Missouri Press Service meeting minutes

The Officers and Directors of the Missouri Press Service held their first meeting of 2016 on February 3, at the DoubleTree Hotel in Jefferson City.

Attending the meeting were President Phil Conger, Vice President Joe May, Secretary-Treasurer Kevin Jones, and Director Vicki Russell, Advertising Director Mark Nienhueser, Missouri Press Executive Director Doug Crews, and Assistant Director Mark Maassen.

Minutes of the September 10, 2015 MPS Board meeting were approved unanimously after a motion by Phil Conger, seconded by Joe May.

2015 financial report and 2016 MPS draft budget were presented by Crews and Maassen, discussed and were approved unanimously after a motion by Vicki Russell, seconded by Phil Conger.

A report on MPS investments was presented by Dave Stepanek and Hamilton Trinidad of Central Trust & Investment Co., by phone.

Mark Nienhueser presented his report on advertising activities since September.

Online Advertising Network:

We currently have around 80 participating newspapers.

The last four months of 2015 is when we saw a big push in sales. We finished 2015 with gross sales of $21,709 and net sales of $14,568. We see this product helping to bridge some of the gap from the decline in Statewide Classifieds!

Reynolds Journalism Institute Fellowship: As part of the RJI Fellowship, MPS has been working on the creation of a digital toolbox. The purpose of this toolbox has two primary functions. First, the toolbox allows MPS to have the products to sell to current and future customers. Second, the toolbox is being created to help local publishers sell digital products to their local merchants to facilitate additional revenue streams.

MPS has developed relationships with two vendors, Lion Digital and Amplified Digital, to add to the toolbox. MPS can see additional vendors added in the future. The Fellowship believes that MPS is in a unique spot to provide the technology and skills to deliver these services as the "back office" digital agency, to newspapers that have a desire to get into the digital space.

Political /Amendments:

On the political side we have made our hit list of campaigns and contact information. Doug, Mark, and I have been meeting about strategy and political advisers. We have started to send out a couple of proposals for statewide offices. On the Amendments, there is a flurry of activity and we are keeping our eye on individual amendments and advocacy issues that will come from these topics. This should be a good Amendment year!

Advertising Sales Staff:

Brittney Wakeland has accepted a job with Vernon Publishing as Ad Director. Brittney did a good job for us and we will build upon what she has built for MPS. We have interviews scheduled for Brittney's replacement.

Tim Drape, our sales rep in the KC area, is off to good start in 2016. Tim has recently landed a digital campaign for 2016 in the amount of $30,000. Tim is also starting to work with a few weeklies in his area that want assistance from MPS on digital products. We believe this positive response from our newspapers bodes well for our theory the Fellowship is working on.

The next meeting of the MPS Board of Directors will be on the morning of June 17, at Stoney Creek Inn in Columbia. A dinner for Board members will be held on the evening of June 16.

The following annual resolutions were approved unanimously:

1. Resolved that the Missouri Press Service, Inc. pay to Missouri Press Association a monthly rental fee in 2016 in the amount of $6,000.00 per month (approximately $72,000.00 annually).

Newspapers in Education

First Lady features available through NIE

Missouri Press has released 12 more features in the First Ladies of America series, donated a few years ago by The Joplin Globe. First ladies in this round include Edith Roosevelt, Florence Harding, Ellen and Edith Wilson, Nellie Taft, Grace Coolidge, Lou Hoover, Eleanor Roosevelt, Bess Truman, Mamie Eisenhower, Jackie Kennedy, Lady Bird Johnson and Pat Nixon. Just seven more presidential wives remain to be released in the series. All of the First Ladies of America features may be accessed at mo-nie.com using the download code: ladies.

Law Day

July 4,2016, will mark the 240th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence. MPA will celebrate Law Day on May 1 with a Newspaper In Education feature in salute to this anniversary. Use it in May, use it in July – just make plans to use it!

Night at the Capitol

Is your newspaper publishing "A Night at the Capitol?" So far, 82 Missouri newspapers have downloaded the story and feedback from readers and educators has been outstanding. Your newspaper can still begin the 13-chapter story. The deadline to publish the first chapter is June 23 – which gives you 13 weeks to print the series before the license runs out to use it at no cost. After that, it goes into the catalog for sale.

Printed readership

Do you think young readers in your community are still reading printed books? Many people think young people have all migrated to eBooks. But according to collective research by Deloitte, young adults, teens, pre-teens and children all are still reading -- and in print.

Read more about these findings in Dawn Kitchell's NIE column in the April edition of Missouri Press News, available online at magazine.mopress.com

FAA drone report a step toward newsgathering

By Joel E. Roberson, Charles D. Tobin and Christine N. Walz

Holland and Knight

A panel of industry experts assembled by the Federal Aviation Administration submitted its report April 6, recommending a new regulatory framework for the flight of unmanned aircraft systems, or drones, over people. The report is a major first step in efforts to win government approval for journalists to safely use UAS to gather news in cities.

This report presents the FAA with a risk-based approach to allow for small UAS flights over people under certain conditions. The FAA plans to use it to develop a notice of proposed rulemaking expected by December 2016.

The report represents the consensus position of more than two dozen organizations – including a coalition of news companies – invited by the FAA to join an aviation rulemaking committee on the safe integration of UAS. Holland & Knight participated in the ARC on behalf of our client, the News Media Coalition, a group of 22 leading news media organizations in the United States.

On Feb. 15, 2015, the FAA published a notice of proposed rulemaking entitled "Operation and Certification of Small Unmanned Aircraft Systems." In this notice, the FAA requested public comment on whether the agency should create a "microUAS" category of lightweight UAS that could operate over people.

The FAA, however, later decided that the final rule governing small UAS operations, which the agency expects to release this summer, will not contain a separate microUAS category and also will not allow for operations over people. Instead, the FAA established the ARC last month to assist in developing a separate rulemaking for flights over people. Unlike the earlier proposed rulemaking, the ARC was asked to develop recommendations based on performance standards, rather than weight classes.

The FAA expects to release the notice of proposed rulemaking on overhead flights in December 2016. The final rule likely will not be finalized before the second half of 2017.

The ARC report to FAA recommends a subcategory of small UAS that can be safely flown over people. The report also recommends certification criteria and operational limitations. Specifically, the ARC recommends that the FAA adopt a four-tier framework for UAS flights over people. UAS posing the least risk would be permitted to operate with little restriction, while those posing a greater risk would be permitted to fly only with in accordance with a written risk mitigation plan.

Meanwhile, Congress is also considering FAA reauthorization legislation that would include statutory requirements for small UAS flights over people.
