In split vote, county opposes Prop 1

Legislators questions legality of resolution

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI

North Country This Week

A majority of county legislators voted for a resolution opposing Proposition 1 but the vote was not made strictly along party lines.

Legislators debated the measure during the Oct. 21 Operations Committee meeting, with one calling the resolution "improper and illegal."

In an 8-4-1 vote legislators approved the contentious resolution, with Legislators Dave Forsythe, Larry Denesha, John Burke and Margaret Haggard voting in opposition. Legislator Nicole Terminelli abstained but did not offer a reason why.

Voting in favor of the resolution were Legislators Jim Reagan, Joseph Lightfoot, William Sheridan, Harry Smithers, Ben Hull, Glenn Webster, John Gennett and Rita Curran.

The controversial measure will be on the New York State ballot this year, with voters set to decide on a constitutional amendment to expand existing equal protections laws.

Proposition 1

Specifically the proposition would amend the state constitution to read:

Crypto company has big plans for former Alcoa East Plant

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

MASSENA — Coinmint, the parent company of North Country Colocation Services (NCCS) has entered into a strategic partnership with NYDIG for NCCS' bitcoin mining operation at the former Alcoa East plant.

Officials with both companies say they plan to significantly increase the number of employees in the North Country over the next several years as part of the agreement.

The expansion project has been under discussion for years, and the strategic capital from NYDIG reflects their commitment to both NCCS and Northern New York for investment and job growth, officials said.

The local bitcoin mining operation currently employs about 85 full-time workers, split between the former Alcoa East facility and a smaller operation in Plattsburgh, NY.

Officers of NYDIG and NCCS announced the transaction during a special employee recognition and town hall event at the Massena facility on October 16th.

NYDIG is a New York based, vertically integrated financial services and infrastructure firm dedicated solely to Bitcoin, officials said.

"This is a very exciting and transformative day for this company. For the past three years we've been working tirelessly towards a goal of ensuring the security of everyone's job here. This transaction, and resulting expansion project gives us the necessary, long-term stability and security of this company," NCCS CEO David Fogel said.

"We have been looking for an outside company, a capital partner, strategic partner, in order to execute on our expansion project. I'm thrilled to announce that we have found such a partner, and we just recently closed on a transaction with a company

Pathologist testifies in Adam Smith murder trial

Editor's note: This story contains descriptive details of evidence presented in court that some readers may find disturbing.

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

CANTON — A pathologist gave testimony Tuesday outlining the brutal details of two murders that police say were committed by Adam Smith last year.

Prosecutors in the Adam Smith murder trial called their first witness on the opening day of the trial, bringing Dr. Scott LaPoint to the stand.

A pathologist, Dr. LaPoint conducted the autopsy on Robert Durham shortly after his death on February 11.

When questioned by District Attorney Gary Pasqua, LaPoint said he had conducted around 7,000 autopsies in his career, with about 250 to 300 to his name in St. Lawrence County alone.

Deemed an expert in the field, Dr. LaPoint gave a detailed description of the autopsy process of Durham, saying Durham came to him in a sealed bag directly from the scene of the crime.

He commented that all of Durham's clothing "was quite heavily blood stained" as he began to document the body.

Upon initial examination, Dr. LaPoint commented it was "very apparent very quickly that there was a large cut type wound across his neck" when referring to Durham.

Photos presented by Pasqua and entered into evidence showed Durham's body still fully clothed, covered in blood. In one photo, the front of Durham's shirt was almost entirely stained with blood.

Dr. LaPoint said it was his determination that Durham suffered "sharp force trauma" or multiple wounds to his neck that occurred from a cutting or slicing motion, as opposed to a stabbing motion.

He commented that the determination was made because the wounds, all three to the neck, were wider than they were deeper.

Dr. LaPoint also commented that when examining Durham's body he found minor defensive wounds on his left hand, which he determined to be consistent with a sharp force trauma wound.

After documenting Durham's body and the wounds to his neck, Dr. LaPoint said he then cleaned up the area around the wounds for his examination.

He detailed what he found, commenting that Durham's right interior and exterior carotid arteries and jugular vein were both severed. In such cases, individuals have "about a minute and a half to two minutes" before they bleed to death, Dr. LaPoint said.

"You can see a series of incised wounds or cutting wounds. The upper one is right below the jawline and then that sort of commingles with two others that you can see because I'm holding them apart. So, you can see that there's three separate wounds, but they also commingle and coalesce into one rather large wound across the neck," Dr. LaPoint described in one photo. He said the wound was 18 cm in width, spanning almost the entire neck.

Dr. LaPoint said the wound was so deep and "quite forceful" to the point it severed the tongue from the hyoid bone and left a "distinct groove" on the front part of the third cervical vertebra.

In his cross examination, defense attorney Brian Barrett questioned how Dr. LaPoint knew the body was in fact Durham, to which he replied that a police officer informed him upon arrival.

Dr. LaPoint also detailed what he found on Durham's body, including $430 cash and $6.40 in change in his right front pocket. He said he also found two pocket knives, $2,300 in cash, two Stewarts cards and nail clippers in his left front pocket, along with a key fob.

Barrett questioned if it was unusual to find multiple pocket knives on an individual, to which Dr. LaPoint said it was "not that uncommon" having encountered it himself on "three or four dozen" occasions.

He said the most recent experience was during an autopsy he conducted in Buffalo "about two-and-a-half years ago."

In his redirect, Pasqua asked Dr. LaPoint about the size of the knives, to which Dr. LaPoint commented he was unsure while noting they "weren't that remarkable."

Barrett questioned Dr. LaPoint regarding the time of death of Durham.

Dr. LaPoint said that the coroner is the person who determines a time of death on scene, though in the case of Durham he said it would be difficult to determine given the cold temperatures around the time of death. He said "even under the best circumstances, it's rare that you can pinpoint a time of death based on physical findings within four to six hours."

In his follow-up, Barrett asked Dr. LaPoint to detail the autopsy process.

He commented that he first conducts an external review and documents his findings. State Police were on hand to take photos, at which time Dr. LaPoint would document his findings and then bag any materials found for evidence.

Once finished, Dr. LaPoint said he would conduct a thorough internal review of the deceased, again documenting each step and all findings and evidence as he proceeded.

Barrett also questioned who was present at the time of the autopsy and whether Dr. LaPoint had any assistance in removing Durham's body from the body bag or gurney.

Dr. LaPoint said he was unable to recollect if anyone helped him but noted he was "pretty light" and might have just pulled him over himself.

On some occasions, Dr. LaPoint said it was not uncommon to have an assistant, funeral director or on some rare occasions a police officer assist in lifting a body that may be too heavy for him to lift.

In the end, Dr. LaPoint said it was his determination that Durham died from sharp force trauma wounds to the neck that led to heavy blood loss.

LeRoux Jr. seeks seat on Massena Village Board of Trustees

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

MASSENA -- The race for two seats on the Village Board of Trustees is coming down to the wire, with four candidates vying for the positions.

One such candidate is newcomer Ronald LeRoux Jr., who grew up in Massena and currently lives in the village with his wife and their eight children.

Despite multiple attempts by North Country This Week to contact

LeRoux Jr. for this story, no response was received. He did, however, submit a Letter to the Editor detailing his experience and goals for Massena.

"I came to be a Massena resident when I was 12 years old and made many memories of my own growing up. I finished my schooling here as a 1993 Graduate of Massena Central High School. I went on to SUNY Canton and graduated with a degree in Business Administration after working at St Lawrence County NYSARC for 10 years. After I graduated, I worked in the service industry for a while but missed the feeling of helping people that NYSARC gave me. I am currently employed with ACR Health, working with people being released from prison who are HIV or Hep C Positive helping transition from prison life to home life," he wrote.

LeRoux Jr. said he is "deeply dedicated to the growth and prosperity of Massena" and "envisioned the expansion of all the resources that we have here."

"Our village and surrounding area boast two campgrounds, two beaches, the Nature Center, Eisenhower Locks, Hawkins Point, and the beautiful St. Lawrence River. However, we lack decent movie theatre, bowling alleys, shopping options and have limited eateries. There is currently truly little for the younger generation or tourists to do in the evenings and on weekends," he said.

He wrote that Massena can be an incredible tourist attraction and a village "we can all be proud of again."

"We have a Downtown which we can continue to revitalize to draw the Mom and Pop businesses that used to line the streets. We have untapped rivers which we could use for power again with minimal disruption to wildlife. We have so much natural beauty and many recreational opportunities and I wholeheartedly believe that we can enhance our village's appeal, creating a thriving and vibrant community for all," he wrote.

LeRoux Jr. was also endorsed by his wife, Town Council Member Kristy DuBray-Baker in another Letter to the Editor as well.

"Whether it is work related, family related or community related, Ron is always willing to go beyond what is asked of him to help others and never hesitates to fight for what is right. He has worked for ACR Health, which is a not-for-profit, community-based organization providing an array of support services to individuals affected by a wide range of chronic diseases, including HIV/AIDS, with the goal of positive health outcomes, for over 10 years and seeing him in action, I acquired respect and admiration for his generosity, intelligence, and dedication to a good cause. With proud enthusiasm, I support Ron LeRoux Jr for the position of Massena Village Trustee, and we wholeheartedly thank you for your support on Election Day, November 5, 2024," she wrote.

Political newcomer from Texas vying for seat on village board

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

to visit his future wife.

