

Beaches were busy this summer

BY ADAM ATKINSON
North Country This Week

HANNAWA FALLS — There were thousands of visits to the beaches at Postwood Park and Norwood this summer, the director of both swim areas said.

The 2022 swim season has now wrapped up, but Michelle Garrow, who works as the Potsdam town recreation director at Postwood and the Norwood Beach director, is reporting high attendance at both places.

“We had roughly 7,500 visits this summer. We are already gearing up for next season,” Garrow said of Postwood Park beach. Postwood closed its season’s swimming on Monday, Sept. 5.

The year 2022 is the second season the park and beach in Hannawa Falls has been under Potsdam town management. Previously Postwood was managed by the village of Potsdam recreation department.

This year saw some renovations — with more planned next year — and the park played host to the Clarkson University Dragon Boat races and a vendor fair in 2022. The Dragon Boat races will return in 2023, Garrow said.

“The Dragon Boat races will be taking place on July 16, 2023 and we are going to be continuing with more updates and improvements to the beach and park. Watch our Facebook Page-Town of Potsdam Recreation Postwood Park for more information,” she said.

Garrow said Norwood beach cataloged over 5,000 visits to that popular swimming spot before closing for the season on Aug. 28.

Children in care numbers in decline

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

CANTON — The Department of Social Services has seen a drastic turnaround in recent months with a large portion of children in care finally being placed in permanent living situations.

County Attorney Steve Button offered praise for new DSS Commissioner Joseph Seber and his approach that has helped move the department forward after months of investigations and controversy.

“With the 19 point Corrective Action Plan we are seeing a number of changes happening in the department that has been very beneficial for the many children who are currently in foster care,” Button said.

During the St. Lawrence County Services Committee meeting on Aug. 15, officials made a number of announcements showing the extensive progress the department has made in the last 15 months.

Safety checks completed on time were nearly 100% in recent months, well above the state average by double digits. During the month of June, 173 cases were also closed.

Caseload averages continue to decline for each case worker, with a current average of 23 per worker.

As part of the 19 point Corrective Action Plan, employee training and retention are top priorities to ensure cases are handled professionally and efficiently.

According to Button, when his department took over 15 months ago a total of 374 children were in care. Today, that number is 257 and continuing to

Thought-provoking films planned as Cinema 10 gears up for season

POTSDAM — A local film series that has been bringing thought-provoking flicks, art house films, indy cinema releases, foreign cinema and some classic movies to Potsdam since the 1980s will kick off its 2022 fall season Sept. 12 with ET the Extra-terrestrial.

The Roxy Theater will feature a full Cinema 10 lineup this fall.

“I feel it is an exciting and diverse set of films,” said Holly Chambers of the Roxy. “Each title, in one way or another, meets the Cinema 10 mission: to bring films to the area which are significant artistically, socially or politically, but which generally are not popular enough in the mass market to reach our theaters, with an emphasis on current international and American independent films; to increase cultural diversity in an area relatively isolated culturally and ethnically; to increase the public’s awareness of film as an art form.”

“Even E.T. which is now a classic,” Chambers said.

Chambers said she was unsure which movie this year would be the biggest draw for local film buffs.

“We just settled the schedule last week so it isn’t quite clear what the biggest draws will be. Judging by what a few people said when I told them E.T. would be the first film on 9/12, people are

Power coming to Potsdam’s new salt barn

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

CANTON — National Grid will have permanent easement at the St. Lawrence County Highway Department salt barn facility in Potsdam.

The approval came during the County Legislature’s Finance Committee meeting recently and requires final approval by the full board at the next meeting.

Officials say the move will enable National Grid to install poles on the new highway facility properties.

“We have an easement on an adjacent property for the driveway and we’ll be following that new driveway in the parcel where the outpost is being constructed,” Highway Superintendent Don Chambers told the committee.

Officials say the approval for the easement was required prior to operating at the facility, with utilities still needing installation.

In total, three facilities are being built to the tune of $3 million for the highway department to store sand, salt and equipment.

The other two facilities are located in Lisbon and Russell.

Officials on the Finance Committee also unanimously approved a contract with St. Lawrence Valley Educational Television Council, who maintain a communications antenna in South Colton.

Officials say the cost is $17,710 for the contract, though there are hopes it won’t be necessary next year.

“This is an agreement we’ve been doing for a number of years,” Chambers said.

“It provides two-way communications for the Department of Highways and also many of the town organizations in the county.”

Chambers said the hope is that new towers will be installed by the end of the current contract.

SLC prepping for tax foreclosure auction

CANTON – St Lawrence County is preparing to hold their yearly online only real estate auction for the County’s Tax Foreclosed Real Properties for 2022.

The online auction to be conducted by Buffalo based Auctions International will begin at noon on Saturday, Sept. 10 and will continue until Saturday, Sept. 24, with the sale starting to close at 10 a.m.

There are more than over 75 residential, commercial, and vacant lot properties up for auction for this online only event.

Tax-defaulted property auctions help St Lawrence County recoup lost tax revenues needed for public services and return property to a revenue generating status.

“The online only auction platform and process offers St Lawrence County more opportunities to achieve better results than the successful live auction format,” claims RJ Klisiewicz, Operations Manager for Auctions International. “Interested bidders have the convenience of bidding in the comfort of their homes or offices from anywhere in the world.”

To participate in this online auction, all interested parties must complete an online bidder registration packet and create an online bidding account with Auctions International.

All registration details are on the Auctions International website. Once completed, potential bidders must mail their packet (and required documentation) to: Auctions International, Inc., 11167 Big Tree Rd, East Aurora, NY 14052.

Packets must be received by Sept. 21 or they will not be allowed to bid. There are no exceptions.

For further information and links to the full property list including detailed descriptions and photographs of each item visit www.stlawcoauction.com. Auctions International’s main website is, www.auctionsinternational.com.

Ex-CFC members call for law change

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

POTSDAM - Protestors gathered in front of the Christian Fellowship Center in Potsdam, as well as the Canton Village park to protest child sexual abuse.

Protestors are also calling on the state to pass legislation that would make clergy mandatory reporters.

For more information, read our previous story on the topic here.

The protests came as stories of abuse began to mount, including what some allege to be blatant cover up attempts by elders within the Christian Fellowship Center.

