Seaway Festival kicks off

BY JIMMY LAWTON
North Country This Week

OGDENSBURG — Ogdensburg International Seaway Festival is kicking off July 21 and running through July 30.

Among the new events planned is a three on three basketball tournament and old favorites returning will include the Battle of the Bands, firefighter kids games, parade and fireworks.

The event traditionally draws hundreds from around the county and across the border to the small city and has long served as the city's homecoming where many who moved away visit to enjoy the events with relatives and friends.

Fundraising Chairman Chris Lalone says the committee is always working to make things bigger and better, but to continue growing the event they need public support in both donations and volunteers.

Those interested in lending a hand can contact Chris Cole at 315-393-3518.

Lalone says for the first time in recent memory the committee successfully sold out on the duck race, which is one of the festival's biggest fundraisers.

He said buttons and t-shirts are still available at locations throughout the city including Community Bank, St. Lawrence Federal Credit Union, Ed-Med FCU, The

Sex abuse claims push Diocese to file bankruptcy

BY JIMMY LAWTON
North Country This Week

OGDENSBURG — The Ogdensburg Diocese has filed for bankruptcy, a move triggered by 124 pending lawsuits from more than 50 alleged victims who say they suffered childhood sexual abuse at the hands of clergy from the 1940s to 1990s.

The Diocese encompasses 12,036 square miles of northern New York, including Clinton, Essex, Franklin, Hamilton, Jefferson, Lewis and St. Lawrence counties, as well as northern Herkimer County.

"This difficult yet necessary decision was made in response to lawsuits filed against the Diocese under the Child Victims Act. 124 cases are currently pending against the Diocese following implementation of the act, which allows individuals who assert that they were the victims of childhood sexual abuse to file claims, regardless of when the alleged abuse took place. The claims filed against the Diocese date back decades (1940s through 1990s), prior to the institution of the Diocese's safe environment policies and procedures," spokeswoman Darcy Fargo said in a prepared statement.

The Diocese has been encumbered with lawsuits related to sexual abuse allegations and had acknowledged years ago that bankruptcy was being considered.

"The goal for filing a reorganization case is to resolve the legal cases in a fair and equitable manner while allowing the Diocese to continue its mission. Had the Diocese not filed for reorganization, civil actions would continue for many years, with claimants who filed the first lawsuits potentially receiving larger awards or settlements, leaving little, if any, money for the remaining claimants. Filing for reorganization does not hinder claims filed by survivors," said Bishop LaValley. "Instead, it establishes a process for all claims to be treated fairly."

Attorneys who represent victims of the Diocese see things differently though.

"The Diocese of Ogdensburg's decision to file for Chapter 11 Bankruptcy is an unfortunate yet predictable attempt to conceal the truth about the diocese's

Paper bags for brush in Massena

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

MASSENA — Village residents will be required to use paper backs for grass clippings and leaf pickups in the spring and fall after village trustees approved a new local law requiring the use of such bags.

Trustees approved the measure during a board meeting on July 18 but made an amendment to the resolution so the new law would not go into effect until next March.

Originally, trustees had planned to implement the law for cleanup this fall but agreed to change the start date after two residents voiced a number of concerns during the public comment period prior to passing the law.

Mayor Greg Paquin in particular noted that he had a few concerns about the transition, saying it was likely too quick to adequately prepare village residents and Department of Public Works employees for a smooth transition.

Currently, DPW employees assist with leaf pickups and brush removal in both the spring and fall, a service that DPW Superintendent Marty Miller said can be time consuming.

Miller said with the switch to paper bags, his crews will be able to quickly remove them from curbs and can dispose of the entire bag without having to rip them open.

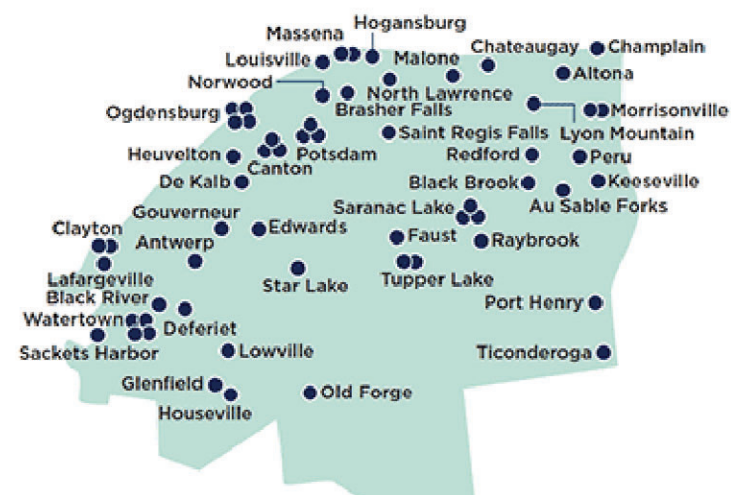

Plastic bags require crews to rip the bags open to dump the contents into refuse trucks during cleanup.

"It's a matter of saving time and money," Miller said during the meeting.

But two residents who spoke on the matter raised concerns, saying the cost of paper bags would be double what they are paying for plastic bags currently.

One resident in particular also voiced concerns about bags being left out too long or during a rainstorm, which could potentially lead to the bags becoming soiled and

Over 100 gather for new playground opening

BY JIMMY LAWTON
North Country This Week

OGDENSBURG - More than 100 people gathered Thursday as Ogdensburg's new playground opened to the public.

Work on the project hadn't been expected to be completed until September.

Ogdensburg Mayor Jeffrey M. Skelly said he was pleased with the work that contractors T.J. Fiocco Construction did as well as work performed by J.E. Sheehan. He said the contractors delivered speed and quality on the job.

"I would like to thank the contractors and their employees who performed such high quality work," he said. "I'd also like to thank Andrea Smith for her hard work on the project and working with all the engineers for such a great final result."

Skelly said it was great to see such a great turnout at the opening and he was glad Ogdensburg's youth would be able to enjoy the park for the rest of summer.

"It's nice to see kids playing again. Our kids really need this," he said.

Along with the new playground the city also opened new pickleball courts.

The mayor said they are already being used.

The new park replaces the former Kids Kingdom and is part of the construction of the city's Dobisky Center Municipal Marina and Morrisette Park Shoreline Resiliency Improvements.

Jailed after allegedly shaking boyfriend's baby

FWLER — State Police arrested Tiara K. Allen, 25, of Gouverneur, on July 13 for reckless assault of a child, and endangering the welfare of a child.

Police said Allen was charged after an investigation determined that on July 7, around 9:40 a.m., she was in the care of her boyfriend's 5-month-old child at their residence on Sand Road in the town of Fowler.

Allen became frustrated with the child's incessant crying and began to shake the child, police said.

Shortly thereafter, the child became unresponsive and was transported to Gouverneur Hospital.