"I'll be honest, this place in October and November is enchanting with the beautiful leaves and rivers. She is what drew me here, but after seeing this place in person I knew this was where I wanted to hang my boots for the rest of my life. In the summer-time I love Kayaking and fishing the local rivers, and I also umpire most of the Massena softball and little league games," Webb said.

He commented that he decided to run for office because "as a parent I'm genuinely concerned about what our village has become."

Webb said he has listened to many elder members of the community who educated him about the past glories of the village when facilities like General Motors and Reynolds were operational. He said a loss of jobs has severely impacted the village, something he hopes to rectify.

"We have fewer jobs, and limited shopping. With all that in mind, it's hard to gripe about the way things are if you're not willing to roll up your sleeves and do the work to make things better," Webb said.

Despite not having a background in politics, Webb said that can be a strength. "I have no background in politics, which means to the voters I'm not anyone's puppet. What I have is a drive to make this once great village great again. I want to see a community where our children aren't fearful of school, and where our residents aren't afraid of their vehicles or homes being burglarized. It's time that we come together as a community and say enough is enough. We must stop the bleeding and the only way to do that is to put people in office that actually care about the people," he said.

Webb said his first priority is taking action to protect the children of the community in every aspect of life. "We have children overdosing in school. We have children being attacked on our streets. That must come to a stop. I also want to address the drug epidemic and the crime on our streets. I want to help create a stronger economy where small businesses can create more jobs without fear of their businesses being robbed," he said.

While his ambitions are large,

Webb said he's well aware that it takes more than one member of a governing body to have an impact.

"Let's be honest there's nothing that one person is going to be able to do to make the changes that need to take place here. What we must do is elect the right people that are not afraid to make hard decisions in the right offices," he said.

Webb said he felt he is the right man for the job because he will put people first and will hold accountable those who need to be most of all.

"I believe that I'm the right choice in this upcoming election because I'm a guy that is going to be a voice for the people and put the needs of our people first. I'm not a 'Yes Sir' man. I'm the man that's going to hold people accountable for their actions," he said.

Broadbent seeks village board seat, hopes to address housing issues

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

believe at times we can get cynical and complain about the way things are done in our local government, so instead of complaining I decided to get involved. I believe I can have a positive voice for the people of our village" he said. Broadbent said he is a great listener who is adaptable as well.

He demonstrated that adaptability through his professional life, spending 22 years in dairy manufacturing until the North Lawrence plant closed in 2011. Shortly afterward he spent the next five years working at Remington Arms in Ilion, NY traveling during the week and coming home on weekends.

Broadbent then worked at Alcoa for 10 months, working for a temp agency before finishing his professional career at the Healthy Way in Massena. He retired last year after five years with the company.

Broadbent said he has a willingness to learn and grow that will serve the people of Massena well if he were elected. "I believe one of the skills I possess is a willingness to learn and grow. Being a trustee there will be a learning curve that I am willing to embark on. I also have a can-do attitude. I'm one who is willing to roll up my sleeves and say, 'Let's go.' I have a strong work ethic, and I am an optimist by nature. I think I am objective as well, being able to listen to opposing ideas and work together to get the job done," he said.

Broadbent said one of his primary focuses will be to address housing issues in the village, in particular blighted properties.

"The code enforcement officer here in Massena has one of the toughest jobs in the village. Many vacant buildings and landlord issues are one of the concerns I have. This is as well as the increasing number of homeless people in our community. Finding a safe place for the homeless is critical. Making Massena attractive so businesses will want to be here is key to our growth. I believe we are on track for that to happen and I would like to support that effort," he said.

Broadbent said those issues are complex and can be costly but he is committed to ensuring that taxes do not rise out of control as the village handles blighted properties.

"Addressing these issues is complex. Money is the key to solving some of these issues, but doing so without raising taxes is tough but critical. There are state grants for Community Renewal. With a good vision we can get the help we need to start to fix some of these issues. Also working with our local community is important. There is a lot of gold in the minds and hearts of our people here in Massena. Let's hear them as well," he said.

He said he "has a heart for Massena" and wants to see the village succeed and grow. "I desire to see it prosper and grow. I believe we have all we need here to make that happen, and I'm willing to work hard to assist in our progress as a community," he said.

Deputy mayor seeking election to Massena Village Board of Trustees roles I learned the importance of diplomacy, mediation, and problem solving. Since becoming a village trustee I have been assigned to supervise essential services committees to include Police, Rescue, Fire, and Code Enforcement. I have also been tasked with negotiating several contracts on behalf of the village," he said. Simpson said the village of Massena has a number of issues at hand but his biggest concern is the safety and security of residents.

Drug abuse and related crimes are not just a problem for our Police. The behaviors associated with the drug epidemic create other dangers for our community. Our Fire Department and Emergency Services have seen a drastic increase in calls. Our Code office also continues to address unsafe living conditions and blight while seeing a record number of calls," Simpson said.

He currently works as a Board of Trustees liaison to the police, fire and rescue departments in Massena.

Simpson said in order for the village to turn the corner on the drug epidemic and combat crime, it is essential for the board to continue to support the working professionals who seek to protect residents.

Continued support and representation for our Essential Services and Code Enforcement (is essential). Though stretched thin, these services continue to serve and protect the community. If I can assist in acquiring resources, personnel and support to make their role any easier, I will," he said.

As a teacher I have served as the Massena Federation of Teachers President and Vice President and on their Negotiations Team. In these

"Chad has been instrumental in his role as negotiator for the Village. He has been the liaison to all of our Emergency Service Units and our Code Department. He has been a steady voice as we have tried to improve upon all of these services. He has helped us in our leadership in rebuilding the Police Department, in the takeover of Massena Rescue, and is currently helping in rewriting major aspects of our code," he said.

Paquin called Simpson an "independent voice" for the people.

"You may not realize this, but he is a registered Independent who is endorsed by the local Democratic Committee. His only interest is the betterment of this community and what he can do to help as we try to navigate the process of reinvigorating our Village. He is focused on services, taxes, and our Downtown Revitalization," Paquin said.

City commissioners to help review charter

BY JIMMY LAWTON

North Country This Week

OGDENSBURG — Ogdensburg city council is looking for volunteers to join the Charter Review Commission and applications will be accepted until Oct. 31.

Mayor Michael Tooley is encouraging city residents to apply with hopes of having a commission together in time for a January meeting.

Applications are available on the city's website Ogdensburg.org and at city hall.

Ogdensburg's City Charter was last reviewed in 2017, with the last meeting of its Charter Review Commission held on Nov. 13, 2017.

The commission consists of 12 individuals appointed by council. They are tasked with reviewing the city's charter and making recommendations for changes. Such changes may include small adjustments to ensure consistency and continuity in language or larger changes that can modify rules and regulations that govern the city and its government.

The commission was last formed in 2017 and included chair Fred Bean, Sean O'Brien, Laura Pearson, Sean McNamara, Laura Ashley, Douglas Loffler, Andrew Putmar, Kevin Kendall, Storm Cilley, Christopher Pitcher and Scott McRoberts.

Last time around the commission offered many suggested changes, though many were not supported by the city council.

Among the failed proposals would have a three-year term for the position of mayor and a call to ensure that each of the city's election districts included a representative who resided within it.

Instead the city opted to continue "at large" voting which allows anyone who resides in the city to run for any available seat.

It is possible for the charter commission to bypass the council via public referendum, however that does not appear to have been done in the past.

Another recommendation made by that Commission, which was approved by Ogdensburg City Council, reduced the time period between City Charter reviews from 10 years to six years, thus requiring a City Charter review begin no later than December 31, 2023. On July 24, 2023, City Council amended the City Charter to change the deadline date for City Charter review to Dec. 31, 2027.

Mayor Michael Tooley, with City Council support, stated early in 2024 his intention to have City Council appoint a City Charter Review Commission this year. On Sept. 23 Ogdensburg City Council outlined the process by which a City Charter Review Commission shall be appointed in 2024, with its meetings to begin in 2025.

Based on the number of applications received and their review of these applications, Ogdensburg City Council hopes to appoint the 2025 City Charter Review Commission at its Nov. 12 regular meeting.

The first meeting of the 2025 City Charter Review Commission is scheduled Wednesday, Jan. 8, 2025, in Room 3 at City Hall.

This timeline allows nearly a two-month period which will allow time for the following:

City staff make available a hard copy of the City Charter, if requested, to the Commission (the Charter can be found on the City of Ogdensburg website).

City staff to prepare information for the Commission outlining their role as defined in NYS Division of Local Government Services.

Review of the City Charter by all interested and affected parties to submit to the Commission suggested amendments to the City Charter. This includes City Council, City Administration, citizens, business owners, among others.

SLC program to clean up contaminated and blighted properties continues with five more

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI

North Country This Week

CANTON -- If you drive around the county you may notice a number of properties have been cleaned up in recent years after sitting vacant for years.

That's due in large part to St. Lawrence County's blighted property program.

St. Lawrence County Attorney Steve Button said the program has been a major success for the county, allowing for dozens of properties with unsafe structures to undergo remediation.

Once structures are removed, the property can then go back on the tax rolls through auction, Button said.

"The legislature and my office view this program as a top priority. This is a way to restore communities, to remove unsafe structures and to put properties back on the tax rolls," he said.

Funding for the program comes from the state, with hundreds of thousands of dollars spent every year to clean up blighted properties that have long been in violation of local, county and state codes.

Button said he is confident the program will continue on in the future as well.

"The county legislature will continue to support the program, as well as the state, allowing us to clean up more properties in the future. We're very confident this program will continue to be a success," he said.

