City needs property owners to aid in waterline identification

BY JIMMY LAWTON
North Country This Week

OGDENSBURG – Property owners in Ogdensburg are being asked to help create an inventory of the city's water lines and to determine what types of pipes are being used by property owners.

The goal is to meet federal regulations issued by the Environmental Protection Agency.

In a press release issued Wednesday City Manager Fonda Chronis said the City of Ogdensburg will be conducting surveys to comply with federal regulations that require all public water systems to inventory water service lines and identify their material composition.

"The City is asking homeowners and business owners to cooperate by completing a short survey and submitting pictures of their water service lines," the release says.

"Building owners will receive a form in the mail with detailed instructions on how to fill it out and

Dairy plant not ready to take blame

Locals say they want to be able swim and fish in Deer River

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

BRASHER -- One week after the Department of Environmental Conservation attempted to address pollution concerns of citizens living along the Deer River, officials with North Country Dairy took to the mic.

Like last week, the meeting was contentious and filled with over 50 residents who were demanding answers from the plant's leadership as to what measures were being taken to clean up the Deer River.

But North Country Dairy CEO Kevin Ellis and interim plant manager Michael Zielinski did not always have answers.

The town hall meeting was yet another attempt to clarify what happened to the Deer River, what is being done to stop the contamination and what will be done to remediate the issues it has caused.

Just algae?

Ellis, who lives near Buffalo, said the plant "wants to be a good neighbor and do everything we can to address the issue."

But when prompted to admit that North Country Dairy is contaminating the river, Ellis shot back at residents that the Notice of Violation issued to the plant simply stated the river growth is "algae."

"That's all it says, algae," he said. Ellis told residents that the DEC's

The North Country Dairy community forum followed on the heels of a similar community meeting hosted by the Department of Environmental Conservation. report and Notice of Violation point fingers at the plant, essentially arguing "it is happening down river of your discharge pipe and not upstream of it, therefore you must be the cause."

Ellis said that justification alone is not enough to prove one way or another if the plant is contaminating the river.

"We don't even know what it is. It just says algae," Ellis said in reference to DEC documents.

"We know what it is. The DEC said it's

Grant funds mentors for local students

Alcoa Foundation gives $20,000 for STEM projects

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

MASSENA -- The Massena Central School District's Raider Academy will be able to bring in Clarkson University mentors thanks in large part to a $20,000 grant from the Alcoa Foundation.

Superintendent Ron Burke told school board members the grant will allow the district to bring in Raider Academy mentors and support project-based STEM projects during the summer.

"I'd like to thank Danielle Chapman for securing that," he said.

Chapman, who works as the district's director of education support services, was on hand for the meeting to request the board accept the grant funding.

"These funds will be used to pay for Clarkson University mentors to go to each elementary school for Raider Academy during the 2024-25 school year. The mentors will provide project-based STEM enrichment activities," she said.

Chapman said all supplies and materials for the STEM activities and projects will be covered through the grant, along with a STEM field trip to the Children's Museum in Potsdam.

Chapman said Clarkson University will also be providing STEM summer camps for elementary students next summer.

Students in grades three through six will be able to participate.

School board members also accepted a donation from the Class of 2024, which included two Spikeball sets, two extra Spikeballs, a full pickleball set, a set of pickleball paddles and balls, a Boss Toss set and a Kan Jam travel set.

Community Schools Director Kristin Colarusso-Martin informed the board of the donations, reading the extensive list off to board members.

Along with the game sets, the Class of 2024 also donated snow cone cups and 12 bottles of snow cone flavoring to the Nightengale PTO as a way to say thank you for lending their snow cone machine, officials said.

They also donated leftover squirt toys other than the Nightengale second grade and kindergarten classes.

The Class of 2024 also donated two, 120-can coolers to the main kitchen, as well as Slip 'N Slides for kindergarten students, as well as the Massena Recreation Department for the summer recreation program.

Lawsuit from convicted pedophile dismissed

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

CANTON -- A federal judge has dismissed a lawsuit against St. Lawrence County that was filed by former attorney Michael Kelsey, who was convicted of sexually assaulting a child and attempting to assault another during a Boy Scout camping trip to Cranberry Lake in 2014.

Victims told investigators that Kelsey assaulted one boy and attempted to assault another during the trip.

Kelsey previously filed a lawsuit in the Southern District of New York, United States District Court, in an attempt to strike at the constitutionality of his sex offender status, which was overturned on appeal in November.

As a result of the dismissal, Kelsey could potentially appeal the decision, however court documents state "that any appeal from this Order would not be taken in good faith, and therefore in forma pauperis status is denied for the purpose of an appeal."

With in forma pauperis status denied, Kelsey would be subject to paying all fees associated with an appeal and would not have filing fees and other related expenses waived.

St. Lawrence County Attorney Steve Button said the county was "pleased with the outcome" and will continue to litigate the matter in court if Kelsey were to appeal.

"We feel we will continue to be victorious in this matter and we aim to ensure that the rule of law is enforced in a civilized society," Button told NCTW.

Button said the county takes such matters very seriously, noting that Kelsey was in fact convicted of multiple felonies by a jury of his peers.

"It's fairly well known now that Kelsey was in fact a Dutchess County legislator at the time of his charges, as well as a federal litigator. He has since been disbarred but is still able to represent himself," Button said.

Kelsey was charged with sexual abuse first-degree: person incapable of consent- physically helpless (D felony), attempted sexual abuse first-degree: person incapable of consent- physically helpless (F felony) and forcible touching: forcibly touching other person's sexual/intimate parts (A misdemeanor).

He was subsequently convicted on May 12, 2016. Kelsey was originally sentenced to an aggregate prison term of seven years to be followed by 10 years of post release supervision following his conviction.

The punishment issued in 2016 was then held up on an appeal, according to court documents.

Kelsey was released from prison in May 2022 but prior to his release, a risk assessment instrument was submitted by the Board of Examiners of Sex Offenders that classified him as a risk level two sex offender with a sexually violent offender designation.

He is still listed as a level two sex offender with a sexually violent offender designation, according to the state database.

Kelsey previously tried to reargue the designation but was denied "based on a failure to provide notice of motion to the People," according to court documents.

Mother says law that cleared Senate would have saved her son's life

BY PAUL MITCHELL
North Country This Week

CANTON – Mary Rodee, a Canton mother who lost her 15-year-old son to suicide after the teenager was targeted online, said if the Kids Online Safety Act (KOSA) that passed in the state Senate on Tuesday, July 30, had been in place, her son would be alive today.

Her son, Riley K. Basford, was a sophomore at Potsdam Central School, when he committed suicide in 2021.

“The vote in the Senate to pass the Kids Online Safety & Privacy Act is historic. It is the first time in more than 25 years that our lawmakers have passed any regulation on social media platforms at all. I know it will save lives and I know it would have saved my son Riley. The bill’s ‘duty of care’ provision forces Big Tech companies to prioritize the well-being of their users over the size of their bank accounts. They should have been willing to do this on their own but, sadly, showed us time and again they were not. Thankfully, KOSA gives them no choice,” Rodee remarked.

“I’m hopeful, I want the house to pick this up and pass it and get this done with Biden who says he cares

‘The bill’s “duty of care” provision forces Big Tech companies to prioritize the well-being of their users over the size of their bank accounts.’

Mary Rodee

Mother of the late Riley K. Basford about kids online safety,” she said.

Rodee believes the hard work and persistence definitely paid off.