Due to the severity of the injury the child is suffering, the child was transported to Upstate Golisano Children's Hospital, Syracuse, NY, where the child was diagnosed with Anoxic Brain Injury and Subdural Hematomas as result of Allen's actions.

The victim is still being monitored at Upstate Golisano Children's Hospital, Syracuse, but listed in stable condition.

Allen was arrested and processed at SP Gouverneur.

She was arraigned in the Town of Fowler Court where she was remanded to St. Lawrence County Correctional Facility in lieu of $10,000 cash, $20,000 bond.

School project almost done

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

MASSENA — Massena Central School District's $49.6 million capital project is nearly complete and may come in under budget.

The project, which began during the summer of 2020, included extensive site work, roof replacement and repair, as well as asbestos abatement in phase one.

Phase two included significant work at each elementary school, masonry work, boiler replacement and work at the district's transportation facility.

Phase three wraps up work at the high school and junior high, as well as electrical work at the transportation facility, among other projects.

According to interim Superintendent Pat Brady, nearly $400,000 could be left over for other work once the third phase is completed this fall.

Brady said many of the projects that could be considered would be on a smaller scale.

"For example, if we wanted to do pool work, that would not be feasible because we don't have the time. We have to look at long lead times for equipment, architect review, SED review," Brady said.

Brady did say that the auditorium could see some upgrades from the funds, including carpeting, lighting on the carpet and aisle lighting.

Other ideas include new doors and ceiling tiles that could be installed by district employees without the help of contractors.

"We wouldn't have to worry about construction contractors doing it because they're coming to the end of this project and they're now going on to other projects and it's a short summer," Brady said.

With the project nearing completion, officials are already looking to the future for the next capital project.

IBI Group, who have overseen the current project, have assisted the district in assessing priorities for future projects, with ongoing discussion expected regarding the five-year plan that is in place.

Baseball bat beating could mean 7 years in prison

BY JIMMY LAWTON
North Country This Week

OGDENSBURG — An Ogdensburg man will face up to seven years in prison after he allegedly struck a female victim in the head with a bat in 2022.

In May of 2022, Ryan Joannette, 36, was accused of striking a female victim he was in a relationship with in the head with a baseball bat multiple times and dragging her inside his home after she attempted to call out for help.

Ogdensburg police said she suffered "serious physical injuries."

The incident occurred at 217 Spring Street.

He also allegedly made death threats to the victim during the incident.

Joannette was originally charged with attempted murder and first-degree assault, but because the injuries to the victim were not "long-term" a jury in a July trial did not believe there was enough evidence to warrant those charges.

Instead, jurors convicted Joannette of second-degree assault, first-degree unlawful imprisonment and two counts of endangering the welfare of a child.

His mother, Kim Joannette, faces up to four years for charges of tampering with evidence and hindering prosecution.

She is accused of cleaning up the evidence following the incident.

St. Lawrence County District Attorney Gary Pasqua says that while he doesn't necessarily agree with the jury's decision on the lesser charges, he respects the decision and is pleased that the Joannettes will see prison time for the crime.

Pasqua said his office will be requesting the judge for the full seven years when sentencing takes place in September.

Senator Dan Stec (left), visited St. Lawrence Recreation on July 12 to discuss expanding broadband service in the North Country. Stec visited with SLIC Network Solutions COO Kevin Lynch (right) and St. Lawrence Recreation owner Shaun Prentice, along with other attendees, for well over an hour.

Stec praises efforts to expand broadband

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

MASSENA — State Senator Dan Stec, R-Queensbury, visited St. Lawrence Recreation on July 12 to highlight work completed by SLIC Network Solutions bringing high speed broadband to 13 homes and St. Lawrence Recreation.

According to SLIC Chief Operation Officer Kevin Lynch, the project began in 2017 after St. Lawrence Recreation owner Shaun Prentice contacted him regarding a lack of broadband service to his business.

“We looked at it in our network... and the problem is that 13 houses and one business, economically, is really hard to justify because of the cost to build it. The return we would get, plus the operating costs is like ‘boy, Shaun, I’d love to do it. I just don’t know how we can piece that together,’” Lynch said.

But with help from the St. Lawrence River Valley Redevelopment Agency and St. Lawrence County Industrial Development Agency, progress began to happen.

Lynch said the IDA agreed to contribute $20,000 to the project for the cost of construction, with the town also willing to contribute some funds. SLIC also heavily discounted the cost of labor in order to facilitate the project, however state regulations passed in 2018 stopped the project.

“Just as we get ready to go, the state passed a fiber occupancy fee,” Lynch said.

With that legislation in place, the state would be able to charge SLIC a fee per foot of fiber optic cable that would run along state highways.

“So it took a project that was cash-flow positive, just enough, but that’s what we do, and put it in the red. We couldn’t do it and that’s when I had to contact Shaun like, ‘Shaun, I’m sorry. I can’t start the project.’ I laid it out for him. He’s a businessman, he understands that you can’t run a business and give money away.

Insert Senator Stec, who lobbied the state to repeal the occupancy fee that affected every internet provider around the state.

With the fees removed, that allowed Lynch to give the green light for the project.

For Prentice, the addition of high speed internet could be one that saves his business.

“We were teetering on not being able to do business just because everything today, it’s all online based. Whether you’re ordering parts, looking at parts, being a DMV licensed dealer...there’s things that have to be done on the DMV portal that can only be done online. There’s no other way to do it,” Prentice said.

Prentice also noted that paying state taxes is now entirely online, yet another reason he needed high speed internet. “It’s not like the old days when you fill out the paper and send it in to the state,” he said.

Prior to receiving service from SLIC, Prentice said he reached out to a number of other service providers in hopes of finding high speed internet. But that effort was met with issues of feasibility and cost.

According to Prentice, one provider quoted him $180,000 to run fiberoptic cable to his business.

“That isn’t feasible for any business, there was just no way,” he said.

Prentice voiced his appreciation for the work Stec and Lynch put in to get the project completed after six years.

“The multiple agencies involved, working with the local governments, you know nobody looked away. They stayed the course. They knew this was important,” he said.

County to be dropped from lawsuit over migrants

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

CANTON — In a relatively abrupt turnaround, Palisades EOM has filed a motion to amend its legal complaint that named St. Lawrence County as a defendant.

Under the complaint, St. Lawrence County and a large number of New York state counties were named for declaring a state of emergency following the expiration of Title 42.

St. Lawrence County lawmakers first declared the state of emergency in early May following the expiration of Title 42, a Trump era policy that extended into the Biden administration and restricted travel of migrants at the borders.

County lawmakers previously said that the county was ill prepared for a potential influx of migrants, hence the declaration of a state of emergency. With the state of emergency in place, officials would be able to request FEMA money to support any potential migrants that may come to the North Country.

Alarm bells first went off last month when it was reported that two migrants left a shelter in New York City, making their way north to Rockland County where they were able to obtain Department of Social Services benefits without being citizens, having social security numbers or working papers.