Currently, five properties are undergoing cleanup, including in the towns of Canton and Potsdam, the village of Massena and Pitcairn, Button said.

Village of Massena officials say they were notified last month that properties at 56 and 58 Sycamore Street would be cleaned up as part of the program.

Those properties were deemed to be unsafe structures and will be torn down by the end of the year.

Button also touched on another program that cleans up properties with possible environmental contamination, like old gas stations and dry cleaners for instance.

He said that program, which began in 2015, has crossed the century mark this year with the 100th property cleanup.

Button said funding for the program comes from the state Oil Spill Fund with cleanups conducted by the state Department of Environmental Conservation.

"We really need to give the Comptroller's Office a great deal of credit for their support of the program, as well as the DEC. Without their support we wouldn't be able to do this," Button said.

CANTON — Four more witnesses testified in the Adam Smith murder trial, including a pathologist, two witnesses who discovered the body of Ronald Durham and a State Trooper who responded to the cemetery.

Smith is alleged to have murdered Freeman on March 2, 2023 in his home in the town of Rossie.

Pathologist testifies to Freeman autopsy results

Dr. Michael Sikirica testified on Oct. 23 regarding the autopsy he performed on Freeman shortly after his death.

A pathologist who has performed "somewhere around 15,000" autopsies over the last 35 years as a medical professional, Dr. Sikirica confirmed in court that Freeman died from a significant knife wound in his back that shattered his tenth rib on the right side of his back, piercing his liver and nicking his eighth rib in the front of his abdomen.

Dr. Sikirica testified that the wound was 15mm wide and 36mm deep when he examined the wound as it was open.

That equates to roughly 0.6 inches in width and 1.42" in depth.

He also commented that there were bruises and abrasions that happened around the same time of the fatal injury, including one around the stab wound that was consistent with the hilt of a sizable knife that was forcefully used to stab Freeman.

When asked by defense attorney Brian Barrett about the possibility that the bruises and abrasions could have occurred at another time, Dr. Sikirica said it was highly unlikely as the bruises and abrasions appeared to be relatively new.

Dr. Sikirica also detailed a number of other injuries to Freeman, including defensive wounds to his hands and multiple cuts to the left, right and center of Freeman's neck.

Unlike Ronald "Huck" Durham,

the wounds to Freeman did not severe any major arteries or veins, Dr. Sikirica testified.

Much like the line of questioning regarding the autopsy of Durham, Dr. Sikirica confirmed to Barrett that he was informed that the body was that of Durham.

One major difference, however, was the rigor mortis that was found when the body was delivered to Dr. Sikirica.

He testified that at the time of the autopsy, Durham's body was "very stiff" and was indicative of an individual who had not been dead for 24 hours.

Dr. Sikirica testified that it was his professional opinion that Durham had passed away sometime on March 2.

He commented that had it happened on March 1, Durham would have been "more flaccid" as rigor mortis would have worn off as tissue began to decompose at that time.

Later that morning Leroy Tharrett Jr. and his son Jeffrey offered their testimony.

Both Tharretts were the first to find Durham in on Feb. 11, shortly after 8 a.m. that Saturday.

Testifying first, Leroy Tharrett Jr. said he knew the cemetery well as he lived across the street on Van Buren Road.

Tharrett Jr. said he would often see Ronald Durham and his white Dodge Ram pickup truck in the cemetery where Durham's wife was buried.

A distant relation through marriage, Tharrett Jr. said he knew Durham "almost all my life."

The morning of February 11, Tharrett Jr. said he, his son Jeffrey and two other individuals were expecting to work on the roof of his relative just two doors down.

"Is it normal to work on a roof in the winter?" Barrett asked.

"If the weather allows, sure," Jeffrey Tharrett responded.

Around 7 a.m. they all met at the home before Tharrett Jr. went to White's Hardware across town to pick up supplies for the day.

Jeffrey Tharrett also confirmed the timeline and details during his testimony.

Tharrett Jr. detailed seeing Durham's truck in the cemetery for a long period of time, which prompted his aunt to ask him to check on Durham.

Both Tharrett Jr. and his son said they then walked across the street at around 8:10 or 8:15 to check on Durham, where Jeffrey Tharrett discovered Durham deceased next to the driver side door of his truck.

Both were asked if they touched the body, to which they replied they did not.

They both also called 911 for assistance, detailing the scene. The first call was received by dispatchers around 8:19, with police on scene just minutes later.

At the time of the discovery, Tharrett Jr. said he also saw "bloody boot prints," which he corroborated after reviewing his deposition he gave to State Troopers later that day.

Sergeant Leah Malbeuf of the New York State Police was the second officer on scene, 13 minutes after the 911 call was received.

She detailed the initial call, which went out as a suicide attempt in the East Side Cemetery on Van Burn Road in Governor.

Malbeuf said when she arrived on scene she saw Durham's truck along with a trooper vehicle belonging to Trooper Seymour who was already on scene, along with two other males.

She said she went around the front of the truck to approach Trooper Seymour, at which time she saw Durham on the ground with "a lot of blood on him and underneath him in the snow."

Malbeuf said Durham was "clearly deceased" when she arrived on scene.

WHAT

Prop 1 is a ballot proposal to amend the New York State Constitution. You may have also heard it called the NY Equal Rights Amendment.

WHO & WHEN

New York voters will have the opportunity to vote for or against Prop 1 in the general election on November 5, 2024.

IMPACT

Adding to existing protections against discrimination based on race and religion. This amendment to the New York State Constitution would explicitly prohibit discrimination based on a person's ethnicity, national origin, age, disability, and sexual orientation, gender identity and gender expression. It also protects abortion rights.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS:

Q: Why am I just now finding out about this?

A: A court challenge delayed getting the word out, which makes it important to spread the word now. Please help!

Q: Aren't equal rights for all already protected in NY?

A: Only race and religion are currently protected in NY's Constitution. This amendment's intention is to include us all.

Q: But isn't the right to an abortion pretty safe in NY?

A: There have been 53 anti-abortion bills presented in NY in the last decade. Including reproductive rights in our NY Constitution prevents a potential future bill from being enacted into law.

Q: How critical is it to pass NY's ERA now?

A: Getting an amendment on the ballot is a multi-year process; 2024 is our opportunity to finally protect the rights of all New Yorkers. Vote accordingly.

TO VOTE YES FOR REPRODUCTIVE RIGHTS AND FREEDOM FOR ALL!

Residents warned to not park on sidewalk to access town hall drop boxes

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI
North Country This Week

MASSENA -- Town of Massena officials are warning residents to not park in front of the drop boxes in front of town hall.

At a recent town board meeting Supervisor Sue Bellor commented that there were multiple instances of individuals driving their cars onto the sidewalk to utilize the drop boxes, as opposed to just walking to them.

"We want to encourage people not to do that. We've had a chat with the village as well and they understand. We don't want anybody driven over," she said.

The topic was broached after a Massena Garden Club beautification project was struck twice by people illegally driving on the sidewalk, she said.

It's been knocked over twice because people drove their cars in front of the drop boxes. So, we're going to try to stop that. We just need people to park in the parking lot and walk to the drop box. That would be ideal," she said.

Drop boxes for village water and tax payments, as well as Liberty Utilities, Massena Electric Department and Spectrum are currently set up in front of town hall.

Bellor said the town will identify the culprits who were caught on camera driving on the sidewalk and knocking the planter over.

"We have it on camera. We know who they are. We've seen them on camera," Bellor said.

According to Town Highway Superintendent Dylan Casselman, the town and village are working on a plan to place removable barriers that can be removed for snow removal and work on Main Street when needed.

"We're going to work with the village to try to put removable barriers in there so they can be removed for snow removal and the things that the village needs to do on Main Street, but will be in place 99% of the time for anything besides pedestrian traffic," he said.

Casselman said pedestrian safety in that area is the number one priority at the moment for both the town and village. Village officials also plan to move parking spaces further away from downtown crosswalks as well, in particular the crosswalk that is in front of the Schine Theater and town hall. Department of Public Works Superintendent Marty Miller spoke on the project at a previous village board meeting.

Miller informed trustees that parking spaces are required to be 20 feet back from crosswalks. In downtown Massena that code isn't being followed, which is forcing DPW crews to address the situation. Main Street may not be the only area affected by the laws, Miller said.

He informed trustees the same rules apply to all alleys and driveways as well. Miller said the tighter than allowed parking spaces make it treacherous for pedestrians to safely cross the road when vehicles are parking "right on top" of crosswalks. Miller said the change to parking spaces would offer some relief to the crosswalk and would allow pedestrians a better view of traffic as they attempt to cross.

The village currently boasts roughly 230 parking spaces in the downtown area, though that may change when the Downtown Streetscape Project is completed as part of the Downtown Revitalization Initiative.

Town of Massena 'very likely' to exceed 2% tax cap

BY JEFF CHUDZINSKI

North Country This Week

MASSENA -- The Massena Town Board has approved the preliminary budget for Fiscal Year 2025 but Town Supervisor Sue Bellor said the budget is far from settled.

Town board members adopted the budget during the Oct. 16 board meeting.

Bellor previously said town of Massena department heads would have to sharpen their pencils and give a hard look at their budgets if the town is to remain under the 2% tax cap.

Town officials passed a resolution last month that allows them to override the cap if it is deemed necessary.

Bellor previously said it is very likely the town will have to exceed that cap despite a "fiscally tight spending plan" to meet the various commitments to town residents.

One monkey wrench the town must now face is a commitment to pay off the town's trailing liabilities from the sale of Massena Memorial Hospital to St. Lawrence Health.