“I’m not much for getting too excited but I feel relief and that the travel and grief growth of telling our story over and over have all been worthwhile. Being part of the first legislation to pass Congress in 25 years. I really think that he was talking about Riley,” Rodee stated. “A lot of credit was given to leader Schumer for getting this done. I wish I could understand the ins and outs of it but I don’t.”

The U.S. Senate also passed the Children and Teens’ Online Privacy Protection Act (COPPA 2.0).

Sen. Majority Leader Charles E. Schumer, who worked with families and advocates to garner support for this legislation, made the announcement on July 30.

He explained these bipartisan bills are the most robust federal tech reforms for children in decades, and will institute a set of safeguards, accountability, and privacy measures that shield children in New York and across the country from the harms created by social media companies and other online platforms.

The Kids Online Safety Act (KOSA) will create more requirements for platforms to create a safe online environment for kids and teens. The bipartisan bill will:

Require platforms to give kids and teens the option to protect their data and opt out of algorithmic recommendations.

Allow parents to control how their kids’ information is used and require platforms to create a dedicated channel to report harmful behavior.

Obligate platforms to prevent and mitigate dangers to minors by limiting the promotion of harmful behavior such as suicide, eating disorders, substance abuse, and sexual exploitation.

Require independent audits to research how social media platforms impact kids’ and teens’ mental health and well-being.

The Children and Teens’ Online Privacy Protection Act (COPPA 2.0) strengthens online privacy protections for kids and teens. The bipartisan bill builds on the original Children and Teens’ Online Privacy Protection Act signed into law in 1998 which created protections for children under the age of 13, and will:

Prohibit internet companies from collecting data from users under the age of 17 without their consent, increasing the age from COPPA’s legislation.

Ban advertising that targets kids and teens.

Revise the requirement established in COPPA that obligates platforms to protect kids and teens if they have “actual knowledge” of their age, instead covering all platforms that are “reasonably likely to be used” by kids and teens.

Require companies to allow the deletion of data for kids and teens when possible by creating an “eraser button.”

$7 million grant will cover cost of county’s human trafficking task force

Renewal House to get $2.2 million

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI

North Country This Week

CANTON -- The St. Lawrence County Sheriff’s Office has been awarded a five-year Howard G. Buffett Foundation grant that will cover costs associated with the county Human Trafficking Task Force.

Legislators signed off on a budget modification to accept the grant funding for the Sheriff’s Office during the July 29 finance committee meeting.

Officials say the task force includes local law enforcement, victim service agencies, legal services and outreach entities.

According to Chief Deputy Leighton Filiatrault, the Sheriff’s Office will soon hire a second detective, along with a crime analyst.

Filiatrault told legislators the crime analyst position is a desk job of sorts that “has become necessary” with how investigations are conducted now.

Along with those positions, officials will also purchase new computers, software for the crime analyst position.

A senior level investigator and attorney will also be added for the District Attorney’s Office, along with a new vehicle.

Filiatrault said a large portion of the funds will also be utilized by Renewal House to support victims.

The grant funds will be administered by the Sheriff’s Office with sub-awards to the District Attorney’s Office and Renewal House to cover criminal investigations, prosecutions, outreach, legal advocacy, case management, emergency assistance, training coordination and data analysis.

As part of the project, county officials will establish and formalize a St. Lawrence County Human Trafficking Task Force, which will be focused on labor trafficking.

“The goals of this grant are to investigate and prosecute labor trafficking, provide comprehensive services to survivors, build the capacity to identify and respond to labor trafficking in Northern New York, engage in outreach and trust building with vulnerable communities and to also collect and use data,” the resolution states.

The grant will cover a five-year period from 2024 through 2029, totaling $7,011,620.

Renewal House will receive $2,260,609 to cover salary, fringes and “other necessary equipment and contractual expenses,” while $251,768.54 is considered indirect costs as part of the grant program.

The Sheriff’s Office will see the creation of three positions, including an administrative assistant, crime analyst and detective, while the District Attorney’s office will see one assistant district attorney position added.

The modification now moves to the full board for final approval on Aug. 5.

County legislators call for censure of Potsdam town board member

Comments comparing Trump assassination attempt to 'putting down rabid dog' cause stir

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI

North Country This Week

CANTON -- St. Lawrence Legislators have called for the censure of Potsdam Town Board Member Christine Paige following her social media comments that likened the attempted assassination of former President Donald Trump to "putting down a rabid dog."

Voting in favor of the resolution to call for her censure and resignation by the Potsdam Town Board were Legislators David Forsythe, John Gennett, Rita Curran, Jim Reagan, William Sheridan, Harry Smithers, Rick Perkins, Ben Hull, Daniel Fay and Glenn Webster.

Voting against the resolution were Legislators Nicole Terminelli, Joseph Lightfoot, Larry Denesha, Margaret Haggard and John Burke.

An attempt to modify the resolution to omit language to call for her censure and resignation failed prior to the original resolution passing.

Following debate to modify the resolution, Chairman Forsythe voiced a strong opinion on the situation, saying he had never voted to censure anyone prior to this but that he felt compelled to use his First Amendment rights to express his opinion.

"This is ridiculous how we are not supporting getting rid of someone who says something like this," he said. "This woman has gone above and beyond any imagination of what this world is coming to."

Forsythe said he has been following the news recently, saying that the turmoil in Venezuela currently following a contentious election "isn't far off" in the United States due to calls for violence against political candidates and elected officials.

"Potsdam should be disgraced. I hope this woman puts Potsdam on the map," he said.

Forsythe continued, saying he didn't care if the resolution passed but rather that he would voice his opinion on Paige and the current situation.

"I think the Potsdam Town Board should ask her to resign. This is ridiculous," he said.

Forsythe said he "didn't need to sugar coat it" when it came to the language of the original resolution, saying any debate over whether the county legislature had the right and responsibility to call on another board to call for a member to resign was not even relevant. Forsythe

'Potsdam should be disgraced. I hope this woman puts Potsdam on the map.'

David Forsythe
Legislature chairman

said the county legislature was well within their rights to ask for another board to call for a resignation of a member.

"If we don't know the difference from right and wrong, I think we've got some issues ourselves," he said.

Initial comments cause uproar

Town Council member Christine Paige, who said in a Facebook conversation that shooting the former president would be like "putting down a rabid dog," told North Country This Week in a separate conversation that she has a right to freedom of speech and she did not apologize for her statements.

Her comments were part of a larger conversation thread in which the original poster said "Shit they missed his head," in the wake of a failed assassination attempt.

Potsdam Town Supervisor Marty Miller said statements made on Facebook on July 13 by town board member Christine Paige where she compared the assassination attempt to "putting down a rabid dog," were not "in any way" shared thoughts of the town board at large.

"The Board does not agree with the statement and denounces the comments made. This act of freedom of speech, as the Board member claims it to be, may have satisfied their own needs; the consequences have been severe to the integrity of this Board and the Community of Potsdam as a whole," Miller said in the statement.

"I can tell you firsthand that this selfish act of one person's satisfaction has been a nightmare for me and the rest of the Board the last couple of weeks. Even the staff at the Town Hall has had to put up with phone calls, voicemails, and emails, taking us all away from our daily duties as representatives of the Town of Potsdam," the supervisor said.

The original Facebook conversation where Paige made the statements was taken down at some point after the initial post. However, a screenshot capture of the exchange can be read online here.

Blowback over the incident reached the county level as well and Legislator Glenn J. Webster, District 11, told North Country This Week in an earlier conversation that he planned to introduce some form of resolution at an upcoming meeting that would decry Paige's statements.

In a separate interview with this newspaper, Paige said her right to free speech under the First Amendment included her statements on Facebook regarding the former president, and she did not apologize or attempt to walk back the comments.