In response, Rockland County, Orange County and Niagara County all filed for a temporary restraining order and a state of emergency.

In total, 31 counties have filed a state of emergency, though not all have taken the added step to also announce emergency orders or provisions that would bar hotels from housing migrants.

To date, St. Lawrence County has not announced any emergency orders or hotel provisions.

Though the county should be removed from the complaint in the near future, the county will still be on the hook for legal fees after hiring Attorney James P. Youngs of Hancock Estabrook law firm due to state licensing requirements for attorneys in the southern district of the state.

Man killed in vehicle collision

LISBON — One man is dead following a vehicle collision on State Highway 37 Thursday.

Michael K. Barkley Jr., 51, was killed in an accident around 9:22 p.m., according to state police.

Troopers determined a white Toyota Tundra was traveling south and a Red Toyota Rav 4 was traveling north on State Highway 37, in the town of Lisbon.

They say the investigation determined the Toyota Tundra, operated by Brian J. Snyder, 37, with passenger Cynthia M. Murdock, 35, both of Massena, went into the opposite lane of traveling causing a head on collision with the Toyota Rav 4 operator, Michael K. Barkley Jr., 51, with passenger Michael K. Barkley Sr., 79, both of Ogdensburg.

Snyder and Murdock were treated on scene and transported to Canton-Potsdam Hospital for non-life-threatening injuries. Barkley Sr. was being treated on scene and was subsequently air lifted to Upstate Medical Center where he is in critical condition.

The operator of the Toyota Rav 4, Barkley Jr. was pronounced deceased at the scene by the St. Lawrence County Coroner.

The NYSP Collision Reconstruction Unit and the Bureau of Criminal Investigation responded to this incident.

Ogdensburg Fire and Rescue and Lisbon Fire and Rescue assisted with the scene.

This is still an ongoing investigation, but state police did not list any charges in the press release.

TOWNSEND, GA -- In loving memory of our mother, Barbara Helen Mulvaugh, 91, formerly of Massena, who passed away on April 4, 2023, at her home in Townsend, Georgia.

Arrangements are under the care and direction of the Phillips Memorial Home in Massena.

Born on December 20, 1931, to the late Thomas Arthur and Beulah (Cooper) Staples in Syracuse, NY, Barb spent her formative years growing up between Syracuse, Buffalo, and Canton, graduating from Canton High School in 1949.

Barb married her high school sweetheart, Robert Taylor Mulvaugh in 1950 and they were joyfully married for 68 years.

They settled in Massena, NY, and raised six children, keeping the same phone number for almost 60 years.

With Bob, Barb guided her children into adulthood, to husbands and wives with children of their own, who also have children of their own. A legacy.

She went by many names: Mrs. Mulvaugh, Mrs. Moe, Barb, Aunt Barb, Mother, Mom, Grandma, Nan, Nanny, Furnanna (long sorry).

Under these names she showed us all how to be a family and taught us that home is not a place, it's a feeling of family and belonging, of unconditional love.

Barb had several passions through the years.

In a time when her eyesight was keener, she and her chosen

Barbara Helen Mulvaugh, 91

formerly of Massena

sister, Betty, would sew and quilt or knit or create a veritable plethora of crafts (she liked the phrase veritable plethora). Many of us are the proud owners of her handiwork.

Barbara Mulvaugh

She also enjoyed singing and her family loved to join with her.

More than once, it has been said that we are a family that can break into song at the drop of a hat.

She was often teased about singing a veritable plethora of children's nursery rhymes that today are not totally politically correct just ask us and we'll sing one.

A legacy that has been passed on to her grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Her love of singing could be witnessed as she sang in the choir at Emmanuel Congregational Church where she was an active member, and she considered the people there her extended family.

After her move to Georgia, she still attended church via YouTube.

Every Sunday she moved from the living room recliner to her bedroom recliner saying, "I'm going to Church. See you in an hour." Then after 5 minutes she's asking for help getting YouTube on the TV.

Mom's perfect day: her family

Rowena F. Tyo, 98

Massena

Rowena loved to hunt and camp with her family.

Rowena and Keith moved to Lyles Tennessee in 1998.

For several years they wintered in Florida and Arizona.

Rowena was a member of the 25-year Club at Alcoa and she was a life member of RCBA and the American Legion Post 79 Auxiliary.

Rowena was a dedicated wife, Mother, Grandmother, and friend.

She loved gatherings with her family and friends and was known to enjoy the occasional martini.

She will be missed.

Rowena is survived by one son and daughter-in-law, Dana and Paula Tyo of Columbia Tennessee; would voluntarily attend church, after which maybe a trip to the casino, followed by a turkey dinner (don't forget the dressing and gravy) and a rousing game to Yahtzee where she would pencil whip her numbers and ultimately win the game.

Upon bedtime, a few episodes of Outlander to top off the night.

Seriously, though, she was happiest surrounded by her family and friends where laughter was given. So much laughter. You might say veritable plethora.

Barb is survived by a daughter of Bridgeport, NY; a daughter and husband of Danbury, NH; a daughter and husband of Townsend, GA; daughter-in-law of Massena, NY and sons of Josephine, TX and a son and wife of Shallotte, NC; her 12 grandchildren and her 20 great-grandchildren, and several nieces and nephews.

Barbara was predeceased by her husband, Robert, son Robert Thomas Mulvaugh, son-in-law, Chester Chappuis Jr., daughter-in-law, Della Mae (Vice) Mulvaugh, and her best friend Elizabeth (Betty) Ames.

A celebration of Life for Barbara will be held on Saturday, July 22, 2023, at 11:00 am at the Emanuel Congregational Church with burial following in Louisville Community Church.

Updates on school safety policy now available online

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

MASSENA — The updated Massena Central School District's safety plan is now online for residents to review.

Board of education members are expected to approve the update plan during the board's August meeting, however public review and comment will continue until that time.

Board members recently heard about the updated plan when District Safety Team co-chair Duane Richards Jr. presented to the board.

"One of our roles as a safety team is to be able to review and update this plan so that you as a school board can adopt it and have it in place by Sept. 1," he said.

Richards said the plan aims to "minimize the effects of serious violent incidents" while allowing the district to coordinate within the district and with community resources.

While the safety plan is available for public viewing, Richards Jr. did note that building-level safety plans with further details are not available to the public.

Richards said each individual building plan shows the "secret nitty gritty" of each individual building plan.

Officials say the district safety plan is reviewed every year and largely remains the same, however one update this year is staff contact information, as well as additional plans for suicide prevention efforts and remote instruction.

According to Richards, the district safety plan has three parts that encompass the purpose and concept of operation of the plan, mitigation, prevention and response planning and district responses to specific event types.

Section two, mitigation, prevention and response, is where lockdown and evacuation drills are contained. In section two, information can also be found regarding relationships with local agencies like police, fire and rescue, along with protocols visitors must follow.