Abbi Nye, who left the Christian Fellowship Center 17 years ago, says it is time for people to truly understand the gravity of the situation.

"This has happened for years and continues to happen, it's unacceptable and incomprehensible that anyone would continue to allow this to continue," she said.

Nye said she has heard from many survivors of abuse, be it mental, physical, sexual or verbal.

"The number is in the dozens now, more keep coming forward and reaching out," Nye said.

In response to allegations against the Christian Fellowship Center Nye helped form CFCtoo, a grassroots collective aimed at providing a voice for those abused. But the group is not just for former members of the Christian Fellowship Center.

Protestors who attended the rally came from all walks of life and denominations.

Some were former pastors of CFC who say they were essentially cast out for non-conformity.

Others are supporters who want to bring awareness to child abuse that they say continues to occur on a daily basis.

"We want people to know they are not alone, they can come forward and they will have support when they do," Nye said.

Many protestors wished to not have their photos taken or their names used for fear of retribution by current CFC members.

Nye herself stood in front of the CFC service on Sunday (Sept. 4) with the protestors, left to wonder if her own parents were still inside.

"I'm guessing that they are, they're still very much affiliated with the church," she said.

Others say they too had family members inside, brothers, sisters, parents, nieces and nephews.

"What people need to understand is this is tearing families apart. It is dividing families to the point of no longer speaking," Nye said.

In one case, a protester who wished to remain anonymous said that her nieces and nephews have shown no real joy since they began attending the church.

"They just seem lifeless, they never smile anymore," they said.

All three are under the age of ten, they said.

Though the weather was cold and dreary, over a dozen protestors attended. Many said it was not their first time, nor will it be their last.

"We will keep going, I will keep fighting and we won't stop until something is finally done," Nye said.

POTSDAM – The Orchestra of Northern New York has published an updated website to celebrate its 35th Anniversary concert season.

"Our last major redesign was nearly a decade ago," says Kevin Angstadt, who serves as the Orchestra's volunteer Website and Technology Director.

Angstadt adds, "With this update, we've added modern styling while still providing our patrons with easy access to upcoming concerts and events."

The new website is also intended to provide a better experience for visitors using mobile devices, such as smartphones and tablets.

In addition to a new website, ONNY has also introduced a new box office system that allows patrons to purchase their tickets directly from the Orchestra.

Patrons may purchase tickets online, which will be delivered to their email. These tickets may be printed out or presented on patrons' smartphones to enter the concert hall. Walk-up ticket sales will also be available prior to each concert.

"Our goal with the new box office system," states Executive Director Kathy Del Guidice, "is to make the ticket purchasing process as easy and safe for concert goers as possible." To purchase tickets, go to ONNY.org and select the Events & Tickets to view upcoming concerts or go directly to the box office website at <https://onny.myeventscenter.com>.

Ticket prices remain the same at: $27 for adults; $24 for seniors, military (active and veteran), first responders, and healthcare workers; $10 for college students; $5 for teens; and free for children, 12 and younger.

SLHA seeks new board members

BY PAUL MITCHELL
North Country This Week

CANTON – The executive director of the St. Lawrence County Historical Association (SLCHA) is in a recruiting mood.

The organization has issued a “shout out” for new board members, committee members, volunteers and most urgently an editor for SLCHA main publication The Quarterly.

“Proactive board members, committee members and volunteers are the lifeblood to any organization like ours. The staff is very small, three to be exact, so much of our support comes from the volunteers within the community,” stated Robert Clarke, SLCHA executive director. “Without volunteers, we would not be able to function properly.”

The call for volunteers stretches into several areas including photography, graphic design, building maintenance and housekeeping, library or archival expertise, journalism, research, gardening or education.

The Quarterly has been published steadily since the mid-1950s as a benefit of membership and an aid to research. It features original articles about people and events in the county written by a wide variety of professionals, amateurs, hobbyists, and collectors. At times material previously published but currently unfamiliar, such as found in old newspapers and magazines, is re-printed, according to the SLCHA website.

A publications committee composed of the SLCHA Executive Director, volunteers from the Board of Trustees, and community members, and guided by an editor in chief, selects the Quarterly’s content, edits it, and supervises printing. The committee recruits items, receives volunteered items from readers, and sometimes writes its own items.

“We are in desperate need of an editor for The Quarterly which is over a year behind and would need someone with good editing experience to step in to right the ship,” Clarke said. “With the current list of board members, committee members and volunteers getting older and stepping aside the ranks across the board need to be filled.”

“To be a volunteer, a committee member or even a board member, you do not need a history or museum degree, just a love of history is all we ask,” he continued. “Individuals can devote as much or as little time as they want to the organization because even a little help goes a long way.”

Clarke asserted that SLCHA is headed in a positive and exciting direction. “With recent grants we were able to upgrade our technological capabilities to include items like podcast equipment and a camera with plans to start coordinating with the local historians and educators to sit down and have discussions about different areas of the county’s history,” Clarke noted.

SLCHA is looking to return to in-person events like the Brown Bag Lunch series with plans to host a presentation by a representative from the St. Regis Mohawk Tribe at the end of October.

Also, SLCHA has a new collections manager in Carlene Bermann who according to Clarke has been busy digitizing to make everything available to the public on the SLCHA website.

An enhanced volunteers wish list, said Clarke, would include a tech savvy guru to help record and load podcast sessions on YouTube videos, a skilled photographer to help the collections manager digitize the collection, some good at graphic design to help design posters for events, people who enjoy doing research to help out in the archives, organizing documents, handle housekeeping duties and assist with community or educational events.

“If you have a skill, we have a spot for you,” he said.

OBITUARIES

Gary Otis Staples, 78
formerly of Canton

COBLESKILL — Gary Otis Staples, a young 78, of Cobleskill, NY and formerly Canton, NY left us unexpectedly on Tuesday, August 30, 2022.

Born in 1944 to Gilbert and Elizabeth Staples in Massachusetts, Gary graduated from Hanover High School where he met the love of his life, Gail.