She said had not paid much attention to the outcry over her comments, calling her critics' reactions "foolishness."

Some legislators conflicted

While Forsythe told the board he was not conflicted in calling on the Potsdam Town Board to ask for Paige's resignation, other legislators said it set a precedent they were not comfortable with.

Legislator Margaret Haggard said she was "conflicted" but was "sick of hate speech" at the same time. "I'm conflicted but I will tell you, political violence and hate speech is a threat to democracy, I truly believe that. It promotes division and harm. And I'm sick of it," she said in reference to Paige's comments.

"The First Amendment protects freedom of speech, it does not excuse or justify actions that incite or spread violence," she continued.

Haggard said she "deplored" what was happening, saying she agreed with the majority of the resolution but drew the line at calling for censures and resignations.

"The town supervisor (Marty Miller) addressed this. The town board should do as they see fit," she said. Miller recently released a letter, calling the situation "a nightmare" for town officials and the Potsdam Town Board.

"I'm not willing to ask her to resign but do believe that promoting violence, regardless of who it is, I don't care about political affiliation in that regard. I hate it. Hate speech is ruining our country, it really is," she said.

Haggard said she knew that Legislator Glenn Webster, the sponsor of the resolution, put a significant amount of time and effort into the resolution.

"I know Legislator Webster put a lot of thought into this, he tried his best to be non-partisan and I really appreciate that," she said.

Legislator Joseph Lightfoot called Paige's comments "disgraceful and repugnant" but said he was of the opinion that it was not the responsibility of the legislature to urge the Potsdam Town Board to take action.

He said that would be similar to another board calling on the county legislature to censure one of its own members. Lightfoot said the county legislature has had "a few issues where censure and speech concerning other people came to the attention of the board for action," which prompted the legislature to take action.

He said he was not aware of any village or town boards calling on the legislature to take action, but Legislator Rita Curran commented that the Town of Potsdam had previously issued a resolution calling for action to censure a legislator and to urge calls for a member's resignation in the past.

"They were perfectly fine passing one our way," she said. Curran called Paige's comments "dangerous language" that was "essentially asking someone to kill a former president."

"I don't think that's language that should come from anyone," she said.

Both Lightfoot and Curran commented that Paige would have to live with the consequences and fallout of her comments for years to come.

"Some people probably aren't ever going to ever be OK with this," Curran said.

"People, myself included, are shocked by the language and demeanor of this person. I didn't hear them but I am told they are on Facebook, which I don't participate in. As I said, I personally agree with it (the resolution), but I don't think it's my right to insert myself into another legislative body," Lightfoot concluded.

Legislators John Burke, Larry Denesha and Rick Perkins echoed Lightfoot's sentiment, but refused to support of the resolution due to the calls for censure and resignation.

Call for action

While a handful of Republican legislators said they were "uncomfortable" with the language of the resolution, others strongly supported taking action as Forsythe suggested.

Legislator Ben Hull argued that the legislature was well within its rights to call on the Potsdam Town Board to take action, just as the legislature has done numerous times with state officials.

"We don't police or control the governor but we have a right to speak on matters that affect our constituents," he said.

"Censure is a formal rebuke, not a violation of free speech," Hull said.

Hull said as the highest legislative body in the county, the legislature "should have the right" to call for such action, just as other bodies reserve the same right to call on the county and state officials to take action. Hull said the voters made their decision during the election to bring Paige to the board, however it was not inappropriate for the legislators to call for censure.

"We have a right to speak up for what's right...to speak out against an evil, such as the language used," he said. Hull said he wanted to draw focus to the language of the resolution and to ensure it clearly stated that the legislature was in fact calling on the town board to censure Paige.

While members of the public have called on the legislature to censure Paige themselves, County Attorney Steve Button clarified during the full board meeting that the county does not have the power to do so.

"You do not have the legal authority to censure a member of another board. It's a punishment invoked by a board on its own member," he said.

Button did say, however, that the legislature did have the right to call for a censure.

While some legislators condemned Paige's comments, Hull said it "boggled his mind" that some legislators were unwilling to call for a censure. He said "speech doesn't come from a vacuum" but rather from an individual.

"I don't think the distinction makes any sense at all," he said.

Legislator James Reagen agreed with Hull, saying that members of political parties and those who hold office need to be held accountable for their actions and comments.

"The notion of an elected official supporting the assassination of a major party or any other candidate for public office or anyone else is just a repugnant (comment) and the ultimate in political extremism," he said.

Reagen said he had no issues condemning Paige, saying that her comments went beyond free speech.

"People have a right to free speech. God knows I exercised my right to freedom of speech for many, many years. But I also understood that when I did that people had the right to criticize that," he said.

Reagen said such rhetoric is "poisoning our civic discourse."

"Some pick and choose when something rises to the state of condemnation," he said.

Legislator Glenn Webster, who sponsored the resolution, called into question what the response would be if he made a similar comment.

"What would happen if I suggested someone here be shot in the head or be 'put down like a rabid dog'?" Webster asked.

"We can ask Potsdam to do that (censure), just as they did us," Webster said.

Webster said Paige as "almost so arrogant about it" as she previously stated she felt the situation would "just blow over" in time.

In an interview with North Country This Week she said she had no intention of apologizing for her statements.

"She says it's just 'silliness,'" Webster said.

He said if the legislature did not take action and there were no consequences that similar actions and rhetoric would continue and worsen, creating an even larger divide.

"We need to ask them to do what is right," he said.

Webster said the people in the Town of Potsdam will have their own opinions and their own opportunity to address the situation at the next town board meeting.

"It's just totally wrong," he said. In the end, legislators approved the measure 10-5 in its original form, calling on the Potsdam Town Board to censure Paige and to ask for her resignation.

$75,000 Sam Grant to fund water rescue, dive team for Waddington Fire

WADDINGTON -- The Waddington Fire Department has been awarded a $75,000 grant through the State and Municipal Facilities Program (SAM).

Assemblyman Scott Gray (R-Watertown) announced this significant investment in local emergency services on Saturday, Aug. 3.

This funding will be dedicated to establishing a water rescue and dive team for the department, enhancing safety and emergency response in the Waddington section of the St. Lawrence River and beyond.

The press conference, held at the Waddington Fire Department, was attended by key community leaders including the mayor of the Village of Waddington, the town supervisor of the Town of Waddington, the Waddington Fire Department fire chief and other department representatives.

"Ensuring the safety of residents and visitors who enjoy this beautiful area is a top priority. This grant will provide the Waddington Fire Department with the necessary resources to respond swiftly and effectively to water emergencies, ultimately saving lives," Gray said.

The $75,000 SAM grant will be utilized to acquire specialized dive and water rescue equipment.

The new dive team will be equipped to handle a variety of water-related emergencies, including swift water rescues, underwater recovery and other critical incidents.

Waddington Mayor Mike Zagrobelny expressed gratitude for the funding.

"The Village of Waddington is grateful to Assemblyman Gray and New York state for the funding to establish a dive team within the Waddington Volunteer Fire Department," Zagrobelny said. "The village is especially grateful to the members of the Waddington Volunteer Fire Department who will take on one more task to help make our community safer."

Waddington Fire Department Fire Chief

Kevin Sharlow added, "We are incredibly grateful to Assemblyman Scott Gray for his generous grant of $75,000. This funding will enable the Waddington Volunteer Fire Department to acquire essential dive gear, significantly enhancing our ability to respond to water emergencies and ensuring the safety of our community."

Town supervisor Travis McKnight said, "A major thank you to Assembly member Gray for the SAM grant, to help establish our rescue dive team. This will be a great addition to the Waddington area and to St. Lawrence County. This will help improve safety all along the St. Lawrence River."