Despite the town paying off a $1.7 million worker's compensation debt to the county, over $5 million remained from the sale of the hospital in January 2020 in the form of a New York State pension liability.

The town signed off on an agreement with the state to pay back around $5 million beginning in 2025 with an interest rate of 7%.

That means the town will pay $383,214.24 every year for 30 years.

Town officials said during the Sept. 19 board meeting that the funds will have to come from taxpayers unless action is taken in Albany to assist.

In January of this year, town officials passed and signed the "home rule for state legislation," which they said would give the town expanded bonding authority to cover up to $5 million of the pension liability.

Despite the town's best efforts, it appears a lack of action in Albany is going to end up costing taxpayers hundreds of thousands of dollars each year to settle the trailing liabilities from the hospital sale.

Bellor said those efforts are putting the town in a financial crunch.

"We tried for two years with the Senate and Assembly to try to get a resolution so that we could pay our hospital pension debt back at a better rate, and it has not passed both houses two years in a row. So, therefore, next year we need to start paying back the hospital pension debt each month," she said.

She said the plan is for 30 years barring "some kind of miracle that comes across to help us out."

Expenses also continue to rise, while sales tax revenue has proven to be volatile in recent months as consumers are forced to cut back due to price gouging for basic goods.

Bellor said she has met with several groups in recent months to discuss budgetary needs.

"With the need for transparency and clarification for all town board members ahead of planned budget sessions, and following the advice of the Association of Towns legal staff, I had dialogues with board members, department heads, bookkeeper, and town clerk to coordinate budget review and calendar planning sessions," she previously said.

That review allowed town board members to ask questions and make adjustments to their tentative spending plans, Bellor said.

Bookkeeper Brenna Mossow has since finished processing department proposals and other funding requests to calculate expected revenues and year-to-date expenses.

The budget also shows a zero fund balance due to the trailing liabilities of the hospital sale, Bellor said.

It's not just the hospital debt that is weighing down the town.

Bellor said an increase in health insurance expenses for employees and retirees alike will also impact the budget.

Rising costs such as fuel, gasoline, equipment and repair costs are also impacting the budget as well.

Bellor said it is essential the town be proactive in "discussing, strategizing and developing a cooperative plan" with the St. Lawrence County Chamber of Commerce, St. Lawrence Industrial Development Agency, New York Power Authority, Air Products Hydrogen Facility and "other local industry leaders for continued and potential marketing."

She also highlighted a need to promote tourism and recreation in the town.

"With the support of fishing promoter Don Meissner and grant writer Linda McQuinn, we can capitalize on their work with our Explore Massena branding webmaster, Jason Hendricks. We also need to continue with the grant writing by established engineering firms for the airport, highway, water districts, and infrastructure," she said.

Town officials will next hold a public hearing on Nov. 6 at 3 p.m. to accept the preliminary budget for Fiscal year 2025. The public are encouraged to attend the hearing, which will be held in Room 30 at the Massena Town Hall, 60 Main Street.

O'burg airport featured in business magazine

OGDENSBURG -- The Ogdensburg International Airport was recently featured in Business View Magazine.

The feature is based on an interview between Airport Manager Charlie Garrels and Business View Magazine's Editor-in-Chief, Karen Surca as part of the magazine's series covering economic growth and best city practices.

The article focuses on the airport's real growth potential and prefaces the airport's $21.5 million terminal expansion project and acquiring Breeze Airways as its new commercial carrier.

The article reads:

The Ogdensburg International Airport sits on 500 acres, about two miles southeast of the city, in the town of Oswegatchie. It is owned and operated by the Ogdensburg Bridge & Port Authority (OBPA), which also owns and operates the Ogdensburg-Prescott International Bridge, the Port of Ogdensburg-Marine Terminal Facility, Commerce Park, the Port of Waddington, a medium-heavy industrial park, and two short line railroads.

The airport boasts one asphalt runway, measuring 6,400 by 150 feet, and serves a mix of general aviation and commercial traffic, with scheduled flights between Ogdensburg and Philadelphia, PA, via Contour Airlines' 30-seat Embraer 135. Operating as its own FBO, the airport also handles transient and charter flights, fuel sales, some military traffic from nearby Fort Drum, and medical helicopter flights.

An airport on the verge

Ogdensburg International is a small airport that may be on the verge of becoming bigger, better, and gaining prominence for the traveling communities on both sides of the border. One reason for its potential growth and development concerns the September expiration of the airport's contract with Contour, predicting the possible selection of an alternative commercial carrier. "Right now, we're in the process of working with the USDOT (United States Department of Transportation), and we're recommending Breeze Airways to continue service," reports Airport Manager, Charlie Garrels.

There are a few reasons why the OBPA is leaning towards Breeze. The most significant one is because the airline is proposing flights to and from Dulles International Airport in Washington, D.C., on 138-passenger Airbus A-200 jets. The Authority believes that this flight plan offers the best opportunity for higher enplanement numbers, which translates to more FAA funding, as well as meshing well with the airport's plans for its long-term growth. Garrels thinks that it can also potentially increase traffic between the two country's capital cities. "Most of our traffic is coming from Ottawa," he notes. "And currently, Ottawa doesn't have a direct flight to Washington. We would be the closest airport with a direct flight. I also think it would bring people in from our capital to experience what's up here."

Another reason for selecting Breeze is more technical and concerns how the federal government's Essential Air Service (EAS) program operates. The EAS program was enacted to guarantee that small communities in the United States, which had been served by certificated airlines prior to deregulation in 1978, maintain commercial service. Its aim is to support a minimal level of scheduled air service to those communities that otherwise would not be profitable.

Currently, Contour's Philadelphia route is subsidized by the AEAS – the Alternate Essential Air Service program – wherein the USDOT gives a stipend to the OBPA, which pays it out to its selected air carrier based on need. OBPA officials want to go back to the regular EAS program with a new carrier, and with the DOT paying the airline directly. Also making pitches for the new contract are Boutique Air, which currently offers service in and out of nearby Massena International Airport, and Contour, which wants to continue its Philadelphia flights. The USDOT has the final say over which company will take over this fall.

A multi-million dollar terminal upgrade

Another reason to strongly believe in Ogdensburg's potential is because the airport is at the beginning stages of a $21.5 million expansion of its terminal, with $18 million of that sum coming from New York State's $230 million Upstate Airport Development and Revitalization Competition. Ogdensburg was one of nine regional airports that applied for, and was awarded, funding. According to Governor Kathy Hochul, who championed both the program and the airport, "The Ogdensburg International Airport is an important fabric of the North Country economy and its new and improved airport will be a springboard that attracts new businesses and visitors to this beautiful region."

The project will include a new, multi-purpose great room to provide much-needed space for civic gatherings, conferences, business meetings, and other public events in a building that hasn't been updated since the airport's construction in 1980. Other improvements include: expansion of the lobby for check-in, ticketing, and baggage drop; additional restrooms; expansion of the screening, concession, and baggage claim areas; upgraded security doors and cameras; new water sprinklers; upgraded Wi-Fi; new sanitation and water fill stations; upgraded disinfection treatment within the HVAC system; an extended entrance canopy with an elongated curbside drop-off/pick-up area; an outdoor courtyard with tables, chairs, and planters; solar panels and electrical passenger vehicle/equipment charging stations; safety improvements for passengers walking between the plane and terminal building; and a renovation of the building's facade.

Garrels, for one, is enthusiastic about the improvements. "The new canopy for curbside pickup means that nobody has to stand in the rain when they're getting picked up and dropped off," he shares. "We added two rental car counters and expanded the lobby for check in and ticketing. Now, nobody has to stand in line. And a new flight display system in the great room, which is large enough to be able to divide into three segments, shows the stages of flights and all the information that you need. So, thanks to Governor Hochul; it's a project that she helped with to modernize our terminal."

Garrels is a firm believer that the new terminal upgrades will attract more people to the airport, and as more people come through Ogdensburg, the more they will grow to appreciate the natural beauty of the North Country. To that end, the airport works closely with the St. Lawrence County and City of Ogdensburg Chambers of Commerce to attract more tourism to the area and travelers to the region.

Educating and serving the community

Another important item on Garrels' agenda is educating local school children about future opportunities in the aviation sector. "I have worked with the school districts, going to classrooms to talk about aviation and how it benefits the community," he relates. "We move people and we move cargo and planes are becoming more frequently used for transportation. There are so many sectors of the aviation industry. For example, people do surveying from aircrafts; helicopter pilots inspect power poles and cut down trees. People are finding more and more ways to surprise me with what you can do with aviation."

Regarding pilot training and the need for more licensed flyers, Garrels says that the airport works closely with Potsdam Municipal Airport. "They do have a flight school and they do bring a plane here to do their training pretty frequently," he shares.

When queried as to why Garrels loves his job, he answers, "It's having the mindset that you may make an impact on somebody's life; that somebody got somewhere safely or somebody came home safely because we did our job correctly. It makes me feel like I've done something for the people in this region. We're your hometown airport. We're here to accommodate and serve the public. That's what we do."

Drug charges levelled

OGDENSBURG — Two Ogdensburg residents were charged with drug possession following a recent raid of 826 Congress St., said city police.

After an extensive investigation into the sales of narcotics, the Ogdensburg Police Department with state police, Border Patrol, county District Attorney's Office and Sheriff's Department, executed a search warrant. Over 40 grams of fentanyl, assorted pills and one stolen outboard boat motor were reportedly recovered.