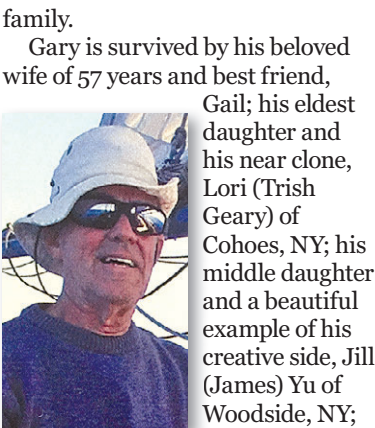

He earned his associates degree before joining the U.S. Coast Guard where he served as Electronics Technician Petty Officer 2nd Class from 1964 to 1970. Gary and Gail married in 1965 and had three adoring daughters.

After traveling the country in an RV for a year, Gary settled the family in Canton where he and Gail built a successful self-sustaining organic farm with solar and wind power, to the envy of many modern-day folks.

He repaired appliances before joining the Canton Central School System for 30 years of bus driving and training and AV assistance, evolving over time to become the IT specialist. Gary became involved with numerous school activities and departments making him an integral part of the Canton school experience, bringing a can-do attitude and laughter to the lives of many students and fellow employees.

Gary was one of the good ones and charmed anyone lucky enough to meet him. He lived every day with a smile on his face and an imagination that helped him create beauty in many different mediums.

He loved working with his hands, was a skilled carpenter, and could fix anything (yes anything). He also loved the water, enjoying swimming, canoeing, and sailing. More than anything else, Gary loved his family.

Gary is survived by his beloved wife of 57 years and best friend, Gail; his eldest daughter and his near clone, Lori (Trish Geary) of Cohoes, NY; his middle daughter and a beautiful example of his creative side, Jill (James) Yu of Woodside, NY; his youngest daughter and embodiment of his brilliance, Dr. Erin (Dr. Marc Chimonas) and grandson, Zander, of Fort Collins, CO; and cousin, Cindy Kastner of Jacksonville, FL.

Most recently Gary and Gail found their dream-home in Cobleskill, closer to family and enjoying projects, travel, daily walks and just being together. Unfortunately, someone with so much love and life to offer was also born with a defective heart valve.

Gary succumbed unexpectedly due to complications of this – snuffing prematurely the life of one of the kindest and most generous men this world will ever know.

In lieu of flowers, the family asks that you do something creative with your hands or consider contributing to the Juvenile Diabetes Association (www.jdrf.org; under fundraising and memorial).

Arrangements are under the care and guidance of the Fitzgerald Funeral Home, Cohoes, where friends are encouraged to share memories and offer condolences online at <https://www.fitzgeraldfuneralhomeltd.com>.

Hunters get guidance on new gun laws

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

North Country hunters now have guidance regarding the use of semi-automatic rifles for hunting season this fall after Department of Environmental Conservation officials issued a FAQ flier.

The announcement comes on the heels of numerous gun control laws passed earlier this summer in response to the Supreme Court ruling against the state’s “proper cause” provision for conceal carry applicants, as well as a racial motivated mass shooting at a Tops Supermarket in a predominantly black neighborhood in Buffalo.

Many North Country sportsmen and women who questioned how the laws would affect hunting regulations had been largely in the dark ever since.

According to DEC officials, hunters who currently possess a semi-auto rifle can still use them for any game that may be taken with a rifle. All magazines are limited to a five round capacity, officials say.

Hunters who are 21 or older and already own a semi-auto rifle prior to Sept. 4 are not required to apply for a semi-auto rifle license to possess the rifle, according to the flier.

Officials also say hunters currently under 21-years-of-age who already own a semi-auto rifle are still legally allowed to possess said firearms and can still use them for hunting.

All new purchases and transfers on or after Sept. 4 will require the purchaser or transferee to have a semi-auto rifle license. According to the document, all private party transfers will also follow the same guidelines beginning on Sept. 4, though exceptions can be made for gifts between spouses, domestic partners, parents to children and stepchildren.

It is still legal to borrow a rifle for the season from someone who legally possesses it, so long as they are 21 years of age. A semi-auto rifle license is not required in this instance, according to the flier.

Students of any legal hunting age may also shoot semi-auto rifles in a hunter education program, such as hunter education courses, Next Step program and Becoming an Outdoors Woman workshops, the flier states.

Licensed non-resident hunters pursuing game that can be lawfully taken with a rifle may also use a semi-auto rifle without a semi-auto rifle license in the state of New York, so long as it meets the regulations set forth by the SAFE Act and other penal law, according to the flier.

Though widely contested by Assembly and Senate members, the flier also claims that new regulations set forth will not affect how and where lawful hunting may occur in New York.

Many members of the state legislature contested that the ban of firearms in parks also included state parks and the Adirondack Park, essentially rendering those who own a firearm and live in the park felons. Governor Hochul has contested the claims, though no known revision of the law clarifying the matter has been found by North Country This Week as of press time.

“Certain areas of the parks are not considered “sensitive locations” under the law, as the state owned or managed lands are legally classified as state forest preserve or are generally private lands. There are areas inside the Adirondack and Catskill Forest Preserves, however, that are classified as sensitive locations or restricted locations under the new gun law (e.g., libraries and government administrative facilities) and these specific locations are subject to the sensitive and restricted location restrictions under the law,” officials say.

Senator Dan Stec, who represents a large portion of the Adirondack Park, said in a statement, “This is classic Albany Democrat behavior. After their last attempt at gun control legislation was rejected by the Supreme Court, they rushed through more ill-conceived legislation that turns law-abiding gun owners in the Adirondack Park into felons,” he said.

Stec went on further, saying the 130,000 people living on the 6 million acres that comprise the Adirondack Park lands are at risk of felony charges for merely owning a shotgun or rifle.

The flier goes on further, touching on other exemptions in “sensitive locations.”

“The law provides exemptions to allow for lawful hunting in areas listed as “sensitive” or “restricted.” However, the law will affect certain activities associated with the act of lawful hunting such as transportation and storage of hunting guns,” the flier states.

No firearm license is required for muzzleloaders or shotguns as well, according to the flier.

Possession of a firearm in so-called “sensitive locations” when engaged in a hunting activity also exempts hunters.

For additional information on the hunting regulations announced, as well as hunting courses, hunting private lands and other facets related to the new regulations, visit www.dec.ny.gov/docs/wildlife_pdf/gunlawqanda2022.pdf.

Man charged with hitting pedestrian with vehicle

HAMMOND — St. Lawrence County Sheriff's Deputies have charged an Ogdensburg man with two felonies in the death of a pedestrian on Aug. 29 in the town of Hammond.

