposed.

Board approves program support teacher

New position for special education program

BY BERT LEHMAN
STAFF REPORTER

CLINTONVILLE – The Clintonville Board of Education approved the addition of a program support teacher to its staff to serve the district's special education program.

The approval came when the board met March 31.

During the discussion, board member Clint Barkow asked for verification that the program support teacher would be a new position in the district, and that the district has never had such a position before.

Clintonville Superintendent Troy Kuhn said that was correct.

"A lot of this has to do with just oversight in certain areas, particularly making sure that IEPs are correctly written, and that not only what is in the IEP (individualized education program), the goals are correct and that we are properly meeting what is required in those IEPs, in addition to professional development and a lot of the other things," Kuhn said.

Kuhn added that "the majority of the district's special development is now happening within the walls of the Clintonville School District because we have highly qualified people at Clintonville."

Barkow asked if the position would be fulltime.

Kuhn said it would be fulltime.

"We're asking that we have this position because that's what Clintonville needs at this time," Kuhn said.

A library for a river town

Architecture inspired by waterfront

BY JAMES CARD
EDITOR

FREMONT – The plans for the future Tri-County Library and Community Center were presented in the Fremont Village Hall gymnasium on March 27. Approximately 60 people attended to study the blueprints and the graphic renderings of what the building will look like.

A representative from JLG Architects presented a slide-show with images of fishing villages, boat docks, seawalls, piers, and wooden pylons—familiar sights along the Wolf River.

“The design team studied fishing villages and waterfront communities to understand the design inspirations and commonalities that we can use to design this project,” she said.

Library director Mellissa Krause went through the timeline that led up to this milestone. She remarked on the realities of running a library: rising technology costs, JLG Architects took inspiration from fishing villages and waterfront communities to create their vision for the Tri-County Library and Community Center.

The new library will have multiple rooms and spaces, including a patio and an outdoor play space for children.

inflation, and expanded staffing and hours. The pandemic also changed the role of community library and they adapted. The demand for computer usage is extremely high and they only have three computers. “We’ve needed to update our current facility which is 30 years old. To meet the demands that the community has requested in community surveys and feedback—this is where this project began, with the recognition that we’ve outgrown this space, we’ve outgrown these walls and the community is demanding different things of us,” said Krause.

Krause went over the key points of the project: the grant of $4.25 million is being supplemented with an $82,000 donation from the Friends of the Neuschafer Community Library (and of that, $23,000 was given by an anonymous donor). This is for the land the structure will be built upon. There will be no direct tax increase as it is federally funded.

Also there is a focus on sustainability for the long-term

Easter egg hunts

WEYAUWEGA – The Weyauwega Police Department is hosting an Easter egg hunt at 411 W. High St on April 12. Check in at 10 a.m. and the hunting starts at 10:30 am. It is open to children 1 to 10 years old. The hunt will be split into age groups. RSVP to 715-802-3769 to win a special prize. Dollar General Market in Weyauwega is co-sponsoring the event and Rustic Java will be onsite selling coffee and treats.

Also, St. Paul Fremont will host an Easter egg hunt at 107 Tustin Rd in Fremont on Saturday April 12 at 10 a.m.

Zastrow to manage Weyauwega bank

WEYAUWEGA – Premier Community Bank has expanded Mandy Zastrow leadership roles to manage the Weyauwega branch, while continuing as the branch manager of the Fremont branch.

“Mandy has been a consistent leader and mentor for the Weyauwega staff since the day the branch opened, offering her skills in training and leadership along with supporting community efforts,” said Robin Christian, Senior Vice President of Retail.

Zastrow joined Premier Community Bank in September 2012 and previously managed the Iola branch. Her banking career started in 1997. “I’m excited to take on this new opportunity and continue supporting both the Fremont and Weyauwega branches,” said Zastrow.

Premier Community Bank is headquartered in Marion and have offices in Shawano, Pulaski, Waupaca, Weyauwega, Winneconne, Fremont, Iola, Manawa, Tigerton and Bear Creek.

and one design element was the addition of south-facing solar panels to power the building.

When asked if there was a chance that the budget cutters in Washington D.C. might axe this project and leave local taxpayers on the hook, Krause said she consulted with their grant administrator multiple times and this seemed very unlikely as this grant was awarded and already in the pipeline well before the current presidential administration took office.

The facility will have a patio and community garden, an outdoor children’s play area, and inside there will be a multipurpose room, a room for seniors, a living room-like area and numerous other rooms for study, tele-health meetings and conferences.

McMahon Associates are the project engineers and construction will start in early June and will be finished by late September 2026.

Schustek stays in charge of board

BY EMILY DOUD
STAFF REPORTER

IOLA – The Village of Iola board president seat was contested for the spring election with incumbent Jennifer Schustek coming out on top April 1.

The numbers came in at 279 votes for Schustek and 207 votes for challenger Mike Richberg.