Ronald B. Redmond III, 32, and Taylor M. Amo, 28, were both arrested for second-degree criminal sale of a controlled substance, third-degree criminal possession of controlled substance, and fourth-degree criminal possession of stolen property, all felonies, police said.

Redmond III was also arrested on a county court warrant stemming from previous drug related charges, two city warrants stemming from a resisting arrest and menacing charges, and one Family Court Arrest warrant.

Amo was also arrested on an indictment warrant and city warrant stemming from a previous menacing charge.

Both were reportedly arraigned at Lisbon court and held at the county jail without bail.

The investigation is still on-going, officers said.

Charged with burglary

OGDENSBURG — An Ogdensburg man was accused of breaking into a home and striking another person with a blunt object, according to city police.

Dylan Z. Kincaid, 26, was charged with first-degree burglary, felony and third-degree aggravated unlicensed operation, officers said.

The alleged incident took place Oct. 21 shortly before 1 p.m. on Ford Street.

He was arraigned in Ogdensburg City Court by Judge Lemay and released under the supervision of probation.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

White male privilege and DEI initiatives

Let me start by acknowledging that I'm a white male. Until about 10 years ago I considered myself a conservative Republican with a social conscience. I am now genuinely confused by the opposition to Diversity Equity & Inclusion (DEI) initiatives that come almost exclusively from white males. Although white males make up only 30% of the U.S. population, they possess a far greater proportion of wealth and power.

I've heard people say that every person in America has the same opportunities. What a dishonest statement! Many young Americans today are forced into situations that you and I have likely never had to consider. Many are in those situations through no fault of their own, or even the fault of their parents. I recognize that, as a white male, I've most likely had easier access to opportunities that minorities have not. I could chalk some of these opportunities up to "being in the right place at the right time." However, I recognize that it's very possible I would not have ended up in those places at those times if I wasn't a white male and had the advantages that come with being a white male. My white family never faced racial segregation and discrimination. My white family never faced redlining when looking for a house. My white family was never a victim of the racial wealth gap that resulted from this country's history of segregation and other discriminatory policies. We never faced the problems that minorities faced because of centuries of oppression, discrimination and systemic racism. This judgment is baked into our society and continues to impact young people today.

Indeed, we have a long way to go. DEI is meant to be a tool to help get us there. Is it perfect? No. Can DEI initiatives be improved upon? Absolutely. But those opposed to DEI are moving us in the wrong direction. Those opposed to DEI initiatives make a conscious decision to ignore the negative effects that our nation's history of racism and oppression continues to have on a significant portion of society. Are those that oppose DEI so insecure that simply acknowledging our history of oppression and racism, and working towards justice for all, is a threat to them?

We must acknowledge our nation's history of discrimination and institutional racism in order as a country to address the problem. Instead, there are people at the highest levels of state and federal government supported by powerful people supporting them in the shadows advocating for this inequitable society. A society where we force certain groups of people to struggle through life with injustice as a mandatory condition.

Youth are voting for their future

In the 2020 election, 62% of 18-29 year-olds voted for President Biden. That trend continues with the recent spike in young people registering to vote Democrat for Kamala. And why wouldn't they? Democrat leadership addresses the realities of the future.

Young people want hope for the environment they're inheriting. For years, Big Oil and the GOP claimed that climate change wasn't a concern. Today's youth plainly see fires, flooding and hurricanes rendering parts of the US uninhabitable and driving up the cost of construction, insurance and food. Even as clean water and air are being compromised, the Republican Party continues to roll back EPA regulations (while denying doing so).

Young people want hope for an economy that supports getting a job, owning a home and raising a family. They haven't been indoctrinated with decades of Republican anti-government propaganda (or theories about "free enterprise" creating "trickle-down wealth"). They know it's a fallacy; resulting in America's middle class shrinking from 66% to 49%. They're aware that tax cuts to the rich and union-busting have led to upper-class Americans seeing their wages rise 47% while lower-class wages have only gained 28%.

Young people realistically view the changing landscape of America - accepting women in positions of power, LGBTQ individuals and citizens of a different race or culture. They aren't drawn to the "hate those who are different" rhetoric intended to attract racist, judgmental voters.

Young people are turning away from hypocritical religions that preach "love one another" (but only some people), religions that reject abortion (but conceal pedophile clergy) or religions dictating women stay married and have children (even if they're being physically and emotionally abused).

The Republican Party continues to court angry, distrustful voters - convincing them that government interference, taxes and Democrat "coastal elites" have ruined this country. But young people are more interested in Kamala's 82-page-booklet of solutions to support working Americans, than GOP cynicism.

Young people appreciate the Democrat's efforts to level the playing field with oversight on predatory lending, price-gouging caps, small-business loans, apprentice-training programs, homeownership tax credits and child care assistance. They want a Party "for the people" based on kindness, equality and respect (not a Party with anonymous right-wing one-percenters getting richer while their puppet politicians pretend to care about morality and freedom).

Vote with optimistic young people. Every new generation deserves the chance to address their future in tune with an ever-evolving and changing world.

Collins responds to Conservative Party chair

In his letter "Who is it telling lies?" published Oct. 11 on NorthCountryNow.com, I noticed the question posed to me by Hank Ford, Chairman of the St. Lawrence County Conservative Party regarding Stefanik's lies. There are many. Here are a few:

I believe Stefanik lied when she said that she supports our efforts in Ukraine, but then voted against an aid package for military support in Ukraine.

I believe Stefanik lies when she holds herself out as pro-Israel while not rebuking MAGA supporters who display Nazi swastikas. The MAGA Party denigrates prominent Jewish Americans and promotes replacement theory ideology.

In Oct 2022, Stefanik boasted that she secured $12.9 million in aid for rural hospitals in NY21. This is one of several instances in which Stefanik has taken credit for appropriations that she voted against, such as money for fire stations, sewer, and water systems throughout the district. I believe Stefanik has not secured this money. She had voted against this money when she voted against the American Rescue Plan.

I believe Stefanik lies when she says she supports veterans. She voted against the automatic enrollment for veterans in the VA Health Plan. She also voted against money for treatment of burn pit injuries. She supports privatization of the health insurance system for military families.

I believe Stefanik lies when she says she is supportive of those who are on Medicare. Her party is closely aligned with Project 2025, which includes cuts to limit Medicare and lift caps on prescription drug prices for Medicare recipients.

A person who calls those convicted of crimes on Jan 6, 2021 that included brutalization of Capitol Police forces is lying when she says she "backs the blue". Stefanik supports those who brutalized men and women in blue. That is not "backing" law enforcement officers.

I believe Stefanik lies when she blames Kamala Harris for the lack of a border bill. She calls Harris the "border czar"; the United States does not have czars in our government. Stefanik blames Kamala Harris for the failures at the border. Yet, Stefanik could have introduced an immigration bill in Congress, whereas a VP cannot introduce a bill.

I believe Stefanik lies when she says she supports women, and yet does not rebuke Donald Trump for being denigrating to women, nor for being found guilty of sexual assault.

I believe Stefanik lies when she says she supports our Democratic process, and yet refuses to accept the results of the 2020 election.

I believe Stefanik is untrue to her oath of office, in which she swore to support and defend the U.S. Constitution, while her mentor, Donald Trump, openly calls for "termination" of parts of the constitution.

Reject Prop 1 for sake of state

Proposition 1 is a Trojan horse, pushing radical left policy under the guise of an "equal rights" amendment to New York's constitution.

If passed, it will add protected classes such as ethnicity, national origin, sexual orientation, gender identity, pregnancy, and pregnancy outcomes.

This bundle of far-left policy bypasses the legislative process that would require a 2/3 vote in the state legislature, instead seeking approval through a ballot initiative.

It prioritizes undocumented immigrants and vote-buying over the solvency of social safety nets meant for all Americans.

This amendment could open the door for illegal immigrants to vote in state elections, as highlighted by Westchester County attorney Bobbie Anne Cox.

Similar legislation in California has expanded free healthcare to over 700,000 undocumented immigrants, costing taxpayers around $3.1 billion annually.

Proposition 1 risks bankrupting New York's already fragile social safety net, costing taxpayers billions in the long run.

Proposition 1 turns its back on the people of the North Country.

We must reject this policy for the sake of New York's future.

This is why we must vote for leaders like President Trump, Congresswoman Stefanik, and Senator Stec this November to fight against proposals like Prop 1.

Be sure to turn your ballot over and Vote No on the insidious Proposition 1.

Flawed and false promise of Socialism

I am sympathetic to McKay Burley's lament (Re: "Why Massena resident voting socialist in 2024") that both political parties have forgotten the working class in America.

The majority of Americans who work, raise families, serve in the military, and contribute freely to their community, have indeed been ignored by our elected servants who pander instead to special interests.

That said, Socialism in any shape or form is not the solution.

History and current events conclusively demonstrate that its cure is much worse than the ailment it seeks to solve. The former Soviet Union, present day China, Venezuela, North Korea, and Vietnam practicing this failed ideology ended up impoverished and individual freedoms were abolished.

Socialism in any flavor is an external stick and carrot mechanism to program people to become a fair and just society.

Problem is, it never delivers the carrot. Ironically, Socialism ends up creating a tiny elite class to exploit the very people they had promised equality and prosperity. George Orwell's "Animal Farm" portrayed these socialist elites as being "more equal than others".

When Hugo Chavez in Venezuela nationalized the oil industry under socialism, he promised to share the wealth with all his fellow citizens. Instead, once in power, he and his cronies pulled a bait and switch, enriching themselves with billions of dollars in oil profits, leaving the Venezuelan people starving and poorer than before.