Gavin W. Murray, 19, was charged with leaving the scene of a personal injury accident resulting in death (D Felony) and tampering with physical evidence (E Felony), Deputies say.

According to Deputies, Murray allegedly struck Sean A. Salisbury, 28, of Whiting, New Jersey, on State Hwy. 12 between the hours of 5-6 a.m., leaving the scene of the accident.

Deputies say Murray failed to report the incident and left the scene of the incident, later attempting to conceal the vehicle and alter the vehicle by removing damaged parts.

Murray was arraigned in Town of Canton Court and released to appear at a later date.

St. Lawrence County Sheriff's Deputies were assisted by the New York State Police and Hammond Fire. Deputies say the investigation is ongoing.

Village of Potsdam hires new treasurer

BY ADAM ATKINSON
North Country This Week

POTSDAM — A new village treasurer will step into the position starting Sept. 12.

The village board approved the mayoral appointment of Isabelle Gates-Shult of Parameter Road to the position at their meeting Tuesday, Sept. 6.

The board approved a new deputy clerk appointment, gave the nod to hiring a new fire truck driver and took care of other business at the meeting as well.

Gates-Shult will take over the job of village treasurer from former treasurer Cara Adams who resigned from the post on Aug. 5.

Adams, who previously served as deputy village clerk in Canton, was appointed to the post in July 2021 for an annual salary of $45,000.

Adams recently accepted a position as district treasurer with Potsdam Central School.

Once on the job, Gates-Shult will fill out the unexpired term left vacant by Adams which ends Dec. 5, 2023.

Gates-Shult's annual salary will be $63,000.

The board also approved the appointment of Georgine Scott of Madrid to the deputy clerk/registrar position left vacant by Heather Wells' departure.

Scott will serve the rest of Wells' unexpired term, from Sept. 6, 2022 to Dec. 5, 2023.

She will be paid an annual salary of $43,500.

In other business, the board approved a probationary appointment of Matthew Kroeger of Canton to the position of fire vehicle driver with the Potsdam Fire Department.

Members of the department and village residents recently spoke out at a village board meeting last month urging them to hire a new driver after a retirement left one of the four drivers spots open.

There had previously been a discussion among village officials of perhaps dissolving the position instead of staffing it.

The board at that meeting pledged to hire a new driver following calls by department members and the public to do so.

At the meeting Sept. 6, the village board also agreed to match $7,000 in ARPA funds that the town of Potsdam is giving to the Potsdam Fire Department.

In other business, the board approved a contract with Eric York to update the village website, and to sell as surplus a 2010 Jeep previously used by code enforcement and a 2015 Ford Explorer used by the village police department.

CANTON — An event that was scheduled to feature Rev. Arthur Hallett at the Grace Church on Sept. 12 has been canceled. Rev. Hallett was scheduled to appear at 7 p.m. for "a night of inspirational music and a relevant, uplifting message from the Word."

Yum Yum's Chilly Delight closing

POTSDAM — After several years of serving the North Country the owners of Yum Yum's Chilly Delight in Potsdam have decided to close the business permanently in the month of October.

"Getting yogurt products at a competitive price is just too difficult," says Duane Pelkey, who co-owns the business with his wife, Laurean. "The majority of our customers will only go so far on a price point." Local vendors stopped delivering frozen yogurt for the most part a few years ago. The Pelkeys have been driving to Syracuse to get Frozen Yogurt product to be able to keep their prices down but with an increase in product prices plus fuel higher than what it was a year ago have made the costs too high.

"With our final product pick up we feel we have a product to take us into October holding our prices," said Pelkey. "Going forward we'll focus our attention on Scoops which are seasonal and afford us semi-retirement." Scoops is also owned by the Pelkeys and will remain open seasonally since vendors still readily supply the products needed to operate that business.

"We want to thank all of our customers for their support these past years."

Businesses busted for underage alcohol sales

New York State Police conducted an Underage Drinker Enforcement Operation in St. Lawrence County on Sept. 4.

During the operation, three retail establishments were cited for selling an alcoholic beverage to an undercover law enforcement operative under the age of 21.

The following businesses were NOT in compliance under the New York Beverage Control Law Section 65, Prohibited Sale to Person Under the Age of 21:

- Shoulette's Redemption Center, Canton

- Gerry's Spirits, Ogdensburg
- Parkway Express, Ogdensburg.

The following establishments were also checked and found to be in compliance:

- 711 Gas Station, Canton
- Bessette's Liquor and Wine, Canton
- Nick's Liquor Store, Ogdensburg

During these investigations, businesses are checked utilizing a trooper in plain clothes, and one or several underage operatives who cannot lie about their age or provide a false date of birth.

NYS gun laws facing challenges

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

A Federal judge has dismissed a lawsuit that would have delayed the implementation of a handful of new gun control laws passed earlier this summer by Governor Hochul. Though the decision is viewed as a setback for gun rights groups, the presiding justice seemingly left the door open for future legal challenges in his ruling.

The case, Antonyuk v. Bruen, was dismissed on Aug. 31, the day before the laws were slated to take effect.

The suit alleges seven aspects of the Concealed Carry Improvement Act are unconstitutional, including the “good moral character” clause, the requirement for an in-person interview with law enforcement, the disclosure of social media profiles dating back three years, the requirement to list four character references for applying or renewing a license, the requirement for a 16-hour training course along with 2-hours of live-fire training, the list of “sensitive locations” and the expansive definition of restricted locations.

According to Judge Suddaby, the list of character references, certification of course completion and list of current or former social media accounts “are not expressly required to be contained in the application form, pursuant to N.Y. Penal Law § 400.00(3).”

In his decision Judge Glenn T. Suddaby cited offsetting briefs filed by both parties that alleged differing takes on the level of gun violence in the state and its correlation to looser or tighter conceal carry permitting.

“Generally, to the extent that their underlying statistics can be discerned from the briefs, Defendant’s studies seem to establish, at most, an associational relationship between some lenient right-to-carry laws and violent crime, not a causal relationship; and in any event, they seem to all fail to measure the effect of deterrence,” the decision reads.