Schustek was first elected as board president in 2021, which was the only seat open at the time. She said her leadership skills and love of Iola has helped her in her role as board president, assisting with accomplishments such as fixing the Riverwalk, updating the village welcome sign as well as work on Chet Krause Legacy Park and Rosie’s Paw Park.

Schustek said she has a lot of gratitude for the voters of Iola to show up and making their voices heard and engaging in the democratic process.

“I am deeply grateful to have been chosen once again to serve as your village board president. It is an honor, and I look forward to continuing this important work over the next two years,” Schustek said. “While we may not all share the same views, I want every resident to know that I am here to represent all of Iola. My door remains open, and I welcome honest, respectful dialogue as we work together toward a stronger and more unified future.”

Schustek has a full schedule as she continues her work in the village, with the arrival of goats to take care of the buckthorn on the Riverwalk and continuing beautification efforts within the village itself.

She said she is also assisting in the creation of a vacant building ordinance as well as exploring options to enhance Taylor Field with new lighting, shelters and renovating the baseball diamond.

She said she also hopes to create a winter ice skating rink and getting more art around Iola.

“We’re also looking into adding murals around the village as a way to showcase local creativity, brighten up public spaces and celebrate our community’s identity,” said Schustek.

The challenger, Richberg, who moved to Iola in 2020, was previously a resident of Illinois and moved here with his wife wanting to find a new home prior to retirement, as they had grown tired of Illinois.

He is a member of the American Legion and joined the Iola Fire Department in 2024.

“Most importantly, I want to thank every person that supported me during the campaign including my wife Jennifer, my greatest supporter. I am very proud and deeply humbled by of the number of votes I received and I was very happy to see the high voter turnout. I’d like to think both the overall turnout and votes I received indicate a re-engagement in our local politics,” Richberg said in a statement to the newspaper. “I will remain involved in village politics to stay informed about what is happening in our community and do my part to ensure the village board always acts in the best interest of the Iola village residents. A run for president in 2027 is not off the table.”

Paris trip: très magnifique

Jet-setting seniors return

BY EMILY DOUD
STAFF REPORTER

MANAWA – Members of the senior class of 2025 returned home from their class trip from Paris with a new life experience under their belt as they head out into the world.

Jeff Bortle, the dean of students and a math teacher at Little Wolf High School, planned the trip to Paris, having planned trips for middle school students prior to COVID.

About eight months ago he approached Ryan Peterson, the district administrator for the Manawa school district, about planning trips for high school seniors.

Bortle said as soon as he started planning the trip the parents of younger students began asking if it would still be an offering when their child reached senior status.

Bortle was present at a January at the Manawa school board meeting where he asked the board for permission to start planning future senior class trips so as to give students and parents a chance to save up for the senior class excursions.

The first international trip was to Paris, where 46 students and parents embarked on the journey where they were able to experience French culture and cuisine.

Bortle said the first stop on the tour was to the top of the Eiffel Tower, with the group being able to see the entirety of the city.

Teaching kids how to use the metro was also a notable experience, Bortle said.

“Many students commented that they want to come back to Europe and they think they would be comfortable doing it on their own,” he said.

They were also able to visit the Notre Dame Cathedral, which has just opened after a fire destroyed part of the famous cathedral in 2019. Bortle said the students really enjoyed the cuisine and the architecture.

“The adventure to explore an area of the world that none of them have been able to see before was what they appreciated the most,” he said.

Bortle said they are in the process of planning the trip for next year, which will most likely be either Paris or Rome.

Obituary Notices

Sherwood, Joni

Joni Lynn Sherwood, née Kadolph of New Market, Alabama (formerly of Weyauwega) graduated from this life on April 1, 2025 while at home surrounded by her family's love.

Born January 16, 1958 in New London, Wisconsin, Joni valiantly fought cancer for the last 15 months of her earthly life while embracing every moment she could, creating lasting memories with her family.

Survived by parents Gordon Carroll Kadolph and Sharon Leah Kadolph née Schroeder, by siblings Kim Kristine Andrist (Darold), Rebecca Ann Gerlach (Dick), Todd Jon Kadolph (Karrie) and Bart William Kadolph (Lindy), by husband of 46 years Peter Elden Sherwood and sons Joshua Elden, Jacob Stephen, Dustin Gordon and Derick Joseph. Mother-in-law to four outstanding women Amanda Larsen Sherwood [Josh], Rachelle Redford Sherwood [Jake], Claire Rockwood Sherwood [Dustin] and Danielle Wagner Sherwood [DJ]. Preceded in death by her grandsons Tyson Joshua and Andrew Michael in addition to her loving parents-in-law, Stephen Elden Sherwood and Shirley Fowles Sherwood. Grandmother to 14, she was loved and appreciated by all who truly knew her.

Joni shared her smile and Christ-centered life with all she encountered, regardless of where she called home. Doing so meant that many considered her friend, family, or a second mom.

The family wishes to express deepest thanks to the unparalleled service and professionalism of the entire staff at the Vanderbilt University Medical Ingram Cancer Center at Cool Springs.