Lest anyone think I'm conflating the practice of communism with socialism, Lenin himself stated "The goal of socialism is communism." There is no real difference between the two.

The one leads to the other. Beware of those who claim it can work "because it hasn't been done right yet." It never will.

The American Constitution is the best instrument of government for humanity ever to put on paper. Any failure in our nation is not due to an inherent fault of our Constitutional system, only by those elected who neglected or misused their sacred trust failing to uphold their oath of office.

Let's not trade on our true and proven form of limited government for the false and flawed promise of Socialism.

Event highlighted suicide awareness

On behalf of the SLC Suicide Awareness Coalition, we would like to express our heartfelt gratitude to Liberty Gas, Massena Central School District, and everyone from the Community who participated in the Liberty Color Run on September 14. Your support not only brought vibrant colors to the John Story Trail at Massena Central High School but also highlighted the crucial cause of suicide awareness.

This event, organized by Liberty Gas in partnership with the Massena Central School District, truly united our community. As participants ran (or walked) through sprinklers and were splashed with color, we witnessed laughter and joy, all while promoting awareness for the mental health issues that affect us all.

We would also like to extend our thanks to our enthusiastic volunteers, local businesses, and everyone who contributed to the day's festivities. Your efforts helped create an unforgettable atmosphere filled with positivity and encouragement. The playful squirt guns added an extra layer of fun, reminding us that we can tackle serious issues while celebrating life.

The "Chalk the Walk" initiative was a beautiful addition, allowing participants to express their thoughts and messages of hope. Each chalk mark represented a personal connection to our cause, showcasing the power of community in fostering understanding and support.

Your participation in the Liberty Color Run has made a lasting impact. Together, we are breaking the silence surrounding suicide and encouraging conversations about mental health. Every step you took and every color you wore helped spread awareness and hope.

Thank you once again, to Liberty Gas and Massena Central School District for organizing this event, and to you, community members for being part of this vital initiative. Let's continue to support one another, uplift those in need, and work together to create a brighter, more compassionate future. We look forward to seeing you at next year's event.

Anne Marie Snell on behalf of members of the St. Lawrence County Suicide Awareness Coalition Steering Committee

Will do, won't do for Prop 1

Misinformation is spreading about the statewide ballot proposal that voters will find on the back of their ballot this November. Here, as summarized by the NYC Bar Association, is what Prop. 1 will, and won't do.

"WILL establish constitutional protections against discrimination based on ethnicity, national origin, age, disability, and sex—including sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, pregnancy and pregnancy outcomes, and reproductive healthcare and autonomy. These protections would be in addition to the current explicit protections against racial and religious discrimination under the State Constitution. When a right is established in the Constitution, it is protected from future legislation that might put it at risk.

WILL protect abortion rights and access to reproductive healthcare, including birth control and IVF, by preventing future State laws banning abortion and/or punishing or prosecuting pregnancy outcomes like miscarriages.

WILL protect LGBTQ+ New Yorkers by preventing future State laws from rolling back current LGBTQ+ rights to equal treatment.

WILL protect older, disabled, pregnant and LGBTQ+ New Yorkers from government discrimination in hiring, pay, and promotion.

WILL ensure that older and disabled New Yorkers have the access they need to vote and to use public spaces and facilities.

WILL NOT impact parental rights. Prop 1 does not address parental rights, which are governed by other developed areas of State and federal law. Prop 1 does not change existing law with respect to parental consent, or parents' ability to be involved in decision-making about healthcare or medical procedures for their minor children, including gender-affirming care.

WILL NOT change current law with respect to participation on sports teams. Prop 1 does not change existing law and has no explicit provision relating to participation on sports teams. Prop 1 is consistent with Title IX, the controlling federal law that has already been interpreted by federal courts to require young people to play on sports teams that match their gender identity and expression.

WILL NOT impact or change the qualifications for voting. A separate part of the State Constitution governs qualifications for voting based on citizenship status. Prop 1 does not enfranchise any new classes of voters." I can add that it also WILL NOT affect the status of undocumented immigrants in New York.

Know the facts before you cast your vote on Prop. 1 this November.

LETTERS TO THE EDITORVote LeRoux
for village trustee

I am honored to endorse Ron LeRoux Jr. as candidate for the office of Massena Village Trustee. He is not only my husband, co-worker and best friend, he is a dedicated, hardworking family man with a successful career and a drive to help this community flourish. He comes from a community involved family as I have served on both the Massena School Board and am currently serving the town of Massena, and his in-laws are well respected Massena landlords with the highest possible standards.

Ron, a long-time Massena resident, graduated from Massena Central High School in 1993 and attended the State University of New York at Canton, where he earned an associate's degree in business management. Ron, our eight children and I live just minutes away from downtown Massena, which has allowed us the opportunity to experience so many of the current benefits and see the needs that our community has.

I most admire Ron for his selflessness and passion. Whether it is work related, family related or community related, Ron is always willing to go beyond what is asked of him to help others and never hesitates to fight for what is right. He has worked for ACR Health, which is a not-for-profit, community-based organization providing an array of support services to individuals affected by a wide range of chronic diseases, including HIV/AIDS, with the goal of positive health outcomes, for over 10 years and seeing him in action, I acquired respect and admiration for his generosity, intelligence, and dedication to a good cause.

With proud enthusiasm, I support Ron LeRoux Jr for the position of Massena Village Trustee, and we wholeheartedly thank you for your support on Election Day, November 5, 2024.

Massena Meals on Wheels says thanks

Massena Meals on Wheels would like to extend a heartfelt thank you to our community members for their overwhelming support, once again, during our annual fundraisers held on Oct 4th. Our goal far exceeded expectations this year through our combined spaghetti lunch/dinner meal and Stock the Pot, as well as many very generous donations from the community.

There were many businesses and individuals who helped to make our fundraisers a great success. A special thank you once again to Cathy and Shawna Cecot for allowing us to use their famous meatball and sauce recipe, served at the Village Inn. Lunch for our clients was again provided by Subway at Walmart, Massena. Many thanks for your all-time famous subs. BJ's Massena, US Foods, Walmart Massena, Pepsi of Ogdensburg, and Valley Paper. Hats off to our MOW board member Margo Rochefort for, once again, providing the home-made gourmet cupcakes that we all enjoyed. We must also extend a huge thank you, again this year, to two very special ladies for their time and hard work throughout our day, Merrill D'Arienzo and Rosalie Hamel, tallying all donations received and recording our results.

Great publicity was provided by WMSA/Mix 96.1 Radio prior to our event reminding the community to come out and support Massena Meals on Wheels. Thanks once again this year Bob Beckstead, for the publicity you provided in the local newspapers to get the word out about our Meals on Wheels fundraisers. Thank you to the Free Trader, North Country Shopper, and North Country Now for spreading the word in helping to keep our wheels rolling. Thank you also to Dale Woods for setting up your road sign to attract the attention of drivers as they passed by the Meals on Wheels building. Everyone certainly helped to spread the word.

Stock the Pot, our roadside collection event, was a huge success. Thank you to the many volunteers who manned the road filling our pots with donations as vehicles passed by. Elijah Winfrey, from WMSA/Mix 96.1 Radio joined Stock the Pot to broadcast and encourage drivers to make a donation. A sincere thank you to each and every person for your donation, large or small. Those many coins collected over $500.

The Massena Meals on Wheels Board of Directors would also like to extend the warmest of thanks to our wonderful staff, Stacie Hawkins & John Piche for going above and beyond to assist in making this day such a success. Special Friends of Massena Meals on Wheels kitchen crew: Chuck Raiti, Mike Darling, Kathy Fleury, Dan Murphy, Josie Post, Margaret Dunn, Linda LePage, and Cathy Faucher deserve a huge thank you for their hours of helping prepare the spaghetti sauce and the mixing and rolling the meatballs, alongside the members of the Board of Directors.

Another group of Friends of Massena Meals on Wheels arrived very early to help organize and prepare our spaghetti and meatball meal to be served. Many thanks to the group of ladies who stepped in and completed an overwhelming task in a short amount of time. Special thanks to Linda LePage, Angele Lepage, Barb Sanford, Kathy Russell and Nancy Brothers. You exemplified the statement "Many hands make light work". Thanks to Mike Darling for again setting up his dining canopy to shelter those working the line for meal pick-ups. Thanks also to Mike Darling and Randy LePage for running the curbside service to assure the delivery of our hot meals to all.

Thank you to all the businesses, service clubs, organizations, groups and individuals for your support. The combined efforts of the day raised over $19,000 for Massena Meals on Wheels. We could not keep our wheels rolling without your continued support.

An eye-opening visit to Terezin

In 2019, I visited Terezin, the site of a former Nazi run concentration camp about an hour train ride outside of Prague. Seeing the crematoria and the gravesites is a haunting, surreal experience. An inscription from Psalm 38:17 reads, "My sorrow is continually before me."

Terezin was considered less "harsh" than the infamous Auschwitz and Dachau. Prisoners were allowed to wear their own civilian clothes. It was a place of propaganda, to spread the lie that the Nazis were treating Jewish people nicely, a way for Nazis to pat themselves on the back for their "kind" treatment of those that Nazi author Julius Streicher compared to mushrooms, writing that it's hard to tell a poisonous mushroom from a ripe one, which is why the Jewish people "need" to be kept away from good German "herrenvolk." Jewish prisoners themselves participated in propaganda films presenting Terezin as a friendly place, hoping that this would spare their lives, although many would eventually be sent to Auschwitz.