In his decision Judge Suddaby also found “that Plaintiffs have made a strong showing that balance of equities tips in their favor and that the public interest would not be disserved by the Court’s granting of their requested relief for the reasons stated in their memoranda of law.”

Though many factors were in the plaintiff’s favor, Judge Sudabby ultimately ordered the complaint dismissed without prejudice for lack of subject-matter jurisdiction. The motion for a preliminary injunction was denied without prejudice as moot. Additional legal challenges are calso underway.

NOTICE OF EDPL PUBLIC HEARING
PROJECT IDENTIFICATION NO. 7753.32
LAZY RIVER ROAD OVER GRASSE RIVER (BIN 3341820)
BRIDGE REPLACEMENT
ST. LAWRENCE COUNTY

In accordance with the provisions of Article 2 of the Eminent Domain Procedure Law (EDPL), St. Lawrence County Department of Highways will conduct a public hearing for the proposed replacement of the Lazy River Road Bridge over Grass River (BIN 3341820). The project is being progressed as Project Identification Number (PIN 7753.32), by St. Lawrence County Department of Highways, New York State Department of Transportation (NYSDOT), and the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA). The hearing will be held at 6:00pm on September 15, 2022 at the St. Lawrence County Highway Garage, located at 3896 County Route 24, Russell, NY 13684. The project will be constructed entirely in the Town of Russell, St. Lawrence County.

St Lawrence County Department of Highways, being the agency having principal responsibility for carrying out or approving the proposed project, is the lead agency pursuant to Part 15 of Title 17 of the Official Compilation of Codes, Rules and Regulations of New York State (17 NYCRR Part 15).

Construction methods, proposed property acquisitions, and other aspects of the project will be covered briefly in the formal presentation. An opportunity for public comment will be provided immediately following the presentation. Representatives from the St. Lawrence County Department of Highways, NYSDOT and Barton & Loguidice, D.P.C. will be available at the meeting to answer questions and obtain comments on the proposed project from individuals, groups, officials and local agencies. Project information documents and graphic displays will be available for review during the presentation and public comment period.

All interested persons will be given the opportunity to express their views concerning the economic and social effects of the action, its impacts on the environment and its consistency with the goals and objectives established by the community. The proceedings will be recorded. Persons may make oral statements and/or file written statements. Written statements submitted at the hearing or mailed to the Regional Contact no later than September 25, 2022, will be made part of the record.

Those property owners who may subsequently wish to challenge condemnation of their property via judicial review may do so only on the basis of issues, facts, and objections raised at the hearing (§ 202 (C) (2) of Article 2, EDPL).

Each individual assessment record billing owner (“property owner”) or his or her attorney of record whose property may be acquired shall note that, under § 207 (A), a petition to seek judicial review of the condemnor’s determination and findings must be filed within 30 days after the condemnor’s completion of its publication of its determination and findings. Further, the exclusive venue for judicial review of the condemnor’s determination and findings is the appellate division of the supreme court in the judicial department where any part of the property to be condemned is located (§ 207 (B), § 208).

Overdose Awareness Day

CANTON — Aug. 31 marks the 22nd International Overdose Awareness Day.

International Overdose Awareness Day is about remembering the loved ones we have lost and acknowledging the grief of family and friends left behind.

It is also about raising awareness around opioid overdose and poisoning, which is one of the world’s worst public health crises especially overdoses involving opioids, including illegally manufactured Fentanyl (IMF).

There are two types of fentanyl: pharmaceutical fentanyl and illicitly manufactured fentanyl.

Both are considered synthetic opioids. Illicitly manufactured fentanyl is distributed through illegal drug markets for its heroin-like effect. It is often added to other drugs because of its extreme potency, which makes drugs cheaper, more powerful, more addictive, and more dangerous.

Drugs may contain deadly levels of fentanyl and you wouldn’t be able to see it, taste it, or smell it. It is nearly impossible to tell if drugs have been laced with fentanyl.

For the first time in our nation’s history, over 100,000 Americans have died of drug overdose (2020-2021). Fentanyl deaths are projected to double in the year ahead. Overdoses can affect anyone and it is important that everyone be prepared to respond. Carry Narcan and don’t be afraid to call 911. You might save a life.

“When you look back 22 or 23 years ago we had 199 children in care. So over the last 20 years or so we saw the number continually rise to the point where we were around 15 months ago,” Button said.

Button also stated a handful of children were also awaiting placement and were expected to be removed from foster care in the very near future.
“The Department of Social Services has a lot of very dedicated people who have worked very hard to achieve these objectives. That was one of the biggest takeaways during our investigation,” Button said.
“The worst part of this in many ways is that children, through no fault of their own, can not always be placed with a parent,” Button said.

In response, the department has sought permanency placements for many children with the number of children in care significantly higher over the last 10 years.

The decision to have the county attorney’s office take over the department and subsequent investigation was a controversial one at the time, with legislators like Kevin Acres catching considerable flack for supporting the decision.

Up to the point when Button and his department became involved, some officials felt like the legal branch of DSS had not been functioning as it should have for years. COVID-19 protocols further exaggerated the back up in case load. Some legislators like John Burke, questioned if the change was necessary, or if the department just needed more time to catch up from the pandemic.

“The decision to consolidate the legal functions has proven to be a great success,” Button said.

According to Button, some critics were used to the old system and how things were handled with a split department.

Most counties have already consolidated DSS and legal departments in an effort to increase oversight, cut costs and to ensure cases are handled in an efficient manner from start to finish.

“It’s a good working model now. Some people were certainly resistant or concerned at first but we have harmonized the process,” Button said.

That process has come to the forefront as officials now work towards the same end goal.

“The objective is to get kids into stability, that is the number one priority we have,” Button said.

For many children, that has taken years. At the time Button and his department became involved, some children had been in the foster system for over 10 years.

Though the work is not finished, Button said the department is in a great position moving forward with many people involved in making the improvements.

“It has taken a village to make the changes to get to where we are and that’s what it will take to help these children,” Button said.

“I know when people hear of the work that is being done, they will be proud. We’re not done but we’re getting closer.”

Real protection for sexual abused

This letter is in response to Ben Hull's response regarding mandated reporters (NCNow Aug. 30, 2022).

I have been a mandated reporter in New York State for 35 years. It was indeed in my role as a counselor/therapist, but certainly does not preclude my role as a human being looking out for the welfare of children. Children/minors and even many compromised adults need a responsible person to handle situations that they are unable or unwilling (from fear or lack of knowledge), to handle themselves.