Rep. Stefanik urging Gov. Hochul to seek federal funding for flood victims

Congresswoman Elise Stefanik is urging New York Governor Kathy Hochul to seek federal funding to help out counties and municipalities across New York's 21st Congressional District severely impacted by the July 10 flooding.

Stefanik sent a letter to the governor asking her to submit a request for a Presidential disaster declaration to the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

"As the Representative of the counties and municipalities in NY-21 that faced the most severe damage following the disastrous July 10th storms, I am urging Kathy Hochul to request a Presidential disaster declaration to unlock resources that will help our communities rebuild as quickly as possible," the Congresswoman said.

In the letter, Stefanik states, "My office has spoken with local officials throughout Upstate New York regarding the severe damage suffered by many communities. These officials report widespread destruction which has displaced residents, shuttered businesses, and severely compromised public infrastructure. Significant flooding requires a carefully coordinated response and all affected areas must be reviewed."

"As the state concludes its assessment I encourage you to submit a Presidential disaster declaration request to the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). Since any request for federal disaster assistance must be submitted within 30 days of the incident this must be submitted as soon as possible," she continued.

Hunting licenses can now be printed at home

St. Lawrence County outdoorsmen can now purchase hunting licenses for the 2024-25 season, even printing them at home.

The paper used for state sporting licenses and carcass tags has changed from special stock synthetic paper to plain paper, according to New York State Department of Environmental Conservation officials.

This change modernizes the license purchasing process by allowing quicker access to licenses and tags and offering at-home license and tag printing options for hunters, trappers, and anglers who purchase licenses online.

Customers will still be able to purchase licenses in-person at an issuing agent, online, or over the phone, but will have more flexibility in license delivery, including printing at the point-of-sale or email and print-at-home.

Additionally, when hunters and anglers are afield, proof of licensure can be shown electronically through the HuntFish-NY mobile app. The app is also a fast and easy way for hunters to report their game harvests. Currently, the only option for back-tags and carcass tags will be plain paper.

Lifetime license holders should expect to receive their 2024-25 licenses and tags on plain paper by mail by Sept. 1, 2024.

Between August 5 and October 1, hunters may apply for two Deer Management Permits within the same or two different WMUs depending on availability. The probability of being selected to receive a DMP is based on the number of DMPs available, and the number of hunters expected to apply in a particular WMU, but the chances of being selected are the same throughout the entire application period.

Hunters may also transfer or receive up to two DMPs from other hunters and any leftover DMPs become available again through license issuing agents beginning November 1.

Trump is not against farmers

This letter is a reply to the foolishness that Willow Shirtz spewed the other day. ("A Vote Against Trump Shows Support for Farmers," posted July 25.)

So let me give you 400 words of reality, from an actual farmer! Under President Trump farm fuel $2 a gallon. Under Pudding, I mean Biden $4 a gallon.

Under President Trump fertilizer $475 per ton. Under Clueless/Communist I mean Biden/Harris $900 per ton.

Under President Trump I bought a new Tractor for $49,000.00. Under Sleepy and The Venn Diagram same Tractor $78,000.00. Under Mumbles and the Canadian hyena, Seed, Building Materials, Parts (if you can get them), Trucking, Electricity, basically everything has doubled. Not to mention people's purchasing power has greatly declined due to the devaluation of our dollar.

Which is why both wallets and shopping carts are empty! Moving on Willow, thanks to your beloved Democrats, Green Wet Dream, plus Kathy Hochul and the morons at the IDA, St. Lawrence County is on pace to lose over 4,000 acres of farmland to Solar panels.

In Farm terms that's 2,000 Dairy Cows, 3,000 Beef Cows, 13,440,000 pounds of Corn, or 14,400,000 pounds of soybean.

Maybe you and the other Crunchy Granola types, are happy with your diet of twigs, gravel, and belly lint, but most people aren't.

Farmers want to produce high quality, abundant, reasonably priced food. Our only obstacle? Democrats.

So if you like empty shelves, empty wallets, beautiful farms being polluted with inefficient solar panels, and waiting 12 hours to charge your Barbie Jeep so you can drive 10 miles before the battery dies. Then by all means, go ahead, vote like Willow.

However the American Farmer, the 1% that feeds the entire nation. The people that work 365 days a year, so you can eat 3 meals a day. We know the only way to save not just our farms, but the entire damn country is Trump 2024.

End-of-Life series appreciated

The Ogdensburg Public Library's Program Committee recently wrapped up the End-Of-Life series. This was a four-part series investigating the various aspects of planning for the end of life. The topics covered included: funeral planning, financial and legal issues, Hospice care, obituary writing, and surviving and thriving after a loss. The attendees appreciated the amount of information gained from each presentation.

We would like to thank the following community members who participated in the series: St. Lawrence County Surrogate Court Judge Michelle Ladouceur, Funeral Director Patty Murray of Fox-Murray Funeral Home, Bereavement Coordinator at Hospice of St. Lawrence Valley Kate Favaro, and author Holly Chorbba. Their time and expertise are appreciated.

If you missed the series and would like the information, it is viewable on the YouTube channel through the Ogdensburg Public Library.

Thank you for your support of the Ogdensburg Public Library.

Praises Stefanik for border security

For years now immigration has been a major topic of discussion in our country and our community. The North Country of New York State is home to well over 150 miles of the US-Canada border. Many politicians and talking heads in the media focus on the crisis at the southern border, but we can't allow them to forget about us up north. Illegal immigration is hurting our communities Upstate too. We deserve the same attention, and more importantly, we deserve a secure border.

I'm grateful for our Congresswoman Elise Stefanik for leading the charge to secure our northern border and giving the residents of the North Country a voice at the highest levels of our government. She recognizes the importance of keeping our border safe and secure for the sake of our communities and the citizens that make this country great. Congresswoman Stefanik knows that the immigration system needs common-sense reform and adjustment.

She has worked tirelessly with Republicans and Democrats alike to ensure the Border Patrol is provided the tools and resources necessary to keep us safe.

I'm happy to see that Elise's dedication is recognized by her peers in Congress, who appointed her Co-Chair of the Northern Border Caucus.

When the Department of Homeland Security pushed to move Border Patrol agents away from the Canadian border, Stefanik pushed back. I'm proud to be represented by a fighter like Elise and I look forward to voting for her again this November.

The silly season has commenced

Here we are, less than 90 days out from Election Day in the Divided States of America, and the field is set. Representing the Grand Old Republican Party, in this corner we have the 45th President of our once-great nation, Donald J. Trump and his pick for vice president: the junior U.S. Senator from Ohio, author of two books, James David "J.D." Vance. Make some noise, people.

And in this corner, selected, but not elected to represent the un-democratic Democrat party this year, by act of coronation, she helped make San Francisco crappy, current vice president and "Border Czar", Joe Biden's faithful sidekick, Kamala Devi Harris, and her pick as running mate: he helped put the "pro" in "progressivism", two-time Minnesota governor, Tim Walz. Go crazy, people.

And, in this other corner, hoping to be a spoiler and raise awareness of quality road kill meats, a former Democrat from a long line of your grand-daddy's Democrats, now running as an Independent on 42 state ballots, let's hear it for anti-vaccine activist and conspiracy theorist, Robert F. Kennedy Junior and his VP pick: Silicon Valley lawyer, philanthropist, and former wife of some dude who co-founded Google (boo! hiss!), Nicole Shanahan.

In the fourth corner, there's nobody who has a snowball's chance in Daytona of garnering 1% or more of the votes, so, "Let's get ready to rumble."