The Nazi propaganda machine was able to fool and lure in millions of everyday people in Germany, a constitutional republic and a society with a history of great art, music, literature, and philosophy from Bach and Beethoven to Kant, Goethe, and Wagner. Yet despite such a high cultural legacy, Germany had for centuries been infected by virulent anti-Semitism, which went back at least to the writings and sermons of Martin Luther. Add in economic anxiety brought on by the post World War One recession, and the Weimar Republic was ripe to be taken over by a conman who convinced the German people to blame their troubles on the Jews.

He was a buffoon who called his media critics "liègenpresse" or "lying press," and was dismissed by contemporary journalists as "a clown...a caricature of himself" who would be reined in by other elected officials. Yet other reporters could see that he was a "marvelous demagogue who can really inspire loyalty" with "oratorical skills...to whip people into a frenzy."

Terezin, the place I visited, was not turned into a concentration camp until 1941, years after he had assumed power. Before the violence, there was his cruel, dehumanizing demagoguery toward Jews and other minorities he accused of "poisoning the blood" of the herrenvolk. The United States Holocaust Memorial Museum released a statement in November 2016 reminding us: "The Holocaust did not begin with killing; it began with words."

Foul dumping in the Deer River

Since early 2024, North Lawrence and Brasher residents have seen Leptothrix lactis contamination, a sewage fungus, in the Deer River due to North Country Dairy's processing waste ("North Lawrence and Brasher residents voice concerns over Deer River contamination" North Country Now, 6/6/24). The fungus is smelly and blob-like, posing threats to nearby residents' well water as well as aquatic ecosystems in the river. Not only is the dairy plant still operating, but its representatives have failed to take responsibility for their actions and clean up Deer River.

Close to the river, some communities could become environmental justice areas, meaning they would be disproportionately burdened by environmental degradation. According to the Department of Environmental Conservation's Potential Environmental Justice Areas (PEJAs) map, the area of contamination is sandwiched between two PEJAs, where 65% of the communities are minority populations and 30% live below the poverty line. Deer River, a tributary of St. Regis Falls, has even smaller connected brooks in the affected PEJAs, so the sewage fungus could potentially spread into these marginalized communities.

Kevin J. Ellis, CEO of North Country Dairy, released a well-crafted — but ultimately lackluster — statement (<https://northlawrence-communityupdate.com/>) on the issue, leaving out any form of direct action. Let's hold North Country Dairy accountable for its mess and ensure that no communities, especially those that have been historically underserved, have to deal with further water contamination.

Inspect fuel tanks, equipment for leaks

The New York State Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) today advised property owners to prioritize safety when preparing for home heating needs this fall and winter.

DEC reminded property owners that connecting occupied buildings to wells producing natural gas is dangerous and potentially deadly.

DEC also encouraged property owners to inspect fuel storage tanks for potential leaks or spills prior to receiving shipments of fuel oil for the upcoming heating season.

In addition, DEC urged residents to take steps now to utilize programs designed to save consumers energy and money.

Natural Gas Safety

Natural gas produced by a gas or oil well is odorless and difficult or impossible for a person to detect.

While the primary component of natural gas is methane, gases like propane and butane may also be present in addition to water, because the gas is raw and untreated.

This may result in improper and erratic combustion in appliances. The risk of an explosion due to natural gas build-up in a home is substantially greater when that gas is not provided by a utility.

If a home-use well is connected to a house or other structure:

Contact a plumber licensed to work on gas lines and have the fuel source switched to utility natural gas or consider another fuel or heating appliance;

Natural gas directly from a well is odorless and colorless, meaning it may build up to explosive levels without detection. Install methane detection alarms in any closed space where methane may accumulate;

Commercial gas suppliers always add the odorant mercaptan to natural gas before it is delivered for use. Consider adding mercaptan to natural gas from a home use well so it can be more easily detected; and Contact DEC if the well is not registered in DEC's database.

Owning and operating an oil or gas well comes with regulatory responsibilities to protect the environment.

New York is actively plugging oil and gas wells throughout the state and home wells may be eligible for the State's program.

For questions and additional information about home-use wells, contact DEC at (518) 402-8056 or oilgas@dec.ny.gov.

Also, visit DEC's website for photos and additional details at: <https://dec.ny.gov/environmental-protection/oil-gas/landowner-information-on-wells>.

Fuel Oil Safety

DEC also reminds home and property owners to inspect heating fuel oil storage tanks for leaks or spills before ordering and receiving fuel oil.

Annual inspections can prevent leaks and spills and protect property, public health, and the environment. Homeowners are advised to look for the following concerns and contact their fuel oil service provider if they see any of the items from the lists below.

For above-ground heating fuel oil storage tanks, look for:

Bent, rusty, or wobbly tank legs or tank located on an unstable foundation;

Signs of rust, weeps, wet spots, or many dents on the tank's surface;

Drips or any signs of leaks around the oil filter or valves;

Fuel oil lines not covered in a protective casing - even if under concrete;

Overhanging eaves where snow and ice could fall onto the tank;

Stains on the ground or strong oil odor around the tank;

Browning, dying, or loss of vegetation around the tank;

Silent overfill whistle while tank is being filled - ask fuel delivery person;

Fully or partially blocked tank vent from snow, ice, or insect nests;

Signs of spills around fill pipe or vent pipe;

Improperly sized vent pipes - ask fuel delivery person;

Cracked, stuck, or frozen fuel level gauges or signs of fuel around them.

For underground heating fuel oil storage tanks, look for:

Water in the tank - ask fuel delivery person to check;

Oil or oil sheen in your basement sump or French drain;

Silent overfill whistle while tank is being filled - ask fuel delivery person;

Fully or partially blocked tank vent from snow, ice, or insect nests;

Signs of spills around fill pipe or vent pipe;

Well water has strange tastes or smells;

Complaints from neighbors of fuel oil smells; and

Using more than normal amount of fuel.

Are your detectors working?

Firefighters Association urges residents to install smoke alarms

POTSDAM -- Are your smoke alarms all working? And do you have enough?

St. Lawrence County residents are urged by the Firefighters Association of the State of New York (FASNY) to check their alarms and install new ones if needed prior to the start of home heating season.

FASNY recently observed Fire Prevention Week 2024 (Oct. 6-12). This year's theme, "Smoke Alarms: Make Them Work for You!" underscores the vital role smoke alarms play in day-to-day fire safety.

"FASNY consistently educates the public that smoke alarms are a critical component of home safety, and it is important to ensure they are always in working order," said Eugene Perry, President of FASNY.

Working smoke alarms could make the difference between life and death in a home fire.

According to the National Fire Prevention Association, the risk of dying in a home without working smoke detectors is 55% higher than in a home with fully-functioning alarms.

Additionally, three of every five home fire deaths are in residences without working smoke alarms.

In 2019, New York State enacted legislation that required all new smoke detectors sold to contain 10-year, non-removable batteries to discourage tampering.

If you're not sure when you last replaced the batteries or bought a smoke alarm, FASNY encourages purchasing a new one.

According to the U.S. Fire Administration, New York State is currently ranked 4th in the country for home fire fatalities.

As the cooler months approach people will be turning on their home heating systems, starting to use space heaters, and enjoying outdoor fire pits and chimneys.

This makes Fire Prevention Week the perfect time to ensure that your smoke and carbon monoxide alarms are properly installed and maintained.

Key smoke alarm safety tips and guidelines include:

- Installing smoke alarms in every bedroom, outside each separate sleeping area (like a hallway), and on each level (including the basement) of the home.

- Testing smoke alarms at least once a month by pushing the test button.

- Replacing all smoke alarms when they are 10 years old or stop responding when tested.

For more fire safety tips and to learn about FASNY's resources, visit NFPA's Fire Prevention Week page or FASNY's official site.

CRYPTO . . .Investment to allow expansion that many of you know well. They're one of our biggest customers. They're our best customer in terms of industry knowledge and intelligence, hard work. We're thrilled to announce today that we're partnering for our future with NYDIG," Fogel told employees.

Operations at NCCS will continue as-is after the strategic investment into Coinmint, with the focus on growth and expansion over the coming years.

According to Fogel, the partnership with NYDIG will strengthen Coinmint's financial and competitive positioning, while also protecting workers in Massena and the North Country.

The investment from NYDIG will allow NCCS to further its expansion project, which NCCS has been investing material capital in for over three years, Fogel said.

The partnership on the project has been on hold as Massena Town Board members weighed final regulations for data mining and crypto operations in the town for the last several months.

Town officials adopted the final regulations during their board meeting last month.

"This investment reinforces our commitment to the Northern NY community. By expanding the NCCS operation, we aim to create more jobs and focus on long-term stability and growth for employees and their families," Fogel told North Country This Week.

Fogel commented that NCCS, one of St. Lawrence County's largest taxpayers, will continue to invest and act as an active benefactor of Massena and the North Country community institutions and events. To date, NCCS has assisted the Massena Fire Department, Massena First Responders, Massena Central School District, Rockin' The River festivals and numerous other charitable events and organizations.

NYDIG CEO Tejas Shah and other senior executives from NYDIG were also on hand for the event.

"The operational excellence of all the staff in this space gives us significant confidence in their long-term growth. From our perspective, over the past several years we have viewed this site, this company, as a premier Bitcoin mining facility in the country," Shah said.

As part of the partnership, Fogel and Shah said they felt it was important employees truly understood how important they were to the company and its success. Shah said he and NCCS founder Ashton Soniat will provide all workers in Massena and Plattsburgh a one-time bonus as a thank you, on top of the existing bonus structure.