It has rarely been my experience in the therapeutic setting that a student or client has been unwilling to share. In fact, it is a mantra of sorts for many counselors that each student or client is informed that the therapist will need to speak to authorities regarding any reports of abuse to themselves or by others. Still, the willingness to unburden themselves of the horrors they are experiencing outweighs the need to keep "authorities" out of the situation (not always, as many have been groomed or coached to say nothing). This is a role I willingly took on then and continue to take on now as a responsible adult and human being concerned for the welfare of another.

Are we not commanded in the Bible to love and care for our neighbors? (John 13:34-35, Romans 12:10, 1 Thessalonians 3:12, etc.).

This clergy-penitent privilege states that clergy must maintain the confidentiality of pastoral communications. New York State is unfortunately one of the states that grants them this exception to mandated reporting. There is a difference between pastoral counsel and therapeutic counseling, however. They are not mutually exclusive in goal necessarily. If one believes that God is able to heal an abuser (which CFC most certainly does), then He is also able to use others in a professional and trained capacity outside of the church. It is not wise to place limits on God's power. Besides all of this, sexual abuse of children is a crime. Romans 13:1-5 is pretty clear about that.

My thoughts are clear: if a child or compromised person is being abused in any way, any human being with a heart and conscience, needs to report this to authorities. Just as we would report a drunk driver, a school shooter or any other crime, we need to protect those who cannot protect themselves. This is the "safe place" that we need to provide. This is not a betrayal to the child, especially if they are told at the outset of the session that abuse needs to be reported to authorities. A trained clinician has been taught to do this in age appropriate ways.

This is protection. Real protection. It is wrapping the arms of Jesus around someone who is unable to help themselves. This is exactly what Jesus taught us to do.

Here is something we should rally around: changing an already flawed system that allows for perpetrators to roam freely to terrorize children and compromised adults and allowing pastoral counsel to focus on what they are called to address-the spiritual needs of its people.

The Question:

Did you do most of your back-to-school shopping in person or online?

DID YOU DO most of your back-to-school shopping in person or online?

HERE ARE COMMENTS from some survey participants:

Despite inflation, my income has done well under the current administration. Biden is doing a great job. So I've shopped for my family both online and in person.

A trip to Syracuse with the grand-kid.

I never did the back to school shopping thing! I taught my children to respect their notebook binders, backpacks and such! So they were able to reuse these items year after year, instead of throwing it all away and getting new. They are now both in college and still use the same backpacks and binders.

School supplies online, clothing in person and online.

We are going to Salvation Army this year. Our world has been turned upside down the last 2 years. We can barely afford to keep a roof over our head and food on the table. Biden and you democrat radicals will all be gone soon.

People should support their local businesses, the Internet is closing these stores and made people lazy, so get off your bums and get out.

Long ago in person was the only choice. Sadly, today that is no longer the case.

Hochul wants you to leave

If you are not a Democratic supporter of Governor Kathy Hochul, then you should leave, says the Governor.

Well, that's exactly what 1.5 million former New Yorkers have done, and more are planning to leave. You can't blame them, as New York residents pay more in taxes than any other state in the Union.

It isn't only Republicans who are leaving, New Yorkers from all parties have escaped New York taxes by fleeing the state.

Later, the Governor tried to walk back her statement, saying it only applied to her opponent, Lee Zeldin, but it is obvious that she meant exactly what she said. Just follow her track record since becoming Governor. Any opposition to her party and plans is viewed as unacceptable. Her appalling intolerance and lack of respect for the law are very reminiscent of a dictator. Her actions fly in the face of the "Democracy" she pretends to protect.

The state lost 350,000 New Yorkers during the 12 months leading up to July 1, 2021.

Companies have moved out of state due to the poor business environment in the state. More than 2,800 businesses in New York City have closed since March 1.

All told, this represents $34 billion in lost income, according to estimates from Unacast, a location analytics company.

As the Governor pushes to spend more, the tax base is shrinking, leaving fewer of us to fund her grandiose schemes inflating her record $220 billion budget.

Then, we find the Governor spitting in the face of the US Supreme Court with the newest gun law. The Supreme Court struck down New York restrictions on the 2nd Amendment.

Immediately, the Governor called an emergency legislative session to pass a poorly written law that adds restrictions on Right-to-Carry license holders and gun dealers.

This law will certainly be struck down by the Supreme Court, but in the meantime we New Yorkers must deal with restrictions which are confusing and inconsistent to the point of contradictory clauses in the legislation.

Instead of making New Yorkers safer with this gun legislation, she puts us more at risk. If Elisjsha Dicken in Indiana had not been carrying the pistol he used to stop the mass shooter, Jonathan Sapirman, more people would have died.

Lawfully armed citizens are a real deterrent to crime. Our current crime spree is the result of the state's get-out-of-jail-free policy coupled with defenseless victims. Lee Zeldin would act to reverse this dangerous trend.

Those of us who are opposed to the railroading which the Democratic controlled New York State Legislature has visited upon us for the last few years, don't see ourselves as "dangerous and disgusting."

We are the loyal opposition who can bring balance to the legislative process.

If you don't want higher taxes and more laws meddling in your life, vote against Kathy Hochul. If you don't, then maybe you'll have to join the exodus she suggests.

Forgiveness and justice not mutually exclusive

I appreciate Ben Hull's desire to care for victims of Child Sex Abuse (CSA), expressed in his letter of August 30, 2022.

The primary argument it seems he's making is that a child needs a space where they can share "in absolute confidence" with an adult who will not reveal what they have shared unless the child says it's ok, seemingly assuming a child knows what's best for themselves "even if it's not rational."

However, I am concerned about this argument and other aspects of the letter.

Two thoughts on the argument first.

First, I believe this position treats a child as if they were an adult. This is a situation where a child needs a responsible and objective adult who knows better to step in and work for not only their spiritual well being (as in the cases of clergy), but their emotional and mental well-being (by referring out to properly trained medical practitioners and therapists as needed), as well as their physical well being by reporting to the police. A child may be afraid that they'll be separated from their parent (for example) but if the parent is the abuser, why would we leave a child in that situation? Children do not often know what is in their best interest.