It's a grudge match between the GOP and their desire to "Make America Great Again" for all American citizens of all colors and ethnicities, and the DEMS who oppose restricting voting to U.S. citizens only, and who have allowed between 10 million and 20 million undocumented (that means "illegal") aliens to flood across our once-secure southern border in hopes of creating Democrat-voters-for-life even if it destroys America.

That same party, which has given us three years of "Bidenomics" undoing all of the gains made under Trump-45, resulting in higher prices for food, fuel, and housing, now calls for "unity" while continuing to implement policies that only divide Americans.

"Silly Season", the run-up to the 2024 General Election, will be a wild, knock down, drag out affair, so you had better strap in tight because it's gonna get bumpy folks. And may God bless America with the leaders we need and not the leaders we deserve on the occasion of the 220th Anniversary of the Expedition of Lewis & Clark

"Up the Missouri"

AUG. 24 AT 2 P.M.

Free and Open to the Public

In May of 1804, a team of very rugged men led by Merriweather Lewis and William Clark, set out to explore territory west of the Mississippi to mainly find out if there was a northwest passage to the mighty Pacific Ocean. This story takes place over two years and will be told over a three-year lecture series.

This year, will focus on part one, "Up the Missouri", covering the period from May 1804 to April of 1805. It includes many adventures of the "Corp of Discovery", including encounters with the natives, exploring the land, the animals and "flora and fauna". It also includes spending their first winter in North Dakota...barely surviving one of the toughest winters in many years.

Sponsored by Niles Financial Group would now at least be considered a long term resident and property owner in the Village of Massena, where the current Potsdam Town Supervisor, Mr. Miller, also simultaneously holds a full-time position as the Massena Village DPW Supervisor.

Not sure how Mr. Miller manages to juggle both positions effectively, but perhaps if he truly feels, as he stated in his release to NCN, that he and other Potsdam Town Board members have had to, "put up with phone calls, voicemails, and emails" and that it has "been a nightmare for me and the rest of the Board", then respectfully, perhaps Mr. Miller might consider stepping down from either one of these two positions.

"Putting up with" phone calls, voicemails, and emails from one's constituency, is part of the Job Description of a Town Supervisor and Board.

I am in no way condoning what the particular Potsdam Town Board Member apparently stated on social media regarding the assassination attempt on former President Trump. At best it was tasteless. I don't like it at all, and if one of my children had done so, for example, they would have been given a strict lesson on civics, civic duty, and what the ramifications of making such ignorant, thoughtless statements can be. A visit from the Secret Service perhaps?

And as can probably be gleaned by some of my previous submissions, it's my position that Trump embodies everything that can possibly be wrong with a person, all stuffed into one human being. No Fan. But I don't want to see the Former President murdered. I would like to see him expire of old age, but in Trump's case, preferably from within a prison cell.

That all being said, the First Amendment does not exist in order to protect popular speech. Sorry. The First Amendment exists in order to protect unpopular speech. The only way to defeat bad speech, or even hate speech, is with better speech. Either vote her out, or put out your own, better speech. That's how it works.

In the meantime, if what someone says on social media so upsets you, I would submit, get off of social media. It's not necessary. It's a complete waste of time, as well as mental health, and it's actually really, and I mean really, easy to do so.

People have forgotten. I'm in my 50s and have never had a social media account in my life. Yet somehow, I miraculously manage to wake up each day, survive, and thrive in this modern world just fine without it.

Virtue Signaling is not "Virtuous". It's Self Promotion.

Le Siege' event thank you

The Fort Presentation Association Board is pleased to announce the successful presentation of the "Le Siege" event held on July 20th and 22nd at the Fort Association property on Rensselaer Point in Ogdensburg, New York

The weather was perfect for our reenactors and our visitors as well. Reenactors from across New York, Ontario, Quebec, and New England came together to demonstrate the history and culture of the French influence in the development of the City of Ogdensburg.

We had presenters who taught us the history of music, medicine and play during the French period of the 18th Century. The Association would like to thank the sponsors of "Le Siege" whose contributions demonstrated that there is support for this type of historical event from our friends and businesses.

Our sponsors this year were the St. Lawrence Federal Credit Union, John and Barbara O'Keefe, Atlantic Testing Laboratories, Stewart's Shops, St. Lawrence County Chamber of Commerce, Kiwanis Club of Ogdensburg, Phillips Diner, Labella Associates D.P.C., Middlemiss Trucking and Moving, the Roman Catholic Diocese of Ogdensburg, Ogdensburg School District, Dr. Michael Seidman, Strader-Ferris International, SeaComm Federal Credit Union, Community Investment Service, John Barone Rupp Pfalzgraf, LLC, Austin-Laying, Inc, Save-A-Lot, McDonald's Ogdens-

City's brush crackdown too aggressive

It seems the SS Gestapo has come to the homeowners of the City of Ogdensburg that have trees or grass on their property. Last weekend I received a "Notice of Violation" from the City of Ogdensburg Office of Code Enforcement. "A routine field inspection revealed a problem regarding the above referenced property caused by a Brush pile out of schedule "If I fail to remove within 5 days the City will have no other choice but to take "appropriate" actions to resolve the issue. A threat to have City crews remove and charge me the actual cost plus 10% and a civil penalty of $100 shall be added to next year's City taxes.

I have 15 trees on my property and several others that border my property. Several times this summer I've spent hours cleaning up branches from around my property due to the numerous windstorms we have witnessed this summer. I understand that it is part of my responsibility as a good citizen to keep my property cleaned up and orderly.

However, I don't deserve, and many of my fellow city residents don't deserve, to receive such a threatening letter from the city that I have lived in my entire life and spent years trying to make this a better place to live and work. If I were told in a professional manner to take care of the brush or yard waste within a reasonable time, more than five weekdays, I would understand and will comply.

Too many residents that I've known for years now live outside the city of Ogdensburg. How many more of us taxpayers will join them because of how we're treated by the City Office of Code Enforcement?

Trump not connected to Project 2025

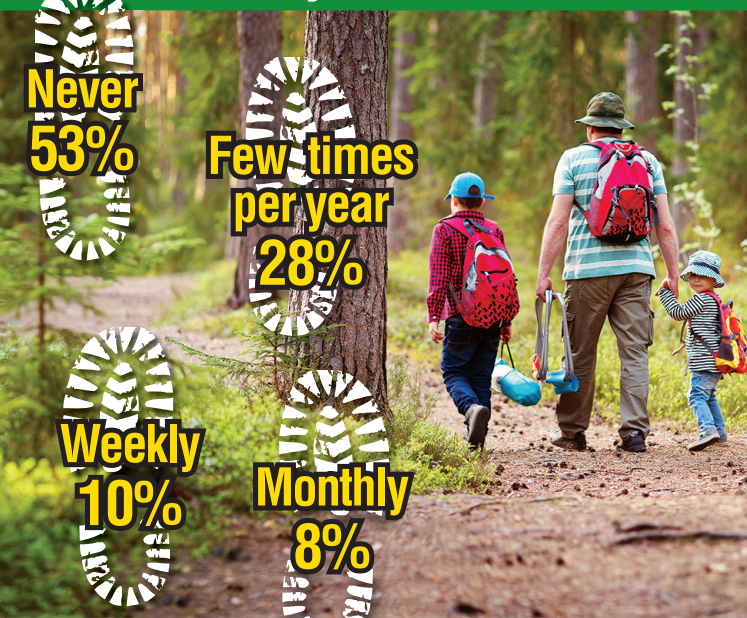

More and more I see former President Trump being wrongfully connected to something called Project 2025, supposedly a far right plan for America if he is elected.