Section three includes communications, Richards said.

"That's communication, whether it's cancellations, delays, evacuations, the whole process that's involved in that," he said.

The new section is one that has seen a significant amount of work in recent months, as committee members assessed numerous threat types, along with cybersecurity, suicide prevention, conflict resolution and remote education.

"The first plan is listed there as a threat assessment plan. That's not new to the district. It's well-established. Each building has their threat assessment piece, and there's also a district threat assessment piece to that, so that plan is well in place," Richards said.

School officials say the plan needs to be submitted to the state Education Department by Sept. 1.

Comments and suggestions can be submitted to District Safety Team co-chair Alan Oliver by emailing aoliver@mc.s.k12.ny.us.

Bassmaster Open concludes Saturday

WADDINGTON — On one hand, Chris Johnston expects the usual routine during

The St. Croix Bassmaster Open at St. Lawrence River will conclude Saturday, July 22, after several days of competitive angling. The event started July 20.

However, forces at play could shuffle the deck and alter outcomes.

The takeoff from Whitaker Park will be at 6 a.m. ET and weigh-ins will be back at the park at 2 p.m.

"It's the same old St. Lawrence River," pro angler Chris Johnston said before the competition. "It's going to be heavy current, clear water. The only thing that usually varies is the water temperature. We haven't had a ton of hot weather, so it might not get all the fish out deep like they should be by the end of July."

Tournament boundaries include the St. Lawrence and all publicly accessible tributaries from the Moses-Saunders Power Dam at Massena, westward to Cape Vincent on the U.S. side and Kingston, Ontario, on the Canadian side.

Anglers running upriver from Waddington (the St. Lawrence flows northeast from the mouth of Lake Ontario to the Gulf of St. Lawrence/Atlantic Ocean) will encounter a speed zone with a 35 mph limit in the Alexandria Bay area.

The 2023 event is being hosted by the St. Lawrence County Chamber of Commerce in partnership with the Village of Waddington. It is part of a series of tournaments and is supported by a Market New York grant from I LOVE NY/New York State's Division of Tourism through the Regional Economic Development Council initiative.

Cryptocurrency mining moratorium extended in Massena

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

MASSENA - Massena Town Board members agreed unanimously to extend the moratorium on cryptocurrency mining until December 31, 2023.

The move came during the board's July 19 meeting.

No comments were made during the public comment period against or in favor of the move.

The extension of the moratorium is another move by town officials to buy time while final regulations are worked out by Town Attorney Eric Gustafson.

The moratorium was first brought up in July 2018 after residents expressed concerns that regulations did not adequately address crypto operations within the town.

Town officials quickly took action soon after and have continued to extend the moratorium over the last few years.

State officials have also taken action, implementing a two-year statewide moratorium late last year. The moratorium in place at the state level is for proof-of-work cryptocurrency mining and seeks to address some of the environmental concerns that lead many to argue against such operations.

Many of the operations that have come through Massena are themselves proof-of-work operations that use a blockchain-based algorithm to mine for crypto currencies such as Bitcoin and Ethereum.

In other action, board members opted to table a resolution that could have led to a potential moratorium on billboards in the town.

Town Supervisor Sue Bellor said board members wanted to take more time to gather further details and to solicit public feedback before considering a moratorium.

Board members also held a second public hearing regarding the district formation for the Massena water district project.

That water district would cover part of State Highway 37 and would cover the entirety of County Route 46 in the Town of Massena, Board Member Francis Carvel said.

Anyone with the district would be required to pay for the debt retirement of the project but is not obligated to participate in the service or offer an easement for lateral service, officials say.

School receives 'Champion of Change for Kids' award

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

MASSENA — The Massena Central School District has been awarded its third "Champions of Change for Kids" award for the work completed on a student-created website aimed at helping students with mental health issues.

The award comes from the New York State School Boards Association and was officially awarded during a recent board of education meeting.

On hand to present the award was NYSSBA Area 6 Director Wayne Rogers, who brought a banner for the school to hang in recognition of the honor.

"Champions of Change for Kids" seeks to celebrate programs that use existing resources "to address issues of equity, demonstrate strong student academic performance and introduce unique learning environments that are cutting-edge."

"The recognition program has been in place for three years and Massena has gotten a recognition banner every year that the program has been in place. So, it's thanks to students like you and others on staff and so forth that have put together programs that are brought that kind of recognition to us," Board of Education President Paul Haggett said.

The website, called "On the Mend," was the work of Kristen Oliver. Oliver was also on hand for the presentation to accept the banner for her work.

"Champions of Change was set up three years ago to allow us to share information on some of the really good things that happen in individual school districts that could also be duplicated and could be beneficial to other districts across the state," Rogers said.

Rogers complimented the work done on the website, saying the focus on mental health resources was impressive to read.

For Oliver, the website was a summer project for her and an opportunity to step in to make a difference in other student's lives.

Extensive research was conducted on other, similar programs but Oliver said nothing was really tailored to fit Massena Central because of the dynamic.

It was at that point that Oliver jumped into action to create the new resource.

"The whole program was aimed at an issue that we all know we're facing in schools right now, which is student mental health and, by proxy some of the behavioral stuff as well," High School Principal Alan Oliver said.

Oliver noted that the project was student-led from start to finish as well.

The website was developed by the school's Climate Committee called Project Raiders.

On the website, viewers will find guidance resources, social work resources, school clubs and various other resources that may assist students dealing with mental health issues.

As part of the project, the group completed a bracelet project to raise awareness about various mental health disorders.

Each mental health disorder was issued a different color bracelet, which were sold in the school lobby for a week, according to officials.

Massena Town Board nominations

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

MASSENA — Two Massena Town Board seats are up for grabs this fall and four candidates have been nominated to vie for those seats.

Massena Republicans nominated Lindsay Hendricks and Sabina De La Porte for the two seats, while Democrats nominated Kristy Baker and Raymond Lancto.

Those two seats are currently occupied by Debra Willer and Francis Carvel, both of whom chose to not seek another term on the board. Jeannine Miller was also nomiinated by Republicans for another term as town clerk during the caucus held last week.

Miller has held the seat since 2020, following the retirement of Pamela Catanzarite. She had previously served as deputy clerk since 2016.

Eric Sharlow was nominated by Democrats for another term as town justice.

Shelyn Peets was nominated for a one-year unexpired term as village trustee. If elected, she would fulfill the remaining year on Francis Carvel's term. Carvel won the seat for a one-year unexpired term last year, replacing Tom Miller.

Charges levied after selling stolen vehicles for scrap

LISBON — A Lisbon man faces multiple charges after allegedly selling three vehicles for scrap that were reported stolen in June.

William J. Stemples, age 33, of Lisbon, for offering/filing false statement first, false written statement, possess forged instrument second, and criminal possession of stolen property fourth.