Second, it is good for a child to have a person they can talk to with some degree of confidentiality. But even our state licensed therapists privy to the most private details of a patient's life, much like the cleric, recognize there are limits to the "confidence" between a therapist and their underage patient. If a therapist becomes aware of CSA or a child's intent to harm themselves they are obligated to break the confidence. This is for the health and welfare of not only the child but other potential victims.

My general concern with his letter is that permitting clergy to stay silent allows one victim to become many. We've seen how the lack of transparency around CSA in our churches around the world (The Roman Catholic Church and the Southern Baptist Convention, to name two) has led to repeated abuse and increasing numbers of victims, to more pain, and not healing.

Clergy silence means parents could unknowingly leave children alone with an abuser. Clergy silence also denies other victims an opportunity to say "me too."

When Mr. Hull says "we all have a role to play" including "teachers, therapists, physicians, and clergy," indicating that there is a "broad network of vigilant advocates ... watching out for our kids" he seems to imply that eventually someone who is required to act will notice and therefore the cleric is inconsequential.

But the mandatory reporting network is not all encompassing and even mandatory reporters can miss a sign.

The cleric may be the best person capable of bringing abuse to light, especially if a child is in an environment where they are not exposed on a regular basis to teachers, therapists, and medical personnel who are mandated reporters. In the instance of CSA, it isn't always evident that abuse has taken place on the exposed body parts of a child.

Sometimes their words to a trusted adult in their life is the only chance they have to cry for help.

And finally, while Mr. Hull acknowledges "governmental authorities tasked to investigate potential abuse," his framework to protect the most vulnerable left out the role New York State has in punishing those who commit crimes.

Where is the pursuit of justice for the victims in his framework? Where is the pursuit of legal consequences for perpetrators of abuse? For the Christian, including the Christian cleric, this is a biblical mandate.

Forgiveness and Justice are not mutually exclusive, in fact, they must come together in order for true and whole restoration to take place.

'Sell' the toilets for charity

I would like to make a modest proposal for bringing the Potsdam toilet issue to a noble conclusion.

I suggest that Mr. Robar "sell" the toilets for charity; say, $15 each.

The money from the sale would go to a recognized, non-polarizing, issue-neutral charity.

I would suggest that charity be the Potsdam Rescue Squad, an organization which has the potential of helping any Potsdam citizen at any time and in the worst of circumstances.

Mr. Robar would be responsible for removal of each toilet as it was "sold."

Mr. Robar could culminate his movement on a high ground.

The college elitists could breathe a sigh of relief.

The "hey, we are here too's" would no longer be considered the toilet class of the community.

And we all could put this odorous chapter behind us.

I would buy ten. The last ten.

GardenShare founder honored

CANTON – GardenShare has selected the organization’s founder, Phil Harnden, as the 2022 Growing Community Award recipient. Each year, GardenShare recognizes an individual or organization whose efforts strengthen the food system and/or increase food security in northern New York State. Past recipients have included farmers, food service staff, a food bank, community groups, and others. Originally from Philadelphia, Penn., Harnden began publishing The North Country Gardener in 1990, a bimonthly newsletter with the aim of dispensing useful cold-climate gardening information. Not long after, Harnden solicited the help of veteran North Country gardeners to offer workshops and other programs about cold-climate gardening, tailored towards “novices like himself”, under the moniker North Country Garden School. Realizing most gardeners grow an overabundance of food, Harnden began encouraging attendees at North Country Garden School workshops to donate extra produce to local food pantries. In May 2001, GardenShare was incorporated as a nonprofit organization dedicated to ending hunger. It’s thanks to Phil’s efforts that have shaped the organization into what it is today. Ten years after its incorporation, Harnden stepped down from his leadership position at GardenShare in 2011. “I am so happy to see the work of GardenShare continuing after all these years. I know that the staff, board, and supporters share my belief that the pleasure of eating delicious, wholesome food belongs to everyone,” said Harnden. “I’m excited to be part of recognizing Phil for his vision, hard work, and continued engagement in addressing food security in our community,” said Executive Director Carlene Doane. GardenShare continues to work to end hunger and strengthen the local food system. GardenShare has since embraced a larger vision for the region, “Healthy Food, Healthy Farms, Everybody Eats.”

Cornell University graduate student Hannah Braun, of Lisbon, with the barn-fed lamb group in the NNYADP summer lambs feeding trial at the Cornell Cooperative Extension Learning Farm in Canton in 2021.

Changing grain prices affecting sheep enterprises

CANTON – The results of a Northern New York Agricultural Development Program (NNYADP) research project in 2021 demonstrate how fluctuating grain costs may impact sheep enterprises differently from year to year. Research comparing the growth of barn-fed versus pasture-raised summer lambs was designed to answer sheep producers’ questions on whether they could gain any income advantage with a feeding program that would make lambs ready for market more quickly. An informal trial in 2020 that favored pasture feeding but highlighted many data variables prompted this second trial that produced data favoring barn-fed lambs, demonstrating the annual variability. Cornell University graduate student Hannah Braun of Lisbon handled data collection and management of the barn-fed lambs as part of her honors thesis development. The results of the summer lambs feeding trial conducted at the Cornell Cooperative Extension Learning Farm in Canton are posted on the NNYADP website at <https://www.nnyagdev.org>. Forty-one lambs were split into two groups in the spring of 2021 with one group left on pasture with mother ewes and one group weaned at eight weeks into a barn environment and eased into a full-grain diet. The lambs in each group were periodically weighed, monitored for parasites, and treated when warranted. At the end of the eight-week study period, the barn-fed lambs weighed 19.24 pounds more than the pasture-fed lambs. Based on this weight and the per-pound sale price for lambs in the fall of 2021 at the New Holland, Pa., sale barn, the weight difference in the barn-fed lambs represented a gross income potential for $52 more per lamb. This number less the extra cost for 161 pounds of grain fed per lamb represented a net income of $15.40 per lamb over the cost of grain in 2021.

Smoked Farmhouse Gouda featured

POTSDAM — The Potsdam Food Co-op’s featured Cheese for September, Jake’s Smoked Farmhouse Gouda, will be offered for sampling Friday Sept. 9, from 12-2 p.m. The Gouda is a salty, creamy cheese made in the Dutch tradition with raw milk.