President Trump claims he has never read the plan, he has seen some of the contents but he doesn't plan on imposing any of the far right policies on the plan.

In my opinion, I believe President Trump. Also, in my opinion, the allegations of Trump's involvement with whatever Project 2025 is nothing more than more misinformation

Youth actors to take the stage in Ogdensburg

The Magic Treehouse: Pirates Past Noon to be presented in November

OGDENSBURG -- ACT Children's Theater in Ogdensburg is gearing up for their 2024-2025 season and they have chosen some great shows to present this time around.

The only non-profit children's theater in St. Lawrence County presents a stage play for elementary-aged students in the fall and a full stage musical for middle/high school students each spring.

This season, they are shaking things up a bit.

Coming this November, ACT presents "The Magic Treehouse: Pirates Past Noon."

Instead of the normal stage play, this show is a children's musical, telling the story of the classic Mary Pope Osborne book of the same name.

Join Jack and Annie as they travel into the past, through their magic treehouse, to a time when pirates roamed the seas looking for treasure.

With many catchy songs and a hilarious script, this show will really get audiences cheering along.

Auditions for "Pirates" will take place in September and will be open to students in Kindergarten through 6th grade.

Massena youth get a closer look at history

Kids from the Police Activities League Summer Program, located in Massena, recently spent a day at Fort Tribute in Madrid for its annual return of Civil War Education Day. This is the third year the club has attended, according to Volunteer Fort Tribute Coordinator Scott Wilson. "They were able to experience everything from the loading and firing of a musket, seeing the 'Care of the Wounded' at the fort's hospital, to what is a soldiers haversack as well as the loading and firing of a cannon," he said. Fort Tribute is a Civil-War era historical interpretive center located on the grounds of the St. Lawrence Power & Equipment Museum in Madrid. It also has the only single Civil War monument to recognize the Congressional Medal of Honor recipients from St. Lawrence County that fought in the War 1861-1865. For more information about the Fort visit Facebook forttribute or www.forttribute.org.

of the founders of ACT. "Each year, we spread some Christmas cheer around Ogdensburg, and the locals seem to really love it. We get lots of cars driving by and honking, as well as people who stop to listen to us sing. It's something we have done since we began ACT five years ago and something that we will continue far into the future."

Coming in April 2025, ACT will present its annual stage musical and this year the show will be the Broadway hit "Legally Blonde."

Based on the movie of the same name, this wonderful show tells the story of Elle Woods, as she goes from sorority party girl to Harvard Law student. She quickly realizes that there is more to her than she always thought there was.

Filled with memorable characters and songs, this show will really get audiences on their feet.

Auditions for "Legally Blonde" will take place in January and will be open to students in grades 7 through 12.

The show will be presented in the OFA auditorium on April 4, 5, and 6.

Mohawk artists draw 2,500 attendees to third annual market and juried show

AKWESASNE — Promising a celebration of spectacular Mohawk art and a rich Indigenous cultural experience, the Akwesasne Art Market and Juried Show did not disappoint.

The event, proudly presented by Akwesasne Travel, was held July 6 at Generations Park in the heart of the Mohawk community.

"By all measures, this year's Art Market and Juried Show was an enormous success," said Dwayne Thomas, Saint Regis Mohawk Tribe's director of economic development. "A number of artists and vendors said this event was their best ever," he said. "It was very well organized, and everyone seemed to be in great spirits all day."

In only its third year, the arts and culture event attracted some 2500 attendees from the Akwesasne community, neighboring counties in Northern New York and Southern Ontario, as well as several states.

"It's a testament to the growth of Akwesasne as a vibrant cultural tourism destination," said Thomas. "We invited the public to experience our culture and celebrate the tremendous talent of our people, and they responded very positively. It's a win-win for everyone."

The crowd was treated to Haudenosaunee social dance songs performed by the Native North American Traveling College travel troupe, as well as exciting performances of smoke dancing and hoop dancing. More than 50 vendors and food trucks took part in the outdoor market.

The Juried Art Show featured nearly 70 pieces of art across 12 categories, from traditional splint basketry to contemporary clothing and accessories. A four-person jury, comprising experts of Indigenous art creation, curation and education, spent a day reviewing and critiquing submissions to determine the winners. Winners were announced during an awards presentation on the morning of July 6.

The Best of Show prize winner was Kelly Back, co-owner of Fire Loom Creations along with her husband, Tyson Back. Together they created a stunning loom-beaded belt depicting elements of the Ohénton Kariwahtékwén, the traditional Haudenosaunee greeting to the Natural World, popularly known as the Thanksgiving Address. The 8-ft.-long showstopper has been acquired by the Akwesasne Cultural Center Museum for its permanent collection.

"Our creation has a new home," said Kelly Back in a social media post. "This was my dream for this piece—to have it at our local museum where our kids, grandkids, and great grandkids can always go visit!"

The Cultural Center is planning a public display for the belt.

The event featured demonstrations of traditional foods, wooden lacrosse stick netting, log pounding, and basket making. Elisha King, winner in the Cultural Diverse Art category, said she appreciated the chance to share the art of finger weaving. "I forget that not everyone is familiar with weaving or is aware that it's a practice that needs to be revitalized in Akwesasne," said King. "It was a really fun opportunity to share this practice in person."

Sponsors included North Country Colocation Services, AECON, Akwesasne Mohawk Casino Resort, Boralex, Alcoa, 97.3 CKON, Bear's Den Charitable Foundation, Saint Regis Mohawk Tribal Council, and Adirondack Experience—the Museum on Blue Mountain Lake. Akwesasne Travel received generous contributions from the Saint Regis Mohawk Tribe, Akwesasne Convenience Store Association, Mohawk Council of Akwesasne, and Seacomm Federal Credit Union.

"We extend our gratitude to the many artists, vendors, sponsors, partners, volunteers, tribal staff, and our emcee who came together for the Art Market," said Thomas. "They all contributed to the success and growth of the event. We look forward to doing more events together."

Grant funds to promote Massena airport

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

MASSENA -- Grant funds obtained through the American Rescue Plan Act will soon be used to help promote and advertise both Massena International Airport and Boutique Air, the airport's current air service provider.

Town of Massena grant writer Linda McQuinn recently said the funds will be used to fund 15 and 30-second video spots that will be produced by WPBS. The videos will play throughout the northeast region, according to McQuinn.

She called the ads a great opportunity for the town of Massena to promote local and regional tourism.

"Staff people with the Watertown station are excited to begin work on these ads, and they will place them in programs highlighting interesting sites in and around Massena. The anticipated goal with this project is to increase the ridership numbers at the airport," she said.

McQuinn said the Regional Economic Development Council recently met in Blue Mountain Lake to unveil a new strategic plan, one that she said could benefit the north country greatly.

"They're unveiling their new strategic plan. The current emphasis with the new strategic plan is the consideration of Fort Drum as a major economic driver. This emphasis has been recognized by Governor Hochul and New York state as an important ingredient in the overall growth and expansion for continued development in the rural communities of upstate New York," she said.

McQuinn said that emphasis and drive to bring new economic drivers to the region could greatly benefit Massena.

She said members of the council asked her about projects that she was assisting with for Massena.

"They remember last year when I attended their meeting and I talked about some of the projects that Massena is doing. So, they're aware of the efforts with respect to tourism and they're very intrigued with what we're doing. They're very interested," she said.

She said word is getting around the state, with many officials seeing the hard work Massena is doing.

"Word is getting around New York State that Massena is doing great and wonderful things," she said.

McQuinn also touched on the rise in traffic at the airport, which she said was partially driven by visitors for the total solar eclipse.