The two companies are awarding every employee in Massena and Plattsburgh a bonus from a $500,000 pool based on service time.

NCCS currently hosts 54,000 miners, essentially computer servers that continually mine for Bitcoin, over four former smelting lines.

Fogel said the plan is to continue to expand operations to possibly utilize all six of the site's former smelting lines, each roughly the length of five football fields.

He said the facility is currently using 166 megawatts of its 435-megawatt approved amount, leaving significant room for the expansion project. NCCS draws electricity from the nearby Moses-Saunders dam.

One of the keys to the project would be utilizing more efficient machines, along with a rack system that would allow for more miners to be stored in the facility, as opposed to the shipping containers that are currently used in some cases.

Company officers say the rack systems are much easier to work with, allowing technicians to more easily install and maintain the miners.

The facility would also see a number of other upgrades, including to the electrical system, cranes and three unused lines. For these upgrades and the overall expansion project, NCCS intends to use as many local and regional suppliers as possible, creating a further boost to the North Country economy.

No timeline or financial figure has been given for the project just yet, but Fogel said the companies are working together diligently to take the next steps as soon as possible.

"This really is a huge day for NCCS. We really are proud of this partnership, and I think this will set us up for success for many years to come. This expansion project really will be transformative and we're proud to partner with NYDIG," Fogel said.

PROPOSITION . . .
Legislators debate Proposition 1

protection of the laws of this state or any subdivision thereof.

"a. No person shall, because of race, color, [ethnicity, national origin, age, disability,] creed, religion, [or sex, including sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, pregnancy, pregnancy outcomes, and reproductive health-care and autonomy,] be subjected to any discrimination in civil rights by any other person or by any firm, corporation, or institution, or by the state or any agency or subdivision of the state,

"b. Nothing in this section shall invalidate or prevent the adoption of any law, regulation, program, or practice that is designed to prevent or dismantle discrimination on the basis of a characteristic listed in this section, nor shall any characteristic listed in this section be interpreted to interfere with, limit, or deny the civil rights of any person based upon any other characteristic identified in this section."

While section b. would be entirely new, the changes of the section "a" are in brackets.

For some legislators, like Smithers, it's a matter of protecting women and ensuring that biological males are not able to participate in women's sports.

The debate

Smithers said he has spoken to many family members who all opposed Proposition 1, specifically as it pertains to women's sports and the use of facilities like locker rooms and bathrooms.

Webster commented much the same, saying he never thought a day would come "when we would vote to put men in women's sports to beat them up."

"I have no problem if someone wants to be a butterfly, a cat or even a jackass. I have no problem with that," Webster said.

But Proposition 1 is crossing the line, he said.

He commented that he has received numerous phone calls about the measure with many constituents asking "what are you going to do about it?"

"I believe this is our responsibility (to constituents), to speak on this," Webster said.

But Haggard opposed the sentiment, going as far to say that the resolution was a violation of law established following Stern v. Kramarsky.

Is it legal?

Haggard said she had spoken with an attorney from the New York State Board of Elections who supplied her with documentation that described actions such as the resolution as "improper and illegal."

"It inhibits the democratic process through the misuse of government funds and prestige," Haggard said.

She said all individuals, whether they are gay, straight, transitioning, trans, pregnant or another protected class all contribute to fund the government through taxes. Those public funds are "trust funds and are thus sacred and are to only be used for the running of government," she said.

To pass the resolution would tantamount to a school board using public funds to advocate for the passage of a school budget, which was deemed illegal in 1986, she said.

"Each legislator has a First Amendment right to personally advocate but the body itself does not," Haggard said.

Terminelli likened the resolution to passing a resolution advocating for a slate of candidates, another idea that itself is outside the legal scope of a governing entity.

While Haggard and Terminelli said it was an illegal resolution, Hull questioned the language of the resolution as cited by the pair.

"I'm trying to find where the word or some synonym of the word 'urge' is in this resolution," he said.

Hull said he questioned how the resolution was urging any voter to vote against the proposition when it was merely urging the legislature to oppose Proposition 1.

When asked to weigh in, County Attorney Steve Button said arguments for an against the proposition were both "interesting and slightly misleading."

He commented that both the left and right have attempted to frame the arguments around women's rights and parental rights but "both are a very limited view of the modification that is being proposed in Prop 1."

Button said the new language would create a new series of classes, many of which were incorporated in the 1964 Civil Rights Act but were never codified into the New York State or U.S. Constitutions.

Button said the new language would ultimately create new protected classes.

"As has occurred throughout time, words can change and the meaning of them can change," Button said.

He said the new language, specifically in section B, will allow the state to "engage in certain acts to propagate those classes they feel have been discriminated against in the past."

"This proposition is going to create generations of discussions, debate, ambiguity and most likely significant legal challenges," Button said.

Chairman opposed

While many Republicans on the board supported the resolution to oppose Proposition 1, Chairman of the Legislature David Forsythe voted against the resolution, despite saying he was against Proposition 1.

Forsythe took a moment to comment on the "political science in the arena," which came in the form of pro-Proposition 1 advocates attending the meeting with political signs.

He said he took exception to the move, saying that sort of act is "meant to be outside" of chambers.

"I'll be very clear, I'm a 'no' all the way if someone wants my free speech. But I don't appreciate the signs in our chambers," Forsythe said.

A secret ballot?

As the legislators moved to vote, Terminelli posed possibly having a secret ballot for the protection of legislators who may oppose the measure.

But Button shot the idea down, saying he was not aware of any language in Robert's Rules or other governing regulations that would allow for such a vote.

He did note that such a vote would be in violation of state Public Officers law.

In the end, legislators passed the resolution despite opposition from both sides of the aisle.

It will still need to clear the full board at the Nov. 4 meeting.

MURDER . . .Man accused of two killings

the process of returning it to him.

"The police didn't pay any attention to a word Adam said, but they should have because in this very complex case, the facts don't add up to Adam committing any crimes that he is accused of," Barrett said.

Barrett went on further, detailing Smith's arrest before giving a brief history of Smith's life.

He called Smith "the quiet kid" at school who was not an outcast but also not in the inner circle of a friend group.

"He got you your first pack of cigarettes in middle school. He got you your first 12 pack of beer in high school. And when he went to that field party and you got sick from those first beers, Adam got you into his car and gave you a ride home and would never ask for a thing later on," Barrett said.

But post graduation, Barrett said Smith would sell marijuana and cocaine to make ends meet.

"But an individual who sells drugs does not equate to a violent person who is capable of homicide," Barrett commented.

Barrett then attempted to call into question the history of many individuals who knew Smith, attempting to detail drug overdoses, drug use and other questionable actions by potential witnesses.

On eight separate occasions Pasqua objected to Barrett's statements, forcing the attorneys and Smith to approach the bench.

Each time, Judge Greg Storie sustained Pasqua's objections, forcing Barrett to revise his opening statement.

While Barrett portrayed the case as a "complex puzzle of evidence," Pasqua said the case was in fact very simple.

He commented that both Freeman and Durham had similar lives, with both being born in the 1950's, both living in the southern portion of the county, both driving pickups "like many people do in the North Country" and both having known Smith prior to their deaths.

"What they didn't know is that the defendant is an opportunist who exploits the circumstances of people around him for his own needs, wants and desires, and doesn't care about the damage and destruction he leaves in his wake.

Pasqua said it was due to this that Smith eventually got the better of both, eventually murdering them before stealing their trucks, cash, valuables, credit cards, debit cards and even rifles.

He said the evidence of the two cases "is nearly identical in each case," with both men eventually succumbing to wounds inflicted by Smith as he attempted to rob each of them.

Pasqua said both had their throats cut before their valuables were stolen. Smith then went on to steal both of their vehicles before driving south to Syracuse "and going on shopping sprees."

He detailed how Cortland Police seized Durham's truck with Smith at the wheel after it was found to have an expired registration.

It wasn't until a month later that police eventually searched the vehicle and found Durham's checkbook, blood and the knife used to kill Durham, Pasqua said.

He went on further, saying the knife not only had Durham's blood on it, but also Smith's DNA.

Pasqua said it took a month for police to search the truck because another individual had wrongly confessed to the murder of Durham previously.

"What you won't hear, what you won't see, what you can't hear and what you can't see is any evidence, any shred of evidence, physical or forensic, that links that person who made that confession to the death of Ronald Durham," Pasqua said.

It was due to that wrongful confession that allowed Smith to be free for another month, leading to the death of Freeman on March 1, he said.

Pasqua detailed that murder as well, saying Freeman was killed in a similar fashion with his throat cut.

"Sound familiar?" Pasqua asked.

He said Freeman put up a better fight, sustaining defensive wounds to his hand before being "stabbed in the back, through his liver, touching his ribs in the front so hard that you will see it bent that knife."

Pasqua then detailed what he claimed were Smith's attempts to cover up the murders before being caught by law enforcement shortly after Freeman's murder.

At the time he was arrested, blood from both Durham and Freeman were found on Smith's boots at the time of his arrest, he said.

"Ladies and gentlemen, this really isn't a complicated case. Yes, there are going to be hundreds of exhibits, there is going to be scientific evidence, there is going to be some very technical evidence. But the nature of it does not make this complex because if you follow the evidence, it all aligns and leads to only one conclusion. If you pay attention to the evidence, it all aligns that this defendant is guilty beyond any reasonable doubt in the murders of both Ronald Durham and William Freeman," Pasqua said.