A memorial service celebrating her life will be held on April 19, 2025 at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints meetinghouse at 601 S. Lincoln Avenue in Monett, MO at 11:00am. Arrangements have been entrusted to the care of the Bennett-Wormington Funeral Home.

In lieu of flowers, and in the true spirit of Joni's personality, the family asks that you pay it forward to a noble cause like creating memories with your family or donating to the Packers or Broncos organizations to find better quarterback.

Interment to be held at Spring River Cemetery in Verona, Missouri.

The story

Author Mo Willems' characters come to life in a jazzy musical based on the award-winning, best-selling children's books. An elephant named Gerald and a pig named Piggie are "bestus" friends, but Gerald worries that something could go wrong that would end their friendship. Piggie is not worried at all. She's even happier and more excited than usual because they have been invited to a party hosted by the Squirreles, three singing squirrels who love to have a good time.

The musical draws from scenes in Mo Willems' award-winning picture books including Elephant and Piggie's "We are in a Book!," "Should I Share My Ice Cream?," "I Am Invited to a Party," and "Elephants Cannot Dance." Willems' Elephant & Piggie books have won Theodor Seuss Geisel Medals, Geisel Honors, and were named to Time magazine's Top 10 Children's Books of the Year.

He said he does plan to set up at some local shows this year, but wants most of his business to take place at the store.

"Everyone wants me to get the online store, but at the same time, I'd rather you come in, because if I'm paying to keep a website open, I don't have that interaction with the clientele that I need to survive," O' Bright said.

O' Bright did race locally for two years, but gave it up to spend more time with his family. But fans of local racecar drivers can purchase die-casts of some of their favorite local drivers at O' Bright's store, as he sells custom die-cast cars of some local drivers. And if O' Bright doesn't have the die-cast you are looking for, he will help you try to find it.

"You tell us your price and we're going to do everything we can to make sure that we can get it at that price, if not cheaper," O' Bright said. "And if I can't find one, I'm going to call you up and I'm going to be 100% honest and tell you I cannot touch one for under this price."

With local racetracks about to open for their race season, O' Bright said he is hoping that will lead to increased interest.

"To me this is a dream," he said. "If you don't have a dream, so be it. But if you have a dream, chase it, because it's not going to chase you back. That's my one thing, if I'm doing it, I'm going to be committed 110% on the gas, and I'm not going to lift. I'm not going to let anybody get in my way. This is where I expect myself to be."

Victory Lane Die-Cast is located at 1200 N Shawano Street, Suite 4, in New London. It is open Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

“A fascinating TALE of dedication that will inspire fans and readers alike. If you love football, community and tales of grit, this book is a must-read.”

Senior Spotlight

Keltin Oppen-Pacelli

Pacelli looks for a return trip to Fox Cities Stadium after the 2024 season culminated in the WIAA State Semifinals. A key for the Cardinals going on a run in the playoffs was Pitcher/First Baseman Keltin Oppen.

Keltin, who took the mound in the State Semifinal has been around the game since birth and introduced to the sport by his father Corey Oppen.

The nuances of baseball have kept his interest in the sport, “My favorite part about baseball is the challenge and the depth of the game. You can never know everything. My family legacy has kept me motivated, and it has been fun.”

Keltin sees the strides he has made in on both the physical and intellectual sides of his game, “I am proud of the leaps and bounds I have made since freshman year. I went from being 86 pounds, more introverted, and feeling lost on the mound during starts. To 170 pounds, a person who anyone on the team can talk to and look for advice, and learning an understanding of the mental game.”

A University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point commit, Keltin studies some of the top pitchers in the MLB to give him motivation. “My favorite professionals right now are Jacob DeGrom, Trevor Bauer, and Mason Miller. I like Mason Miller because I can mirror my mechanics to him and I like his story and upbringing, going from D3 to MLB closer.”

Keltin has a heartfelt routine when he walks on the diamond, “I have the same exact routine for every game. I also write the number 40 on the mound before every start, bullpen, at bat, or outing. I do this to honor Jack Brooks a former coach of mine and mentor.”

As Keltin begins his final season at Pacelli he gives a shoutout to coaches and teammates who have helped him along the way,” My dad, Coach Woida, Coach Lemanski, Coach Jack Brooks, the Pacelli baseball coaching staff and any other teammates or coaches that have been involved with my development as a player and person.”

SPASH announces boys lacrosse for 2025-26

STEVENS POINT – The Stevens Point Area Senior High School Athletic Department announced the start of boys lacrosse for the Wisconsin Inter-scholastic Athletic Association tournament series.

The boys’ lacrosse program at SPASH began as a lettering club during the 2015-16 school year.

SPASH will begin the process of hiring a coaching staff for the boys lacrosse program and scheduling games for the 2025-26 school year.

David Hauser, Director of Athletics and Curricular Activities at SPASH, said, “I am truly excited about this enhancement to the sports offerings available to our student body. This not only presents an additional opportunity for student engagement but also reinforces the importance of school-based, education-focused athletics. As we strive to improve our athletic programs, we highlight the extensive benefits that participation can provide.