She said the events planned by the town played a role in bringing new visitors to the area.

Children aren't the only ones with separation anxiety

Children and young adults are not the only ones who have trouble handling the emotions of leaving for college or summer camp. Learn how parents can better cope. When most people think of separation anxiety, they think of teary-eyed young children leaving for their first day of school or being dropped off at their first-ever friend's birthday party.

However, this leaves a key person out of the equation: the parent, who might be just as likely to be dealing with similar emotions.

Separation anxiety is a feeling that stems from a fear or worry of being away from something or someone – usually a person – due to a change in environment.

We asked our behavioral health team how to recognize signs of separation anxiety and some techniques of how to deal with the emotions in a healthy way.

Signs of Separation Anxiety

When a child first leaves home, there is a big shift in the dynamic of their relationship.

The parent is no longer directly

“in charge” or primarily guiding the relationship, which leads to a conscious feeling of loss of control.

“It is normal for parents to feel sad, lonely and even grieve their child's absence,” said Mary Dousharm, LCSW-R, a clinical social worker at Gouverneur Hospital.

As a result, some parents may experience one or more of these physical or emotional symptoms: Difficulty concentrating, disrupted sleep, excessive worrying, experiencing loss of control, fear of not being able to protect child, fear of something bad happening when a person leaves, following a child around the house, feeling loneliness or emptiness, increased feelings of anxiety or sadness.

Tips to Manage Anxiety

Remember feelings of anxiety don't suddenly start when a child leaves for college.

Start a hobby: Find a way to focus your time and take charge of something new. You are still a parent, but hobbies help you to focus more on the part of yourself that exists outside of your child.

Be quiet with yourself: Whether you start to read more books, write your thoughts in a journal, try meditation, spend time with people who have similar spiritual or religious beliefs, or go for a walk in a park, learning to be still helps you grow into a stronger person mentally and emotionally.

Exercise: Getting out that anxious energy through physical activity is a great way to calm your mind and boost your health.

You don't have to sign up to run a marathon or take multiple boxing classes every day; <https://hive.rochesterregional.org/wellness/gym-ready-checklist> and pursue that.

St. Lawrence Health provides tips I've been stung by a bee! What should I do?

POTSDAM - One of the best parts of summer is being able to spend hours outside in the warmth and sunshine, making memories and enjoying time with friends and family.

While spending that time outside, unfortunately nature can carry its own risks – including bee stings. Bee stings can happen seemingly without warning and often lead to tears, painful welts and swelling, especially for children.

Dealing with Bee Stings

Nobody likes being stung in the summer. For those who are dealing with the aftermath, Urgent Care Provider Lauren Phillips, PA-C, with Rochester Regional Health noted there are “next steps” that should be taken, including knowing when to head to an urgent care.

“Regardless of how a bee sting happens, the first thing you should do is move away from the area where it happened. If you or someone else was stung by a single bee, chances are there will be more bees nearby,” PA Phillips said.

Bees can only sting once and may leave their stinger in your skin; wasps keep their stingers in their abdomens and can sting multiple times. If a bee leaves its stinger in your skin, remove it as soon as you can. Do not use tweezers; squeezing the stinger releases more venom into the skin. Instead, use a straight edge, like a credit card, to scrape over the area to remove the stinger and venom sac.

Once you are sure the stinger has been removed, you can start treating the area where the bee sting happened. A quick way to remember what to do next is using the acronym WICK:

- Wash the bee sting site with soap and water to prevent infection
- Ice the area with a cold compress or ice to help swelling go down and lessen the pain
- Creams like hydrocortisone or topical steroid ointments can relieve itching
- Keep an eye on the bee sting to see if anything changes dramatically; call your primary care provider as needed

Bee stings usually stay swollen for 24-72 hours but gradually return to normal, according to United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) experts. If redness or swelling increases after 72 hours, it's best to see a provider.

When to Seek Medical Attention

St. Lawrence Health Emergency

Potsdam police | Courtesy

A swarm of bees shut down part of Market Street Tuesday afternoon. The area was blocked off for a few hours for pedestrian safety.

Services Medical Director Justin MacKinnon, MD, FACEP, noted allergic reactions can occur after bites or stings from any member of the Hymenoptera insect family, which includes honey bees, bumble bees, hornets, wasps and certain species of ants.

“Allergies can develop at any point in life, with adults typically having more severe reactions than children,” Dr. MacKinnon said.

Most people don't experience severe reactions to bee stings, but fewer than one percent of people are seriously allergic and may experience life-threatening symptoms called anaphylaxis. Anaphylaxis typically happens within seconds to minutes.

If you or someone else is experiencing any of these symptoms after a bee sting, get to an emergency medical center or provider as quickly as possible.

“If you or your child has already had an exposure to bee stings and you know there is a serious allergy, have epinephrine on-hand in case of an emergency,” PA Phillips said. “Being prepared and having a plan in case something happens is important in situations like these.”

Even after using epinephrine, it's important to seek immediate medical attention. A small number of people who have anaphylactic reactions can have anaphylactic symptoms up to 72 hours after the initial reaction occurred.

Avoiding Bee Stings

While many bee stings are often unfortunate surprises, there are some precautions you can take to avoid getting stung.

Avoid bees' homes: Bee hives are in a variety of different places – porches, decks, trees, even the ground with some varieties of bees. Especially in warmer weather, be aware of where bee hives might be located and do your best to steer clear.

Cover food and drinks: Bees are attracted to sweet smells and bright colors. If you are drinking juice, soda, beer, or other beverages outdoors, cover it up so bees don't make their way inside a can or glass. The same goes for food – cover snacks or plates of food to avoid accidentally luring bees to your dinner.

Don't go barefoot: While the feel of freshly mowed grass between your toes is glorious, the feel of a bee stinging the sole of your foot is quite the opposite. Wear shoes (flip flops, sandals, slides, etc.) while walking around outside to avoid stepping on a bee.

Avoid getting near bees: Where there is one bee, there will likely be others. You will be able to see and hear them if they are swarming in a particular area. If you spot a few, consider relocating somewhere that doesn't pose a risk to yourself or anyone else you are with.

“heinous act of vandalism and desecration.”

McKnight said the vault was damaged beyond repair.

“Due to the extent and severity of the damage to this private family vault, we discussed the options with the Ogden family. The family’s wishes were to collapse the vault in place, keeping their loved ones’ remains intact at their final resting place,” he said.

McKnight said it was a “sad day for Waddington knowing that someone could be so disrespectful and malicious.”

“I would like to thank the NY State Police for their rapid response, processing of the scene, and for pursuing the ongoing criminal investigation. I would also like to thank Tracy and Cathy Putney for helping to identify the names of the family members to contact, Councilman David McBath, Donaldson Funeral Home, and the town highway department for honoring the family’s wishes and securing this sacred resting place for the Ogden family,” he said.

McKnight said the criminal activity would not be tolerated and would be prosecuted “to the fullest extent.”

Buffham was later charged with two more arsons on Aug. 5 after St. Lawrence County Sheriff’s Detectives determined he started two fires at a residence on County Route 35.

sewage fungus,” resident James Gurrola said.

Gurrola has been an outspoken critic of the process, attending town board meetings, county legislature meetings and local town halls.

Gurrola said residents were not there “to beat up on” North Country Dairy officials, saying residents wanted honest answers and transparency from both the plant and DEC officials.

“We appreciate you guys being here. We’re happy you have finally come here to meet with us. But something has to be done. We live here. This is our community,” he said.

Gurrola said there has been marginal change in recent weeks, with the usually “putrid” smell subsiding.