On Sunday June 14 troopers responded to Autumn Automotive on Hall Road, Lisbon for a petit larceny complaint. Following an investigation, troopers say Stemples was in possession of three vehicles that had been reported stolen and had sold them to Two Brother Recycling in Massena.

Stemples was arrested and processed in Ogdensburg.

He was arraigned in the Town of Massena Court where he was released on his own recognizances.

Wake up and smell the fried bread dough

Don't miss out on St. Lawrence County's summer fun

The smell of bread dough mixes with barbecued something and fried onions as long lines form in front of any number of food trucks and live music pours out from a nearby pavilion.

Editor's Notebook

Jimmy Lawton

Across the street, littered with melted and discarded sno-kones are faces stained with cotton candy, laughter from children in bounce houses and vendors hawking over-priced fair toys.

As a kid, the smells and sights really help solidify that summer is underway.

As a parent, dragging the kids through crowded streets at the height of summer heat admittedly has its drawbacks, but my nostalgia reminds me that it's my job to help my kids experience that summer magic.

Potsdam recently wrapped up its summer festival, which drew hundreds out for free family fun despite sweltering heat and periods of rain.

Thousands of people recently attended parades and fireworks displays in Morristown and Norwood at two of the county's largest Independence Day celebrations.

If you missed out on some or all of those events, there is still time to enjoy yourself at the Ogdensburg International Seaway Festival July 21-30.

If you're an Ogdensburg resident or even from one of the adjacent towns, you may be expecting family members or visiting friends who've come up to enjoy the fanfare.

Being from Lisbon, I usually find myself hearing from an old friend or two who chose to plan their visit around Seaway Festival events. It's long served as the city's "homecoming" event, and many St. Lawrence County towns hold similar events. In particular, I've enjoyed Waddington's homecoming many times over the years. And don't forget about the Bassmasters fishing events.

I often hear complaints that there isn't anything going on in St. Lawrence County. In my experience, that's not really the case in the summer.

So, if you have a chance and life allows it, I encourage you to come out and attend one of the county's biggest parades and fireworks displays around.

Bring your kids to the firefighters games, check out the classic car show, or just come out and enjoy one of the many musical performances.

'If you can lend your hands, that's big. If you can afford a donation that's big too.'

It really is worth the trip.

One thing I've noticed this year in talking to organizers is volunteerism isn't what it used to be and everything is more expensive.

So, if you're someone who wants to see these events continue, whether it's smaller but fun community events like Lisbon's homecoming or Colton's Lazy Hazy Days, or something bigger like Canton's Dairy Festival or the Gouverneur & St.

Lawrence County Fair, consider supporting at whatever level you can.

If you can lend your hands, that's big. If you can afford a donation that's big too. If you can spring for a shirt or 50/50 raffle ticket, a button or a duck, consider doing it. It all adds up.

If you want to make sure these summer events continue, please do what you can to keep them going.

I'd also like to thank the organizers for all of the events from Hammond's Scottish Festival or Heuvelton's Labor Day celebration to Massena's Beachplooza.

Without volunteers, we really might not have so much to do in St. Lawrence County, but I hope you keep bringing summer entertainment our way. I appreciate you.

Jimmy Lawton is news editor of NorthCountryThisWeek and NorthCountryNow.com.

One of Northern NY's hidden gems

Town and county officials seem to be constantly looking for ways to promote tourism and "fun" summer activities in our area. Outdoor pursuits such as golf, fishing, bicycling and hiking are great attractions for anyone inclined to participate. There is, however, another wonderful opportunity that very few area residents are even aware of. That is go karting on a world-class outdoor go kart road course.

The NY Race Complex, in Morristown, New York offers a kart racing school, competition kart track days, and several weekend competitions for novice to seasoned expert kart racers. The larger races attract drivers and teams from all over the nation and often other countries. While talking with national race team members I've been told that it's arguably the best outdoor kart track in North America.

The Kart Racing School experience consists of three 10-minute track sessions on their fast and fun school karts. When the participants of all ages arrive, they are outfitted with a driving suit, helmet, neck support collar, and driving gloves. An outdoor classroom session follows consisting of a familiarization with the kart, rudimentary kart driving skills and etiquette and track flagging structure. Before being released onto the track the students are led around the track at a very slow pace to familiarize them with the optimal racing line, after which they are released to work on honing their skills. After each session questions are answered and suggestions for improvement are available. The cost for this fun and informative experience is $60 per person. A driver can return any time for more track time at the same cost. I've seen many people try it and return over and over, sometimes with a newly purchased go kart of their own.

Whether it's the Easy Kart School, doing track days, joining a race league, corporate team building or watching top-level teams compete, the NY Race Complex is indeed a North Country gem that needs to be discovered. It's at 300 Mills Road in Morristown. The web site is www.nyracecomplex.com and the phone number is 732-850-1893. They are typically open 7 days a week, weather permitting.

Oaks will be okay despite hard freeze in mid-May

BY PAUL HETZLER

If you've wondered what awful new malady has struck our oak trees this spring, resulting in shriveled, deformed and dead leaves, the answer is chilling. Literally; as in cold. A hard freeze on the night of May 17-18 happened at just the right – or wrong – time, catching oak foliage at a critically tender stage. Since trees can't change their locations (to my knowledge, at least), I guess you could say that oaks were in the right place at the wrong time.

Periods of unusually warm temperatures between April 12-22, and again from May 6-13, enticed many trees to push out new growth quickly. This likely set the stage for more widespread harm than if the mid-May freeze had occurred in the midst of a slow, gradual warming trend.

Other tree species that bud-out late such as hickory, butternut, and walnut were also affected to various degrees. Across the region, the extent of freeze injury varies from slight to severe, depending on things like slope aspect, genetic variation among individual oaks, whether trees were partly sheltered by the surrounding forest, and soil pH (bud-break is a bit earlier on acid soils). In many places, the damage looks harsh – even zipping along a highway, one can pick out which trees are oaks by the sparse canopies and unusual reddish cast to the foliage.

Young new growth is rosy because after that hard frost, oak trees now want to protect their leaves from sunlight. A class of chemicals called anthocyanins, which produce the red and purple color range in plants, act as UV protectants. It sounds bizarre to put sunscreen on leaves, which need sunshine to photosynthesize. But it turns out chlorophyll can be destroyed by intense UV rays at low temperatures. Eventually, the red will give way to green as anthocyanins break down and are not replenished (these large molecules cost plants a lot of energy to create, and while investing in them in springtime makes sense, no one has yet explained why trees make them in the fall after chlorophyll is gone).

In the spring of 1993, a similar thing took place where I was living in the Saranac Lake region. That time, a freeze occurred when beech trees were just leafing out, and I was flooded with calls about a new "beech-leaf blight." And then in 2011, sugar maples in the St. Lawrence Valley got touched by frost when their leaves were still folded. As the leaves opened, long gaps appeared, and I was awash in questions about what was "eating" the maple leaves.