Because gouda needs to “breathe,” it is covered with a cream coating rather than a wax seal. The cheese has a smooth oak-smoked flavor and is aged for a minimum of 60 days. For more info call 315-265-4630 or visit www.PotsdamCoop.com.

The Measure of Quality

Free hazardous waste collection day Sept. 17

CANTON — The Development Authority of the North Country, in cooperation with the state Department of Environmental Conservation, is sponsoring a free household hazardous waste collection day to help residents in St. Lawrence County properly and safely dispose of certain hazardous materials.

The local collection day will be Sept. 17 from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. in Canton at the St. Lawrence County Human Services Building.

Items such as leftover solvents, pesticides, pool chemicals, oil-based paints, latex paints, and aerosol cans that still have product in them will be accepted, as well as fluorescent light tubes. Empty aerosol cans, motor oil, asbestos, tires, construction debris and explosives will not be accepted. Electronic waste (televisions, computers) will not be accepted, it can be recycled at most county transfer stations.

New this year is the acceptance of leftover latex paint. In the past, only oil-based paints were accepted, but New York State has implemented a new initiative to recycle latex paint. Any unused oil-based paint will be collected and disposed of as hazardous waste, but latex paint will be collected and recycled. Empty paint cans of either type should be dried out and disposed of in the trash.

In addition, unwanted or unused prescription and over-the-counter medications from residential households only will be collected by law enforcement at the Canton and Watertown events.

The collection events are open to residential households only; waste will not be accepted from businesses, schools, farms or municipalities.

For a complete listing of what will and will not be accepted at the Household Hazardous Waste Collection Day, visit www.northcountryrecycles.org.

There you can also find tips on how to dispose of items that will not be accepted at the events.

New vehicle chargers in Norfolk

NORFOLK — The Hepburn Library of Norfolk has installed two electric vehicle chargers at the library.

These are Level 2 chargers and are located on the back wall of the library.

They are available 24/7 and require the downloading of an app to use them.

The devices were made available through a grant from National Grid.

“We thank them for their funding. The project was overseen by Potentia Management Group LLC, a green technology company. The installation of the EV Chargers was done by Scott Shipley of Northern Light Energy. We thank the Town of Norfolk for their support in this project,” said library director Laurel Murphy.

For the past few months, the chargers have been free as the library worked through installation and startup of the chargers.

Currently, the chargers are available for a modest per kilowatt fee, Murphy said.

“We hope the installation of the chargers will help reduce carbon footprint and lessen range

The Esports Management major is a member of the college's League of Legends team, which won second place in last year's ECAC championships. Free advanced courses offered CANTON – Local area high school students have the ability to enroll in free courses through the St. Lawrence-Lewis BOCES Advanced Coursework Access Program and earn college credits.

The St. Lawrence-Lewis BOCES Advanced Coursework Program offers students from 14 area high schools free online access to advanced college courses made available through a partnership with SUNY Potsdam.

Last year 110 students took advantage of the program and more than 300 are expected to enroll this year in courses being offered in the fall and spring semesters. Partnering districts include Brasher Falls, Clifton-Fine, Colton-Pierrepont, Edwards-Knox, Hammond, Harrisville, Hermon-Dekalb, Heuvelton, Lisbon, Madrid-Waddington, Morristown, Norwood-Norfolk and Parishville-Hopkinton.

This program was designed to increase equity for students regardless of socio-economic status or geographic location - by providing advanced course access to engaging online dual-credit courses. In providing this program, SLL BOCES will decrease the financial and administrative burden on schools and districts in this region.

The Instructional Resources team recently held the ACA Grant Course Creation Summit at St. Lawrence-Lewis BOCES Educational Student Center in Canton. The summit included SUNY Potsdam professors, local educators and instructional design team members.

"The ACA Grant is important for our students because a majority of them are coming from an area that is deprived of advanced course options. With this grant we are providing an increased number of courses and giving students a head start on college. By taking the courses students are able to experience the rigor of college coursework while having the ability to investigate the majors before they commit to college" said St. Lawrence-Lewis BOCES Director of Instructional Resources Johnathan Hirschey.

Interested students should speak to their school's guidance counselor to enroll, there are limited seats for each district. For more information about the ACA Program, contact Dayle Payne, e-learning Coach at dayle.payne@sllboces.org or (315) 386-4504 ext. 15115.

Rotary Club donates to Potsdam Central's student run food pantry

POTSDAM – The Rotary Club of Potsdam has donated nearly $700 of personal hygiene products to the Potsdam Central School Positivity Project, which operates the Potsdam P2 Food Market, a food and personal care pantry for students and senior citizens.

The donated products included shampoo/conditioner, soap, deodorant and feminine products as well as razors donated by Harris Medical Supplies & Equipment.

The Potsdam P2 Food Market is the only student-run, free food pantry in the northern

New York region. It is a 501 (c) (3) non-profit organization, with monthly food shipments arriving from the Food Bank of Central New York. Clients are able to order an assortment of canned food, pasta, breakfast items, and personal hygiene products.

The market fills a gap between need and availability of costly personal care items for students and senior citizens. The need for hygiene products among those in need is very great in the Potsdam community.

SOAR classes for seniors

POTSDAM – The local SOAR organization's Fall 2022 courses designed for life-long learners have started and members of the organization still have a chance to register for the remaining open classes. Members who have registered (and those who plan to register) for the fall program are asked to check the website at soarnorthcountry.org for a list of courses still open. The course booklet, registration form and associated documents are available on the website. Registration will remain open while there are openings in the proffered classes. People may also sign up for or add courses by going to the SOAR office during office hours or by calling the office at 315-267-2690. Those dropping a course need to call the office with that request; there are waiting lists. This fall, SOAR brought back courses popular before COVID shut the organization down in the spring of 2020 and is offering a variety of participation courses such as a theater course that will take participants through the whole process of staging a play. Other options include the sciences, the arts, criminal justice, literature, travel, history and more. SOAR charges $75 in the fall, which covers the current semester as well as the spring semester. In addition to attending classes, membership entitles participants library privileges and use of Maxcy Hall facilities. The SOAR office, in Room 382 of Van Housen Ext.at SUNY Potsdam, is open Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Contact the office by email (soar@potsdam.edu) or by phone (315-267-2690) for more information.