Plant officials say the introduction of good bacteria to the lagoons has likely helped with the smell.

“We’re doing everything we can right now to figure out how to make this better. Any information or feedback you all have will help us to correct any issues,” Ellis said.

But not all residents were pleased with Ellis’ responses.

One resident questioned the plant’s response to the DEC Notice of Violation issued in July, saying the plant has not done enough to help residents.

“You could have started at any time. You didn’t need the DEC to tell you something (was wrong),” the resident said.

Ellis said he was just made aware of any issues earlier this spring, contrary to what some residents said during the meeting.

“I grew up in Skaneateles. I know good, clean water. I could drink the water there. I could swim in it,” the resident said.

But Ellis pointed to a recent development “a couple of years ago” in Skaneateles that he said disproved that theory.

“Well, I hate to burst your bubble but they couldn’t drink the water two years ago. Blue green algae. I know. I grew up there, so I know,” Ellis responded.

Many residents questioned the processes the plant uses to eliminate waste and byproduct during the manufacturing process of Greek yogurt and sour cream as well.

Upgrades made

Ellis and Zielinski detailed many processes and upgrades the plant has made in recent years, including the installation of 8 new aerators to introduce more oxygen when necessary “to feed the good bacteria” when not enough oxygen is being produced in the multiple lagoons where byproduct is stored.

Zielinski said the plant installed six additional units in 2021 and two more in 2023 to help with the process.

Ellis also pointed to periodic tests and sampling being conducted by plant staff, saying they closely monitor everything coming into and everything leaving the plant.

“We check for everything from PH levels to discharge levels, you name it,” Zielinski said.

When prompted for statistics, both Ellis and Zielinski provided them to residents. Many appeared shocked to learn that PH levels could range from 5.5 to 9.

Ellis told residents that the range was established by the DEC and the permitting process, known as SPDES.

State Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (SPDES) permits are issued through the DEC for numerous operations, including the dairy plant, and set the rules and standards for discharges such as the whey byproduct from North Country Dairy.

Hard questions

On multiple occasions, Ellis commented that the plant was working within the parameters of the permit issued to the plant.

That sentiment frustrated some in attendance who questioned Ellis if plant officials were pointing fingers at the DEC.

Ellis declined to comment.

As the meeting began to wind down resident Chris Beckstead launched into a series of questions, asking Ellis directly if plant officials believed the DEC report was incorrect in blaming the plant for the pollution.

Ellis in turn said they did not know what the pollution was yet and wanted to conduct further research to figure out what it was.

“But you’re saying you want to find a solution but you don’t know what it is. Don’t you think you need to figure out what it is first before you can do something about it?” Beckstead asked.

Beckstead asked a number of other questions over 10 minutes, including what training or certifications the plant workers have, as well as discharge levels, production levels and reporting standards.

In most cases Ellis said the information was “largely proprietary” but did say that employees have extensive training to ensure full compliance with state, DEC and EPA regulations.

Dead fish

Local fishing promoter and Town of Massena Fishing Promoter Don Meissner also spoke to his concerns, recounting many fond memories and experiences he had on the river, including a guided tour he led for an Army Special Forces colonel years ago.

Meissner told the attendees and plant officials that many people he has guided on the river have become lifelong friends, many of whom have told him that their shared experiences are “some of their fondest memories.”

“This river has the ability to change lives forever...this gave them a chance to experience something they would not be able to experience anywhere else,” he said.

“This river, the Deer River, in my mind is the best Muskie river in the world,” he continued.

Meissner said he and Linda McQuinn, Town of Massena grant writer, travel the Northeast promoting the region for “tourism based on our ecosystem.”

But with the damage done to the river, Meissner said the ecosystem has been severely damaged and along with it the community.

Meissner said the primary reason he and his family moved to the area in 1967 was because his father was employed at the exact dairy plant in North Lawrence. Following a stint in the Navy during Vietnam, Meissner said he “longed to return to the North Country,” with the memories of fishing the Deer River etched in his memory.

Meissner said he wants the same opportunity for others, whether they live on the Deer River, wish to host a class reunion on the river or make it a part of their daily lives.

According to Meissner, many residents have contacted him regarding the loss of aquatic life on the river, with many saying they fear the fish populations will not bounce back. “But that’s all we want to know. We know a lot of everything that not only you have talked about, but also the DEC said, kind of goes over everybody’s head because it’s not what we’ve come here to hear. We came here to hear an answer as to how we can get our life back,” Meissner finished.

Ellis said plant officials did not have many answers.

“We’re here because we’re not hiding. We’re here to be transparent. And we’re here to tell you, we want to be part of the solution. So we’ll continue this dialogue and as we get more information we will let you know,” Ellis said.

return it to the city. We hope homeowners will assist us in identifying the type of piping used for their water service. We understand this may be inconvenient for some, but it is crucial for determining the presence of lead service lines.”

These forms are expected to be mailed out on Wednesday, Aug. 7.

More information on this federal requirement can be found at the following link: EPA Inventory Guidance.

To complete the survey Ogdensburg residents will need more than just a pen.

Fonda said residents will need a flathead screwdriver and a refrigerator magnet. They will then need to perform the following steps. A camera will also be required.

1. Locate the water service line coming into the building.
2. Identify a test area on the pipe between the point where it comes into the building and the inlet valve.
3. Expose a small area of the pipe.
4. Use the flat edge of a screwdriver or other tool to scratch through any corrosion that may have built up on the outside of the pipe.
5. Place the magnet onto the pipe surface to see if it sticks.
6. Take a photo of the scratched area and magnet if it sticks and include it with the form upon return.

Pipe Classifications

Lead: If the scraped area is shiny and silver, your service line is lead. A magnet will not stick to a lead pipe.

Copper: If the scraped area is copper in color, like a penny, your service line is copper. A magnet will not stick to a copper pipe.

Galvanized: If the scraped area remains a duU gray, and a magnet sticks to the surface, your service line is galvanized steel.

Plastic: Will not have metallic properties and will scratch easily.

The REALTOR® Value

Dear New Yorkers,

Selling and buying a home in New York State is often complex. Most residential real estate transactions involve a licensed real estate professional such as a REALTOR® because they add value – so much so that consumers who work with a REALTOR® once, regularly work with them again in subsequent transactions.

For nearly 120 years, New York State Association of REALTORS® (NYSAR) members across the state have provided professional and ethical services to consumers. New York REALTORS® are also active community leaders and advocate in Washington, Albany and your hometown for laws that promote property rights and fair housing.

As you may have seen, there was extensive media coverage of the National Association of REALTORS® (NAR) settlement of lawsuits involving real estate commissions. The settlement has a nationwide impact, and there has been a great deal of information and opinions about it.

As the voice of real estate in New York, NYSAR is here to set the record straight and speak directly to home buyers and sellers across the state with the information they need to know.

There are two changes that will be implemented because of the settlement that New Yorkers should be aware of:

1. The first change will prohibit offers of compensation from being offered on the Multiple Listing Services (MLS). A seller can still offer compensation to a buyer agent, it just cannot be listed on an MLS. The amount of compensation remains negotiable.
2. The second change will require buyers and their agents to enter into a written agreement that specifies the amount or rate of compensation the agent will receive from their clients. As it was before the settlement, payment to the buyer's agent can be made by the buyer, seller, or both.

This settlement reinforces our commitment to providing transparent, professional and valuable representation to our clients during one of life's most important moments. We are here to make a difference in the lives of our clients and the communities where our more than 63,000 members live and work every day.

Sincerely,

Joseph Rivellino
2024 President
New York State Association of REALTORS®