At this time, I see no need to despair about the future of oak trees, although feel free to do so if you really want. Many oaks are still in the process of pushing out a new crop of leaves, and even those that go through the season with minimal leaf-surface area have energy reserves on which to rely. Dry soil conditions can inhibit re-foliation, so as long as we get a reasonable complement of rainfall this summer and don't have an outbreak of defoliators like spongy-moth or tent caterpillars, the oaks should be OK.

Paul Hetzler is a former Cornell Cooperative Extension educator.

Foreign rescue dogs raise red flags

North Country Now recently reported that an animal rescue/adoption operation which imports dogs from war torn countries and Chinese meat markets is seeking a special use permit in the Town of Canton. The St. Lawrence County Planning Board has already denied the No Dogs Left Behind permit; having discussed the need for an environmental impact study, humane care for the dogs and potential threats to residents in the county.

But the Canton Town Planning Board will have the final say. In my opinion, they should deny this permit as well.

The primary reason is that according to a warning posted on the Center for Disease Control website, foreign dogs introduce diseases and parasites that can endanger dogs and people in our communities. (<https://www.cdc.gov/importation/bringing-an-animal-into-the-united-states/get-the-facts.html#print>)

Beginning 3/1/23, all dogs entering the US from the over 100 listed high-risk rabies countries must have a valid CDC Dog Import Permit and a CDC Rabies Vaccination and Microchip Record. Fraudulent operations can falsify such documents. Does the Town of Canton intend to individually monitor the records of 50-500 dogs being brought to this proposed facility? Does the town have liability when an infected dog harms another animal or a resident?

Even if the dogs are initially examined by a vet upon arrival, difficult-to-treat parasitic diseases like leishmaniasis can go undetected for 3-18 months before symptoms begin to appear. Suddenly that newly-adopted pet is vomiting and extremely ill. The vet bills mount while a spreadable infection has gone undiagnosed.

The second reason for concern is that these traumatized, feral animals being captured, forced into crates, shipped and flown thousands of miles aren't necessarily socialized animals. These stressed dogs require specialized handling and, in the end, may not be suitable for adoption. What then?

There is no doubt that we, as pet-lovers, are saddened by the tragedy of dogs abandoned in war-torn countries or being slaughtered in service to Chinese meat markets. But rescued dogs being brought into the US carry many unnecessary risks.

St. Lawrence County shelters and their volunteers are already overwhelmed in their efforts to place pets into loving homes. I think the Canton Town Planning Board should reject the permit request by No Dogs Left Behind and encourage support for local adoptions instead.

Please join in voicing your objections to foreign rescue dogs being unnecessarily introduced into our communities.

Judiciary Act must be passed

The Supreme Court is running amok, and it's past time we got it under control.

In the year since the Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization decision, abortion has been effectively banned (with extremely limited exceptions) in fourteen states. Nearly 1 in 3 Americans have lost access to abortion care.

This year, the Court overturned access to clean water, affirmative action in college admissions, and student debt relief for millions of middle and low income borrowers. They've set the precedent of overturning policies simply because they were enacted by a Democratic president.

On top of that, the ethical crises keep piling up. We've seen Republican mega donors footing the bill for Clarence Thomas's vacations, mortgage payments, and family tuition;

Samuel Alito taking dinners with conservative anti-abortion activists, accepting a lavish vacation from someone with business before the Court, and allegedly leaking reproductive health decisions; and Neil Gorsuch selling property to an executive that has business before the Court just days after his lifetime appointment was finalized.

We can't let this continue. Congress must stop the out-of-control, right-wing majority on the Supreme Court. The only way to do that is to restore ideological balance to the Court by adding four more seats.

I'm urging our legislators to stand up as a governmental body and rein in this illegitimate Court by passing the Judiciary Act.

Make gradual shift to green energy

Scott Shipley of Northern Lights Energy presented a positive outlook with green energy progress. While I support green energy alternatives, I have concerns in the rush to meet 2035 energy goals our environment and society will be negatively impacted transitioning from fossil fuel to electricity so quickly.

It takes significant amounts of coal and fossil fuels to manufacture and charge electric vehicles. Windmills and solar panels are not sufficient to produce that amount of energy alone, nor cost efficient to build and maintain for the amount of energy they produce over their lifetime.

The average citizen, even with tax subsidies, cannot afford a electric car, or maintain one over its lifetime. Inflation is hitting everyone's wallet hard. Our nation's electric grid is degraded and fragile. If too many air conditioners running during summer cause black outs, what happens to the grid when millions of drivers charge their electric cars at the same time?

China manufactures 75% of the worlds solar panels while polluting their environment. That is counterproductive and unethical. Scotland removed 14 millions of trees to plant windmill turbines. How is that not like destroying the Amazon rainforest? Windmills also kill millions of birds annually. In Wyoming wind turbines cannot be recycled at the end of their operating life, so are buried in landfills. When batteries in electric cars expire, they too go into landfills. That is not good for our soil or water resources. It seems like we are ironically destroying the earth in the rush to save it.

Transitioning from traditional fossil fuels to new green devices too quickly will result in massive disruption in an already unstable and stressed world. The planet is not going to end as soon as climate change doomsayers claim. We've had many predictions of climate apocalypses in the past, such as NYC becoming under water by the year 2000. Let's make a careful and gradual shift from fossil fuels to green energy, lest we add a new patch to a old garment, and end up making the tear worse.

Swim a Mile for Hospice slated

NORWOOD - This year's Swim-A-Mile for Hospice fundraising event will be held at Norwood Beach on Saturday, Aug. 5, from 8 a.m.-12 p.m.

Hospice swim-a-mile enthusiasts in 2022 raised $27,500 for the organization.

There will be a continental breakfast, swim send-off and closing celebration.

Participants will have until the morning of the swim to raise funds. Following the swim, an awards ceremony will take place on the beach, where exceptional fundraisers will be recognized and awarded.

Each participant is encouraged to raise a minimum of $125 for Hospice of St. Lawrence Valley (youth participants aged 10-14 and above are required to raise $50). This amount includes a $25 registration fee. As a token of our appreciation, each participant will receive a specially designed T-shirt and towel.

This year, the organizers are returning the local varsity swim team division and fundraising challenge. Local High School Swimmers and Teams are encouraged to participate together again in this year's Swim a Mile, for the first time since 2019. The team to raise the most money will be presented with a special plaque in the fall at a local home meet, along with bragging rights.

Historic Walk and Talk planned in O'burg

OGDENSBURG — A free Walk and Talk historic program for adults will take place July 21 at 10 a.m.

Participants should meet in front of the Ogdensburg Public Library, 312 Washington St., before start time.

Walk and Talk will feature historic homes and buildings and prominent people who resided on Washington Street and will end at the Bishop's residence.

This area is part of the Library Park National Historic District and was also the home of many prominent citizens, including Mayor John Hannan and Mayor Edgar Newell.

The goal of this program is to educate both tourists and Ogdensburg natives about the significance of a historic street in Ogdensburg-Washington Street.

The program will make use of QR technology to make this part of our local history more accessible.

QR (or Quick Response) codes are a machine-readable code consisting of an array of black and white squares, used for storing URLs or other information readable on smart phones, laptop computers or ipads.

Signs will be posted on the street with QR Codes.

Short informational videos, interactive photographs, and podcasts created by the city historian will be linked to each code, so program attendees will be able to access the history of each building by using their smartphones. This tour will be accessible online as well.

Walk and Talk is part of a series called Take a Walk Through History which focuses on the rich history of Ogdensburg.

Created by the city historian, this tour route connects Washington Street with the Library Park National Historic District.

A donation of $5 is suggested with all proceeds benefiting the Ogdensburg History Museum. Future tours will include this district and surrounding streets.

Walk and Talk is made possible through the generosity of the Northern New York Community Foundation and the Sweetgrass Foundation.

How to share your extra garden

BY SARA TRIMM

Master Gardener Volunteer

Cornell Cooperative Extension of St. Lawrence County

Nothing beats the taste of those first few harvests from the garden. The flavor and freshness, combined with the pride of having grown it yourself, just can't be beat... but when the novelty wears off, the freezer fills, and the excitement of processing your harvest turns into a chore, you might find yourself with an excess of wonderful food and no energy left to deal with it.

When you find yourself with an overabundance, you can share it with the people in our community who love delicious, fresh food, but have no means of growing their own. Here are some suggestions for connecting with them:

GardenShare has created a comprehensive interactive map where you can filter for food pantries and community meals. Locations and details are listed online at gardenshare.org/food-guide. United Helpers has a number of subsidized housing units throughout the county, and their house managers would be glad to talk to you about donating to the residents. Recovery and Safe Houses also welcome donations and reaching out to their respective directors would help you understand what they need most, or what they could consume.

There are many food donation options in every community here in the North Country. In my experience, these organizations and the people they serve are always grateful for fresh, nutritious food, even if you have enough for one family. Free will dinners sometimes provide "take home food" when they have extras, and your produce could be part of that offering. If we all share just a portion of our harvests, the impact will be staggering.

I recommend looking for an organization near you now, even if your harvest isn't ready. Find out who the best contact is, where you can drop things off, and what they will/can accept. Once you make that connection, when the busy harvest time arrives, it will be easier to follow through with the donation. When you create a connection with someone in your community who is doing wonderful work to serve your neighbors, I'm confident you'll be impressed with their dedication, and you'll learn about the real needs that are present right where you live. Those are the connections that make the world a better place.

Test it out this year to find your place, then as you plan for next year, consider increasing plantings of one or more crops that you can share. For most gardeners, the garden is our happy place and our therapy. By sharing our harvest, it also becomes a chance to grow our community.

How to make strawberry popsicles

Homemade popsicles are a great way to share a treat with your family.

The sugar can be significantly reduced from the store bought version without sacrificing on taste. There are infinite fun flavor combinations to experiment with.

The variations below include strawberries, but other fruits available in northern New York include blueberries and raspberries, or even applesauce!

Contributed by the Harvest Kitchen at the Extension Learning Farm

Ingredients

- 4 packed cups strawberries, fresh or frozen
 - 2 tsp vanilla extract
 - 1/2 cup maple syrup
 - 1- 2 TBSP minced herbs such as mint, basil, lemon verbena
1. Puree all ingredients until smooth in a blender or food processor.

cessor. Taste and adjust as needed.

2. Pour into popsicle molds until nearly full and freeze until solid

Notes

- You can increase the amount of sweetener in the popsicles because cold foods reduce the tongue's perception of sweetness.
- Popsicles are flexible, experiment with dairy or lactose free substitutes such as silken tofu, oat milk, or coconut milk.

Dragon Noodles

Fresh, local, quick stir fry

Enjoy a quick noodle stir fry filled with fresh local vegetables melded with a tasty peanut sauce.

Techniques used:
Stove top cooking
Contributed by Laurel Balog

Time: 45 minutes
Yield: 4 servings (15 minutes prep, 30 minutes cooking)

Ingredients

Noodles

- 1/2 to 1 package rice noodles

Stir fry

- 1 medium-large bunch leafy greens (bok choy, kale, swiss chard, collards, etc), chopped roughly
- 1-2 cups chopped mushrooms (small button varieties, such as crimini)
- 1/2 cup small diced radishes
- 3 scallions, chopped
- 1/4 -1/2 cucumber, chopped
- 6-8 garlic scapes, chopped
- 1 package tempeh, cut in 1/4 inch- 1/2 inch squares (see protein substitutions below)
- 2 TBSP olive oil

Sauce

- 1 small bunch cilantro, chopped
- 3-4 TBSP peanut butter
- 2-3 TBSP soy sauce or coconut aminos
- 1/2-1 can full coconut milk or 1 cup regular milk
- 1 TBSP sesame or olive oil
- Lime juice to taste

Instructions

1. In a medium bowl, combine all sauce ingredients and whisk together until a lightly thickened sauce forms. If the sauce is thick and doesn't spread well, add more coconut milk or milk to achieve a thinner sauce.
2. Cook noodles of your choice according to package directions. Drain and rinse with cold water.
3. In a medium to large pan, heat olive oil over medium heat. Cook tempeh until golden on each side, approximately 5 minutes. Remove from the pan and place onto a plate.
4. In that same pan, add additional oil if needed. Add in mushrooms, garlic scapes, and scallions. Cook until softened. Add in greens and cook until wilted and slightly soft. Remove from heat. Toss in radishes and cucumbers raw for an added crunch or keep separate.

5. Assemble your dragon noodles either by tossing noodles, vegetables, tempeh all in one big bowl with sauce or place noodles, vegetables, and tempeh topped with sauce in individual bowls.

6. Top with a squeeze of lime juice and/or chopped peanuts if desired.

Notes

- You can use any type of milk, sub approximately 1 cup of milk instead of the coconut milk.
 - To make prep easier, try a food processor to lightly chop radishes, cucumber, mushrooms, scallions, and garlic scapes. Process the radishes and cucumber separately from the ingredients that will be cooked so you can add them raw. Overprocessing will result in mushy bits.
 - Vegetables can be prepared ahead to be ready for busy weeknight cooking.
 - Cubed chicken, thinly sliced beef, shrimp, etc, can replace the tempeh.
 - Adjust sauce spicing to your liking - such as adding red pepper flakes, ginger or lemongrass.
 - Increase sauce as needed to coat the noodles and vegetables well.
- Find sourcing options for seizing summers' bounty in the GardenShare Local Food Guide, which covers St. Lawrence County, and the Adirondack Harvest Map, which covers a multi-county region across northern New York.

Ice cream stand in limbo

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

OGDENSBURG — The City of Ogdensburg will have final say on site plan approval for an ice cream stand at Hosmer's Marina after St. Lawrence County Planning Board officials opted to return the application for local action.

St. Lawrence County Planning Board officials met on June 8 to discuss the proposed project, offering just one comment on the site plan.

In documents obtained by North Country This Week, county planning board officials recommended that the applicant, William Hosmer, consider reducing parking to cut back on paving expenditures and to allow for more green space.

According to the document, county planning board officials say the referral was deemed to not have any countywide or intermunicipal significance, leading to the return to the local planning board. With the return to the local planning board, a simple majority is all that is needed to approve the site plan, county officials wrote.

The Company will own a leasehold interest in the Facility from the current owner through a long-term lease. The Agency will acquire an interest in the Facility. The financial assistance contemplated by the Agency will consist generally of the exemption from taxation expected to be claimed by the Company as a result of the Agency taking an interest in, possession or control (by lease, license or otherwise) of the Facility, or of the Company acting as the agent of the Agency, consisting of (i) an exemption from state and local sales and use tax with respect to the construction and renovation of the Facility; and (ii) an exemption from general real property taxation with respect to the Facility, which exemption shall be offset, in whole or in part, by contractual payments in lieu of taxes (the "PILOT") by the Company for the benefit of the affected tax jurisdictions.
A representative of the Agency will be at the above stated place and time to hear all persons with views in favor of or opposed to either the location or nature of the Facility, or the proposed financial assistance being contemplated by the Agency. At the hearing, all persons will have the opportunity to review the application for financial assistance filed by the Company with the Agency and an analysis of the costs and benefits of the proposed Project. In addition, at, or prior to, such hearing, interested parties may submit to the Agency written materials pertaining to such matters. Such materials may be submitted to the Agency at 19 Commerce Lane, Suite 1, Canton, New York 13617, or at lsibley@slcida.com and must be received no later than 10:00 a.m. one day prior to Public Hearing. Written statements provided to the Agency regarding the project will also become part of the record of public hearing. A transcript of the public hearing will be made available at a later date.
Please check the meeting information posted on the Agency website (www.slcida.com) to access instructions to join the meeting and to find copies of the application and the cost benefit analysis.

SEAWAY...

Place, Gary and Eileen's, Big Cheese, Busters, Salon 1020 and Cutting Edge Salon.

They can also be purchased online at <https://www.ogdensburg-seawayfestival.org/merchandise/> Alone said the sales are vital to the festival.

Although at this time carnival rides are not expected to return, he said there has been a long and continued effort to bring them back.

"We are always seeking carnival rides, but we've had a hard time getting them to come up North ever since COVID," he said.

He also noted that high diesel prices are a contributing part of the problem.

Still the festival has a lot to offer. A classic car show, live music at library park, tug of war contests, a 10-mile canoe race, and a 5k foot race are all on the menu.

Also returning is the craft show at Lockwood Arena, the Sandbar Classic and a petting zoo.

Lalone offered appreciation to all the sponsors who have helped make the event possible and encouraged the community to come out and support the event.

A full schedule of events can be found inside this edition of the paper on pages X.

falling apart.

Miller said there might be a few growing pains while his crews get the schedule for pickups down but if that were to happen, his crews would clean up everything.

Paquin also chimed in, saying his paper bags endured a rain storm last year before pickup and DPW crews were still able to remove them without issue.

"I'm just saying, if they get wet and fall apart I'm just going to sweep it down the street," the woman said.

Later in the meeting, Trustee Ken McGowan reminded residents that to dispose of clippings and leaves on village streets is a code violation.

While the two residents voiced concerns about the extra cost associated with paper bags, Miller also spoke to the cost of the service in general, saying it costs taxpayers thousands of dollars every year for crews to pick up the waste.

"Brush chipping alone costs somewhere in the neighborhood of $16,000 per year. That's a service that we provide to residents that is being paid for by residents but it's necessary," he said.

Miller also mentioned that during cleanup in the spring and fall, crews are working extra hours to meet the demand, which in turn leads to other tasks not being completed around the village.

The time potentially saved with paper bags would mean DPW crews could more quickly move onto other tasks, Miller said.

Paper bags are also biodegradable, something that trustees and Miller alike said was a selling point to make the switch. In the end, trustees opted to amend the resolution to begin the requirement of paper bags for pickup in the spring cleanup season.

"I think that is a fair solution and will give us time to get organized," Paquin said.

Residents will still be allowed to use plastic bags if they so wish, however they will be required to dispose of them themselves, Paquin said.

Village Administrator Monique Chatland also suggested speaking with local vendors to possibly purchase bags in bulk to resell to residents at cost to save them money.

Miller said he would look into a bulk purchase option and would report back to trustees in the near future.

self-serving practices at the expense of child sexual abuse survivors," Jeff Anderson and Associates law firm said in a joint press release with LaFave, Wien & Frament, PLLC. "The Diocese of Ogdensburg's resolution to declare bankruptcy shows, once again, a continuity in their intentions—which are, solely and purely, in service to their own self-interest," said attorney Cynthia LaFave. "In declaring bankruptcy, the Diocese knowingly obstructs survivors' long-awaited opportunity to say their piece; to be heard, to be acknowledged. Make no mistake, silencing survivors is exactly what the Diocese has always done. This decision is another in a long line of decisions aimed at preserving the Diocese's frail veneer by undermining the humanity and dignity of survivors."

The law firms say over half of New York's eight Catholic dioceses have filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy to date.

"The Diocese of Ogdensburg is running from accountability," said attorney Jeff Anderson. "Instead of standing up for the people entrusted to their care and acknowledging the harm done to children for which they are responsible, the Diocese is taking drastic, self-serving measures in an attempt to suppress the truth," the firms said.

Bishop LaValley however, said that the Diocese has instituted extensive policies and procedures to prevent sexual abuse.

"The procedures also ensure that allegations are responsibly and justly handled," according to the Bishop.

"We believe that the fact that there have been no claims filed alleging abuse occurred in the last 20 years is evidence that we have made great progress and are on the right course. Nevertheless, we remain vigilant."

The Bishop added that he is available to meet with every abuse survivor, and the Diocese continues to reach out to them with a goal of fostering reconciliation and healing for those who have been so immeasurably harmed." The Diocese said that prior to the implementation of the CVA, the Diocese offered assistance to survivors of abuse who made prior claims.

"In 2018, as part of the Year of Mercy, diocesan officials reached out to survivors through the Independent Reconciliation and Compensation Program (IRCP) seeking reconciliation with them and offering compensation for their suffering. Through the IRCP, 38 claims were resolved. An additional 14 claims were also settled outside the program.

The law firms say they have no plans to quit pushing forward.

"The survivors' courage and strength will not be extinguished by today's bankruptcy filing," added attorney Taylor Stippel. "North Country survivors are resilient. The true nature of the Diocese's dangerous patterns and practices will be revealed."
